Issuance of Fiat Money Has Been Hard Blow to Merchants.

Rebels Are Greatly Incensed By the Embargo on Ammunition.

Garibaldi Denies He Has Resigned Command of Federals.

El Paso, Tex., June 1.—Americans and other foreign residents are leaving the city of Chihuahua and the rebel zone in Northern Mexico as rapidly as train service will permit.

The warning from Washington several weeks ago for Americans to remove themselves from scenes of disturbances is believed to have been reiterated within the last three days through Marion Letcher, American consul at Chihuahua.

Passengers who arrived on the special train from Chihuahua late last night were agreed in their assertions today that even in the long period of isolation which Chihuahua suffered during the Madero revolution, no such perilous conditions or demoralized business prospects existed for foreigners as are today spreading alarm through Northern Mexico.

Town May Be Sacked.

The situation in Chihuahua is declared by the refugees to be critical. The town may be taken and sacked at any hour, they said.

Although no overt act has been committed to indicate that the rebel officials would not be able to restrain the populace in anti-foreign outbreaks, the

FARGO MAN WANTS TO LEAVE MEXICO

Max Blatchford Telegraphs for Money—Is on Ranch Near Mazatlan.

Fargo, N. D., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Max Blatchford, one of the Fargoans on the Concha ranch near Mazatlan, Mexico, has wired for money to get out of that country. He assured relatives he was in no immediate danger. He and John Kreeger of Fargo and Ward and Lykken, two young men of Grand Forks, have been on the ranch for months.

Concha ranch contains 80,000 acres and is owned by North Dakotans. W. F. Lemke of Fargo is president. He says that a telegram yesterday from Manager Musick reported the rebels had taken two mules, for which they issued receipts. The women left the ranch months ago, and arrangements have been made to have the United States government notify the ranch people in case of intervention. Blatchford has written relatives that the rebels were not dangerous, but persisted in destroying all improvements made on the ranch.

RHODE ISLAND GOES TO CLARK

Delegates Will Vote for Him on at Least One Ballot.

Providence, R. I., June 1.—Revised complete returns from the first Democratic presidential primary in Rhode Island show that Speaker Champ Clark, candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, and National Committeeman George W. Green, candidate for re-election, have been victorious. Speaker Clark received 4,107 votes to 1,333 for Governor Wilson and 728 for Governor Harmon. Committeeman Green polled 5,224 votes against 4,991 for Congressman George F. O'Shaughnessy. The delegates to the Baltimore convention will support Speaker Clark on at least one ballot.

The primary was featured by the light vote cast. In some towns no primaries were held because of the small interest shown by the voters.

TITANIC'S SURVIVORS HONOR THEIR RESCUER

CAPT. A. H. ROSTRON OF THE CARPATHIA RECEIVING FROM MRS. J. J. BROWN THE LOVING CUP GIVEN HIM BY THOSE HE RESCUED FROM DEATH AT SEA.

New York, June 1.—Capt. A. H. Rostron of the steamship Carpathia is likely to receive a $1,000 gold medal from congress, but he will probably not value it more highly than he does the silver loving cup which was presented to him by the survivors of the Titanic. Their spokeswoman was Mrs. J. J. Brown and she was accompanied by a committee consisting of passengers whom Capt. Rostron and his crew saved from drowning or starvation. The members of the Carpathia's crew also received medals from the committee.

RETURN TO EMBARRASS

Talks By Politicians That Come Back to Plague Them.

Ormsby McHarg's Former Opinion of Roosevelt—Story By Bryan.

(By Willis J. Abbot.)

Washington, June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—What politicians say no less than what they write is apt to rise up in later years to curse them. Col. Roosevelt seems to be living down with some success his repeated declarations that he would never, no never, be a candidate for the presidency. But Col. Roosevelt can live down, or shout down, incidents in his public career which would have destroyed any other politician.

It must, however, be embarrassing to the colonel and to his chief lieutenant, Ormsby McHarg, to have some exceedingly shrewd observations made by the latter in 1910 dragged into unfeeling print today. Two brief exerpts will show the McHarg opinion of Roosevelt in that year:

"My Republicanism is the kind that is bred in the bone, but I cannot vote for Theodore Roosevelt. Although he professes to be the leader of the Republican party he is not a Republican according to my idea of one. He is

SHOOTS WIFE AND MOTHER-IN-LAW

Farmer Living Near Buffalo, N. Y., Then Commits Suicide.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 1.—G. E. Staples, a well-to-do farmer of Angola, twenty miles west of this city, today shot his wife, his mother-in-law, Mrs. M. Fillmore Brown, and shot himself. Mrs. Brown and the murderer died instantly. Physicians say Mrs. Staples will die.

SPRECKLES ESTATE ORDERED DISTRIBUTED.

San Francisco, Cal., June 1.—To facilitate an appeal to the supreme court of the United States, Superior Judge Coffey formally has ordered the Spreckles estate distributed according to the terms of the will of the late Claus Spreckles.

The proceedings mark the passing of the will contest from the state and county courts, where the $5,000,000 worth of property bequeathed to Rudolph and Claus Spreckles, Jr., and the daughter, Emma Ferris, has been kept for several years by the two other sons, A. B. and John D. Spreckles. The latter two were ignored in the will.

SENATE MAY VOTE FOR BATTLESHIPS.

Washington, June 1.—The two battleships eliminated from the naval appropriation bill in the house may be restored to the bill in the senate.

KILLS HIMSELF AFTER QUARREL WITH WOMAN.

Keota, Iowa, June 1.—George Hubbs, aged 21, a farm hand, last night after quarrelling with Miss Cora Anderson, for whose father he worked, stepped into the road in front of the house, pressed the muzzle of a double-barrelled shotgun to his heart and shot himself.

DEATH HALTS DARROW CASE

Cyrus S. McNutt, Associated With Defense, Dies During Night.

Job Harriman and Others Named in Franklin's Testimony.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 1.—Because of the death of Cyrus S. McNutt, who had been associated with the defense, the trial of Clarence S. Darrow, charged with jury bribing, was adjourned today until Monday morning.

It was learned today that Job Harriman, former Socialist candidate for mayor of Los Angeles, was summoned as a witness for the state yesterday. He was served immediately following the testimony of Bert H. Franklin.

Sensational disclosures of incidents alleged to have occurred in the camp of the McNamara defense as told by Bert H. Franklin, one of the state's principal witnesses, have given way to

CAR PATRONS VOTE ON SMOKING

Unique Election Is Held By Street Railway Company in Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., June 1.—To decide whether it will allow smoking on the street cars in Kansas City, the Metropolitan Street Railway company today began taking votes of all paying passengers. Each car carried a ballot box. The balloting will continue for a week, when the decision of those who ride will be made known. The company has promised to be guided by the vote.

For a year no smoking has been allowed on street cars here, but recently the city council repealed the ordinance that prohibited smoking. The company refused to obey the new order.

DEMOCRATS WILL REPEAT COTTON BILL.

Washington, June 1.—Democratic members of the house ways and means committee today directed Chairman Underwood to introduce the cotton tariff revision bill passed by the house at the extra session of congress.

SAYS STEEL PLANT WILL BE FINISHED IN EIGHTEEN MONTHS

JUDGE E. H. GARY.

HOT FINISH IN IOWA PRIMARY

Senatorial and State Office Aspirants Are Before the People.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 1.—The final day of the Republican and Democratic senatorial, congressional and state campaign for the primaries on Monday, found each of the candidates prepared for strenuous finishes. All of the campaigns, practically, will close tonight. Nominees for United States senator, congressmen in each of the eleven districts, governor and a full set of state, county and township officers, will be chosen.

Senator W. S. Kenyon of Fort Dodge seeks to succeed himself, and is opposed by Lafayette Young of Des Moines, who for five months held the place of the late Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver by appointment of Governor Carroll. Former Senator Young will finish a canvass extending for more than a year, with a mass meeting here tonight, his meeting and that of Senator Cummins to be held in buildings only a few blocks apart.

Second only in interest among the voters is the contest for governor. George W. Clarke, at present lieutenant governor, Perry G. Holden, formerly of Ames Agriculture college, and Senator A. V. Proudfoot of Indianola, are the Republican candidates.

On the Democratic side there is only one candidate for United States senator, Daniel W. Hamilton of Sigourney. E. G. Dunn of Mason City, and John T. Hamilton of Cedar Rapids, are the Democratic candidates for governor.

No Further Delays Are Expected---One of Duluth's Many "Talking Points."

United States Steel Corporation,
Office of the Chairman.
Empire Building, New York, May 27.

City Editor The Duluth Herald, Duluth, Minn.:

Dear Sir: I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of May 25th instant.

We have just decided to go on with the contemplated work at Duluth by finishing blast furnace, open hearth furnaces, wire mill, etc., at an additional cost of about $6,000,000, making in all about $10,000,000 invested in the improvements. I suppose the work should be completed within about a year and a half.

I hope there will be no further delay or interruption to the work, although, of course, it is impossible for anyone to say in advance exactly what will be done in the future.

I have given you a statement of our present intentions.

With kind regards, I am

Sincerely yours,
E. H. GARY, Chairman.

That is what Judge Gary has to say about the Duluth plant of the United State Steel corporation.

Judge Gary, as probably every business man in Duluth knows, is the chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation, and the active head of the biggest corporation in the world.

When The Herald began looking up "talking points" for Duluth, it wrote to Judge Gary for information. The above brief, courteous and very satisfactory answer was received. It comes from the highest authority there is in the company. Read casually the letter does not appear to contain a great deal of new information—and perhaps there is not much in it that Duluthians have not surmised or guessed, but this confirms their most hopeful surmises. Analyzed the letter means this: By Jan. 1, 1914 or before, the plant of the United States Steel corporation at Gary, Minn., will be complete, providing there are no delays that are unforeseen at the present time. Between now and that date the company will spend $6,000,000 in Duluth, or one and a half times as much as has already been spent on

DEAN ROGERS TO NAME BALDWIN

Yale Man Will Present Governor as Democratic Nominee.

New Haven, Conn., June 1.—The name of Governor Simeon E. Baldwin of this state will be presented to the Democratic national convention at Baltimore by Dean Henry Wade Rogers of the Yale law school, who will be a guest of the state delegation, and who, when the time comes for the nominating speeches, will sit in the convention by virtue of a proxy. Dean Rogers has been in Minneapolis for a month attending the Methodist convention, but is due home Monday. His acceptance of the invitation to make the nominating speech is contained in a message to Maj Lewis E. Stoddard, a member of the delegation.

LA FOLLETTE TO DICTATE

Ingram Tells South Dakotans He Will Frame Most of Platform.

Convention Ticket Tempest at Chicago Seems to Be Subsiding.

Yankton, S. D., June 1.—Speaker Charles A. Ingram of Wisconsin spoke here today in furtherance of Senator La Follette's presidential candidacy. He said that whether or not La Follette is nominated, the senator will dictate a large part of the platform.

"I believe Senator La Follette will hold the balance of power in the convention," said the speaker. "Neither Taft nor Roosevelt can be safely nominated without the strength and support of the La Follette delegates. From the way sentiment in favor of progressive ideas is growing, we will be able to dictate a large part of the Chicago platform, and once that platform gets before the convention the delegates will see that there is no one able to fit the platform but La Follette."

WOMAN AND MAN SLAIN IN SEATTLE

Joseph Miller Is in Jail Accused of Double Murder.

Seattle, Wash., June 1.—Mrs. Effie Lasson, 45 years old, was beaten to death with a carpenter's hammer, George Felton, 26 years old, was shot to death, and Joseph Miller, 35 years old, is in jail, charged with murder, as the culmination of a fight between Miller and Felton Wednesday night over Felton's attention to Mrs. Lasson, Felton's father is a cigar dealer in Milwaukee.

Mrs. Lasson, who conducted two lodging houses, was killed some time during the day at one of them. Her body was found last night by a lodger.

Felton, who was a magazine agent, was shot last night as he sat at the head of the stairs of the other hotel conducted by Mrs. Lasson. Miller was employed there.

Miller fled after killing Felton, but was arrested later. He declared both Mrs. Lasson and Felton had threatened to poison him.

CHURCHES AND CANAL

Plans Being Made to Adequately Meet the New Conditions.

Pacific Coast Cities Engaged in Making Modern Self-Examination.

New York, May 31.—The stir of anticipation and preparation up and down the Western coast by the prospective opening of the Panama canal is being shared by the churches. Local bodies and national leaders are giving attention to the subject, definite and scientific surveys of present conditions are being made, and plans are being laid that contemplate an adequate meeting of the new conditions which will be created by the great event of 1915.

Certain inevitable social and religious consequences of the new era, including an immense influx of European immigration, make the expressed views of the religious leaders as grave as those of the business interests which are making ready for the new order. For decades the church has little more than held her own on the Western coast. In San Francisco particularly, she has waged what may have been called a losing fight. Now the condition has become critical.

Large Views Prevail.

The biggest news of the whole situation, from a religious point, is that the churches nowadays looking at things in the large. This crisis finds the various denominations in such relationships of unity and co-operation that they can treat the problems as a unit. The exigencies of present conditions have helped to consolidate the forces. Large views prevail; a national and world note sounds today in all representative religious gatherings. The parish idea has been abandoned. The churches have outgrown the old casual, hit-or-miss, individualistic, every church for itself, way of doing things. The task of one has seemed to be the task of all, to be faced and shared in common.

In a new sympathy and friendliness with the Roman Catholic church, and quite generally rising above jealousies among themselves, the united Protestant churches of the country are going after this common work which they find laid upon them by the new conditions arising in the West.

The conditions to which the churches have awakened are unparalleled. The West, which has so long been clamoring for population, is likely to have all it can handle ere many years. Some Western states have had their agents in Europe seeking European immigration, although the antipathy to Asiatic residents is still strong. Sanguine Westerners predict that the coast states will have 20,000,000 immigrant population by the middle of this century. Be the number but a tithe of that, the strain upon the digestive organs of the states will be terrific. The West is not so well prepared to absorb new population as is the East. Its social organizations are neither so large nor so pronounced. What the effect will be upon the life of the West remains to be seen; the churches are going to attempt to determine it in advance.

Lack of Church's Hold.

Heretofore the churches have not figured very largely in the life of the coast, especially is this true in San Francisco. The famous reforms in that city have had no discoverable connection with the churches. One observer says: "All through the coast region the lack of the church's hold upon the community is commonly lamented in the current home mission appeal than that the money of the coast is not in the churches, nor are the material resources of the coast available for the working out of the ideals of the church."

The fringe of the country along the Pacific coast has been the happy hunting ground for all the odd varieties of religion; and Buddhist, Shintoist, Confucian, Taoist and Mohammedan places of worship, not to mention certain other fancy brands of Eastern faith, may be found in the big cities. These have militated in some measure against the activity of the Christian churches. It is confessed that in the presence of these avowed "heathen" at their doors the churches have been helpless.

Looking forward to two years hence, the churches, especially under the direction of the United Home Missions Boards, have been making an investigation of conditions on the coast, and especially of the region centering around San Francisco bay. The Rev. Edward L. Parsons gave an address before a group of experts in San Francisco that portrayed vividly, by actual figures and maps, the case as it now stands. Half the population of California centers about the bay so that the strategic point of attack by the mission forces is this region.

Fourteen Per Cent Unchurched.

For its population of nearly half a million, San Francisco has 179 churches—Protestant and Roman Catholic—including also the synagogues and oriental temples. Setting aside a maximum of 200,000 for the 35 Roman Catholic churches, Mr. Parsons succeeded in getting definite reports from 91 out of the 114 remaining organizations. The figures show that the actual non-Roman Catholic church membership in San Francisco, is not more than 16,000 persons, or, granting two adherents for every communicant member, only 48,000 Protestant adherents, leaving 37 per cent of the entire population entirely outside of touch with any sort of church or religious body. He finds that on the same basis of computation about 14 per cent of the entire population of the nation are unchurched. This means that the San Francisco non church-going population is very much more than twice as great as that of the nation at large.

On the other side of the bay, in the cities of Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda, a better showing is made. Out of a population of 210,000 for the three cities, a Protestant membership of more than 18,000 is reported. There are nearly as many churches in these cities of an aggregate population of 210,000 as there are in San Francisco's population of nearly half a million.

The survey of the Home Mission board also takes cognizance of the peculiar hostelments of the Barbary coast and other openly irreligious sections of the city. Some way of dealing with them is yet to be evolved. The point emphasized is that the churches should furnish, if not the agency, at least the inspiration and the leadership.

Melancholy Tokens.

A pathetic showing is made by some of San Francisco's churches. The new state of mind of religious leaders is shown by their willingness to place their fingers fearlessly on weak spots which once they were inclined to conceal for the honor of their respective denominations. Now it is frankly said that "the great unchurched population of the city should be reached in some dignified, united fashion. These struggling little congregations really make no impressions upon the community. They are fighting for their own life. They are melancholy tokens of divided Christianity. They are living pleas for unity." Some of these churches have slavishly applied conventional methods to unconventional conditions. They have been futile as well as feeble and commonly have themselves been maintained by Home Mission funds from the east. In the popular phrase of the day, they have been holding services instead of rendering service

A few of the congregations have provided community centers and served as social agencies, with gymnasiums, clubs, reading rooms, etc. At least four of the churches provided dances for the young people—and this fact is illuminating in the light of the unwillingness of a certain element in the Methodist denomination to follow the advice of their bishops and remove the church's ban upon dancing. Other churches report moving pictures. Evidently, like all the rest of the west, the churches are coming to an end of the individualism which has been so characteristic of this part of America.

Co-Ordination of Forces.

Now the national leaders, most of whom have their headquarters in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, are in co-operation with the local churchmen, planning for a co-ordination of the Christian forces to meet the unique needs of the day on the Pacific coast. It is recognized that the great denominational bodies and other Christian agencies of the land must come to the help of the West this time. Whatever is done will have an effect upon the whole nation. It will minister not only to the spiritual, ethical and social leadership of religion in San Francisco and other western cities—as well as make for the Americanization of the expected aliens—but it will profoundly influence all the stream of life that is expected to pour through these western gateways into the continent.

SCHOOL FOR MILITIAMEN

Few of the Duluth Natioanl Guard officers will miss the schol of instruction to be conducted at Camp Lakeview, Lake City, next week. The party will leave Duluth tonight and join officers from the other regiments for the trip from St. Paul to Lake City.

The school, which is to be under the direction of Maj. Arthur Johnson, U. S. A., is of great importance to the militia officers. New drill regulations have required constant study during the winter months, and the school of instruction will ground the officers well in the new regulations and tactical subjects.

The Duluth companies, as part of the Third regiment, will take part in the joint maneuvers at Sparta, Wis., in August and the officers are making a special effort for the occasion. The Second and Third regiments of the Minnesota National Guard will take part in the joint maneuvers. The First regiment will hold camp at Lake City as usual.

FLOATER IS TAKEN FROM BAY

The body of an undentified man was taken from the bay at the foot of Eleventh avenue west last night about 6 o'clock.

A deputy coroner reported the finding of the body and it was taken care of by men from Crawford's undertaking rooms.

The age of the man is impossible to determine as he had been in the water some time and was in an advanced stage of decomposition.

He was apparently about 5 feet 8 inches tall. He wore blue overalls, a heavy woolen shirt and heavy boots. A cheap watch was found on the body, but there were no papers by which he could be identified.

The police have heard of no one missing and they were unable to identify the body.

The body was buried today at Park Hill.

TWO DIVORCES ON GROUNDS OF DESERTION.

Two divorces were granted this mornig by Judge Dibell of the district court, both on the grounds of desertion.

James E. Moe, aged 31, a machinist for the Zenith Furnace company of this city, was granted an absolute divorce from Blanche Y. Moe, whom he married at Chicago in 1904. They have no children. Moe claims that his wife deserted him in 1907.

Alice Preston, aged 29, a West end woman, was given a separation from Terrance Preston, 50 years old, a resident of Cloquet. They were married at Cadott, Wis., in 1901 and have one son, aged 10, who will remain in the custody of the mother. She will also be given alimony.

In both cases there was no appearance on the part of the defendants.

POLICE OFFICER SENT AWAY FOR TREATMENT.

William O'Neil, 52 years old and for twenty-one years on the local police force, was ordered to the hospital at Fergus Falls today by Judge Gilpin of the probate court.

It is thought that Mr. O'Neil will recover, that being the decision arrived at by the physicans who made the examination this morning.

Mr. O'Neil was retired from active duty on Sept. 1, 1911. He is well known throughout the city, having traveled nearly all of the different beats.

One of the police officers in speaking of him this mornig said that he was one of the best hearted men on the force and that he was well liked by all those who came in contact with him.

He roomed at the Frederick hotel. For some time past his mind seems to have ben failing and after the examination this morning it was thought best to send him away for treatment.

O'Neil imagined that he was making a trip around the world and visiting in the different cities.

STATE FUND TO LOAN FARMERS

Old Populist Doctrine Revived By Kansas Agricultural Expert.

Manhattan, Kan., June 1.—Kansas should have a state fund of $1,000,000 to lend farmers on a low rate of interest when crops fail. Such a fund would enable farmers to borrow money without mortgaging their farms to "loan sharks." It would prevent the hard times that are bound to follow successive crop failures, especially in Western Kansas. This is the belief of J. H. Miller, director of college extension at the Kansas Agricultural college, who proposes the establishment of a fund of this sort. He believes the farmers deserve it.

"This money could be lent," Mr. Miller said, "on farms and farm produce at, say, 3 per cent interest, the principal to be paid in five annual payments or less, depending on the crops of the following years. Loans should be made for the purchase of seed, for feed for maintenance of stock, work horses, milch cows, etc., and for food and necessaries for the family.

An Old Populist Doctrine.

"The state, or even a county," continued Mr. Miller, "should be able also to make 3 per cent loans on grain in crib or elevator when prices are too low for profit. The farmer is just as much entitled to profit on his wheat, corn or hogs as is the dealer. In July and August this year thousands of farmers will be compelled to sell their wheat, no matter if the price should be beaten down to 50 cents a bushel.

"Twenty years ago a political party advocated a good many new doctrines, declared to be crazy by another political party and foolish by another. Nevertheless most of the platform principles of the Populist party have been adopted by both other parties. Of all the 'platform planks' of that 'deceased party' the one of the government lending money on farms and farm products seemed to me then and now as about the most sensible and the sanest doctrine any political party advocated.

Is a Good Plan.

"I had never thought of it before, but I have ever since held it to be sound, and have continually advocated it, although it seems to be the one 'plank' not taken up by the other parties and not seriously advocated by the press nor by any party leaders.

"The farmers of Western Kansas have passed through the most trying winter in thirty years. Unquestionably, thousands of families denied themselves many of the common comforts and necessities of life to avoid borrowing more money. Interest was too high.

Electro Magnetic Specialist—a Record of 18 Years of the Most Remarkable Cures in Duluth.

Dr. Mitchell has built up the immense practice he now enjoys through the cures he has effected and giving entire satisfaction eighteen years' practice in Duluth. If you do not get to consult Dr. Mitchell the first time you call, do not give up. Call again, for he is a busy man. Read testimonials:

A lady who was deaf eleven years could not hear a watch tick; cured by Dr. Mitchell.

An old soldier crippled with rheumatism, had not walked for ten years, had the use of his limbs restored by Dr. Mitchell. His address can be had at 300 Columbia Bldg.

Mrs. C. D. Smith, 430 Twentieth avenue West, writes: "For six years I doctored with the old methods of treatment. I was a nervous wreck, had headache, stomach and kidney troubles. I could not sleep nor rest at any time. I had tried several physicians and underwent an operation but got no relief. When I went to Dr. Mitchell my weight was 235 pounds. After taking a course of treatment my weight is 174 pounds and I am enjoying good health and recommend Dr. Mitchell's treatment to any suffering from disease. I have seen and talked with many of his patients and they are all enthusiastic. I will be glad to substantiate this statement."

ALARM FELT IN CANADA

Bill Under Consideration in Congress Said to Violate Treaties.

Adamson Measure Would Affect Steamships Owned By Railroads.

Ottawa, Ont., June 1.—Is there to be a clash between the Canadian and the United States authorities over the Adamson bill? Some of the Canadian newspapers maintain that this bill will strike a blow at Canadian railway steamships operating in American waters and that therefore it is the duty of the Canadian government to forward a protest to Washington. According to dispatches from the American capital the Adamson bill will take away the right of any Canadian steamship owned by a railway line to use any waterway of the United States including the Great Lakes and the Panama canal. This, of course, would be a direct violation of the existing agreement in regard to the Great Lakes and is contrary to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, which granted equal terms to all nations in the Panama canal. If the Adamson bill is as described then it would have a far reaching effect upon the steamship lines of the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific, all of which ply to American ports either on the Great Lakes or on the oceans.

Viewed With Alarm.

The proposition made in congress some time ago to put a heavier rate on foreign shipping going through the Panama canal, as compared with United States traffic, makes Canadians view the latest repore of the Adamson bill with more alarm than otherwise would be the case. The question of discrimination against British and Canadian trade by the United States in regard to the Panama canal was discussed in both the British and Canadian parliaments. In Canada, the matter was brought up by Mr. Sinclair of Guysboro, N. S., who takes a deep interest in all questions affecting navigation. The Canadian government said it would have the matter, as far as the canal was concerned, investigated at once. It turned out that the fear as to discrimination in rates was groundless and therefore no action on the part of the Canadian government was necessary. In regard to the Adamson bill a protest will be forwarded to Ambassador Bryce, who will investigate and report in due course.

The Panama Canal.

Canada, especially Western Canada, has high hopes of doing a great business by way of the Panama canal and anything affecting that route is of special interest to the whole country. The people of Vancouver say that millions of bushels of wheat and other grain will pass through the port of Vancouver on the completition of the Panama canal. In anticipation of this growing business, which is expected to make Vancouver the grain center of the north, a grain exchange has been organized in that city and will be in full operation during the summer months. For some time the representative men of British Columbia have been clearing for elevators to be built by the government at Vancouer. In answer to these demands Mr. Foster, minister of trade and commerce, wrote the board of trade of Vancouver, asking for information as to what prospects there were for increased traffic in grain when the Panama canal opened and how far the government would be justified in establishing elevators in competition with railway companies. Grain men say that several elevator companies will build two or three to begin with and more after the canal is in operation. A 1,000,000 bushel elevator costs about $250,000 and within the next few years Vancouver expects to see several million dollars expended in the building of grain elevators alone. The new canal will have a great effect in reducing rates not only on ocean freight, but on railways as well.

To Secure Elevators.

One of the new officers of the Vancouver grain exchange says that its organization will very soon be larger than that of Winnipeg. The first work of the exchange is to secure elevators. It is expected that the grain grown west of Medicine Hat will go to the markets of the world west of Vancouver. When the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern are completed the reduction in freight rates because of the increased competition will amount to about 25 or 30 per cent. The new Vancouver grain exchange will be run on the plan of the New York stock exchange, the Chicago board of trade and the Winnipeg grain exchange. When the Panama canal is in operation 200,000,000 bushels of grain will go by way of Vancouver and the new terminals of the Canadian Northern. One particular thing which will draw the grain West instead of East is that it will be cheaper to reach the markets of the world. While it is not generally known, still it is nevertheless correct, that the Pacific ports are nearer the wheat fields of the Canadian West than are Port Arthur and Fort William, at the head of Lake Superior.

Trade With West Indies.

George E. Foster, minister of trade and commerce, leaves for London, Eng., about the end of the present month, and later on may go to Australia in connection with trade matters. His visit to London is in connection with the imperial commission, of which he is the Canadian member, to look into and investigate the best means of promoting business between the different parts of the empire. The commission is the outcome of a resolution moved by Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the last imperial conference. Speaking of trade between Canada and the West Indies, Mr. Foster said that the steamship service between St. John and the West Indies was increased from a 22-day service to a 12-day service, and just as soon as the present contract expired there would be a still better service. The government was also willing to improve the cable service between Canada and the West Indies. This matter was discussed when the recent trade agreement was aimed at in Ottawa between representatives of the West Indies and Canada. Of course, that agreement was not yet ratified. He might say that the West Indies was willing to contribute $50,000 of the $125,000 necessary to keep the cables in working order, and the Canadian government would be willing to pay one-half of the balance and would also make representations to the imperial government that it should pay its share.

Better Service Needed.

Referring generally to the West India trade agreement, which will not be made public until it is laid before the different legislatures affected for approval, Mr. Foster said that the total trade of these islands was $89,000,000, with $49,000,000 imports, of which Canada supplied $4,000,000 and the United States $17,000,000. He thought that with a preference and dealing in the same line with equally as good quality the Canadian shipments should outstrip the United States exports to the same islands. But to do this there ought to be still a better steamship service and also a better cable service. The steamers would require to be as good as those running from United States ports. They ought to be built for the service and not picked up here and there, as at present.

The questions, framed by the Canadian government and submitted to the supreme court, asking for the opinion of the court as to the jurisdiction of the Dominion parliament in regard to marriage will come up for hearing next week. This matter arose out of the Ne temere decree. The point is as to whether the Dominion parliament can pass a marriage law or is it the exclusive jurisdiction of the provinces to do so? The imperial privy council has given judgment deciding that it is a perfectly legal and proper thing for the Dominion government to submit such questions. This means that the marriage law case will not be heard by the supreme court, but will be taken on appeal to the judicial committee of the privy council.

THE HERALD HAS A REAL CIRCULATION

The Duluth Herald leads all Minnesota newspapers (outside the Twin Cities) by thousands of daily paid subscribers, and this noteworthy circulation has been secured without the artificial aid of guessing contests, or cheap premiums in the form of frying pans, razor strops, foot warmers, pokers, rat traps, etc The Herald enjoys the unique distinction of being the only Duluth newspaper that has not resorted to these circulation schemes.

HONEST CIRCULATION

The Herald is delivered by carrier every evening to 97 PER CENT of the homes of Duluth, thus combining QUANTITY with QUALITY of a high order. The Herald has proven its value as one of the most productive advertising mediums of America, and its advertisers are assured of getting what they pay for, and what they are entitled to—REAL circulation, substantial and solid, that produces the maximum of results.

DULUTH'S STEEL PLANT WILL BE COMPLETED IN YEAR AND A HALF

the plant in the four or five years that it has been in the building. In four or five years the company has spent about $4,000,000 in improvements, or as W. A. McGonagle said recently at the Greater Duluth club dinner, about $1,000,000 a year. During the next year and a half the company will spent $6,000,000, or at the rate of $4,000,000 a year. That means the work will go forward just four times as rapidly. The Steel corporation will quadruple its expenditures in Duluth during the next eighteen months, and at the end of that time Duluth will have a finished steel plant, the mos modern and up to date in the world, and one of the largest.

"A Talking Point."

If Seattle had a talking point like that the citizens would be petitioning the state legislature for power to include Spokane and Tacoma in the city limits, and Spokane and Tacoma would probably be willing to be taken in for the privilege of saying they had a steel plant.

If Los Angeles had it, the greater part of Southern California would be platted into town lots.

If Minneapolis had it, St. Paul would expire from sheer envy. Minneapolis, with its chief reason for existence being the most superbly unjust freight structure ever conceived and a fervent hope, made more capital out of the prospect of a vile smelling packing plant, than Duluth with all her talking points made out of a $10,000,000 steel plant.

Duluth's attitude has been more what St. Paul's would be if the steel plant were in Minneapolis. With $4,000,000 already expended in improvements, and showing up in huge concrete and steel buildings, some of them more than 1,000 feet in length, there are still some people in Duluth who wonder if "the steel corporation really means business."

The steel plant should not be included among Duluth's "talking points." It's one of Duluth's yelling points.

Must Build a City.

Even if the actual making of steel is a year and a half off, that does not mean there will be no development during that time. If the expenditures on construction are quadrupled, it means that a city must be built around the plant during that time. If the working force is increased in proportion to the expenditures, it means that from 2,000 to 3,000 men will be employed on construction. That many workers alone would mean a city of from 10,000 to 12,000 people, exclusive of the shop keepers and other business men needed in a city of this size.

The Herald has good authority for the statement that 4,000 men, approximately, will be employed in the making of steel when the plant is in operation. These men and their families, with business and professional men to supply their needs and wants, would make a city of at least 20,000 people. Such a city has to be built in the next year or two.

But when the steel plant has been built, the tale is not told. It has been the history of every other steel center in this country and Europe, that subsidiary plants follow closely in the wake of a steel plant. President Farrell of the United States Steel corporation dwelt upon that point in his speech and other officers of the corporation have repeated it. Duluth is getting its railroad rates adjusted. With a steel plant here that will mean that the great industries that make steel and iron products will have to establish plants in Duluth to supply the Northwest.

Not the least important feature of the coming of the steel plant is the impetus it will give Duluth's campaign for fair freight rates. The impetus of the immense shipments of steel products from Duluth to all the points tributary to it, will be sufficient in itself to break down any unfair rate structure. Such an impetus coming on top of the efforts of the Duluth traffic commission should once and for all free Duluth from all its schackles of this kind, and make it one of the great traffic points of the country. This after effect is of scarcely less importance than the actual coming of the steel plant itself.

Business for Men.

Steel making and its adjuncts are not a business for women and children working at starvation wages. No 14-year-old girls stand for twelve and fourteen hours a day over looms for a pittance of $3 or $4 a week in the steel business. It is a business for men, with a very high percentage of them skilled and highly paid workmen.

Judge Gary's letter and a realization of what it means should certainly be a talking point for Duluth.

doing everything in his power to undermine President Taft and is working all the time for his nomination for president in 1912.

"He is the most dangerous figure in public life in America, and if he should be elected president we would have hard work to get him out of the White House again. I believe the time to vote against him is next Tuesday and that is what I propose to do.

"Nobody but the Lord could put that policy (the Roosevelt conservation policy) into effect. But perhaps Roosevelt thought he was the Lord. He acted as if he thought so for about ten years about Washington."

A Sudden Change.

Yet for nearly a year past Mr. McHarg has been traveling about the land diligently organizing Roosevelt delegations, and where a delegation seemed hopeless preparing for contests at Chicago. He is a specialist on contests and his appearance at the door of the committee on credentials is as sure a sign of war as Bellona herself.

McHarg himself deigns no explanation of his sudden change of opinion. Others are less reticent. A flippant paragrapher sugests that when he uttered those cruel words about the colonel he was unaware that the third term campaign was to be so lavishly financed. Others claim that having clashed with Secretary Nagel of the department of commerce and labor, of which he was assistant secretary, he was forced out of office and is now engaged in the pleasing occupation of getting even. Nobody can tell save McHarg, and he, having learned discretion since his outbreak of 1910, saith nothing.

And Now Mr. Bryan.

Just now Mr. Bryan, whose shadow begins to loom large on the background of the Baltimore convention, must regret a story he told many a time and oft during the 1908 campaign. Flippant foes taunted him with a purpose to run for president again this year if then defeated. This purpose he indignantly denied, enforcing his denial with this story:

Into a public hall there wandered a gentleman whose spirituous content was far beyond his capacity of carriage. Not liking his demeanor, the floor manager gently and politely led him to the door and requested his retirement.

Fortified with further potations he returned, this time to create a scene verging on scandal and to be put out with vigor and emphasis.

Again he solaced himself, and for the third time sought admission to the coveted circle. This time a flying wedge was formed and he was thrown out with contumely and abuse, and his hat thrown after him. Sitting on the curbstone, somewhat bedraggled, he philosophised:

"I know just what this all means," he said. "Now, I tried honestly three times to get into the hall, and I've come to the conclusion that they really don't want me there."

Mr. Bryan used to tell this story as illustrative of his attitude should he be defeated in 1908. But correspondence said to be in circulation, and the utterance of some of Mr. Bryan's closest friends would seem to indicate that the Nebraskan has forgotten how he was flouted three times, and is willing to try again.

Roosevelt and New Jersey.

The Roosevelt sweep of New Jersey is the most significant fact of the month. It has been held that Roosevelt was strong chiefly in the agricultural states. But apparently in Jersey he not merely carried the manufacturing towns, but won the greater part of the commuters' vote—men who do business on Manhattan Island, but live in Jersey. There has been question of Roosevelt's strength in Manhattan, and indeed in 1910 his ticket there was annihilated. But this New Jersey vote, made up largely of Manhattan business men, puts a new face on the matter.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Enthusiastic Reception Is Given to Yale Alumni Association.

Dr. Margaret Sweeney Chosen By Regents as Dean of Women.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The University of Minnesota officially received the Yale alumni during the latter's meeting in Minneapolis. There has always been a bond of friendship between Minnesota and Yale, largely because President Emeritus Northrop and President Vincent are such loyal Yale men, and so many of the faculty are Yale men; and this has caused the Yale influence to be very marked upon the university life. Therefore, when the Northwestern Yale Alumni association met in Minneapolis they were invited to visit the university. The delegation arrived in automobiles and rode through the campus. Headed by President Hadley of Yale, President Vincent and Maj. Butts, the visitors walked through some of the buildings and then reviewed the cadet corps. In the armory the crack squad drilled for them and then the Yale bunch treated the Minnesota "Studs" to an exhibition of real enthusiasm, ripping off their yells and singing their "Boola Yale." In the rooting contest which ensued the "old" boys held their own against the Minnesota youngsters. During the visit the band kept hitting up the "Boola" song to the manifest delight of the visitors.

Dr. Margaret Sweeney is to be dean of women at the university. She succeeds Jules Ada Comstock, who resigned a couple of months ago to take the same position at Smith. Dr. Sweeney was unanimously chosen by the board of regents last Tuesday and immediately accepted the position. In accepting the Minnesota position she declined the offer of the same position at Carnegie institute. Dr. Sweeney graduated from Radcliffe college in 1899, from there going to Yale, where she received her Ph. D. degree. She taught rhetoric in a girls' school in California and at Wellesley and for the past five years has been dean of women at Adelphia college, Brooklyn. Dr. Sweeney will take up her duties at Minnesota next year. There were forty-three applications for the position, the applicants being from all over the country. The final selection was from among five of these, some of whom were Western people. Dr. Vincent and the regents favored an Eastern woman with a reputation.

"Alumni Day" will be June 12, Wednesday, and the graduates are making elaborate plans for the festivities which will be held on the campus of the agricultural college, and will last from 3 to 11 p. m. The program will begin with the annual faculty-senior ball game, which President Vincent will umpire. After dinner there will be a "song-fest" on the campus. Dancing and vaudeville will begin at 8:30.

The program for class day of the commencement week exercises has been completed. The class day exercises will be held on the campus June 11 and the farewells will be officially given with proper ceremonies. The program consists of the class oration, joy oration, joy poem, class poem, farewell to the buildings, casting of the books into the river, class history, advice to juniors, and reply by president of the junior class.

Women graduates of the university are to form an alumnae association. A call has been issued for all alumnae to meet in Shevlin Friday afternoon. The organization is for the purpose of promoting women's interests at the university. One of the first problems for consideration will probably be the securing of a women's gymnasium.

Capt. Swanman of the cadets, writing in the Alumni Weekly on "The Cadet Corps as a Factor in Making College Spirit," makes a vgorous denial of the oft-repeated assertion that it is the admiring glances of the girls that prompts men to drill more than the required two years. Brass buttons, and shoulder straps have no charm for the coeds, he asserts, and they don't even encourage the fellows by watching them drill. But Capt. Swanman doesn't mourn over this fact, but concludes that it is the system found in the military department and its democratic influence that furnishes the incentive.

The women at the "U" seem to be determined to mix into everything that the boys do, and the latest invasion upon man's inalienable rights was made Thursday morning when a bunch of girls chased the fellows out of Northrop field so that they could have a ball game. These girls, who outstepped those who are stepping out of woman's sphere, were from the Alpha Phi and Delta Gamma sororities, bent on winning supremacy on the diamond, though the work on the diamond was nothing new to either of them. But in this diamond contest the Delta Gams were victorious and ran away with the large end of a 15 to 6 score. The Alpha Phis appeared in middle blouses and bloomers, while the Delta Gamas wore tennis outfits. The walls of the field were lined with "horrid men," who cheered and jeered mercilessly, in the true bleacher fashion. Misses Alma Strand and Gladys Segog played on the losing side.

Early in the week the Thetas triumphed over the Kappas in a ball game. This contest was played at 6 in the morning upon the Vincent lawn, Mrs. Vincent umpired. It looks as if these games will become so popular that they will displace the bridge contests.

NEW TRIAL GRANTED DR. FRITCH OF DETROIT.

Detroit, Mich., June 1.—The Michigan supreme court has granted a new trial to Dr. George A. Fritch of Detriot, who was convicted in March, 1910, of the murder of Mabel Millman. Fritch is now in Jackson prison, where he was sentenced to serve 7½ to 15 years. His conviction followed one of the most sensational trials ever held in Michigan. The dismembered body of Miss Millman, who was a patient of the doctor, was found in the Detroit river in September, 1907.

ISLE OF PINES

I am going to show you next week how farmers make $500 per acre growing pineapples in the Isle of Pines. Watch Kelley Hardware company's window; size 'em up; weigh them out; figure 3 cents per pound right on the island, multiply by 5,000 and you have the returns on one acre. Then come and see me and find how easy you can buy ten acres.

MANY SICK GET WELL

Drugless Healing and Bloodless Surgery Accomplished by Electro Medicine.

Improved Methods of Modern Therapeutics Bring Back Health.

The new offices of the Electro Medical Doctors at No. 26 West Superior street in Duluth has had greater success ever since the opening than any other medical office before. The corporation opened this new office at a risk of $10,000, for which they incorporated in the state of Minnesota. They did this with a view of laying the foundation for their immense future sanitarium which they expect to erect as soon as conditions warrant them to make the sanitarium a success.

The new offices of the Electro Medical Doctors are no medieval purgatory managed by priests or fake magicians. It is, in fact, an Eastern up-to-date clinic for thorough investigation and treatment of all curable human diseases, not by prayers or prestidigitation, but by sound scientific therapeutics well established among the leaders in the profession. Nevertheless, it resembles the orthodox purgatory in this, that it removes the causes of former sins of the flesh and restores the victims to well-being and happiness.

Our doctor is an eminent specialist in internal diseases, both men and women. In female diseases he stands supreme, and his methods of curing operative diseases with Ozo-Electricity has crowned his method with greatest success.

No physician in Minnesota has had a larger experience in treating private diseases in both sexes, although his specialty has for ten years been nervous and mental ailments. The business directors are medical enthusiasts and their main ambition is to fight sickness and misery and promote medical progress and human well being to the utmost. As Elbert Hubbard, the Philistine, well put it: "Their delight is to serve their fellowmen," if possible better than most other healing institutions in the land; to give the best treatments for the most reasonable remunerations.

The results are often marvelous as regards a steadier and stronger pulse, improved color, better appetite, digestion, assimilation and sleep and a more hopeful, cheerful view of everything. Deepseated conditions of anemia or hyperemia, atrophy or swelling, internal gatherings of fluids, hyperplasias and neoplasms or incipient deposits and tumors, the Electro Medical Doctors remove painlessly, without bloodshed as a rule, by its almost omnipotent method of improved radio-electro therapeutics. For this current penetrates anything and everything, even insulating glass, and it unerringly seeks out and goes at reforming, upbuilding, naturalizing the points of least resistance, the diseased structures, disinfecting them and toning them by accelerated blood currents up to higher function and vitality. As useful accessories are employed thermic rays, vibrators, oscillators, massage, Bier's vacuum, King Edward's chromo bath, electric blankets, etc., serums, anti-toxins and radium from the Curatorium laboratory, such as are relied on by leaders of the healing art in the East and in Europe. Its improved cure for the drink habit is rapid and perfect. For its motto is: "The curable shall be cured."

Consultation at the offices are free from 9 to 12 a. m., and 1 to 5 and 6 to 8 p. m., and on Sundays from 10 to 1, at No. 26 West Superior street. STILL FIGHT RECIPROCITY

Repeal Will Be Offered as Amendment to All Tariff Bills.

Taft Urges Anti-Drug Law at Once—Other Washington Doings.

Washington, June 1.—The repeal of the Canadian reciprocity act will be offered as an amendment to each tariff revision bill brought up in the senate, according to a plan announced by Senator Gronna. Mr. Gronna, who contends that the reciprocity bill, is iniquitous and that it was passed "by the Democratic party, assisted by standpat Republican senators," said he proposed to give those who voted for it an opportunity to "purge themselves" and to give the president the same opportunity.

Responsibility for Canadian reciprocity was debated in the house during consideration of the military academy appropriation bill, and Representative Steenerson of Minnesota presented a petition signed by 31,079 "farmers who farm," asking for the repeal of the reciprocity bill, lest Canada at some time accept its terms. Representative Wood of Iowa suggested it be passed over to the Democratic members to sign.

"Better send it to President Taft," suggested Representative Lobeck of Nebraska.

Representative Guger of North Carolina wanted to know if the petition was signed "before or after Col. Roosevelt changed his mind."

Mr. Steenerson said he was very proud Col. Roosevelt had changed his mind and only wished the Democrats would do likewise.

One Day Delay for Lorimer.

Senator Kern of Indiana, acting for the minority who impeached the election of Senator Lorimer, announced that when the Lorimer case was brought up in the senate Monday he would let it go over until Tuesday. Then the senator will open what he believes will be a two weeks' discussion. Mr. Kern said he would keep the case constantly before the senate until it was acted upon.

Senator Lorimer has not definitely promised when he will reach Washington, but his friends in the senate said that he would be here early next week.

Taft Urges Anti-Drug Law.

Immediate legislation to prevent the promiscuous sale of habit-forming drugs was urged by President Taft in a message to congress yesterday. The message was accompanied by a report from Secretary Knox declaring that "unless speedy action is taken on measures now pending in congress, the American government justly may be accused of being half-hearted in its effort to mitigate or suppress the opium traffic and allied evils."

The president asserted that he would not ask the senate to ratify the convention adopted by the recent international conference until the Netherlands government had secured the signatures of thirty-four additional countries to the convention. The signatures will be secured, it is expected by the end of the present year.

Senator Defend Commerce Court.

The senate committee on finance voted to place in the legislative executive and judicial appropriation bill the appropriation for commerce court eliminated by the house. The house action was expected to abolish the court, and the provision inserted by the senate committee will precipitate a lively fight in conference.

The committee also voted to strike from the bill the provision limiting the terms of office of all civil service employes to five years.

Wants Beef Trust Probe.

Another attack on the "beef trust" by the federal authorities is demanded in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Edwards, Democrat, of Georgia. The measure directs the attorney general to "immediately institute an honest and thorough investigation of the 'beef trust' in the United States, with a view to discovering if the trust is controlling the prices of meats."

Resolution on Wright's Death.

Representative Ansberry of Ohio introduced a resolution stating that the house has heard with profound regret of the death of Wilbur Wright of Dayton, Ohio, who rendered his country incalculable service in the science of aviation." The resolution was referred to the rules committee.

For Curb on Coffee Trust.

The operations of the so-called coffee trust will be put under the interstate commerce laws, if a bill introduced by Representative Norris of Nebraska should become a law. The Norris bill would so amend the anti-trust laws as to characterize as an illegal conspiracy any combination whereby two or more persons are engaged in the importing of any article from any foreign country when such a combination is operated in restraint of the article. The bill carries a penalty of a fine of $5,000 as a maximum together with imprisonment.

Senate Talks About Sloan.

The senate in executive session again considered the nomination of Richard E. Sloan as United States district judge for Arizona, but no action was taken. The session was devoted mainly to a speech by Senator Smith of Arizona, who discussed Sloan's relation with the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad.

West Point Bill Passed.

The house passed the military academy appropriation bill, carrying $1,034,059, a decrease of $125,000 from last year.

Will Confer on Agricultural Bill.

After two hours' discussion, the senate sent the agricultural appropriation bill back for conference to the house. The principal objection was made to the modification of the senate amendment directing the segregation of agricultural lands in forest reservations, so as to exempt those which may be needed for public purposes. This provision was opposed by Senators Borah and Heyburn of Idaho and Clark of Wyoming. Senator Smith of Georgia also found fault with the senate conference for receding from the senate provision for the creation of a division of markets in the agricultural department.

CONVENTION OF DULUTH DIOCESE

Annual Meeting Will Be Held in Duluth Next Wednesday.

The annual convention of the Diocese of Duluth will be held Wednesday, June 5, in Trinity Pro-Cathedral.

Divine service will be held at 10 a. m. with sermon by Archdeacon H. F. Parshall. Immediately after the service the convention will be called to order. At 12:30 p. m. lunch will be served in Trinity hall, and the convention will resume its session at 2 p. m.

Unless business is completed Wednesday afternoon, the convention will adjourn at 5 p. m. until Thursday morning.

On Wednesday at 8 p. m. the Sunday School Commisison will meet in St. Paul's church, when the annual report of the Sunday schools will be read, and addresses delivered.

On Thursday at 9:30 a. m. the annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Diocese of Duluth will be held in the pro-cathedral.

On Thursday evening at 8 o'clock a reception will be given to the members of the convention and of the Woman's auxiliary and the churchmen of Duluth at the Episcopal residence.

Notice.

The complimentary dinner tendered by the citizens of Duluth to Edmund Pennington, president, and other officers of the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway company will be given at the Spalding hotel, in the city of Duluth, on Monday, June 3, at 7 o'clock p. m.

Guests are expected to appear in their business suits, as the dinner is, by agreement, to be entirely informal.

Tickets, costing $2 each and limited to 500, are on sale at the Duluth Commercial club, the Greater Duluth club, the West Duluth Commercial club and the New Duluth Commercial club. If the total number of tickets are sold previous to the hour of the dinner, it will not be possible to secure additional tickets.

The occasion is a very important one, and those who desire to attend must act quickly in the purchase of tickets.

DULUTH IS REPRESENTED

J. H. Dight Goes to Seattle Meeting of Development League.

Cashier John H. Dight of the First National bank, left today on a journey to Seattle, where he will represent Duluth and the Northern Minnesota interests at the regular annual conference of the Northwest Development league, to be held in that city on June 5, 6 and 7.

From Duluth Mr. Dight went directly to the Twin Cities, where he joined the party of Minneapolis and St. Paul business men, who have made arrangements to take the entire Minnesota delegation in a special train. The tour of this special train will cover about 4,000 miles. It will be an extraordinarily long trade excursion. The delegation will boost for Minnesota products all the way, speeches being made by different members of the party as the train stops at various places. The league includes representatives of the business interests of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho and Washington.

A Dainty Toilet Article.

Every lady who desires to keep up her attractive appearance, while at Theater, attending Receptions, when shopping, while traveling and on all occasions should carry in her purse a booklet of Gouraud's Oriental Beauty Leaves. This is a dainty little booklet of exquisitely perfumed powdered leaves which are easily removed and applied to the skin. It is invaluable when the face becomes moist and flushed and is far superior to a powder puff as it does not spill and soil the clothes.

It removes dirt, soot and grease from the face, imparting a cool delicate bloom to the complexion. Put up in White and Pink and sent anywhere on receipt of ten cents in stamp or coin. F. T. Hopkins, 37 Great Jones St., New York.

RETIRE ADMIRAL STAUNTON JUNE 7

Capt. Robert M. Doyle Will Be Promoted to Title of Admiral.

Washington, June 1.—Rear Admiral Sidney A. Staunton will be placed on the retired list on account of age, June 7. At present he is the naval member of the special commission which is visiting European capitals to secure representations of the foreign armies and navies at the approaching Panama-Pacific exposition.

Admiral Stauton is a native of New York and was an officer on the flagship New York in the battle of Santiago. His retirement will result in the promotion of Capt. Robert M. Doyle, comandant of the Norfolk navy yard ,to be rear admiral; Comander V. O. Chase to be captain; Lieutenant Commander Yates Stirling to be commander, and Lieut. Sinclair Gannon to be lieutenant commander.

WANTS UNCLE SAM TO COPY CANADA LAND IDEA.

Chicago, June 1. — A change of the government policy of land reclamation to conform with the Canadian system was urged by L. J. Bricker, a railroad land agent, at a conference on reclamation yesterday attended by officers of the United States reclamation service.

"There should be a classification of government lands, giving in detail the nature of the soil, the depth of domestic water, and other qualities," he said. "The system then should provide for a government 'locator' who would see that settlers were located properly. Also the government should advertise and seek recuits for new lands as they do for the army and navy."

President Candland of the Utah state land board urged a plan of registering names of real estate dealers in order to eliminate fraudulent operators.

AVIATOR FINED FOR LANDING IN PARK.

Chicago, June 1.—Max Lillis, one of the aviators taking part in the Cicero meet, was fined $10 and costs for landing his machine in Grant park yesterday without a permit. He maintained that he did not know there was an ordinance against such procedure, but Municipal Judge Beitlar refused to accept his statement as a defense.

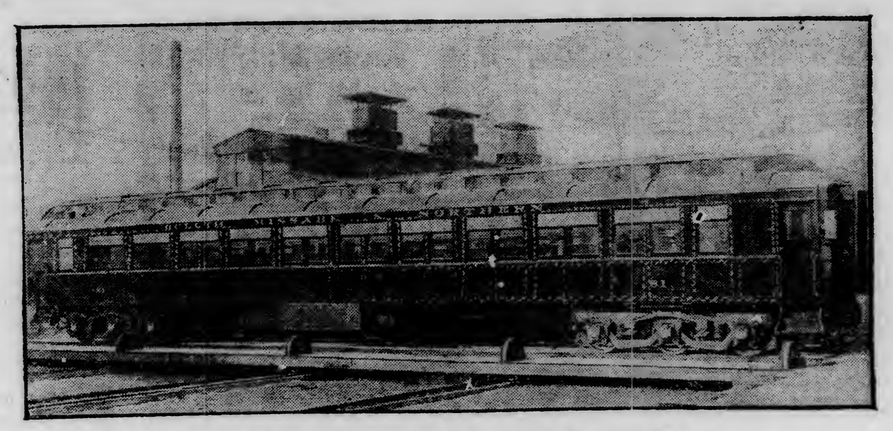

Therapeutic Society Meets.

Monteal, June 1.—The thirteenth annual meeting of the American Therapeutic society, which includes in its membership many leading physicians from all parts of the continent, has opened here.

Port Huron Plant Burns.

Port Huron, Mich., June 1.— The plant of the Wilson Saw Manufacturing company was almost totally destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss isestimated at $100,000.

NEW STEEL TRAIN INSTALLED BY DULUTH, MISSABE & NORTHERN RAILWAY FOR THE SAFETY AND CONVENIENCE OF ITS PATRONS

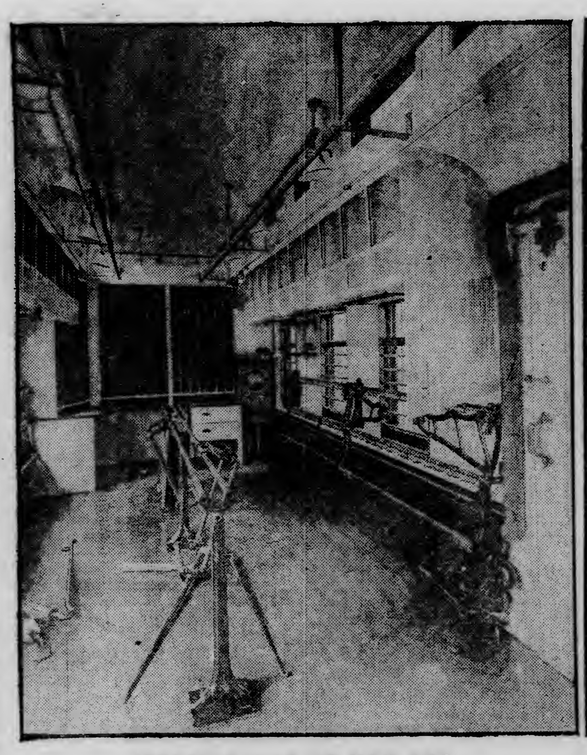

EXTERIOR VIEW OF PASSENGER COACH

AN ADVANCEMENT for the benefit of the traveling public, between Duluth and the Missabe Range has been lately made by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway by placing in service on its line, two steel passenger trains which not only tends to make riding a pleasure for travelers, but also displays the product of the Missabe Range in refined form, the cars reaching the territory of the raw iron ore, which is converted into steel and the finished work representing the highest type of the master builder's art, these cars, together with the steel ties and heavy rails which make the road-bed second to none in the country, truly demonstrate that steel is necessary for comfort and convenience and the Missabe Range furnishes the bulk of the raw product for this purpose.

As steel is an improvement over wood, so are these new steel coaches an improvement over the old style wooden coach, while the interior designs at first glance seem plain and severe, this is on account of the absence of so-called "gingerbread" work, fancy carving, etc., which, years ago was admired, but now looked upon as dangerous and unsanitary, being a lurking place for germs and dust.

The new steel coach is often humorously termed "battleship" on account of its appearance of strength. Underneath the cars are two heavy steel bridge girders welded together, the platform and vestibule are steel, the doors and window casings are of steel as also the roof, and the aggressive looking bolts on the outside immediately give a feeling of safety.

INTERIOR VIEW OF MAIL CAR

INTERIOR VIEW OF PASSENGER COACH

The weight of each coach is about 145,000 pounds, which is 65,000 pounds heavier than the wooden coach. They are 70 feet long and have a comfortable seating capacity for eighty people, with high-backed seats. They are electric lighted and the system of ventilation is such as prevents smoke and cinders from entering the car. The coaches are all equipped with individual sanitary drinking cups, the old time tin drinking cups being discarded. All wash rooms are large, light and airy and equipped with latest modern devices. Taking it altogether the territory served by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway is not one bit behind any other section of the country in equipment and service offered, and it is the intention of the Company at all times to provide the best facilities possible.

MINNESOTA POLITICS

Convening of Extra Session and Democratic State Convention Come in Same Week—Legislative Program Will Be Short—Minority Will Make Contest in Democratic Meeting—Wilson Headquarters Claims Substantial Lead in Number of Delegates.

Busy Week in Politics.

Next week will be an important week, politically, in Minnesota. Tuesday, the legislature will meet in extra session at St. Paul. Thursday, the Democrats of the state will meet in Duluth to choose twenty-four delegates to the national convention at Baltimore. People who take an interest in politics on both sides of the fence will be kept twisting and turning to keep a line on developments in both cities.

The Republican members of the senate will caucus Monday night and a legislative program will probably be decided upon. The three measures mentioned in the governor's call—a state-wide primary, a corrupt practices act, and reapportionment—will undoubtedly be taken up and there will probably be a few additions, including an increase in the gross earnings tax.

The program adopted will be short in the number of measures, although the legislature may be kept in session on account of radical differences of opinion. None of the legislators are anxious to remain in St. Paul any longer than to complete the business in hand. They have drawn their salary for the full term, the farmers do not want to remain away from their crops and other legislators are not anxious to give a great deal of time to the business of the state during the warm weather.

The question of a second choice primary may cause a serious split. The Progressives are for a second choice primary and will force the issue. They will prevail in the house, but there is some question as to the attitude of the senate. The details of a second choice bill will also develop some differences of opinion. Some legislators are evidently in favor of a second choice bill that will provide for the addition of second choice votes to first choice votes in case no candidate has 40 per cent of the first choice vote. Others favor a bill under which the candidate standing lowest will be dropped and the second choice of those who voted for him distributed among the candidates entitled to them.

Senator Haycraft of Madelia is understood to have prepared a bill making second choice provisions and if it is acceptable to the Progressives, it may be the bill settled upon, or it may be amended in caucus.

The distance tariff bill, the initiative, referendum and recall bill and the ratification of the income tax and direct senatorial election amendments to the Federal Constitution are expected to make their appearance, if the session is thrown wide open for the consideration of everything presented. The disposition of the legislators to limit their activity may prevent the consideration of any of those measures, however.

Democratic Convention.

While the legislators are in session at St. Paul, the Democrats will meet in Duluth to ratify the results of the caucuses, choose twenty-four delegates to the national convention and instruct them for Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey for president.

The convention is expected to be as nearly harmonious as any political gathering in which there is a majority and a minority. The majority will prevail, and the minority will enter its protests with such vigor as it can command.

The St. Paul delegaton, which is solid for Clark, will lead the minority. The greatest showing of the minority is expected to come on the plan to bind the whole delegation by the unit rule. The Fourth district went for Clark and two Clark delegates will be chosen. Naturally the Fourth district delegates will want to preserve their votes for Clark and will endeavor to head off a unit rule instruction. They will probably fail, as the Wilson men are anxious to throw Minnesota's full strength to the New Jersey governor and they will have the power to do so.

The talk of a vigorous fight on National Committeeman Fred B. Lynch is largely manufactured by standpat Republican papers and will probably prove to be little more than talk. The opposition to Mr. Lynch is centered in Ramsey county, where his advocacy of Wilson's nomination incurred for him the enmity of the O'Connor-Lawler forces, which are with Clark. If they can accomplish Mr. Lynch's downfall here, they will do so, but the Wilson men are not likely to fall into the schemes of the astute "Cardinal" and give him a victory in a convention where he is a member of a small minority.

Daniel W. Lawler wants to be a delegate-at-large, and Fred B. Lynch is the St. Paul man chosen for the place. Mr. Lawler thus has another grievance against the national committee man. Mr. Lawler is not likely to get his place on the delegation, and if he can retaliate by mustering strength against an indorsement of Mr. Lynch for national committee man, he will be happy.

On the whole, the opposition to the Wilson majority and to Mr. Lynch is most likely to consist of nothing but talk. The Wilson men will be in complete control and will put through their program. The Clark men and Mr. Lynch's opponents may open the flood gates of oratory and invective, but that's merely one of the side attractions, without which no convention would be complete.

Wilson in the Lead.

A statement issued by the campaign headquarters of Governor Wilson is a convincing answer to the wild claims of the Clark men as to the alignment of delegates to the Baltimore convention. According to the Wilson headquarters, the New Jersey governor has 368 votes, counting Minnesota and the second choice votes of Kansas, Oklahoma and North Dakota, while Clark has but 242, Underwood 82 and Harmon 32.

The Wilson delegates are:

Pennsylvania	76
Oregon	10
Texas	40
Maine	8
Wisconsin	24
Oklahoma	10
Illinois	2
Porto Rico	6
Florida	2
South Carolina	18
Hawaii	2
Delaware	6
Utah	8
Michigan	15
Virginia	16
New Hampshire	8
Ohio	20
Tennessee	12
New Jersey	24
Minnesota	24
Kansas (second choice)	20
Oklahoma (second choice)	10
North Dakota (second choice)	10
Total	368

Clark's vote to date is:

Oklahoma	10
Wisconsin	2
Illinois (first ballot)	56
Colorado	12
Nebraska	12
Missouri	36
Maryland	16
Washington	14
Kansas	20
Nevada	6
California	26
Total	242

Underwood's vote to date is:

Alabama	24
Mississippi	20
Total	82

Governor Harmon now has 32 delegates; 4 from Nebraska and 28 from Ohio. Governor Foss (Massachusetts), 36; Governor Baldwin (Connecticut), 14; Governor Marshall (Indiana), 30; Governor Burke (North Dakota), 10.

Uninstructed and doubtful delegates are as follows:

Maine	4
New York	90
Alaska	6
Philippines	6
Michigan	15
Tennessee	12
Total	142

chairman of the sub-committee on arrangements for the Republican national convention, and his aides were busy today preparing for the arrival of the national committee and the representatives of contesting delegations who are due next week.

Secretary Hayward returned from his Eastern trip and plunged into the work of tabulating credentials and contests preparatory to the hearings, which will begin June 6 before the nation committee, to determine the temporary roll call of the convention.

Congressman William B. McKinley is expected Monday and will open the Taft national headquarters. Senator Joseph M. Dixon, campaign manager for the Roosevelt forces, also is to arrive early in the week and will open Roosevelt headquarters.

Senator La Follette and Senator Cummins, each of whom has delegates instructed for him in the convention, have arranged for headquarters.

Ticket Storm Subsiding.

The storm over the allotment of tickets brought about by the refusal of Chairman New to honor the request of Senator Dixon for 250 tickets was little in evidence today.

"The incident is closed," said Col. New. "I have nothing more to say about it."

Politicians who have watched the "ticket tempest" were inclined to believe the national committee would sustain the contention of Col. New that the managers of the different candidates would not be recognized as entitled to blocks of seats.

Horace Stilwell of Anderson, Ind., one of the state Roosevelt managers, conferred with Col. New and declared the Roosevelt delegates from Indiana all would be seated.

CUBAN ARMY WINS BATTLE

remained off Daiquiri today, but did not land marines. Firing continued all night around the Daiquiri mines, where the government has a strong detachment. A sergeant of rurals was killed in the fighting.

The miners are abandoning their work and the mines probably will be closed tomorrow. The American consul, Mr. Holliday, left this morning for Daiquiri to investigate the situation there, which is considered critical.

American a Captive.

It is reported that Collister Wheeler, an American, who owns a ranch near Daiquiri, has been captured by the rebels and held for ransom.

The Spanish-American Iron company has asked for the protection of its property, valued at $6,000,000, at Felton, near Nipe Bay.

Luis Gomez, who is charged with being an important conspirator in the revolt, was arrested while attempting to embark on the steamer Julia for Santo Domingo.

Marines Ready to Land.

Washington, June 1.—No marines have yet been landed at Daiquiri, according to early reports received today at the state department. It is pointed out, however, that Commander Mitchell of the gunboat Paducah, which is standing off there, is acting under orders to land a force whenever it becomes necessary to protect American life and property, and he is free to act on his own discretion.

Last reports were that the Spanish-American Iron company's plant there, which was threatened by the rebels, had been successfully defended by company employes and there was no need of the marines.

With an American gunboat stationed on each side of the eastern end of Cuba, prepared to land forces at a moment's notice, and ready to hasten to the nearest point where foreign interests may be threatened by the insurrectos, it is believed here that there is not now so much danger of molestation of American-owned plantations and mining properties.

Gomez Permits Landing.

Havana, June 1.—Secretary of the Interior Laredo Brau announced today that American gunboat Paducah withdrew last night from Daiquiri, anchoring off the coast, where she remains today.

President Gomez has telegraphed Gen. Monteaguado, commander in chief of the Cuban army, who is at the scene of the hostilities in the province of Oriente, stating that the general might permit American marines to land on Cuban soil to guard foreign property.

The dispatch added that the Cuban forces then might retire from guarding such places and devote themselves to pursuing the insurgents.

CARS HALT DURING WRIGHT FUNERAL

Dayton, Ohio, June 1.—Thousands of citizens and hosts of persons from far and near who felt pride in the achievements of Wilbur Wright, the noted aviator, paid respect to his memory today. The body of Wright lay in state for three hours at the First Presbyterian church and vast throngs viewed the body.

During the hours of the funeral this afternoon it was arranged that all street car and steam road traffic in Dayton should be suspended for five minutes. Another tribute was the tolling of church bells throughout the city.

The funeral ceremonies were conducted by Rev. Maurice Wilson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The pall-bearers comprised friends of Wright since boyhood.

F. O. E.

All members of Duluth Aerie No. 79, are requested to meet at Hall at 1:30 p. m., Monday, June 3, to attend the funeral of our late brother Jacob Matson. Bring badges. Signed,

HENRY COLLINS, Pres.

WILL NOT YIELD TO THE WAITERS

Hotel Men Say They Will Close Their Business Places First.

New York, June 1.—The strike of 3,000 or more waiters affecting twenty-nine hotels, restaurants and clubs threatens to spread further today, for the strike leaders say that before nightfall employes in other hotels will be called out. Several kitchen crews have quit work.

The hotel men say today that before they will recognize the waiters' union they will shut down their establishments. Leaders of the striking waiters say that the engineers, firemen and other hotel employes may be called out.

Places of the strikers are being filled by strike-breakers from other cities, and though the strike is causing the hotel owners great inconvenience, they said they were able to take care of their regular patrons. More than 1,000 negroes are waiting to be called into service from the South, but whether they will be sent for has not been determined. Two hotels have already filled the strikers' places with negroes.

There has been virtually no violence during the strike.

Patrons to the number of 150 or more of certain hotels have made up an informal league and hereafter will limit the size of tips to 10 per cent of the bill.

DENEEN MAKES DOYLE SECRETARY OF STATE.

Springfield, Ill., June 1.—C. J. Doyle was appointed by Governor Deneen as secretary of state today, and his name was placed on the Republican ticket as nominee for the office by the Republican state central committee.

VANIMAN TRIES OUT OCEAN FLYER

Slight Accident Shows Danger, But Aeronaut Is Well Pleased.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 1.—Melvin Vaniman floated his airship, Akron, in which he hopes to cross the Atlantic ocean, out of the hangar early today, and after circling over the meadows and bay for nearly an hour, made a safe landing. After he had the great gasbag again safely stowed away in the shed he expressed himself as satisfied with the test.

The ship is the same one in which he made a flight over the city last fall, with improvements. During the trip he met with a slight accident which might have proved disastrous. Very few persons saw the flight, which was started at 6:45 a. m.

Aboard besides Vaniman were his brother, Calvin, Chief Engineer Fred Almas, Assistant George Bourrillion, Assistant Navigator Walter Guest, mechanician, and Ralph Upsom of Akron, one of the constructors of the ship.

Vaniman had been out half an hour when the accident occurred. The dirigible had performed splendidly, answering the guiding hand of the navigator instantly. Then he tried out a new guide rope experiment. A long hawser with a 100-pound weight attached was lowered and permitted to drag in the water. In some manner Calvin Vaniman made a wrong move with the propellers. The middle blade, in the string of three, caught in the rope. The huge craft listed and came down in a wobbly descent like a bird with a broken wing. It struck the water, and a portion of the understructure went under water, damaging one of the side planes.

When temporary repairs had been made the balloon went aloft once more. Vaniman, after circling over the bay for a short time, pointed the ship toward the hanger and made a landing.

MOORE TALKS TO BRITISH SAVANTS

London, June 1.—Prof. Willis L. Moore, chief of the United States weather bureau, delivered the first of a series of lectures before the Royal Institution in London today.

He predicted that the time would come when the weather bureaus would have the added responsibility of mapping daily air routes for passenger-carrying aeroplanes; and intimated a belief that the dream of the meteorologist of forecasting the character of coming seasons might be realized.

Aviation, he said, is largely indebted to meteorology for its existence. The aeroplane is but the kite of the meteorologist with power and rudder attached, and the art of aerial navigation and that of weather forecasting will be closer allied in the future than they have been in the past.

FOREIGNERS FLEEING FROM CHIHUAHUA

tone of the proclamation issued by rebel chiefs, intimating that they might not be able to curb the passion of the people, has served to alarm the foreign colony into wholesale flight.

The issuance of fiat money by the rebel government has come as the last straw in the business fabric of the city of Chihuahua. Merchants fear they will be called upon to exchange gold currency for the rebel script created to fill the financial emergency of the rebel campaign.

Angry at Americans.

Principal among the grievances which the rebels have against the United States is the strict border patrol preventing the smuggling of ammunition.

While the border patrol is rigidly blocking the traffic in ammunition in this vicinity, there are said to be unprotected points on the barren plains of New Mexico and Arizona where arms are gotten into Mexico.

Rebel sympathizers along the New Mexico and Arizona border are much more numerous than it is generally realized, according to advices received here today. Agua Prieta, the port of entry opposite Douglas, Ariz., is at present held by the federal government which has been sending its arms and ammunition there for the supply of its troops in Northern Mexico, but the number of rebel sympathizers in Agua Prieta is so considerable that the federal government has decided to stop shipments to that point until further assurances can be secured of the loyalty of the garrison.

He denied today that he had sent his resignation to President Madero, asserting that he would retain charge of the operations of the federal troops close to the American border.

a battle of wits between Franklin and Earl Rogers, chief counsel for the defense.

The cross-examination of Franklin was begun by Rogers late yesterday. No one connected with the trial believes that Franklin will leave the witness stand before the middle of next week.

District Attorney Fredericks asked the court yesterday to have a bench warrant issued for Harry F. Skillen, a witness for the state, who had failed to appear. Members of the prosecution refused to divulge the identity of Skillen or the purpose for which he was summoned.

Accused Job Harriman.

During Franklin's examination Job Harriman, late candidate for mayor of Los Angeles on the Socialist ticket, sat within the bar and heard himself accused of being the man who provided Darrow with the alleged bribery money.

Later in the day he heard Franklin, testifying for the state, quote Darrow as saying to him: "If you mention my name, I want you also to mention what you know about Job Harriman."

Franklin's testimony on direct examination was at times dramatic, the witness departing from his apparent willingness to tell all he knew to a seeming loathness to give evidence concerning close friends, whom he subsequently drew into his story of jury corruption. Twice he appealed to the court, once when he was asked to name a man who was said to have offered a bribe to veniremen with whom he was negotiating and again when Assistant District Attorney Ford asked him to give the name of three men whom he had approached with offers of bribes.

For the first time since the arrest of Franklin and the indictment of himself and Darrow, the names of prospective jurors other than Lockwood and Bain, alleged to have been sought to be bribed, were injected into the case.

Other Jurors Named.

Franklin said he had entered into negotiations with A. K. Kruger of The Palms, and had been "turned down" by three others, Guy Yonkin, a Los Angeles cigar dealer; John S. Underwood, a local ironworker, and Frank Smith of Covina.

Franklin appealed to the court when asked to mention the names of the men he said he had approached, as they were all his friends. A short time before he had made a similar appeal when asked the name of the man who was said to have approached Kruger before he had.

The witness exhibited much emotion when he related his conversation with Kruger, in which he said Kruger had told him that another man had offered him $4,000 for his vote as a McNamara juror. Kruger, he said, wanted to know if they were both working for the same side. He named a Los Angeles lawyer heretofore not mentioned in connection with the McNamara case, which drew an indignant protest from Attorney Rogers.

Franklin testified that he had told Darrow, after his arrest for attempting to bribe Lockwood, that had Darrow not been present when he was arrested, Franklin had intended to turn Lockwood over to the police for accepting a bribe.

"That was," asserted the witness, "when I found that Lockwood had turned traitor to me."

Knew He Was Betrayed.

He said that when he saw detectives near the scene of the meeting with Lockwood, he knew he had been betrayed. Darrow's presence at the place at the time of Franklin's arrest, the latter explained by saying that Darrow had gone to warn him.

After his arrest, Franklin testified, Darrow had assured him that his family would be looked after. On every occasion that he met Darrow, thereafter, Darrow always had asked how his wife and friends viewed his arrest and what his wife's advice was.

"I told him," said the witness, "that my wife had told me it was not my duty to draw Mr. Darrow into the mud I had made. He said that she was a brave woman. I told him my son had addressed him the same way, but I told them there was no danger of my dragging in Mr. Darrow."

Franklin related numerous conversations with Darrow.

TRADE OUTLOOK IS GREAT

New York, June 1.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade today says: Four features of the business situation are so favorable for the time being at least, as to overshadow those conditions which seem doubtful. These favoring features are: The better outlook for the crops—particularly in the Northwest—this being already productive of an increase of confidence and activty in the leading trade centers of the great agricultural sections; the warmer weather, which is everywhere stimulating trade distribution; the very notable expansion which has taken place in the iron and steel trade, bringi production almost to the point of capacity and giving promise of a year of remarkable consumption; the greatly improved conditions which have prevailed this year in the textile markets, a fact due in part to the more normal state of the market for raw cotton, and in part to that condition which is the inevitable product of low stocks of merchandise and a growing population with expanding wants.

Activity still prevails in finshed lines of iron and steel, and the larger plants continue to operate almost to capacity. In the Pittsburg district a shortage of crude steel is reported, and purchases of pig iron are being made in the open market. Heavy specifications continue to be made on plates and structural shapes and prices show a tendency to advance, $1.25 Pittsburg now being the absolute minimum. Buying of equipment and finished steel products by the railroads is still a prominent feature.

The primary cotton goods market is rather quiet, but generally firm. Fall orders for naped fabrics, cotton blankets ,etc., are coming in steadily and denims, cheviots and shirting c' ambrays are being sought by manufacturers for fall delivery. Export trade continues large, and included in the week's shipment were 1,828 bales for China, 1,039 bales for Chile and 1,055 bales for Central American ports, while the Manila markets are calling for print sin sizeable quantities. In woolen and worsteds, men's wear and dress goods mills are well engaged on staple and novelties, and considerable confidence is now expressed regarding the future. Knit goods and hosiery are in distinctly better demand and some improvement appears in the inquiry for silks.

Improved weather conditions have materially stimulated the retail demand for summer footwear, and stocks of seasonable shoes on the shelves of distributors have been substantially reduced. Trade in all kinds of leather continues moderate, but prices are firmly held.

SUMMER IS HERE AT LAST

Straw Hat Day and Warm Weather Arrive Together.

Park Season Opens and Excursion Boats Begin Trips.

Today is June 1, which marks the opening of Duluth's summer season.

Weather conditions assisted the calendar in enforcing the unwritten law that straw hats shall not be worn in Duluth prior to June 1, but the weather today is such that the man who wears a straw lid will not be looked upon as a curiosity.

The amusement places at the public parks will open tomorrow. Elaborate preparations have been made by the Park Amusement company at Lester park. Flaaten's Third Regiment band will furnish music from 2 to 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Several hundreds of dollars have been spent in improvements, and Lester park is expected to prove its continued popularity on the first day of the season.

The first of the regular informal Saturday night dances will be held at the main house and the Oatka branch of the boat club tonight, and they will be held regularly on each Saturday night during the season.

The Clow & Nicholson boats will go on their regular schedule to Fond du Lac tomorrow, and if the weather man's prediction of fair weather is fulfilled a big crowd is expected to visit the popular resort up the river.

Many people will take the lake trip to Two Harbors tomorrow, and many others will make Sunday fishing excursions to the rivers in the vicinity of Duluth. The railroads are running special trains for the Sunday fishing parties.

LETTER CHAIN FOR EIGHTEEN YEARS

"Key Letter" Has Passed Through Eight Hundred Postoffices.

Bloomington, Ill., June 1.—A chain letter series evolved by the seventeen graduates of the Central Illinois College at Eureka on commencement day in 1894 is still running. All of the graduates are still living, and annually they write each other a letter.

The key letter, written and signed by all the graduates, is sent the rounds each year, carrying with it seventeen other letters. With each recurring completion of the circuit each graduate takes out the letter that he wrote the year preceding and substitutes another, and then starts the seventeen on the rounds again. The key letter has so far travelled 300,000 miles, and will go on as long as two of the graduates survive. When but one is left the key letter will remain in his possession.

The class of seventeen has scattered all over the globe. All but one of the boys and all the girls are married. The graduates are the Rev. W. F. Shaw of Chicago, C. E. Corey of Hongkong, China, David Feyster of Polo, Ill.; David Wetzel and J. A. Clement of Kentucky, H. T. Swift and Mrs. F. W. Burnham of Springfield, Ill.; Mrs. Mable McAdow, Dr. R. D. Pope and Dr. L. E. Newcomer of Iowa, Mrs. Maude Staley of Texas, Prof. L. H. Darling of Plainfield, Ill.; Judge H. F. Teel of Rushville, Ill.; C. R. Canterbury of California (the one bachelor) and Dr. F. D. Prapz of Colorado.

The first trip that the letter made was to Nova Scotia, where Mr. Swift then resided. He is now at the head of the publicity department of the Illinois public schools. The package has never contained less than seventeen letters. Each recipient receives the pack from the same person in turn, and thus the chain is preserved intact.

Judge Teel is anxious to have all the others join him in a community fruit farm in Idaho. He suggested it in his last letter and the responses will be known when the letters make their next round.

It has been computed that the key letter has been handled by eight hundred postoffices. Now worn and yellow, it goes tirelessly on its way. It has been delayed but twice, once by the Boxer uprising in China, and again by trouble in the Philippines. The old envelope, which has been steadily used, has borne both gay and sad messages. When a member of the company dies the fact will be made known to the others and as many as possible will attend the funeral.

TWO PRECIOUS BITS OF METAL

Kept in Carefully Sealed Boxes and Buried in Masonry.

London, June 1.—One of the queerest and most important of all the ceremonies that are gone through with in this country—one, too, that comes off only once in twenty years—has just taken place in the presence, as usual, of the some of the loftiest bigwigs of the state. This ceremonial consists of unearthing and examining the contents of an extraordinary box buried in the masonry which forms the public staircase of the house of commons, and thereby checking the weights and measures used in Great Britain.

To get at the box mentioned, which is of oak, masons had to pull down part of the wall of the staircase. Then after the casket had been exhumed and its unique contents examined with infinite care by a band of scientists, it was put back in the cavity of the wall, which then was built up and will not be disturbed again until May, 1932.

That box contains two pieces of metal. One of them is a cube of platinum measuring only one inch long each side; you could buy another like it for about $200, but this particular cube has a value beyond all other pieces of metal. The way in which it is guarded gives some idea of its worth. To begin with, it is carefully wrapped up in a specially prepared paper uncommonly soft in texture, which is laid in another silver-gilt case. This case goes into another made of stout bronze, which fits into a sturdy mahogany box, firmly screwed down, and in addition, sealed in a particular way.

The other thing in the box is a rod of bronze. It is carefully protected, too, and is placed on eight rollers in another mahogany case. This case is securely screwed together and carefully sealed. Both these mahogany cases are put in a special casket made of lead, firmly soldered and perfectly air-tight. There is still another covering, however, the leaden casket being fitted into the oaken one already mentioned. This is of specially selected wood, and is sealed in such a way that its contents are kept absolutely intact. It fits exactly into the cavity of the masonry of the staircase.

The two queer pieces of metal which are guarded with such sacredness are the standards of the British weights and measures. They always remain of the same value. The standards which were first used came to grief in 1834, in the fire at the houses of parliament, and it took a large bunch of men of science many long years to compute and manufacture the existing two pieces of metal. The one inch cube of platinum, though so small, weighs a pound. The bronze rod is 38 inches long and has two studs of solid gold to measure off the yard. Two lines cross these gold studs, and at a certain temperature and pressure of the air, the distance between these fine lines is the standard of British measures.

When the ceremony of examining the standards comes off, they are touched by hands, but are held in special tongs. One of the most delicate balances known was used in weighing the cube. The yard was measured with the utmost exactness, a powerful microscope being used, and other delicate measurements were made including that of the temperature and of the height of the barometer.

IN POLICE COURT

Amos Higgs was given 30 days at the county jail for stealing $6 from his roommate, Ed Williams.

Higgs claimed that he did not steal the money, but the police officers found a $5 bill neatly tucked away in the finger tip of one of his gloves.

A badge bearing the word "detective" was found on Higgs and he explained that he found the badge while working in St. Paul two years ago.

Eva Heikkinen, 292 St. Croix avenue, was arrested yesterday. It is believed that she is demented. She will be given an examinatton as to her sanity in probate court.

A CHANCE TO DEMONSTRATE.

Los Angeles Times: O story of Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan's amused the passengers of the America.

"I believe," Mrs. Morgan said one day at luncheon, "I believe in taking Christian Scientists at their word. I am in sympathy with a nervous, delicate-looking man at a concert in the salon of a ship.

"This man, a short time after the concert began, rose and said:

"'Is there a Christian Scientist in the audience?'

"Another man, more delicate-looking even than the first, rose in his turn.

"'I am a Christian Scientist,' said he.

"'Then, sir,' said the other, advancing toward him, 'I will ask you to change places with me, as my seat is in an abominable draught.'"

HAS APPLIED EIGHT TIMES FOR PARDON

John Warren in Connecticut Prison for Fifty-Three Years.

Winsted, Conn., June 1.—John Warren, 71 years old, who has been an inmate of the state penitentiary at Wethersfield for nearly fifty-three years, has just filed with the board of pardons his eighth petition for release. The board will consider it and also fifty-one others at its meeting on June 10.

Warren will not appear before the board in person, it being a rule of the board that a prisoner can have but one appearance.

Warren was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of his wife in Willington. He is "No. 1" on the prison roll.

Warren was 21 years ld and had been married but a short time when one day in 1859 he invited his wife to go for a walk. Coming to a brook the couple seated themselves on its bank side by side. Presently the wife took off her shoes and stockings and sat with her bare feet in the brook. Suddenly Warren seized her by the back of the neck and pressed her head down under the water and held it there until she drowned.

Another "lifer," whose third application for a pardon will be heard at the same time as Warren's, is Kate Cobb, now 63 years old, who was sentenced at Norwich, Jan. 17, 1879, for the murder of her husband, Charles Cobb, by poison, in pursuance of an agreement with Wesley Bishop that he would kill his wife, after which the two were to marry.

Bishop turned state's evidence and both got life sentences. Bishop died in prison a few years ago.

Mrs. Cobb is anxious to pass the remainder of her life with her children.

HUDSON BAY ROAD PROJECT HIT HARD

Titanic Disaster Emphasizes Ice Perils of Proposed Route.

Ottawa, Ont., June 1.The Titanic disaster has given a blow to the Hudson Bay railway project. The naval service department of the Canadian government has reported, after investigation, that vessels attempting that far-north route must expect to meet dangerous icepacks and icebergs at all seasons.

No cargo vessel of ordinary construction, it is asserted, could force her way through large field ice, and any such might have to wait an indefinite time for the ice to open up again. In the event of a strong breeze, which which would eventually disperse it, the preliminary would be a heavy packing of the ice to leeward, which might jeopardize the vessel.

The Hudson Bay railway scheme, if it goes through, means the loss of millions of dollars in traffic on the Great Lakes and on American ships and cars. The projected line, which is intended to carry the grain of the Canadian Far West, runs on land, from The Pas, just north of Manitoba, to either Fort Churchill or Port Nelson on the southwest broadside of Hudson bay, and thence the route is northeast across Hudson bay, east through Hudson strait and across the ocean to Liverpool, skirting the southern part of Greenland. The distance from Port Nelson to Liverpool is 200 miles further than from Montreal to Liverpool. Deputy Commissioner Butler of the Canadian railway department estimates that the business done by the Hudson Bay railway would have to be concentrated in thirty days of the year, probably in August. This means carrying 64,000,000 bushels of grain on thirty-two trains of 4,000 tons capacity a day. Nine ships a day would have to be loaded, and each ship would have to make two round trips across the ocean.

HOME FOR THE AGED

Red River Valley Conference Considers Building New Institution.

Annual Convention Will Come to End With Sunday's Sessions.

Conrad Hanson of Chicago, secretary of the N. D. M. E. society, speaking at the regular sessions of the Red River valley district conference, now being held at the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street, yesterday started a movement for the establishment of a home for the aged.

Mr. Hanson is at the head of the society in the East and introduced a resolution for the establishing of a home somewhere in this state. The address was followed by a general discussion among the delegates attending the local conference. While no action was taken or any recommendations made, the conference requested the society to either establish the home in the Red River valley district or the Minneapolis district.

The plan of establishing a home in this state has already met with favor among the pastors of the Norwegian-Danish M. E. churches in the local district. Should the building be erected in the Red River valley district, it is probable that the home will be located in St. Louis county, which is the largest county in the district. Mr. Hanson is making a canvass of all the members of the N. D. M. E. society in this state to obtain the sentiment regarding the proposed home.

At the session last evening the two following papers were read: "The Advantages of Organizing the Young People's Societies Into Epworth Leagues," by Rev. H. Danielson of Grand Forks, N. D., and "Spiritual Life in Its Beginning, Its Development and Hope," by Rev. H. O. Jacobson of McValle, N. D.

A short business session was held in the church this morning, followed by a luncheon and reception at the home of Rev. Edward Erickson, pastor of the West end church, 324 North Twenty-fourth avenue west. This afternoon the delegates were taken on a sight-seeing trip about the city under the auspices of the First church. Tomorrow is the last day of the conference and the various delegates will take part in the services and meetings during the day.

URGE NEED OF A HIGH SCHOOL

West Enders Want Advanced Institution for Their Children.

West end residents are again urging the need of a high school. That this end of the city is in need of a high school is shown by the large number of graduates during the past year. Nearly 150 pupils will be graduated from the West end schools this month.

The reason why more grammar school pupils do not attend the high school is that they live too far away from the high schools and are not able to stand the expense of street car fares every day. Only half of the graduates attend the high schools every year and it is the belief of those behind the movement that this could easily be raised to 75 per cent.

The list of graduates in the West end schools was published in The Herald this week and again started the agitation for a high school in this end of the city.

HOMECROFT GATHERING

Gospel of the Home Acre Is Spread in West End.

Speaker Says the Average Woman Prepares a Poor Meal.

The National Homecroft society, which has established its headquarters in Duluth, last evening conducted the first of a series of homecroft meetings at the Woodman hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street. The meeting was held under the auspices of the West End Commercial club, which conducted its regular business session immediately following the addresses.

The principal address of the evening was made by Mrs. R. P. Boyington, who upbraided the members of her sex for paying too much attention to their frills and finery and not enough to the management of their homes. The speaker declared that the average woman cooks a very poor meal because of the bad household management, ending in poor health and dyspepsia for the members of the family.

Mrs. Boyington also urged the men of every community to take up homecrofting as a source of revenue, to say nothing of the enjoyment of life and the conditions of a clean and wholesome home. With an acre of ground and an annual income of $600, a man with a family can live comfortably and even afford to take a pleasure trip every year, is the contention of Mrs. Boyington. The speaker urged the women to assist in this homecroft work and to aid their husbands in becoming practical homecrofters. Mrs. Boylngton's address was warmly received and at its conclusion, J. J. Moe asked her to come again, promising that the club members would bring their wives the next time.

Practical Homecrofting.

J. A. P. Neal, one of the practical homecrofters of Duluth and who has made a success at the work but a few miles from the center of the city, gave a most interesting account of his work and the results obtained on a small truck farm. Mr. Neal has been chosen by the Homecroft society to speak at various gatherings from time to time and tell the public the real benefits of homecrofting.

"From my experiences with a truck farm," said Mr. Neal, "I have found it to be the most profitable and enjoyable life there is. The home becomes healthy, clean and wholesome. The products of the homecroft garden are all fresh and the food used by the mother could pass any inspection. The expense of running a small truck farm is hardly noticeable, while the results are enormous. I urge every working man in Duluth to build a home at Woodland or Lakeside and then start a small truck farm in the rear of his home. There is nothing better on earth."

Hints in Planting.

C. E. Roe, another practical homecrofter, who has been chosen by the Homecroft society to speak to Duluth people on the subject of home gardening and farming, spoke on "Hints in Planting." Mr. Roe gave numerous suggestions for starting a garden and a truck farm. He urged everyone to take great care in planting the seeds properly and to make the proper provisions for their best growth. After a garden is planted properly the future of the garden is assured, said Mr. Roe. The speaker also urged the homecroft plan and advised everyone interested in the plan to come out and visit his home and farm. One visit, he said, will convert any man.

Arthur H. Crasswell: made many suggestions to the gardeners on making a garden beautiful. His subject was "How to Make a Garden Beautiful," in which he urged careful management and supervision. He also suggested numerous schemes by which the garden may be a beautifying asset to a home, besides being practical. The condition of the ground must be taken into account, he said, before many kinds of vegetables could be planted so as to prove profitable to the gardener.

SOCIAL CENTER AT ENSIGN SCHOOL

Series of Entertainments By the Children to Begin Movement.

Ensign school at Twenty-third avenue west and Tenth street was last evening thrown open to the public for the first of a series of evening entertainments. The plan is to invite the parents of the school children, who will present various programs from time to time.

The teachers behind the plan of evening entertainments are anxious to interest the parents in a social center, the movement for which will be launched this fall. Several of the schools in this end of the city are working for the adoption of social centers in the buildings. That the entertainments will help in furthering the movement is the belief of the school teachers and the alumni of the schools.

Last evening the children presented a short cantata, "Little Red Riding Hood." The following children took part in the entertainment last evening: Linda Anderson, Loretta Peterson, Susan Anderson, Emil Blackberg, Clarence Stahlbrodt, Albert Jacobson, Bertha Newin, Evelyn Lund, Hazel Donaghy and Mildred Philstrom.

SVITHIOD ORDER HOLDING CONVENTION IN MINNEAPOLIS

Gust Hjerpe, official delegate of Fridhen lodge, No. 43, Independent Order of Svithiod, to the national convention now in session at Minneapolis, sent the following telegram to The Herald yesterday afternoon:

"Grand lodge of Svithiod in session at Minneapolis Thursday. Official business started today. One hundred and ninety-four delegates from all parts of the United States."

The delegates from all parts of the country arrived at Minneapolis Thursday noon, being met by sepcial committees of the Twin City lodges of the order. The convention opened at the Norden hall at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, with Grand Master E. T. Carlson of Chicago presiding. At 8 o'clock in the evening the delegates assembled at the West hotel, the headquarters for the convention, for the annual banquet and entertainment. During the evening Governor A. O. Eberhart addressed the members.

The convention proper opened at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The session continued until noon, when luncheon was served. The sessions were continued yesterday afternoon and in the evening the delegates went to St. Paul as the guests of the St. Paul lodge. This morning the delegates finished all the business of the order and the remainder of the day is being spent in sight-seeing and visiting. The convention will come to a close this evening. Mr. Hjerpe will return to Duluth Monday morning.

CLUB ROOMS AT CAR HOUSE

Provision to Be Made for Comfort of the Employes.

Addition to Car House Will Be Completed About July 1.

According to plans completed yesterday the Duluth Street Railway company will build club rooms for motormen and conductors at the carhouse.

Two large rooms will be built in the rear of the carhouse at Twenty-seventh avenue west and Superior street with an entrance from the barn on one end and from First street on the other end. Construction work will start some time next week and the addition will be completed July 15. The cost of this addition and the furnishings is estimated at $3,000.

The rooms will be forty feet long and thirty feet wide, entirely surrounded by brick walls so that the gasses from the car barn will not penetrate the rooms. The lower room will be provided with books, newspapers and magazines. Several reading tables and one or two pool tables are to be installed. A small room to the left will contain the lavatory and three shower baths.

The room will be fitted with a lunch counter similar to the short order restaurants of this city. No provisions for serving lunch have been made as yet, but the privilege will probably be leased to some local restaurant. The second floor will occupy several small beds to be used by the employes, who are compelled to work on the late runs. The second floor will also be provided with lockers, reading tables and game boards. A caretaker is to be placed in charge of the quarters.

WILL PREACH SERIES OF SERMONS ON SATAN.

Rev. J. A. McGaughey of the Second Presbyterian church, 1515 West Superior street, will preach a series of sermons on Satan beginning tomorrow evening. The subject tomorrow and the succeeding Sundays are as follows: "His Origin," "His Character," "His Work" and "His Final Doom."

Labor Leader Talks.

E. G. Hall, president of the state federation of labor, gave an interesting talk last evening at the Swedish Mission church, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street. The meeting was conducted by the union labor forward movement and was attended by a large number of residents in this end of the city.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE BILL IS READY

Will Be Introduced at Special Session of the Legislature.

The Minnesota legislature will consider a bill providing for woman's suffrage at the special session, which convenes Tuesday morning. This information was the basis of a communication received yesterday at the meeting of the West End Woman's Suffrage league held at the home of Mrs. L. Q. Greeley, 317 North Twenty-third avenue west.

The letter was written by Mrs. A. T. Hall, state president of the Woman's Suffrage clubs, who made the announcement that the bill would be introduced during the special session. She also asked the members of the West end club to get into communication with the local representatives and senators to help the cause.

A feature of the local club during the summer months will be special parlor meetings from time to time. Any woman interested in this work will be invited to attend the open parlor meetings. The first of these meetings will be held next Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. David Adams, 2314 West Second street.

SUNNY SOUTH HAS DRAWBACKS

Minnesota Man Returns After Becoming Disgusted With Conditions.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Chapman, formerly of Fergus Falls, Minn., returned yesterday from Port McCoy, Fla., where they purchased a twenty-acre orchard early last fall. They are spending several weeks with their son, W. N. Chapman, Jr., of 321 North Twenty-eighth avenue west.

Mr. Chapman claims that he was unable to get profitable returns from his land in Florida. He claims that only a few kinds of fruit are grown successfully in that part of the state. Whatever does grow, he said, usually rots in the orchard because of the bad shipping conditions. Many times the farmer is unable to secure a car for weeks, in the meantime the produce or fruit rotting beyond a salable stage.

"Although the country itself is not so bad," said Mr. Chapman, "one cannot very well make a good living. The conditions are all against the farmer. The bad shipping conditions are the real cause for the disgust among the farmers."

Mr. and Mrs. Chapman will visit here for several weeks, after which they will move to Battle Lake, Minn., where they will make their home.

ONLY SOLUTION OF GARBAGE PROBLEM

George M. Jensen Says Individual Should Not Be Required to Pay.

George M. Jensen, who started the garbage collection campaign at the meeting of the West End Commercial club last week, is now planning on several novel features to further his plans. Mr. Jensen gave an interesting talk on the subject and in an interview yesterday said in part:

"Since the infancy of Duluth it has been considered legitimate to use the alleys as the general dumping grounds for the accumulation of refuse during the winter season. Ashes, garbage and tin cans are thrown in a heap, interleaved with successive falls of snow, so that when spring comes, formidable heaps are piled up or scattered around for the sun and rain to work on.

"Here is a subject that it would be worth while to take hold of. This is a matter that could be remedied. The practical collection and disposition of garbage and refuse has attracted the attention of economists all over the country and should no longer be ignored in Duluth. The spasmodic attempts of collecting garbage by private individuals can never be a success, because while some are willing to pay for it others in the same neighborhood are indifferent and refuse to co-operate. Some feeble attempts of municipal collection are being made by the Duluth health department but in as much as a fee is collceted for the removal of garbage, the system hos never been extended beyond a very restricted territory in the center of the city, and even there the receipts don't cover the cost of maintenance. In my opinion, any system that requires the individual to pay directly for the removal of garbage will be a failure.

"The inauguration of a complete municipal garbage collection system is the only solution of this vexacious problem. The woman's council has taken it up, and we ought to pray and hope that they will succeed and give them our earnest support and encouragement.

"Systematic collection of garbage and refuse would do more than anything else to improve the appearance of our city. Vacant lots everywhere are now strewn with tin cans and other unsightly objects deposited there by people who find it cheaper to dump their offal on their neighbor's vacant property than to pay for the removal thereof. Under a proper and efficient system of garbage collection there would be no inducement for anybody to throw the refuse anywhere else than to the caas provided for this purpose, and under proper inspection and a few reminders the people would soon get the habit of cleanliness and perhaps be imbued with a much desired pride in the appearance of their reildence."

Mrs. Heinemann Dies.

Mrs. Flora Heinemann, 29 years old, wife of Edward Heinemann, 2814 Helm street, died yesterday noon after an illness of a week. The body was taken last evening at 6:15 o'clock over the Soo line to Milwaukee, where it will be interred Monday. She leaves two small children, besides her husband.

THE STEEL PLANT.

The third of The Herald's articles on Duluth's talking points—each picked from the mightiest array of city-building material ever gathered on one spot—carries news directly from the head of the United States Steel corporation about the building and completion of the Duluth steel plant.

In a letter to The Herald Chairman Gary of the board of directors says that work will proceed as rapidly as possible, that final approval has just been given to large additions to the original plans, and that the plant should be completed and in operation within a year and a half.

That's another straw—a big one, a mighty big one, the one for which Duluth has waited and on which it has built its hopes ever since it knew that there was iron ore close by. It's big in itself, but it's bigger because of the other industries this one will draw.

A few years ago Dayton watched the Wright brothers fuss around in their little shop with its tongue in its cheek. Dayton thought they were visionary cranks. Now, when Wilbur Wright dies, Dayton—and the nation—pauses to pay him the highest respect.

THE PENNINGTON BANQUET.

The civic banquet Monday evening in honor of President Pennington of the Soo railroad will be a spontaneous showing of appreciation on the part of Duluth.

All Duluth will, we are assured, welcome the chance to express its pleasure in welcoming this guest of the city, and its satisfaction with the coming of the Soo to Duluth.

Since the first road pierced the wilderness to the Head of the Lakes, no new railroad has been so important to the welfare of the city. The Soo was first to realize the future of Duluth and its territory. When it came Duluth was almost completely in the grasp of one system which did not need to care particularly how Duluth felt about things. That monopoly was broken by the entrance of the Soo, and the attitude of other railroads has been changed very materially by its coming.

The banquet Monday evening is limited, necessarily, to five hundred guests. Naturally every business interest will wish to be represented there. The Herald understands that there are a few seats remaining. Those who wish to attend, and who realize that it is their duty to attend if they appreciate the service the coming of the Soo has been and will be to Duluth, will do well to get these seats promptly.

There should be at the Spalding Monday evening as large and representative a gathering of business men as ever got together in Duluth. The importance of the occasion warrants Duluth in doing its best.

Something Like That.

EBERHART ON THE DEFENSIVE.

In the matter of reapportionment, had he (Lieutenant-Governor Gordon) co-operated with the real friends of this measure of justice, had he joined hands with me in the effort to pass the amended bill after it had reached the senate, reapportionment would now be an assured fact in this state.

The history of the defeat of the statewide primary in the senate by a forced adjournment, after it had passed the house, is also a part of the record, and responsibility for the same rests right where responsibility for the defeat of reapportionment rests.—Governor Eberhart's "keynote" appeal to the state.

The intended effect of this statement is that the governor seeks to unload upon the shoulders of Lieutenant-Governor Gordon the responsibility for the defeat of reapportionment and the statewide primary at the regular session of the legislature.

The Herald holds no brief for Mr. Gordon, and it is not going to rise to his defense. But it knows something about what happened at the last session of the legislature, and it is not willing to sit silent while Governor Eberhart distorts history in his own interests.

The governor's maladroit attempts to avert the necessity for keeping his promise to call an extra session, by "helping" reapportionment through the senate, may have been well-meaning enough, but they killed reapportionment.

When the Congdon bill was pending in the senate, Governor Eberhart, the "titular" head of the Republican party, called a caucus of Republican senators in his office one evening. Mr. Eberhart's standing in his own party, and his influence with the legislature, are illustrated by the fact that absolutely not a single senator attended the caucus except a handful of earnest advocates of reapportionment from Northern Minnesota. This move was a pitiable failure.

After the Congdon bill was defeated Senator A. J. Rockne of Zumbrota, a Republican senator who had voted against it, prepared a reapportionment bill which, while by no means so fair as the Congdon bill, was generally recognized as being as fair a bill as could be put through the senate. He determined to sign up enough senators to pass the bill before introducing it. In fact his purpose was to have a majority of the senators sign it as joint authors. His work was progressing favorably, and there seemed little doubt that it would be successful, when Governor Eberhart interfered again. He snatched the Rockne bill out of Senator Rockne's hands and had it introduced by a senator from Northern Minnesota. Mr. Rockne's plans were defeated by this action, and he and the other Southern Minnesota senators who were co-operating with him dropped the matter in disgust.

This is the true history of the governor's association with reapportionment in the regular session.

The governor's charge that the responsibility for the adjournment of the senate while the statewide primary bill was being considered rests on the lieutenant-governor is brutally unfair. He can scarcely expect to gain strength for himself by making charges against others that he knows to be false.

The last night of the session the forces in the senate opposed to the recall, the initiative and the referendum and the statewide primary, all pending, fought determinedly, hour after hour, to force an adjournment. Finally, when a conference committee was about to report on the recall bill, one of the many adjournment roll calls was declared by the clerk at the desk to have been carried. It was a mistake. The motion had really been lost; but the clerk miscounted the vote, and the senate stood adjourned. It speaks well for the reputation of this clerk, who has since died, that never at any time has anybody asserted that his error was otherwise than honest.

Governor Eberhart's statement is an appeal for fair play; but he forfeits his right to any consideration whatever by a deliberate distortion of the facts.

Pays for His Extravagance.

A chap who is said to have stolen two pair of trousers was arrested the other night. If he really did that he ought to have been arrested. It might be excusable, under certain conditions, to take one pair. But two——

COAL.

By a threatened strike, the coal miners in the anthracite fields gained an increase in wages.

That's good; there is no doubt that they deserved it.

The coal operators have increased the price of anthracite twenty-five cents a ton to make up for the increase in wages.

That would be fair enough if the owners of the coal mines were making only a fair profit before on the sale of coal and on the coal-carrying railroads they own, and if the increase in the price of coal merely covered the wage increase.

But the owners of the coal mines were already gaining exorbitant profits both on coal and on coal-carrying, and the increase in the price of coal not only makes up the increased labor cost, but adds an additional profit of six million dollars a year!

To their profits, already too large, the coal trust adds a further profit of one hundred per cent on the wage advance it has yielded to its men.

The buyer of coal must not only pay the increased wages, but as much again to increase the profits of the coal trust.

That's rank injustice, and a brutal abuse of power.

Isn't there some way for the public to strike, too?

This coal, every pound of it, once belonged to the people of the United States. Maybe, if the present owners of the coal supply irritate the public enough, the people will take it back. They should no more have parted with it than they should part with their water supply; but the rush for individual profits was so great, and the hope of participation in it so wide, that nobody thought of the conditions that have arisen.

A little more of this sort of thing will raise in this country a question of mighty importance:

Is this nation run for the benefit of dividend-drawers, or for the benefit of the people who live in it?

"Millions in It."

Some of the Democrats want to cut off the annual $25,000 traveling appropriation of the president. Why not let him have it, and rent the White House to somebody or other during his absences?

A BITTER LAMENT.

It is hard for the spokesmen for Things as They Used to Be to reconcile themselves to the sweeping changes that an awakened people are bringing about.

We find the Pittsburg Gazette-Times, a loyal standpatter among newspapers, bitterly bewailing the defeat of John Dalzell, who was beaten for renomination in the Pennsylvania primaries. It blames his defeat upon negligent representatives of the privileged classes, and says that if they stay away from the polls they have nobody to blame but themselves for the terrible things that are going to happen to them.

The Pittsburg paper's lament contains some diverting things. For instance, it says that Dalzell's defeat has subjected the voters of his district "to the surprised reproach of the press throughout the state and elsewhere." We hadn't noticed it. There was some surprise, it is true, but no reproaches. The Herald has a large and representative exchange list, and there was an unmistakable note of jubilance and triumph in the comments on the fact that another standpat hide had been nailed to the fence.

This is the way the Pittsburg paper lectures the "governing class" of its neighborhood: "Men who whine pathetically about the growth of Socialism, who complain that there are too many legislators of mediocre ability coming to the front, and who bemoan the tendency to radicalism, hundreds of these men right here in Pittsburg, have not enough public spirit, not enough gumption and not enough interest in the supremacy of genuine Republican principles to carry them to the polls in support of a statesman of John Dalzell's splendid attainments. They don't want the protective tariff revised, but they haven't the sense to preserve it. They don't want the Republican party disrupted, but they are too weak to stand up for it." They WANT GOVERNMENT TO CONSERVE THEIR BUSINESS, but they fail to have their proper voice in the government. From such patent leather patriotism may Providence defend us! This country is not in so much peril from the mistakes of the masses as it is from the stupid diffidence of the classes."

Which, taking it by and large, is a classic.

We suspect a wrong diagnosis of the difficulty, however.

These "diffident classes" which want the holy tariff preserved, which don't want the Republican party disrupted,—that is, torn from its ancient allegiance to Special Privilege,—and who want government to conserve their business, are in a minority, everywhere. It stands to reason that they must be, because there isn't enough wealth to provide riches through government favoritism for a majority. So in any district in the country, the privileged classes are in the minority.

So long as the convention system ruled, their task was easy. All they had to do was to keep the bosses on the payroll, and the conventions duly turned out what the classes wanted.

One word explains the change, better than the Gazette-Times's bitter reproaches. That word is "primary". The primary election gives power to the majority, where the convention gave power to the minority.

So men who work to make government conserve business in the interes of the classes are defeated by men who work to make government conserve the welfare of the masses.

That's all there is to it. That's why the Dalzells and the Tawneys and the Tafts and the Cranes and the Aldriches are vanishing from public life.

The Gazette-Times oughtn't to lambast "the classes" so unmercifully. They couldn't stop it if they wanted to; and dear knows they want to if they can.

Taking No Chances.

Apparently the Y. M. C. A. members are as fearful of fire in this world as in the next.

NOVELS FOR A QUARTER.

An Eastern publisher, interviewed in Chicago, recently prophecied the abandonment of the dollar-and-a-half novel and the coming of the twenty-five-cent kind. Of course the new novel will be paper bound.

This is an atractive, but rather improbable, suggestion.

Novels cost too much—current novels, that is. Some of them would be dear at a penny the volume. Few of them are intrinsically worth a quarter of their selling price. Not one in a thousand will ever command the consideration warranting a permanent place on the library shelves in substantial and attractive binding.

So novels cost too much, and probably they will be cheaper. In a way, they are cheaper now. A little while ago practically all novels were a dollar and a half apiece at retail. But you could buy most of them for $1.08, $1.18, and such prices. Now most of them come at $1.25 net, $1.30 net, and sometimes $1.40 net. That means that the price is fixed, and that it doesn't include prepaid postage. Booksellers are not allowed to shave the price. Of course this is a combination in restraint of trade, and probably it ought to get those associated with it into a dungeon somewhere; but it won't. Combinations in restraint of trade are too common for that.

The question of price always is relative. It seems like a good deal of money when you pay $1.30 for a book for which you will have no more use when you have read it. But it isn't nearly so expensive as paying $1.50 or $2 for a seat in a theater to witness a play which may not be half so entertaining as a good novel. And you can keep the book and do your friends the favor of lending it to them, while you can't tell your friends about the play because they won't listen.

The question of the price of a book is relative in another way. Bertha M. Clay's books at $1.35 and William J. Locke's at the same price illustrate this. If Locke is worth $1.35, Bertha M. Clay is worth, to be liberal, 2 cents. But their books sell at about the same price.

The quarter novel would give more people the chance to buy and read novels; but we are not quite sure that's anything to the good. Anybody can read novels free nowadays through the public library; and getting them that way is getting them after they have been selected to some extent—though the meshes of the screen often are too large, and sometimes not large enough.

And nobody need pay even $1.25 for a book, if he has wisdom and patience. We know a person who has a unique habit of bookbuying. He never is able to discuss current novels, because he never reads them. He takes note of the output of fiction, recognizes that 99 per cent of it is trash which presently vanishes, and waits. If a novel lives a year or two, he thinks it worth looking into; and by that time it has come out in a cheaper edition and he can buy a bound copy for half a dollar. Thus he is always a year or two behind the times in his reading of current fiction, but he is always several dollars ahead of the game financially. Besides, he takes few risks of wasting his time by reading a book that isn't worth reading.

It is to be doubted if the twenty-five cent novel—except as we have it now—will come about very soon. For one reason, it can't leave enough margin for royalties to keep good writers producing fiction. Writers may not admit that they write for money, but they do—for money as well as for other things—the pleasure there is in creation, for one.

Besides, so long as there are people willing to pay more than the present price of a novel for two hours' amusement in the theater, there will be plenty willing to pay a dollar and a quarter for the entertainment there is in a well-recommended romance.

Northern Wisconsin men say this year's fruit crop is to be the biggest ever. Does this include cranberries?

Instead of adopting the fireless cooker system, New York, through the hotel strike, is being treated to a taste of cookless fires.

Taft and Roosevelt managers each claim their man will be nominated on the first ballot. La Follette claims he will be nominated on the last ballot. Now wouldn't it be surprising if somebody else were nominated on one in between?

Evidently Senator William Alden Smith gave the British lion's tail a good bit of a tweak in that Titanic speech. The London Standard calls it "Flamboyant, journalese, rhethorical flapdoodle filled with wild verbiage and reckless deductions."

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

WHY NOT STOP THE BREEDING OF FLIES?

To the Editor of The Herald:

I notice that the city health department is very active in issuing orders to "swat the fly," the object being to prevent the spread of disease. Why not start at the beginning and prevent the breeding of flies? Why does not the health department see that the heaps of refuse and filth and the open garbage cans in alleys and back yards, as well as the piles of ill smelling manure at private stables in residence districts are removed and then there might be no flies and "swatting" them would be unnecessary? Go through the residence sections of the city and you will be surprised to see the many places of this character. Why cannot the health department enforce the ordinances and put an end to these conditions? Yours,

EAST ENDER.

SARCASTIC AT EXPENSE OF SOCIAL CENTERS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I am very much pleased to see a movement started by the Bryant alumni "to make the public schools a social center," or in other words a dance hall. Much effort has been put forth to have night schools started where boys and girls who are compelled to work during the day, might continue and advance along needed education, but I am exceedingly glad to see this movement supplanted by the dance movement.

There are indeed too many educated people now. To turn the little red school house into a dance hall is certainly the best thing that could happen.

By all means let us make a workshop and a dance hall of the public schools and the high cost of living will solve itself.

Now for good solid reasoning I will bet a pound to a penny that there is not 5 per cent of the members of the Bryant alumni or for that matter, any other alumni, that can tell where the two ends of the Mississippi river are located; and I bet again that not 5 per cent can pass an examination for the simplest job in Uncle Sam's service—"nuff said."

Respectfully,
"NIGHT SCHOOL."

SEX HYGIENE IN THE SCHOOLS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

"What time is it?" an eminent sociologist once was asked. "It is 'sex' o'clock," came the response.

Robert E. Denfeld, Duluth's school superintendent, before a recent school board meeting proposed that teaching sex hygiene in the schools be made a part of the students' education; whereby it was shown that Mr. Denfeld, along with other progressive educators, has his finger on the pulse of sociological progress.

Except for that percentage which always must die, the youths and maids attending school will grow into manhood and womanhood and, being men and women, will be subject to the same emotion and temptation that millions of their kind have been subjected to for years as old as history.

The major percentage of these girls will surely lead irreproachable lives, but with the boys it will be, alas! too truly and sadly different. For do they not hear from almost infancy up, said in a deprecatory tone: "Well, it's different with a man."

And this mistaken state of affairs will continue until we all learn that no attitude toward the question of the sexes can be more hyprocitically false—and ruthlessly unjust.

But until that time of surcease arrives, what must be done to safeguard the ignorant and protect the innocent?

Sex hygiene surely seems the only answer.

Those who, through heredity or association, must stray from society's adopted path of correct living, will do so regardless of results; and it is for these that full knowledge will work for the eventual stamping out of the physical side of the social evil, if no more; a victory too great to be as yet fully appreciated.

Women whet the knife of suffering and destruction when they condole themselves with the thought that "with men it's different;" they themselves in instances innumerable suffer the penalty.

There is nothing so rash as inpetuous youth, unbridled with knowledge of ultimate results.

Man or woman would consider themselves foolhardy if, with full knowledge he or she entered a house placarded with the smallpox sign, and yet thousands expose themselves daily to two dangers so fraught with physical wreck that mind sickens but to contemplate.

But this is not all. If the guilty alone would suffer, consolation indeed, if any, might still be ours. The innocent must suffer from the ignorance and omissions of the guilty.

Not only must the innocent of the present-day generation suffer because of ignorance and omissions of the guilty, but the unborn of tomorrow must also pay the inexorable toll of nature's outraged plan of perfect unity. Nature frowns on violations, and nature punishes those who violate.

But the penalty ceases not here. As the result of the lack of knowledge how to curb desire in the first place and what precautions to pursue when the rein snaps, I say as the direct result of this many imbeciles and idiots are born into the world; eventually to become inmates of asylums; eventually to become public burdens and an item of expense to the taxpayer who innocently enough had nothing at all to do with the facts in the case.

Did I say "innocently enough?" Permit me to retract. Every taxpayer is guilty if he countenances the perpetuation of present conditions or if, when the question of sex hygiene is placed before the school board he, through a false sense of righteousness or prudishness does not firmly and unequivocally stand for its passage.

Teaching sex hygiene in the schools is the pillar of fire which must lead us out of the Egypt of misunderstood or perverted sexualism; it is the only way to put fear in hearts of those who will not be bound by anything divine or social; it is the only way to insure boundless protection to the innocent and more wholesome life and living to society.

Cold figures give one shivers and there are some which positively freeze. Let it suffice that two of our largest cities are prowling places for befouled beings to the extent of 80 per cent in one city and 60 per cent in another; and the percentage runs something like this in nearly every city.

Does it not appear from these figures alone that teaching sex hygiene in the schools should become more than a merely local issue? Some day in the near future some progressive spirit will propose that it be made a national and compulsory school institution.

Much more could be written on this subject, but I fear that already I have overstaid my time.

Thanking you for your patience and valuable space, it affords me pleasure to remain, yours sincerely,

H.

Avoid Tedious Gossip.

Chesterfield: Cautiously avoid talking of the domestic affairs either of yourself or of other people. Yours are nothing to them but tedious gossip; theirs are nothing to you.

THE EXTRA SESSION.

Lost the Rest of His Support.

Glenwood Herald: Governor Eberhart had very few friends in the state, but now he has by calling a special session at this time placed himself in a position where he has lost the friendship of these too.

This is Sarcasm.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: The Fergus Falls Journal is unkind enough to give Hon. E. E. Smith credit for turning a clever trick in calling an extra session of the legislature—and Edward is one of the most modest men in the state, and who would not presume to exercise any of the duties of governor.

Holding On to the Bacon.

Bear River Journal: There is a suspicion that Eberhart has discovered that his political bacon is in danger, and that Sam Gordon is likely to walk off with the whole Republican porker. In order to maintain a precarious tail hold on said porker Adolph has called a special session of legislature to enact a state wide primary and other political legislation, to convene June 4. It's getting rather late in the day for Adolph to arise from his slumber.

The Governor's Motto.

Gonvick Banner: Governor Eberhart calls for an extra session of the legislature on June 4. If he does not believe in the "early bird catches the worm," surely he must have some faith in the motto of that bright and excellent newspaper edited and published by the inmates of the Minnesota state prison, which reads: "It is Never too Late to Mend."

Too Late! Alas!

St. Hilaire Spectator: Mr. Eberhart's death-bed repentance came too late to save his—governorship

Found Wanting.

Laporte News: Governor Eberhart has called a special session of the legislature to meet on Thursday, June 4. Just why he should have called it at this time instead of last winter when he was urged to do so by certain parties, can be explained in only one way, and that is, he saw the handwriting on the wall at the recent Republican delegate convention, and his Daniel, who was one E. E. Smith, interpreted the meaning to be "thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting." He now realizes he would not stand a ghost of a show in convention, and, like a drowning man grasping at a straw, thinks he may lead in a primary preferential vote with so many other candidates in the field.

Machine is Weak.

Holt Northern Light: Governor Eberhart has called an extra session of the legislature, and says he wants a new law passed to extend the primary elections so as to include state officers. He steadily refused all winter to call an extra session, but the Roosevelt landslide showed the weakness of the machine to which he belongs, so he hurriedly dropped his arrogance and is trying to make a deathbed repentance. If he wants this extra session to do him any good, he will be very careful with his recommendations—and the veto power.

Honest Primary Needed.

Hibbing Messaba Ore: That Eberhart was doomed to defeat in the state convention was evident, and, so, Ed Smith and the "organization" had to do something desperate if they expected to get their man nominated. A miscroscope was used, and in the far corners of the political mass a speck was discerned that might prove the salvation of Adolph the Lucky and his machine friends. The last hope was grabbed for, and that hope was the extra session that the citizens of the state had been hollering for, with the enactment of a state-wide primary law. The primary that Ed Smith and his gang have in mind is one that can be manipulated in the same confidence manner as the conventions have been heretofore. They don't want an honest primary, where the will of the real majority of the people will rule, but they want one that will insure that Adolph, in a field of many candidates, will get the majority. The primary that has been suggested by Representative Rines of Kanabec county, wherein a second choice may be expressed, and in which the first choice must have a majority of 40 per cent of the voters, is the one that should be adopted. Should the first choice fail to get the necessary majority, then the candidate receiving a 40 per cent majority as first and second choice would be chosen.

The Extra Session Call.

Northfield News: It is difficult to see on what ground the governor can be held to be justified in calling an extra session of the legislature to enact a direct primary law at this time. It will involve great expense, not merely for the extra session itself, but to pay the printing and other bills the enactment of such a law will necessarily involve. It is called at the season of the year of all the most inconvenient. Moreover, it was not necessary to call the legislature together to give the people a chance to express their preference for state officers. The state convention held last week had pointed out the way in which this might be done without expense and without confusion.

The governor evidently was blinded by the opportunity he thought he saw of making political capital for himself. The convention, which was plainly unfriendly to him, had called upon the Republican state central committee "to provide suitable means for each voter to express by ballot his individual preference for governor of Minnesota," and he determined to go them one better. As his friends express it, he called the bluff. His action was taken not with a view of getting the honest and fair expression which would have been provided for by the convention's method, but in order that he might pose as even more progressive than the Progressives themselves. He argued that his situation could be no worse. If he took the bull by the horns, there was a possibility that it might be bettered.

So far as the governor is concerned the unfortunate part of the whole matter is that the light dawned for him too late. He did not see the need of a primary law until the people had wrecked his machine. Had the governor recognized the popular demand last winter, there would have been virtue in a determination to concede what it asked. Other opportunities of putting himself right with the people had been afforded him. He both disregarded them and ignored the public sentiment with which he had ample opportunity to familiarize himself. He has only himself to blame if now his eleventh-hour conversion is regarded everywhere with suspicion.

In point of fact, there is no need of other or better laws than we have to settle the one great "issue" the people are called upon this year to decide. This was demonstrated by the last convention. It isn't a question of who shall occupy the governor's chair. If the man is honest, capable and industrious, that is after all a minor consideration. The real question is, "Shall the bosses continue to rule?" Under our present laws delegates elected by the people answered that in part at last week's convention. They would have answered it by destroying every last vestige of the machine in July if the governor had not interfered. What has been wanted all along has not been so much to provide the people with better machinery for self government as to make them realize the dangers of gang rule. Now that they have been awakened to them, the present machinery could have been made to serve their turn well enough. The governor's attempt to divert the issue will avail the bosses nothing.

AHY.

Lippincotts: She: "Aren't you sometimes frightened when away up in the air?"

Aviator: "Well, I'll admit I sometimes feel a sort of groundless apprehension."

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Wooden Soldiers.

St. Jerome calls them "wooden soldiers" who "always have their swords raised without striking a blow." His definition reminds us of the advice of an acquaintance to a well-intentioned fellow who was forever telling what he "aimed" to do: "Pull the trigger, man, for goodness sake, pull the trigger!" It was excellent advice even though offered in impatience to one with whom purpose had long taken the place of performance.

It is more important to do a good thing than to know how to do it or even to plan to do it. The fact should be borne in mind by a large number of people in every community. Reference is now not to the blunderbuss or to the fool who romps carelessly in where angels fear to tread, but to those whose chronic lack is of will rather than of equipment or of preparation.

For practical purposes a man is no better than a dummy at a cigar stand if he never strikes with his raised sword or actually pulls the trigger of his leveled gun. Ability is really measured by achievement. A man who is good must prove that he is not only good but good for something. We estimate the real vigor of a personality by its power to get results. A regiment of wooden soldiers might look imposing but would win no battles.

The weak spot in many gifted people is just here. Their swords remain simply poised in air. They may early give promise of brilliant careers. They make lengthy and suitable preparation. Parents, teachers and friends predict success. As the years pass, however, they exhibit no inclination actually to tackle the work of life. Middle age finds them still hesitating on the brink. And age can only write on their careers the world "failure."

Preparation is good but there may be too much of it. To get the thing done that needs doing is our main duty. When our American statesmen were discussing methods whereby the nation might resume specie payments after the Civil war, Horace Greeley cut the knot of the problem in his famous dictum, "The only way to resume is to resume." And as a matter of fact the nation did resume without any exhaustive knowledge as to the correct way of resuming.

Put with this the saying of Solomon in the book of Proverbs, "the beginning of wisdom is, get wisdom." do not theorize about it or speculate concerning it, or long for it, get it. The Master once told a palsied man to stretch forth his hand. The poor fellow had no idea how to do such an impossible thing. His hand had for a long time hung limp and useless at his side. At the command of Jesus, however, he simply obeyed. He stretched forth his hand and then he knew how to do it.

We need more soldiers like Maj. Rowan, the "man who took the message to Garcia." When Gen. Miles wanted a man to go to the heart of Cuba he found in this young officer one who did not wait to pack a trunk, or press his uniform, or plan a commissariat, or begin a study of the fauna or flora of the enemies' country, but simply started.

Let good purposes come to performance. Each day rescue as many worthy acts as possible out of the dreamy realm of intention and set them solidly on their feet. Have a thrust at the evils that lift their heads about you. The soldier that is worth his salt in this life campaign is one actually on the march and wielding a sword that is no painted ornament.

THE PARSON.

An Ignorant Bunch.

Philadelphia Telegraph: An unsophisticated resident of a small town up the state had never been in court before, and was not familiar with the interrogative manner in which a lawyer juggles a witness. When he returned home in the evening a friend asked him how he made out.

"Oh, I made out all right," he replied, "but I never saw such a bum lot of lawyers in my life."

"What was the matter with them?" queried the friend.

"A whole lot was the matter with them," answered the witness. "Judging from the million questions they asked me there ain't a darned one of them that knows anything about the case."

The "Big Stick" Governor of California.

Metropolitan Magazine: During the visit of Governor Hiram Johnson of California to the East last winter there was newspaper talk of him as vice presidential timber, and it is apparent that he created a deep impression which abided after his departure. That is not strange for the man is a remarkable personality. His career up to the present, of course, lies entirely within the state of California. Two quotations from two of his speeches out there will serve to introduce the career itself which is unique in American political annals.

"And may God in His mercy grant us the strength and the courage to do the right."

These were the words with which he closed his inaugural address as governor of California, at Sacramento on Tuesday, Jan. 3, 1911.

"And, remember this, my friends! I am going to be the next governor of California, and when I am, I am going to kick out of this government William F. Herrin and the Southern Pacific railroad. Good night!"

These sentences constituted the closing declaration of every speech he made during his gubernatorial campaign. Out of these utterances have grown, in a single twelvemonth, a political upheaval the most remarkable and a legislative reconstruction the most thorough-going that any American state has ever known. This celeritous out-Jerseying of New Jersey was accompanied by the flowering of the unique and significant character who is today known as the "Big Stick" Governor of California, and who has so recently made his presence felt in the national conferences of the progressive element of his party.

The Lower Classes.

Mike Bascovitch knows not our speech,
He doesn't read our magazines;
He doesn't know our world for "pain,"
But he knows pain and what it means.
He and his kind are human, too,
And something more than toil-machines.

Mike Bascovitch has wife and babes,
And toils for them the dull years through;
And though he lives in squalor bleak,
He loves his own as well as you;
He does not drive them forth to toil
Until his masters force him to.

Mike Bascovitch loves sun and air,
He loves the fields so green and wide;
But masters of his flesh and soul
Have kept his longing all denied,
Have kept him close to smoke and grime—
His dreams and hopes unsatisfied.

Mike Bascovitch is slow and dull;
He seems from us a "thing apart;"
He's never had a decent chance,
The world has crushed him from the start,
A brother to the ox, perhaps,
But just like you are, in heart.

Timely Escape.

Everybody's Magazine: A German shoemaker left the gas turned on in his shop one night and upon arriving in the morning struck a match to light it. There was a terrific explosion, and the shoemaker was blown out through the door almost to the middle of the street, and, after helping him to rise, inquired if he was injured.

The little German gazed in at his place of business, which was now burning quite briskly, and said:

"No, I ain't hurt. But I got out shust in time, eh?"

THIS GIVES PETE THAT TIRED FEELING —By C. L. SHERMAN

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1892.

After a lengthy illness, John J. Costello passed away at 11:55 o'clock last night. Last winter he took a severe attack of erysipeles and later it was found hat he had cancer of the stomach. There was not a more popular man in Duluth. Mr. Costello was born in Croon, County Limrick, Ireland, a little over 35 years ago. The family came to America when he was 10 years old, settling on Long Island and later coming to Minnesota. John came to Duluth in 1870 and made his home with Camille Poirier. In 1873 he went into the hardware store of his cousin, R. A. Costello, and learned the trade of a tinsmith. Then he purchased this branch of the business and made his humble beginning on a cash capital of $25. In 1876 R. A. Costello sold ou the entire business to John, who conducted it alone until 1887, when the former returned from Graceville and purchased a half interest. The firm then became known as J. J. & R. A. Costello, the present name. J. J. Costello was several times elected alderman and in 1889 was chosen president of the council and frequently served as acting mayor. He was married in 1871 to Miss Anna Weber, daughter of L. B. Weber, a former Duluth merchant, now living in Los Angeles, Cal., who, with six children, survive him.

P. O'Hare, an employe at Duncan Brewer's sawmill, had a couple of ribs broken by a dump cart tipping onto him yesterday.

The I. O. O. F. lodge met last evening and prepared the complete program for the grand lodge session next week. The executive committee is composed of T. W. Hugo, George Goldsmith, F. H. White, R. R. Kreischke, R. E. Patterson, W. J. Fadden and S. A. Perry. The reception committee includes T. H. Pressnell, E. Kugler, J. Williams, Joseph Dwyer, J. D. Gill, S. Menlece and H. Forsitt.

Emil Olund and family arrived yesterday from Hudson, Wis., and will make their home at West Duluth.

John J. Hatley, for some time clerk of the Tremont hotel, has become steward of the Kitchi Gammi club.

The Grand Marais Fishing club filed articles of incorporation today. The capital stock is $10,000 and the incorporators are: John McLeod, C. R. Haines and Ronald Hunter.

The Broadway hotel, in Superior, closed its doors last evening.

The tin, sheet iron and cornice workers of Duluth are out on a strike. They want a wage scale of $2.50 a day and nine hours as a day's work, with eight hours on Saturday.

The fast freight train on the St. Paul & Duluth road, which left here last night, is in the ditch near Sturgeon Lake, the result of the engine striking two cattle, which became caught in a small culvert. The fireman, Dave arrows, was pinned beneath the engine when it upset and seventeen loaded cars were piled on top. He was 21 years old and unmarried. Engineer John Korslund sustained a broken leg by jumping.

EMMETT GARVIN LOGAN

By SAVOYARD.

Washington, June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first time I ever heard of Emmett Garvin Logan was more than a third of a century ago, when the Courier-Journal one morning contained a lengthy article signed by him about the notorious Grove Kennedy. The first time I ever saw him was at Glasgow, Barren county, about 1880, when he was editor of John C. Underwood's paper at Bowling Green, and the first time I ever met him was in May, 1886, the day the Louisville Times was one year old, when he bought of me an article about Governor Thomas E. Bramlette and Stephen G. Burbridge. That day he captured me as well as the writing and for more than a quarter of a century we were friends, during much of which period he was my boss.

There is a tradition, bearing the marks of strongest probability, that Abraham Lincoln and Emmett Logan were blood kin and not very remote at that. He one day allowed me to read the record, after which when in social converse with him I ceased to marvel how it came that I was constantly reminded of what they say of Lincoln's every-day life in Illinois. So prone was Logan to illustrate a thing by anecdote, generally homely, oftimes classic, frequently Biblical, that it sometimes looked like intellectual vice. No man ever had a keener sense of humor. He saw the ridiculous, be it never so safely hid.

Logan was a farmer's boy and followed the plow. All his life he was of the soil which he passionately loved. Though a post and a sentimentalist, he was one of the best practical farmers in all Kentucky. In politics he was a Democrat, in daily walk he was ever democratic. Strangers who had read him but never met him expected to find him distant, cold, reserved, and thousands were delighted by the engaging air, the bland manners, the frank speech, the kindly grasp of the hand, the inimitable twinkle of the eye, of the most approachable public man in all the state. He hated sham and was merciless in excoriation of it, but nobody ever appealed to the practical charity of Emmett Logan and went away empty. He always reinforced sympathy with active benevolence, and to borrow a figure, pity without aid is worse than hospitality without food.

Everybody knows Logan as the keen, gleaming, relentless rapier of journalism that spared not when engaged against deceit, guile, fraud, sham. He was savage and he was merciless; but in other lines he was as gentle as a woman. I will recall the death of Dr. Carey Blackburn of Louisville. He was the son of the beloved governor of that name, and a man swift to lend help to suffering—the good Samaritan with oil and balm for the wounded. Logan wrote some lines in eulogy of that man that I defy American letters to surpass in gentleness, in beauty, in sentiment, in poetic feeling. He turned it off after a labor of five minutes and then told us an anecdote that set Hopper, Watkins and me in a roar.

Logan was fortunate in his youth. At home he was bred to toil and was never afraid of labor—he reveled in physical exertion whether in the corn field or the hunting field. He was a pupil of Professor Dodd at Shelbyville, who had not his superior in the entire country in training the minds and shaping the characters of boys. Then he was a student at Washington and Lee, and he said to me that the greatest good fortune that ever befell him was a vacation he spent in Lexington when he was in intimate association with Gen Lee, William Winston Johnston ad Professor Maury, whose conversation was of immense benefit to him.

Closely associated with Logan and James W. Hopper the minds of these two were very different. Hopper was the abler and Logan the more brilliant man. Both were highly cultivated, both fine linguists. Hopper one of the first in Kentucky. Hopper was educated to be a minister of the gospel, but finding that he had no vocation in that way he became a lawyer, later dropping into journalism. If he had been gifted with a "tune," that is, with a captivating style, he would have taken his place as one of the greatest newspaper writers of his time. He had the mind and the culture, but his work was as cold as Adam Smith's. And yet there was poetry in him. If you could find him in precisely the right humor and get him turned loose he would discourse on the book of Isaiah after a fashion that would fill you with admiration and astonishment. He was frequently besought to reduce his comment to writing and print it, but he never consented. It would have made him famous. His estimate of Tennyson's poetry was nearly as good. It was a pretty good education to be the intimate associate of these two men.

Sometimes Logan loved to "talk shop." One of his best anecdotes was about a very long article of great interest to some cult or other which he printer in the Courier-Journal after glancing at a page or so of the manuscript. Some months later he carefully read the same article in a Brooklyn paper, was greatly interested in it and clipped it out and reprinted it in the Courier-Journal, giving the Brooklyn paper credit for it, though the Brooklyn man had stolen it from him.

He reported the Tom Buford trial and used to tell with infinite jest of how old Phil Thompson introduced Gen. Abe Buford as a witness for the defense to prove that his brother Tom was insane. The old hero of two wars, in the last of which he led the fightingest brigade of Forrest's command, clinched the theory of the defense when he deposed that Tom had argued with him all of an August afternoon that "he knew as much about a race horse as I did."

The year of the Jamestown exposition, one morning in the month of September, I stepped into the elevator in the building of the newspaper in this town for which I then worked, and the boy handed me a piece of a cigar box with the information that a gentleman had left that as his card for me. On it was written in his unmistakable hand, "E. G. Logan, farmer, St. James hotel." I hadn't seen him for ten years; but we didn't separate after we met that day until he was compelled to leave for home.

And he came again in the year of 1912 in the dead of the harshest winter we have had for years. He was in perfect and robust health, all but the malady affecting the ear, to which he succumbed eighty days later. It was the same old Logan we had loved so well. I saw him daily while he was being treated by a specialist here, and never had been his company so sweet to Sam Gaines and me and other friends he met.

But with regret and pain I now recall what, at the time, had no significance, a pensive look that sometimes came over his countenance. I now know it was a premonition of the fate that was all too soon to overtake him. But he was bubbling over with good humor and good fellowship—the same old Logan of the long ago. I will be forgiven for relating an anecdote that made him laugh immoderately:

Down at Chicken Bristle dwelt Mr. Creedall Stovall. He was the head of a rather large family and had the vagary to give his girls boys' names. One of them, his favorite, the youngest, he called "Tom," and a fine girl she was—good looking, big, strapping, buxom, muscular, athletic. It would take the strength of half a cottage of our golf-playing girls to "shoulder" three bushels of wheat. Tom with her feet in an old-fashioned half a bushel measure turned the trick with ease, the effort lending but a little to the glow of the apples in her cheeks. And how she could dance! The most excellent thing in a woman is good humor. Tom had it superabundantly. When I was at home in July, 1905, I had not seen Tom in just twenty years. She was married, the mother of a family of children. I rode out to the old place. The schackling cabin had given place to a comfortable cottage. The suggestion of squalor was supplanted by a manifestation of neatness. Tom, now a magnificent matron, was standing in the door. Reining in my horse, I exclaimed, "Tom, do you know me?" "Know you? Drat you, I'd know your hide in a tanyard!"

Out she came, bringing the prettiest strapping miss of 16 you ever saw, and introduced her as her daughter, also named "Tom."

It appealed to Logan as nothing else I ever told him, and before the week was out he related it a score of times with infinite variation and not inconsiderable elaboration to our mutual friends. He contended the thing was a colloqium of the dignity of the classic, and he was willing to bet it was not new when Wamba was the jester, and Gurth the swineherd, of Cedric the Saxon.

After remaining in Washington over two months he went to Baltimore to undergo the surgical operation that I am now sure he expected to result fatally. I visited him several times. Once we went to Annapolis where we spent a delightful day, and both of us agreed that we would love to live there if we had our old clan from Louisville with us. He took me to Fort McHenry and out to Druid Hill park, an enchanting place. He loved to roam over strange and new scenes and meet strange and new people. The doctors gave the most imperative orders that he should drink no alcohol, and we indulged in soft drinks. At one place there was an exceedingly pretty girl, and I charged him that she was the attraction, suggesting that I'd live there if located in Baltimore. But he warned that it was the male proprietor who interested him and he was a curiosity, though of the slightest interest to me. When we left Logan illustrated the view he had of it by a long story in Gibbon—the time of Commodus, and the conceit was unspeakably ridiculous.

The morning of May 16 I got this letter from him, written by his nurse. Evidently there is a mistake in the date, for it is postmarked May 14, 8:40 p. m. It was misdirected and long delayed in delivery:

"John Hopkins Hospital, May 13, 1912.—My dear old 'Jene': This is written by my nurse, and would be dictated, too, except my nurse will not tolerate a dictation. I went on a pretty long journey, and the way back over Jordan has been pretty rough, but I think I am over the worst of it. They took everything out of the right side of my head, and even then got mighty little. Sorry the doctor would not let you see me Saturday, but I will see you later and show you what a real aching side is. Give my love to old Sam and tell Krock 'howdy.' Hope to write to you myself by the end of the week.

While we were sitting in Druid Hill park some weeks before a discussion arose between us about the Levite who "came and looked on him and passed by on the other side." I was for the Levite, and Logan said I did some fearful and vicious things to casuistry. When I got that letter and read it I fixed in my mind some studies in casuistry that I intended to hurl at him in reply. I saw him hugging himself as he read the whim, and then I saw how nimbly his mind would avoid and how triumphantly it would retort. In short, I saw the old Logan.

I resumed the morning paper and turning the page I read that he was dead. Never in my life was a shock so sudden, so cruel.

But sad as it is, the snapping of such ties is not without beneficence in its operation. It makes us less reluctant to go with Charon. Shall I meet him again in a better world? Has God mercy? Has God love? Then I will; I will.

IN THE LITERARY WORLD

MAKING HOME PROFITABLE. By Kate V. Saint Maur, author of "The Earth's Bounty." New York: Sturgis & Walton. $1 net.

This is not only a very entertaining book, but a very practical and very useful book. Financial reverses drove a city family to seek cheaper living quarters. After looking over the cheap flats of their home city, with dismay and often disgust, the wife thought of a country house where they could raise part of their food. They searched and found it. With their small means they made a small start, but by experimenting and experience they not only raised most of their food, but a lot to sell. They found not only cheaper living, but contentment, varied interest, comfort, health and prosperity.

The book came about this way: In beginning, they made many mistakes because they lacked practical advice. Mrs. Saint Maur conceived the idea of putting the results of her experiences, with practical counsel on a variety of subjects, into this book. It covers such subjects as poultry, the vegetable garden, strawberries and small fruits, flowers, bees, storing fruits and vegetables, raising pigs, household pets, etc.

FALSE MODESTY: That Protects Vice by Ignorance. By Dr. E. B. Lowry. Chicago: Forbes & Co. 50 cents net.

Society pays a terrible penalty for a sex ignorance which is deliberately imposed on young people by prudish parents and neglectful public schools. The child—boy or girl—is left by parents and teachers to find out for himself the vital facts about sex, and in an appallingly large number of cases ruin is the price paid for this knowledge.

Dr. Forbes makes a severe indictment of both parents and public schools for their failure to teach sex hygiene, and offers valuable and constructive suggestions in a book of vital, helpful interest to parents, teachers, physicians and ministers. One paragraph should be quoted: "If we saw a venomous snake slipping unawares upon its unsuspecting victim, would we fail to give the warning because we preferred the victim should not know of the existence of the reptile? But we allow innocent girls to pay the penalty of ignorance by their lives."

THE FUN OF GETTING THIN: How to Be Happy and Reduce the Waist Line. By Samuel G. Blythe. Chicago: Forbes & Co. 35 cents.

Mr. Blythe, who writes the political articles for the Saturday Evening Post, and who is the author of the departments "Who's Who and Why," and "The Senator's Secretary," has gathered a very large amount of entertainment and sound, practical sense in these two little books containing articles which, unsigned though easily recognized by those familiar with his style, appeared originally in the Post. He tells how and why he mounted the water wagon, and how he "reduced his waist line," and while both articles contain practical and valuable advice, they are written in his usual brilliant style, and they are good to read even for those who have no waist to reduce and no alcoholic thirst to subdue. Says he:

"With the liquor habit * * * nine-tenths of the subjects delude themselves about how much of a habit they have; and, second, nine-tenths of those with the habit have a clear idea of the extent to which the habit is fastened on others. They are fooled about themselves, but never about their neighbors! Wherefore the breweries and the distilleries prosper exceedingly."

Also: "You all know the man who says he quit drinking and never thought of drink again. He is a liar. He does not exist."

THE MELTING OF MOLLY. By Maria Thompson Daviess. Indianapolis. The Bobbs-Merrill company. $1.00 net.

Molly was a widow—a charming, young widow, described as a "luscious peach." Molly was, well—fat, but she hadn't thought much about it until an old admirer, writing home, had asked her to wear the blue dress she wore when he parted with her. Molly was given a recipe for reduction by a kindly, neighbor doctor. She melted physically, her heart melted toward the doctor and the old admirer found her in love with somebody else. "The Melting of Molly," does not tax the mentality of the reader, but it is the kind of light reading that makes one forget the cares of the day and enter into the lives of the characters.

Books Received.

IN THIS WORLD OF OURS. By Minnie M. Dobbs. New York: The Shakespeare Press.

Among the Magazines.

If anybody understands the temper of the public it is the most popular novelists of the day, and Meredith Nicholson's shrewd paper on the question "Should Smith Go to Church?" which leads off the June Atlantic, has the message for a great many thousands of Americans. The discussion of public questions in this month's Atlantic is exemplified by "Patents and the Public," by Seth K. Humphrey, while in the Atlantic "Capital and Labor and the Public" is a paper on "The Value of Existing Trade-Unionism" written by a manufacturer who assails the unions as at present constituted with much vigor. A highly suggestive article in this issue is "The Feminizing of Culture," by Earl Barnes, while two papers, "Does Human Nature Change?" and "Our Unchanging Nature" stir freshly a fascinating subject of eternal dispute. "Where 'the Sick in Mind' are Free" describes the Belgian system of treating the insane in free communities, and Sir Horace Plunkett gives the reader an idea of what can be accomplished by agricultural co-operation. A paper of marked literary importance is Havelock Ellis' estimate of "Rousseau Today." Morris Schaff and James O. Pagan contribute interesting installments of their serials. The poetry in the number is contributed by Grace Hazard Conkling and Martin Armstrong. In fiction this number of the Atlantic is particularly strong, including as it does "Tom Fiddler's Ground," by Arthur Quiller-Couch, and a novelette dealing with the problem of children in cases of divorce, by the well-known Atlantic writer, Cornelia A. P. Comer.

The National Magazine for June is aglow with the dainty cover design of the "Tea Girl." The frontispiece is a memorial to "Bobby Burns," reproduced from Lord Rosaberry's rare portrait of the great Scotch poet. A complete resume of one of the most interesting sketches ever prepared on Burns and founded on the Burnsianist in the possession of William R. Smith of Washington is contributed by Former Senator H. C. Hansbrough. This story will be read with avidity by every lover of Burns, for the great Scotch poet and his works have since youth been the hobby of Mr. Smith, now in his 84th year. In "Affairs at Washington" the spotlight is thrown on the senatorial Titanic investigation with graphic details of the catastrophe in which the iced titan of the Arctic Sea destroyed the great Titanic steamship and sent to death 1,500 people. "The Loss of the Titanic," a comprehensive article by Mitchell Mannering, gives a complete account of the great marine tragedy. The placing of a bust of Moll Pitcher in the Hall of Fame; personal sketches on the presidential candidates, the boy scout movement, the baseball fever in Washington—these and other recent scenes and events in national life are strikingly portrayed in the pen pictures of Editor Chapple.

The complete novel in the June month-end Popular Magazine is by B. M. Bower, author of many Western stories. Other contributors to this issue are: E. Phillips Oppenheim, Holman Day, C. E. Van Loan, Daniel Steele, Walt Mason, Ralph D. Paine, Robert V. Carr, Damon Runyon, Richard Washburn Child, Frank X. Finnegan, Elmore Elliott Peake and Charles R. Barnes.

The leading place in the Engineering Magazine for June is given to Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson's strikingly interesting study of the Titanic disaster and its lessons for the sea-borne traffic. Capt. Hobson reaches the significant conclusion that the breach in the Titanic's hull did not exceed ten square feet in area, that her sinking was due to faulty design of bulkheads, that with the observance of simple precautions she would have escaped collision, or by inexpensive modifications in construction would easily have survived it. He draws eight concise recommendations which, if adopted, would make sea travel absolutely safe. The illustrated features for the June issue include the second of Capt. Horace B. Wild's articles on the development of the aeroplane as shown at the Paris salon; a paper by Henry Grattan Tyrrell, comparing the relative costs of wood, concrete and steel buildings; and the fourth installment of the series by T. F. J. Maguire, in which is described the advantages from the use of the economizer in draft equipment.

The Popular Science Monthly for June contains the following articles: "Tropical Sunlight," by the late Dr. Paul C. Freer; "The National Parks From the Scientific and Educational Side," by Laurence F. Schmeckebier; "Research in Medicine," by Prof. Richard M. Pearce; "Age, Death and Conjugation in the Light of Work on the Lower Organisms," by Prof. Herbert S. Jennings; "Conservation Ideals in the Improvement of Plants," by Dr. H. J. Webber; "A Philosophy of Geography," by Prof. Walter Edward McCourt; "Chinese Mathematics," by Prof. David Eugene Smith; "The Practical Basis for Republican Institutions for China," by Gustavus Ohlinger; "A Program of Radical Democracy," by J. McKeen Cattell; "Crawford W. Long and the Use of Anesthetics in Surgery;" "The Scientific Program of the American Philosophical Society."

There is evidently a soft spot in Life's heart for the army and navy, the current issue being devoted to pictorial features and praise of these more or less beneficent institutions. "We are proud of our navy," says Life, "and this number is a tribute to that idea." Mr. Gulterman has a delightful poem dedicated to the sailors and there are numerous pictures with love and navy officers as a combined theme. The center page cartoon is unusually brilliant, being in colors and highly significant and interesting.

The issue of Harper's Weekly for May 25 contains a number of interesting articles. Writing under the title "Are Women Human Beings?" Charlotte Perkins Gilman investigates this problem and returns an answer in the affirmative. Edward Bayard Moss writes upon "The Rewards of Baseball"; Richard Barry tells of the threatened expropriation of the lands of the Navajos; Lewis Edwin Theiss of the 50,000 missing heirs to estates who cannot be found. A. Maurice Low contributes his usual political article to this issue, which contains also editorials, fiction, finance and humor features.

WHAT A PULLMAN STOCKHOLDER DID

Made Managers Look Out for Men's Health---Five Doctors Now Instead of One---New Methods to Insure Safety.

By ALICE HAMILTON,

Medical Officer of Illinois Commission on Occupational Diseases.

(Exclusive Service of the Survey Press Bureau.)

Many men and women are beginning to feel more or less vague misgivings as to the lot of the thousands of workers upon whose toil their income depends. Loose as is the tie which binds the men employed by a large corporation to its stockholders, many of the latter sincerely wish to give expression to their sense of responsibility. Disquieting stories of over-long hours, of excessive accident and death rates, of tuberculosis and pneumonia caused by irritating dust, arouse in conscientious stockholders a real desire to do something to correct these evils. But since the stockholders are scattered they usually feel that there is no way to make a protest to the executive managers effective.

I want to tell the story of one stockholder who attacked this problem with unhesitating directness. She found that the difficulties were not insurmountable and that the corporation was made up of every reasonable and humane men. About a year ago I went to Mrs. Joseph P. Bowen to talk with her about the conditions in the great Pullman works, because I knew she was a large stockholder. In the course of an investigation carried on for the Occupational Diseases Commission of Illinois, we had become convinced that there was a needless amount of industrial disease among the men at Pullman who were exposed to poisonous or irritating dust and fumes. For instance the paint for the interior of the sleeping cars was very rich in white lead and was used in such a way that the painter could hardly escape lead poisoning. The paint had to be rubbed down with sand-paper which produces a great deal of dust. As this was done inside the small enclosure of the dressing rooms, the air became full with white lead dust. Work of this kind is recognized as the worst a painter can do and skilled painters will not undertake it if they can possibly find anything else to do. There were other places in which men were exposed to poisonous substances, such as the glass etching department where hydrofluoric acid is used. The fumes of this acid are excessively irritating causing inflammation of the eyes, nose and throat, bronchitis and broncho-pneumonia.

The Illinois commission was not supposed to go into the problem of non-poisonous dust, but as a matter of curiosity, we did examine that department which was admitted to be the most dangerous, the sand blasting. Sand blasting consists of driving the very finest possible sand against a sheet of steel with such force that the grains dent it and it becomes roughened all over with millions of tiny dents so that the paint will adhere to the surface. This work was done outdoors in summer and in winter it was done inside a building and the fine sand was excessively bad for the workmen's throats and lungs. As we conversed with the workmen we gained a very definite impression that the company was not giving the best care to its injured men and it failed to meet the increased number of accidents caused by the introduction of steel construction with a corresponding increase in its surgical force.

These were the facts that were brought to Mrs. Bowen's attention and that made her decide to take up the whole question of accidents and industrial disease among the employes of this company, of which she is a stockholder. At first she sent an agent to Pullman to investigate the accident situation. His report showed that with an average of 200 accidents a month, the company was employing but one surgeon for part of his time, that he was not given the services of a nurse or an assistant and that there was no company hospital, so that patients that could not pay and for whom the company was not legally liable, had to be sent home or to the county hospital some twelve miles away. In many cases there could be no objection to sending a wounded man home but in the case of immigrant men living in lodgings, hospital accommodations seem necessary.

Mrs. Bowen submitted the results of this investigation to the managers of the company, reserving as a last resort an appeal to the stockholders in case the managers should refuse to act. This proved to be quite needless. The officials were at first somewhat skeptical as to the accuracy of her statement and one of them asked her why, if she thought so poorly of the company, she had not sold her stock and thus freed her conscience. She replied that she preferred to stay in and do something about it.

On the whole, however, the conference was most amicable and the officials decided to send the report for verification to the men in charge of the various departments. When it was clear that her statements were born out by the facts, they agreed to carry out as far as possible the reforms she recommended. The first step was to have a thorough physical examination made of all the men employed in work which exposed them to industrial diseases.

Meanwhile the new occupational disease act came into force in Illinois and obliged the Pullman company to do away with certain of the dangers described. The fumes of the glass department had to be confined or carried away and provisions made for lunch rooms, wash rooms and special working clothes for the men engaged in handling the poison. The law does not touch the men in the departments which are dusty but not poisonous. The company, however, has been impressed with the results of the medical examination and decided to go beyond the law and to include under special protective care not only the men in the poisonous, but those in the dusty departments—sand blasting, glass cutters, metal polishers and buffers, and asbestos cutters. All are now provided with respirators and are given a medical examination once a month. The company at present employs five physicians where it had but one. All the sand blasting in accordance with the preference of the men is now done out of doors. The men either wear helmets very much like those of a diver or work inside small portable houses with canvas covered openeings through which their arms pass and with a window to look through, so as to control the work and yet be protected from the dust.

To protect the interior painters against lead poisoning the company has decided to adopt a compound of lead that is much less poisonous than ordinary white lead. There is a very evident feeling of solicitude for the health and safety of the men at Pullman now and a readiness to go to great length in the prevention of accidents and illness. It needed only that the conditions should be placed clearly and with a certain insistence before the officials of the company for them to recognize the necessity for changes.

Surely it is not rash to assume that the same thing would be true of most large companies. The evils that exist are often long standing and it simply has not occurred to anyone to inquire if they are still inevitable or if modern methods of protection would not do away with them.

STUB ROO TONIC!

E. A. JOHNSON.

Manufacturer Stub Roo Tonic.

Duluth, Minn., June 17, 1909.

Stub Roo Medical Co., Duluth, Minn.:

Dear Sir:

I will let you know about your antiseptic lotion — for four years I have suffered untold agony from rash of eczema, which I had all over my body, with terrible pain, and nervous from itching and heat that I could tear my flesh to bleeding when all the hard spells came. I had all the doctors and tried and used their prescriptions, but all in vain. I tried all the patent medicines I could think of, but nothing helped me. I was advised by a friend of mine to try the Stub Roo lotion, and did and got help from the first bottle. I used and spunged my body all over and felt like I was all well after I got through my first treatment. No more itching, it checked the pain and I for fine and had a good sleep, that I did not have for four years. My eczema is gone and I can now realize the blessing of health. I shall never fail to praise the remedy and the treatment, and why not? When all other remedies failed, Stub Roo Lotion has cured me. It is certainly the best remedy for eczema or any inflammatory eruption of the human body. I will gladly answer letters anyone may write to me, and I hope one and all who try your treatment will be entirely cured as I was. May God's best blessing be on you now and forever.

Yours truly,

MRS. THOS. H. SEXTON,

BACKACHE NOT A DISEASE

But a Symptom, a Danger Signal Which Every Woman Should Heed.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Read about Mrs. Woodall's experience.

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

OBITUARY

Patrick Webb, 99 years old, father of Thomas J. Webb, member of the Chicago board of review, died today after a three weeks' illness. He was born in Ireland, March 15, 1813. During the Crimean war he was a drill master in the Light Brigade, whose charge "into the jaws of death" made it famous. He held the honor also of having reached the rank of color sergeant of his regiment.

Mrs. Nellie McCarl, 23 years old, a literary-medical students at the University of Michigan, died of peritonitis at Ann Arbor, Mich., May 31. Her home was formerly in Oklahoma.

Dr. William McMichael Woodworth of Harvard university and an authority on zoology of world wide reputation, died at Cambridge, Mass. Dr. Woodworth was the grandson of Samuel Woodworth, author of "The Old Oaken Bucket." Dr. Woodworth was Alexander Agassiz's personal assistant and accompanied him on all his important tours of search in the south seas, West Indies and Africa.

Capt. Andrew J. Duncan, 76 years old, brother-in-law of the late President McKinley, died at his home in Cleveland, Ohio, May 31. He had been ill two years. In 1867 Capt. Duncan married Miss Sarah E. McKinley, a sister of the late president. In 1898 Capt. Duncan was appointed inspector of Indian affairs, a federal position he held for some time thereafter.

A BAD NAME.

Los Angeles Times: Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo, who recently refused a $500 increase of salary, was talking about a certain trust magnate.

"He's got a bad name," said the mayor-novelist. "Hence he can't get a square deal. He's got as bad a name for a lawsuit as Dodgin had for a manager.

"Dodgin was the new manager of a biscuit concern. There was a workman at the concern who liked to sneak off to a shed at about 3 in the afternoon and smoke a pipe and look over the afternoon paper for an hour or so. Well, one day as the workman sat reading and smoking in the shed, Dodgin appeared.

"'Who are you?' Dodgin asked sternly, frowning at the idle workman.

"The workman frowned back.

"'Huh! who are you?' said he.

"'I'm Dodgin, the new manager, was the reply.

"At this the workman smiled.

"'So am I,' he said heartily. 'Come in and have a smoke.'"

THE IFIST.

Los Angeles Times: "Poor Wright Lorimer," said, at the Lambs' club in New York, a friend of the ill-fated young actor, "was too forthright, too straightforward to get on. Perhaps he was too rash. At any rate, as he once said to me, he was no 'ifist.'

"I asked him what on earth an ifist meant, and he told me a story about a walking trip.

"He said that, while a student at Oxford university in England, he took a walking trip in Devon with an ifist from Brasenose. As they walked from Combe Martin to Lynton, they ran out of food. On the beautiful road, high above the sea, that leads to Woody Bay, hunger overcame them. Lynton was still many miles away when the ifist said:

"'If we only had some ham now, we could cook a mess of ham and eggs, if we only had some eggs.'"

A PROPHECY.

Los Angeles Times: The Vicomte Melchior de Pre Sale, the well-known Parisian publicist, was talking to a New York reporter about what he termed "Germany's aggressive tactics."

The vicomte ended his remarks with a mordant epigram upon a saying of the kaiser's.

"If Germany," he said, "struggles much harder for 'a place in the sun,' I am afraid she will be done brown."

HANDBILLS FROM THE SKY.

London Evening Standard: An amusing incident arising out of M. Lepine's interdiction against throwing handbills on the streets has happened in Paris. The victim of one of the first prosecutions was the aviation pilot Vedrines. Toward 4 o'clock in the afternoon the people in the Tuileries gardens and on the Place de la Concorde saw a monoplane circling above the chamber of deputies on the other side of the river.

Those who were nearer the chamber saw a few minutes later that the pilot was distributing a few hundred little handbills from his eyrie. A watchful policeman took note of this and after discovering that the pilot was Vedrines initiated a prosecution. The handbills contained the words: "Let France have the aeroplanes she needs." This was Vedrine's method of encouraging the campaign in favor of devoting £4,000,000 this year toward supplying the army with aeroplanes.

It is proposed to dam the Blue Nile and thus provide irrigation for 500,000 acres.

GOOD CROWD IS ASSURED

Fully 500 Business Men Will Attend Pennington Banquet.

Soo Line President Will Be the City's Guest Monday.

The sale of tickets for the banquet to President Edmund Pennington and other officials of the Soo Line at the Spalding Monday evening indicates that every seat of the 500 will be filled when the first course is served.

Representatives of all business interests and of different commercial and civic organizations will be on hand to greet the officials of the Soo Line and express Duluth's appreciation of the service done the city by the opening of a great new trade territory by the Soo Line branches built in the last few years.

The banquet is under the auspices of the Duluth Commercial club, the Greater Duluth club, the mayor and city council, the wholesale and manufacturing interests and the Commercial clubs of the West end, West Duluth and New Duluth. The banquet tickets were apportioned to the various organizations and all report that they will be well represented.

No set program has been prepared for the banquet. Short talks will be given by the representatives of the various interests, and President Pennington and A. H. Bright, general counsel for the Soo Line, will respond.

Mr. Pennington and the other officials of the line will arrive in Duluth Monday morning. They will be entertained during the day by local business men. President Pennington will be the guest of W. W. Walker, president and general manager of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad, at an informal luncheon at the Northland Country club at noon Monday.

The banquet at the Spalding will begin at 7 o'clock. All guests have been notified that business suits should be worn, as the banquet will be an informal affair.

WANT NAVIGATION TIME EXTENDED

Lake Men Have Conference With Secretary Charles Nagel.

Washington, June 1.—A delegation of vesselmen of the Great Lakes today held a conference with Secretary Nagel of the department of commerce and labor, and asked him to change the regulations pertaining to the close of navigation on the lakes so that it will run at least until the end of December. Navigation now closes officially on Dec. 1, and it was shown to Mr. Nagel that most of the freighters continued their trips until the heavy ice formed late in December and sometimes until early in January. The secretary took the question under advisement.

STUDYING HIGH PRICE OF MEAT

Government Likely to Start an Investigation Soon.

Washington, June 1.—The high prices of meat probably will be investigated soon by the federal government. An inquiry to supplement the previous investigations into the packing business is being planned at the department of justice. The soaring prices of meat and the question whether the country's meat supply may be controlled in violation of the Sherman law, has been called to the attention of the department by individuals and also by Representative Edwards' bill directing the attorney general to make an investigation.

RAT SOLD AS A DOG.

Paris correspondence New York Tribune: The renewal of the fashion for small dogs has just led to a remarkable case of fraud, the victim of which is one of the best known women in Paris society. It should be known that toy dogs have once again come into special favor in Paris, partly on account of the restriction of the tramways and underground and district railways concerning the right to take a dog with one while traveling about the city.

The very large muff so much in fashion has given many women an excellent means of evading the difficulty, while others buy silk bags specially made for the purpose to carry their Belgian griffons from place to place. Nevertheless, the demand for a smaller dog is constantly growing.

Walking up and down the fashionable side of the Avenue de Bois de Boulogne the other morning was a man who had several toy dogs to show off, ostensibly for sale. One of the smallest of them was a particularly diminutive specimen of the griffon. Finally a woman stepped up to ask its price. The man made the little dog perform several tricks, and then, after some minutes' conversation, informed her that he had a still more remarkable specimen in his coat pocket. He then fished out a little creature scarcely more than half the size of the first.

The woman concluded what she thought was a bargain and what the man said was a sacrifice. She put the little one in her muff, went off to luncheon, and, on getting home again, pulled him out from his hiding. For a minute or two the animal showed fear, but then, to her great amazement and that of her servant, the little griffon suddenly started toward the window and ran up one of the curtains with the speed and agility not at all unlike the best known qualities of a mouse. The butler and footman were called, and there was an exciting chase about the drawing room before the little wonder was captured. The new owner was then rather more horrified than surprised to find that her griffon was nothing else but a rather oversized rat that had been sewed into a dog's skin.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Chicago Tribune: In every large family one boy should be trained as an electrician, so he can look after the door bell, which is always getting out of order.

No economical husband will smoke any but briar root pipes. When used as fuel in the furnace or in the kitchen stove they develop more heat units than any other kind.

Don't be afraid to buy roomy shoes for the children. It is a mistake to suppose that a small foot will grow and fill a large shoe. The shoes will not last long enough for that.

Throw away nothing that is useful or likely to be useful. A Pennsylvania housewife saved all the string that came around bundles from the store, etc. At the end of twenty-five years she sold the collection for 40 cents.

RAILROADS

GRAY TAKES NEW OFFICE

Becomes President of the Great Northern Railway Company.

Louis Hill Said to Be Slated to Succeed Father as Chairman.

St. Paul, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Carl R. Gray today assumed his duties as president of the Great Northern in the place of Louis W. Hill.

It is regarded as likely that during the next few months there will be some sort of reorganization.

L. W. Hill continues as a director of the system, and it is understood will be elected chairman to succeed James J. Hill. Denial is made of reports that L. W. Hill in the future will devote his entire time to the exploitation of development enterprises in Oregon or to the Hill ore properties.

TWO CLASSES OF TAP-LINES

Commerce Commission Gives Supplemental Decision as to Such Roads.

Washington, June 1.—In a supplemental decision of the so-called "tap-line case," announced today, the interstate commerce commission holds that forty of the lines, which it names, perform transportation service for which they are entitled to receive compensation out of the through rates.

In some of these cases the commission fixes a switching allowance ranging from $1.50 to $3 a car, while in others, divisions of the through rates ranging from 1 to 2 cents a hundred pounds are established. Twenty-two tap-lines considered by the commission, are held to be merely plant facilities and not entitled to either switching allowances or division of the rates.

Two Classes of Tap-lines.

Thus the commission divides the tap-lines into two classes, those which are purely industrial famillities, and those which may be considered as common carriers. Of those thus far passed upon, fifty-eight—twenty-two today and thirty-six on April 23, are in the first class, and forty in the second.

The commission announces that as soon as possible orders will be issued to make effective the conclusions reached.

It is expected that certain individual tap-lines which are held to be not common carriers will appeal from the decision of the commission to the commerce court, and eventually, if necessary, carry the cases to the United States supreme court.

TENURE OF OFFICE MENACED BY BILL

Plan to Bring Together All the Government Clerks.

Washington, June 1.—Plans for an all-inclusive organization of government employes are being formulated by George L. Cain, president of the National League of Government Employes. The proposed association will embrace all arms of the government service in all parts of the country. It will not interfere with any similar bodies which already exist. It is planned to have representation by delegates from smaller organizations to the large one.

Mr. Cain, whose home is in Lynn, Mass., is here making preparations for a delegation of government employes which is to appeal to the Democratic and Republican conventions to incorporate in their platform, pledges concerning the administration of the civil service which the employes desire. Among these are the adoption of an increased wage scale; of a system of promotions by merit, and a retirement system.

President Cain is sending out a circular letter to all employes of the government urging them to co-operate in bringing about the large organization.

The organization which is pressing the agitation for a pension system for government clerks is somewhat alarmed by the passage by the house of a bill affecting employes in the District of Columbia. This measure originally contained a clause providing for the dismissal of all civil service employes who have reached the age of 65 years. While have reached the age of 65 years. While this clause was finally eliminated, Director Dick of the committee of 100 says it contains one equally objectionable and more demoralizing to the enable and more demoralizing to the entire service. "That is the clause which limits the tenure of office of all civil service employes in the District of Columbia to five years. Under its provisions all appointments expire automatically in the year 1917, and reappointments are to be made at the discretion of department heads. The enactment of that bill into law would sound the death knell of the entire civil service system.

"It would inevitably result in the return of the spoils system in its most objectionable form. It would be a repudiation of the often-repeated declarations found in the national platforms of both political parties in favor of the merit system. Civil service employes not only in Washington, but in the entire country are face to face with a crisis in the security of their positions.

"If such a law is passed for the District of Columbia it would undoubtedly be amended in a short time to include federal employes in the classified service all over the country. The civil servants of the government have asked for a retirement system, and in return are threatened with a law which will not only make civil pensions impossible, but which imperils their very retention in the service.

"The proposition, which was in the original bill to dismiss all clerks at the age of 65 years, awakened such a storm of opposition and was so universally denounced that it was dropped out before it came to a vote. The proposal to limit all appointments in the civil service of the government to five years will awaken a similar storm of opposition when its import is thoroughly understood. The proper title for such a bill would be 'An act to abolish the civil service.'

"Fortunately, the senate stands in the way of the adoption of this revolutionary provision, and the employes of the government in Washington should take steps at once to advise that body of their unalterable opposition to the adoption of the measure passed by the house. Public sentiment, both in Washington and out of Washington, is radically opposed to any such insidious attack on the merit system."

"NATIONAL HYMN OF SIAM."

One of the best informed Missouri Democrats speakin~ the other night at the Waldorf-Astoria of recent political events in that state said:

"Missouri has figured in musical circles lately because of its effort to find a suitable song for a state anthem. The high browed are praying for a classic. The rank and file are for the already famous 'dawg' song. Even the 'dawg' song may go into the scrap heap now that the Folk followers have adopted the 'National Hymn of Siam.' A meeting of the Missouri state Democratic committee held January 11 resulted in a complete victory of the Champ Clark forces over those of ex-Governor Folk, the supporters of Senator James A. Reed having deserted Folk in the hour of crisis.

"Folk had been a candidate for Maj. Warner's seat in the United States senate. James A. Reed of Kansas City entered the running. To be rid of Folk, Reed promised to help Folk get the Missouri delegation for the presidential nomination. Folk made the deal, withdrew from the senatorial race, saw Reed safely seated and then waited for the state committee to meet. Meantime the Clark excitement bobbed up and the Reed forces refused to go on with the Folk arrangements. They rushed to the speaker's side, voting contrary to Folk in fixing of the date of the state convention and the place. Of all the anti-Folk places in Missouri the rebellious Democratic state committee sent the convention to Clark's great stronghold, Joplin. Then it was a Folk leader distributed copies of the 'National Hymn of Siam,' with the request that all sing it.

"The song follows:

National Hymn of Siam.
Ovo tannas Siam
Geeva tannas Siam
Ova tannas
Sucha tammas Siam
Inocan giffa tam
Osucha nas Siam
Osucha nas.

The language is phonetic. Strange to the eye, it will be found perfectly familiar to the ear. Its best effect is obtained by getting a friend to sing it to the tune of "America."

More men are "henpecked" by seemingly adverse circumstances than by their wives. A little advertising may help you to boss your own circumstances.

"TEDDY" MOST POPULAR NAME IN DULUTH'S DOG DIRECTORY

"Teddy" is the most popular name in the Duluth dog directory.

Not a dog is burdened with Taft as a name, although several are called "Billy."

There are at least twenty "Teddies." They are of all kinds, shapes and colors, according to the dog directory at the city clerk's office.

Yesterday was the last day to pay dog taxes. Today the policemen are arresting owners of dogs without licenses and poundmasters are collecting non-licensed dogs in the different parts of the city.

There are only 304 dogs in Duluth, according to the dog record at the city hall. Each of these dogs must have a license which costs $1.25.

In the whole city of Duluth there are but three female dogs, if the same record is to be believed. A license for a female dog costs $5.

The name "Dewey," so popular at the time the unpleasantness in Havana harbor, is still in vogue in the Zenith City. Several "Deweys" are owned in Duluth, according to the directory.

The names range in length from "Nip" to Abraham Lincoln. "Nip" is a houn' and Abraham Lincoln is a fox terrier.

There are lots of Fidos and Princes and Sports. There is a Romeo, but no Juliet. One dog answers to Caesar and another one to Kid. There are Sheps, Pitts, Dodos and Neros.

"Teddy" is the most popular name in the dog directory at the present time, however.

MARINE

GRAIN SITUATION AT BUFFALO IMPROVING.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 1.—The grain situation here has rapidly improved and today every grain carrying vessel in the harbor was unloading. The total amount of grain received here from upper lake ports since the opening of navigation approximates 26,780,000 bushels, an increase of about 6,300,000 bushels over last year.

The railroads have co-operated with the elevator interests in preventing a blockade, moving the grain to tidewater at the rate of 1,500 cars daily. The Pennsylvania railway has sent ten engines to the Grand Trunk to aid in moving the large accumulation of freight and grain on the Canadian railroad.

DESIGNER OF DULUTH BUILDINGS DEAD

DANIEL H. BURNHAM.

Chicago, June 1.—A private dispatch was received here today saying that D. H. Burnham, architect of the World's Fair in Chicago in 1895, died today in Heidelberg, Germany.

Mr. Burnham was making an automobile tour of France, Germany and Italy, and news of his sudden death was a shock to his Chicago friends.

He was known from coast to coast and had designed buildings in many of the largest cities, besides laying plans for beautifying different cities.

Mrs. Burnham and a son and daughter accompanied him to Europe.

Mr. Burnham was the architect for the St. Louis county courthouse and the Alworth building. He also conceived the idea of a grouping of public buildings for Duluth.

PAYS HALF OF COUNTY LEVY

United States Steel Corporation St. Louis County's Heaviest Taxpayer.

Checks for $1,571,843.71 Paid for First Half of the Year.

The United States Steel corporation, St. Louis county's largest taxpayer, yesterday gave County Treasurer Holgate $1,571,843.71 in payment of the first half of the 1911 real estate taxes. The second half will be paid in October.

With the exception of $3,987.69, the first half year taxes on real property of the Minnesota Steel company, the total amount given covered the holdings of the Oliver Iron Mining company. In addition, the Oliver Iron Mining company has already paid into the county treasury about $25,000 on different parcels of land throughout the county, which have been purchased during the last year and which required the payment of taxes on record at the time the transfer was made.

The money was not all drawn on one bank. The largest check was for $957,790.17 and drawn on the American Exchange National bank. Another check was for $605,715.90 and was drawn on the First National bank of this city. Both checks were signed by J. T. Melvin, second assistant treasurer of the Oliver Mining company. Other checks were given for smaller amounts. The taxes on the Wolvin building in this city amounted to $7,975.38, and a check for half of this amount was paid yesterday. The check for the taxes of the Minnesota Steel company was signed by George D. Swift, assistant treasurer.

County Treasurer Holgate's force has had a busy week receiving money from an army of taxpayers who waited until the last two or three days and then stormed the treasurer's office with their statements and money. Most of the larger taxpayers mailed checks in payment for the first half of their taxes. The independent mining companies paid large taxes.

The total levy for St. Louis county for 1911 was $6,000,000, out of which the Oliver Mining company will pay about half.

Yesterday was the last day in which the first half of the 1911 real estate tax might be paid without the penalty of 10 per cent being added.

"NOT WORRIED," SAYS DR. DUMAS

Waiting to Consult Attorneys Before Deciding on Next Step.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. D. E. Dumas, when asked today if he had anything to say regarding the supreme court decision against him, stated that he was disappointed over the decision as he confidently expected it would be in his favor. He said he had been trying to get in communication with one of his attorneys, Mr. Lane, but the latter was not in Minneapolis. He was not able to get in touch with Lane, but will rely entirely on advice from him in the matter.

"I felt that I have been greatly injured, the same as any innocent man would feel, but have every confidence that right will prevail in the end," said Dr. Dumas. "I am not at all worried over the decision of the supreme court. The press at times has criticized me very severely, but I feel that they have been influenced by different officials who were against me. My reputation as a law-abiding citizen of Cass Lake has never been questioned by the people here, which is a gratification to me. I understand that the supreme court will hold the papers in the case for ten days, pending a motion for a rehearing. I will not decide definitely as to whether I will apply for rehearing until I interview Mr. Lane."

DR. ROBERT FORBES WILL PREACH HERE

DR. ROBERT FORBES.

NEW NEGRO MAIL CLERK SAYS HE WAS WHIPPED.

Laurel, Miss., June 1. — A. L. McAlpin, a negro railway mail clerk on his first run, returned here showing welts, bruises and cuts which he said he received at the hands of a crowd at Union. He said he was called out of an eating house and forced to remove his clothing and the men with whips gave him a beating, telling him they "wanted no negroes on his job." He was sent here to relieve a white clerk.

PROTEST ON INCREASE

Duluth Will Be Represented at Interstate Commerce Commission Hearing.

Will Object to the Proposed Raise in Class Rates.

The Duluth traffic commission will be represented before the interstate commerce commission in opposition to the proposed advance in class rates from trunk line and Central Freight association territory to Duluth and the Twin Cities.

The new tariffs, which were to have become effective today, were suspended during the week until June 28. The action was taken by the interstate commerce commission.

The advances and the action of the commerce commission are of special importance because they have a relation to the lake and rail case of the Duluth Commercial club, which is now pending before the commission. In the lake and rail case the adjustment of rates from the Williamsport group and the Pittsburg group, respectively, were attacked. The first class rate from Williamsport and other points taking the same rate is 54 cents as a maximum, while the maximum in the Pittsburg group and Central Freight association territory is 60 cents. The latter rates were attacked as violations of the fourth section of the interstate commerce act the section being that of the long and short haul clause.

The railroads have countered by proposing to raise the rate from Williamsport territory to the same basis as that in the territory farther west. The traffic commission in attacking the rates advanced the idea that the rates in the Pittsburg territory should be lowered to the basis obtaining in the Williamsport territory.

The date of the hearing to be conducted by the interstate commerce commission has not yet been set, but Duluth will be represented and will renew the arguments advanced in the lake and rail case for a lowering of the Central Freight association rates, rather than the increasing of the rates from the territory farther east.

FLAXSEED RATE ADVANCE HELD UP

Commerce Commission Suspends New Tariff Set By Railroads.

Washington, June 1. — Proposed increased rates for the transportation of flax seed from Minneapolis and other Northwestern points to Chicago and destinations in other states are suspended by the interstate commerce commission from June 1 until Sept. 28 next. The increase averaged about 25 per cent.

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—"The Pink Lady."

"THE PINK LADY" IS DELIGHTFUL

Real New York Production of Famous Musical Comedy Success.

Many people in the crowd that filled the Lyceum last night were familiar with the melody of "The Beautiful Lady." They had heard it played on pianos, sung and whistled for months. They thought they had appreciated its charm. But until they had heard it played by the orchestra of "The Pink Lady" company, sung by Olga de Baugh and Marguerite Wright and a real singing chorus and again played on the violin by Olga de Baugh, they did not get its real significance and the real beauty of its alluring strains.

"The Beautiful Lady" song and the "Kiss Waltz" melody, which are identical, are charming in themselves, but they are only incidents in the production of "The Pink Lady," which played to a crowded house at the Lyceum last evening. In this day of curtailed companies and productions for road tours, "The Pink Lady," with a complete company and the same gorgeous setting given in the long run cities, is a refreshing novelty. The production is in Klaw & Erlanger style, which means that the cities "on the road" are given everything in the production. That in itself is enough to commend "The Pink Lady."

Haunting music, gorgeous settings and costumes, and real singing voices are features of the production. The music fits in with the action and ot no stage of the performance falls below the high standard set by the "Kiss Waltz" melody. The orchestra is part of the company, so that the music does not suffer by unfamiliarity on the part of those playing it.

The comedy is an adaption from the French of "Le Satyre" by Georges Berr and Marcel Guillemaud. The book and lyrics are by C. M. S. McLellan and the music by Ivan Caryll.

The story is that of a young man about to be married and bent upon a final luncheon with Claudine, the attractive companion of his bachelor days. Led by a rival, his fiancee appears on the scene. Lucien has during his courtship covered his excursions to the primrose path by claiming engagements with an old friend, a mythical M. Dondidier, and when his fiancee appears, he introduced Claudine as the wife of M. Dondidier, claiming that his friend had been unable to come and had sent his wife to explain. A real Dondidier is discovered in an antique dealer at an address given by Claudine and, after a scene there, the whole party turns up at the ball of the nymphs and satyrs, where everything is straightened out, Lucien forsakes his bachelor ways and Angele, his fiancee, forgives and promises to forget.

The complications of the plot are many and furnish opportunities for good comedy, most of which falls to Harry Depp as Bebe and John E. Young as Dondidier.

Olga de Baugh as Claudine and Marguerite Wright as Angele have the principal singing roles. Both have voices far above the average, and in each the voice is coupled with attractive personality and an appreciation of the requirements of the role other than the musical. Roland Bottomly, as Lucien, has a rich voice to go with the leading male role.

The three acts are crowded with features. John J. Scannel's eccentric dance, Miss de Baugh's Kiss Waltz and her introduction of the violin in the last act, the Parisian two-step and other chorus dances add to the success.

The performance has a Parisian flavor in spots, but it is not the flavor that leaves a bad taste. It conveys the atmosphere of the boulevards, as pictured on the stage, by suggestion rather than by detail. The chorus is well balanced and can sing and dance. The costumes are gorgeous and appropriate. The whole performance is on a high plane and is a joy to the lover of the comedy set to music.

"The Pink Lady," will close its engagement at the Lyceum and its season with tonight's performance.

FIRST NUMBER OF NEW PERIODICAL

The first number of a new Duluth periodical has appeared. It is Skillings' Mining and Market Letter, which is hereafter to be published weekly. Charles D. Skillings is the editor and manager. The publication is a small four-page paper, but it contains a great deal of information of interest to the local mining stockholders. As the name implies, it is to be a weekly summary of mining conditions and the mining stock market, viewed from the standpoint of the Duluth investor.

A separate paragraph is given by the first issue to almost every company whose stock is largely held in Duluth. There are special discussions of the present status of the Butte-Alex Scott Copper company, the Butte-Ballaklava, Shattuck-Arizona, Red Warrior, Cliff, Interstate Silver Lead, Inspiration, Florence Mining & Milling, Keating, Summit, Mangan Iron & Steel, Great Northern Ore, Consolidated Vermilion and North American.

Other paragraphs deal with Minnesota, new iron range, the Minnesota iron ranges in general, the mining stock market and the earnings of the copper shares.

CLEAN BASEBALL FOR THE SEE-EYE LEAGUE

Officials of New Organization Meet and Adopt Rules Looking to the Betterment of the Game.

With three of the managers of the See-Eye league in conference with President Harry Blume of the league, President J. A. McCuen of the local club, President W. J. Sommer and Secretary Cheveral of Superior and Director Edwin H. Lee, some rules for the future conduct of the players of the new league were formulated at the meeting held last evening at the Spalding hotel.

It was resolved that in the future the rule will be effectually enforced against all rowdy ball playing; that ample police protection will be furnished at all of the baseball parks, and that the umpire will be made to feel that he will be protected by the management of the clubs.

Speed in the playing of the games was another subject that came in for extended discussion. It was decided that both of the umpires will be instructed to gain speed and cut down the playing time as much as possible. Every delay possible will be avoided.

The salary limit of the league will probably be increased. While the action last night was not official, those present agreed that it will be the best thing for baseball in general in the league to carry more men and to have the limit placed at $1,600, the limit to be rigidly adhered to.

All those interested in the new league are out to give the patrons of the national pastime the very best baseball possible. Realizing that the game has been hurt here in the past by incompetent umpiring, incessant wrangling and "riding" of the umps, the officials at last night's meeting decided that this would be stopped once for all, and that the fans in this part of the country in the future will be treated to clean, snappy, fast exhibitions of baseball, and that the umpires will be men who will enforce discipline, with the encouragement of the management of the home clubs, or they will lose their jobs.

Race Getting Better.

From some of the information given out at the meeting it begins to look as if the race is going to be a glittering one. Francis Lohr, the Flickertail leader, intimated that his team would be fully 25 per cent stronger within the next few days, while Jim Brown of the Winnipeg Maroons stated that his aggregation would also be speeding up within a week or so. Both of these managers have some new players in view.

O'Brien admitted that he was after one or two men for trials on the Sox, and he also stated that the race was going to be very close from now on. All of those present expressed the belief that the class of baseball being played at the present time was faster than that played in the Minny last season, and judging from some of the remarks let drop, the pace will become even faster.

But the nub of the whole baseball situation in the new league is the question of giving the people something they want—and it was decided that fast and snappy baseball, free from wrangling with the umpire, the boss of the job, and exerting his discipline with strong hand, was the proper way to show the fans that the new league is being run by a thoroughly up to date and live business administration.

If the resolutions are carried out, fans here and in the other cities of the See-Eye circuit will not witness the spectacle of some player telling the umpire what he thinks of him in adjectives of ninety-horse power, nor will the fans be forced to witness the tedious exhibitions that have marked and marred baseball in the past.

The officials believe that the fans of this part of the country appreciate baseball when it is shown that business methods rule the game, and every effort is going to be made to satisfy the desire of the fans.

After this the umpire will have all the balls to be used throughout the game in a grip before the start of the game, and no delay will be made in the throwing of new balls into play or in arguing over whether a ball is fit for play. Also the official scorer of each club will ring the gong promptly at the time appointed for play. The players will also be asked to show some "pep," to hurry to and from their positions in the field, and to give the fans the impression that they are not doing an imitation of the sleeping scene in "Beauty and the Beast."

"We are out to give the fans the very best baseball possible," said President Blume in the course of the meeting, "and we are going to adopt measures that will insure an improvement in the conduct of the games. Let us have a thoroughly business-like administration of the affairs of the league, discipline on the baseball field and efficient work by the umpires, or we might as well quit."

DETROIT'S YOUNG PLAYER

GEORGE LOUDEN.

Louden has been playing the infield for Detroit and is showing great promise.

PHILADELPHIA FANS SAY McINNIS IS THE GAME'S BEST FIRST SACKER

It will not do well for America to crown either Chase or Daubert the emperor of first basemen. Surely one "Stuffy" McInnis cannot be overlooked in the premises. Philadelphia beetles will tell you that they wouldn't give the Gloucester codsmith for either of these chaps.

McInnis is a far more valuable player than Chase, and has the box scores to prove it. For one thing, McInnis is a harder hitter than the Highlander star. There is not much difference in the fielding. Chase, perhaps, will make more brilliant plays in a season than his younger rival, but for steady, sure and conscientious work, game in and game out, there is nobody who has anything on the New England boy.

"Stuffy" has this big advantage over Chase in that he is more adaptive to team play and club discipline, and fights to the last. McInnis impressed a spectator as playing more for the love of the game than the fortnightly check.

Chase, brilliant as he is, sometimes is mulish. When the Highlanders are winning he looks like the best player in the country, but as soon as they slump Chase becomes morose, and his game suffers. He is not a leader, but essentially a follower.

His habit of leaving his team in the lurch once or twice a season further reduces his value to a club; so, when all these points are considered, he is not nearly so desirable a player as the able, earnest and ambitious McInnis, says Isaminger in the North American.

Youngest of First Basemen.

Chase today isn't playing as good ball as he was two years ago. McInnis is coming. It must be remembered that "Stuffy" is the youngest of the good first basemen. He did not take the post until the season of 1911 was well under way. Davis was slowing up, and Mack needed a more agile player at first base.

It happened that Mack was without a reserve first baseman. He had either to buy a new man or convert one of his other players into a first baseman. Mack is a master in shifting a player from one position to another and making the star out of him. He made a wonderful center fielder out of "Rube" Oldring, an ordinary infielder. He made the greatest second sacker in the game out of Eddie Collins, who failed as a shortstop and right fielder. He added years to Dan Murphy's career by switching him from second base to right field, and his tinkering with McInnis, a utility shortstop and third baser became the talk of baseball.

He played a wonderful game at the bag, and with his batting ability gave the team another live wire that enabled it to collar Detroit and win the championship. Unfortunately, near the end of the season McInnis sustained a broken bone in his right hand, and was unable to take part in the world series, although in the ninth inning of the last game, with two out, "Stuffy" went to the sack and had the honor of making the final putout in baseball's grand prize.

McInnis is a natural hitter. 126 games last season he batted .321, better than any other first baseman either in the American or National leagues. That McInnis is no one season bloomer is revealed by his heavy clubbing this year. Up to date he is batting above the .400 mark, being the best hitting performer of the world's champions so for this season.

"Stuffy" Plays a Deep Field.

"Stuffy," an ex-shortstop, covers a wide range of ground at first base. It is hard for a batsman to shoot a hit between him and Collins. The clever pair work together perfectly. McInnis plays a very deep field, and is clever in stopping scorching ground hits along the foul line. These stops are a boon to a team, for they cut off doubles or triples.

Although shorter than most first basemen, "Stuffy" has a pair of rubber feet and can get high in the air for wild throws. Digging throws out of the ground comes as naturally to him as stopping grounders when he played short.

McInnis will be 22 years old next September. Today he is one of the most valuable players in America, and constantly improving. He is one of Mack's most valued costrategists. He was dubbed "Stuffy" by his mates because, while utility infielder he "called" so many plays. Even as a bench warmer Mack put faith in the opinion of the youth.

Jake Daubert, Brooklyn's first sacker, is easily the best in the National league. Like McInnis, he is conscientious and enthusiastic. Daubert is a streak in running the bases, and hits .300. In no department of the game is he weak; he is unusually strong in all, but in none is he better than McInnis, good as he is.

McInnis has the advantage over him in that he works better with the other players than Daubert. His brain travels faster. He can diagnose the attack of the enemy better than Daubert. "Stuffy" is not a first baseman alone. His searching eyes are analyzing every movement of the batsman and coacher. He is offering advice to the others; telegraphing Baker to look out for a bunt or wiring Thomas that he has caught a "steal" signal from the bench.

It is this stuff, hidden from the spectators, that helps to make McInnis the monarch of first basemen.

There are other worthy first basemen in the two leagues, although they all fall more or less below the standard of efficiency as set by McInnis, Daubert and Chase.

Some National League Types.

The National league has several. Merkle of New York is a hard worker, with batting ability to boot. But Merkle is frequently guilty of mental blunders, and they generally come at the worst time. Konetchy of St. Louis is another brilliant performer, and so is Hoblitzell of Cincinnati. Luderus of the Phils is a much more competent first sacker than he is given credit for. He is a wonderful ground-coverer for a big man, while as a batsman he ranks with the best.

Ben Houser of Boston has promise, but injuries have kept him out of most games this year. Both Pittsburg and Chicago are experimenting with first sackers, players grabbed from other positions. The Pirates are using Miller, a second baseman, and the Cubs are trying to make a first sacker out of Heine Zimmerman, who is a better man at second or third.

Besides McInnis and Chase, Stovall of St. Louis looks like the next man in ability in the American league. He is the life of Wallace's outfit. Boston evidently has a find in Bradley, who has proved good enough to keep Stahl on the bench. Cleveland is hard pressed for a first sacker, and Harry Davis is doing a great deal of experimenting without yet getting the right man.

Detroit has tried several men at first base. Gainer, who is now on the injured list, is perhaps the best man Jennings has to offer.

Washington always had a weakness at first, but this year it has filled the cavity with Jack Flynn, a Pittsburg cast-off. Flynn is playing swift ball for the Federalists. The White Sox are getting good service from Rollo Zeider, who, like McInnis, joined the club as a shortstop.

TRACK IS FAST; WEATHER FINE

Athletes Representing Many Colleges in Meet at Lafayette, Ind.

Lafayette, Ind., June 1.—With 140 athletes, representing twenty-three Western universities and colleges entered, records were expected to be smashed in the twelfth annual meet of the Western Intercollegiate Conference Athletic association here today.

Teams representing the universities of California and Missouri were strong favorites and it was predicted that a fight for first honors would result between these two squads. Missouri won the conference meet at Minneapolis last year. California sent a team east said to be the strongest ever developed on the coast. Members of the squad are in excellent condition, having spent a week here preparing for the games.

New records were expected to be established in the 120-yard high hurdles, mile and two-mile runs, pole vault, high and bread jumps.

The track was lightning fast, according to Ira Davenport of Chicago, conference champion in the quarter and half-mile events. Davenport will clash for the second successive year with Bermond of Missouri, in the quarter and half-mile events. The Chicagoan is not expected to have much trouble defeating Bermond in the quarter, but it appears he will be forced to break his own record of 1:56 3-5 in the half to conquer the Missourian. Bermond ran the half in 1:57 in the Missouri Valley conference last week without much competition.

RACE IN TWO MAJORS MAY BE UNINTERESTING

Boston, June 1.—How many clubs of the two leagues are satisfied with the showing of their teams up to date and are not satisfied to go through the rest of the season with the players under contract.

The New York Giants, yes. The Cincinnati Red Birds, oh, yes. Injured players, men out of winning form and crude youngsters can be found in plenty in the other six clubs of the National league, writes Tim Murnane.

In the American league the White Six have built up a fine all-round team. The Boston Red Sox have done fairly well, but would like to plug up the hole at second with a speed merchant. Outside of this one position Boston has no complaint coming. Washington is fully as strong as could be expected, but could still use two or three good men, while the other five clubs are wondering just what is the matter.

It looked like a 20-to-1 shot a month ago that the Athletics would run off with the honors this season. And just now Connie Mack is put to his wits end to whip his clever team into line.

No one in St. Louis is ever disappointed at the poor showing of their American league team, but have been sorely disappointed at the showing made by Bresnahan's boys.

The chances are that both of the major leagues will see poorly contested races this season.

The all-round expenses of running the two big leagues is at least 20 per cent larger than heretofore, due to the expensive plants and gradual increase of players' salaries.

As usual, the players have all the best of it, for, rain or shine, through good luck or distressing conditions, the boy in spangles is sure of his fancy stipend.

Kick By Hughey.

Baseball men are very sensitive at times. During the visit of the Detroit club to Boston, Hugh Jennings remarked that Kid Gleason had worked on Umpire Perrine until the White Sox were not held as strictly to the rules of the game as the baseball law required.

The impression Mr. Jennings left was that the White Sox were taking long chances in going after the umpires, hustling hard and full of enthusiasm, which was carrying them along just now at a very unnatural rate of speed.

Jennings seemed pretty well satisfied that the Athletics were up against it this year. "If Jack Coombs fails to come back soon," said Jennings, "the Quakers will worry themselves out of the race."

The Quakers are considered a sensitive lot of ball players, who have depended on their clever string of pitchers, Coombs being one of their very best fighters and naturally a big help to the club by his all-around work. The falling off of the Quaker team would have meant very little but for the remarkably fine showing of the White Sox, with several unknown players, and Callahan himself being a new man in the managerial lineup, although considered by experts as an ideal leader, aggressive and dead bent on making the record of his lifetime this year in the game. The manager who can inspire his team with confidence has made the first start. If he understands team work he has the second qualification. He must then know how to estimate his opponents, and right here is where James Callahan comes to the front. This young man cannot be bluffed, and when it comes to diplomacy, Callahan is a royal flush.

Plenty of Support.

Callahan makes friends, and holds them. Liberal to a fault, he is naturally well liked by the ball players, and with his keen perception of the makeup of the ball player, young and old, he is bound to weld together the crude elements that drift in from the minor leagues, and force all to appreciate what it means artistically, as well as financially, to land a winner.

Jimmie Callahan may be aggressive when he discovers a fine chance to land the big prize, yet no man will ever accuse the same veteran of unhealthy methods to win ball games. He never worked along those lines, and with his ripe experience in baseball as a player, manager and owner he will not start this year as the master mind in charge of Comiskey's White Sox.

Hugh Jennings still depends on Ty Cobb, Owney Bush, Stanage and Sam Crawford to pull the Tigers through the season. His youngsters are all very ordinary players, while his veteran pitchers are looking for warm weather and just as little work as possible. The championship does not appeal to the Tigers as it did a few years ago, and while they would like to share in the big money next fall they appreciate the hard work ahead, and it takes more ginger than Hugh Jennings has stowed away to keep the Tigers full of fighting enthusiasm.

Without any discredit to Hugh Jennings, a great manager, it looks very much as if they must be classed as out of the running this season. Jennings must develop four or five young players before he can snap his long whip over a herd of winning Tigers. The Boston Red Sox have found little trouble this year in defeating both the Athletics and Tigers.

We all know that the Athletics got a poor start last season, but came very strong after once under full headway.

Athletics Due to Come.

I look for the champions to come again this season after a poor start, but the going becomes much harder as the years roll over practically the same players. Therefore, the Athletics will not come as strong this season as last, even with their strongest line-up in condition. The White Sox today hold a position at the top, and will naturally be a target for all clubs who will continually use their strongest pitchers against the Callahan fliers. The time will naturally come when the younger members will become unsteady at times, injuries will upset the club's best work, and it's only during those trying times that one can get a true line on a ball club.

A club trailing for half the season, reserving its strength for one long supreme effort, has the best chance, as the players are more apt to hold their nerves, unless by some miracle the leader should have a great ball team, and go through without serious accidents to the players.

Clubs will often hit a surprisingly fast clip for a month or two and then fall down altogether, while other teams will come slowly and grow stronger with the stick as the season draws to a close. I know of instances where clubs were well in the lead and the players commenced to realize they were booked for honors. This responsibility worked on the players' nerves until they fell off in play. Other teams, being quick to notice the change, doubled their efforts, and played surprisingly good ball. It's usually much easier to win the second championship than the first.

PEGGERS HERE FOR TWO GAMES

Jim Brown's Marcons are here today and tomorrow for the two remaining games of the series, the rain of yesterday having made it necessary to call off the first game of the three-day engagement. Brown comes with the avowed intention of cutting down the lead of the flying Sox. His team, he says, is recovering from the slump and he believes that the Maroons will grab the two games.

With the warm weather finally here, and with one of the first good Sundays of the season, it is expected that there will be by far the largest crowd of the season out to see the Peggers and the Sox clash. Fans in the city are beginning to believe that Duluth has the best team since the pennant days of the first year of the Minny, and with the realization that some classy baseball is being played by the locals, is coming an increased appreciation.

O'Brien realizes that he is going to have a hard trip and he wants both of the games with Winnipeg. Brown says his team has been going bad because of illness of some of his best players. Certain it is that the Peggers looked very impressive on their first trip to the Head of the Lakes. The taking of a double-header from Superior would indicate that the Peggers are rounding to.

OARSMEN WORK HARD.

Special Rates Are Secured for the Winnipeg Regatta.

Ten Eyck will give his rowing pupils a hard workout this evening. The boys may be sent out tomorrow morning. Starting with Monday morning the two-row a day program will be started. The hardest work of the season is just starting and Ten Eyck hopes that the present month will be filled with progress for his men.

Robert Creelman, general passenger agent for the Canadian Northern, yesterday stated that special rates would be put in for the regatta at Winnipeg, July 19 and 20. This will, it is believed, result in a large delegation going to the big Western rowing events.

SUPERIOR WINS FROM DEACONS

Grand Forks Blanked in Opening Game of Series, 4 to 0.

Superior took the opening game from Lohr's Flickertails yesterday at Hislop park, the Red Hose blanking the visitors to the tune of 4 to 0. Jensen was on the mound for the home talent and held the heavy-hitting crew from the North Dakota town quite helpless. Eight blows were gathered from the delivery of Rothemel. The hits came at opportune times and coupled with some fast work by the Red Hose, accumulated the four runs.

BROOKLYN TAKES THREE STRAIGHT FROM BOSTON.

Brooklyn, June 1.—Brooklyn made it three straight from Boston by winning both games of yesterday's double header. The locals captured the first game easily, 9 to 3, through timely hitting, and took the second, 8 to 2.

In the second game Brown was hammered out of the box in one inning and Donnelly had little better luck, although he finished out the game. Rucker relieved Ragan with runners across, the bases full and nobody out in the second inning, and held the visitors runless until the ninth, when a muff by Moran helped to a tally. The scores:

THE BOSTON AMERICANS.

FAMOUS HITS THAT HAVE COUNTED IN WINNING BASEBALL PENNANTS

All baseball loves a hitter. The skill of the pitcher is respected. The successful defensive work of infield and outfield, the one-handed stop or the running catch must ever arouse frantic cheers; but when all is said and done, the wielder of the big stick is the giant who most rouses the imagination and the hero worship of the fans.

No thrill equals that which comes when a home player sends the ball ringing off his bat safely to the outfield. As the number of bases gained by such a hit increases, so does the excitement mount.

When one of these drives wins a game, its maker is a hero, but when the skilled and powerful use of the bat is responsible with a home run for the capture of a championship, the fan can conjure no reward that is adequate.

The hero of such a hit is Grant after Appomatox, Napoleon after Austerlitz, or Wellington after Waterloo.

It takes a combination of circumstances to make such drives. They cannot happen in every game. They must have more than length. They must be timely and must achieve results, says Graham in the Philadelphia North American.

Oldring's home run in the fifth game of the 1911 world's series is hardly remembered, not through any fault of Rube's, but because the Athletics finally lost that contest. If they had won, his hit would have ranked with Baker's.

Baker's Drives Unsurpassed.

Of all these famous drives, none equaled in dramatic quality Baker's two home runs, especially the second.

The first game in which Baker drove the ball out of the lot the Athletics might have wone without this hit, but for the second they had not a chance in the world up to the time the Maryland boy landed on Mathewson for the circuit.

New York and the Athletics were running along tie with the score at one, when Baker stirred up the first mad excitement of the series.

It was in the sixth inning. Only two hits had been made off Marquard in the first five innings, and, having recovered from his stage fright of the opening inning, he was twirling superbly.

There was nothing startling about the opening of the inning, Lord and Oldring retiring on easy flies to Snodgrass and Devore. Collins revived hope by a short double along the left-field foul line. This brought up Baker. He had not yet made a hit.

Catching one of Marquard's straight ones just to his liking, he gave it one terrific wallop. There was no doubt about the destination of the ball from the moment he landed on it. Over the heads of the spectators sitting on the right-field fence it soared, and, while the maddened thousands shouted their joy, Collins and Baker counted.

One Drive Stopped Mnty.

But, though the Mackmen had won one game, a serious obstacle remained in their way. This was Mathewson.

If they were to win the series, the Athletics had to break the hoodoo and get Matty out of the way.

It took Coombs and Baker to do it. The ninth inning came. The score was 1 to 0. Only two men stood between Mathewson and a victory, for Collins, who has started so many rallies, opened the inning by being an easy out.

Baker and Murphy alone remained to bat. Mathewson had every reason to be cautious, for he knew what Baker had done before.

For the second time in two days, Baker dazed the baseball world with a home run. It tied the score, and in the extra innings the Athletics won out, breaking the mastery of Mathewson and the hopes of the Giants. Undoubtedly this blow won the series for the Athletics, and ranked Baker with Cobb as the most famous ball player in the business.

Capt. Murphy of the Athletics has also been the principal in some dramatic hits that made a big difference in the result of the world's series.

Two of these were made against Chicago in 1910.

Against this flawless team of veterans, Manager Mack had ranged a team of youngsters. It was recognized on both sides that much would hinge on who made the first run.

Baker and Murphy did it between them. Baker opened the second with a double, and Davis sacrificed him to third. Murphy's sharp single through short admitted Baker with an earned run and quickly showed the young Mackmen that they would be able to work their scoring machine against the mighty Cubs.

But it was in the third game that Murphy broke the heart of the National league champions.

It was in the third inning, with the Athletics leading by one run, and Collins and Davis on bases. McIntire was pitching. Murphy smashed a terrific home run that hit high up on the fence and resulted in the scoring of three runs.

Tinker Did It.

In 1907, in a splendid struggle in Chicago between Chicago and New York in a game where the teams were running neck and neck, Tinker hit a home run that beat Mathewson, 2 to 1, and helped to give the pennant to the Cubs.

Chicago, particularly that part of it that pulls for the American league team, will always talk about the two triples made by George Rohe in the series of 1906.

Rohe at that time rated as about a .200 hitter, and there was a widespread feeling that his substitution for Tannehill greatly weakened the team. As a matter of fact, it gave them the series.

In the first game, a pitchers' struggle between Brown and Altrock, the teams were going along tied in the sixth, when Rohe tripled to left field and crossed the plate when Kling was unable to handle Brown's poor relay of a throw from the outfield.

The White Sox won an unexpected victory over the supposedly unbeatable Cubs, 2 to 1.

The Cubs won the second game. Then Walsh went against them in the third, and, pitching remarkable ball, shut out the National leaguers, 3 to 0. All the runs in this contest resulted from another dramatic triple by Rohe. The bases were filled in the sixth, and neither team had scored, when the utility third baseman smashed another triple to the same spot as his drive had gone on the opening day, giving the Sox three tallies and deciding the contest.

Isbell was responsible for the winning of the third Sox victory, when, in four times at bat, he hit four doubles—a notable record for a world's series game.

Magee, the Phillies' best hitter, has never been with a pennant-winning team, and hence has missed a chance to get into the rank of the ultra-notables; but one hit of Magee's will always be referred to, for it is considered by many to be the longest ever made on the Phillies' grounds.

It was in the spring of 1910 that Magee made this drive. The ball hit the clubhouse in deep center on the fly.

Cobb had made many notable hits, but the most exciting of them all came in the seventeen-inning game of October, 1907, and kept the Athletics out of a pennant.

Cobb's Homer Cost Pennant.

This was a day of mad baseball excitement. In fact, Philadelphia never saw a more harrowing game.

The score was 8-6 in favor of the Athletics when the ninth started. Crawford, who then batted ahead of Cobb, opened with a single.

It was up to Cobb to tie the score and save the game and pennant for Detroit. He did this in the most startling of all possible ways, by driving the ball over the right-field fence, a remarkable fact, being that it was the only home run he made that season. Certainly it was a remarkable test of his ability that he was able to make his only homer when it meant a pennant.

Manager Mack now rushed in Plank, who stopped the Tigers. Donovan proved equally invulnerable. The game went 17 innings. Silk O'Loughlin had a chance to make his famous interference decision on Davis and the game ended in a tie. Detroit retaining its lead and ultimately landing the flag.

JEFFERSONS TO MEET THE SODALITY TEAM.

At Duluth Heights tomorrow afternoon the Y. M. S. team of the Duluth-Superior league will take on the fast Jeffersons in what promises to be the best game of the season.

The two teams are tied for first place in the league and both will fight hard to retain the leadership. Danielson will probably be on the mound for the East enders and Brooks for the Y. M. S. Both teams have taken kindly to the offerings of the pitchers they have faced this season, especially the Jeffs, who have made thirty-three hits in the two games they have played. The teams will probably line up as follows:

RUBE MARQUARD KING OF SOUTHPAW HILLMEN

To the throne of the left handers, that most curious race of all the curious races that dwell within the borders of baseball, has come a new king—King Rube—the Second, or Third, or Fourth, and anyway a king of left hand land. The alabaster bean of Richard de Marquis, alis Rube Marquard, tilts itself above the level of the rabble to receive the metaphorical crown.

There has been no regular king of left handers since the passing of King Rube Waddell, as we understand the matter. He went and left a throbbing vacuum. Supporters of Nap Rucker and Doc White and Eddie Plank and other candidates tried to capture enough delegates to elect their favorite to the job, but a tie, or something, resulted in the convention, and there was no choice.

Things were at this pass when along came Richard de Marquis, alias Rube Marquard, and capped the crown, so to speak. The king was dead; very good—veevy lay wah! Which French will be understood by King Rube, as he is of the purest Ohio French himself.

On his labors of last season, and what he has accomplished this year, the long, lean, wry necked Ohio Frenchman is hailed as the greatest side wheeler of the time, and a worthy successor to King Waddell—although be it understood right now that the resemblance between the two begins and ends with left handed ability. There are no near contenders for the throne so far this year. The sensational Vean Gregg of Cleveland is not within rifle shot to date. Rube Benton, the Cincinnati $7,000 marvel, does not yet class with Gotham's Rube in the judgment of baseball players. Marquard stands alone, says the New York American.

Falls Down in Big Series.

The glory of Rube's last year record was dimmed to some extent by the fact that he could do nothing in the world's series. He appeared in 45 games—lot of work for a fellow of his physical construction. Rube is tall and muscular, but he is not a powerful man. He started, and completed, 23 games, and wound up with a record of twenty-four won and seven lost, for a percentage of .774. This was a higher percentage than was attained by any man in either league, right or left hander. Bender, the American league leader, won seventeen and lost five, for a percentage of .773.

Marquard struck out 237 men—the highest number of any pitcher in the National league. Grover Cleveland Alexander was the only man who came close to him, although Ed Walsh of the American league exceeded him by eighteen.

Marquard hung up a National league season record for strike outs in a single game, and the mark did not get into the record. He relieved Mathewson in the second inning of a game against the St. Louis club at the American League park, and struck out fourteen men in the next eight innings, the Giants having scored thirteen runs in the opening inning.

Brought Pennant to Giants.

It was Marquard's wonderful pitching which did more than anything else toward the winning of the National league pennant by the Giants — although McGraw's consummate use of that ability helped.

This spring, at Marlin, while the Giants were training, Wilbert Robinson, the old Baltimore catcher, who coaches McGraw's pitchers, and who is given much of the credit for Marquard's development wrote a story for the New York American, in which he expressed the opinion that Marquard had hardly started on his career. He declared that the Rube had "stuff" which he had never used, and that he would startle the baseball world in 1912, unless something unexpected happened to him.

runners at first base, which should said Robinson in effect. 'He has a lot to learn. He is weak on holding up runners at rst base, which should be a left-hander's strongest point and he needs perfection in many of the finer points, but this boy is under cover with some pitching that will make everyone open their eyes."

How close the old Oriole has come to crowding is fatal is evidenced by Marquard's runaway start. He is leaving all competitors at the post.

Marquard has registered six consecutive victories this season. The Rube has not tasted the bitter dregs of defeat thus far this campaign. Marquard has beaten Philadelphia twice, and Brooklyn, Boston, St. Louis and Chicago once each.

Last year was Marquard's first real year in the big league. The story of the Rube is a familiar one, but it will be told for years to come. His purchase from the Indianapolis club of the American association for $11,000 and his subsequent total failure as a big league pitcher is known to every follower of the game.

McGraw has always believed that acting against his own managerial judgment for the first and only time in his life did more to hinder Marquard than anything else. The purchase of the left-hander had created wild excitement among the New York baseball fans ,and they were anxious to see him work. It is McGraw's policy never to see a young pitcher in important games. He would rather keep him on the bench and let him absorb knowledge from that angle than work him, even if he felt certain he might win.

However, the clamor for Marquard was so keen that the manager finally gave in, and Marquard got a sound beating. He got others after that, but McGraw has always believed that if he had followed his own judgment the left-hander would have come along much more rapidly. In any event, McGraw is not likely to repeat that mistake with any other pitcher who comes into his fold.

In the spring he was a veritable demon against the minor league clubs, but once in a big league game he appeared to go to pieces. McGraw could not understand it. He knew that the fellow had the "stuff" and he declined to let go of him. His faith was eventually rewarded with a pennant.

Wilbert Robinson got hold of Marquard a year ago and the rest is baseball history. The old coach went along with his charge very patiently, taking plenty of time and studying him thoroughly, and when he finally told McGraw that Marquard was "ready" the left-hander justified the verdict immediately.

At times last season Marquard went after strike-out records, but the wisdom of the year is now upon him and he pays no attention to that sort of glory. He likes to work with Chief Meyers, although Wilson, or even Hartley have no trouble handling his wonderful shoots. This spring he has shown a great slow ball, and he has also displayed the nerve to use it in the pinches. No pitcher ever "had more" than Marquard, and no pitcher is learning to handle his delivery more judiciously.

Marquard is now about 24 years old. He was born at New Brunswick, Ohio, and around Cleveland, pitching semi-professional ball in the latter city until he went to Indianapolis, where he won a pennant for that club. His real name is Richard de Marquis, but some newspaper writer in Indianapolis gave him the name of Marquard for convenience sake, and it has stuck to this day.

TRACK MEET ON FRANKLIN FIELD

Eastern Colleges Are Holding Biggest of Spring Athletic Events.

Philadelphia, June 1.—The tryouts on Franklin field yesterday afternoon for the finals in the intercollegiate track and field events today indicated that the team championship probably lies between Cornell, last year's winner, and Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvanias qualified thirty men, the greatest number of men in the eleven events in which trials were necessary, and Cornell pulled through seven, but the Ithacans are strong in the branches of the sport in which they will enter men tomorrow. Harvard showed up well, but not as strongly as was expected.

Three of Pennsylvania's men are in the low hurdles and three in the high

BIG TRADE MADE.

Cole and Hoffman Given for Leach and Leifield.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 1. — Pitcher Leonard L. Cole and Arthur Hoffman, outfielder, erstwhile Chicago Cub players, today will report in Pirate uniforms at Forbes field.

Likewise Thomas W. Leach, centerfield, and Albert P. Leifield, southwing, erstwhile of the Pittsburg Pirates, will report to Manager Chance of the Chicago Cubs. The deal was consummated Thursday night between the Cub manager and the Pirates.

Fred Clark, the Pirate chieftain, said today he was well pleased with the trade. Both Cole and Hoffman are young men and should help put life into the Buccaneers. Leach is one of the old timers, but still on the job as evidenced by his playing against St. Louis yesterday. He made a hit in the morning game and three hits in the afternoon game. He will prove an able lieutenant for Chance.

Zeniths Defeat Parks.

The Zenith nine defeated the Park Avenues by a score of 9 to 10 on the Boulevard grounds yesterday. It was a 0 to 0 game until the fifth inning, when the Park Avenues got two runs, the Zeniths getting one. Score by innings:

Park Avenues .....000023220— 9
Zeniths .....000011512—10

Batteries—Gustafson and Andersen for the Zeniths, and Jentof, Traff and Malean for the Park Avenues.

New Baseball Record.

Battle Creek, Mich., June 1.—A new record for consecutive victories in the Southern Michigan league was established when the Battle Creek team won its fifteenth straight game. The previous record of fourteen was made in 1910 by Kalamazoo, which opposed Battle Creek in yesterday's game.

TRAP SHOOTING A VERY ANCIENT FORM OF SPORT

The article found below was written for The Herald sport department by a man who knows all the ins and outs of the trap shooting pastime. He has consented to contribute a series of stories, and considering that there is a very healthy interest in the trap shooting sport here at the present time, it is believed that the articles will stimulate further interest.

(By A. Guucrack.)

The season for the trap shooter has again arrived; the local gun clubs have been reorganized, and all the plans for the season have been laid. This is among the most healthful and interesting outdoor sports. Our European cousins participated a great deal in this kind of sport with the so-called setter gun, long before the same was introduced into the United States.

Live birds such as pigeons and sparrows were used exclusively for targets and under the English rules, the shooting at live birds was of such a nature that it put the best and most skilled marksman on his metal to make a creditable score. The most of live bird shooting was done under Hurlingham rules. The bird was flushed from a ground trap at thirty yards rise, and the use of both barrels was permitted. When the sport was first introduced in to the United States the plunge trap was considerably used; a bird was placed in the trap and the puller would throw the bird up. This kind of shooting was at twenty-one yards rise, with the use of one barrel only, and it was soon discovered that a gun making a very large pattern, or scattering the shot well, so to speak, would oftimes do more in the way of producing large scores than the real skill of the shooter, and for this reason the Hurlingham rules soon drew into favor in this country, and practically all live bird matches were shot under these rules, and our American shooters soon reached a high degree of proficiency, conquering the experts of all other countries in this kind of shooting.

Inanimate Targets.

The old saying that "Necessity is the mother of inventions," was aptly illustrated in the progress of trap shooting in America. There were practically four reasons that put our American inventive genius to experiment in the production of inanimate flying targets to be used as substitutes for the live birds. First, the great expense of securing live birds. Second, the desire to produce a flying target, the cost of which would be within the reach of all that loved this kind of outdoor sport. Third, to provide a flying target that would closely resemble the flight of a live bird. Fourth, the desire on the part of the shooter to terminate the protests against live bird shooting on the part of humane societies and others who considered this shooting of live birds as cruel.

The manufacturer of inanimate targets, it is said, has been an important factor in making live bird shooting unpopular, not because he felt that the sport was really cruel, but on account of it creating a better demand and market for his product.

It might be of interest to our readers to learn of the great variety of tagets with which the shooting world has experimented. Among the first we find a glass ball that was used considerably during the 70's. In the year 1879 or 1880 a puff-ball was invented, but the same was used but little. It was a ball filled with lampblack, and when perforated with the shot, a cloud of black dust would be released which would indicate that it was hit. About the year 1881 the Peoria blackbird was placed upon the market. This was a target of beautiful flight and easily broken when the shot hit it, and was really one of the best flying targets that was ever invented, but in shipping many of them were broken and the manufacturer found it necessary to turn out a tougher and heavier bird in order to eliminate the loss in breakage, but which was harder to score. About the same time the Ligowsky clay pigeon was invented; this was also saucer shaped and had a paper tongue glued on it for the purpose of attaching to the trap. These targets were apparently made of clay and baked or burnt in a kiln until they were red in color and very hard, and shooters as a rule did not like them for the reason that they would not break, even when hit hard with a number of pellets. There was also a target known as the Macumber tin bird, invented and manufactured in this state. This bird had a tongue attachment folded in the saucer, and when the shot hit the shell, the tongue would drop out and would really resemble the falling of a live bird in very good style, but it had one handicap; you could always hear the shot strike the bird, whether it was hit hard enough to release the tongue or not. The shooter would lose confidence both in himself and the target and for tournament use it never became very popular.

The Standard, the Keystone, the White-flyer, the Bat, the Macumber and the Blue-rock, all were among the targets used, and it seems that the last named is practically the target used all over this country to the exclusion of all others.

YOUNG COLLEGE STAR MAY REGRET ACTION

Milwaukee, Wis., June 1.—Can you imagine a young man who has been given a chance to play with a big league baseball team and after signing to play for a fat salary, pondering whether he did the right thing or not? Well, there is just such a player on the Milwaukee club, and this pill tosser is Ralph Capron, star quarterback on the University of Minnesota football team last fall, crack baseball player and track athlete.

"I wonder if I did the right thing," and "I wonder if I should have stayed at school and finished my course in law," are the remarks often heard from this young speed merchant. He appears to be always asking himself these questions, and to date has not arrived at the point where he can come right out and say he believes he took the right course.

It must not be taken from this that Capron is dissatisfied with his lot. But put yourself in this lad's position and see if you wouldn't ask yourself the same questions. Here is a young athlete who can run the century close to the ten-second mark, one of the few athletes who have been given places on Walter Camp's All-American football team—that is, one of the few Westerners—a lad who had every opportunity to make the team that will battle for the athletic honor of the United States this summer in Stockholm, Sweden, in the big Olympic meet. Imagine that you were just in his position and it is dollars to pennies that you would hesitate some time before adopting the course he took.

Different Than College.

Capron has found that playing professional ball, especially on an A. A. team, is far different from holding down a job on the varsity. He finds himself thrown in with players who earn their daily bread by the sweat of their brow on the baseball diamond. He is not now hobnobbing with youths who monthly receive stipends from fond fathers at home who wonder why Charles' or Frank's "club dues" or "frat assessments" keep on increasing each month. Then there is the "rah rah" element missing. There are no hero worshipers eagerly awaiting the chance to shake him by the hand after a hit or an exceptionally good bit of fielding.

Instead, he sees grim faces on all sides. He sits on the bench, shoulder to shoulder with men who know that next winter's larder will be fat or small, according to what they are able to show Hugh Duffy. After making a long hit or fine catch there is no one on the bench to rush out and grasp his hand. A remark such as "pretty good" or "you got it that time" is considered highly flattering, and to the recruits who have been through the mill before is enough to set their heads whirling.

But with all this Capron is making good.

"No matter whether I did right or wrong in becoming a professional baseball player, I have made my bed and I will be the one that will have to lie in it," is the way Capron put it. "I am trying hard to make good and I am showing the Milwaukee club management all that is in me. I have found a vast difference between the college brand of baseball and that played in the big leagues, but I am taking a different course than pursued by many who try to make good in fast company—I am storing away all the advice handed me.

Has Wise Plan.

"The trouble with most college athletes who have a chance to make good in fast company is that they come to a league team with a great reputation made in college and think they know it all. They look down upon their teammates who might be their inferiors in mathematics or physics, but who invariably know more baseball than the college youth will ordinarily ever be able to learn. I have seen a number of these youths fall from their high pedestals, and I am going to follow a different course. If I fail it will be because I am not of big league caliber and not because I thought I knew it all."

Coming from a youth who is not given to much talking, this sounds like the real thing, and if Capron but sticks to it he should some day become one of the bright stars of the game. He never talks for effect, being rather quiet. For some time his teammates did not know how to draw him out, but at last the secret was discovered and was found to be his old love—football. When the gridiron games came up for comment one night recently, Ralph was all attention, and it was but a few moments until he was busily engrossed in telling about a brilliant play he had witnessed while at Minnesota.

One of the most pleasing things about this youth is that he never toots his own horn. To any person who did not know his past record on the football field, little would he think that this lad took an active part in every one of the gridiron battles he likes to talk about.

BASEBALL NOTES

Benjamin Bosse has been elected president of the Evansville club in the Kitty league. L. B. Sisson will manage the team.

This is not the first season that Arlie Latham has worked as an umpire. He once held the indicator in the South Atlantic league.

Spike Shannon, the former New York-Kansas City outfilder, is now clerking in a Kansas City hotel and declares he is out of baseball for good.

Columbus is seeking the club in the Cotton States league that was transferred from New Orleans to Yazoo City. It once had a franchise in the circuit.

Irwin, the catcher used by the Phillies to warm up pitchers and who sprung into fame as a strike breaker with the Detroit club, making two two-baggers in the farce game with the Athletics, has been signed by the Roanoke club of the Virginia league. Catcher Jim Lafitte, lately of the New Orleans team has also joined Roanoke

His thirteenth straight defeat was the undoing of Pitcher Saint of the Greenwood team of the Cotton States league. He got the ax before he could make it fourteen.

Lonnie Noojin, formerly in the South Atlantic and Southern leagues and given a trial by Cincinnati last spring, is playing with the Greenville team of the Carolina association.

Now they say that Hank O'Day is a better manager than he was an umpire. No doubt that is true, for according to the fans there never was a good umpire in the history of the game.

Harry Kelly, released by the Decatur and Danville teams of the Three-I league and later manager of an independent team in Rock Island, has joined the Keokuk team of the Central association.

Stuffy McInnis has a brother in school at Gloucester who is training for the Athletics. He is now captain of the high school team, plays any position, and is said to be a wonder. His nickname is Brick.

Dom Mullaney, umpire baiter and general terror to civilized baseball, is working out daily with the Jacksonville team, that once he managed. He isn't looking for a job as a player, though. What Dom wants to be is an umpire.

The Youngstown club of the Central league is really sorry to see the United States league breaking. It sold the Pittsburg club of the United Sam circuit a couple of players in Goes and Cornelius and hoped to dispose of a few more discards to it.

You never can tell about Russ Ford. The other day in a game in New York, he stole second cleanly on Ted Easterly and when the peg to second went wild he circled the bases. This is said to be Ford's third stolen base since he has been in the major leagues.

Hugh E. Keough, who under the name of Hek writes such clever sport comment in the Chicago Tribune, has been seriously ill following an operation. When he had recovered sufficiently to ask how the White Sox were going, his physicians said he would recover.

Connie Mack and Hugh Jennings got on speaking terms during the recent strike and then Connie spoiled the entente cordial by letting himself be quoted as saying: "Jennings showed a backbone like a jellyfish," or words to that effect, in the way Hughel handled his part.

Dave Fultz, old-time big leaguer, now a lawyer in New York, acted as legal adviser for the Detroit players who went on strike and told them a lot of things that his long experience as a player should have taught him better. But probably he was talking as a lawyer merely.

Pitcher Travers, the younth who pitched the whole game for the makeshift Detroit team against the Athletics, was in bed two days after his awful ordeal. To date no big league club has signed him on the showing he made, though he thinks he might have done better had he been given "support."

The uncertainties of baseball were shown in a game that St. Louis and Chicago played on May 7, 1895. Bill Dahlen, playing shortstop for the Cubs, had and accepted fourteen chances at his position. Johnny Glasscock at short for the Browns did not have a chance during the entire nine innings of play.

In a recent bulletin Secretary Farrell of the National association calls attention to Rule No. 29 of the national agreement, which reads: "When a player is reported for suspension the reason must be given. If reason is not given player's salary continues and suspension shall be considered as not in force."

Bill Porter, former player and manager of the Ohio-Pennsylvania and other leagues, fell under the spell of Billy Sunday, has given up the good old game and says he will henceforth devote his life to religious work. Here's hoping he'll make as much coin out of it as Billy Sunday.

It is comforting to know that Ty Cobb would not have starved had he decided to part company with the American league. The Lynn team of the Greater Boston league, a semi-pro affair that is operating independently in Massachusetts, offered to "assume" his Detroit contract and pay him $9,000 a year. Other players in that league are promised $90 a month—when the ghost walks.

John J. McGraw is quoted as saying that Marquard will win thirty games this year, if not more. Clark Griffith, on the other hand, declares that Walter Johnson will win more games than any other big league pitcher. Griff opines that Johnson with the Giants behind him, could go through the entire season without suffering a defeat. In other words, Marquard and Johnson appear to be in a class by themselves.

Moose Baxter, the old time ball player who recently was released from prison after serving a long term for violating the Canadian liquor selling laws and was ordered deported, has been told that he can stay on the north side of the border line if he will give a bond of $50,000 not to do it again. That's a good deal of money for any one to put up as guarantee that a ball player will be good.

President Murphy of the Cubs announced he had accepted the terms of Pitcher J. H. Vernon of Amherst college, but found out that Vernon had given terms to the Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Detroit clubs, and he wrote him he did not want him if that was the case. The average college player has about as much conscience when it comes to signing a contract as he has about playing under an assumed name to maintain his "amateur" status.

Ty Cobb is said to be "in bad" with a newspaper man in Boston, and while in the Hub recently bawled him out over a telephone. An appointment was made for the two to meet in a downtown hotel where Cobb was to be given all opportunity to complete his castigation of the scribe. The sport writer kept the engagement. Cobb didn't. The "Georgia Peach" will hereafter wonder why that particular scribe will write a few vivid, cutting remarks about him whenever he appears in Boston.

Gibbons Beats Brennan.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 1.—Mike Gibbons proved too clever for "Knockout" Brennan of Buffalo, whom he met in a 10-round contest. The St. Paul man's punches had more behind them and were landed with telling frequency. At times a knockout seemed imminent, but Brennan at such critical points managed to save himself. At the end of the bout the referee announced Gibbons the winner. The men fought at 145 pounds.

More men are "henpecked" by seemingly adverse circumstances than by their wives. A little advertising may help you to boss your own circumstances.

AUTOMOBILES

LONG TRIP IS PLANNED

Autos Will Journey From Detroit to Gulf of Mexico.

Date of National Reliability Tour Has Not Been Determined.

From the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico will be the route of the 1912 A. A. A. National Reliability tour, for the Glidden, Anderson and A. A. A. trophies. Some fifteen hundred miles will be covered between the City of the Straits and the Crescent City, and while the concluding part of the journey will be from Memphis to New Orleans, the itinerary of the northern section has not been decided upon by the special committee in charge. This committee includes Colonel Frank M. Joyce of Minneapolis, Lewis R. Speare of Boston, John A. Wilson of Franklin, Pa., W. E. Metzger of Detroit, and W. E. Moyer of Des Moines. Mr. Wilson represented the committee as its emissary to various cities, including Indianapolis and Detroit, and the selection of the greatest city in the world, from the automobile manufacturing standpoint, came about through the combined activities of the Wolverine Automobile club, Chamber of Commerce, and dealers' association, in which A. W. Porter, W. E. Metzger and F. E. Spooner played a prominent part.

Though Detroit secured the plum, it is among the possibilities, that Indianapolis, another of the important automobile manufacturing cities, will serve as a night stop of the big cavalcade, which promises to outdo in point of interest any similar event ever held in this country. If it had been possible geographically to have done so, the committee would have included Cleveland, which is the remaining one of the three cities which supply nine-tenths of the self-propelled vehicles made in the United States.

In the planning of the details of the tour, President Robert P. Hooper of the American Automobile association asked Dr. C. E. Dutton of Minneapolis to serve as vice chairman of the touring information board, which this year will have the event in charge. Dr. Dutton has had a widespread experience in touring competitions, is president of the Minnesota State Automobile association and last year served as the referee of the state association run from the Twin Cities to Helena, Mont.

The path-finding trip may not take place for several weeks owing to the conditions of the roads, especially in Louisiania. There is pronounced striving for the honor of laying out the route of the "Lakes-to-Gulf" tour, which will be covered in detail and will be added to the national routes of the A. A. A. touring bureau is gradually extending in its covering of the entire country.

The date of the tour is not decided, but early in October seems to be generally preferred, and a rough estimate of the time consumed will be not more than ten days including a Sunday stop in a city capable of caring for the party comfortably.

A COURT FOR THE MOTORISTS

Chicago Municipal Judges Agree That Place of This Kind Is Necessary.

Chicago, June 1.—A "motorist court" is to be established in Chicago, according to a decision reached by the municipal judges at a meeting yesterday. The court will deal exclusively with alleged violations of the speeding ordinances.

This action was one of the preliminary steps taken toward putting an end to the "speed mania" which has caused much discussion among city and county officials within the last few weeks. It is believed that by segregating the alleged offenders, their cases can be disposed of with greater care than they could be, if switched in with different classes of offenses.

Speaking of non-enforcement of the speeding laws, Municipal Judge Gemmill said he did not believe the police had been doing their duty impartially. They arrested strangers for speeding and permitted their friends to violate the ordinances at will, he said.

MOTOR OWNERS HELP GOOD ROADS WORK

Automobile Clubs in North Dakota Making for Better Highways.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—North Dakota's good roads movement is receiving greater impetus through the automobile than any other single agency. This season the operations of the automobile owners, in their campaign for road improvement, is more widespread than ever before, the results bid fair to be correspondingly greater.

Local clubs, county clubs and two state-wide automobile clubs are engaged in the work of creating road sentiment. Farmers are taking to the campaign in a very general manner and are giving the autoists every help possible.

Some Live Clubs.

Bottineau has one of the livest clubs and it has laid out a big good roads campaign. The officers are as follows: President, E. C. Bowen; vice presidents, C. R. Gleason and C. G. Gorden; secretary, Emil Johnsgaard; treasurer, George B. McMillen.

Devils Lake Automobile club workers are doing effective work. Grand Forks, Mandan and Bismarck each have a definite line of work.

There are several big automobile tours planned which will add materially to the work. The Grand Forks club will make a four-day trip from Grand Forks to Bottineau and the Fargo club will go to Jamestown. There also will be the Meridian road automobile tour this season.

POINTERS FOR MOTORISTS.

How to Repair Cuts in Envelopes Explained By Michelin Expert.

Just now when roads are being repaired, motorists frequently have to drive over stretches of crushed stone, and tire treads are likely to suffer from many small cuts unless great care is taken to drive slowly or "coast" over the repaired parts of the road. These cuts, unless properly cared for, will prove injurious.

Dirt will work into and under the tread, raising blisters and separating the rubber from the carcass of the tire while moisture will attack and rot the fabric. Once the fabric is affected, says the Michelin expert, disintegration follow rapidly. The best protection is the proper and timely use of Mastic.

Immediately upon discovery cuts should be cleaned to their full depth with gasoline, the edges being kept apart by a match. All dirt or other foreign matter should be removed with a stiff brush or splinter of wood covered with waste. After the gasoline has evaporated and the cut is absolutely clean, its interior should be coated with liquid cement. After this has dried, a second coat must be applied and while the cement is still "tacky" a sufficient quantity of Mastic should be forced in to the cut until it is completely filled. A little excess Mastic is best as it contracts somewhat in hardening. If the edges of the cut are now held down a few moments while the Mastic sets, the repair is complete. The tire should not be used, however, for five or six hours, so that the Mastic may harden properly.

Motorcycle Notes.

To further safeguard the public the newly organized Atlanta, Ga., Motorcycle club is supporting an ordinance providing that all classes of vehicles be equipped with head lights.

Secretary Gibson of the F. A. M. is sending to all motorcycle clubs an announceemnt concerning the selection of delegates to the annual convention which meets in Columbus, Ohio, July 17-21. Any F. A. M. member, however, whether a delegate or not, may attend the convention and enjoy all privileges exept voting.

More than a hundred motorcyclists recently took part in an endurance run conducted by the Atlantic City Motorcycle club.

A three-day endurance run of 520 miles will be run on May 31 and June 1 by the Los Angeles, Cal., Motorcycle club.

The La Porte Ind., police department has its first motorcycle officer. Verne Fenton, an experienced motorcyclist, was appointed by Chief Melnke.

Racine, Wis., has 150 more motorcyclists this spring than last.

That the motorcycle covers twice the territory of a bicycle is the experience of a large drug company in Texarkana, Ark., which found that one motorcyclist could do the work of two bicycle messengers. Incidentally the business was increased and deliveries made more promptly.

The Albany, N. Y., Motorcycle club is planning a number of 200-mile endurance runs for the summer months.

SATURDAY SPORTS.

With baseball at Athletic park, an impromptu rowing race at the Duluth Boat club, as well as having some of the sail boats out for the first time of the season, and a golf match at the Northland club that should prove quite unique, the sport program for the day is the best of the present season.

The golf club program includes a game for the older members of the club and the event has excited a great deal of interest. The regular red card contest is also on the program.

It is expected that there will be a large crowd at the boat club this being the first Saturday opening of the season.

RIVERS STARTS WORK.

Mexican Returns to Los Angeles to Prepare for Wolgast.

Los Angeles, June 1.—Back in Los Angeles after his first real trip away from home, Joe Rivers, lightweight pugilistic star, is ready today to begin work for his championship bout with Ad Wolgast July 4.

"I could have made $15,000 while I was away had I been willing to break my word with McCarey," said Rivers. "In San Francisco and Denver I was offered good money for exhibitions, but I wanted to keep my promise not to fight again before July 4."

Rivers will begin work for the battle of his career tomorrow at Venice. He claims to be in excellent condition.

"Ad" Has Advantage.

Philadelphia, June 1.—Champion Ad Wolgast and Young Jack O'Brien fought a fast 6-round bout before the American Athletic club, and at the end the advantage, if any, was with the champion. O'Brien was the cleverer, but his blows lacked force, while those of Wolgast made the Philadelphia boy wince when they landed on the body.

RURAL MAIL CARRIERS TO AID FOREST SERVICE.

Washington, June 1. — More than 1,000,000 miles of roadway territory in comparatively sparsely settled sections of the country will be covered daily by a forest fire preventing force of 55,000 men, as a result of an order issued by Postmaster General Hitchcock. These men are the rural and star route mail carriers, who are directed to co-operate with the forest rangers and state fire wardens in every way possible.

Last year forest fires destroyed approximately $50,000,000 worth of property. The agricultural department has been anxious to increase the efficiency and strength of its forest fire preventive service, and Postmaster General Hitchcock offered his department's assistance.

ON THE IRON RANGES

GRAND RAPIDS TO GREET MOTORISTS

Automobilists From Hibbing and Chisholm Coming There on Sunday.

Grand Rapids, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.) — Many automobilists and other pleasure seekers from Hibbing will be here Sunday and will be entertained by the local automobile club at Pokegama lake. The Hibbing people have for some time been contemplating this trip, which is for the purpose, primarily, of looking over the various sites considered for an automobile clubhouse which is to be built by a club of automobilists and others, composed of members for the Itasca County Automobile club and the Hibbing-Chisholm Automobile club.

The Hibbing and Chisholm autoists will leave Hibbing in a body at 8 o'clock Sunday morning and will make the run to Grand Rapids, and when here they will be joined by the local automobile people and such others as want to go, and run out to the M. A. Spang place on Pokegama lake, which is the first prospective clubhouse site which will be looked over, from which place the crowd will be taken by steam boats and launches to points of interest on the lake and up and down the Mississippi river for several miles. All the Hibbing people will bring their basket lunches and the local auto club will provide coffee free to all who come, and a picnic dinner will be eaten during the steamboat excursion on one of the beautiful points on Pokegama lake.

VETERINARIAN IS BITTEN BY HORSE

Animal That May Have Rabbies Nips at Itasca County Man.

Grand Rapids, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Harold L. Stark, who lives in section 2-146-26 was in the village this week looking for a veterinarian to investigate into the cause of the death of three head of stock which died on the Stark place within the past three weeks. Mr. Stark says that for some time his dog had been ailing, and that he did not know what was the matter with the dog. Shortly after the dog became ill a cow died, and a short time after that a bull died. Friday of last week a horse became sick, and Mr. Stark called the local veterinary, W. J. Taylor. While Mr. Taylor was bending to listen to the horse's heart action, the animal turned and nipped him, inflicting a nasty wound. Mr. Taylor at once inquired if the dog had not been noticed to be sick, and upon receiving an affirmative reply, Mr. Taylor gave it as his opinion that the horse and the other stock had been affected with hydrophobia. He left at once for town to receive treatment for his wound.

Mr. Stark burned his barn, which was a substantial log structure 25x27, shot the dog and the cat, and took all precautions to prevent the spread of the disease, and notified the state veterinarian.

GIVE PARCEL SHOWER.

Bride-Elect of Aurora Is Guest of Honor.

Aurora, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thursday afternoon Miss Harriet Levin entertained the Aurora teachers at a parcel shower in honor of Miss Minnie Larsen, whose engagement to Orren Putnam has been announced. The out-of-town guests were Misses Quist and Weitzel of Biwabik and Miss Ritchie of Pineville. Miss Larsen was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. A very pleasant afternoon was reported.

Motherhood

The highest point of woman's happiness is reached only through motherhood, in the clasping of her child within her arms. Yet the mother-to-be is often fearful of nature's ordeal and shrinks from the suffering incident to its consummation. But for nature's ills and discomforts nature provides remedies, and in Mother's Friend is to be found a medicine of great value to every expectant mother. It is an emulsion for external application, composed of ingredients which act with beneficial and soothing effect on those portions of the system involved. It is intended to prepare the system for the crisis, and thus relieve, in great part, the suffering through which the mother usually passes. The regular use of Mother's Friend will repay any mother in the comfort it affords before, and the helpful restoration to health and strength it brings about after baby comes. Mother's Friend is for sale at drug stores. Write for our free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature.

Mother's Friend

BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., Atlanta, Ga.

NEW MINISTER ON THE MESABA RANGE

REV. E. B. PETERSON,
Pastor of Swedish Baptist Churches of Eveleth and Virginia. Rev. Mr. Peterson and Family Live at Eveleth, Having Recently Arrived From Chicago, Where Mr. Peterson Held a Pastorate.

MOTHER OF TEN TO HER REWARD

Mrs. Gregory of Ironwood, Having Two Daughters on Mesaba Range, Dies.

Ironwood, Mich., June 1.—(Special to The Hherald.)—Mrs. Mary Gregory passed away at the family home on Curry street about 3 o'clock yesterday morning. She had been in poor health for a long time, death being caused from a complication of diseases. She was 68 years of age and is survived by ten children, all grown: Samuel of Butte, Mont., Mrs. Eichelberger, Mrs. George Scott and Mrs. Moore of Pennsylvania; Mrs. William Crowel and Mrs. Ed Strick of the Mesaba range, Minnesota; Thomas, Joseph, Mrs. Walter Winn and Miss Lucinda Gregory, all of this city.

Mrs. Gregory came to Ironwood twenty-four years ago next fall. The funeral will be held Monday afternoon from the First M. E. church, in which the deceased held membership for many years. Interment will be in Riverside cemetery.

GET EXPENSES TO ROAD MEET

Those Attending Gathering at Grand Rapids Need Not Bear Cost.

Grand Rapids, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)——The committee consisting of L. M. Bolter, Henry Hughes and H. D. Powers, appointed by the Commercial club to call a meeting for the village and township officers of the county to plan a system of roads to be built entirely inside of the county under the Elwell law, has been informed that the various town and village officials will have the right of charging their expenses for the trip to attend this meeting to their respective towns and villages, as the meeting is for the purpose of transacting some very important township business, the right to do this being tht opinion of the attorney general.

This being the fact there will be little reason for any of the officials of the civic subdivisions of the county not attending, and a large attendance is looked for at this meeting whichh promises to be one of the most remarkable gatherings ever held in the county.

The date of the metting has not yet been definitely set, but it is likely that the meeting will be held on June 12 the date of the next meeting of the county board.

MANY SCHOOL GARDENS AT DEER RIVER, MINN.

Deer River, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—D. B. Jewell, instructor of agriculture in the local high school reports that the school gardens of the pupils of the high school are planted and everything is in readiness for the caring of them. There are forty young people out of the schools doing this work, all willingly, none having been solicited to go into the school gardening.

Aside from the regulation gardens which the children have put in under the direction of Mr. Jewell, several one-eighth acre tracts have been put into wheat, oats and hulless barley, and several hundred strawberry plants have been put in and are being cared for by the children.

TWO HARBORS SWITCHMAN HAS LEG TAKEN OFF.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles F. McLaughlin, switchman in the yard service of the Iron Range here, had his foot taken off yesterday while attempting to make a coupling between a switch engine and some cars on No. 1 ore dock. McLaughlin has been in the yard service here about three weeks, and comes from Chicago. His father, M. Coleman of Chicago, has been notified of the accident and is expected here some time today or tomorrow. The injured man is known here as Charles F. McLaughlin, but his real name is E. M. Coleman.

EXPRESS COMPANY WILL NOT VACATE

Refuses to Leave Hibbing Depot So Structure Can Be Razed.

Hibbing, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The action of the American Express company in refusing to vacate that portion of the old Missabe depot occupied by its local offices is severely criticized. Carpenters two weeks ago began razing the depot building, but that part of it occupied by the American Express company will be left standing. It appears that the express company has a contract with the Missabe to occupy the building for a number of years and now refuses to release the railroad. The intention had been to raze the entire building and utilize the site and the grounds occupied by the D. M. & N. for a new city park to be called McGonagle park. If the portion of the old building occupied by the company is allowed to stand it will mar the sightliness of the park and it is probable that no further steps will be taken toward the improvement. There is talk of a boycott among the business men if the company does not recede from its disposition.

KOSTICH MURDER CASE COMING UP

Man Charged With Killing Mrs. Srdich Near Hibbing to Be Tried.

Hibbing, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The June term of the range district court for Hibbing will open here Tuesday next. The calendar is lengthy and it is doubtful if it will be disposed of within the regular time limit.

The most important case on the criminal calendar will be that of the State vs. Jefte Kostich under indictment for first degree murder for the shooting of Mrs. Nicholas Srdich at the French location during the latter part of Febrauary. Kostich will be defended by Victor Power.

On the civil calendar there are a total of fifty cases. Of this number thirty-five are jury cases, six are court cases and nine are divorce cases. Six of the divorce cases are new and three are continued from the Virginia and Hibbing terms.

BROKE STATE LAW FOR THREE YEARS

Admits Virginia Socialist Fined for Buying Illegally Taken Fish.

Virginia, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.) — John G. Maatala, manager of the Work People's Trading store, and candidate on the Socialist ticket for the office of county treasurer, paid $200 in fines and $26 costs for violation of the game laws in municipal court Friday. He was fined $100 himself for receiving and selling game fish and he also paid the fine and costs of John Lasson of Pelican lake from whom he received the fish. Maatala admitted that he had been receiving fish from Lasson for three years, sometimes as high as 300 pounds per week; also that he was paying 5 and 7 cents a pound when the wholesale price of marketable fish in Duluth was 12, 14 and up to 17 cents per pound. Game Warden Wood arrested at Pelican lake Jacob Leiota and Antti Saatela, who were with John Lasson. The latter is widely known as "Pickerel John." The case against the three men was started on information furnished by the Virginia Gun club. The game warden also seized a valuable fishing and hunting outfit, consisting of everything from fish hooks to row boats and guns. Leiota and Saatela were allowed to go free on the payment of costs for the reason that they are poor men and have families.

CISTERN AT DEER RIVER

In Connection With City Well for Fire Use.

Deer River, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council Thursday evening let the contract to J. M. Holdridge for sinking two wells for the water supply of the village. The consideration for the drilling of the well was $1.50 per foot, Mr. Holdridge to furnish the pipe.

The council is figuring on building a cistern for storing water for use in case of fires, and in other emergencies, and a committee consisting of A. D. Ingersoll was appointed to go to Keewatin to investigate a like reservoir, which is being built there, and to get a line on the size required and the cost of a reservoir such as would be required. It is estimated that a reservoir 40 feet in diameter and 10 feet deep would be about what Deer River would need, and that such a reservoir would have a capacity of in the neighborhood of 80,000 gallons.

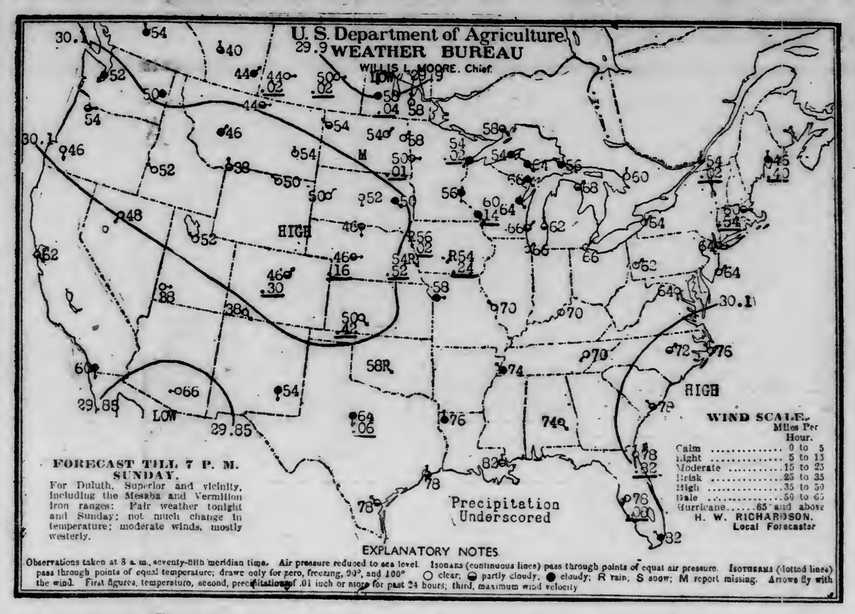

Returns With Bride.

Grand Rapids, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Le Roux has returned from Red Lake Falls, where he has been spending a couple of weeks visiting, accompanied by his bride. Mr. Le Roux was married Tuesday at Terrebone, Minn., to Miss Philomen Thiroux, Rev. Father Bossue of the Terrebone church officiating. Mr. Le Roux has been a resident of Grand Rapids for several years and is well known here. The bride is the daughter of a well to do farmer near Terrebonne.

Are You a Woman?

Baltimore, Md.—Mrs. W. H. Ison, at 1419 East Madison street, writes, "For several years, I suffered, off and on, from female troubles, until finally I was taken down and could do nothing. The pains I experienced, I shall never forget. I lost weight till I was only skin and bones. I believe I would have been in my grave, if I had not tried Cardui. I shall praise it as long as I live." Many women, like Mrs. Ison, are weak and discouraged, on account of some painful ailment. Are you one of these sufferers? Cardui will help you. Try it today. Any druggist.

PAIR MEET WITH VIOLENT DEATHS

One Chisholm Man Killed By Blast, Another Victim of Train.

Chisholm, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Steve Kovich, an Austrian, 23 years of age, died Thursday from injuries received at the Shenango mine when he was struck in the head by a rock from a blast Tuesday. He was working with a crew at the steam shovel and it was thought he was far enough away from the blast when it was set off. Fellow workmen were greatly surprised to see him fall by being struck in the head from a flying rock. He was rushed to the hospital and later taken to Hibbing. He has a brother residing in the northern part of the state but the authorities have been unable to reach him.

Lets Train Kill Him.

Mike Donczyszak was struck by the Missabe passenger train Monday and died later. Engineer Deneen claims that the man stood on the track as the train approached and when he pulled the whistle the man turned around and threw up his hands and waited for the train to strike him. The accident happened near the new Grace mine a short distance south of here. The body was brought here to the undertakers and whether the man died instantly has not been made clear. Trainmen claim it was a clear case of sulcide but will not say whether the man was instantly killed or not.

Donczyszak was about 27 years old and apparently, according to his countrymen, was happy and had no motive to end his life. His bride of two weeks is prostrated over the affair.

The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon from the Greek church in Chisholm.

WILL PRINT PAPER.

Chisholm High School Society to Get Into Print.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY PHIPPS.

Written For The Herald By E. J. Edwards ("Holland.")

(Copyright, 1912, by E. J. Edwards.)

THE various European countries appear to be in a state of alarm lest American dollars may divest them of their cherished antiquities and famous works of art. Every once in a while some new acquisition of European masterpieces of art, famous in story and venerable with age, by some American millionaire is reported, and cries of alarm are at once heard from the country whose store of art works is further depleted by the transaction. It must be conceded that there is much to justify this feeling of anxiety that is keenly felt by the art lovers and governments of Europe with regard to the fate of European art treasures. Within recent years many millions of dollars worth of art objects have been brought from Europe to this country to adorn the mansions of wealthy Americans and grace the showcases of our great museums. And this process of transfer has not been confined merely to such objects as are ordinarily classed as movable. Frescoes, painted ceilings, and the more solid prts of houses have been purchased and removed from their old world surroundings to a strange environment in the new. It was even reported a little while ago that a rich American intended to have a whole house, an ancient and picturesque structure, removed from its European sit, stone by stone, and set up on one of his American estates.

While a fair exchange is no robbery, and from a purely business point of view these exchanges are probably highly satisfactory to the European parties to them, the fact that they impoverish other countries from an artistic point of view for the benefit of the United States is what chiefly engages the attention of citizens of those other countries. Yet American dollars that are spent abroad are not all devoted to the appropriation of valued objects for American use and enjoyment. There is another side to the picture. American money has been devoted in some notable cases recently to the restoration, preservation or beautification of objects of historic or artistic interest in Europe and elsewhere and to the establishment of institutions of material benefit to the people of foreign countries. Of the readiness of Americans to devote money to the relief of suffering in foreign lands there has been multiplied proof.

MISS HELEN GOULD.

The funds raised for the relief of the sufferers from famine in Russia and China, from earthquake in Italy and from flood in France, to cite only a few instances, were in large part American. But the expenditures here referred to were not in the nature of charity, but rather of civic beneficence. They were the sort of things that a man would do for his own city as a large-minded and generous citizen, taking a personal pride in its growth, beauty and preservation.

An example exactly in point was made prominent on the twenty-fifth of last April—St. Mark's day—when amid great rejoicing in the city of Venice, the bells of the famous Campanile of St. Mark rang out for the first time in ten years. That this famous pile collapsed and crumbled in ruins, in 1902, the whole civilized world mourned it loss, such was its place in art, song and story. Nine years were spent in rebuilding it, and the dedication of the new structure, a replica of the old, was the occasion of a great celebration by church and state, at which representatives of every country of Europe and of this country were present. Pope Pius X took particularly affectionate interest in the event, and was said to have wept when his physicians decided that on account of his health he ought not to hear the ringing of the bells over the telephone, as had been planned. They feared the emotions it would arouse would overpower him. One of the bells in the restored campanile was one of the set of five given by the pope when he was patriarch of Venice. The others were broken when the tower fell, and the pope had them recast.

The American Who Rebuilt the Campanile.

Among the foreigners present at the ceremonies was the man who had done more than any other individual person to make possible the rebuilding of the campanile, and, curiously enough, this man was the American who has become, of all his compatriots, the one most greatly feared by Europeans as an acquirer of art works—J. Pierpont Morgan. Yet Mr. Morgan's contributions very largely helped to restore to Venice her campanile.

Much is heard about Mr. Morgan's purchase of art works for his immense private collection, and, of course, his great gifts to institutions like the Metropolitan Museum, the American Museum of Natural History and the public library in New York are well known. But very much of his giving is done secretly, and it is probable that only a small number of his donations have actually become known. This appears to be especially true of his donations in other countries. Thus, for instance, he gave secretly, some fifteen years ago, the sum of $25,000 for the purpose of installing the electric lighting plant in St. Paul's cathedral, London, and it was only some time after the gift had been made that the name of the donor became known. Mr. Morgan was also a large contributor to the Victoria Memorial, the dedication of which in London not very long ago was witnessed by many of the crowned heads of Europe. A few years ago he learned that a tuberculosis hospital was needed at Aix-les-Bains, France, and he forthwith gave $50,000 toward that object. His most recent donation to a European object that has become known was a gift of $50,000 to the University of Gottingen, at which he was a student, and where he laid the foundation of that interest in the understanding of art in many forms that has made him one of the world's great connoisseurs and collectors.

An American Woman's Gift to London.

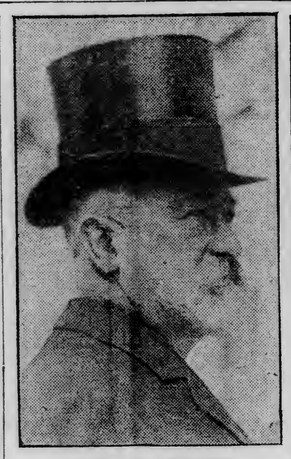

A very graceful contribution to the Old World's store of art treasures and antiquities by an American was made recently. This was the gift by Mrs. George D. Widener of Philadelphia of thirty silver plates once owned by Nell Gwynn, to the London Museum. The Museum was opened last March by King George V, who at that time announced the acquisition of these rare and valuable pieces of old plate through the generosity of Mrs. Widener.

The location of the museum is in the portion of Kensington palace where Queen Victoria was born, King George having given the use of that portion of the palace for the purpose. It was near there, in Kensington, that Nell Gwynn, the pretty actress who won the favor of King Charles II and became one of the picturesque figures of the Restoration period, had her home. So it happened that Mrs. Widener, in giving the plates to the London Museum, not only restored them to the country with whose history they are associated, but practically to the very place where first they were used and admired.

The Generous Restorer of Battle Abbey.

The restoration of Battle Abbey, the famous monastery built by William the Conqueror, near the field of the battle of Hastings, as a memorial of his gratitude for his victory won there, was the work of a man who was formerly a resident of this country, whose fortune was made here, and who, after many years of residence in England, has decided to return to the United States and make his home here. This man is Michael P. Grace, brother of the late William R. Grace, who was mayor of New York thirty years ago, and was for many years a prominent figure in Democratic national politics.

Mr. Grace came to this country from Ireland with his brother, the former mayor, when a young man. Together they founded what became one of the largest international mercantile houses in the world, carrying on a great trade with South America and dealing especially in the rich nitrates found there. After their fortunes had been well established, but not until after William R. Grace had become a leader in Democratic politics and mayor of New York, Michael P. Grace went to England to reside. He took a long lease of Battle Abbey, and spent much time and money in restoring it and beautifying it as a dwelling place, while preserving its historic features.

JACOB H. SCHIFF.

But while he made it his home, at the same time he recognized that it was in a sense the property of the English nation. Therefore, with certain restrictions, although no more than would necessarily be thrown about any historic monument, he kept the place open to visitors and sightseers, so that through his generosity many thousands of persons have been able to inspect this early relic of the Norman regime in England.

Rockefeller's Present to a Small French Commune.

John D. Rockefeller has given away a round sum of $100,000,000 of dollars, but practically the whole of it, except such portion as is devoted to foreign missions, has been given toward strictly American objects, colleges, churches and scientific institutions. The most recent of Mr. Rockefeller's gifts to attract attention, however, had neither religious nor educational, nor scientific work for its object, but the pious object of honoring the memory of a great man. That was his gift of 55,000 francs, or $11,000, to preserve the birthplace of Louis Pasteur, at Dole, France, which he made a few months ago.

Mr. Rockefeller's interest in medical research with the object of discovering cures for hitherto incurable diseases has been shown by his endowment of the Rockefeller Medical institute in New York, and it was through his interest in this subject that he acquired his intense admiration of Pasteur, the father of the modern method of immunizing to disease. When he went to Europe a few years ago he made a pilgrimage to Dole to visit Pasteur's birthplace.

Mr. Rockefeller learned recently that the house were the great French scientist was born was in danger of going to wrack and ruin, and he promptly made his contribution for its upkeep. The amount of this gift is almost infinitesimal compared with the immense sums he has given to educational and scientific work in this country, and yet in personal sentiment it is perhaps richer than some of those.

Miss Gould Befriends a Turkish College For Girls.

Miss Helen Gould is widely known as a philanthropist whose gifts are many and large and who gives not only of her money, but of her time and effort. During the Spanish-American war, for instance, besides giving largely to the funds for the relief of sick and wounded soldiers, she spent weeks at the big convalescent camp at Montauk Point, Long Island, where the army recovered from the effects of the Santiago campaign, and devoted herself personally to the care of the sick. Her gifts have been devoted almost entirely, however to objects in the United States. There is one very notable exception among them, and that is her gift of $150,000 made three years ago to the American college for girls at Constantinople.

The New York Banker Who Has Offered to Found a German University

One of the most munificent gifts of fered to Europe recently by American citizen of means is that of Jacob H. Schiff, the well-known New York banker, for the establishment of a university at Frankfort-on-the-Main. The sum that Mr. Schiff offered to devote to this purpose was $1,000,000. Mr. Schiff has for a good many years been noted as a philanthropist and a benefactor of the city that has been his home since his early manhood, and he has also been known as one of the largest contributors to funds for the relief of distress in foreign lands. In Rutgers Square, in New York city, there stands a handsome stone fountain which bears simply this inscription: "Presented to the city of New York—1895." It was some time after this gift had been made that the fact that Mr. Schiff was the donor became known. Much of his charitable and beneficent work has been carried on in the same anonymous way.

In selecting Frankfort-on-the-Main as the site for a European university of his foundation, Mr. Schiff was influenced by the fact that that German city was his birthplace. His education was received in the schools of Frankfort, and it was there that he entered the banking and brokerage business. Mr. Schiff was 18 years of age when he left his native city and settled in New York.

A Steel Magnate's East Indian Benefactions.

Many thousands of dollars of American money have been expended in establishing medical and educational institutions in British India through the agency of missionaries, and it may be quite generally supposed that all institutions founded in that country by American money were promoted through the same agency. It may be interesting, therefore, to recall here the founding of two which came about in quite a different way.

In the winter of 1902-03, Henry Phipps, the steel magnate of Pittsburg and New York, made an extended tour in the Far East, traveling a good deal in India. While there he was received by the viceroy and vicereine, Lord and Lady Curzon. They were old friends of Mr. Phipps, who had known them in the United States and in England. Lady Curzon, who was Miss Daisy Leiter of Chicago, interested Mr. Phipps in her pet charity, the Victoria Memorial Midwifery fund, and he contributed $10,000 to it. In his talks with Lord Curzon as well as from his own observations he became impressed with the practical needs of the country, and accordingly he gave to the viceroy the sum of $50,000 to be expended on some practical object, leaving it to Lord Curzon himself to decide just what that object should be.

It was decided to devote the money to the foundation of two institutions, a Pasteur institute in Southern India, and an agricultural laboratory or college in Cashmere. The government of India furnished the sites and agreed to maintain the two institutions. Through these institutions scientific education has been considerably furthered in the Indian empire.

Mr. Phipps, who made his fortune in association with Andrew Carnegie in the steel business, has been greatly interested in the campaign for the prevention of tuberculosis, and he has given large sums toward this work in various cities of the United States. Last March Mr. Phipps began to divide his immense realty holdings in Pittsburg and elsewhere among his sons.

Other Liberal Givers to Foreign Objects.

Andrew Carnegie has given more than any other American, as may naturally be supposed, to objects in foreign lands. Carnegie libraries dot the map of Europe as well as that of the United States. There are Carnegie hero funds in practically all the countries of Europe. He has given $1,560,000 for a "Temple of Peace" at The Hague, for the use of the permanent court of arbitration, besides $250,000 for a library for the court. He has given $5,000,000 for scientific research in Scotland, and to his birthplace, Dunfermline, Scotland, he has presented an entire estate, Pittencrieff park and glen, for a public park, together with a theater and a library, at a cost of more than a million dollars.

There are a good many objects in England that attest the generosity of the late George W. Childs of Philadelphia. Mr. Childs was a great lover of the English poets, and his gifts betoken that fact. Twenty-five years ago he erected a public drinking fountain at Stratford-on-Avon as a memorial to Shakespeare and ten years before that he had placed a memorial window in Westminster Abbey to the memory of the poets, Herbert and Cowper. He also placed a window in St. Margaret's church, Westminster, in memory of Milton. These are only a few of the gifts of a similar sort that were made by Mr. Childs.

Graduation, with its attendant programs and functions, has taken hold of the city and nearly every family is interested in the finishing of some of its members or friends either in grades, high school or college. Mothers have been busy preparing the wardrobes of the girl graduates and making pretty little gifts for the friends who are in the finishing class and the shops have been attractively displaying numberless pretty little articles for gifts.

Alumni banquets have taken a good share of the time and next week will see the closing exercises of the state normal school here.

The return of college students will soon be of interest and many parents have already left for colleges and schools to attend the closing exercises.

With a number of June weddings planned, parties for the brides-to-be are claiming a good share of attention, but in addition to these affairs there is very little going on in Duluth's social circles. Late housecleaning and dressmaking have kept the matrons and maids alike busy and not even the little informal gatherings have received much attention.

With the opening of the boat club this week and the regular summer dances the interest is again awakened in the out-of-door affairs, and picnic and sailing parties, launch and automobile parties are becoming more and more numerous.

Events of Interest

Washington, June 1.—Under the spell of an almost ideal day, the president and Mrs. Taft gave the last of the series of the lawn parties in the White House grounds yesterday. The military and naval aides to the president were clad in white, the marine band in scarlet and blue and members of the diplomatic corps appeared in showy uniforms with much gold lace. Hundreds of government officials and members of congress with their wives were among the other guests.

The young women of the Blessed Virgin sodality were hostesses at their annual May festival last evening at the cathedral hall. The fetsival this year was in the form of a strawberry social and prettily appointed tables were set throughout the hall, red carnations, ferns and red shaded candles being used in decorating.

The Cathedral Boys' orchestra played during the supper and gave two numbers in the evening. Mrs. Leo Hall, and Miss Helen McCormack sang delightful songs; Miss Cora Davis,

Folk Dances, Orchestra Music and Playlet at Social Center Entertainment

ALICE RABE, LILLIAN BERGSTROM, HAZEL ROBERTS AND MARGUERITE BRIAND.

With pretty folk dances well given, with good music by the East End orchestra and a delightful little play the members of the social center at the Salter school entertained an audience which filled the assembly hall of the school to the doors last evening. This was their first entertainment and every one who attended was delighted with it and the performers received hearty applause.

Among the dances which were especially good the Indian dance given by fourteen little boys in full regalia with handsome feathered headdresses made a big hit and was repeated at the end of the program by request.

Miss Helen McLeod in Highland costume danced a highland fling with grace and vigor and responded with a second Scotch dance for an encore.

Fou young women, Miss Alice Rabe, Lillian Bergstrom, Hazel Roberts and Marguerite Briand, were graceful in the Irish lilt, which they did with precision in effective costumes of green skirts and black bodice over a white peasant blouse.

The dances by the members of the regular circle were the "Ace of Diamonds," the Russian dance and a pretty Morris dance, "Maid of the Mill." Costumes for these added to their attractiveness.

Mrs. Helen Shores Savage, teacher at the social center, trained the dancers in all of these numbers except the solo Scotch dance and their performance reflects credit upon her work.

The little playlet given by five girls was the big feature of the program and full of comedy proved an entertaining number. They all played with a naturalness and ease which added to the attractiveness of the piece. Miss Elva Olssen as "Freua," was the bravest of the party and Miss Alva Pattenaude as "Valerie," used her gun in a manner which concerned the rest of the party. Miss Margaret Gruesen played "Peggy," Miss Louise Coe "Mabel" and Miss Martha Gruesen "Edith" with equal ability. Each one represented a distinct type of girl and each character was well portrayed. Mrs. George Morgan and Mrs. F. A. Patrick conducted the rehearsals.

The entertainment, which was given to raise money to pay for the basketball equipment which has been installed in the hall at the Salter school, netted a sum more than sufficient for this purpose and was fully enjoyed by a large number.

Miss Mary Quinn and Mrs. A. V. Kelley gave interesting readings Miss Mary Boyle played a creditable piano number and Bishop McGolrick made a few interesting remarks.

The hostesses at the tables were: Miss Charlotte Crowley, Miss Elizabeth O'Connor, Miss Mary Courtney, Miss Eva McNamara, Miss Katherine Wickham, Miss Mary Boyle, Miss Theresa Long, Miss Nellie Stark, Miss Margaret Haley, Miss Jane Davis, Miss Octavia Forgette, Miss Gertrude Fogarty, Miss May Brown, Miss Margaret La Rue, Miss Helen Fitzgerald, Miss Nellie Sullivan, Miss Christine Quigley, Miss Mary Quigley and Miss Beatrice Brophy.

NORMAL NOTES

Miss Marian Brown, one of this year's graduates, was the soloist in chapel Monday morning. Her selection, "Lord God, Be Merciful," was very much enjoyed by all the students. President Bohannon then read an amusing extract from one of Kate Douglass Wiggins' books, "A Child's Journey with Dickens."

Miss Babcock, critic teacher in the kindergarten, entertained the training girls in her department at a delightful trip up the river on Memorial day. Those making up the party were: Ruth Ericson, Helen Hawkes, Dorthy Gordon, Claire Schiller, Bessie Quimby, Dolly Armundson, Bess Wagner, Anne Einsweller, Edna Savage, Maybelle Whiteside, Alyce McCarthy, Anne Risatti, Helen Grimes, Henrietta Peacha, Edith Canfield, Alphie Anderson, Mabel Smith, Ina Lind, Sarah Koop, Harriet Stryker, Evangeline Stephenson, Eva Potter, Mabel Baillie, and Margaret Clark.

Wednesday evening the senior girls prepared and served an elaborate four-course dinner for the members of the faculty. The room was decorated with yellow flowers, and the table decorations were yellow violets and marsh marigolds. The place cards, which were made by some of the seniors, were golden butterflies perched upon lace almond baskets. The preparation and serving of this dinner constituted the final examination in domestic science. The guests were Mesdames W. A. Owens, E. W. Bohannon, Beard, C. H. Frazee, Evelyn R. Lyon; Misses Jack Post, Chapman, Cornish, Taylor, Pettingill, Burch, Ely, Babcock, Williams, Godfrey, Emanuelson, Matteson; Messrs. E. W. Bohannon, L. W. Kline, W. A. Owens, C. B. Wallace, C. H. Frazee, E. Van Cleef.

Next week is the closing week of the school year, and promises to be a busy one as the last week usually is. Examinations will be held Monday and Tuesday mornings. Tuesday afternoon the closing exercises of the model school will be held. The children of the seventh and eighth grades are preparing to present Haydeen's Toy Symphony concert, while the six lower grades will give a charming fairy cantata, "Midsummer Eve." Wednesday is class day, and after the usual exercises, the juniors and seniors will unite in a picnic. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Washburn will hold their annual reception in honor of the seniors. The commencement address will be delivered Thursday morning by President George E. Vincent of the state university on the subject, "The Larger Selfishness." J. L. Washburn, resident director of the normal board, will present diplomas to about fifty students. Rev. J. C. Faries of the Glen Avon church will deliver the baccalaureate sermon tomorrow afternoon in the chapel, and this evening the alumnae and seniors will gather at an informal banquet at which the class of 1907 will be the guests of honor.

Miss Esther Minor visited in Superior Thursday.

Some of the teachers celebrated Memorial day by giving a picnic supper in Chester park.

There was no session of school on Thursday, and the exercises in honor of Memorial day were held Wednesday noon. The program was opened by "America," after which Capt. Marcus F. Bates read Lincoln's Gettysburg address. Mr. McCoy, one of the Spanish war veterans, then spoke briefly to the students. Capt. Bates followed with an interesting talk which he told many amusing incidents

Might Be Dead Today

Garden City, Kas.—In a letter from Mrs. James Hamner, of this city, she says, "I firmly believe that I would not be alive today, if it were not for Cardui. I had been a sufferer from womanly troubles all my life, until I found that great remedy. I feel that I can't praise it too highly." Are you a woman, suffering from some of the troubles, to which a woman is peculiarly liable? If so, why not try Cardui, the woman's tonic? You can rely on Cardui. It is purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and acts gently but surely, without bad after-effects. 'Twill help you. Ask your druggist.

Would Like to Call the White House "Home"

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE AND FAMILY.

Should La Follette succeed in wrestling the Republican nomination from President Taft and Ex-President Roosevelt and be elected, the new mistress of the White House would be a suffragette and "new woman." Mrs. La Follette is a law graduate, a stump speaker and a contributor to newspapers. She has served an apprenticeship in an executive mansion, for her husband was governor of Wisconsin from 1901 to 1907. She was the first woman graduate of the Wisconsin law school and won a prize as an orator. She was Belle Case of Warabee, Wis., before she married Mr. La Follette.

Delay Spells "Ruin"

For your Furs if they are not kept in a place where moths cannot reach them. There is but ONE SAFE WAY to keep them from becoming ruined by moths, lost by fire or burglary and that way is to store them in our Cold Dry Air Storage Vault, which is designed expressly for the storage and safe keeping of furs, costly winter garments, rugs, tapestries, etc. It is absolutely fire and burglar proof, which alone is of great value to the owner of goods placed in our care; this is protection that cannot be obtained in any other way.

All fur garments are thoroughly cleaned when received, after which they are hung on hangers in such a way that the Cold, Dry Air can circulate freely throughout.

One season in our charge and your furs will prove what we say.

During this past week an exhibit of representative work done during the year in the training school has been shown in all the departments except the kindergarten. This exhibit will continue during the early part of next week. The departments of drawing, manual training and domestic science are represented, and specimen copies of various pieces of written work are shown, which serve as an index to the development of individual pupils and to the work that has been covered. A splendid improvement in penmanship is indicated in much of the work.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

FINE PROGRAM.

Mrs. Day's Pupils Give Creditable Recital at Y. M. C. A.

MRS. D. H. DAY'S piano pupils gave a most successful recital last night before a large and very appreciative audience at the Y. M. C. A. hall. The pupils all played well and gave evidence of the careful, conscientious training that they have had. Through all their work the strong personality of their teacher was manifest, and their careful attention to the use of the pedal, to tone production and to correct phrasing made their playing a pleasure to listen to.

The little pianists were assisted by Miss Wally Heymar, violinist, and Miss Alice Mae Brown, soprano. Miss Heymar's selection was "Hungarian Airs," by Keler Bela, which she played with her typical dash and fire, following it with a strongly demanded encore, giving Schumann's "Traumerei."

Miss Brown sang as her number, "A May Morning," by Denza, which was so well received by the audience that she was compelled to respond with an encore.

A large bouquet of pink roses was used on the piano and many of the little performers received pretty bouquets. Master Francis Sullivan, the only boy on the program handing them to them before they left the stage.

The second of the pupil's recitals will take place on Monday evening, and the pupils—a different set this time—will again be assisted by Miss Heymar and Miss Brown.

Graduated in Music.

Miss Ruby Mae Krouse received a diploma of graduation and a first grade certificate as teacher of music at a recital given Wednesday eevning at the Flaaten Conservatory of Music by piano pupils of the C. Sharp club who

LADIES' NIGHT.

Masons Have Pleasant Banquet and Program at Temple.

ABOUT 300 people enjoyed the informal banquet and reception which Ionic Lodge No. 186, A. F. and A. M. gave last evening at the Masonic temple. A supper was served by the women of St. Paul's Episcopal church, the tables being prettily decorated with carnations. Warren E. Greer Presided as toastmaster, the two speakers being Burr Porter, who gave a short sketch of the origin of the lodge, and H. A. Carmichael, who responded to the subject, "The Ladies."

A. F. M. Custance furnished a program of musical numbers which was of general interest. Miss Frances Burris, Miss Maude Matteson and others sang vocal solos and the high school chorus gave several numbers. The famous Scottish Rite quartet, Don Cole, Don Gearhart, Charles O. Applehagen and A. R. Bjorquist, sang a number of the songs which they gave on the streets and at the convention meetings in Los Angeles during the recent convention of the Shriners there, and every number made a distinct hit. Most of the songs were parodies on popular and well-known songs.

ALUMNAE OF DULUTH NORMAL SCHOOL WILL ASSEMBLE AT BANQUET

MISS VIVIAN BURRELL, Alumnae President.

PRESIDENT E. W. BOHANNON.

MISS ADELINE BUCKLEY.

MISS VIOLET ROBINSON.

THE alumnae banquet of the Duluth state normal school which will be held this evening at Torrence hall should prove most attractive to the former students of this school as a most interesting program has been arranged. The event will be of the most informal nature that old friends and classmates may make the most of their opportunity to discuss old times.

Toasts and musical numbers will be given by members of the faculty and the graduates and a special feature of the evening will be the birthday party of the class of 1907.

Following a new plan the class which graduated five years ago will have a special table and will be especially featured. Miss Hazel Owens has arranged the program of talks for the class, and Miss Lillian Olsen, Miss Rae Leland and Mrs. Arthur Hanford, formerly Miss Elrose Taylor, will speak. Mr. and Mrs. Calvin How will be especial guests at this table as Mrs. How, formerly Miss Carey of the normal faculty, was the 1907 class advisor.

Miss Vivian Burrell, president of the Alumnae association of the school, has had general charge of the event and will preside.

President Bohannon of the normal school will give a talk and Dr. Linus W. Kline of the faculty will also respond to a toast. J. L. Washburn, resident director of the normal board, has also been invited as a guest of honor.

The order of the program follows:

Welcome ..... President Bohannon.
"Trials of First Year's Teaching" .. Miss Adeline Buckley.
"Cradle Roll" ..... Miss Violet Robinson.
1907 Class Birthday Party ..... Miss Hazel Owens in Charge.
Selection ..... Normal Glee Club, Directed By Miss Genevieve Taylor.
"This Year's Crop" ..... Miss Anna Einsweiler From 1912 Class.
"Esprit de Corps" ..... Dr. Linus W. Kline.
Business Meeting; Election of Next Year's Officers .....

Cincinnati Suraffgists in Role of Bill Posters

MRS. SUSAN FITZERALD AND MISS LOUISE HALL.

Two prominent suffragette women of Cincinnati recently acted as bill posters for the cause. They are Miss Louise Hall, who is wielding the brush, and Mrs. Susan Fitzgerald, who is assisting in attaching the posters. After completing their labors, the women addressed the large crowd that had been attracted by the spectacle.

THREE NOTABLE PROGRAMS WILL BE PLAYED BY MINNEAPOLIS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

ONCE more on Friday and Saturday next will the famous Minneapolis symphony orchestra delight the music lovers of Duluth with one of their incomparablt festivals of music. In this country a series of concerts is known as a festival, where a great orchestra is assisted by a quartet of eminent vocal soloists in addition to the orchestra's own individual instrumental soloists. This year the soloists with the orchestra are: Lucille Stevenson, soprano; Genevieve Wheat, contralto, both of whom are general favorites here through past appearances; Joseph Shenke, tenor, and Horatio Connell, baritone. These last two are newcomers. Both singers are artists of the highest reputation Schenke recently sang in Columbus, Ohio, and the press spoke of him having a voice, full, rounded, sweet and under perfect control and compared it favorably with any other concert tenor of this country or any other country. Horatio Connell was soloist at the Detroit festival and it was the general verdict that no more finished or artistic singer had appeared at the May festival in years. Of the conductor of these festivals, Emil Oberhoffer, nothing need be said. Six years ago through the efforts of Duluth enthusiasts Emil Oberhoffer and his orchestra commenced their visits to Duluth and during that period there has been no break in these annual feasts of music by the now famous orchestra. Six years ago it was in its infancy. Now it is one of the leading orchestras of the country and is without question among the first four great orchestras of the land. Emil Oberhoffer is the man who has placed it there, backed as he has been by the wealthy men of Minneapolis to the extent of $60,000 annually to carry on this great work in the cause of musical education. It is the wealth of Minneapolis men in the first instance that makes it possible for Duluth to have these wonderful orchestral concerts.

The Program.

For the festival on Friday and Saturday next, notable programs have been prepared for the three concerts and for the special school matinee. These programs include compositions that appeal to all tastes and are the result of deep study on the part of Emil Oberhoffer and the Duluth committee. They are the best that can be offered and no more can be said. The advance subscription has been large, very large, but no advance subscription begins to cover the expense of bringing the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra to Duluth. To bring the orchestra up to its present high standard, the highest standard it has attained since it was organized has cost money, and in consequence the cost of bringing the orchestra has been gradually increasing. With a view to meeting this increased cost the committee members make an appeal to the citizens of Duluth to increase their own support to the annual festival and thus make them permanent in the future. There is no idea of making a profit out of these festivals of music and never has been. They could not possibly pay for the labor and thought expended upon them. They have been given by the committee for the joy of doing it, but the time has now come for a more liberal support if they are to be maintained. To give all a further opportunity of studying the programs to be presented at this festival they are given in full once more.

W. R. C. PARTY.

Six Members Will Entertain at Cards Thursday Afternoon.

SIX members of the Woman's Relief Corps will be the hostesses at the regular monthly card party of the corps, which will be held in Memorial hall on Thursday afternoon, June 6, commencing at 2:30 o'clock. Both bridge and five hundred will be played during the afternoon and the hostesses are Mrs. M. W. Nott, Mrs. W. M. Thompson, Mrs. J. H. O'Leary, Mrs. George Brown, Mrs. J. A. Scott and Miss J. Stevenson.

Plans Ready.

MEMBERS of the committee on arrangements for the art exhibit which will open at the courthouse on Thursday evening have practically finished all plans for the ten days' exhibit. No regular list of hosts and hostesses for the opening evening has been made out as all of the old members of the Duluth Art association, under whose auspices the exhibit will be held, will act informally as a reception committee for that evening. Music by an orchestra will add to the attractiveness and large crowds are expected every afternoon and evening as the displays will be of unusual value and interest and the exhibit is open and free to the general public for the ten days, commencing Thursday, June 6, and ending Sunday evening, June 16.

At every session besides the first evening and on Sundays groups of representative women will be in attendance to aid in any way they can.

Prize Posters.

ALEXANDER McDONALD received first prize in the student contest for the drawing of the best poster which the art association will use to advertise the free art exhibit which will be held in Duluth, June 6 to 16, at the courthouse. The award was made yesterday by the poster committee of the association at a meeting at the normal school. Miss Katherine A. King, Miss Cecil Palmer and C. C. Rosenkranz were the judges.

Mr. McDonald's poster of which 200 or more copies will be made, is an effective drawing of a Roman temple with strong lettering. It was chosen by the committee as best meeting their requirements of good drawing and adaptability for advertising. His prize was $5.

The second prize of $3 was given to Stephen McGiffert, whose drawing was of a Greek temple well planned, but unfinished. Miss Helen Dryer won third prize, $2, for an artistic drawing of the Parthenon and the posters which were given honorable mention were those by Clifford Baker, Horace Blakney and Miss Myrtle Brandt.

Aftenro Society.

The Aftenro society will hold the last meeting of the year next Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. A. Gunderson, 6131 East Superior street, at 2:30 o'clock. As no meeting will be held again until Sept. 1 a large attendance is desired at this meeting.

Teachers' Meeting.

The Duluth Graded Elementary Union of Sunday School Workers will meet Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Endion M. E. church, Nineteenth avenue east and First street.

The devotional service will be under the direction of C. E. Gravatt and Mis Lena Ward will give a vocal solo.

A short business session will follow and the topic for the evening will be "Juniors, Who Are They and What Do We Owe Them?" Mrs. C. A. Graves of the First Presbyterian Sunday school will speak on this subject and a Round Table session will follow with sectional meetings for the beginner, primary and junior Sunday school teachers.

Go to Convention.

Miss Mabel Fulton will leave tomorrow for the Twin Cities, where she will spend a week. She will attend the annual convention of the Minnesota State Music Teachers' association to be held at the Hotel Ryan, St. Paul, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Flaaten will also go down Monday to attend this convention.

Philathea Class.

The Philathea class of the First Presbyterian church will hold its monthly business meeting in the class room Monday evening at 8 o'clock. A social hour will follow the business session.

Linnaea Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Linnaea club will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Foresters' hall, Room B.

Missionary Society.

The women's Missionary Society of the Lester Park M. E. church will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. William Vaughn, 5333 London road.

THE EVENING STORY

THE MAN WHO DIDN'T PLAY FAIR

A Tale of Cards, A Little Bit of "Cheating," and a Girl.

By Flora Gaylord.

Harringway rose from the card table and yawned widely, ending his yawn with a sudden laugh when he noticed that he had infected young Middlemas opposite and set him yawning also.

"You've all the luck tonight, Cairns," he said, and pushed some notes of gold across the table to his host. "Middlemas! Put your hand before your mouth, man! Come on; who goes home?"

Middlemas arose, still enjoying his yawn. "I'm dead tired," he said, "and broke, Wilfred, I'll have to send you a check."

Sir Wilfred Cairns smiled. "That's all right."

The fourth member of the party, David Steadman, a youngster of about 19, leaned forward. "I'll have to send you a check, too," he said, speaking jerkily as though the words were difficult to utter.

"No hurry." Cairns rose to see his guests off.

"Coming Steadman?" Middlemas asked over his shoulder.

Cairns interrupted before David could speak.

"Wait a bit, Steadman, if you're not in a hurry."

"All right," David said, and crossed to the fire, as the others went out.

In a few moments Cairns came back.

"I had a note from your mother," he began at once. David swung round with a little gasp. It seems you've been saying nice things about me in your letters home," Cairns went on, smiling. "So she asks me to go down to Baronswood when you go home next week. It's awfully decent of her, and I've written to say that I'll be delighted." He glanced at David, a little surprised at his silence.

"I'm—I'm very glad—awfully glad," David said at last, with nervous quickness, "I didn't know she had written."

"Will there be a large party?" Cairns asked.

"I don't know," David said shortly, and turned to go. "We'll go down together, of course. I'll meet you at Paddington at 10—there's a good train at a quarter past. Good night." He went off hurriedly.

"What the dickens is the matter with him?" Cairns muttered.

His eyes wandered to the untidy heap of cards on the table, and he smiled. "I's hope there are some others there who play cards as badly as he does."

Sir Wilfred Cairns stood before his bedroom window at Baronswood and stared at the smooth lawn. He had never been so sad in his life before.

Instead of a handsome country mansion with a gay week-end party, he found himself in a quiet country house in a small country village, and after his kindly welcome by Mrs. Steadman, a sweetly gracious woman, on the sunny side of 45, he had come rather disgustedly to his room to plan some sudden excuse for a sudden return to town.

Good-looking, always well dressed, with the straight upright carriage of a soldier, Wilfred was a man about town of the better type, taking life good naturedly as it came and troubling little about tomorrow.

His income was microscopic, and he managed to keep clear of financial disaster only by fairly steady luck at the card table and on the turf.

Lately things had gone so badly, however, that he had turned his thoughts in the direction of some more reliable form of earning his living and he had been tempted to accept an offered post as military attache at the British legation to one of the Balkan states; but in the meantime he had looked forward to his visit to Baronswood and its expected large house-party as an expected chance of refilling the empty treasury. David had quite unintentionally perhaps misled him completely, and in the midst of his disgust he smiled a little at his own discomfiture.

"The way the youngster chucked money about," he was thinking, "took me in absolutely. And gamble! He must have lost a cool hundred to me alone in the last month. But where on earth did he get it from? Things don't look over prosperous or lively here. I'll send a wire to Harringway telling him to wire me to return to town at once. Couldn't stand a week-end here!

He leaned on the sill and put his head on the window to get a better view of the country. Voices drifted up from an open window beneath him.

* * * "The fact is Vi, I—I've—Oh, you may as well know—I've spent all my money."

"David, all of it! After mother scraped and scraped to let you have it!"

"Yes; every shilling. I couldn't help it, and I'm owing a lot. I couldn't pay my fare down here till I'd pawned—"

"David!"

Wilfred drew his head in with a jerk. The terrible anguish in the voice of the last speaker made him suddenly realize that he was eavesdropping. Still gripping the window-sill he leaned well back out of hearing and stared before him in utter bewilderment.

This then was the explanation of David's apparent wealth. Wilfred knew he was in London studying medicine—he had met him through his cousin—Middlemas, another medical student—and presumably the youngster had spent his year's allowance in a couple of months and got himself into debt as well.

But who was he speaking to? David's voice he had recognized; but who was the girl? Vi; Violet, of course.

After a little he went thoughtfully downstairs, disturbed at the scrap of conversation he had overheard. Mrs. Steadman met him in the little hall.

"Ah, Sir Wilfred! I want you to meet my daughter. She was out when you came." She led him into a pleasant sitting room, with wide French windows that opened on the lawn. Near one of the open windows David was standing talking to a slender young girl, dark-haired and with dark brown eyes set in a beautiful oval face.

"Violet, this is Sir Wilfred Cairns; my daughter, Sir Wilfred," Mrs. Steadman said. The girl came towards him, her hand outstretched, and Wilfred felt a little glow of admiration at her pluck, for he knew from his eavesdropping that under her calm mask she must be tortured to the verge of tears by grief and anxiety.

The evening passed far less monotonously than Wilfred had thought possible, and as he went upstairs to bed he remembered that he had not telegraphed to Harringway.

"I'll wire tomorrow," he said. But he did not wire next day nor the next, and in a day or two he had forgotten about it altogether.

The days passed very pleasantly except when they—Violet, Wilfred and David—visited at some of the neighboring houses or when other people came to call; then Violet talked with others and Wilfred found himself taking a sulky dislike to everybody she talked to.

The scrap of overheard conversation haunted him and one evening as he entered the sitting room suddenly he found Violet in tears. She rose in confusion and would have hurried out, she passed him he laid his hand on her arm.

"Violet! What's the matter? He had never used her Christian name before, but somehow it came out quite naturally.

She pressed her handkerchief to her eyes, hastily drying her tears and shook her head. "Nothing," she said, and turned her head aside.

"There must be something," he said. One hand still held her hand lightly. He slipped his other arm around her shoulders protectingly and stooped a little to say quietly: "Come; perhaps I can help." She stood quite still and though she turned her head slowly and met his eyes she did not speak.

"I think I know—or, I guess," he went on, "is it about David?"

Startled she drew away and his arm fell back to his side. "How did you know?" Then, speaking quickly, she went on: "No, no, thank you. There's nothing really." And she left the room without looking at him again.

For some minutes Wilfred stood where she had left him, staring out at the darkening garden.

"Violet," he said softly. He was glad he had called her Violet. He took a deep breath and walked slowly upstairs to his room, thinking hard. From a portmanteau he took a couple of packs of cards and slipped them into his pockets, he went off to look for David. He found him in his little "den" alone, sitting at the table with his head mournfully bowed on his hands. He started up as Wilfred spoke.

"I'm getting rusty; let's have a game," and he threw the cards on the table.

"I—I don't think—I'm keen," David stammered, flushing with embarrassment.

Wilfred was not in a mood to argue with him, so he sat down, brushing objection aside. "Nonsense, man; come on," he said sharply.

David gripped the edge of the table. "All right," he said recklessly, and reached for one of the packs.

They played for a couple of hours and in that time Wilfred lost heavily and with a steadiness that might have made David suspicious had he been less excited.

"My luck's dead out," Wilfred said, grimly counting the score. "You're a hundred and ninety-six pounds to the good, I see. Mental arithmetic was never my strong point, but I think that cancels your indebtedness to me and leaves a margin of—let's see—a hundred and sixty-seven. You'll have to take a check for the hundred and fifty; I'll stump up the odd seventeen pounds now."

He spoke quickly, almost irritably, telling himself at the same time that he was no good at this sort of philanthropy. His head was bent over the scrap of paper on which he had been scribbling and when he glanced up he found David's eyes fixed on him. Suspicion had come slowly as Wilfred was speaking.

David scrambled to his feet, jerking his chair so violently that it overturned and fell with a thud.

"You haven't played fair!" he gasped. "You've let me win!"

Wilfred leaned back at his ease. "That's a nasty thing to say, young man," he said sharply, then with cutting emphasis: "Permit me to point out that you yourself play so badly that you can scarcely be called a reliable judge of my play."

David trembling a little with anger and hurt with pride, pointed at the £17 Wilfred had thrown on the table: but before he could speak the door opened and Mrs. Steadman entered hurriedly.

"I heard something fall!" she gasped breathlessly.

"Oh, the chair?" As she sighed with relief her eye caught the gold on the table. "David, dear, have you been playing cards for money?"

David picked up the fallen chair and dropped heavily into it without speaking. Wilfred became conscious that Violet was standing in the doorway and, suddenly, dismayed, he stepped away from the table. Deuced awkward, he thought.

"Only a trifle, Mrs. Steadman," he said aloud trying to pass over the situation with a laugh. "And I am sorry to say he has been winning."

"Oh! David, Mrs. Steadman exclaimed. "Your guest's money? You cannot take it of course."

David realizing all at once what the money meant to him, bowed his head silently and made a despairing gesture toward the table.

Wilfred broke in almost violently. "But so far David has only got a few pounds out of me, Mrs. Steadman," he said, going to her. "A mere trifle." He took her hand and looked at her troubled face, trying to smile confidently, but conscious always of Violet standing in the doorway. "And I couldn't take it back, could I? Debts of honor, you know. But I'll promise you David won't play cards for money again. Don't look so distressed, Mrs. Steadman it's nothing really."

He bent and kissed the hand he held and looked up again smiling. "Come, I simply won't talk about it any more. I'm off to bed. He squeezed her hand and nodded to David. "Good night."

"Good night," Mrs. Steadman said, smiling a little doubtfully.

Wilfred went quickly to the door. Violet had gone but he met her in the corridor.

"How could you! she burst out. How could you let poor David risk losing money when you said you knew? And she left him standing there silent.

There was little sleep for Wilfred Cairns that night to put it plainly, there was none. For the first time for many years he cross-examined himself, and dawn found him woefully discouraged at the result.

"Thirty years," he thought "and nothing to show for it." Yes I'll go to the Balkans. It's a beginning. And Violet? He tried not to think of Violet or of what Violet must think of him.

Neither Mrs. Steadman, who had a headache, nor David appeared in the morning, so Violet and Wilfred breakfasted together in an uneasy silence. As Violet rose from the table, she summoned up courage to say:

"I'm sorry for what I said last night, David told me this morning what you had done."

Wilfred's embarrassment was almost painful. Don't talk about it he begged. "I'm no good at that sort of thing, or David wouldn't have guessed." His expression changed and he went on hurriedly.

"But, of course, what David imagined about my play is nonsense."

She was sniffing at him and he stood before her, blushing like a naughty schoolboy caught in the act.

"How—how sweet of you to—to lie—about it," she said deliberately, and smiled again.

He went across the room to her and took her in his arms, pinning her arms helplessly to her side and crushing her very close and repeating her dear name: "Violet—Violet—Violet" for the pleasure of saying it. Her head drooped forward on his breast and her body was shaking in his arms by a gust of sobbing.

"Violet—dear!" he whispered.

She raised her face and looked at him, the tears standing on her cheeks, and looking down, he thought how wonderful was the brown of her eyes and how alive they were. For the briefest second they stared at each other. Then her eyes closed slowly, and stooping suddenly, he kissed her, crushing her face against his own.

Sir Wilfred Cairns didn't go to the Balkans. Instead he acted the part of bridegroom at one of the prettiest weddings that Baronswood had ever seen.

David Steadman, M. D., the famous specialist, has never played a game of cards since that momentous game in his little den.

SAY BOLAND LIED.

Loomis and Jennin Contradict Archbald Case Testimony.

Washington, June 1.—Edward E. Loomis, vice president and general manager of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad, has demanded that the house judiciary committee clear his name of "vicious lies" which he said appeared in the testimony concerning him in the investigation of charges against Judge R. W. Archbald of the commerce court.

Loomis was indignant over the statements of C. G. Boland, who told the committee that he understood that Judge Archbald, Mr. Loomis and President Truesdaye of the Lackawanna were to be the beneficiaries of a $60,000 increase in the price of land for which Boland and his brother were to sell the Marion Coal company to the railroad.

Mr. Loomis denounced this testimony as an "unqualified lie" without a particle of truth to sustain it. He testified that he believed that Judge Archbald's interest in the sale of the Marion Coal company to the railroad company was simply the result of Archbald's friendship for the Bolands and his acquaintance with the railroad officials.

William S. Jennin, vice president and general counsel for the Lackawanna, denied that an attempt had been made to secure from Judge Archbald, when he was on the district bench, a decision which would eliminate the Marion Coal company as a complainant against the Lackawanna before the interstate commerce commission.

REMBRANDT PAINTING IS SOLD FOR $80,300.

Paris, June 1.—At the continuation of the sale of the collection of the Marquis Landolfo Carcano, the principal lots disposed of consisted of portraits. A portrait supposed to be that of his sister, by Rembrandt, brought $80,300, while a portrait, "Belle Nani" by Veroneze sold for $39,600. A marble head of John the Baptist by Rodin was sold for $536. The total realized in the two days' sale is $700,000.

SPECIAL FEDERAL GRAND JURY IN CHICAGO COURT.

Chicago, June 1.—A special federal grand jury has been ordered by United States District Judge Carpenter. Federal officials were silent as to the reason for summoning the jurors, and would neither affirm nor deny that the new jury would be asked to investigate the testimony of witnesses in the recent packers' trial.

Trinity Lutheran Free—At the Trinity Lutheran Free church, confirmation service will begin at 10 a. m., Rev. B. L. Opdahl will preach the sermon on the text for the day. Rev. O. J. Flagstad will address the class. There will be no Sunday school as the children are invited to be present at the morning service.

NOTICE!

Rev. Robert Forbes, D. D., and Bishop J. W. Hamilton, D. D., LL. D. of Boston, will be the speakers at the Annual Rally of the Methodist Alliance in First Methodist Episcopal church, Tuesday evening, June 4. The services will begin at 8 o'clock.

DANDELION DIGGING CONTEST BY CHILDREN.

Sedalia, Mo., May 31.—The dandelion digging contest, of a week's duration, is ended. The closing registrations showed a total of sixteen and one-half tons of the weed.

From daybreak till the closing hour wagon loads were hauled from schools where the children had accumulated the weeds in their effort to win the prizes.

Franklin school, the smallest in Sedalia, was awarded the prize of $5 in cash offered by the Sedalia Democrat. The cash offered by Osage chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was divided among five boys.

Franklin school collected a few pounds less than five tons, and the greatest number of pounds brought in by individuals aggregated two and one-half tons. Harry Lankeuan was awarded first prize in the individual contest.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES

The topic to be studied by Christian Endeavors this week is "The Christian Virtues—VI Fidelity—Rev. 2:1-10." This will be consecration meeting. The following notices have been reported to the local union.

First Presbyterian Christian Endeavor society will meet at 6:45 p. m. in the lecture room of the church and will be led by Miss Mildred Wiltse.

Westminster Presbyterian society will meet at 6:45 p. m. in the parlors of the church and will be under the leadership of Miss Mabel Melin.

Union Church Christian Endeavor society will omit its regular Sunday evening meeting on account of having charge of the meeting at the poor farm in the afternoon.

June 9 the First Presbyterian Christian Endeavor society will have charge of the meeting at the poor farm.

There will be a meeting of convention committees at the First Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening, June 4, and all chairmen of these committees are urged to attend.

Preparations for the coming convention, June 20 to 23, are reported going ahead in a satisfactory manner. Chester Park has been chosen as the scene of the early Sunday morning service. C. J. Hunter of St. Paul has been secured to take charge of the music and the state program committee is doing its best to secure Ralph Connor, the author, for a Christian citizenship address.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Union Church Christian Endeavor society will be held at the home of C. J. Hocken, 630 North Seventeenth avenue east, Monday evening, June 3.

DULUTHIAN IN THE OLD WORLD

Rev. M. S. Rice Tells of His Trip Across the Atlantic and His Arrival at Venice—Something About the Azores and Gibraltar—The Paupers of Venice, Its Streets of Water, Palaces and Cathedrals.

REV. M. S. RICE.

On Board the Sant Anna, Mid-Sea.—To the Editor of The Herald: If there is space in your valuable paper for an open letter to your readers from such an one as am I, I will start our correspondence with a word from the neighborhood of the Azores islands. I confess myself to a dense ignorance of them. And yet that is all the excuse I have for traveling. I travel because I seek to put down some of my ignorance. If I was going to write a book I think I would, with due credit to a famous one, call my volume "Ignorance Abroad," and after reading "Mark's" famous book I have always felt his was a work on ignorance rather than innocence. Ignorance is excuse sufficient for travel —Deliver me from these folks who just travel to travel. They are unavoidable, however, we have them with us now. Folks who always swell themselves to great proportions and tell you about how many times they have crossed the ocean. They do nothing but cross and re-cross. They know no more than folks who never saw the sea. They simply record life with figures of meaningless origin. One on board now tells us often that this is the fortieth time she has crossed. But I was trying to write about the Azores and got switched off by a meaningless woman.

As to the Azores.

I am not particularly ashamed to confess ignorance of these islands, for aside from knowing them to be mere points of land mid-Atlantic, I find many others who know no more, and even in my own beloved and extra intelligent home city I shall not be surprised if there be some who know little of these isles. Last night about 10 o'clock we detected the flashing light that shines from the signal lamp on Flores, the most western island of the group. It lies 118 miles west of the general group. There was enough clear to us to note the alternating flash of white and red from the lighthouse, for we had not seen a light other than the stars above our heads for a week, and this old ocean had begun to seem very broad. We were exceedingly when we watched that light get closer and then pass away behind us and only witnessed its passing with the confidence that we were that much nearer shore. There seems to be an unnecessary amount of earth taken up with water out this way, and I have observed several places where quite considerable stretches of land could be placed without crowding things at all. Before daybreak we had passed through the most of the island-strewn sea here, and by 11 o'clock had caught our last glimpse through the mist of St. Michaels, the largest and most important island in the group.

There are nine islands in the cluster and they belong to Portugal. They have a combined area of 1,005 square miles and a population of 300,000. Just when they were first discovered is not known but a portion of them is plotted on a map in Florence dated 1351, and after that appears on numerous maps. In 1432 a colony of Portguese settled on them. They named them Acores, or Isles of Hawks, from the many birds of that species abounding there. Every other form of animal life seemed absent. The hawks had the place. In 1449 Dom Henry, prince of Portugal, thought so well of the islands as a possession that he went personally to take them, and thus almost fifty years before Columbus found America, Portugal had hold of this far-flung ocean treasure. Today the crowding population is dependent entirely upon agriculture, growing large amounts of all kinds of small grain and fruits and making exceptional production of pine-apples and oranges. Volcanic activity accounts for the presence of these tiny tips of land mid-ocean, each island being a direct volcanic product, with the single exception of St. Mary's, the southernmost. At 6 o'clock the captain of our ship, Commander Pavy, told us we passed directly over the spot where on Feb. 1, 1811, appeared suddenly the island of Sabrina in formation. Shortly afterward it had disappeared and today on the spot lie 200 fathoms of restless Atlantic brine.

Porpoises, Birds and Whales.

Our journey has been a characteristic ocean trip. (I write now three days later than the first date on which this letter began.) The trip has brought us some good sea and some storm swept. The genius of our French cook has been spent on a selected few of us. But we have managed to keep up his spirits in every sense of the word. Many of our passenger friends have spent much time longing for a square meal on land. The storm-tossed sea has furnished all the usual interest, however. We have been chased by the leaping, laughing porpoise. His presence is ever acceptable. We have been followed by little confused land birds, a hawk, a canary and three doves have wearied themselves often into compulsory rest on the ship as they have beaten their way across the sea. We pity them, but the sailors will not let them rest in peace for a bird is a bad omen on board. One day we met a fine, or rather a coarse, bunch of whales. There were five of them, and the leader of their procession was a whale indeed. They stirred the interest of every one on board.

Last evening we sighted Europe. Grand old Cape Vincent, the rocky point of Portugal shouldering off the Atlantic from the first point of contact, loomed beautifully before us. We passed near the sightly shores and as evening settled down were slipping again out of sight of land with our prow set for the famous straits, through which we were to sail into the great sea. At 4 o'clock the captain wakened us and offered us the vantage point of the bridge, from which to view the straits of Gibraltar and the attendant scenes. Trafalgar and Morocco, and Tangier interested us, and then Jebel Musa, the African member of the Pillar of Hercules, and then as we rounded the light at Tarifa loomed the famous rock and Gibraltar stood out clear, the most famous Englishman in these parts. I looked at it carefully and am now prepared to state soberly that its reputation is all a fake, there is no sign on it at all. It is clean rock. Made me think of our Point of Rocks, and I wonder why we don't fortify it and grow famous also. Then the fog settled down upon us, and I close this letter in the dripping disgust that comes from the bad taste of a cloud that wraps its wet monotony over our eyes when we strain them most to see, and hold my ears while the wild siren shrieks our feelings from before the fore funnel, to let other fog-bound pilgrims know where we are

Yours, M. S. RICE.

Reaches Venice.

Venice May 19.—We are down here among our web-footed brethren at Venice. This old water-soaked town looks in many places as if it were what our lumberman call a "dead-head" and in reality the "dead-head" is common here. Not the lumbermen's nowever, but the human. Venice has about 150,000 people, one-fourth of whom are paupers. That is what Mr. Baedeker says, anyhow, and he is the authority all of the strangers read. We have met that quarter of the population. They are prominent, or rather I should say, sociable. They are easy to get acquainted with. They stand on no introduction. They meet you coming and go some distance with you, and talk all the way and fling talk after you. When they give you up. Oh, the poor people who live in wretchedness in these great old country cities! I take off my hat to the man or woman who shakes off the mould of this old worm-eaten part of the world, and with the savings of years buys a ticket for our America. The most worthless among them never think so far ahead. There is not serious peril in immigration for our country if we handle it judiciously. Think of the problem of these countries from which only a choice few go, and over whom some of our scared economists stir our fear. But this is no letter on perils of America.

We are still having our troubles with this language they call Italian. About all we have mastered thus far has been a wave of the hand and a vigorous protest against whatever bill is presented. We learned that early. These peddlers are looking for money. They, like other business men, have ways to accomplish it. Their spasms over good pay for services are eloquent. It matters not what you pay, is should have been more and then there is ever standing near some old fellow with a stick to touch the boat and insist also on a tip. And just how to say no, in our language, that will carry conviction, we don't seem able to discover. In fact, there are many necessary things to say we fail on. Our efforts to get what we want to eat, even when they have it, are interesting, if not satisfactory. Today at dinner we decided on fish and the waiter understood quickly. We ordered largely, for we hungered. He was soon at on table with an abundantly supplied platter of silver, and deposited before us the worst looking mess of little legs and claws and shapeless masses I ever saw. figured out they must be fiddler crabs or some other sort of fiddler, but Mrs. Rice insisted they were plain old June bugs and we don't yet know where to class that mess, but we know someone else ate them, if they ever did get eaten. But this is part of the game of the traveler, all of which interests me.

Could Write a Book.

But Venice is worth a whole volume of letters. I am sure I could write a book on what I have seen. Nothing but my respect for, and mercy on, the public makes me refrain from doing so. These streets of water! Not the sound of a horse's hoof have we heard here. But the town is not short on noises. Never have I heard a louder one. All these people jabber all the time. They talk to themselves about their last customer and fuss among themselves about their individual rights in a way that makes strangers think they are about to fight.

The city lies over two miles from the mainland, and is built compact together on piles, on about 120 small islands. The tide water is the network of canals that wade even through the clouds at Innsbruck. Yours, M. S. RICE,

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The interclass field meet, which, on account of the weather was postponed on various and sundry occasions, was held Wednesday afternoon on the boulevard and Fifth avenue west. Capt. Matthew Brown supervised the four-cornered meet, which was won by the seniors. The junior class team won the second greatest total number of points in the track and field events, while the two lower classes "also ran."

The school baseball team left this morning for Virginia, where they will play the nine representing the high school of that place this afternoon.

For several weeks past Manager J Whitney Wall has been negotiating for outside games and the Virginia trip is the result of his efforts along this line.

The state high school board examinations in German and English grammar, physics, civics, bookkeeping, senior grammar, sodil geometry and ancient history were given during the several periods Tuesday. The exams in senior history, botany, chemistry, English history, commercial law, English literature, advanced algebra and arithmetic were given to the students on Wednesday.

Miss Porter and Mrs. Mather of the local branch of the collegiate alumnae lectured before the girls of the junior and senior classes on Vassar and Oberlin colleges. The stereopticon was held in the dark room of the physical laboratory Monday afternoon and about twenty-five girls were in attendance. This was the last of a series of such lectures on various colleges and universities from time to time by representatives of the alumnae and the illustrated talks have proven to be a very popular feature during the past school term.

The first rehearsal for class night was held in the music room, following the close of school Monday afternoon. The practice was under the direction of A. F. M. Custance, who is arranging the evening's program and the following songs which will be rendered by the class were practiced by the seniors: "Alma Mater," "Nineteen Twelve," "Triumphales," and "Valedictory." Julius Nolte will have the signal honor of delivering the class oration and a musical skit which is being prepared by Mr. Custance will be presented by the members of the graduating class.

The exhibition of work in the manual training, domestic science and art departments was held Friday afternoon and evening in the manual training building. Specimens of wood work, iron work, pottery, hammered brass, basket weaving and stenciling were shown. Miss Carey and Mr. Geiger, assisted by several of the manual training instructors, had charge of the exhibition and the students' work was declared to be very creditable.

Sergeant Major G. H. Schoof of the Royal British Northwest Mounted police, spoke to the students assembled in chapel Monday morning.

The speaker appeared in his British army officer's uniform and as might be expected, created not a little curiosity among the boys and girls. Major Schoof has returned from Mexico, where he was a commanding officer in the federal army under Madero, and is touring the country giving lectures in the principal high schools on his experiences during the twenty-two years as a soldier of fortune.

At 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon he lectured in the high school assembly hall before the children of the grammar schools and exhibited many remarkable trophies won and collected during his checkered and eventful career.

PRIMITIVE MEN GIANTS IN SIZE

Shown By Finding of Skeletons in State of Washington.

Seattle, Wash., May 31.—Eleven skeletons of primitive men, with foreheads sloping directly back from the eyes, and with two rows of teeth in the front of the upper jaw, have been uncovered in Craigshill, at Ellensburg, this state. They were found about twenty feet below the surface, twenty feet back from the face of the slope, in a cement rock formation over which was a layer of shale. The rock was perfectly dry.

The jaw bones, which easily break, are so large that they will go around the face of the man of today. The other bones are also much larger than those of the ordinary man. The femur is twenty inches long, indicating, scientists say, a man of eighty inches tall.

J. P. Munson, professor of biology in the state normal school, who lectured before the International Biological college in Austria last summer, visited the spot and pronounced them the bones of a primitive man.

The teeth in front are worn almost down to the jaw bones, due, Dr. Munson says to eating uncooked foods and crushing hard substances with the teeth. The sloping skull, he says, shows an extremely low order of intelligence, far earlier than that of the Indians known to the whites.

EX-SOLDIER KILLS GIRL AND ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

Phillipsburg, N. J., June 1.—Annie Lynch, a school girl, 13 years old, was attacked and killed near her home here yesterday by Frank Brown, a former private in the United States army. After shooting the girl Brown wounded himself. He may recover.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

Some Promises Made by the Press Agents for Coming Attractions

AT THE LYCEUM

May Robson, who has won a definite position in her profession and earned a recognition from the public and the press by her excellent portrayal of eccentric characters, has in collaboration with C. T. Dazey written her new starring vehicle, "A Night Out," and will give a pretentious production of the play at the Lyceum Wednesday night, June 5.

The story and the action of the piece are entirely different from "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," but offers an even greater opportunity for Miss Robson's clever acting. The motive of the comedy is to illustrate in part the phases of hereditary influence—not serious, but in full measure, for Miss Robson's genius for characterization and humor. The narrative of the play deals with two young men—grandsons of Mrs. Woodbury, who is affectionately called "Granmum." Paul and Jack, respectively, are not the verdant and diffident provincials as regarded oy their mother, who insists upon their being home by 10 p. m. The reverse of her opinions is the fact that the boys are quite familiar with the whirl and sway of New York. This knowledge does not lessen their affectionate regard for the advice and opinion of Granmum, who is rather sensitive in her love for them and naturally is curious to know of the attraction that, like a magnet, draws them so frequently to the city. Ever indulgent and inquisitive, concerning the pranks of youth of the twentieth century, she resolves upon seeing for herself the propriety of the places they visit. She discovers them quite attractive, but suffers from an unexpected adventure. From this episode follows in natural sequence and development a number of very funny complications, and the irresistible humor of 'Granmum." The question of heredity also enters the theme of the play and brings about a close union, a greater love, forming the serious picture, relieved by the brightness of the humor. The working out of the story in detail offers opportunity for much that is witty—a vast amount of wisdom and considerable pathos. Miss Robson is equal to the task and fully competent to meet all requirements of the rather difficult role, in which laughter mingled with tears is quite frequent. The interest is heart interest, the humor genuine, the pathos real and human and every situation the result of logical reasoning.

Miss Robson will present on Thursday night one famous comedy, "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary." It is in three acts; the second, which is the important one and is quite long, shows the rejuvenation and the incidents are very funny. Miss Robson, on whose shoulders all the burden of the evening's entertainment falls, carries it lightly and gracefully, yet furnishing the interest and the laughter by being grave and gay by turns, and yet free from noisy violence which the character might suggest. Her most effective work is when she is in repose and serious. At these moments her acting is dignified and convincing.

The Boston Lyric Comedy company will open a summer season of stock at the Lyceum theater next Sunday. Very few cities in this country can boast of a musical stock company during the summer theatrical season, and the coming of the company next Sunday will offer summer amusement for the city and the surrounding country. The company will have a chorus of twenty voices.

This is the first time such a venture has been attempted in this city. The members of the cast are all musical comedy stars, and the chorus is the largest of any musical stock company in the country. The productions to be presented during the summer months promise to be novel in every respect.

Col. W. A. Thompson of Chicago, one of the oldest theatrical producers of this country, is at the head of the stock company of fifty artists. Col. Thompson chose Duluth as the home for a summer stock company because of its theatrical possibilities. He has studied the Duluth public for many years and is quite a connoiseur of its likes and dislikes. He was at the head of the Royal Italian Opera company when it produced "La Boheme" for the first time in Duluth. Col. Thompson has been here on several previous occasions, always at the head of a musical organization.

Col. Thompson has engaged Charles Sinclair, formerly stage manager for Henry W. Savage, Kolb & Dill, Ziegfield Follies and Anna Held, to stage the productions during the summer. Mr. Sinclair has a vast stage experience and has staged a number of musical productions during the past ten years. Miss Lorraine Crossman, recently prima donna with the Eastern "Madame Sherry" company, will head the feminine contingent of the company. Miss Crossman possesses a most pleasing voice and a charming personality. Miss Pearl Evans, who recently scored a tremendous success at the American Music hall at Chicago, will play the soubrette roles during the season. Miss Tommy Russell, conceded by many to be one of the funniest comediennes on the American stage, will play the comedy feminine roles.

Others who complete the exceptionally strong cast of principals are: Miss Kittie Gabrelle, second prima donna; Pearl Brothers, character comedians; Tom H. Burns and Jack Van, comedians; Charles Vane, light comedian and solo tenor, and Carl Stoll, leading baritone.

The performances will be known from week to week as "The Follies of June 9," "The Follies of June 16," etc. The former will be presented the first week of the season, beginning with a matinee next Sunday afternoon. By doing this the company will be able to localize the productions and satirize any events of interest in Duluth. The opening bill will include "The Politicians," a satire on Col Roosevelt and President Taft.

AT THE EMPRESS

In accordance with their custom throughout the entire country, Sullivan & Considine, the owners of the Empress theater, have made a change in the policy of that popular playhouse for the summer season. Commencing Sunday matinee, instead of presenting five vaudeville attractions as in the past, the Empress program will consist of three first-class vaudeville attractions and three reels of the finest motion picture subjects obtainable, at the remarkably low admission price of 10 cents to any performance either afternoon or evening, except Sundays and holidays, when the prices will be 10 and 20 cents.

This change in the policy of the Empress will be in effect during the hot summer months only and when the regular vaudeville season opens this fall, the patrons of the Empress will again be presented the regular Sullivan & Considine road shows which have proven so popular in the past. When the Empress was remodeled several months ago, one of the improvements included in its renovation was a strictly modern ventilating plant. This plant is of the highest type known to theatrical architects and is guaranteed to keep the auditorium supplied with cooled and filtered air even on the hottest days. This one feature alone should add greatly to the comfort and enjoyment of those who attend the Empress during the summer months.

During the past few months the management of the Empress had installed the famous Rothapfel De Luxe Daylight system of projecting motion pictures. This system was installed under the supervision of S. L. Rothapfel, the inventor and sole owner of all patents covering daylight motion pictures, and enables the Empress to present the finest pictures to be seen in the city. Special arrangements have been made by which all subjects will be guaranteed first-run film, that is, film that has never been shown before. The De Luxe system, combined with this exclusive film service, guarantees the lovers the finest motion pictures presented in the entire Northwest. The management of the Empress wish to emphasize the fact that the price of admission at the Empress will be only 10 cents, either in the afternoon or evening, except Sundays and holidays, when the prices will be 10 and 20 cents, and that this change of policy will be in force for the summer season only.

For the opening week of the summer season, the booking agents of the circuit have secured three excellent vaudeville attractions. The Four Shannons need no introduction to the regular vaudeville patron as they have created an enviable reputation for themselves as singers and dancers. This attraction is spoken of by the public and press as being the best singing and dancing combination in vaudeville. During their turn, they will introduce several of the very latest song hits which they are said to render in an entrancing manner. Each of the members of this quartet is blessed with an excellent voice and each knows how to use it to the best advantage. Lovers of good dancing will rejoice at the mere mention of this attraction. The work of the Four Shannons is artistic and enlivening and in many respects novel, for they are progressive and are constantly introducing new steps and ideas. In fact, they are considered one of the most copied dancing acts before the public. Although they have many imitators none have succeeded in "putting it over" in the same manner. There is a snap and vim and at the same time, a pleasing style about their dancing that makes them big favorites wherever they appear and it is a safe prediction that they will become big favorites during their engagement here.

The gymnastic feature for the coming week will be the Imperial Trio, marvelous head and hand balancers. This trio comes highly recommended as being among the top-notchers in this particular line. Their work is on the sensational order but they are said to accomplish the most difficult feats with an ease and grace that is highly pleasing to their audience. In reviewing their work, the Milwaukee Sentinel said, "Though the straight gymnastic act, in the main seems to have lost some of its attraction to the vaudeville audience through the similarity of routine, the Imperial Trio present a performance which is highly superior to the conventional gymnastic exhibition. Their performance while bordering on the hazardous contains a degree of artisticness which gives them a decided advantage over their competitors. Their feats are for the most part new and are accomplished with a vim and precision which makes them doubly entertaining. The Imperial Trio were big favorites with the Empress audience last evening."

Dainty Pauline Corbett is expected to become a big favorite next week. This charming little lady is known far and wide as one of vaudeville's most charming comediennes. Miss Corbett will present a number of the late song successes in her own inimitable manner and she is credited with possessing the ability to present a song in such a manner as to fairly captivate her audience. Miss Pauline has also mastered the art of making quick changes and during her turn she will make several changes of costume, each of which is said to represent the highest degree of perfection in the art of dress-making. All of her gowns are imported direct from Paris and are said to be the most gorgeous worn by any singing comedienne.

For the first half of the week, the management has secured the following motion picture subject, "Diamond Cut Diamond," a rattling good comedy film which was acted by the Viatagraph company with John Bunny, the noted comedian, in the leading comedy role; "Views of Calcutta," a beautiful travel subject, by the Edison company: and "Desert Sweetheart," an intensely interesting drama of Western life with G. M. Anderson, supported by the Essanay company in the leading role.

These films will be shown from Sunday to Tuesday inclusive, when the subjects will be changed it being the policy of the Empress to change pictures each Sunday and Wednesday.

LEW PEARL, GEORGE PEARL AND JOHN H. BURNS, At the Lyceum June 9.

ONE OF THE DOMINANT FIGURES IN THE THEATRICAL WORLD AND THE STORY OF HIS RISE TO WEALTH AND POWER

Marc Klaw is a native of Louisville, Ky., and began his career as a newspaper writer while studying law. He was admitted to the bar in Louisville and his entry into the theatrical business was made through Daniel Frohman, who engaged him to act on behalf of his brother Gustave and himself to stop play piracy.

Since the date of his entrance into the theatrical business Mr. Klaw has spent much of his time in fighting for the rights of theatrical managers. He not only as a young man checked piracy, but for years he consistently fought the ticket speculators until a law was passed in New York city checking the greed of these individuals.

His latest great victory was the overthrowing of the pirates in the moving picture business. This decision, which was handed down recently in Klaw & Erlanger's suit for the protection of "Ben-Hur," is one of the most sweeping judgments that has been pronounced by the supreme court of the United States. It is also the first case that was ever carried before the United States supreme court by a theater manager. A history of the case, as compiled by Mr. Klaw, is an interesting commentary on the rapid and modern development of the American stage. The film manufacturers had entered the field of dramatic plays in 1908. They had been advised by their attorneys that the copyright statute did not cover moving picture exhibitions. The first statute in the United States that protected dramatic performances was passed in 1856. Prior to that, the statute only protected the owners of books or plays in the exclusive right to multiply copies, but did not cover stage performances.

When congress passed the law protecting dramatic performances, moving pictures were not in existence, and therefore, of course, that form of exhibition was not in the minds of the framers of the law. In 1908, when the country was being flooded with moving picture exhibitions of protected plays, Mr. Klaw, as well as his partner, A. L. Erlanger, concluded that something must be done to protect play producers and legitimate theatrical managers. As congress is slow to make any changes in the copyright law, Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger determined to apply to the courts. They made their fight in the United States court upon the theory that, in order to prepare the moving picture film, it was necessary to write a scenario of the play which will tell the story originated by the author, and then give a performance, with a company of actors properly costumed, before a rapid fire or high speed camera, from which, with the aid of a projecting machine used in moving picture theaters, the performance given before the high speed camera is reproduced upon the canvas. This was held to be a representation of a play, which was protected by the copyright statute which was passed before moving pictures were ever dreamed of. The firm was sustained in every court on every argument.

Mr. Klaw's next fight will be in behalf of the children of the American stage, whom he believes are being imposed upon by misinformed persons and ill-directed societies.

Ideal Partners.

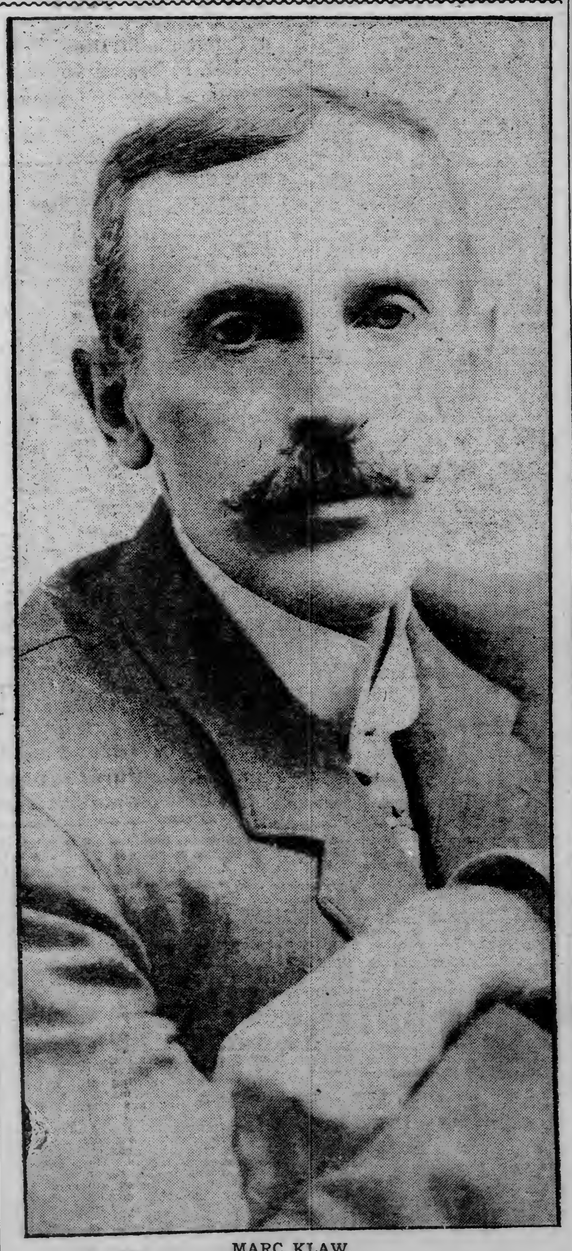

Mr. Klaw and Mr. Erlanger are an almost ideal combination. Mr. Erlanger is aggressive and enterprising. While Mr. Klaw possesses these qualities too, there is in his composition a streak of conservatism which makes him invaluable to his firm. In all their legal conflicts in the past ten years, they have never lost a suit. Neither Mr. Klaw nor his partner will ever countenance an unjust act toward anybody, but if anybody attempts an unjust act toward them, they show their teeth with the greatest possible determination and fight the case to the last ditch. Their controversies in the courts have made new theatrical law in America.

One important precedent established was the destruction of former District Attorney Jerome's pet piece of office machinery, the John Doe proceeding. An effort was made by Mr. Jerome to haul the entire Theatrical Syndicate into court and make them produce all their books and contracts. This the firm of Klaw & Erlanger refused to do and carried their contention to the court of appeals, which decided that Mr. Jerome's course was illegal and that no more attention should be paid to his John Doe proceedings than to a scrap of paper. The opinion expressed by the court of appeals was very conclusive. The result was that the star chamber John Doe proceedings at the New York county court house were brought to an abrupt termination, and for this Mr. Marc Klaw is responsible, for it was he who figured out from a legal standpoint the case of the syndicate and was a moving spirit in its pleadings.

When and where Mr. Klaw and Mr. Erlanger first met neither one of the firm can remember. After Mr. Klaw had won several suits against the play pirates, he entered the theatrical business as advance agent and then as the manager for Effie Elisler. While acting in this capacity he met Mr. Erlanger and engaged him as advance agent for Miss Elisler. The two young men realized that the business conditions in the theatrical world could not last and that some time the entire theatrical business of the country would have to be brought to a business basis. When he and Mr. Erlanger bought out the Taylor exchange, they gave their whole thought to this proposition. At that time there were few booking agents. But the booking agent represented a few theaters and was unable to fill any appreciable time of a traveling company's season. The New York manager was an autocrat. He dictated terms, which the local manager had to accept. If he wanted the first $500, or $1,000 taken in at the box office, he took it. The local managers and the producing managers were at the mercy of each other. Out of this chaos of conflicting interests sprang a desire for a larger booking agency which could offer consecutive bookings to both traveling and local managers.

Plan Booking Bureau.

Early in 1896 Al Hayman, who owned the Empire theater in New York, Charles Frohman, who leased and operated that theater, and who also conducted a booking agency which included in its representation a chain of western theaters whose time was controlled by Mr. Hayman; Mr. Erlanger and Mr. Klaw, who were at that time booking attractions for practically the entire south, and Messrs Nixon and Zimmerman of Philadelphia, who were booking some of the best houses in that city, met by chance at a luncheon at the Holland house in New York. The three years following the panic of 1893 had brought about a great depression in the theatrical business, as in other commercial enterprises, and at this luncheon the demoralization of the theatrical business, the looseness with which contracts were entered into and violated, the big losses resulting from small companies being pitted against each other in small towns which could only support one first-class attraction and the many useless traveling expenses were discussed. It was decided then and there that the betterment of the whole theatrical business would be achieved if the bookings of all the theaters would be centered in one office. Within a few weeks several theaters were organized, the open time was put on file in Klaw & Erlanger's office and announcements were made that bookings could be arranged consecutively for a chain of theaters. It was understood from the start that when time and terms were agreed upon, the respective contracts should be submitted to the local managers for their approval and signature.

This was the beginning of the Theatrical Syndicate, which is entirely foreign to the popular idea of a trust. This meeting at the Holland House marked an epoch in the history of the American stage. Within a year a complete revolution had been effected in the methods of transacting theatrical business. Theatrical management had become a dignified calling.

Mr. Klaw firmly believes that there must always be a business side to the theater. A performance must be artistic or it may be allied to art, but as long as the theater is a private enterprise its business conduct must be carefully guarded and guided as is any other commercial enterprise.

A year ago Mr. Klaw made a trip to the Pacific coast. He realized that the firm of Klaw and Erlanger, to achieve its high ends, must have theaters of its own in the various big cities of the country. The result is the Metropolitan theater in Seattle, the Mason opera house in Los Angeles, the taking over of the Olympic and Century theaters in St. Louis and the building of new theaters in Syracuse and Atlanta. One important result of this policy is the taking into the partnership of Frohman, Klaw & Erlanger of David Belasco, who has acquired rights in all the theaters which Mr. Klaw added to the claim of Frohman, Klaw & Erlanger theaters last season.

Scholar and Showman.

Mr. Klaw is a scholar as well as a showman. He is a great lover of good paintings and a traveler of wide and varied experience. Most of his summers are spent abroad in London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna. He has a wide acquaintance with men in the literary and diplomatic world.

With Mr. Erlanger, he has been associated from his earliest days in the production of big plays. Their first venture was in connection with C. B. Jefferson, the son of the late Joseph Jefferson, in the production of Jefferson, Klaw & Erlanger's "The Country Circus," which at that time was credited with being the largest traveling indoor entertainment in the world. Before that the firm had made a very heavy production of a play called "The Great Metropolis" at Proctor's old Twenty-third street theater. Since then they have produced "Chris and the Wonderful Lamp," "The Brownies," "Foxy Quiller," the Rogers brothers in their various entertainments in "Wall Street," "In Central Park," "In Harvard," "In London," "In Paris," and "In Ireland;" "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast," "Humpty Dumpty," and "Mother Goose," "The Soul Kiss," "The Silver Star," "The Round Up," and "Ben Hur." This year they had out such artistic and monetary successes as "The Pink Lady," "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," "Ben Hur," "Kismet," "The Rainbow," and the London successes of "The Pink Lady" and "Ben Hur."

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Victor Morley, well known here, is to succeed Clifton Crawford in "The Quaker Girl" next season.

William A. Brady has sold his rights to Bayard Veiller's play, "Within the Law," now running at the Princess, Chicago, to Archie Selwyn. Commenting on it afterward, Mr. Brady remarked that he may have sold a very good thing, but figured that cash in hand was a fair equivalent to a "gamble" in show business.

"Mystery Number 47," the H. H. Frazee new production for next season, will have Ralph Herz as the star. It is a sort of melodramatic farce.

A three-year contract between Charles Dillingham and Fanny Ward has been signed, and Dillingham is now on his way to Europe.

It is reported that "Mamma's Baby Boy," the new George W. Lederer musical production now running in Philadelphia, will succeed "Two Little Brides" at the Casino in New York, in an effort to keep that house open through the summer.

The summer run of "Kismet" has been abandoned owing to the large expense and the probabilities of many hot nights.

The Hippodrome is said to have cleared about $250,000 on its pageant of "Around the World."

The final production in William A. Brady's spring list will be "A House Divided," to have its premier two weeks hence. The central figure in this play is a man who has come up from the muck through sheer dominating force, and has a hard time dragging his timid and reluctant wife along with him.

Henry W. Savage, the theatrical manager, who has just completed a pleasure trip around the world, is in Vienna looking over the theatrical field. He will arrive in London shortly to discuss with Arthur Collins the production of "Everywoman" at the Drury Lane theater.

Henry Arthur Jones, the English dramatist, sailed Thursday for London after the longest visit he ever has made in this country. Mr. Jones arrived in Milwaukee in time to attend the rehearsals of "Lydia Gilmore," produced by Margaret Anglin. He takes with him a contract for a new play on which he has been working during his stay here.

Arthur Hammerstein has engaged Arthur Deagon for one of the most important roles in the opera being written for Madame Trentini. Another engagement is that of Craig Campbell, a tenor.

Definite plans for the summer at the Moulin Rouge were made last Wednesday when F. Ziegfeld, Jr., decided to keep "A Winsome Widow" in the house until the fall. He is still reticent concerning his plans for the annual production of the "Follies."

Another of Winthrop Ames' enterprises next season will be a production of "June Madness," a play by Henry Kitchell Webster, which excited great comment when presented by the Drama Players in Chicago. Mr. Ames has engaged Hedwig Reicher to act the principal role in the play.

A second time Augustus Thomas has rechristened his comedy produced by Charles Frohman in Chicago this spring. The play no longer will be known as "When It Comes Home," but as "The Model." Only a few days ago Mr. Thomas learned that a fellow-dramatist possessed a prior right to the title of "When It Comes Home," having copyrighted it months previously. The new title is more significant than its predecessor. The story of the piece has to do with an artist's dual worship of his art and his model.

A series of Strindberg plays will be produced at the Berkeley theater in New York next season by Warner Olard, responsible for the recent productions of "The Father." "Easter" is the first play on the list. This will be followed by "Countess Julie," "The Stronger," "The Outlaw" and several of the so-called chamber plays which Strindberg wrote especially for his intimate theater in Stockholm.

Fred Niblo and his wife, Josephine Cohan, will begin a tour on June 12 which will keep them out of America for nearly a year, and will be the means of introducing "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" and "The Fortune Hunter" to theater-goers of the Antipodes. Through Cohan and Harris, J. C. Williamson, the Australian theatrical syndicate, has arranged the production of those plays in his part of the world, and Mr. Niblo and Miss Cohan have agreed to act the leading roles. The travelers sail from Vancouver on the steamer Makura. Their tour embraces the principal cities of Australia, New Zealand and Tasmania. When this has been accomplished, Mr. and Mrs. Niblo will take a pleasure trip to the South Sea Islands. Java, Borneo, Burmah, Thibet, Siam, China, the Philippines, Siberia, Russia, Turkey and Italy.

Cohan and Harris announce that they will produce eight new plays before Jan. 1, in addition to sending out companies in previous successes. George M. Cohan will play the lead in "Broadway Jones," a new comedy by himself. Among the new plays are "The Other Men," by Eugene W. Presbrey with George Nash leading; "Queed," dramatized by Winchell Smith from Harrison's novel, to be played by Brandon Tynan; "Room 44," a farce by Frances Nordstrom, with Henry E. Dixey starred; "The Seven Little Widows," by Tida Johnson Young, William Carey Duncan and Victor Herbert; "The Kleptomaniacs," a farce by Carlyle Moore; "The Polish Wedding," a musical farce adapted by George V. Hobart from the German; a play for Douglas Fairbanks by Winchell Smith, and "The Romantic Wife," adapted by Clare Kummer "The Little Millionaire" will be sent on tour, with Charles King and Leila Rhodes; "The Red Widow," with Raymond Hitchcock, will be sent from coast to coast; four companies of "Officer 666" will be sent out, two of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" and one of "The Fortune Hunter."

David Montgomery and Fred A. Stone have already begun rehearsals at the Globe theater for the new musical play that they will produce in late summer. They began thus early because of certain new acrobatics of such difficulty that it may take a long time to attain perfection in their accomplishment. Arrangements may be made whereby Elsie Janis will join these comedians, after her London Gaiety engagement, and Joseph Cawthorne may be in the company.

PASSING OF THE OLD FASHIONED NEIGHBOR

Has Friendliness Between Families in the Same Neighborhood in Duluth, Become a Thing of the Past? Few Neighbors Now Borrow and Lend.

What has become of the good old-fashioned neighborly neighbor, the sort that used to pester you half to death, but who borrowed freely, returned the courtesy and was the best ever?

What has become of the woman who used to rush in to find out if you were ill if you didn't appear at 8:30 at the back door shaking mats, the one who used to borrow a cup of sugar, three tea spoonfuls of coffee, an egg with which to make Johnny cake, a yeastcake and even the evening paper after 9 o'clock when she thought you were through with it?

Where is the woman who used to allow your boys to dig up her back yard because the angle worms were thicker there than they were in yours, who didn't care if your boys kept dogs, who amused them building kites—which never flew—when you were ill and needed the quiet?

Where is the woman who used to fix dainties for you when you were ill and cook substantial dinners and send them over to your family; who sent over flowers from her garden because yours were a little late; who divided the first onions of the season with you; but who was free to ask for the loan of a pint of milk "because her milkman was short this morning."

What has become of the man who used to shovel off your walk in the winter time if he happened to get up earlier than you, who used to "bum" a pipeful of tobacco; who used to carry the neighborhood picnic basket on Saturday afternoon trips; who would shake his fist at you over the backyard fence and call you a blackguard because you weren't for Bill Bryan, but who would swear to everybody else that you were the best neighbor he had ever lived beside?

Where is the man who used to laugh and say "boys will be boys" when one of your lads accidently threw a ball through his window and refused to allow you to have it fixed, but consented to allow the boys to saw wood to pay for it to make them remember that they must be more careful next time.

The Front Porch Group.

What has become of the group that used to assemble on your front porch on warm evenings, the men engaged in running the United States and the women in a bit of gossip and some crocheting as long as it was light.

Where are the people who used to be concerned as to the welfare of the members of the family. What has become of that bond of sympathy that used to exist between you all?

Do you even know who lives in the other half of the house, upstairs or down in your flat, one house to the right, one to the left or across the street?

Is there no more neighborliness?

Have you even called on the family that moved next to you about a year ago? If you are the new comer, have they called on you?

Even if they have or you have, how different these days. Instead of running in to see if you could help or give the movers a lunch, you undoubtedly waited the regulation two weeks and then arrayed as if for a matinee, you visited the new family. You said that they would undoubtedly like it here, as the neighbors are pleasant, left one of your cards and one of your husband's, invited them to come and see you, knowing that in all probability your call wouldn't be returned very soon, sized up the furniture, and returned home to tell your family that the new comers are "lemons."

Time's Changes.

Times have changed the attitude of city people, one to another. There seems no longer to be that cordiality, sympathy and friendship, which used to be a feature of every neighborhood. The word neighborhood signifies but little these days and it is only used to designate a certain locality.

Few pay attention to the people they are living beside. Many people don't even know. People from the country can't understand how this can be possible. Life has become faster, more is crowded into a few short hours, everybody has his own friends, his own amusements, his own life, and he is getting what happines he can out of life. He has no time for his neighbors, their joys or their troubles.

"The Smiths lost their little boy today," your wife says to you at the dinner table.

You probably have never seen "Sammy" Smith, but you glance up from your paper, remark that it is too bad, words which mean absolutely nothing, but are spoken for the sake of saying something and you go on to find that flax is climbing or that Cobb has been reinstated with Jenning's Tigers.

City people have the reputation of being cold. Is it so? Are you an old fashioned neighbor? Or haven't you thought about it at all?

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES ACT

Disinterested Investigation Prevents Strikes. Voluntary Requests for Mediation in Trades Outside Act. Labor Unions Like Lemieux Law of Canada.

By ETHELBERT STEWART,
United States Tariff Board.

"The magnitude and complexity of modern industrial disputes have put upon some of our statutes and our present mechanism for adjusting such differences a strain they were never intended to bear and for which they are not suited. What is urgently needed today," says President Taft, "is a re-examination of our laws bearing upon the relation of employer and employe, and a careful and discriminating scrutiny of the various plans which are being tried by some of our states and in other countries."

It is precisely this fact pointed out by the president in a special message to congress that constitutes the tragedy of our social situation. It is precisely this fact that we have no tribunals before which industrial controversies may come before they develop into conflicts, that marks the impotency of a system fitted to the pack-mule and the tallow-dip stage of industrial progress, but puerile when applied to an era of electric lighting companies and empire express trains.

Not only are our laws and our court methods poorly adapted to the present industrial situation as related to conflicts between "master and servant," but they entirely ignore the larger problems. It was easy enough in the days of the public in the old type of industry, where a half dozen workmen struck against a single employer whose customers numbered a few score. They could buy their meat of another butcher, or their coal of another "pit master," while the quarrel was on with their "regular store."

Today the community takes a risk unknown and unthinkable to those of the day and time out of which our legal theories grew. The community takes the risk of being starved by the derangement of normal production by one corporation, controlled perhaps by officers and stockholders who never saw the plants in which the actual work is being done. The community right to a continuous supply of the necessities of life creates an obligation on the part of those supplying a social need to submit their grievances to a committee or a court of inquiry designated by the social whole, before inaugurating a suspension of that supply, either through strike or lockout, and this is being recognized by the lawmakers of many countries. The Argentine republic has recently passed a law controlling strikes and lockouts in all public utility operations.

Among the efforts being made in other countries to adjust the machinery of law to present industrial conditions may be cited the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act of 1907 in Canada. The law grew out of a great coal strike in the mines of Southern Alberta in the fall of 1906, which threatened to leave the prairie provinces without coal in the face of winter. By its terms it is made applicable only to so-called public utilities—steam and electric railways, power and lighting plants, and to mines.

In such industries the law prohibits a cessation of industry, either by strike or lockout, until an investigation has been made of the merits of the case and the public fully informed by publication of the findings. The law requires that in the event of a dispute arising in any establishment in the industries named, employing ten or more persons, which dispute is likely to result in a strike or lockout, either or both parties shall notify the government and ask for an inquiry. Each party to the dispute is then asked by the government to name a member of a board of three, these two select a third, or in the event of failure to agree, the government names a third. Should either party to the dispute neglect or decline to name a representative for board membership, the government names one for them. The board so constituted has power to summon witnesses and compel testimony. Unlike the compulsory arbitration act of New Zealand and Australia, the law does not prohibit strikes or lockouts after an investigation has been made and the merits of the dispute published. A thoroughly informed public opinion is relied upon to take care of the rest.

The question of procedure is left to each board, but such good results have uniformly attended informal procedure, such bad or indifferent results where formal court procedure has been adopted, that court rules are rarely adopted by these boards. The first effort is to ascertain the facts, then to bring the parties together on the facts. Agreements, not verdicts, are sought; hence, conference not cavil is the method of procedure most in vogue. A study of the evolution of procedure under this law would give an object lesson in methods of dealing with industrial problems much needed in the United States.

The law had been passed but a few days before a strike of the telephone girls in Toronto occurred. The girls appealed to the government under the law, although a strike was then on. The company declined to name a member of the board, but the government appointed a member and went on with the inquiry which was made open to the public. The papers published the testimony. In a very few days the company posted an offer to its employes which covered the grounds of the strike, and which was accepted by the strikers, thus ending the difficulty before the board finished its work. The report of the board on that strike was the first complete analysis of the industrial side of the telephone business ever published. It is asserted in Canada that the very existence of the law prevents more conflicts than it is ever called upon to investigate because the parties do not want a public investigation.

During the first twenty-nine months of the operation of this law fifty-nine boards were appointed to investigate as many difficulties, covering 65,500 employes. Three of these were in industries outside the operation of law, and where boards were appointed only upon the urgent request of both parties to the disputes. Two of the cases were cotton mills with 5,200 employes, the other was a shoe factory with 300 employes. The law has not disturbed business in Canada. It has not introduced artificial wage rates. It has created no opposition to its fundamental principle and all the criticism aimed at the law addresses itself to amendments and not to repeal. It would be impossible to repeal that law in Canada today.

The attitude of labor organizations toward the Trade Disputes Investigation Act of 1907 was expressed by a resolution of the Dominion Trade and Labor Congress, reading as follows:

"Resolved, That this Trades and Labor Congress hereby express its approval of the principle of the Lemieux bill as being in consonance with the oft-expressed attitude of organized labor of investigation and conciliation."

It is impossible but that a body of world-wide experiments, and the experiences drawn from them, such as the proposed Federal Commission on Industrial Relations would digest, would afford congress and the various state legislatures bases for legislation which would save the country millions of dollars in wages, and in loss from strikes with the attendant suffering to the public as well as to the contestants.

WONDERFUL STORY OF DANES

How They Have Brought Their Country to State of Agricultural Prosperity Second Only to England—Co-operation and Scientific Methods.

Washington, June 1.—The wonderful story of how the Danes, upon land but poorly suited to grazing and in the face of repeated reverses, have brought their country to a state of agricultural prosperity second only to England among the Old World countries is told by Dr. Maurice Francis Egan, American minister to Denmark, who is now in this city on leave, having recently completed, on behalf of the state department, a lecture tour through the farming districts of the South.

Dr. Egan, together with several other of the American diplomatic officers in Europe, has, under instructions from the state department, made a thorough study of the "farmers' welfare" problem in the European countries, of the part played by the governments in advancing the material prosperity of the farmers, of the success of the farmers themselves in forming co-operative societies for mutual assistance, and of the advantages secured to the whole people of those countries from the promotion of their agricultural resources. He is engaged now in preparing a report upon the methods of the Danish government in supplying cheaper money for their farmers, which idea President Taft hopes to introduce into the United States for the benefit of the American farmer.

Speaking of his recent lecture tour through the South, Dr. Egan said:

Wealth Equalized.

"I was sent by the department of state to expose to dairymen, and farmers especially interested in dairying, the methods by which the Danes have become the most prosperous people agriculturally in Europe. When I say most prosperous, I mean by comparison, and taking into consideration the obstacles they have had to meet and overcome. The wealth per capita of Denmark is comparatively next to that of England. This wealth, however, is equalized. There are no very rich people there. Every man is fairly well off, but the poorer he is the more carefully does he conserve his resources. Material well being is as common in Denmark as education.

"There is no illiteracy in the country. Every man, woman and child over the age of 7 years, unless he be an idiot, can read and write. The methods by which they have achieved their present prosperity are three: Education—practical education—a perfect system of co-operation, and the intelligent assistance of government.

"For instance, the only means of living which the Danes have is agriculture. Denmark, like Julius Caesar's Gaul of ancient days, is divided into three parts—butter, bacon and eggs. Now, the government, being dependent upon the farmers, does everything in its power to increase the number of small farmers, and this it has done by making money as cheap as possible for the farmers. It controls a great series of banks, managed somewhat after the manner of the Credit Foncier.

Can Get a Loan.

"An agricultural laborer in Denmark who has worked on a farm for five years, who is poor, and who has a character so good that two reputable members of his commune will certify to it, may obtain from one of these banks a loan of about $1,582 in our money. He obtains this solely on his character and ability and not by any material security he can offer. With this money he may purchase a farm of from 3½ to 12 acres. This farm means live and dead stock on the land and the necessary implements for the working of it. The amount loaned by the bank covers probably nine-tenths of the value of the farm—not of the land, because land in Denmark is never sold merely as land. The farm, is judged by the value of its production for, let us say, at least seven years in hard corn, which represents its ability to sustain dairy cattle and hogs. This is an example of the way in which the Danish government encourages the multiplication of small farms.

"Now, as to the question of education. It is compulsory. It has been compulsory for many years and the awakening of Denmark to the careful use of its natural resources is due to two things—the Danish sense of the practical value of practical education, and a series of disasters.

"The first disaster occurred in the late 40's, when the discovery was made that the Danes had so impoverished their soil by the continuous growing of grain that bankruptcy threatened, even the great land owners being in danger. Then came the closing of British ports to Danish grain and the growth of American competition, which killed off whatever prospects of profit the Danes might have made from their impoverished land.

Fostered Co-operation.

"A very admirable Lutheran bishop, Grundtwig, saw that the Danes must be kept at home, but that they must be so educated as to make their country fit for them to live in. He saw that patriotism on an empty stomach would not work, and he began to form the high schools, of which there are some 1,200 in Denmark today, which fostered and made possible the idea of co-operation.

"From 1848, the year in which, under the new constitution, it was possible for the poor Dane to own land in fee simple—the constitution meaning the breaking up of the feudal system of land tenures—until 1863, when Denmark lost Schleswig-Holstein to Prussia, the Danes struggled against terribly adverse circumstances, and then, under the impetus which the high schools had given them, they began to co-operate. In the high schools, which are open only to men over the age of 20 years, the Danish farmers learned to trust one another; they also learned that with impoverished land and no capital they could not compete there with the great landowners who were beginning to sell great quantities of butter and hogs to England and Germany.

"The tendency in Denmark was and is to the constant increase of the small farmers, but the small farmer was practically nothing as an individual. To control the British market for fresh butter it was necessary that they have capital; it was necessary that their product be the same in quantity all the year and always the same in quality. To standardize any product one must have an enormous quantity of that product and the power of controlling its quality. The Danish farmers, in order to do this, began to form co-operative societies.

Societies of Farmers.

"This movement, fostered, as I said, by Bishop Grundtwig's high schools, began by the organization of small societies of farmers of various districts. In these each man was allowed one vote, but he guaranteed that he would supply to the co-operative creamery just so many pounds of butter fat—butter fat being the commodity in which he dealt—and make himself liable independently, plus the unlimited liability of the co-operative society to the government bank for the amount of the capital borrowed. The province of the bank in this transaction is not the main thing to be considered. The bank must make a fair profit, but the bank really exists for the benefit of the farmers through the co-operative societies, which they themselves formed and which they themselves govern.

"Today the Danish farmer buys nothing individually. He uses no seeds till they have been tested by the experts furnished by the co-operative society. He buys his fertilizers, soya beans from Manchuria, cotton and meal from the United States, through the co-operative society. He never kills his own hogs, though there are 500 hogs to every 1,000 persons in Denmark, but sends them to the co-operative bacon factories, which were founded some time in the 80's when Germany refused the Danish hog because of an outbreak of swine fever. The Danes instantly founded, with the assistance of the government, large co-operative bacon factories. In order to make dairying possible the Danes had to regenerate the land exhausted by the lack of scientific treatment.

"Denmark is not a good grazing country. The climate for grazing purposes is probably the worst in the world. There are only fourteen weeks in the year when cattle can graze in the open. In the 60's and 70's the Dane—lately in possession if his land—found that he must root or die, or become an exile, as the Irish were, for the lack of assistance from an intelligent government. He rooted. That is, he saw the roots—the turnip, the carrot, and, above all, the great sugar-beet root—could be used not alone for feeding his dairy cattle, but could be made most useful in restoring his exhausted soil; but he did nothing at haphazard.

Scientific Experts.

"Being an educated man, he was an open-minded man and he induced his government to furnish scientific experts who could finally answer any question he might ask. As an example, let us take the small farmer with three cows, three hogs, four head of small cattle, and a horse or two. He farms perhaps twelve acres. Now, it is a question with him as to the rotation of his crops; it is a question as to the amount of butter fat that cow should produce. He has, through the co-operative society, the use of a scientific expert, who visits his farm every eighteen days and answers all these questions after consultation with him. Furthermore, he keeps a duplicate set of books for the farmer, so that the farmer knows exactly the amount of butter fat each cow yields every week, when the cows are expected to calve, the value of the service of every bull in use, and the exact position of the farmer economically and agriculturally. For this service the farmer pays the expert 30 cents yearly per cow, the government paying the rest of the expert's salary—the expert being attached to the Royal Danish Co-operative society.

"Denmark is a country which comprises 15,000 square miles, which is, I suppose, about four times the size of Delaware. It supports at least 2,500,000 persons in very good condition, and sends out of the country each year at a conservative estimate, $150,000,000 worth of butter, bacon and eggs. At least $90,000 worth of this export goes to England; but the British market is retained not alone by the invariable quantity sent out, summer and winter, but by the invariable quality, Danish butter being the highest-priced butter in the British market."

FOUR EXPEDITIONS IN THE FIELD

Preparation for the Panama-California Exposition Exhibits By Smithsonian Curators.

In connection with the Panama-California exposition, to be held in San Diego, Cal., in 1915, there will be extensive anthropological and ethnological exhibits pertaining to the various primitive people, the preparation of which has been placed under the auspices of the Smithsonian institution and United States national museum.

W. H. Holmes, head curator of anthropology, United States national museum, will prepare exhibits illustrating a number of the more important arts and industries of the American tribes, and Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator of the division of physical anthropology, United States national museum, will have charge of collecting and arranging all the material and data pertaining to physical anthropology. The main object of Dr. Hrdlicka is to trace in a preliminary way the remnants of the stock of people from which in all probability the American race branched off. This is a problem which is being one of the most important subjects of research in American anthropology.

Dr. Hrdlicka sailed from New York on the steamer Cedric May 16, for London, whence he will go to St. Petersburg. He will visit the Upper Yenisei region of Siberia, carrying on his studies and collections for the museum and the exposition. From Upper Yenisei he will go to Irkutsk, and such other parts of Mongolia and Turkestan as he may have time to visit. After leaving Siberia he will visit Kiachtata in Chinese Turkestan, Mongolia, and then follow the road to Urga, whence he will proceed along the old caravan route to China proper.

Among the natives of the Yenisei are found physical types in every essential respect identical with the American Indian. This type extends from the Yenisei as far as Tibet and it is the plan of Dr. Hrdlicka to make a rapid survey of the numerous and little-known peoples to be found in these regions, among whom it may be possible to find extensions of the same most interesting physical type which we know exists in the former place. It is his intention to come into close contact with as many of the native tribes as possible, securing photographs and casts of the individuals as well as some material objects.

Fortunately there has been little political disturbance in this part of Asia, and therefore no more than ordinary dangers in travel are to be expected, and with the protection of the Russian and Chinese authorities, no trouble whatever is anticipated. It is probable that Dr. Hrdlicka will complete his work in about four months and return to America early in September.

In the latter part of the year, after his return from abroad, Dr. Hrdlicka will visit Peru for the purpose of extending his former anthropological investigations there and for collecting skeletal material for the national museum and his section of the Panama-California exposition. The main purposes of his collections here will be to ascertain the distribution of various physical types of man in Peru, and the study of the diseases to which these native populations were subject before coming into contact with the Spaniards.

It is not his intention to make excavations for collecting antiques, but merely to study the present collections and make observations of the living natives. In this work Dr. Hrdlicka will represent the Smithsonian institution. During the past year the Peruvian government has passed a number of regulations regarding such research and collections in their country, and grants permission for such work only to recognized scientific institutions. The regions to be visited are the important parts lying along the coast and the highlands of West Lima, starting at Huacho.

While Dr. Hrdlicka is making his researches in Asia and Peru, two other representatives of the Smithsonian institution and of the San Diego exposition, Dr. Riley D. Moore, aid, division of physical anthropology, United States national museum, and John B. Harrington, ethnologist of the School of American Archaeology, Santa Fe, N. Mex., will make a trip to St. Lawrence island, Alaska. Here the two scientists will make observations on the tribe of Eskimo which occupies that island. The data and material gathered are to be incorporated in the exhibits of the exposition of 1915.

Dr. Philip Newton, instructor of physiology, Georgetown university, is also making studies and investigations for this exposition. He sailed for the Philippine islands a short time ago to make studies and collections among the Negritos.

A VOLCANO THAT BECAME A LAKE

Unique among the natural wonders of America is the lake in Crater Lake National park in Oregon, which is described in a publication entitled "Geological History of Crater Lake," just issued by the department of the interior. The traveler who, from the rocky rim of the lake, looks across its limpid waters to the cliffs beyond stands where once the molten lava of Mount Mazama boiled and seethed in its efforts to find an outlet, for Crater lake is all that remains of a great volcano that ages ago reared its lofty summit high above the crest of the Cascade range.

Before the Cascade range existed the region now included in the state of Oregon was a great lava plateau that extended from the Rocky mountains to the present Coast range. Gradually mountain-making forces become operative; the surface of the plateau was arched and there rose the great mountain system which is now known as the Cascade range. With the hardening of the crust the centers of eruptions became fewer until they were confined to a few high mountains that were built up by the flows of molten lava. In this way were created Hood, Rainier and Mazama, from whose sides and lofty summits streams of lava poured across a desolate land. Hood and Rainier still lift their snowy caps to the clouds and fling a defiant challenge to the mountaineer to scale their steep, ice-covered slopes. Mazama alone is gone, engulfed in the earth from which it came. In what is left of its caldera lies Crater lake.

Mount Mazama in its prime rose to a height of over 14,000 feet above the sea. Mount Scott, which towers above Crater lake on the east, was only a minor cone on the slope of Mount Mazama. The portion of the mountain that has been destroyed was equal in size to Mount Washington in New Hampshire and had a volume of seventeen cubic miles.

From the crest of the rim surrounding the lake the traveler beholds twenty miles of unbroken cliffs which range from 500 to nearly 2,000 feet in height. The clear waters of the lake reflect the vivid colors of the surrounding walls and whether in the soft glow of early morning, in the glare of the noonday sun, or in the rosy hues of the dying day, the view is one of awe-inspiring grandeur and beauty.

This publication contains a detailed account of the formation of this wonderful work of nature. It is well illustrated by photographs and is written in nontechnical language so that it may be readily understood by the reader who has not the advantage of scientific training.

FIRST WOMAN ON ENGLISH STAGE.

Westminster Gazette: Jan. 3 is an important anniversary in the development of the British drama, for upon this date in 1661 Pepys went to the Clare Market theater, saw the "Beggar's Bush", well performed and records, "the first time that I ever saw women come upon the stage."

Previously all female parts had been taken by boys or young men. The change was probably suggested by Charles II from his continental experience and arose from an amusing episode. The king had gone to the theater "before his time," and finding the actors not ready, asked for an explanation, whereupon he was gravely informed that "the queen has not shaved yet!" As the merry monarch loved to laugh at a jest as well as to make one, the excuse was accepted and a reform initiated.

DIDN'T SEE THE POINT.

Los Angeles Times: The young chancellor of a certain judicial district in the South was sorely vexed at the amount of his time and that of his court which was consumed in the hearing of negro divorce cases. Accordingly when the case of Lucindy Johnson versus Lige Johnson was called, and he recognized in the person of the dusky complainant one of the tenants on a place adjoining his, he said: Lucindy what the trouble was batween her and Lige.

"Taint no use, jedge," she replied; "I jes' nacherly can't live wid dat nigger. He 'buses me, an' cusses me somethin' scan'las."

Well knowing the negro's fondness for scriptural quotations, and thinking Lucindy would recognize the origin of the one he was about to use, he asked:

"Have you ever tried 'heaping coals of fire upon his head?'

"Nog'ser; nos'ser, I ain't never done dat, Hosomever," she added reminiscently, "I done bust er skillet over his haid, but hit ain't done one particle bit er good, jedge, not one bit."

DO YOU KNOW HER?

Los Angeles Times: Mrs. Bache Conde, the suffragist leader of Duluth, was talking of about an ex-leader who had deserted her party when ill fortune befell it.

"She deserted her party shamelessly," said Mrs. Conde. "She reminded me of a beautiful New York girl.

"Her fiance faltered in this girl's ear one evening:

"'My dear, I have been deceiving you. I am not the manager of our concern at $8,000 a year, but only a humble clerk at $9 a week. Will this make any difference to you?'

"The girl lifted her golden head from his breast with a slight start.

"'No, it will make no difference,' she said.

"'Not the least difference, darling?'

"'Not the least,' she replied, rising and smoothing her hair. 'Old Gobsa Golde's proposal still holds good. I'll write him at his Fifth avenue residence this evening.'"

NOT HIDE-BOUND.

Los Angeles Times: Representative Henry was talking in Washington about a hide-bound official.

"The rules of his office bind him hand and foot," he said. "He doesn't realize that those rules were made to get business done—he seems to think that the object of rules is to hinder business.

"The right man, however, gets round the most obnoxious rules. He is like the young lady at the Kubelik recital.

"A woman seated in front of this young lady wore a hat full of enormous plumes. When Kubelik began, the woman with the plume felt a slight knock on her hat, but she paid no attention to it. At the end of the number, however, she turned to the young lady behind her and said:

"'Do my plumes interfere with your seeing?'

"'Oh, no,' was the reply. 'I've bent them back.'"

RUBBING IT IN.

Los Angeles Times: Booth Tarkington was talking in Indianapolis about a novelist of the "high brow" type—one of those half-starved novelists whose reviews are much more remarkable than their sales.

"As this novelist, shabby and cold," said Mr. Tarkington, "was walking in Fifth avenue one wintry afternoon, there glided past the magnificent automobile of a publisher who had brought out one of the poor fellow's books at a heavy loss.

"The publisher signalled to his chauffeur, the automobile stopped, and the novelist, in reply to a wave of the millionaire's hand, presented himself at the window of the car humbly.

"The publisher, wrapped in furs, said:

"'There's a great big manuscript nearly falling out of your hip pocket. If you weren't so well known——'

"Here the publisher removed the superb Havana cigar from his mouth and laughed a loud, scornful laugh.

"'If you weren't so well-known,' he repeated, 'I guess you'd have had your pocket picked.'"

THE USES OF SALT.

Houston Post: Salt on the fingers when cleaning fowls, meat or fish will prevent slipping.

Salt thrown on a coal fire when broiling steak will prevent blazing from the dripping fat.

Salt as a gargle will cure soreness of the throat.

Salt in solution inhaled cures cold in the head.

Salt in water is the best thing to clean willow ware and matting.

Salt in the oven under baking tins will prevent their scorching on the bottom.

Salt puts out a fire in the chimney.

Salt and vinegar will remove stains from discolored teacups.

Salt and soda are excellent for bee stings and spider bites.

Salt thrown on soot which has fallen on the carpet will prevent stain.

Salt put on ink when freshly spilled on a carpet will help in removing the spot.

Salt in whitewash makes it stick.

Salt thrown on a coal fire which is low will revive it.

Salt used in sweeping carpets keeps out moths.

Never salt meat that is to be grilled, as it hardens the fibers of the meat and tends to extract the juices. Salt on the platter just before sending to the table. No meat should be salted uncooked, but after the surface has been seared and the meat partly cooked.

SHIRTS GROW ON TREES.

New York Press: In some tropical parts shirts grow on trees sixty feet high. The natives cut down the tree and get out a log about two feet through and three feet long. Then they get the bark off this log without a break in it, so that it looks like a sack opened at both ends and without a seam. They soften it up and cut a hole in each side for the arms to pass through and tighten it up at the neck with a piece of animal skin so the shirt cannot slip off. They are fine during the cold, rainy season and last a long time. Not bothered by laundry strikes.

It's apt to "stay lost" unless you advertise for it.

TITLE WOULDN'T SAVE HIM.

London Opinion: A certain gentleman who had acquired riches rather quickly purchased an estate on the banks of the river Clyde which adjoins those of Lord Blantyre and Sir Charles Bine-Renshaw. Strolling through his place one day he chanced to go too far and was accosted by a burly Scotch gamekeeper, who in language more forcible than polite ordered him off the grounds. Remonstrance only produced more "langwidge" from the burly one.

"Sir," said the pompous one, "do yo uknow who I am? I am the Paulds of Ardgeriff!"

"I don't care if you are the Falls of Niagara," said the gamekeeper, "ye're goon oot o' this."

If advertising pays, you, as a business man, want to use it. The most successful merchants of the country have proved that advertising does pay—why not begin now?

MORE TOPICS ARE SUGGESTED

Program For International Congress of Chambers of Commerce at Boston in September Being Prepared.

Boston, Mass., June 1.—At the meeting of the permanent committee of the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce, to be held in Brussels on June 28 next, the American committee on program for the fifth international congress to be held in Boston, Sept. 24 to 28, will make its report, presenting suggestions of topics for discussion at the fifth congress in addition to the following eight topics provisionally adopted at the meeting in Paris last July:

1. The establishment of a permanent international court of arbitral justice composed of judges representing the different judicial systems of the world and capable of insuring continuity of jurisprudence and arbitration.
2. Unification of legislation with regard to checks.
3. International postal reforms.
4. Commercial statistics. Immediate institution of an international office.
5. International maritime union. Compilation of a program.
6. Regulation of expositions.
7. An international agreement between banks of issue.
8. A suggestion looking to the preparation of a resolution intended for the suppression of measures taken against foreign merchants on account of their religion.

After communication with government officials, commercial organizations and leading citizens, the American committee selected from the replies received the following additional topics:

9. The desirability of strengthening international co-operation for the unification of agricultural statistics and for the dissemination of information regarding them.
10. The desirability of an international agreement to determine whether the status of movable property at sea in time of war shall rest on the domicile or the nationality of the owner. Merchants are subject to the conflicts of differing jurisdictions. An international conference held in London in 1908, failed to reach an agreement.
11. The desirability of an international conference on prices and the cost of living. The committee believes international action on this subject would be of high importance and might point the way to future harmonious action.
12. The desirability of an international conference on the validation of through-order-notify bills of lading and of legislation for making the system more effective. In consequence of fraudulent practices, prolonged conferences have been held between American bankers and cotton shippers and representatives of European firms. A plan for validation of this class of bills has been elaborated, but international discussion would bring about still better understanding.
13. The desirability of international uniformity of action in the matter of consular invoices. This was discussed at the fourth international conferences of the American states, in Buenos Ayres in 1910. Adoption of a standard form for all the republics would facilitate business.

The tremendous interest which is being taken in the forthcoming fifth international congress in America is indicated by the splendid personnel of the American honorary committee, headed as it is by the president of the United States, including leading government officials, diplomatic representatives in the United States of the principal commercial nations, the governors of the important states of the Union, the presidents of the leading commercial organizations, and some sixty of the greatest business men in America.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

MAY APPEAL OLEO CASE

State Supreme Court's Division of Three to Two Basis for Action.

Justices Holt and Brown Dissent and Say Law Should Stand.

St. Paul, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because associate Justices Holt and P. E. Brown dissented from the majority opinion of the supreme court declaring unconstitutional the law passed at the 1911 session of the legislature prohibiting the coloring of oleomargarine to resemble butter, there is a bare possibility that the case may be appealed to the United States supreme court. The fact that the state court divided three to two on the question makes it appear that a reversal might be secured.

The majority opinion of the court was that oleo in which only the oil extracted from beef fat was used was not deleterious, and that for this reason its sale could not be prohibited. Justices P. E. Brown and Holt dissented on the ground that the legislature could not only prohibit the coloring of it, but could stop its sale altogether, if it so desired.

Result of Federal Tax.

Originally Oleomargarine was made with hardly any shade of yellow matter unless artificial coloring was used. Then congress enacted a law placing a higher tax on oleo where the artificial coloring was used. Ingenuity of the manufacturer, however, devised a scheme whereby the oleo might be made from natural oils extracted from beef fat, and the dissenting Minnesota justices believe the intention of the state legislature was to prohibit the use of this process.

"Courts ought not to accuse legislators of an attempt to prohibit by underhanded indirection, when they openly profess to regulate only," Associate Justice Holt wrote in his dissenting opinion. "Therefore, to give meaning and effect to the manifest intention of the act, the phrase 'imitate butter of any shade or tint of yellow' must be construed as equivalent to imitate yellow butter.

No Straining of Point.

"With knowledge that the efforts of the manufacturers to imitate the yellow butter in the product without the addition of colors but by manipulating the process and ingredients had partially or wholly succeeded, the inference is not strained that the legislature intended to prohibit the sale of oleomargarine so manufactured that a yellow color was imparted to it from whatever cause.

"To construe the law to mean that the oleomargarine manufactured and sold must not imitate yellow butter, there is no prohibition, only regulation. * * * It may be conceded that the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine should be restricted only insofar as to insure its being wholesome and nourishing; that free rein should be given the manufacturer to produce an imitation of butter that is perfect as to all its qualities, including that which appeals to the eye; that a substitute for butter, equally good, which could be had at a much cheaper price, would be a blessing to the consumer in these times of high prices; that the poor consumer who is not able to buy 'golden' butter should not be compelled to advertise his poverty to the guest or neighbor who happens to drop in at mealtime and sees some ordinary whitish oleomargarine on the table.

Beyond Right of Courts.

"But these, and other suggestions of like kind, are all arguments properly addressed to the legislators, who undoubtedly know that while consumers, without doubt, desire to have the price of such a necessary article as butter reduced by the manufacture and sale of cheaper substitutes, nevertheless their taste rebels at eating the latter.

DRINK HABIT CURED

The Famous Neal Internal Treatment for the Drink Habit Takes Away All Appetite or Desire for Liquor and Effects a Perfect Cure in Three Days.

NO HYPODERMIC INJECTIONS.
NO POISONOUS DRUGS.
NO INJURY TO HEALTH.
NO BAD AFTER EFFECTS.
NO LONG LOSS OF TIME.
NO UNPLEASANT PUBLICITY.
NO FAILURE TO CURE.

Without aid the victim of the liquor habit is helpless. Drink not only weakens the will power, but creates an appetite or craving for drink which nothing but more drink will satisfy.

Neal Internal Treatment Effects Perfect Cure.

It cures the periodical, occasional or moderate drinker and the excessive or habitual drinker. It takes away all inclination to drink, all desire and craving for drink, by neutralizing the poison of alcohol in the system and ridding the blood of the poison by a rapid process of elimination, leaving the drinker in the same normal condition as before tasting liquor.

A PHYSICIAN'S CURE.

The Neal Internal Treatment is a physician's cure for the drink habit. Was originated by a physician, is compounded by a physician and is administered by experienced physicians. It is the most modern and perfect treatment known for the drink habit.

Each patient is given a plain contract, agreeing to effect a perfect cure in three days, or return the full fee paid.

If you cannot come to the institute, write for the home treatment.

YOUNG MAN PRESIDED OVER DEMOCRATIC MEET

WALTER QUIGLEY.

East Grand Forks, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Walter Quigley of East Grand Forks, who was the chairman of the Democratic county convention of Polk county at Crookston Wednesday, is only 22 years old and probably was the youngest presiding officer of such a convention ever held in the state. He is a senior in the University of North Dakota college of law and will be admitted to the practice of law in that state next week.

His father is captain of the East Grand Forks police force.

Nearly all of us want 'the other fellow' to eat the oleomargarine, while we eat butter. Courts have no right to invalidate or emasculate statutes because deemed unwise or inexpedient.

"It appears to me that the law should be given effect."

Justice Holt noted in his opinion that Justice P. E. Brown authorized him to say he concurred in the dissent.

It was not contended in the majority opinion that the oleomargarine which caused the arrest of the Mankato dealer was artifically colored. On the other hand it was admitted that the yellow color it bore was the result of the careful selection of ingredients and careful manufacture.

White Product Unpopular.

Relative to the case the court said: "The high cost of butter is notorious. The poor man must often go without or buy the inferior grades, while people of moderate means find butter a luxury they can ill afford. Apparently, judging from this fact that sales of the light colored oleomargarine are but 10 per cent of the sales of the darker yellow, the people want their butter substitute to resemble butter in color as well as in texture and taste. The legislature says to them by this act that: 'You cannot have what you want; you must either buy butter made from cream or you must buy oleomargarine that is white.'

"Unless the prejudice of the people against the white color is removed, this is a command that they buy butter and pay high price. It is impossible to appreciate why the public should not have a free choice, why butter should not be sold on its merits to those who want it, and why those who want oleomargarine of a yellow shade should not be permitted to have it."

WOULD CUT OUT LONG ADDRESSES

Committee of N. M. D. A. Outline Work and Urge Reapportionment.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.) — The time of the International Falls meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association, June 20 and 21, will not be taken up with long-winded speeches, not if the committees of the association, who have been in session here this week, have their way. It was decided to cut out speeches except those of committeemen making reports.

There were twenty members of the different committees of the association present and after discussion it was decided to renew the fight for reapportionment before the legislature.

Fight for Reapportionment.

The members of the committee unanimously resolved that just reapportionment is the paramount duty of the state legislature; that this association stands back of every effort of every member to enact a fair measure and that no law will be accepted until complete justice is done.

That this association renews its recommendation to the state board of investment to exercise its lawful authority to dispose of its holdings of bonds of other states for reinvestment of these funds in local securities;

That the executive committee be instructed to prepare and present to the association at its June meeting a plan of campaign in favor of the R. C. Dunn or mill road tax constitutional amendment, heretofore indorsed by the association.

Much time was taken in discussing the Elwell road propositions now under way and the committeemen were given instructions as to further procedure regarding these.

EXPECT TWO GOVERNORS

At State U. C. T. Meet at Red Wing June 6-8.

Red Wing, Minn., June 1.—Twenty councils of the United Commercial Travelers in the Northwest will be represented at the grand council meeting here June 6, 7 and 8. There will be 100 accredited delegates, but as a fare and a third rate has been made for the meeting, it is expected that 600 to 800 will attend. The jurisdiction now has a membership of 4,605. National officers will be present and on June 7 addresses will be given by Governor A. O. Eberhart of Minnesota and Governor John Burke of North Dakota. Three days of entertainment, including a baseball tournament, are being planned by local citizens.

BESSEMER MAN SPEAKS.

Prof. Cobb Delivers Memorial Day Address at Ironwood.

Ironwood, Mich., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Memorial services were held here Thursday afternoon at Riverside cemetery. The boys' glee club rendered several selections and Prof. C. R. Cobb of Bessemer delivered the oration which was very much appreciated. In the evening the Ladies' Relief Corps gave a reception for the members of the G. A. R. and wives at the Odd Fellows' hall. The following persons took part in the program, which was very much enjoyed. Address of welcome by the president, Mrs. F. P. Snavely, which was responded to by Judge Curtis Buck and A. Goodwin. Frank Hadwick spoke in behalf of the Sons of Veterans, and Mrs. Buck and Mrs. Darrow, wives of soldiers gave very interesting talks. In behalf of the Spanish war veterans, Fred Brewer paid tribute to the late Albert Morris, which was followed by a tenor solo, entitled "The Last Roll Call," by Luther Brewer. Addresses were given by Murley, Hoffman and Prout, Spanish war veterans. Miss Eva Lofberg and Miss Buck rendered piano solos and Supt. Brennen gave a very interesting speech. Refreshments were served and then Rev. Turner, pastor of the First Presbyterian church gave a few remarks and pronounced the benediction. The evening was one long to be remembered and was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. May, Sutherland street, are rejoicing over the birth of a son, yesterday morning.

MICHIGAN BANKER TYPHOID VICTIM

R. H. Jenny of Dowagiac Claimed By Marquette Epidemic.

Marquette, Mich., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—R. H. Jenny, president and cashier of the State Savings Bank of Dowagiac, Mich., a prominent lumber operator in this region, died here this morning. He is the third victim of Marquette's typhoid fever epidemic. The other two having been Arthur Sweder, a high school boy, and Francis Bennetts, a boilermaker. There are others who are critically ill.

FAMILY PROVES UP.

Father and Two Sons Establish Title to Lands.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—N. T. Robertson of Max postoffice, and his two sons, Edwin L. and William A., who came from Missouri over seven years ago and took homesteads in the Round Lake country proved up this week. One son proved up a short time ago and still another younger son will prove up next year. Mrs. W. A. Robertson was with the party here Monday and it was her first trip to any town in nearly eight years. It is about thirty miles from the homestead across the forest reserve to Bena. The Robertsons are all good settlers and have made good improvements on their homes in the former wilderness. They were happy to learn of the supreme court decision holding the Elwell law constitutional as they are on the proposed Bena-Northome road which is to be built under that law.

MOOSE LAKE TEACHERS.

Force for the Next Year Has Been Engaged.

Moose Lake, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following have been elected teachers for the year 1912 and 1913 in the Moose Lake schools: Principal, Lester A. Door; assistant principal, Miss Winnifred Plummer; both graduates of the University of Minnesota. The grade teachers are: Miss Hattie L. Goldsmith, River Falls, Wis.; Miss Leona Wolff, Stillwater, Minn.; Miss Alice Lawrence, Minneapolis; Miss Anna McGregor, Winona normal; Miss Margaret Parson, St. Cloud normal; Miss Helen Boyce, Glencoe, Minn.

HAS ANOTHER CHANCE.

Dumas Can Still Take an Appeal From Lower Court Verdict.

St. Paul, June 1.—Dr. D. F. Dumas of Cass Lake has still another chance before the supreme court, despite yesterday's decision, by taking an appeal from the judgment of conviction, the appeal decided yesterday having been taken on technical points arising during the trial.

As soon as the remittitur of the supreme court is certified to Judge McClenahan of the lower court that official will sentence Dr. Dumas. Dr. Dumas will then have the right of appealing the case, but, according to Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith, the supreme court in its opinion yesterday had disposed of the principal legal points that could be raised on an appeal. "I believe this settles the case," said Mr. Smith.

DULUTHIAN IS JAILED.

Gets Ten Days in St. Cloud Workhouse for Disturbance.

St. Cloud, Minn., June 1.—After claiming that he was an official of the Great Northern and that both he and his hobo friend had a right to place their feet upon the furniture in the Great Northern station or expectorate upon the floor, W. J. Greeley, who gave his residence at Duluth was found guilty of being drunk and disorderly and sentenced to ten days in the workhouse. Greeley with a hobo by the name of John Precel were raising a disturbance at the Great Northern station when arrested. Greeley asserted that he was an official and defied the law, with the result that he was given a workhouse sentence, while the hobo was allowed to leave the town.

NEW YORKER LIKES EGGS FROM BARNUM.

Barnum, Minn., June 1.—Mr. Hanson of the Barnum creamery, was surprised a few mornings ago to find a postcard in his mail requesting information as to where the writer could regularly purchase Barnum eggs in the city of New York. This person said that he chanced to buy one carton at a grocery there and liked the flavor of the eggs so much that he wants to be regularly supplied with them.

MEETING AT CARLTON.

County Development Association Will Confer Monday.

Carlton, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Carlton County Development association and everybody interested in good roads for Carlton county will meet here next Monday. The session will be held in the city hall and will start at 10:30 a. m. Several speakers from St. Paul have promised to be present and members of the state highway commission will be on hand to explain the workings of the law. Other matters will be discussed at this meeting also, such as markets, roads, election of officers of the association and election of delegates to the meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association at International Falls.

THEIR FINAL APPEALS.

Roosevelt and La Follette Speakers in South Dakota.

Mitchell, S. D., June 1.—Senator La Follette on the third day's campaign tour of the state, delivered only two speeches yesterday aside from the one here last night. He spoke briefly from his train at Arlington, and talked to a fair-sized crowd in the opera house at Colton. Ex-Senator Beveridge of Indiana opened his campaign in South Dakota for Col. Roosevelt with an address in the Sioux Falls city auditorium last night. Thomas R. Sterling of Redfield, candidate for United States senator, spoke from the same platform. The closing rally of the Roosevelt campaign will be held in Sioux Falls Monday night with Governor Stubbs of Kansas as the principal speaker.

JUDGE ANGELL QUITS.

Federal Jurist Does Not Wait for Successor to Be Named.

Detroit, Mich., June 1.—United States District Judge Alexis C. Angell, whose resignation was accepted some time ago by President Taft, vacated the bench yesterday without his successor being named. It was expected that the new judge will be appointed by the president at once.

Ill health caused by the strain from over-work was Judge Angells reason for resigning.

REPUBLICANS LEAD.

Two to Every Democrat in Foster County, N. D.

Carrington, N. D., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Republicans outnumber the Democrats 2 to 1 in Foster county, according to the list of voters registerde by the assessors of the county. A total of 1,244 voters were registered, as follows: Republican, 791; Democratic, 385; Socialists, 15; Prohibitionists, 2; Independents, 4; refusing to sign, 47. The vote for the primary election, on this showing, will be about 200 greater than in any previous election.

In several cities of the state the registration is below expectations, many voters failing to sign up.

GRAND JURY INDICTS.

Crow Wing Inquisitors Have Found Some True Bills.

Brainerd, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the district court a verdict for the defendant was given in the case of Fisk receiver vs. Bowman. In the case entitled Fisk, receiver vs. August Pohl, the plaintiff rested and the motion of the defendant to dismiss was granted. The case of Parks Safety Balance and Lock Co. vs. Charles L. Lasher is on trial. The grand jury has brought in a report on several indictments which will be made public as soon as the necessary service is secured. Twenty-one applicants for citizenship received their final papers.

BISHOP GIVES ADDRESS.

San Francisco Churchman Speaks to Brainerd Graduates.

Brainerd, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bishop E. H. Hughes of San Francisco delivered the address to the graduating class of the Brainerd high school this week, choosing as his subject, "The Perils of Knowledge." Of the large class of graduates Benjamin Weber received the highest grades and in his final examinations secured marks ranging from 95 to 100. He was the valedictorian. A fine musical program was rendered.

WELCOME TO BOOSTERS.

Grand Forks Will Greet Twin City-Duluth Bunch.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the Twin City-Duluth booster special arrives here Sunday morning for an hour's stop on its way to the Northwestern Development congress at Seattle the visitors will be met by the members of the Commercial club and be the club's guests.

CRAZY NORTH DAKOTAN BLOWS HIS HEAD OFF.

Forman, N. D., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Using a double barrelled shot gun and emptying the contents of both barrels into his head, John W. Hartman killed himself, his head being blown off. Hartman was insane. His dead body was found by his wife, who stumbled over it in the darkness.

WOMAN IS BURNED AND HOME DESTROYED.

Hankinson, N. D., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—While her hands were covered with gasolene Mrs. Jacob Berger lit a match. An explosion resulted seriously burning her arms and face. The fire also was communicated to the home and her home was entirely destroyed.

NORTH SHORE WOMAN DIES ALONE ON HER HOMESTEAD.

Grand Marias, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Mrs. Peter Elmer, who died on the Elmer homestead about ten miles west of here several days ago was held early this week upon the return of her husband from Duluth.

Coroner A. Johnson was notified Sunday evening that Mrs. Peter Elmer had been found dead at the Elmer homestead.

Mrs. Elmer was up at Nelson Dalbec's the Friday previously after some things and complained of not feeling well and when she left said that she would return in the afternoon. She did not return and on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Dalbec thinking that she might be sick, went down to her home and found her lying on the bed fully dressed and from all appearances having been dead for some time. Their theory is that the unfortunate woman died right after returning home from their place on Friday.

DROPS FROM SIGHT.

Fred Swanson Has Disappeared From Carlton County Haunts.

Carlton, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—A peculiar circumstance surrounds the disappearance of Fred Swanson. For a year or two past he worked around Atkinson with a number of different farmers, who all speak well of him. On May 14 Thomas McCausland employed him to help with setting up a road grader at Mahtowa. He left to go to his boarding place on that day and has not been seen since and fears are entertained that he may have done away with himself. He has a credit of $9.80 in the hands of Supt. McCausland.

Hawley, Minn., Tragedy.

Moorhead, Minn., June 1.—Robert Sloane, 60 years old, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the livery barn owned by Howard Shippey at Hawley, twenty miles east of here, last night. Sloane was at work in the barn when the fire broke out and he was unable to escape. He was one of the oldest residents in Clay county.

Boy Accidentally Shoots Father.

Hankinson, N. D., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because he left a loaded rifle where his 4-year-old son was able to gain possession of it, Levi Lisk has a bullet wound in his leg. He placed the weapon leaning against the wall of his home, when the boy obtained possession and, pointing it at his parent, pulled the trigger.

Northland Commencement.

Ashland, Wis., June 1. — The class night program of Northland college was held Thursday, last night there was a series of plays by the College Dramatic society and tonight there will be a recital by the graduates from the department of expression. The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered tomorrow by Dr. Robert W. Gammon of Chicago. Commencement will end next Thursday with the presentation of the Greek play, "Ingomar."

To Increase Insurance Rates.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 1.—The Independent order of Svithiod, a national fraternal insurance order, in convention here, unanimously recommended to increase its insurance rates to the basis of the national fraternal congress, and adjourned. A referendum vote of the entire membership will be taken on the increase Aug. 1.

Ashland Pioneer Buried.

Ashland, Wis., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Six honorary pallbearers, all old settlers, Thomas Bardon, B. M. Hoppenyan, C. L. Judd, J. J. Miles, E. Garnich and P. Merrill, carried the body of E. F. Prince, the aged Ashland pioneer, who died Thursday, aged 80, to the grave this afternoon. Mr. Prince came here in 1857 and had held many offices.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Williston, N. D.—By Sept. 1, Williston probably will receive its electric power supply from the federal irrigation station located near here. After several months of work, the government has submitted a form of contract to the city and should this be accepted, plans for providing the city with current will be adopted.

Bismarck, N. D.—William Kenmayer of Baldwin, who was brought to the city Sunday, was given a hearing before the insanity board Wednesday morning and was taken to the state hospital at Jamestown by Deputy Sheriff Ed Barnes.

Sheldon, N. D.—With the exception of about eight feet which had been hoisted, the rest of the artesian well's standpipe has sank from sight, and with its sinking has had a tendency to retard the well's flow. Four large jackscrews were used in the raising process but only a few feet of pipe could be secured, the rest being pulled apart a few feet below the surface.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The Grand Forks Commercial club next Wednesday night will elect seven directors to succeed B. Wells, Leslie Stinson, E. J. Lander, William Spriggs, C. C. Gowran, F. L. Goodman and W. W. Fegan, whose terms expire at that time.

Mandan, N. D.—W. S. Parkin of this city, who owns and operates a large ranch on the Standing Rock Indian reservation near Shields, Mots county, has been spending several weeks in Texas purchasing cattle for his ranch, and during the past few days three train loads have been shipped from various Texas points to Shields, containing 1,800, more or less, long-horn Texas cattle.

St. Thomas, N. D.—At the session of the Grand Forks district of the Women's Foreign Missionary society, Minneapolis branch, held here this week, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. H. H. Wylie, Drayton; vice president, Mrs. Pascoe, Pembina; secretary, May Halcrow, Bowesmont; treasurer, Mrs. Poole, Forest River.

Fargo, Nearly 300 Knights of Columbus from all parts of the state and from some of the councils in the neighboring state of Minnesota were here Thursday attending the big Memorial day ceremonial of the order that began early in the morning and continued until a late hour in the evening.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Ripon—William Zank, Irving Miller, and Fayette Kohl, have been taken to Madison by Dr. U. C. Senn, where they will take the Pasteur treatment. The three young men were bitten recently by a dog, which an analysis disclosed was afflicted with rabies.

Janesville—A visit Charles Krall, a retired farmer, made to a cemetery Memorial day, is believed to have been responsible for his committing suicide Friday. From the time he left the cemetery until he was last seen alive, he was morose and appeared to be worrying greatly. His wife and son found him hanging in his barn.

Fond du Lac—The twenty-first annual reunion of the Twenty-first Wisconsin infantry will be held in this city on Sept. 5 and 6. This will be the fiftieth anniversary of the mustering of the regiment into the United States service.

Ripon—William Zank, Irving Miller and Fayette Kohl were accompanied to Madison by Dr. U. C. Senn, where they will take the Pasteur treatment. The three young men were bitten by a dog afflicted with rabies.

Madison—Country pastors of Wisconsin and surrounding states will hold their third annual summer school of religion at the University of Wisconsin, June 15 to 26.

Fond du Lac—Announcement has been made of the presentation of a new vicarage to St. Mary's church at Medford, Wis., by Bishop Grafton, to cost $2,332. In addition to this the bishop is spending considerable money in beautifying the Medford Episcopal church.

Black River Falls—The day was further solemnized by the funeral services of Lewis Clarke, the first veteran ever buried here on Memorial day. Owing to the loss of the streets last fall, no attempt was made to parade, but the school children were out hundreds strong. L. A. Kremer of Madison delivered an address in the afternoon program.

Fairchild—Secretary of State J. A. Frear delivered the Memorial address here at the conclusion of the Memorial parade and the decoration of veterans' graves.

De Pere—Louis A. De Cleene, the principal appointee in the Ninth congressional district by Congressman Thomas F. Konop, has passed the entrance examinations for West Point Military academy. De Cleene was the valedictorian of the De Pere high school class of 1911.

Ashland—Engineers in the employ of the government are at the mouth of the Brule river for the purpose of determining the feasibility of constructing a harbor at that point. There are six men on the crew now on the Brule. The proposed harbor for which the survey is now in progress is being urged by owners of small craft which ply along the south shore of Lake Superior.

Iron Mountain—Several weeks ago, the city council ordered the board of building inspectors to make an examination of the St. Paul round house and coal sheds, reported in a dangerous condition. The inspectors have thus far declined to inspect and the railroad company shows no disposition to improve conditions.

Norway—The Norway board of education has engaged Supervisor Garthe to prepare the plans and purchase the outfit for the new manufacturing school. Mr. Garthe has also been authorized to purchase the equipment in the new high school.

Marquette—As the result of an accident at the Pioneer furnace that happened Friday morning, Thomas McDonald died later at St. Mary's hospital, where he was taken. McDonald was about 20 years of age; the adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McDonald of Ishpeming. He served some time in the United States army, but has been employed at the Pioneer furnace for some time.

Baraga—Fifteen students will be graduated from the Baraga high school this spring when the annual commencement exercises will be given.

Houghton—The tug Moose towed the derrick scow, "Limit," loaded with 1,400 tons of rock of Whitney Bros., from Duluth to the canal for Powell & Mitchell this week. The rock will be laid on the west side of the pier. The scow will be unloaded Monday.

Manistique—George H. Orr, the veteran lumberman and financier is dead in the 70th year of his age. He was president of the Chicago Lumber company and the Manistique bank.

Houghton—A very old Masonic emblem, though still comparatively new in the light of the antiquity of Masonry, is an apron found by Mrs. W. S. Jackson in the effects of her late husband, Dr. Jackson. It is 114 years old, having been made in 1798.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Stillwater—One of the boys of Shop A in the state prison, known as Frenchy, has invented a very useful device for keeping the aprons on the spreading machines clean of twine fibre.

Wadena—Peter Nehl and his son are doing great stunts in breaking wild lands in Meadow township. They have a 25-horse power gasoline engine capable of hauling six plows at one time. Of late they have been using a single breaking ploy and have been turning over the soil at a great rate.

Isanti—Edward Norellus received a letter Sunday from G. O. Welch, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at Fergus Falls, saying that P. O. Wallin was dangerously ill with liver, kidney and bladder trouble, and that his death is expected soon.

Cambridge—Gilbert, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Westlund, who reside on the Dr. H. J. Englund farm, just north of the village, died last Saturday afternoon from strychnine poisoning. The child in some way got the poison about the house and when it was discovered it was beyond physical or medical assistance.

New York Mills—The next meeting of the Farmers' club will be held in the Stinar schoolhouse, district 175, Tuesday evening, June 4. The work to be taken up will be that of organizing a stock breeders and stock shippers association.

North Branch—The new electric lights have been installed in the Swedish Lutheran church and the fixtures all placed.

Ada—In a decision rendered by the supreme court in the case of John G. Johnson vs. Wild Rice Boom company the devision of the district court was upheld. The district court gave Johnson damages in the amount of $2,500 for a breach of contract given by the company to refrain from diverting the water from the Wild Rice river.

Mora—The commencement exercises of the Milaca high school for 1912 were held at the high school auditorium Wednesday evening, and a large assemblage of people were present on the occasion. Dr. A. J. Bennett of Upper Iowa university delivered the commencement address, speaking on "The Making of Americans."

International Falls—The grounds of the M. & I. passenger station are being filled and graded with sand and gravel, which will greatly improve the appearance of the same.

Red Lake Falls—A county convention and public rally will be held in Red Lake Falls by the Prohibition party of Red Lake county, Wednesday, June 12. The convention will be held at 2 p. m. and will be followed by an address by E. E. Lobeck of Alexandria.

St. Cloud—S. M. Abbott of the Pitner Light company of this city has invented an oil burner for a kitchen range and has stood the test of a year's work in his own house and is now on exhibition in the office of the company.

Pine City—Grant Ingraham has been taken to the St. Cloud reformatory to pay the penalty of the crime he committed. Ingraham was convicted in the district court for an assault upon a young lady at Sandstone and appealed to the supreme court, which upheld the lower court.

Winona—The laying of two cornerstones, one St. Mary's boys' college, and the other at the new college of St. Teresa building, marked an event of great importance in the Catholic diocese of Winona and the imposing ceremony was participated in by a large number of the lay and clerical delegates from all over this locality.

RICH SILVER ORE IN NEW FIND IN THE DAVIS-DALY

Copper Ore Not of High Grade But Expected to Improve.

East Butte Can Increase Production Inside of Sixty Days.

Butte, Mont., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The 1,900-foot level of the Colorado mine of the Davis-Daly company has opened a body of ore which, while disappointing as to the copper ore, has been more than surprising as to the value of the silver ore. It runs from 40 to 60 ounces to the ton. The copper is not of a high grade but there is a hope that the west crosscut will show richness in copper when greater length is attained. The west crosscut is in but twenty-five feet and the north crosscut but twenty-one feet. The 1,700-foot level is continuing rich and practically all the fifty tons of ore being shipped each day to the East Butte smelter is coming from that level. The ore runs from 10 to 12 per cent copper with good silver values.

East Butte.

The East Butte company will be in a position to increase its production inside of sixty days. For the last thirty days workmen have been engaged in lengthening one of the furnaces and when this is completed work will be started on the second one, which will take about four months. As soon as the lengthening of the first furnace is finished the furnace capacity will be increased to the extent of about 300,000 tons a month and when the two furnaces are completed the capacity of the smelter will be about 2,000,000 pounds of copper a month. The improvements to the furnaces are not in the least interferring with the regular production and the output will continue to be about 1,250,000 pounds a month. In addition to keeping the smelter supplied to its capacity the development work is being continued and the reserve supply of ore is being continually added to. On the 800-foot level where the rich body of ore was opened up a long time ago there is estimated to be at least a two years' supply yet in sight. The dust chamber is working satisfactorily and good results are being obtained. The East Butte smelter is treating ore from the Butte-Alex Scott, the Keating in the Radersburg district, and some small shipments from the Butte-Ballaklava company's property.

Many Tons of Copper Used.

Tons and tons of copper will be used in the electrifying of the Butte, Anaconda & Pacific railway, and it is understood that the purchase of the red metal was made in the open market but a short time ago and after the price had advanced. Every electrical worker available has been put to work and the work of changing the system is now being pushed along with all possible speed. The work is being done in sections. The main line is only twenty-six miles long, but the side tracks and many tracks running in and around the mines about Anaconda hill make up a total mileage of 114 miles, and according to present calculations the entire system will be in operation in twelve months' time. The type of electric motor ordered will be on the design of the electric passenger locomotives now in use on the New York Central lines, but will be more modern. For a considerable time the question of installing the third-rail system was seriously thought of, but finally it was decided that it was too dangerous where the entire roadway cannot be entirely isolated from surface traffic. The Anaconda company is said to estimate that the electrifying of its system will bring about a saving of at least 35 per cent as compared with steam power.

The Anaconda's Costs.

A subject for general discussion among mining people is the cost of production of the Anaconda company, and many who have attempted to figure out the cost from the annual report have given up the question without reaching any conclusion. An accountant and a man well versed in mining affairs devoted all his energies to the subject and finally reached the conclusion that the cost was a little over 9 cents a pound. With the quite general use of electricity this year in operating the pumps, underground haulage and the hoisting by compressed air operated by electricity, there is no doubt that the production costs by the close of the present year will be reduced to somewhere in the vicinity of 8 cents a pound. When it is considered that there is probably not another corporation in the country which makes such a liberal allowance for depreciation as the Anaconda Copper Mining company, and that the expenses during the past year were unusual in the way of improvements, the cost of production around 9 cents is certainly making a very good showing.

Radersburg District.

The announcement is made that the mines of the Radersburg district will be in a position to ship ore to this city by Sept. 1 by rail. Several miles of grading have been completed and in about another week the work of tracklaying will be commenced. This will be good news to the many capitalists in the East who have invested money in the mines in the district, and who have been unable to get any returns in consequence of the expense for hauling ore twelve miles to a shipping point. When the railroad starts up, the saving effected will be $2 a ton, which is now paid on every ton that is shipped to the Northern Pacific station at Toston. It will undoubtedly result in a greatly increased tonnage from the mines now produced and will stimulate mining to an enormous extent. Preparations are under way for the development and operation of many properties which have been idle for years because of the lack of transportation facilities, and the district promises to become one of the most active and most important in old production of any in the Northwest. The value of the mines at depth is being shown by the Keating Gold Mining company which is now producing its richest ore between the 600 and 700-foot levels. The ore which is now being shipped from the Keating averages net profits of more than $20 to the ton, and the ore bodies are found to be wider and richer as depth is attained. The Keating is now sinking the Blacker shaft to the 800-foot level, and as soon as the railroad is completed will increase its shipments from 100 to 200 tons a day. The Ohio-Keating is doing a large amount of development work, but will not attempt to ship any ore until after the railroad is completed.

Mining Congress Chapter.

H. S. Taylor of Chicago has been in the city making an effort to revive the chapter of the American Mining congress in this city. The Butte chapter was organized by Mr. Taylor about two years ago, but it never has shown any life. He succeeded in getting a large number of the prominent mine managers of the city to become members and secured promises from them to take an interest in its affairs in the future. Mr. Taylor came here from Spokane where he was successful in organizing a chapter, taking in some fifty of the prominent mining men of Washington, Idaho and British Columbia.

Greene-Cananea.

Word has been received here from an authority which seems absolutely reliable that the dividend of the Greene-Cananea company is to be increased from 25 cents semi-annually to 25 cents quarterly. From the same source it is learned that the output is to be somewhat increased in view of the smelter operations being so satisfactory. Greene-Cananea is said to be producing copper at a little over 9 cents a pound.

Corbin Increases Holdings.

The Corbin Copper company, of which Stephen R. and David D. Dow of Boston are among the leading stockholders has completed a deal whereby it takes over the Flemming group of thirteen claims in what is known as the Alhambra district on the line of the Great Northern railway. While the amount of money involved in the transaction cannot be ascertained, it is understood that the Boston men paid a good round figure for the property. The mine has been developed by three tunnels to a depth of 450 feet and all of the ore extracted in the early days of the operation of the property was taken from this level. A dozen mining engineers have examined their property and not a single unfavorable report has been handed in. In all the opinions rendered the belief has been expressed that with development the property will become one of the state's greatest mines. In all previous shipments from the mine the ore ran from half an ounce to three ounces in gold, in addition to carrying spendid values in silver, copper and lead. Advices received here from Alhambra are to the effect that preparations are being made to develop the property on an extensive scale and that a small crew of men are already at work erecting bunk houses and making other preparations for the employment of a large force of men.

The Belmont Mine.

The Belmont mine is shipping ore every day to the Washoe smelter, but the amount being hoisted to the surface is limited owing to the ore bin capacity. In a short time the work of installing large steel ore bins will be commenced. The work of connecting the different mines with the Belmont through electric lines for underground haulage is proceeding, but some time will elapse before the work is completed.

BUTTE & ELY SOON TO JOIN SHIPPERS

Nevada Consolidated to Begin Development Through Liberty Pit.

Ely, Nev., June 1.—It has been officially announced that the Nevada Consolidated will at once commence the development of the ground of the Butte & Ely company and the ore bodies will be worked through the Liberty pit, which already has been worked up to the end line of the Butte & Ely ground.

The Copper Mines company, which is reported to have met with success on the Butcher group of claims, has entered into a contract with the Nevada Consolidated for the treatment of its ores at the Steptoe smelter and it is probable that a spur will be built from the Nevada Northern ore line to accommodate the shipments from the Copper Mines property. It is also said to be highly probable that the Ely Consolidated and Smokey Development company will become ore shippers before the end of the summer.

Diamond drilling is in progress on the lower levels of the Emma shaft of the Boston & Ely company. Two shifts of miners are now at work and arrangements are being made to put on three shifts. On account of the lack of sufficient water to supply the boilers water is now being hauled from the Giroux. The formation in the bottom of the shaft is rather soft for diamond drilling, but this difficulty has been overcome by casing the holes.

ORE SHIPMENTS BY THE GIROUX

Average Four Cars Daily and Run Three Per Cent Copper.

Ely, Nev., June 1.—The daily ore shipments of the Giroux Consolidated company are averaging four cars, the average copper value of which is about 3 per cent. The section from which this ore is coming holds several million tons of like grade, the difficulty being that the facilities for marketing ore have not been sufficient to bring the shipments up to the maximum as yet. The good weather is assisting in the process of shaping surface improvements, so that the daily shipments soon should be up to expectations.

SITE SECURED FOR SHATTUCK SMELTER

Deal Closed and Title Obtained and Survey Being Made.

Douglas, Ariz., June 1.—That the Shattuck smelter has been agreed on definitely by the directors of the company was the word given out here by L. C. Shattuck of Bisbee, the local and managing director of the company. Mr. Shattuck further stated that in accordance with instructions received from the board recently, he had closed the deal and secured title papers for the smelter site, and the work of making a contour survey and plan of the works has been completed. Just when actual work on the plant will be started he could not say, but was positive in the statement that the smelter would be built.

The work at the mine, he said, is bringing results of the most gratifying character with every blast and stroke of the drills. The ore now being shipped to the Queen smelter is very high grade, and the increase in price of the red metal over the average price of a year ago will go a long ways towards the construction of the new plant, which is now estimated to cost $500,000.

IN VIRGIN TERRITORY

Algonquin Company Formed to Develop Tract in Ontonagon County.

Osceola Has Opened Osceola Branch Mine, Idle Two Years.

Houghton, Mich., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Algonquin Copper company has been organized for the purpose of acquiring and developing a tract of 11,000 acres situate in Matchwood township, Ontonagon county, Mich. Capitalization is $3,750,000, shares $25 par. The company will immediately issue 100,000 shares in full payment for the property and for cash, about 30,000 shares of this issue to be offered for public subscription at $4 per share. The remaining 50,000 shares will be placed in the treasury and will be available in future financing. The principal interests in the new company are Reginald C. Pryor of Houghton, Hayden, Stone & Co. and Paine, Webber & Co. of Boston. The property is virgin territory and is said to carry several promising outcroppings of copper-bearing formations.

Isle Royale.

The Isle Royale is engaged in making a geological survey preliminary to shaft sinking in the territory next south of the No. 6 shaft. The new shaft, to be designated as No. 7, will be sunk in the horizon of the Isle Royale lode upon which the four active shafts of the company are opened. Development work in the more recent years has shown this bed to be rather low grade but of undoubted commercial value. The company has planned to resume operations in the horizon of the Baltic lode in which a shaft was sunk to a depth of 1,000 feet and abandoned a few years ago.

Osceola.

The Osceola has reopened the Osceola branch mine, idle since March, 1910. The North Kearsarge branch, which has been the principal producer during the time that the Osceola branch was idle, will be partially shut down to permit of necessary repairs to the No. 1 shaft. This shaft has been operated with slight interruptions for a long period of years and has long been in need of the repairs now planned. Being practically a shift in operation from one branch to the other, there will be no material increase in the total production of the mines.

Wolverine.

The Wolverine continues to give full attention to exploratory work in the several horizons that have been under investigation for some time. The shaft sunk in the Osceola lode has attained a depth of about 500 feet and will be pushed to 600 feet where a lateral investigation of this formation is planned. Developments in the several lateral openings above that depth have shown little encouragement. In the extension of the exploratory crosscut east on the twenty-eighth level of the main workings it recently passed through the so-called Old Colony lode. This formation gave considerable promise in the lands of the Old Colony company next south, but where intersected by the Wolverine crosscut, revealed nothing of value. The lode will be further investigated by drifts. The crosscut itself is in over 1,560 feet and will be continued to the eastern limits of the Wolverine property 1,200 feet further on.

New Arcadian.

The New Arcadian has been compelled to abandon No. 25 drill hole at a depth of 100 feet and has transferred the drill outfit to a point several hundred feet north where a second attempt to reach the ledge will be made. The new shaft on section 17 reached the ledge this week at a depth of eight feet and work there is now in solid rock. The shaft is in the nature of an exploration, having but a single compartment, but can be easily enlarged to three compartments should developments warrant. The equipment for this shaft was taken from an old shaft opened in the eastern limits of this property several years ago and is adequate for all purposes to a depth of 1,000 feet. The company is in easy financial condition and in no need of financing for another year at least.

Adventure.

The Adventure is drifting on No. 2 lode with good results and in this formation apparently has the makings of a mine. The crosscut which on this level is drifting to intersect the No. 3 lode, has attained a length of 760 feet. It should reach the No. 3 lode within another 100 feet. The shaft remains temporarily bottomed at a depth of about 1,525 feet.

MILL SITE FOR INSPIRATION

Located About One Mile North of Town of Miami.

Globe, Ariz., June 1.—The uncertainty that has existed during the past year in regard to the location of the Inspiration Consolidated concentrator and the time of beginning the development of the ore body and the starting of the vast amount of necessary construction work is now at an end, and orders have been given to start the work that will mean the expenditure of $7,000,000 in the Miami district during the next two years.

Many possible sites for the mill have been under consideration during the past year, among which was one on the Salt river and two or three in the vicinity of the mine, and it was finally decided to build the mill about one mile north of the town of Miami and a mile east of the Inspiration mine office. Many different factors had to be taken into consideration in deciding on the location, among which were the relative cost of hauling ore to the water and pumping water to the ore, the facilities for storing the tailing, the cost of the property and many others. The site selected was chosen as the one affording the best combination of all factors.

W. H. Aldridge, representing the controlling interests in Inspiration Consolidated, has been at the mines for a week and before leaving stated that all the main points had been settled and that the details would be worked out by the engineers.

He said: "The site for the 7,500-ton concentrator has been decided upon and the necessary land secured. It will consist of six sections of 1,250 tons each and the method of concentration recommended by J. M. Callow will be adopted. It is a logical extension of the principles of the roughing system as developed by the Utah Copper company.

"The general arrangement of the shafts, crushing plant and mill have been agreed upon and the details will be settled by the company's engineers, Repath & McGregor.

WATCH PLACER MINERS AT WORK

Sluice Located at Mouth of Storm Sewer in Helena.

Helena, Mont., June 1.—Scores of people who never before witnessed the process of recovering gold from placers are watching it in Helena, where three men are taking out three ounces daily from the dirt that has been taken from the new hotel excavation. For two weeks the men doing the work of excavating have been working on dirt that was never touched when Last Chance was placer mined, and this dirt, load after load, was dumped by the contractor, Louis Johnson, on land he owns near the old Montana Central depot. Last Saturday the sluice box for the washing operation was completed and the work of saving the gold started. The returns that day were three ounces and not less than that was recovered on both Monday and Tuesday. Three men are employed in operating the sluice. The sluice is located at the mouth of Last Chance storm sewer, which carries the surplus water from the south end of town and there will be an abundance of water for at least sixty days. There is a great amount of the dirt that will go through the sluice and if it continues to run as well as it has the contractor, who gets $10,500 for making the excavation for the hotel, will make a very good thing out of his contract. A number of fair sized nuggets have been recovered.

COMPANY NOW REORGANIZED

Consolidated Ophir Mines, Ltd., Will Operate on Large Scale.

Duluthians who own stock in the Consolidated Ophir Mines, Ltd., will be interested in the recent reorganization of the company.

A charter has been granted by the Ontario government to a company with an authorized capital of $5,000,000 to operate the Ophir and some surrounding properties which have been secured during the last year. Electric power will be secured from Kenora, and mining operations, it is said, will be pushed on a large scale.

CANANEA MINES SHOWING UP WELL

Puertocitos Property of the Greene-Cananea Increasing Its Output.

Cananea, Mex., June 1. — The Greene-Cananea company is having considerable success in its operation of the Puertocitos property and it will be but a short time before this property will furnish considerable ore for the smelter. As it is at present all the workings at Puertocitos, which is the extreme end of the district, are in ore of a smelting grade and ore is being furnished the smelter at the rate of about between 200 and 300 tons daily. This will be increased gradually until this property will be shipping at least double this amount by the end of the summer, probably. At the other properties of the company everything is running smoothly. The new ore body at the Capote mine is showing up bigger with every additional foot of work; the Duluth is shipping much ore to the smelter and the rest are doing their share.

The Calumet & Sonora company is operating steadily its wet and dry mills on the ore which has been broken before abandoning its policy of active mining pending the transfer of the control of the company and the reorganization. It is understood in Cananea that the new company will be perfected by June 1 and that the new company will then be in charge. At that time it is understood that a new policy will predominate the operating of that property and that operations will be commenced on a greater scale in the mine especially. People in control of the destinies of the company are expected in Cananea daily now and something more definite will soon be known regarding the future operations of the concern. Shipments are keeping up at the regular rate of about five cars a month of lead and zinc concentrates to the states, while several cars of copper concentrates are sold the Cananea company and treated here.

ORDER FOR HEARING ON PETITION TO VACATE FINAL DECREE—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis —ss.
In Probate Court.
In the Matter of the Estate of John Stark, Deceased.

The petition of Robert Stark in the above entitled matter having been filed in this Court, alleging among other things that he has a valid claim against said estate of John Stark, deceased, in the sum of four hundred and eighty-five (485) dollars for labor rendered deceased and money loaned; that he failed to file said claim against said estate within the time limited for the filing of claims for the reason that he was not aware that any time had been set within which to file claims; that since gaining knowledge of such fact he has used due diligence to secure the filing of said claim, and praying that the final decree entered in said estate on the 29th day of April, A. D. 1912, be set aside and vacated;

NOW, THEREFORE, It is ordered that said petition be heard before this Court on Tuesday, the 25th day of June, A. D. 1912, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, in the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House at Duluth, Minnesota;

AND FURTHER, Said petitioner is hereby ordered to serve this notice by three weeks' publication in The Duluth Herald, and by serving a copy hereof on Bridget Stark, Executrix of said estate, and any other parties known to have an interest in said estate, at least 15 days before said day of hearing.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., May 24th, 1912.

BIG DROP IN WHEAT

Cloudy Weather in the Southwest With Some Rain Lowers Prices.

Dull Trading in Flaxseed—Large Default Made in the May Option.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 1.—Wheat went done again today on account of the same cause that reduced the price yesterday, namely, cloudy weather in the Southwest with some rains. There were reports today of damage done to wheat in some parts of Kansas that are still dry, yet the fact that some rain had fallen and the outlook was for more, drove wheat on the North American markets in a very decisive manner today, especially near the close of the session.

Duluth July wheat closed today at 1¼c to 1½c lower. There were likewise good slumps on other North American markets, especially that of Chicago, where the July option dropped 1⅝c to 1⅞c. Duluth cash wheat closed 1c over July. Durum and oats each closed 1c off. Rye and barley were unchanged.

Today's primary receipts were considerably below those of a week ago, and still further below those of a year ago. This was bullish, but the power of that factor was swept away and forgotten in the wave of bearish sentiment that resulted from the good weather news of the Southwest.

News from Liverpool was bearish. Wheat on that market closed ¼d to ½d lower. The main bearish factors there were the news of better weather in the American Southwest and a forecast of heavy Indian wheat shipments next week.

Flaxseed Market Dull.

There was not much trading in flaxseed on the Duluth market today. Offers were small and the demand was slack. Duluth June today closed 1c lower at $2.24, and July ½c higher at the same price. This is 29c higher than the closing price of the July option at Winnipeg. The most exciting feature of the Duluth flaxseed market today was the discussion of the default that was reported to have been made on the May option to the amount of about 10,000 bu. Up to the time the market closed today, the board of directors had received no complaint in regard to the default and will not be in a position to act until such a complaint has been made. One of the brokers of the company that is reputed to be the principal holder of the options declared recently that the high price of May flax was not due to anything else than general market conditions. He said his company did not have to accept any lower grade of flax than No. 1 in delivery and would not. As No. 1 was very scarce, it was not surprising that the price of the option rose as the month drew to a close. "I told these fellows a month ago," he remarked, "that the May option was going 20c higher, and here you see it has gone away beyond that. Now I will say that the July option will make the same kind of a climb when the time comes, as the May option did, and from the same cause, namely, the scarcity of No. 1 flaxseed. Flaxseed is scarce and high the world over."

The Chicago Paint, Oil and Drug Review says:

"As the flaxseed market advanced last week the linseed oil market became firmer with the result that on Monday of this week, when the flaxseed market showed an inclination to advance, the linseed oil market was put up to 74c for strictly pure, raw linseed oil in car load lots in cooperage. In some directions this price could be shaded to 73c, but the open quotation is 74c. On Saturday of last week the market in Minneapolis was 71c, but with the advance in seed on Monday it is expected values have advanced there.

"The stocks of linseed oil in the crushers' hands are very light. It is perfectly well known that they have not been carrying any volume of oil, and they have been buying seed from hand to mouth. Paint and linoleum manufacturers have, in the majority of cases, taken all of their May oil, so that May contracts can be considered out of the way, and buyers have been placing orders for additional quantities of oil wherever they could secure a promise of delivery. This means the crushers have been called upon at the very last moment to make deliveries of oil which were not expected.

"The paint business has taken on renewed activities, and the linseed oil crushers are probably just about as busy as they ever were in their existence. If this condition continues, it is going to require a large quantity of seed in order to make deliveries of oil during June.

"The linseed cake market is quiet and, in fact, rather dull. Quotations are steady and are considered $33 per ton f. o. b. Chicago."

The following is from B. W. Snow at Dodge City, Kan.: "It is cold and cloudy, threatening all day, but no rain. The crop through Reno and the east half of Pratt is remarkably good. The west half of Pratt, Kiowa and Ford have been good, but begin to show damage. Fields are turning gray and brown spots are appearing. Most of the damage was done yesterday. Good rains at once during substantial recovery, but with a continuance of the sun and wind the crop will go fast. It is past the breaking pont now. Another week like the past will cut the Kansas crop to sensationally small figures.

"Tunder storms occurred last night along the Arkansas valley from Garden City to Great Bend at least. Today the weather is cooler and clear."

Le Count wired from Wichita, Kan.: "There were light showers here last night. Reliable reports were that the country west of here would get liberal rain. One report from Larned says that an inch fell there. I believe quite an area in Southern Kansas got rain. I received a letter from York, Neb., stating that no rain had fallen there since I was there and that crops were badly in need of rain. The weather is clear and cool now."

Inglis wired from Belleville, Kan., on May 31: "From Wellington to Belleville, 250 miles, most of the wheat is headed. With few exceptions the stand is thin and short. There is not much firing. Firing commences to be serious at McFarland and extends to Belleville. May fields are beyond redemption. Rain would check this continued deterioration. Oats are poor. The weather is cool and cloudy."

For some days there have been rumors about the floor of the board of trade to the effect that there would be heavy defaulting in the May option of flaxseed. This morning word was passed around to the effect that various companies had defaulted to an aggregate amount of 10,000 bu., and the fact that this story fits in so well with the general talk that has been going about the board makes it look highly probable. It is said that these companies have defaulted, because they felt that those who were boosting the price of May flaxseed on the Duluth market were practicing a "holdup game."

Under the rules of the board of trade, no action can be taken on the default, until complaint has been entered. This must be presented to the board of directors and that body will judge of the damages that the holders of the defaulted options have suffered, and settlement must be made in money.

The trial of the cases before this tribunal will be most interesting for it will involve the question whether the extraordinary prices that the Duluth May flaxseed option commanded, especially during the last few days of the month, were due to actual market conditions, or to deliberate manipulation.

It is interesting in this connection to observe that linseed on track closed yesterday at $2.25, whereas the May option closed at $2.58 bid. The July option closed at $2.23½ asked. Some of the brokers were asked yesterday why the linseed on the track was not purchased and delivered to satisfy the enormously high option and they replied that there was not time to do this. The flaxseed must be in the elevators and certificates issued for it, before it can be used to make delivery on an option. Some who contend that May flax was deliberately boosted point to that condition as positive proof that their charge is true.

MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Slumps on Selling Orders, Due to Southwest Rains.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 1.—Scattered rains in Kansas and Nebraska caused heavy selling orders in the pit and wheat prices declined sharply. July closed 1⅜@1½c lower than yesterday and September 1¼@1⅜c lower. Local elevator stocks of wheat decreased 200,000 bushels for one day. Carlot receipts:

Minneapolis, today, 110; week ago, 134; year ago, 144.

Duluth, today, 56; week ago, 13; year ago, 159.

Winnipeg, today, 233; week ago, 238; year ago, 163.

Cash wheat was in fair demand only and the market remained about steady. No. 1 northern sold for 1½@1⅜c above the July contract.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 2,548 tons. The market was slow and steady. Demand dull at unchanged prices.

Wheat—July opened $1.12@1.11⅜; high, $1.12; low, $1.10½; closed, $1.11@1.11⅜. September opened $1.05@1.04⅜; high, $1.05; low, $1.03½; closed, $1.03⅝. December opened $1.04⅜; high, $1.04⅝; low, $1.04½; closed, $1.04¼.

Closing cash prices: Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.13¼; No. 1 northern, $1.12½@1.12⅜; to arrive, $1.12½@1.12¾; No. 2 northern, $1.10½@1.10¾; to arrive, $1.10½@1.10⅝; No. 3 wheat, $1.08½@1.08¾. No. 3 yellow corn, 72@73c; No. 3 white oats, 50½c; No. 2 rye, 83@83½c. Bran in 100-lb sacks, $23.50@24.00.

Flour—Prices were lowered today on account of the decline in wheat. Demand was, however, still slow. Shipments, 82,980 bbl. First patents, $5.40@5.65; seconds, $5.10@5.35; first clears, $3.80@4.05; seconds, $2.70@3.00.

Flax—Receipts, 36 cars; year ago, 2 cars; shipments, 1 car. There was a fair demand for the moderate flax receipts at the even Duluth July for No. 1 seed. Closing price, $2.24.

Barley—Receipts, 11 cars; year ago, 14 cars; shipments, 2 cars. The barley market was dull and void of any new feature. Demand continued strong for all malting grades, but slow for the lower varieties. Prices closed in the same range as yesterday. Closing range, 65c@$1.15.

CHICAGO MARKET.

General Rains in Southwest Pull Wheat Prices Down.

Chicago, June 1.—General rains over most of Kansas and Nebraska today pulled wheat prices down. The bears also were favored by signs that Texas and Oklahoma crops as a rule would be harvested in high condition. A forecast of heavy shipments from India next week acted too, against the bulls. Opening prices were ½c to 1¼c lower, July started at $1.09 to $1.09¼, a drop of ⅞c to 1⅛c, and declined to $1.08½@1.08⅝.

Stop-loss orders from longs carried the market yet lower. The close was unsettled with July 1⅞c under last night at $1.08¼.

Lightness of offerings helped for a while to sustain the corn market. Later, however, sales increased in volume, and sent values down with wheat. July opened ¼c to ⅜c off at 74⅞c to 74⅞c, and descended to 74⅜c.

Heavy liquidation on the part of holders tumblers prices far below the early prices. Latest trading was nervous with July at 72⅝c, a net loss of 2⅜c.

Although country buying steadied oats at the outset, the weakness of other grain proved more than could be withstood. July started ¼c to ⅜c lower at 48¾c to 48¾c, touched 49@49⅛c and then sagged to 48¼c.

Investment demand made provisions firm. The incentive for purchasing appeared to be an advance in the price of live hogs. Initial transactions ranged from 2½c lower to 5c higher, with September delivery $18.45 for pork, $10.35 for lard and $10.65 for ribs.

REMARKS — Light rains fell over Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Minnesota, Southwestern Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Western Missouri and Oklahoma.

H. W. RICHARDSON, Local Forecaster.

‡—Not included in the district averages.

§—Maximum of yesterday, minimum of last night.

†—Indicates inappreciable rainfall. °—Maximum for yesterday. †—Minimum for 24 hours, ending 8 a. m., 75th meridian time.

NOTE—The average maximum and minimum temperature are made up at each center from the actual number of reports received, and the average rainfall from the number of stations reporting 0.10 inch or more. The "state of weather" is that prevailing at time of observation.

London Stocks.

London, June 1.—American securities were quiet during the short session of the Stock exchange here today. Prices opened around parity and later advanced on covering. The closing was steady with values ranging from unchanged to ⅞ higher than yesterday's New York closing.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Feverish Tone, Followed By Dullness, During the First Hour.

Gains on Advance in Steel Products and Close Is Firm.

New York, June 1.—The mixture of gains and losses at the opening of today's stock market suggested a further degree of irregularity. Lehigh Valley and some active issues, including Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Reading, opened with gains, but the market soon became reactionary.

A feverish tone, followed by dullness, prevailed during the first hour. Can and some of the more obscure specialties fell a point, but leaders such as Reading, Lehigh Valley, Canadian Pacific and Union Pacific, soon recovered to well above yesterday's close.

The market closed firm. Pressure was again directed against prominent issues in the last hour. Support was forthcoming, however, and this, together with another advance in certain steel products, after readjustment of prices, with gains of 1@2 points.

South St. Paul, Minn., June 1.—Cattle—Receipts, 300; killers, steady; steers, $5.75@8.25; cows-heifers, $3.75@7.00; calves, steady, $4.50@8.00; feeders, steady to weak, $5.00@6.15. Hogs—Receipts, 1,800; 5c higher; range, $7.15@7.30; bulk, $7.20@7.25. Sheep, shorn—Receipts, 100; steady; lambs, $4.00@9.00; wethers, $3.00@5.75; ewes, $1.50@5.25; wool stuff at 50@75c premium.

Cotton Market.

New York, June 1.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 2@4 points. Active months sold about 4 to 5 points net lower shortly after the opening under scattered offerings which probably were encouraged by a favorable view of weather conditions in the South and prospects for some further showers over Sunday. There was enough covering for over the week-end to check the decline, however, and the market later in the first hour was steady within a point or two of last night's closing figures. Futures closed steady; closing bids: June, 10.83; July, 10.97; August, 11.02; September, 11.08; October, 11.14; November, 11.17; December, 11.22; January, 11.18; February, 11.22; March, 11.23; May, 11.32. Spot closed quiet and 10 points lower; middling uplands, 11.40; middling gulf, 11.65. Sales, 204 bales.

The encouraging news that things at the new steel plant are "looking up" is something which real estate men of the city have been eagerly waiting for. Beginning Monday, a double shift of men will be put to work at the steel plant site. This will increase the working force, it is understood, by about 250 men. Labor however, is reported to be more or less scarce but as soon as the men are secured the shifts will be working full capacity.

There has been more or less delay in the work of laying the foundations for some of the buildings. In fact, it is understood, that some of the steel gang workers have been laid off partly because the other work has not advanced sufficiently and partly because material had not arrived.

But from now on work at the steel plant will be rushed. The townsites adjoining the steel plant property are enjoying a prosperous selling campaign and it is expected that the condition will be a boon to Duluth real estate generally.

New Duluth and Gary townsite residents are much incensed at the city's apparent indifference with regard to making the much needed fill on Commonwealth avenue. The work, it is claimed, was supposed to have been started several weeks ago, but was delayed for some unknown reason. Under the present conditions, the road is almost impassable.

The Gary Land company reports good progress in the opening weeks of its big selling campaign. During the past week several lots at Gary townsite were disposed of and a number of other deals are pending. Inquiry was never better, says A. C. Volk, president of the company.

A. W. Keuhnow, who operates in Norton's Steel Plant division, reports that five lots were sold during the past week to people residing in Grand Forks, Calumet, Eau Claire and Iron Belt, Wis. Three new houses have been started in the new division during the past week.

A. H. Burg & Co. advise strong inquiry for large tracts of land in the Lake Nebagamon country of Wisconsin. During the past two weeks the firm has shown considerable land and expects to turn several large deals, each involving two or three sections. In the city the company finds inquiry for mortgages and residence property to be better than for some months past.

C. F. Colman, who is operating in Colman's addition to Woodland, reports that during the past month he has made more sales than in any one of eight months previous. Although this addition is less than two years old, it has already been improved by fifty or sixty buildings, and thirty of the small acre tracts are under cultivation.

During the past week the Western Realty company of the West end sold a house at Twenty-fifth avenue west and Sixth street, from Gustaf Linzie to Erick Erickson, for $3,200. Considerable inquiry is reported by this firm for its garden tracts on the Morris Thomas road, and a number of sales have been made, the purchasers being Ben Ellingsen, Fritz Hjelm, Alfred Johnson and C. Lundgren, all of the West end.

The land departments of the Duluth & Iron Range and South Shore railroads report an astonishing influx of settlers into Minnesota from the older states. Both have made a large number of sales during the past week. The South Shore's activity is confined particularly to Northern Wisconsin and Northern Michigan, while the Iron Range railroad operates in Northern Minnesota.

Bayfield county orchard lands are meeting with heavy demand. During the past week C. A. Knippenberg of this city sold four good sized orchard tracts near Cornucopia, Wis.

E. S. Kempton this week sold to John M. Johnson for $800 a forty foot frontage on the east side of Seventh avenue east between Seventh and Eighth streets.

A house and fifty foot lot was purchased this week by Herman Olson from Anton Koneczny on the upper side of Second street between Seventeenth and Eighteenth avenues east. The consideration was $3,200.

P. G. Kraemer has sold a residence on the upper side of Third street between Fourteenth and Fifteenth avenues east to Maurice Cohen. The consideration is unknown.

Edward Dormedy has purchased the two-story frame restaurant building on the west side of Central avenue adjoining the Dormedy block from J. W. Hurst for $4,050. The property fronts twenty-five feet on Central avenue.

SUGGESTS FLOATING SWIMMING POOL FOR USE ALONG DULUTH HARBOR FRONT

Abraham Holstead, a local architect, has evolved an ingenious idea which he has offered as a suggestion for the solution of Duluth's public bath question.

He has prepared sketches for a floating bath house and swimming pool, an innovation in the recreation line, which as yet has never been tried in Duluth.

The bath will be a movable one and may be shifted at will. Mr. Holstead is of the opinion that such a floating contrivance could be made to meet the requirements of an ordinary bathing place. The plans, which are reproduced above, not only call for a swimming pool of a reasonable depth, but also provide for a number of other features, among which are a promenade deck, dressing rooms, ice cream parlors and a place where boats might land.

Mr. Holstead estimates that such a movable public bath could be built for $15,000. He says the advantages of such a bath house and swimming pool perhaps cannot be readily appreciated, except by the younger generation who, under present conditions, have no opportunities for swimming.

Mr. Holstead suggests that the floating bath house could be used a portion of the time at the new Fairmont park in West Duluth, then at the West end or perhaps downtown.

As yet Mr. Holstead has not presented his plans to the park board or the playgrounds association.

ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS REPORT A BUSY WEEK

Contracts for Many New Residences Are Being Let.

Duluth architects and builders report a busy week. Although no jobs of any considerable magnitude were launched this week, there was a noticeable activity along building lines in the residence districts.

Architect P. M. Olsen this week let the contract for the erection of a two-story frame and stucco residence at Forty-fourth avenue east and Robinson street to John Nolan. The house will cost $4,000 and will be built for J. R. Pritchard.

Mr. Olsen is also preparing plans for two $5,000 buildings to be erected this summer by the Alliance Real Estate corporation. One is a two-story flat building to be built on Eleventh avenue west between Third and Fourth streets and the other a two-story frame residence on Woodland avenue between Sixth and Seventh streets.

The same architect is also preparing plans for a reinforced concrete creamery building to be built on the Jean Duluth farm at a cost of $3,000; also for a $4,500 residence for J. S. Straight on Woodland avenue between Sixth and Seventh streets.

Architects F. L. Young & Co. will receive bids until June 10 for a 7-room frame and stucco schoolhouse to be erected at Winton, Minn. The same firm has let the contract for the residence of Dr. C. M. Wilson on Woodland avenue near the normal school to Richard Hanson for $5,200.

Simon Clark is having plans prepared for a $7,000 residence on Woodland avenue in the Brookline division. Arthur Hanford is the architect.

Architects Kelly & Williams will call for bids on the Cloquet city hall and police station June 4. This structure will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000. The same firm also reports that it is preparing plans for a church and a village lockup at Grand Marais, Minn. Plans for a new residence at Cloquet are also being prepared.

Anthony Puck, architect, will put out for figures next week the plans for the plumbing and heating systems of the new $100,000 high school which is being erected at Buhl, Minn.

J. Sederberg is erecting a $4,000 dwelling house on Greysolon road between Nineteenth and Twentieth avenues east.

A $3,000 home is being erected for F. Bayha on Luverne street between Forty-third and Forty-fourth avenues east.

The Duluth Diamond Drilling company has taken out a building permit for the construction of a machine shop and warehouse on Fifty-fourth avenue west between Main and Polk streets.

GREATEST GATHERING OF REAL ESTATE MEN EVER HELD IN AMERICA

Upward of 1,000 delegates are expected to be in attendance at the fifth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate exchanges, to be held at Louisville, Ky., June 19, 20 and 21. Delegations will start about June 15 from the far away sections of the United States, taking special trains for Louisville and picking up consignments of real estate men from cities all along the way.

One of the longest excursion runs will be from the Canadian Northwest, although the party will formally start from Winnipeg. A number of real estate dealers throughout the Canadian provinces will meet in that city to accompany the Winnipeg delegation. It is expected that Winnipeg will send fifty delegates to the convention. A special train conveying them will go through St. Paul and Minneapolis, picking up a large number of real estate men at those cities. The Winnipeg visitors will be entertained during their stay in Minneapolis and St. Paul, and proceed on to Indianapolis, where further entertainment will be provided. That will be the last city at which a formal stop will be made before Louisville is reached.

Chicago's delegation of fifty or seventy-five will probably be joined by those from Milwaukee, Omaha and Iowa cities. Detroit real estate men will go to the convention accompanied by the representatives from a number of real estate boards throughout Michigan.

Ohio real estate boards are planning to have their delegates reach Louisville in a body. Delegations from Cleveland, Columbus, Toledo, Cincinnati, Akron and Springfield and other Ohio points will meet at Cincinnati on the afternoon of June 18, 250 or 300 strong, and take a steamboat down the Ohio river, arriving in Louisville on the opening morning of the convention. Plans are on to have the delegations from Buffalo, N. Y., and Erie, Pa., join the Ohio real estate men and accompany them on the boat from Cincinnati.

Tentative plans are also under way to connect up the delegations from San Francisco, Los Angeles, Denver and Kansas City on their way to Louisville. The delegations from the Southern states will for the most part come direct as they are scattered and suitable train connections can scarcely be made.

The convention at Louisville is expected to be the greatest gathering of real estate men ever held in America. It will last three days, June 19, 20 and 21, and will abound not only with intensely interesting and practical addresses dealing with real estate topics, but will be replete with Kentucky hospitality of the well-known variety. The convention will be held in the Armory at Louisville, and it is expected that there will be an unusually large number of fine exhibits. Topographical maps will be sent by a number of the larger cities and the collections of real estate forms, which will be on view, will be one of the most complete ever brought together.

It is expected that this city will be well represented at the convention as the members of the local board are taking a great deal of interest in the arrangements.

BEAUTIFUL GARDEN TRACTS

Soon to Be Offered Where the Soil Is Very Rich.

A beautiful tract of land situated on the west side of the Howard and Gnesen road at the end of Calvary road is being platted at the present time and will be put on the market by Stryker, Manley & Buck. The tract will be known as Ingleside Park and the lots will each contain about one acre. At the present time lines for roads are being run and contracts will be let at once for the grading. The agents claim that this land is such that it will find ready sale, being free from swamp and not rocky, and its location such that when the street car line is extended to Calvary cemetery there will be a large increase in values. They expect to offer the lots on the easy payment plan.

ORDER FOR HEARING ON PETITION FOR ADMINISTRATION—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis.—ss.

In Probate Court.

In the Matter of the Estate of Gust Kenner, Decedent.

THE PETITION OF Elijah Kenner, having been filed in this Court, representing, among other things, that Gust Kenner, then being a resident of the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, died intestate, in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, on the 15th day of November, 1910; leaving estate in the County of St Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said petitioner is the son and heir at law of said decedent, and praying that Letters of Administration of the estate of said decedent be granted to Elijah Kenner,

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this Court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House in Duluth, in said County, on Monday, the 17th day of June, 1912, at ten o'clock, A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

ORDERED FURTHER, That this Order be served by publication in The Duluth Herald, according to law, and that a copy of this Order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing and by mailing a copy of this order to each heir and interested party at least fifteen days before the day of hearing.

By the Court.

S. W. GILPIN,
Judge of Probate.

(Seal, Probate Court, St. Louis County, Minn.)

HOMEWOOD ADDITION.
HOMEWOOD ADDITION.
HOMEWOOD ADDITION.

If you have not selected your lot in HOMEWOOD ADDITION, you should do so at once. This ADDITION, which is located on the Boulevard between Fifth avenue east and Tenth avenue east, is being called the ADDITION BEAUTIFUL.

HOMEWOOD is ideally located. In fact, it is a most attractive proposition. Attractive because it lays exceptionally well, is practically free from rock, is covered with a beautiful growth of trees, commands the grandest view to be had in Duluth, and, best of all, is centrally located, the distance from the retail center of Duluth being within one mile. Furthermore, it is located in that part of the city where the easiest grade for wagon roads and STREET RAILWAYS is available, and which will be used to reach the country east, west and north of the city.

This city of ours has grown east and west. It is practically the shape of a dumb-bell—large at both ends, narrow in the center. STREET CAR SERVICE WILL NOW BE EXTENDED north, and that district north of the center of the city is bound to grow.

HOMEWOOD ADDITION is located in the trend of travel, and the day is not far distant when lots in HOMEWOOD ADDITION will be selling from 100 to 200 per cent more than they are selling for today.

It is a settled fact that STREET RAILWAY SERVICE WILL BE WITHIN THREE BLOCKS OF HOMEWOOD within a few months, and it is only a question of a short time before this Street Railway service will be extended on out through HOMEWOOD to the west, east and north.

STOP AND CONSIDER THIS QUESTION FOR A MINUTE. HERE IS PROPERTY LOCATED WITHIN ONE MILE FROM THE BUSINESS DISTRICT OF DULUTH SELLING AT PRICES RANGING FROM $100 TO $400; $1 TO $4 CASH, BALANCE $1 TO $2 PER WEEK; NO INTEREST, AND TORRENS CERTIFICATE FOR EACH LOT.

NEVER HAS SUCH AN OPPORTUNITY BEEN OFFERED FOR A HOME OR AN INVESTMENT AS A LOT IN HOMEWOOD.

SAVINGS BANKS PAY 3 PER CENT PER ANNUM. A LOT IN HOMEWOOD WILL UNDOUBTEDLY PAY YOU 25 OR 50 PER CENT PER ANNUM IF BOUGHT AT THE PRESENT PRICES.

Just stop and think of it. $1 cash and $1 per week will buy a lot in HOMEWOOD ADDITION! no interest, no mortgage, and Torrens title.

Do not let this opportunity pass. VISIT HOMEWOOD AT ONCE. ALL LOTS ARE MARKED WITH TAGS. PICK OUT THE LOT YOU WANT, BRING THE TAG TO THIS OFFICE AND SECURE YOUR LOT.

Remember, HOMEWOOD IS NOT A SUBURB. It is only 12 city blocks from our retail center, but lots are being sold at a lower price than property that is being offered four and five miles from our retail center.

Do not wait. Act at once.

LAKEWOOD PARK.

THE BEAUTIFUL WOOD-LAND PROPERTY—JUST HALF A MILE NORTH OF CITY LIMITS.

AN OPPORTUUNITY

Of securing a 5 or 10-acre tract of stoneless land where values will double and triple in a few years.

THE LOCATION

Commends itself to the most critical; high and sighly, sloping gently southward toward grand Lake Superior, heavily wooded with white and yellow birch, maple, basswood, elm, some ash, pine, spruce and balsam.

THE SOIL

Naturally of the very best, indicated so by the timber itself. No sticky red clay or gravel, but the very choicest of clay loam, which can be seen along the creeks and roads, growing grasses several feet high.

PRICES.

Considering the absolute freedom from stone on the balance of land for sale, the cost of clearing is very low, and our prices considerably below $100 per acre, we are justified in assuring you a better deal than it is possible for you to obtain elsewhere.

We have been most fortunate in selling acres in Lakewood Park to first-class people, and the future developments in that location will be such as to ensure higher prices and make it a lovely place to be.

HOMEACRES.

DULUTH HEIGHTS.

Acre garden tracts within thirty minutes from Superior street and Seventh avenue west. Good soil; easily cleared.

Secure your land now, raise crop of potatoes or other vegetables to supply you all winter and help pay for your land.

Our Homeacre tracts are so near the center of the city that you can live there and work in town, while saving house rent, cost of garden produce, etc.

Only nine blocks from present street railway and school.

Let us show you what others are doing at Homeacres in the way of building their homes, clearing and cultivating land.

Four houses building; other owners starting to clear their lands.

A Homeacre tract means surer, better and real living for yourself, wife and children, in good times and bad—an insurance policy against hard times.

GET AN ACRE AND BE INDEPENDENT.

Whom had you rather be? The man that buys a 25-foot lot in a crowded part of town, your children playing in the streets, buying milk by pint and stale vegetables by the quarter peck, storage eggs all at high prices,

OR

The man with a home acre, children in the garden, taxes low, no assessment, sweet milk by the gallon, fresh eggs daily, chickens, fresh vegetables in the summer, and contentment?

Mr. Wage Earner, a home acre means to you an acre at the cost of a cheap 25-foot lot; easy access to business center or place of work on 15-minute car ride; a chance for vegetables, chickens and cow; cheaper living; work for yourself when out of work; healthy surroundings for your family. Ten lots that will advance in value ten times as fast as one lot. The very best chance that has been offered the homeseeker or small investor, counting price, terms, location and what you get. Your wife, with her chickens and a cow, and your boys in a garden, can make as much from Homeacre every year as you can earn in wages.

PRICES:
$175 to $350 per Homeacre. Block of ten 25-foot lots equal to $17.50 to $35 per lot.

Easy Payments. No Interest. No Payments When Sick. Torrens Title. See us for full information.

SPECIAL OFFER.
For first five men who will agree to clear and level one acre each and plant to potatoes, will postpone any payment on tract until crop is harvested.

THE MOST SOUGHT-FOR PROPERTY IN THE WEST END, IS NOW READY FOR THE MARKET.

These lots are conveniently situated, within two blocks of Third street car line, overlooking and adjoining the beautiful Lincoln park. An unobstructed view of the lake and harbor gives an added value to this beautiful addition.

Just the ideal place for the man of moderate means to build his home.

The unexcelled car service of 2½ minutes during the rush hours to take you to your work.

The man who works in any of the numerous factories or enterprises at the West end and wishes to live near his work, in a neighborhood suitable for bringing up his children, could select no better site for his home than at Fairbanks Addition.

REMEMBER!

All improvements, such as gas, water, sewers, will be in before snow flies this fall. The roads are to be graded also.

The lots are all 33 feet wide and over, being 125 feet deep. This allows sufficient room for building, also plenty of room for nice lawn and garden.

PRICES LOW.

TERMS VERY REASONABLE.

OUR SUNNYSIDE GARDENS AT DULUTH HEIGHTS

Is the best garden tract proposition ever offered to the citizens of Duluth. This property is so near to the heart of the city (24 blocks), that it is no hardship for anyone working down town to get to their work. Our nearest tracts are only four blocks from car line, with graded street and cement walks up to the property, four blocks from schoolhouse and church, and one block from city water. Our little farms, as we call them, are 86 by 241 feet, and have as fine loamy garden soil as can be found anywhere near the city. Prices range from $200 to $300 each. Terms, $20 to $30 cash (10 per cent of purchase price), balance $8 per month, no interest. Torrens title. Why pay more for a 25-foot lot way up on the hillside and be all crowded in, when you can buy one of our garden tracts that are just as accessible, where you will have plenty of sunshine and fresh air, and be away from the smoke and noise of the city, and where you can raise poultry, fruit and an abundance of vegetables and garden truck for your table, which will greatly reduce your cost of living; where your children can be taught to work and help support themselves, in place of hanging around on the street corners learning bad habits. As to the value of the property, do not forget that in a few years Duluth will be a big city, and that a piece of land 86 by 241 feet within 24 blocks of the business center will be worth many times what we are asking for it now, so from all standpoints you are not taking any chances when you buy one or more of these tracts, as it cannot fail to be a good investment, both financially and doubly so in giving you a healthy place to live away from the dust and grime of the city, and still be within easy reach of your place of employment. Call at our office or telephone us. New 'phone Lincoln 335, and we will be glad to arrange to show you the property and will pay your car fare both ways, whether you buy or not. For the convenience of those who cannot come week days, we will have our representative at the corner of Orange street and Highland avenue, (where car turns), Sunday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock to show the property.

MEMBERS GATHERING FOR EXTRA SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE

No Agreement Yet on Definite Restricted Legislative Program.

Increase in Railroad Gross Earnings Tax Likely to Go Through.

State-Wide Primary Law, With Second Choice Provision, Probable.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The members of the legislature are gathering for the extra session slowly, and it will be tomorrow morning before all are here. This, together with the fact that many of the members are fearful and suspicious of some such move, has so far prevented anything like an agreement on a definite restricted legislative program. However, the desire to cut it short, to do something and yet get away promptly, is so widespread that in all probality some kind of an agreement will be made shortly after the legislature convenes.

It is unlikely that the work of the session will be confined to the three measures proposed by the governor—state-wide primaries, corrupt practices and reapportionment, and it is unlikely that it will go very far beyond that limit. An increase in railroad earnings taxes seem likely to go through. Tomorrow Representatives Rines and Mattson, who got through a bill at the regular session providing that railroad taxes shall be paid semi-annually and enlarging the scope of the gross earnings tax law so as to add about $400,000 a year to the revenues, will introduce an amendment to this measure increasing the tax rate from 4 per cent to 5.

State-Wide Primary.

Talk around the lobbies is largely about the state-wide primary. It is certain that such a law will be passed; almost as certain that it will include the second choice provision. Senator Harrett, chairman of the senate elections committee, read to his committee this morning a rough draft of a bill modelled after Wisconsin. It provides that if no candidate gets a majority of first choices, the low man shall be dropped and the second choices of those who voted for him credited where they

CRUSHED FRUIT BLOCKS STREET

Strawberries and Cherries Tie Up Traffic in Part of Chicago.

Chicago, June 3.—Crushed strawberries and cherries today prevented thousands of persons in Chicago from being on time for work.

A mammouth fruit jam, piled high in the street car tracks at the south approach to the Clark street bridge over the Chicago river, occupied exactly the right spot to bring to a standstill the operation of eight different lines of trolley cars. The heap of fruit and the hour or more of confusion resulting to traffic was the consequence of a collision between two heavily loaded commission wagons at one of the most crowded corners in the business district.

Most of the passengers in the scores of delayed street cars finally deserted the conveyances and trudged angrily to their places of toil.

ALL CLAIM LAST STATE

Day Before South Dakota Primaries Finds All Contestants Confident.

Senatorial Fight Second Only to Presidential in Interest.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 3.—The primary campaign in South Dakota will close this evening. Interest centers in the three-cornered contest for delegates to the Republican convention between Taft, Roosevelt and La Follette. The managers of the presidential candidates all issued statements today claiming the state. The Taft leaders claim to see victory in the division of the anti-Taft vote between Roosevelt and La Follette.

There has been a lively contest for Democratic delegates between the Clark and Wilson forces.

Fight Over Senatorship.

A four-cornered Republican fight for the nomination for United States senator has attracted much attention. The

WOULD BECOME THE GOVERNOR OF OHIO

JAMES M. COX.

Columbus, Ohio, June 3.—The leading candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Ohio is Congressman James M. Cox of Dayton. Ohio has been carried twice by Judson Harmon, and if Mr. Harmon should be the Democratic nominee for the presidency, the position of a Democratic candidate for governor would be unusually strong. Besides Mr. Cox has an enormous influence with the voters of Ohio. Mr. Cox is owner of the Dayton News and Springfield News.

TAFT GREETS THE GERMANS

Official Welcome Is Extended to the Visiting Warships.

Series of Entertainments for Them Begins at Fortress Monroe.

Fortress Monroe, Va., June 3.—President Taft's official welcome of the visiting German warships here today began a round of festivities and official functions that will end only when the squadron weighs anchor for home.

The kaiser's three big fighting machines that have come to the United States to return the American fleet's visit to Kiel last year, came up to Hampton Roads from Lynnhaven bay early this morning, escorted by the ships of Admiral Winslow's third division of the Atlantic fleet. Both squadrons roared out a 21-gun salute as the Mayflower steamed into the roads with President Taft and the German ambassador, Count von Bernstorff.

Early this morning the American ships slipped their cables and headed down the roads. The first streaks of

MURDER PLOT IS LAID IN PRISON

Secret Service Man and Judge in Danger From Counterfeiters.

New York, June 3.—Behind the bars of the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., several members of the Lupo-Morello gang of counterfeiters and murderers have hatched a plot to assassinate William J. Flynn, chief of the local division of the secret service, who ran the counterfeiters to bay, and Judge George W. Ray of the United States district court, who sentenced the coiners to terms of from fifteen to twenty years at hard labor.

One of the men told of the plot, which was hatched last December when two Sicilians who visited Ignazio Lupo, known as "The Wolf," were told to kill the secret service chief.

Even while the trial of this gang of counterfeiters was going on, Judge Ray received a threat of death at his home in Chenango county, in a letter which read:

"If Lupo, Morello and their companions are not liberated you will die like a dog. We have killed better men than you or Smith or Flynn."

The Smith referred to was Abel I. Smith, the assistant United States attorney who prosecuted the counterfeiters.

Chief Flynn said he knew that this gang, which knows who killed Detective Petrosino in Sicily, was seeking his life. Chief Flynn said the Lupo gang had decreed in Atlanta prison the death of certain Italians and that three of them had been killed.

Know Nothing of It.

Atlanta, Ga., June 3.—Officials at the federal penitentiary here today professed ignorance as to a plot by the Lupo-Morello gang of counterfeiters to get revenge on the men who brought about their imprisonment. Similar reports involving the same gang were reported some time ago.

Capture Town in Zacatecas After Hard Fight With Federals.

Chihuahua Has Only 106 of Its 2,000 Foreigners Left.

Washington, June 3.—The Mexican rebels have scored another victory south of Torreon. Reports to the state department today declared that after a hard fight the insurrectos captured the town of San Miguel del Mezquital, Zacatecas, just across the line from Durango.

Revolt Against Orozco.

Navojoa, Mex., June 3.—The people of the border of Western Chihuahua and Eastern Sonora have risen against Orozco. The people of Morris have taken Ocampo from the rebels, killing five and obtaining considerable arms and ammunition.

The federals were headed by Jose E. Hinojosa. The prefect at Morris wired here that the whole countryside is

McNAMARA BRIBE FUND LOOKED INTO

Franklin Is Expected to Tell More of Money He Handled.

Los Angeles, June 3.—Various sums of money received by Bert H. Franklin while engaged as a detective for the McNamara defense, were expected to be inquired into when the trial of Clarence S. Darrow, accused of jury bribing, was resumed this afternoon after a two-day recess.

Chief Counsel Earl Rogers began the cross-examination of Franklin late Friday afternoon and had questioned the witness as to several amounts received by him from McNamara defense attorneys when adjournment came.

It was stated today that the subpoenas for Job Harriman and Lecompte Davis were issued at the request of the district attorney about three weeks ago. Harriman had been in Chicago for several weeks, and through a strange coincidence he was present in court for the first time Friday, when Franklin brought his name into his story of the alleged bribery of George N. Lockwood. A few moments afterward he was served with a subpoena to appear as a witness for the state.

LOUISIANA DEMOCRATS WILL MEET TUESDAY.

Baton Rouge, La., June 3.—Delegates to the Louisiana Democratic state convention began gathering here today. Tomorrow six delegates at large and fourteen district delegates to the national convention at Baltimore will be named. Both Clark and Wilson forces have opened headquarters and a lively fight for the instruction of the Louisiana delegation is promised.

TAFT FORCES DETERMINED

Abbot Says They Propose to Prevent Nomination of Roosevelt.

Intend to Throw Out Roosevelt Delegates in Every Contest.

(By Willis J. Abbot.)

Washington, June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—It may be said without the slightest qualification that the Taft forces will not permit the nomination of Col. Roosevelt at Chicago. They have control of the national committee with all that implies. They will make up the temporary roll of the convention which in turn will select the all important committee on credentials. Their program is complete, and the selection of Senator Root as temporary chairman is as certain as anything political can be. The one point about which they worry is the function of Victor Rosewater, who as temporary chairman of the national committee will call the convention to order. No doubt is felt of Mr. Rosewater's loyalty to Taft, but his appearance is not impressive, his voice lacks volume and carrying capacity. The Taft people

FIGHT THE POLICE IN CHURCH YARD

Mill Strikers at Clinton, Mass., Defend Man Who Annoyed Woman.

Clinton, Mass., June 3.—One man was wounded by a bullet from a policeman's revolver during a fight between a number of officers and striking Lancaster mill weavers today.

It is alleged that a Greek striker interfered with a woman on her way to work in the mill. The woman's screams brought a policeman to her assistance, but the officer was roughly handled by a crowd of strikers, and a squad of police was rushed to the scene. The strikers took up a position on the top of a slope in the yard of the Church of Our Lady of the Rosary, and from it maintained a continuous bombardment with bricks and stones, during which many of the officers were painfully hurt.

The officers charged up the hill twice, but each time were driven back. Finally the police drew their revolvers and fired a volley into the air, but this demonstration did not appear to alarm the strikers.

Then the officers leveled their weapons at the strikers and charged up the hill a third time, a few shots being fired on the way. One shot wounded a Greek weaver in the leg. The disturbers were dispersed.

Seven persons, including two women, were wounded during the battle. Three of the injured strikers were taken to a hospital. No arrests had been made up to noon.

RUNAWAY LOCOMOTIVE SMASHES INTO TRAIN.

Raleigh, N. C., June 3.—A runaway locomotive, which stole out of the station here during the night, ran eight miles northward and crashed into a southbound Seaboard Air line passenger train, bound from New York to New Orleans, instantly killing Engineer W. E. Kirkwood.

The passenger train was running slowly upgrade when the wild engine dashed into it. Both locomotives were demolished and the baggage car was telescoped. The fireman saved his life by jumping.

OHIO FIGHT UNDER WAY

Senator Burton Will Make Speech as Temporary Chairman.

Election of State Republican Ticket May Go Over Until Later.

Columbus, O., June 3.—Special trains and traction cars this morning began pouring delegates and politicians into Columbus, while delegates and officials already on the ground were busy making the final preperations for the opening of the Republican state convention at 4 o'clock this afternoon at Memorial hall.

Numerous conferences were in progress during the morning between the Taft and Roosevelt managers and the various delegates. Each of the twenty-one district delegations will begin active work at 2:30 this afternoon, when they will meet in the various offices in the state house to select one member for each of the following committees: Credentials, rules, permanent organization, resolutions, and the state central committee. Chairman Walter F. Brown of the state central committee, the Roosevel manager, will open the convention at 4

LONDON HAS OVER 110,000 ON STRIKE

Some of the Idle Families Are Threatened With Starvation.

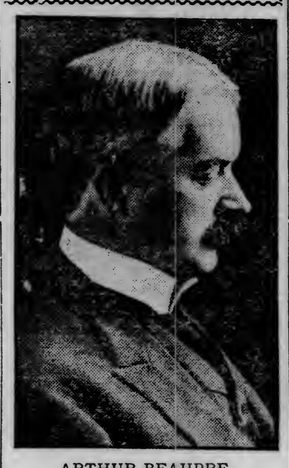

London, June 3.—It was estimated that 110,000 men were idle today along the Thames and Medway rivers. These include dockers, carmen, seamen, firemen and members of the builders' trade. This is a considerable increase, as many union men joined their striking comrades during the week-end.

On the other hand, however, there were more men working than on Saturday. The Sailors' and Firemen's union had not less than 600 men busy to see that members of the union arriving on incoming steamers immediately went out. In some cases applicants for work have been roughly treated by these pickets.

The position of the dockers is becoming very serious. Pawnbrokers are refusing to accept further pledges, and unless the strike is speedily ended it will mean semi-starvation for many residents of the riverside.

ARTHUR BEAUPRE.

Washington, June 3.—Arthur Beaupre, minister of the United States at Havana, is in charge of the interests of the United States in the Cuban crisis. This means the necessity of protecting the $25,000,000 worth of property which citizens of the United States own in Cuba. The state department will depend on Mr. Beaupre to tell whether the United States should intervene in the island.

CUBANS ARE RESTLESS

Conditions About Daiquiri Better, But Elsewhere They Are Ominous.

Consul at Cienfuegos Reports Contrary to Government Claims.

Washington, June 3.—A distinct improvement in the conditions in the neighborhood of Daiquiri, Cuba, is reported to the state department today from the New York headquarters of the iron company whose plant was threatened by the insurrectos.

The state department, however, has no advices of its own. The fact that the gunboat Paducah, which was expected to sail from Daiquiri Sunday morning for Santiago to look into a threatening situation at El Cobra, where there are large American interests, has not yet quit Daiquiri, is regarded as an indication that Commander Mitchell does not believe condi-

MAY MAKE NOISE BUT THAT IS ALL

Forthcoming Fight at Democratic Convention Dwindles on Inspection.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The forthcoming fight at the Democratic state convention decreases in formidability on closer inspection. It will happen, but apparently there is about enough substance to it to make a noise, and nowhere near enough to register any other results. Dan Lawler will lead the fight against Fred B. Lynch for national committeeman, and it is understood will make a personal attack on the floor, charging Mr. Lynch with responsibility for what he will call the rape of the party in 1910, meaning its control by county option forces, and that he will support T. T. Hudson of Duluth for national committeeman.

WOMEN WILL FIGHT SUFFRAGE

Opponents of Ballot for Sex Are Organizing Their Opposition.

La Crosse, Wis., June 3.—Women of Wisconsin have organized to fight the woman suffrage movement in this state. Clubs will be organized in Madison, Eau Claire, Oshkosh and La Crosse to institute an aggressive campaign to defeat the suffrage referendum law to be voted upon next November. Opponents of the proposed law will raise funds to help defeat the measure.

"Develop Your Country," Is President Pennington's Advice to Duluth.

Tells of City's Prospects Between Strokes of Golf Club.

New Line to Twin Cities Will Be Ready June 15.

Between strokes with his trusty golf club today at the Northland Country club, Edmund Pennington, president of the Soo line and one of the best friends that Duluth has ever had, expressed a fervent belief in the future greatness in the city which this evening is to honor him with a banquet.

Mr. Pennington was dressed in knickers, a soft shirt and Scotch cap. He was enjoying himself, even though W. L. Martin and George R. Huntington, vice president and traffic manager, and general maanger respectively of the Soo, were at times having somewhat the better of the game of golf that they were playing against Mr. Pennington and W. W. Walker, vice president and general manager of the South Shore.

"Walker's road is smaller than mine," remarked President Pennington, "and he has had more leisure time to learn the game more thoroughly than I."

"I selected you as partner," retorted Mr. Walker, "because I knew that those fellows would not dare to show you up."

Before leaving the clubhouse for the second game of golf, and while going over the course, Mr. Pennington found ample time to tell what he thinks of Duluth:

"Develop the country round about you; God made the country and man will eventually make the city," remarked Mr. Pennington, when he was asked for an expression of his opinion of what would be the greatest asset in the growth of Duluth.

"Millions of bushels of wheat may go through here, and there are also thousands of tons of ore going through, but you want factories here, something that will employ men—something that

WOMAN 80 YEARS OLD INCENDIARY

Wisconsin Officials Seek Punishment Other Than Imprisonment.

Madison, Wis., June 3.—What punishment shall be meted to an aged woman, who by her own confession deliberately set her house afire to get the insurance? This question is puzzling the state fire marshal's department, which has a case of this kind to handle.

State Fire Marshal T. M. Purtell and Deputy John F. Baker, which the department's legal adviser, secured a confession at Plainfield, Wis., from Mrs. Carolina Moore, 80 years old, who they claim admitted burning her home to get the insurance of $1,400. It is said the house was worth only about $600.

Arson is a crime punishable by a state prison sentence. To send an 80-year-old woman to prison is a contingency the officials hate to think about.

VANGUARD OF G.O.P. ON HAND

Cohorts Are Arriving for the Party Convention at Chicago.

Two Hundred and Thirty Contests Filed With the Committee.

Chicago, June 3.—The vanguard of the political hosts who are to make Chicago their camping ground until the nomination of a Republican candidate, arrived today and hotel corridors and Republican national headquarters were thronged with the skirmish line. Joseph B. Kealing of Indiana opened the Taft headquarters in readiness for the arrival of Congressman William B. McKinley, the head of the Taft forces, who is expected before night.

Ormsby McHarg, who is to represent the Roosevelt men in the contested delegations, also arrived with briefs to be submitted to the committee.

TAFT PARDONS WILLARD JONES

Improper Methods in Trial of Land Fraud Case Alleged.

Washington, June 3.—President Taft today granted an unconditional pardon to Willard N. Jones of Portland, Or., convicted of land frauds in the famous cases in which the late Senator Mitchell of Oregon and Binger Hermann, former commissioner of the general land office, were alleged to have been implicated.

The pardon was based on the ground that improper methods had been pursued in filling the jury box from which the Jones jury was drawn.

SOO DRAFT INCREASED

Lake Vessels Are Able to Load to Greater Depth.

Completion of Grassy Point Bridge Will Prevent Many Delays.

For the third time in two weeks the draft at the Soo locks is increased and ships going through the canal can now carry bigger cargoes.

The last increase in the draft was announced this morning in a letter received by the Pittsburg Steamship company. The water at the Soo is reported 2 inches deeper than when the last recommended draft was announced. The Poe lock, can now take ships loaded to 18 feet 4 inches. The Canadian lock will now be able to safely take ships, upbound, loaded to 18 feet 3 inches of water, and 18 feet 8 inches of water, downbound.

The letter received at the local tug offices this morning is as follows: "Recommended draft Poe lock 18 feet 4 inches." This means that boats, which carried 6,200 tons of cargo at the opening of the navigation, can now carry nearly 800 tons more. The rise will be welcomed by the larger steamship companies, which were compelled to decrease their cargoes because of the low water.

Bridge Nearly Finished.

The Grassy Point bridge is rapidly being completed. The large steel girders are already in place, and that the remainder of the work is but a matter of a few weeks. As soon as the bridge is finished, the Northern Pacific railroad will run its cars over it, instead of using the Rice's point bridge on Garfield avenue. In this way many of the delays in navigation will be removed.

Lake traffic at Ashtabula harbor took a decided brace during the month of May, according to the monthly report received here this morning. The ore receipts were 919,800 tons against 669,014 tons of the some month last year. During the month 402,665 tons of coal were received.

May Ship Ore This Year.

Barrows, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ledge was struck at a depth of 125 feet in the No. 2 shaft of the M. A. Hanna company's Barrows mine and the event was appropriately celebrated in the evening by a Dutch lunch at which Capt. Mathews and Surface Foreman George Parmalee were the hosts. Invited guests from Brainerd were present at the function. With one shaft to the ore body it will now be but a short time until the company commences hoisting ore to the surface and probably shipping this year.

BUSY DAYS IN HARBOR

Ore and Lumber Shipments Keep the Lake Freighters Busy.

Big List of Arrivals Reported During Last Forty-Eight Hours.

Every boat that left the Duluth harbor yesterday was an ore boat, with the exception of the John Lambert and North Lake, the former with grain and the latter, merchandise. This morning three of the four boats that left the harbor were ore boats.

The following ore boats left yesterday: Samuel Morse, W. G. Pollock, Roman, W. W. Brown, W. J. Filbert, J. S. Ashley, Robert Fulton, Dinkey, Benjamin Noble, Polynesia, D. R. Hanna, Sellwood, W. E. Reiss, Tomlinson, Berry, Jones and Truesdale. This morning the E. C. Pope, St. Clair and the Norway left with heavy ore cargoes. The only other departure this morning was the Myron with coal for Knife River.

An exceptionally large number of boats arrived in the local harbor yesterday. Of this number the Gettysburg, Melbourne, and Allegheny are light for lumber; the barge F. W. Mitchell with oil; the Hartwell, G. M. Shaw, A. M. Beyers, H. W. Oliver, Denmark and J. W. Moore, coal; the Kammistiquia, F. B. Wells and Superior, grain; and the Kotcher, A. B. Wolvin, P. A. B. Widener, B. F. Berry, Tomlinson, H. C. Frick, W. H. Wolf, Capt. Wilson, E. C. Pope, S. Parks and J. C. Dunham. The Myron and Page arrived light for freight and the Reddington with a large cargo of lime. This morning William P. Snyder, Hemlock and Constitution arrived for coal; A. Stearns and Berwind for ore; and G. Holland, P. J. Ralph and Connelly Bros., light for lumber.

It is estimated that the fifty cargoes of lumber that were loaded and left the harbor on the twenty-four days between May 8 and June 1 represent nearly 40,000,000 feet. The first boat to clear the harbor with a load of lumber was the Edward Smith, on May 8. From present prospects the lumber carriers will be quite active during the entire navigation season. There is a good demand for lumber and the boats in that trade will be well employed.

During the twenty-four days of the season in May the following boats departed from Duluth with lumber cargoes:

Edward Smith, Mohegan, Mingoe, Zillah, Peshtigo, Miztec, C. H. Bradley, Brightie, Helen C. Hines, Ashland, Myron, Page, Reddington, Holland, Cahoon, Gettysburg, Sweetheart, Melbourne, Ralph, Harold Follette, Holland, Mills Anderson, Pentland, Neff, Langell, Arenac, Moore, Niko, Case, Argo, Sawyer, Barth, Norris, Kalkaska, Aztec, Delaware, Goshawk, Vail, Cherokee, Fassett, Boyce, Gould, Gramplan and Stafford.

ASPHYXIATED IN BANANA CELLAR

Appleton Commission Man Found Dead By His Son.

Appleton, Wis., June 3.—Max Shapiro, manager of a local commission firm, was found dead by his son in the banana cellar last night, according to a report of the coroner today. Some mystery surrounds the case. Shapiro was found leaning against the door of an air-tight chamber, dead, and the gas turned on. He died of asphyxiation. It is not known whether the case is one of suicide.

BIG CROOKSTON CLASS.

Fifty-Three to Receive High School Diplomas.

Crookston, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.) — This week will be a very busy one for the students of Crookston. Last evening the baccalaureate sermon was preached in the M. E. church by Rev. W. C. Hodgson, and class night exercises will be held this evening, at the Grand opera house. Tuesday evening the regular commencement exercises will be held at the Grand opera house when a class of fifty-three, the largest in the history of the high school, will receive their diplomas.

Wednesday evening the first commencement exercises will be held in the Grand opera house by the students of the Cathedral high school. There are no graduates this year, but a very elaborate program will be given, including an address by Rt. Rev. Bishop Timothy Corbett. Thursday evening at the opera house will be the annual program given by the pupils of St. Cecelias studio, which is one of the leading musical events of the year in Crookston.

WOMAN HELD ON LARCENY CHARGE.

Viola Brooks, accused of stealing $16 from John Craig, an employe of the Canadian Northern Railroad company, will have an examination in municipal court on June 6.

The Brooks woman, colored, demanded an examination. She is accused of taking the money while drinking with Craig at the saloon kept by Ole Olssen on St. Croix avenue.

She was arrested by Detectives Schulte and Irvine. The detectives found a pocketbook in her possession which Craig identified as his property. In it was found $6.75.

The Brooks woman denies the fact that she was in the saloon in spite of the fact that Craig identifies her as the woman with whom he was drinking.

She is charged with first degree grand larceny.

SUPERIOR PRIEST TO ADDRESS GRADUATES.

Brainerd, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—St. Francis parochial school will hold its commencement exercises on Tuesday evening, June 4, at the Grand theater. The class of 1912 includes seventeen graduates. Rev. P. J. O'Mahoney of Superior will deliver the address.

Crozier Fools Friends.

Fargo, N. D., June 3.—Harold T. Crozier, one of the well known newspaper men of the city, was married on Wednesday evening at the First M. E. parsonage of Ninth street south to Miss Carol Prefect of St. Paul. Mr. Crozier has kept the news of his marriage from his friends and it was not until Friday that the fact of his wedding on Wednesday evening became generally known.

HOLD SERVICES OUT OF DOORS

First of Season's Open Air Meetings at Cloquet Sunday.

Cloquet, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first open air religious service of the summer was held Sunday afternoon in the pavilion at Pinehurst park.

It was in charge of the Ministerial association and the following program was carried out: Rev. C. O. Swenson presiding, hymn, "The New America"; hymn, "Stand Up For Jesus"; scripture reading and prayer, Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh; musical selection, Methodist choir; hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name"; address in Swedish, Rev. Karl Akerman; vocal solo, Miss Bertha Guerin; address in English, Rev. C. W. Lowrie; hymn, "America"; benediction, Rev. Carl Berstein.

BOYS RESCUE UNKNOWN MAN

An unknown man offered Harold Haley, James Barrett and Frank Kelly a "treat" after they had rescued him at the mouth of the ship canal, where his canoe had overturned in a sudden squall yesterday afternoon.

The man was evidently not an expert canoeist and when the squall came up suddenly it overturned the canoe. The man was floundering in the water when the boys came along with a launch, picked him up and took him to the Boat club.

Harold Haley is but 16 years old and the other boys are about the same age. Young Haley is a son of J. J. Haley.

IN PROBATE COURT

In probate court this morning, Judge Gilpin appointed administrators in five estates, the main assets of which are claims for wrongful deaths.

As a matter of law, it is necessary that all personal injury suits for wrongful deaths be brought by the administrator of the estate.

Matt Kivioja, a brother, was appointed administrator of the estate of John Kivioja; a brother was appointed in the case of Mile Gej; a brother in the case of Carmeno Verticchio of Eveleth, and L. Bogligevitch was appointed for the estate of Mike Loilch.

The estates of two West Duluth men, Levy Beemer and Angus Gillis, were closed this morning, when a hearing on final accounts was held. Beemer left a small estate, willing it all to his wife. The estate of Gillis consisted of two lots in West Duluth, which will go to three children.

To facilitate matters in the handling of the cases in probate court, Judge Gilpin has decided upon a new arrangement of his work which will probably meet with aproval of the attorneys. Hereafter all hearings on claims against estates will be held on Tuesday. Guardianship matters will be heard on Wednesday. Other probate matters will be on the calendar for Monday.

RAILROADS

NORTHWESTERN TO USE N. P. TRACKS?

Rumor at Crookston of Proposed Arrangement for Winnipeg Airline.

Crookston, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.) — There are strong evidences that a rumor to the effect that the arrangment whereby the Northwestern is to use the Northern Pacific tracks via Crookston for an air line to Winnipeg is to mean much for Crookston, in that this city is to be made a division point, with indications that shops will be located here. The Northern Pacific has just purchased a sixty-acre tract north of the city along their rights-of-way and has options on a large amount of residence property along the right-of-way through the city, indicating it will double track through Crookston at least the present summer.

There have been rumors to this effect, one coming direct from an official of the Northern Pacific, and it is understood that the road will expend inencement exercises will be held at the Grand opera house when a class of fifty-three, the largest in the history of the high school, will receive their diplomas.

Wednesday evening the first commencement exercises will be held in the Grand opera house by the students of the Cathedral high school. There are no graduates this year, but a very elaborate program will be given, including an address by Rt. Rev. Bishop Timothy Corbett. Thursday evening at the opera house will be the annual program given by the pupils of St. Cecelias studio, which is one of the leading musical events of the year in Crookston.

RAILROAD FARES IN WISCONSIN INCREASED.

Madison, Wis., June 3.—Nothing but an act of the legislature can stop the railroad companies of Wisconsin from charging for a fraction of a mile as if it were a full mile. This is the opinion of John H. Roemer, chairman of the Wisconsin state railroad commission, expressed in a letter to Emil L. Fuhrmann of Milwaukee, who asked the commission to take official cognizance of the matter of increased fares.

On May 15 the railroads in Wisconsin began to charge for fractions of miles at the same rate as full miles.

RAILWAY CLERKS ARE IN SESSION AT BOSTON.

Boston, Mass., June 3. — With an attendance of nearly 200 delegates from all parts of the United States, Mexico and Canada, the third biennial convention of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks opened here today. A membership of 50,000 railway clerks is represented, and the convention will remain in session for a week.

Tonight a banquet will be tendered the delegates and there will be addresses by Governor Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald and others. Tuesday night the delegates will have a mass meeting with Lieutenant Governor Luce as the principal speaker. The election of officers takes place Friday.

ANOTHER PROMOTION FROM FARGO DIVISION.

Fargo, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.) — The third promotion from this division has been made by the Northern Pacific in the transfer of O. B. Johnson to Livingston, Mont. This is the third promotion in two years from this point.

TOWNSEND AND DERR MOVE UP ON C. G. W.

Chicago, June 3.—Announcement of the appointment of Oscar Townsend as general freight agent and W. L. Derr as superintendent of the Western division of the Chicago Great Western Railroad company was made today at the general offices of the company. Mr. Townsend will have headquarters in Chicago and Mr. Derr will be stationed at Clarion, Iowa.

CLOQUET MILLINER WEDS.

Visits Old Sweetheart in Illinois and Becomes His Wife.

Cloquet, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Benoit will leave this week for Mr. Benoit's home in Bourbonnais, Ill.; Mrs. Benoit was Mrs. Zoe Lavole, and sprung a great surprise on friends in Cloquet when she returned a few days ago from what was supposed to be a visit to relatives in Illinois, but what was in reality a trip to the hymenial altar. She was married to Hubert Benoit on May 23, at Kankakee, Ill., by Rev. Father Dugas. Mrs. Benoit has lived in Cloquet since childhood and is well known and has a host of friends. For two years she has conducted a millinery store and her business interests are being disposed of preparatory to her removal to Illinois. The groom is said to be an old sweetheart of her girlhood.

Big Fargo Church Convention.

Fargo, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The United Norwegian Lutherans are preparing for the biggest convention in the history of their organization, beginning Thursday and continuing eight days, in the Sunday tabernacle. The head of the church is coming from Norway to be in attendance, and leading ministers and delegates from all parts of the United States are to be present. It is expected that the average attendance will be 2,500.

Given Only $100.

Fargo, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—One hundred dollars was the amount awarded by the jury in a case in the United States court to Attorney H. G. Whitmore of Minneapolis. He sued the Fargo Forum for $20,000 damages because of the publication of an article in connection with the Dakota Dan Russell case.

25-CENT CAMPAIGN IN OHIO IS FAILURE.

Sandusky, Ohio, June 3.—Defeated for re-election as a member of the Republican county central committee, Sergeant Charles Campbell of the soldiers and sailors' home filed the following statement of his campaign expenses:

"To four glasses of beer at 5 cents each, 20 cents.

"To one glass of beer for a fellow who said he carried the precinct in his pocket, although the returns prove that he was mistaken, 5 cents.

"Total, 25 cents.

"That's all."

REPUBLICANS IN ARIZONA SPLIT UP.

Tucson, Ariz., June 3.—Taft and Roosevelt delegates held state conventions in the same hall and each elected six delegates to the Chicago convention.

Cloquet Man Buried.

Cloquet, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The remains of Joseph Kotka were interred this afternoon in the local cemetery. Mr. Kotka died Wednesday night after a brief illness, having visited Duluth and apparently been in the best of health the day previous to that of his death. He conducted a store on Eleventh street. A wife and five children survive him.

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION —OF THE— DYSLAND SUGAR COMPANY.

We, the undersigned, for the purpose of forming a corporation under and pursuant to the provisions of Chapter fifty-eight (58), Revised Laws of Minnesota for 1905, and any amendments thereof, do hereby associate ourselves as a body corporate, and do hereby adopt the following Certificate of Incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of this corporation shall be DYSLAND SUGAR COMPANY. The general nature of its business shall be solely to raise and improve live stock, cultivate and improve agricultural and horticultural lands in any part of the world, and to purchase, lease or otherwise acquire lands for this purpose, and do all other things necessary for raising, harvesting and marketing their crops to the best advantage. The principal place of transacting the business of this corporation shall be in the city of Duluth, County of Saint Louis, Minnesota.

ARTICLE II.

The time for the commencement of this corporation shall be June 4th, 1912, and the period of its duration shall be thirty years.

ARTICLE III.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming this corporation are A. J. Dysland, C. B. Dysland and Arthur C. Ringsred, all of Duluth, Minnesota.

ARTICLE IV.

The management of this corporation shall be vested in a Board of Directors, composed of not less than three and not more than five members. The names and addresses of the first Board of Directors are A. J. Dysland, C. B. Dysland and Arthur C. Ringsred, all of Duluth, Minn. The first officers of this corporation shall be: President, A. J. Dysland; Vice President, Arthur C. Ringsred; Secretary, C. B. Dysland, and Treasurer, A. J. Dysland. All of the above named officers and directors shall hold their respective offices aforesaid until the next annual meeting of the corporation to be held July 16th, 1912, at which time, and annually thereafter, a Board of Directors shall be elected from and by the stockholders of this corporation. The annual meeting of this corporation shall be held at its principal place of business on the third Tuesday in July in each year. Immediately after the election of directors, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the directors shall meet and elect from their number a President and Vice President, and from their number or from the stockholders a Secretary and a Treasurer. Any office except that of President and Vice President may be held by one person. The directors and officers of this corporation shall hold their respective offices until their successors have been duly elected and entered upon the discharge of their duties. The first meeting of the stockholders and of the board of directors shall be held at Duluth, Minnesota, on the fourth day of June, 1912, at 10 and 11 o'clock respectively.

ARTICLE V.

The amount of capital stock of this corporation shall be Twenty-five Thousand Dollars ($25,000), which shall be paid in, in money or property, or both, in such manner, at such times, and in such amounts as the Board of Directors shall order. The capital stock shall be divided into two hundred fifty (250) shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100) each.

ARTICLE VI.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000).

DEMOCRATS ARE COMING

City Expects to Entertain 1,000 Political Leaders This Week.

Will Probably Be Last State Convention Held in Minnesota.

About 2,000 Democrats from all parts of the state are expected to be in Duluth for the Democratic state convention to be held at the Auditorium Thursday of this week.

On account of the preponderance of Wilson sentiment in Minnesota the convention here will not be as exciting as most political conventions, but there will be sufficient difference of opinion, notably over the question of applying the unit rule and over the indorsement of a candidate for national committeeman, to prevent the gathering becoming entirely a love feast.

Delegates will begin to arrive in the city Wednesday. The convention will instruct the Minnesota delegation to the national convention at Baltimore for Wilson, but the personnel of the delegation is still a matter of doubt. Six delegates at large and eighteen district delegates will be elected. The Democrats of Minnesota hold no district conventions, the district delegates being chosen by the delegates to the state convention in caucus, the choice being later ratified by the state convention. In only one district is there an agreement as to the delegates and that is the Fourth district, which went for Clark at the primaries. Otto Bremer and R. T. O'Connor will be the delegates from that district. In every other district in the state several candidates are in the field for the two places on the Baltimore delegation. In the Eighth district, Judge Alfred Jaques is certain to be one of the delegates, but the other delegate is in doubt. J. B. Galarneault of Aitkin seems to be the favorite, but the preference of the counties outside of St. Louis cannot be accurately gauged.

Harry W. Grimmer of St. Cloud, secretary of the Democratic state central committee, will arrive in Duluth Wednesday and will open his headquarters at the Lenox hotel. He will be there Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning to receive credentials and to issue badges to the delegates.

The railroads of Minnesota have made a rate of a fare and one-third to Duluth for the convention and many visitors are expected to come to the city, in addition to the delegates. The convention is the first to be held in Duluth by the Democrats since 1904 and it has greater significance through the fact that it will probably be the last convention held in the state of Minnesota. The state legislature is expected to pass a primary law at the extra session, which will do away with the necessity for conventions. Four years from now it is expected, a presidential preference primary law will also be in effect.

DEMOCRATS PRUNE BILL

Slash Panama Canal Fund and Public Building Estimate.

Cut Off Tariff Board and Waterway Commission Entirely.

Washington, June 3.—Provision for President Taft's tariff board was eliminated in the sundry civil appropriation bill as reported to the house today. The annual appropriation of $25,000 for the president's traveling expenses was allowed, but the total appropriation was cut to a little more than $109,000,000, making heavy reduction in provisions for the Panama canal, public buildings and other products.

Extravagance was charged in the building of the Panama canal and the committee allowed there only $28,780,000, a reduction from the estimate of $16,780,000, and also made a reduction of $193,050 on the appropriation for fortifications.

Appropriations for public buildings were cut from approximately $21,500,000 to $8,053,517.

The president's traveling expenses were allowed only after a bitter fight, in which a sufficient number of Democrats joined the Republican members to insure the appropriation's remaining in the bill. The committee allowed $4,000 for a portrait of the president, and voted $75,000 to continue his "economy board," which is inquiring into the business methods of the government. It refused, however, to appropriate $20,000 for continuance of the international waterways commission.

PREPARING FOR GUESTS

W. R. Callaway Getting Hotel Reservations for Several Hundred Rotarians.

W. R. Callaway, general passenger agent of the Soo Line, arrived in Duluth this morning with a very distinguished party of Soo officials, and a burning eagerness to tie up hotel accommodations for several hundred Rotarians.

"We are going to bring several hundred Rotarians here for the national convention of Rotary clubs in August," said Mr. Callaway, "and I want to get hotel accommodations booked for them. There seems to be plenty of room now, but there won't be in August. You need a big summer hotel here in Duluth. We'll be sending enough fishermen through here in a year or two to keep one busy. When they learn what kind of fishing country lies along the Soo Line, they'll be holding the National Liars' convention here in Duluth, and if all the members come there won't be many people left at home but railroad men and newspaper men."

KNOCKS OUT THE EIGHT-HOUR PLAN

Senate Committee Makes Changes in House Naval Bill.

Washington, June 3.—In addition to providing for four battleships, the senate committee today amended the naval bill so that it provides for eight submarine torpedo boats instead of the four voted by the house; retains the house provision for six torpedo boat destroyers, two fuel ships, one to be built in a Pacific coast navy yard; a tender to destroyers and a submarine tender.

The committee struck out the house eight-hour restriction on government contract work; adopted an amendment incorporating the Hobson plan for creation of a national council for defense; and provided the grades of admiral and vice admiral for the commanders-in-chief and second officers in command in the Atlantic and Pacific fleets, while they held such commands.

The committee fixes the term of all enlisted men of the navy at four years, with provision for voluntary extension of service; authorizes the secretary to buy war material abroad in an emergency, and provides for the $1,000,000 round-the-world wireless system which the house threw out of the bill.

ULTIMATUM IS SENT TO SENATE

House Committee Says Reciprocity Shall Not Be Repealed.

Washington, June 3.—The house ways and means committee returned to the senate the metal tariff revision bill, with an ultimatum that the house would refuse to agree to the amendmen repealing the Canadian reciprocity act, even though it agreed to every other change. Members of the committee declared a deadlock was imminent if the senate refused to recede.

MRS. A. S. McDONALD PASSES AWAY

Mrs. A. S. McDonald, 31 years old, wife of A. S. McDonald, 2731 West Third street, manager for the Zenith Dredge company, died at her home at 7 oclock this morning after a short illness. She is survived by three daughters, besides her husband. Her father, Edward Stevenson, five brothers and sisters also survive her. The funeral arrangements will be made some time this afternoon.

STREET RAILWAY MEN CONFER WITH EMPLOYERS

Settlement of the difficulties between the Duluth Street Railway company and its employes may be effected this afternoon.

General Manager Herbert Warren is meeting with the committee chosen by the men this afternoon. The meeting began at 3 o'clock, and the differences between the men and the company will be thoroughly discussed. It is believed that an amicable settlement will be effected.

DETECTIVE IS PUT ON TRIAL

Faces Charge of Conspiracy to Discredit Testimony of Witness.

C. F. Richardson, a private detective of this city, is on trial this afternoon before Judge Dancer and a jury in district court charged with having "framed up" a deal against Hugh McKinnon in which McKinnon was induced to steal merchandise from the Soo freight sheds.

Richardson was indicted jointly with L. A. Cunningham, special agent for the Soo railroad. The charge against them is grand larceny, second degree. Cunningham is not involved in this trial.

McKinnon was convicted at last term of court for burglarizing the Soo freight sheds and stealing several tubs of butter. He claims that after his conviction he learned that the men who had helped him do the job and who, in fact, had done the actual planning, were detectives employed by the railroad company.

McKinnon, the state claims, was at the time of his arrest a prospective witness in a personal injury suit which was brought against the Soo railroad. The case was brought to trial and McKinnon testified. It was brought out at the trial that he had been convicted and the claim of the state is that the deal was framed up against McKinnon for the purpose of discrediting his testimony.

LONG TRAMP TO VISIT SICK MAN

W. T. Bailey, the lumberman, took a tramp of sixteen miles over rough country from Captogoma lake on the Canadian border to the nearest railway station in order to get the train for Duluth that he might see a very sick friend, who longed for a visit from him.

This friend is Capt. Harry Roberts, the well known Duluth mining man, who has been dangerously ill. Mr. Bailey arrived in Duluth yesterday and it was reported that his call on the captain did the latter more good than any doctor's prescription could have done.

Mr. Bailey was superintending a drive of logs at Captogoma lake when he learned of his friends serious illness and desire to see him. He was told of this by his son, R. R. Bailey, who traveled all the way from Virginia, Minn., to Captogoma lake, going part of the way by train, part by canoe and walking sixteen miles for the purpose of carrying the message to his father. Thus the son walked the sixteen miles twice in one day and the father walked it once.

Mr. Bailey, Sr., will remain in Duluth until the arrival of his wife and daughter, Rebecca, who are expected from New York tomorrow. The mother and daughter have been making a tour of the world.

SUPERIOR

Spectators in Danger.

Scores of spectators watching the burning of the coal chutes in the Great Northern's yards at Belknap street yesterday noon, narrowly escaped serious injury when a loaded coal car, which was standing on the elevated incline track, broke away and dashed to the ground. The people got out of the way of the car, which rushed down the track on which the onlookers were standing. The estimated fire loss is $6,000.

Superior Elks Win.

In a seven-inning game at Hislop park yesterday afternoon, the Superior Elks' baseball team defeated their Duluth brothers by the score of 11 to 8. Girard of Duluth made the hit of the afternoon with his three-bagger in the fifth inning when the bases were full.

Suffrage Club.

Dr. D. H. Day of Duluth will be the principal speaker tomorrow evening at a meeting of the Douglas County Suffrage club to be held at the library assembly room. Several other prominent speakers have been secured for the evening.

Discuss County Fair.

The County Development association will meet at the Commercial club this evening to decide whether the plans already made for a county fair will be abandoned. The session is for the members only.

WOULD IMPEACH SEATTLE JUDGE

Victor Berger Attacks Action in Deprivation of Citizenship Case.

Washington, June 3.—Representative Berger of Wisconsin, the only Socialist in congress, today lodged a protest with Attorney General Wickersham against the action of Judge Hanford in Seattle, in depriving John Olson of his citizenship right because the latter wanted to "change the Constitution." Berger declared he would take the matter up to the president if the attorney general declined to act.

Later in the house, Representative Berger let it be known he had filed affidavits with Attorney General Wickersham which he would make the basis of an attempt at impeachment proceedings against Judge Hanford, unless the department of justice acted promptly.

POPULAR CONCERT.

Second Entertainment in Series By the Bradbury Concert Orchestra.

A program which delighted the audience at the popular concert last evening at the Orpheum theater was played by the Bradbury Concert orchestra assisted by Miss Wally Heymar, violinist and Mrs. Alphin Haaten, soprano.

Thoroughly enjoyable in every number, the concert was a decided artistic success. The orchestra numbers were finely interpreted under the direction of Fred G. Bradbury, who is a musician of high standing and his ability as a director was amply displayed.

Miss Heymar is so thoroughly artistic that every number which she plays is always received with the greatest enthusiasm. Mrs. Haaten, too, charmed the audience with her vocal numbers, responding to an encore with a pretty little ballad.

SEE CONDITIONS OF THE INDIANS

Lindbergh Presents Resolution for Action By the House.

(From The Herald Washington Bureau.)

Washington, June 3.—An investigation of the personal condition and property rights of the White Oak Point Chippewas is authorized in a resolution presented today by Representative Lindbergh. The investigation is to be made by three members of the house committee on Indian affairs, who are directed "to go to Minnesota and examine the conditions there and inquire in particular into and investigate the conditions and the property rights of the White Oak Point band of Chippewa Indians."

The report of the committee is to be submitted at the next session of congress.

CONFLAGRATION IN CONSTANTINOPLE

Great Area in Stambul Is Devastated By the Flames.

Constantinople, June 3.—Fire today devastated a great area of Stambul, in the vicinity of Akhir Kapusi (the stable gate). Enormous damage was done.

Stambul is the Mohammedan part of the Turkish capital and covers the whole area enclosed by the Theodosian walls of the city. It contains the Seraglio, the principal mosques, mausoleums of the sultans, the baths, the public offices of the government and the existing remains of ancient Constantinople. Akhir Kapusi leads to the former site of the sultan's stables.

INFORMATION BUREAU AT CLUB

Commercial Club to Maintain Department for Guidance of Visitor.

The information bureau of the Commercial club will be located this year on the ground floor of the Commercial club building with the traffic commission and the agricultural department.

Arrangements are now being made for opening the information bureau. An effort will be made to get a list of all the rooms in the city open to the use of transients. A stock of Duluth literature will be kept for distribution and a clerk will be on hand at all times to give visitors any desired information about the city.

OBITUARY

Oliver C. Davis, of counsel for the International Harvester company, former campaign manager for W. J. Bryan and with business connections in Lincoln, Neb., Pittsburg and Chicago, is dead at his home, "Pilot Knob," Manitou, near Colorado Springs, Colo. He was 62 years old. He went to Colorado for his health. Death came Sunday, when returning from a walk, he became unconscious, dying within an hour.

Paul Benjamin, son of Rev. A. J. Benjamin of Green Bay, Wis., is dead of pneumonia at Liverpool, Eng. He graduated from Lawrence college at Appleton, Wis., in 1904, and since than has engaged in newspaper and theatrical work. Within the last years he has served as press agent for Gertrude Hoffman, and other prominent theatrical people.

STATE'S PIKE FRY ALL DISTRIBUTED.

St. Paul, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Distribution of pike fry from the state fish hatcheries has been finished. Two carloads of trout fry are yet to be sent out from the Glenwood hatcheries. One carload went out from the St. Paul hatchery today and another one may be sent. Some brook trout and lake trout will be sent out in the fall just before time for the bass distribution.

AUTO LICENSE RECEIPTS ARE ALMOST DOUBLED.

St. Paul, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Receipts from automobile licenses during the month of May just closed amount to $7,947, as compared with $4,572.50 for the corresponding month last year.

New Montana University Head.

Helena, Mont., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. Edwin Boone Craighead, president of Tulane university of Louisiana, has been elected president of the Montana state university at Missoula succeeding Dr. C. A. Duniway, who resigned to become president of the Wyoming state university.

OHIO INVENTORS.

Washington Post: It is not only in statesmen and soldiers and presidents that Ohio has been great. In invention Ohio stands supreme, said John A. Poland, a lawyer of Chillicothe. The Wright brothers are the most recent inventors who have given to the world a revolutionizing invention.

"The first friction match made in the United States was made in Zanesville, Ohio. In 1843 a man by the name of McGinnis kept a general store there, where he sold everything, including drugs. One day a clerk at McGinnis's was given an order to mix in a mortar a quantity of sulphur and phosphorus. He did it and delivered the compound to his customer.

"That evening the store boy, a lad named Sheward, in cleaning out the mortar used some shavings to scrape out the mixture that was left. He thought nothing more about it until the next day when he picked up one of the shavings and carelessly drew one across the counter. It ignited. He directed the attention of McGinnis to the phenomenon and the latter began to study.

"The result was that McGinnis manufactured the first sulphur matches made in the United States. The store boy afterward became Judge Sheward of Dunkirk, N. Y.

"The first photographs produced in the United States were made at Zanesville, Daguerre, who discovered photography, had made known his secret and Alexander C. Ross, reading it, improvised a camera from an old accordion and produced the first daguerreotypes. There are some of these pictures still treasured by the people of Zanesville."

WORK BEGETS WORK.

George W. Perkins, the New York financier, was talking about the scarcity of the $10,000-a-year man—the man actually worth $10,000-a-year salary.

"The advantage of the $10,000-a-year man," he said, "is not alone that he works splendidly—it is also that under him everybody else works splendidly."

Mr. Perkins smiled.

"There's a Chinese proverb," he said, "that expresses exactly what I mean: "'If the farmer is diligent, the soil will not be lazy.'"

"Hurry-up" lunches

That's the kind of lunches many busy people eat now-a-days.

Only a few minutes for eating. Then up and at the work again; with no time for digestion. Under such conditions a heavy luncheon is like a bullet. Try a light, hot, easy-to-digest food for a change, like Campbell's Chicken Soup or Beef Soup.

It warms and comforts the stomach, and furnishes good nourishment for the afternoon work. And it tastes better, too, than many things that are not nearly so good for you.

Try it today and see how much better you feel and work.

WILL HOLD CITY RALLY

Bishop Hamilton and Dr. Forbes Will Address Missionary Gathering.

The Methodist Episcopal Alliance of this city will hold its annual rally this evening at the First Methodist church, corner of Third avenue west and Third street.

Bishop John W. Hamilton, D. D., LL.D., of Boston, Mass., and the Rev. Robert Forbes, D. D., of Philadelphia, Pa., will both deliver addresses.

Dr. Forbes was for many years connected with Duluth and Minnesota Methodism, and has a host of friends and admirers in the city who will be glad of this opportunity of hearing him again. He has for several years past been in charge of the Home Missions and Church Extension board of the Methodist Episcopal church, with headquarters at Philadelphia, although he still holds his connection with the Northern Minnesota conference. His work with the board of home missions and church extension has been highly successful, and, at the recent meeting of the general conference at Minneapolis, he was re-elected to serve for another four years in the same capacity.

The Methodist Alliance is an organization made up of representatives from all the Methodist churches of the city, and for many years has had charge of missionary extension work in this city. Within the past year one new church has been built and paid for by the Alliance—the Harvey Webb Memorial church at Smithville, and another is in process of organization at Gary, the new steel plant, where lots have been purchased and a new building will be erected soon. The alliance is supported by voluntary contributions. In addition to the work spoken of, the alliance has been operating the Garfield Avenue mission, of which the late Rev. James A. Roberts was the superintendent. The present officers of the alliance are: Rev. Edgar K. Copper, D. D., president; Watson S. Moore, vice president; Rev. Charles R. Oaten, secretary; B. N. Wheeler, treasurer, I. G. Wollin, additional member of executive. The service this evening will begin at 8 o'clock, and is open to everyone, the public being cordially invited to attend.

STUDENTS ARE UNDER ARREST

Young Girls Mistreated in Minnesota Phi Delta Chi Home.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 3.—A 17-year-old girl covered her face with shame as she told Police Judge Leary in court of treatment forced upon her in the Phi Delta Chi fraternity house. She was testifying against Earl Goodwin, a student in the school of pharmacy, who was arrested at his home in Webster, S. D., on complaint of her parents. Another girl of equally tender years told a similarly revolting story.

Goodwin was bound over to the grand jury under bail of $2,500, which he furnished. Similar charges against Charles D. Cutting of Sleepy Eye are being heard in police court.

Two girls so far have appeared as witnesses. Their testimony involves two other girls. None is more than 18. They have portrayed the Phi Delta Chi house as a house of horrors.

Phi Delta Chi is a professional fraternity in the school of pharmacy. The girls were coaxed into the place to play on the piano they testified.

President Vincent of the state university said he would make a thorough investigation of the charges involving Goodwin and Cutting and the uses to which the Phi Delta Chi fraternity house is alleged to have been put. If the charges are verified, the national organization of Phi Delta Chi will be asked to revoke the charter of its chapter here. There will also be a faculty action on the cases of Goodwin and Cutting which promises to be vigorous.

GROCERS MUST CLOSE ON SUNDAY

Retailers' Association Plans Campaign for Enforcement of Law.

A campaign for the rigid enforcement during the coming summer of the Sunday closing law as far as grocery stores are concerned, has been planned by the Duluth Retail Grocers' association. Warrants will be obtained for the arrest of any grocers who violate this law. Another method by which Sunday trading will be discouraged, is to induce the public to refrain from buying groceries on Sunday, and an earnest appeal will be made by the association to people in all parts of the city by means of circulars. The following notice will be sent to all the retail grocers in the city:

"The question of Sunday merchandising is at this particular season one of great importance and, in justice to consumers and merchants alike, it would seem that the least we could do would be to treat the matter fairly.

"Meals may be served by caterers, hotels, restaurants, etc. Newspapers, periodicals, confectionery, including ripe fruit, cream and milk, and also prepared tobacco may be sold in a quiet and orderly manner on the Sabbath in places where non-intoxicating liquors are sold, is evidently a correct interpretation of the state law. This law is of comparatively recent origin, and was framed after careful consideration of the necessities and desired comforts of the consumer.

"With the stores of our city open from early Monday morning until 7 p. m. each evening, except Saturday, when they are open until 10 o'clock, there should be no necessity of merchandising in staples on Sunday. There is, in this country, a day known as Sunday and irrespective of sect or creed, we believe in the observance of such to the extent that our law must and will be enforced."

ORDAINED TO PRIESTHOOD

Bishop J. D. Morrison Conducts Service at Trinity Pro-Cathedral.

With a beautiful and impressive service, Rev. Frederick Oehler, Episcopal missionary at Detroit, Minn., was ordained to the priesthood at the Trinity pro-cathedral yesterday morning. At the same service, M. C. de L. Harris was appointed deacon. The ceremonies were conducted by Bishop James D. Morrison of the Duluth diocese.

The service followed a special program for the occasion. It opened with the singing of the processional hymn, "Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty" sung by the choir, which was led by Archdeacon Parshall, who carried the cross. The choir and the clergy in attendance on the bishop entered at the western door and advanced to the chancel.

The ordiation sermon was delivered by Rev. Thomas McLean, who laid special emphasis on the duties and responsibilities of those being ordained and charged his brothers, who were about to enter the ministry, to be ever faithful to their duties. Holy communion was held, after which the candidates were presented to the bishop by Archdeacon Parshall. The archdeacon and Dr. McLean took part in the laying-on-of-hands ceremony. The choir rendered appropriate selections from time to time.

WETTEST MAY SINCE 1882

Precipitation Last Month More Than Two Inches Above Normal.

Not since 1882 has May been as wet a month as it was this year. The total precipitation for the month, according to the monthly meteorological summary, is 5.90 inches. The normal for the month in forty-one years is 3.47 inches. In 1877 it was 7.24; in 1879, 7.99 and in 1882, 7.99 inches.

There were but four clear days during May and there were nineteen on which .01 inch or more of precipitation occurred. Fifteen were cloudy and twelve were partly cloudy. There were nine thunderstorms and two hail showers during the month. Ten days were foggy. There were traces of snow in the air on two days.

The mean temperature for the month in Duluth was 47 deg., although on the 23rd, the thermometer climbed up to 74. The coldest day of the month was on May 13 when the mercury was at 32 deg.

Northeasterly winds prevailed during May, the total movement being 10,694 miles with an average velocity of 14.4 miles per hour. The hardest blow occurred on May 4, when a northeast gale with a velocity of 49 miles an hour was observed.

CIVIL CASES ARE COMPLETED

Only Criminal Cases Left for District Court Judges.

There are no more civil cases to be tried in district court until the opening of the September term. The jury will not be excused, however, until the criminal calendar is finished, there being one or two more cases yet to be tried.

In Judge Cant's room, a jury which was drawn Friday in one of the White Iron Lake fire cases, is still occupied with the case. The action will probably be on trial the remainder of the week.

This morning a jury was drawn in the case of Michael T. Doyle against the Petruschke Box & Lumber company. Neither C. J. Petruschke nor his attorneys, Spencer & Marshall, put in an appearance and the case went by default. The court directed the jury to bring in a verdict against the defendant company for $288.81, the amount claimed to be due for goods delivered and services performed. The case was tried before Judge Ensign. A. E. McManus appeared as attorney for Doyle.

Notice

Is hereby given that I, Emil Oettel, have sold my entire stock of furniture, ets., to Nelson & Co., West Duluth. I will collect all outstanding accounts and pay all bills.

EMIL OETTEL.

WILL BE BROUGHT BACK FROM SEATTLE.

Deputy Sheriff Joe Bourdash will leave this evening for Seattle with a warrant for the arrest of Ivar Nelson, who is wanted here on a charge of having seduced a girl on a promise of marriage.

The warrant for Nelson's arrest follows the story which Miss Ida Carlson, 23 years old, of West Duluth told County Attorney Norton. The girl claims that Nelson, through a promise of marriage, induced her to live with him as man and wife and that after a month of cohabitation he refused to marry her and deserted her. He left for Seattle.

It is understood that Nelson will not fight extradition and that he is being held for the local authorities at Seattle.

Illinoisans in Reunion.

Hillsboro, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Former residents of Illinois living in the Red river valley will hold their third annual picnic in Hillsboro June 12. Not only will Illinoisans of the North Dakota counties in the valley attend, but many from the Minnesota counties also will be here.

To Spray Cooperstown Trees.

Cooperstown, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The box elder trees in Cooperstown are afflicted with a disease and in order to save them the city council has been asked to bear part of the expense of following out the directions of Prof. C. B. Waldron of the agricultural college. The trees must be stripped and sprayed.

LAND FREE TO WORKERS

Duluth Citizen Offers Use of Forty Acres Without Charge.

Duluth working men who want to go in for truck farming have the opportunity to do so, without any expense in securing the land and clearing it.

A prominent Duluth citizen has forty acres of land near the Forest Hill cemetery at Hunter's Park, which he has offered for cultivation free of charge to those who are unable to pay rental for land elsewhere. It is not all cleared, but there are parts of it which are ready for the plow. The owner is desirous of having it cultivated this year, and there is yet time to put in a crop. Anyone who wishes to take advantage of this offer and learn the particulars may apply to the Associated Charities.

If there are several applicants, the land will be apportioned among them.

ANOTHER WEEK FOR CLEANING

Poor Weather Interfered With Campaign on Ash Piles.

Cleaning week has been extended one week because of the poor weather of the past few days.

Last week was a poor time for the cleaning of back yards, for it rained a great part of the time. Because the back yards did not get the cleanings that were coming to them, the health department has extended the time.

This will be the official cleaning week in Duluth in spite of the fact that last week was the time set originally.

"Duluth back yards need a good cleaning up," said a health department official this morning," but the people must be given a chance to do it. Last week the rain interfered. Better weather is promised this week and I expect that bonfires will be in vogue."

Lovelorn Youth Is Suicide.

Sterling, Ill., June 3. — Brooding over the refusal of Esther Gage to marry him, Harry Evans, 18 years of age, committed suicide today by shooting.

Four Months' Fire Losses.

St. Paul, Minn., June 3.—Fire losses in the United States the four months of this year aggregated $97,300,350, as compared with $87,577,800 during the corresponding period last year, according to figures in the office of J. A. O. Preus, state insurance commissioner. In Minnesota the losses this year were $2,061,112, as compared with $3,282,096 last year.

SPECIAL DEMONSTRATION of the

Thomson's Glove-Fitting Corsets

Here This Week

By Miss Jean Lewis, an Expert Thomson Corsetiere

Don't miss the opportunity to be fitted by this scientific corsetiere. It's surprising what a difference in comfort and perfect fit is accomplished in the adjustment of a corset by an expert. It's also surprising what a corsetiere can accomplish by the selection of models.

Thomson's "Glove-fitting" is a name that means just exactly what it says and see exactly what is means. They fit the figure like a glove. This is the only corset that has stood the test for years, and still stands first in the esteem of American women.

We cordially invite you to attend the special demonstration of this famous line. The corsetiere will see that you get the right model.

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW

New York, June 3.—One of the most interesting features of the situation in the iron industry is an adequate supply of labor at blast furnaces, coke ovens and mines. Apparently production has reached its full limit for the time being, although specifications continue heavy and pressure for delivery of finished material is unabated. It is not a question of wages, but foreign laborers have been attracted by new developments in Brazil. Another important feature is the movement among Eastern furnaces against paying the prices demanded for local ores, and the placing of some contracts for South American ore.

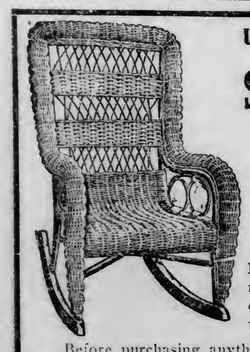

Activity continued in nearly all branches of finished material last week, and although new orders booked were less heavy than during the preceding weeks, the total volume of business in May was greater than in April. Contracts placed for railroad equipment during the month called for 1,000,000 tons of finished products and it is estimated that total contracts from all interests aggregated more than 2,000,000 tons. Orders booked by the United States Steel corporation in May are estimated at 1,450,000 tons.

Railroad contracts included 416,000 tons of rails, 41,000 cars, 540 locomotives and 60,000 tons of bridge material. Structural orders placed by railroads were the heaviest since June, 1910. The principal rail contracts last week included 30,000 tons of rails for the Illinois Central, 3,000 cars for the Pennsylvania railroad and 6,000 tons bridge work for the St. Paul.

Numerous contracts were placed for steel buildings and highway bridges aggregating more than 20,000 tons.

SAM GORDON MAKES REPLY

Lieutenant Governor Charges That Eberhart Has Never Stood With People.

Says Failure to Take Part in Governors' Conference Was Serious Mistake.

Lieutenant Governor Sam Y. Gordon has issued a statement replying to Governor Eberhart's keynote statement. Mr. Gordon doesn't mince words. He directly charges that the governor has not stood by the people. Mr. Gordon denies that he was in any way responsible for the failure of reapportionment and the direct primary law in the last session of the legislature. He charges the governor with casting aspersion on the memory of a man now dead, who made a human mistake and regretted it. He attacks the governor personally on his appointment of C. A. Smith to the board of regents and his failure to take part in the governors' conference resulting in intervention on behalf of the states before the United States supreme court.

Mr. Gordon's statement follows:

"I take it that a spirit of resentment against what I know to be false, a free discussion of the facts, and a portrayal of my conscientious views, is within the bounds of due propriety in the defense of the principles and men for whom I stand, and in the denunciation of the men and measures I feel in duty bound to criticize.

"When Governor Eberhart attempts to charge that I in any manner interfered with the progress of legislation on the subject of reapportionment or of primary elections, he lacks the mental fiber and honesty of purpose essential to that force of character which distinguishes a real governor. Gall and wormwood would go down me easier than for me to pass unnoticed such infamous untruth.

"I was nominated by a progressive following, upon a progressive platform. With a jealous eye upon every progressive measure, I set about early in my career as lieutenant governor to guard against every intrigue of the old guard of reactionaries to which Governor Eberhart then belonged and in whose bed he has ever since slumbered. It is easily within the memory of every man who reads that his political adherents vainly threatened me with the taking out of my hands of the appointment of the senate committees. I rejoice now to say that I did appoint the senate committees myself. Here was where my personality was felt, if at all, and about here is where my duties ended; but these committees were at all times a terror to the reactionary crowd, and I now commend them to the governor as among the most active, conscientious and effective organization of men who have sat in the legislative halls of this state since a date before his term as lieutenant goernor.

History of Reapportionment.

"I mean to stand responsible for their work, and I now charge that the governor attempts to hide from the notice of the voters his own record upon these matters as well as the record of these committees upon the subjects of reapportionment and primary elections. Let us see if they dealt fairly and promptly with these matters.

"The first reapportionment bill, H. F. 477, passed the house and reached the senate on Feb. 27, being referred to the senate committee on reapportionment. Within a period of one week, on March 8, the bill was reported back with the recommendation that it do pass. See Sen. Jr. pp. 396-531-533.

"On April 6 S. F. 912 was introduced by Senator Hanson and on April 10 this bill was reported back and recommended for passage. Jr. of Sen. pp. 1050-1129-1131.

"And now as to the direct primary bill, known as S. F. 603: On March 7 this bill introduced by the committee on elections received its first and second reading and was placed on general orders. On March 13 the bill was made a special order and on March 25 the bill was put on its final passage and passed the senate by a vote of 49 to 8, and the record will show that most of the consistent friends of the administration in the senate voted against the measure. The bill was later amended in the house and a conference committee appointed by me on April 17. It will be noticed that the body over which I presided passed the bill on March 25 and that it then remained in the house and did not return to the senate for further action until April 17. This delay had much to do with the defeat of the bill, for the measure would surely have been repassed by the senate had it not been for the unfortunate incident which resulted in the premature adjournment.

"The governor's reference to what he terms 'a forced adjournment' amounts to an unwarranted and cowardly attack on a man who is defenseless because he is now dead. I refer to the clerical error made by the late W. A. Simonton, editor of the Glenwood Gopher Press, who called the roll on adjournment and handed to me the roll call with the figures transposed, thus causing me to announce the adjournment of the senate. Mr. Simonton was in a state of physical exhaustion due to many nights of hard and exacting labor, and he was fully exonerated by myself and the members of the senate after a full investigation of all the facts. No one regretted the unfortunate incident more than did Mr. Simonton, who was the first to call my tatention to the error, and he himself worked heroically in assisting me in the futile attempt to reconvene the senate.

"I have never assumed the role of dictator to the state senate, but I want to add that the speed with which my committee appointees dealt out righteousness was a terror to the unwashed.

Work For Primary.

"I call attention to the fact that the legislature having failed to give to the people of the state a primary election law, my first, last and persistent effort was to afford the people some means of expressing their preference for nominees of the Republican party, and to the further fact that the people petitioned and labored in season and out for some means of expressing their choice, each man for himself—first on president and next on governor—one political organization after another turned down these appeals. Everybody remembers that at last the people in many instances printed their own ballots and finally the Republican convention at Minneapolis rebuked the bossism and political organizations of the present administration, and directed that the people be allowed to express their preference upon at least the candidates for governor. During this great struggle, which threatened ultimately the destiny and political welfare of every stalwart in the state, where was Governor Eberhart, the professed friend of the primary? It is the basest of common hypocrisy for any political contortionist to attempt to drag from this network of political treachery surrounding the people in their vain appeals, any man who then and under such circumstances hid behind any old wood pile and to parade him as a model primary election advocate. The fact is that the governor turned up wanting in these matters and sadly lacking in his espousel of the people's rights. He suffers from the effects of bad affiliations.

"Had his own administration as lieutenant governor and as chief magistrate during his first term been commendable and in keeping with the wishes and best interests of the people, then he would have no occasion whatever to find fault with others.

"In attacking me, he has thrown his own record into the ring for criticism. In 1907 and 1909, he held the office I now hold. His committee appointments have been the subject of bitter criticism. Many must recall the storm of opposition that was raised when he appointed to the elections committee W. W. Dunn, an officer of the Hamm Brewing company, occupying the private office of the Brewing company at St. Paul.

"Why did he, as lieutenant governor, appoint Ed E. Smith as chairman of the important senate committee of taxes and tax laws?

"Why did he displace Senator Peterson with Andy Stephens of Crookston, as chairman of the senate finance committee, which committee, by reason of its towering importance, could at that time almost at will turn the old time senate into a body of crippled legislators?

"Does he not now know that in these appointments, and in submitting the destinies of the people of this state to such persons, he was deliberately sidestepping from the path of true progress and reform?

The Governor's Record.

"He not only continued his senate combine by his selection of Ed E. Smith to a position of power as chairman of the state Republican committee, but still has the effrontery, in his attack upon me, to say, 'In the matter of making appointments to office, I laid down the rule of fitness as the prime requisite,' and again in the same statement he says: 'This test can be applied to the personal character and official achievement of every executive officer whom I have appointed, and I will stand or fall by it.' What was about the first thing he did do? I charge that the appointment by him of C. A. Smith of Minneapolis as a regent of the University of Minnesota was a betrayal of the high trust imposed upon him by Minnesota's electorate. Not only was this appointment a betrayal of trust, but it was mightily near to a violation of his oath of office.

"If the governor had been anxious to probe into the personal character of Mr. Smith in 1910, when he appointed him, all that would have been necessary was a trip to the attorney general's office. A part of Mr. Smith's record is on file there.

"Lack of space alone forbids my going into the governor's own record as a member of the drainage and other boards, and I fully intend to deal with this later upon the stump.

"And in commenting upon his record, I wish to reiterate some of the questions put to Governor Eberhart on April 19, 1910, by Senator Cashman:

"'Will the governor point out a single reform bill reported by the tax, railroad or temperance committees that was not forced out under pressure?

"'Will the governor explain why the Johnson stock regulation bill to prevent the watering of railroad stocks died in the railroad committee?

"'Will the governor say this bill was not proper legislation?

"'Will the governor explain the rapid action of his railroad committee and other members of the senate in reporting the notorious Edenberg bill while important reform legislation was held up and put to sleep in the committee?'

"Senator Cashman asked these questions more than a year ago. Governor Eberhart has failed to answer them. I challenge him to answer them now. I want him to be specific and will not be satisfied with a general denial such as he entered when Senator Cashman first asked the questions. The attitude of Governor Eberhart to the Minnesota rate cases has been one of utter indifference. He declined to attend the governors' conference at Atlantic City last summer. In 1910 he attended the conference and introduced a resolution which blazoned his name as a 'reformer' from one end of the country to the other. This resolution suggested the passage of a law which would prevent federal courts from interferring with the orders of state railroad commissions. The resolution was not adopted and Governor Eberhart knew at the time he introduced it that it would not be adopted. Whether he was rebuked by his masters for his boldness in introducing the resolution, I do not know, but this I do know, since that time he has changed front in his attitude toward the Minnesota rate cases.

The Governors' Conference.

"Governor Eberhart failed to represent his state at the governors' conference when the Sanborn decision was under consideration. Whether he has yet paid Minnesota's share of the expenses of the last governors' conference, I do not know, but I do know that when the secretary of the association wrote him and asked him what Minnesota would do, he replied that he would try to get an appropriation from the next legislature to pay this expense. The expense was trifling and was paid out of contingent funds by most of the other governors. Governor Eberhart, at the time, refused to draw on his contingent fund for this amount, although later he went deep into this fund to pay expenses incidental to the Great Northern governors' special.

"Whether the money would have been well invested, the public can judge by what took place at that conference. The Sanborn decision was under hot fire, but Minnesota was silent, although many other states joined in the protest. Governor Harmon of Ohio, Governor Aldrich of Nebraska and Governor Hadley of Missouri were named a committee to prepare a brief in the Minnesota rate case, as friends of the court. Is it not significant that Governor Eberhart, the chief executive of Minnesota, was not named a member of that committee and that he never gave the committee his moral support?

"Again I challenge Governor Eberhart to explain his indifference to the governors' conference. The brief was prepared and filed with the United States supreme court. It is a potent rebuke to Governor Eberhart whose name should appear on that brief together with Harmon, Aldrich and Hadley. I trust the extra session will meet Minnesota's assessment, if Governor Eberhart has not already met that obligation of the state."

Dora Keen Is to Make Trips Never Tried By White Woman.

Cordova, Alaska, June 3.—Miss Dora Keen, the Philadelphia woman who made the first ascent of Mount Blackburn last month, will engage in another mountain adventure before returning home, according to information received here from Kenecott, where she has been resting since she returned from Mount Blackburn.

It is Miss Keen's intention to spend part of the summer in climbing other mountains of the Copper River district, crossing the summit of Skolai pass and Russell glacier to the headwaters of White river. By this route she will descend into Canadian territory, work her way to White Horse and cross back into American territory over the famous White pass summit, sailing from Skagway for Seattle late in the summer.

This route has been gone over by surveyors and has been pronounced very difficult. Miss Keen will be the first white woman to attempt the trip. She will be accompanied by G. W. Handy and the packers who were with her when she scaled Mount Blackburn.

BOSTON AFTER DR. WILEY.

Offers Him $7,500 Salary to Head Health Board.

Washington, June 3.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the pure food champion who was formerly chief of the bureau of chemistry of the department of agriculture, has received an offer to become chairman of the Boston board of health at a salary of $7,500 a year. It is known that Dr. Wiley thinks favorably of the outlook for usefulness which the Boston position offers. He has asked for time to study the Boston health report and to acquaint himself fully with the situation there, and will give his answer in a few days.

New Housing Ordinance Completed and Ready for Public Criticism.

Will Be Submitted to Council After Thirty Days' Inspection.

Duluth's new housing ordinance is completed and ready for public inspection and criticism.

The ordinance has been printed and will be placed on file with the city clerk for thirty days. During that time the public will be at liberty to inspect it and make any suggestions for changes that are deemed advisable. These suggestions will then be taken up by the housing committee at a public hearing to be held later. All this will be done before the ordinance is submitted to the council for final approval.

The ordinance was drawn up by a sub-committee of the special committee appointed by the council. This committee was composed of fifteen representatives from all the organizations likely to be interested in the ordinance. The builders' exchange, Associated Charities, health department, building inspector's department and architects' club are all represented on the committee. The ordinance has yet to be approved by the general committee, but this will probably be done within a few days, and the printed copies will then be ready for distribution.

The new ordinance is aimed at the evils in housing conditions which are possible under the present laws. For example, the present laws did not prohibit the construction of a flat building containing many inside bathrooms. Such a building was erected and there was no way of stopping it. It is believed that the new ordinance will prevent the erection of unsafe, insanitary, poorly lighted and poorly ventilated structures in Duluth. The committee has spent several months on the ordinance, and has taken the best features of ordinances now existing in several other cities.

would prefer to have a man who could thunder denunciation of the disrupters of the party and set a keynote even before the scholarly Root begins his address.

Will Give Excuse for Bolt.

There is no denying that the Taft leaders here are discouraged. Of his election I believe they are hopeless. But their frame of mind is a perilous one for the party. Nobody has doubted for weeks past that, if not nominated, Roosevelt would bolt. The present purpose of the Taftites is to give him ample excuse for a bolt. To the Rough Rider they intend to apply the methods of the rough house. His delegates will be thrown out in every contest and the Taft delegates seated. To the men who have for twenty years guided the Republican organization—and usually to victory—the triumph of the Democrats would be vastly less of a disaster than the success of Roosevelt. According it is their purpose to fight to the last extremity, and if the result is two Republican tickets in the field and the inevitable success of the Democratic nominee, they will take it philosophically and wait four years more.

Inviting Reprisals.

In many ways the Roosevelt managers seem to be wantonly inviting this sort of reprisals. Nothing could be more foolish than their demand that national committee men elected at the various primaries should be installed before the convention. The purpose is of course obvious, for they fear, and justly, the power of the present committee. But from the day of the first Republican convention to the present time the precedent is unbroken. The delegations on the last day of the convention announce their choices for national committee men, and shortly after adjournment the new committee meets, organizes and gets down to business. There is not the faintest chance of a change in this method, but its suggestion has still further heated the fighting blood of Taft and his friends.

Adhere to Precedent.

In the Republican convention of 1884 occurred an interesting incident which illustrates the tenacity with which conventions adhere to precedent, and has pertinacity now because Theodore Roosevelt was a delegate from New York and supported the action taken. The two delegates from the District of Columbia—the Republican party allows it two, the Democrats six, and as a matter of fact, having no electoral votes, it ought not to have any delegates at all—were Frank Conger, the postmaster of Washington, and Perry Carson, a political negro of the most objectionable type. They split on every question, and one or the other would solemnly demand that the delegation be polled. When the time came for calling the roll of states for national committee man, Conger being athirst incautiously stepped out for a drink. He returned just in time to hear Carson declare, "De District ob Columbia gives its solid vote for Perry Carson." Conger raved and appealed, but the convention—including Roosevelt—stood by Carson and he was seated.

Bitter at Primary Results.

The Taft people are peculiarly bitter at the way in which the direct primary system has affected them, a not extraordinary fact when it is recalled that in practically every state having that system they were beaten. But they point out with some force that in all such states, except Massachusetts, the delegates were selected by a third or less of the Republican voters. In Massachusetts 85 per cent of the voters attended the primaries and Taft won. They hold that, under the circumstances, Roosevelt will be a minority nominee if he should be nominated.

The Democratic Situation.

In contradistinction to the Republican situation is the Democratic fact that with but 182 more delegates to be elected to Baltimore, no candidate has evening half of a majority or one-third of the two-thirds necessary to a choice. No one can organize the convention in his own interest, none can apply the steam roller so active of late in United States politics. In the last few days Wilson has loomed larger than heretofore because of his victories in New Jersey, Texas and Minnesota, and partly because of the sudden outburst of the New York World in his behalf. Clark still leads the list, but there is a curious undercurrent feeling around Washington that his support is but a shell likely to go to pieces at any moment. Underwood or a dark horse are still looked on as the best bets.

DULUTHIANS ENJOY SUNDAY

People Take Advantage of Beautiful Summer Weather for Outings.

Except for light showers in the late afternoon and a thunder storm in the evening, yesterday was an ideal summer day.

Hundreds of Duluthians took advantage of the various parks and recreation places to spend the day. Lester, Chester, Lincoln, Cascade, Lake Front and Fairmont parks were thronged with people during the day.

The main and Oatka branch houses of the boat club were popular with the boat club members yesterday, and had the bay not been so choppy, every craft owned by the club would have probably been out. A number of sailboats were on the water yesterday.

The steamer Easton made its first Two Harbors excursion trip yesterday taking a big crowd. The excursions up the river were also well patronized.

Fishermen took advantage of the summer weather yesterday and spent the day at nearby trout streams and lakes.

VANGUARD OF G. O. P. ON HAND

braska, continued to be the main topic of conversation among the politicians.

May Throw Howell Out.

Mr. McHarg and other Roosevelt leaders said they were taking no part in the Howell controversy and members of the national committee who are allied with the Taft forces intimated that the claim of the Nebraska man would be quickly settled by the committee when it was formally presented.

They took the view that as the national committee is not organized by statute, the election of a committeeman by state primary or by other means would not necessitate the setting aside of the precedents nor change the membership before the completion of the convention.

Alexander H. Revell, head of the Illinois Roosevelt league, arrived from the Oyster Bay conference. He said a general Roosevelt committee was appointed to watch the progress of affairs, and declined to discuss the question of the temporary chairmanship which has been proffered to Senator Elihu Root by the sub-committee on arrangements.

Ignore Non-Essentials.

"The great thing which we are working for," said Mr. Revell, "is the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt. We shall stick to that great idea and pay little atention to non-essentials."

The following list of 230 contests has been prepared by the clerks in the office of the secretary of the national committee for submission to the committee:

LIVING COST HITS THE TOP

Is Highest in History of the Country Except in War Time.

Average Advance of 10 Per Cent Noted in the Last Year.

New York, June 3.—It costs more to live in this, the month of June, 1912, than ever before in the history of the United States, except perhaps during wartime. Prices were high a year ago, but today they are on the average nearly 10 per cent higher yet, according to trade authorities' quotations.

Food products are the highest on record. Meat, eggs, butter, fish, potatoes, coffee, tea, sugar, salt, molasses, rice, beans and peas average 22 per cent higher; wheat, corn, oats, barley, flour, etc., 33 per cent higher.

Fruits are the only thing good to eat that have grown cheaper during the last twelve months, but they are still higher than in 1910. Leather products cost 12 per cent and chemicals and drugs 13 per cent more than a year ago. Textile goods, however, are a trifle cheaper.

The average increase in food products is nearly 20 per cent, which means that the housewife must pay $6 to fill a market basket that only cost her $5 to fill in June, 1911.

The biggest advances have been in meats—beef, 26 per cent; hog products, 40 per cent, and mutton over 50 per cent. Dealers lay the increase to last year's hay crop, which was poor, and the general high cost of animal provender. Poor crops are also held responsible for dearer breadstuffs.

Economists differ as to the reasons for the general upward tendency of all commodities during recent years, which has been world wide to a greater or less degree.

supporters of Senator Gamble, Republican candidate to succeed himself, assert that the senator's plurality for renomination will not fall below 10,000. The managers of the campaign of Thomas Sterling, one of the other Republican candidates, claim a victory for their candidate by 10,000.

Friends of Col. Melvine Grigsby, the Roosevelt leader in South Dakota and Roosevelt candidate for nomination and election to the United States senate, claim their candidate has made wonderful gains during the last two or three weeks, and that the fight is between Senator Gamble and Col. Grigsby.

Friends of R. O. Richards, the La Follette candidate for the senate, claim a victory for their candidate.

Closing rallies will be held in many towns and cities this evening. The polls open at 8 o'clock and close at 5.

o'clock. Following a short address he will introduce United States Senator Theodore E. Burton, the temporary chairman, who will make the keynote speech.

Wonder About Burton.

There was still much speculation this morning as to the text of Senator Burton's speech. Many of the delegates declared that Burton would give President Taft a strong indorsement, while Roosevelt supporters declared his speech would be neutral.

The convention will adjourn immediately after the temporary organization, to allow the committees to meet. The committees will report early Tuesday morning or tonight, dependent upon the time set for a second meeting.

One of the big questions before the convention is whether a state ticket shall be selected at this time, or whether the convention shall select only the "big six" delegation to the national convention and then recess until after the Chicago convention to select a state ticket. Either plan can be followed under the provisions of the call issued by the state central committee.

Taft Men Claim Control.

In the district fight which will be settled this afternoon Taft supporters claim control of the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Sixth, Seventh, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Twentieth and Twenty-first districts. This would give them a bare majority of the new state central committee and committees on credentials, resolutions and organization.

Walter Brown, Roosevelt's manager, however, does not admit that the Taft people will control these districts. The uninstructed Cleveland delegation of fifty-three is the prize for which both groups now are struggling.

REBELS WIN ONCE AGAIN

against Orozco, and that troops have started from Chinipas and Guazupares to take Batopilas.

Orozco formerly lived in this mountain district.

Aliens Leave Chihuahua.

Chihuahua, Mex., June 3.—Out of a normal foreign population of at least 2,000, this city contains exactly 106 foreign residents today. Of the 1,000 Americans who ordinarily live here, only thirty-five men and twelve women remain.

An official census issued today shows that fears of an attack on the rebel city by the advancing federals has practically depopulated the town. Thirty thousand people inhabit Chihuahua in time of peace, but today less than 20,000 are here and the exodus is daily growing larger. Besides the Americans there are twenty-three British subjects and thirty-three Germans.

Though an attack by the main federal column, under Gen. Huerta, is believed to be several days off, the possibility of a flank movement by Gen. Villa and Gen. Rabago, who are reported coming from Parral, southeast of Chihuahua, with federal cavalry, has alarmed the population.

Rebels Need Ammunition.

Present plans of the rebel leaders call for a stand at Bachimba, forty-six miles south of here, in the mountain passes along the Mexican Central railroad. It is believed that the government troops will not be able for some time to reconstruct the burned bridges to transport their artillery, and the rebels hope through the lull to get enough ammunition to give the federal forces a battle at Bachimba.

There is little ammunition in the rebel army today, not enough at any time for a big engagement, but the rebel leaders claim they are getting supplies rapidly and will be well equipped when the fighting is resumed at Bachimba.

DULUTH U. C. T. MEN TO ATTEND CONVENTION.

A large delegation from Duluth will attend the annual convention of the Minnesota jurisdiction of the United Commercial Travelers, opening at Red Wing next Thursday morning. A strenuous effort will be made to secure next year's convention for Duluth. The delegation will include the following representatives of Zenith council, No. 404: George M. Peterson, O. C. Reitan, Bert Holcomb, Al Overman and J. E. Lawrence.

A special train will leave Duluth for Red Wing on Thursday evening and will carry the wives of the members of the Duluth delegation, certain delegates who could not leave in time to be at the convention at the opening, the U. C. T. baseball team and the Third Regiment band.

dawn disclosed them gliding down the Virginia capes to meet the visitors.

Things have been in a great bustle aboard both squadrons for the last three days, making ready for the reception.

Hundreds of Flags.

The red rust and salt of a trans-Atlantic voyage has been removed from the German fighters by a coat of gray paint. Decks, holystoned and swabbed, glistened as the sun broke through clouds that had threatened a dark day. Every ship had been made fit for parade day, and hundreds of colored flags filled in the freshening breeze.

Just as daybreak came, the boatswains' whistles aboard the German ships announced the escort of American ships approaching. From the bridge of the Moltke, the German flagship, a string of signal flags broke out and waved a message to the Bremen and Stettin. The column of ironclads glided into Hampton roads to the scene of the first battle of their kind a half century ago, and the ceremonies of official reception proceeded.

Two Sailor Princes.

There are two sailor princes aboard the German squadron. One is Prince Henry of Reuss and the other is Prince Christian. Prince Henry, however, is not the same who visited the United States several years ago as the representative of the kaiser. Neither Prince Henry nor Prince Christian is of the imperial family, and neither represents any official of the German government. They come merely as lieutenants of the German navy.

President Taft and his party will leave on the Mayflower later today for Washington and the German officers will follow tomorrow after they have been guests of the officers and men of the American squadron ashore.

While the German officers are being entertained, the German sailors will be having a time with the Yankee tars in athletic contests and other entertainment. When the German officers arrive in Washington Tuesday there will be an exchange of official visits and a luncheon at the German embassy, and the officers will be the guests at dinner at the White House on Wednesday. Later they will return to their ships and the squadron will move up to New York, where another round of entertainment is waiting.

belong, this process to be continued until some candidate has a majority. This bill is being bitterly opposed by Eberhart's supporters, who hadn't bargained for such a result from the extra session; but something like it will probably go through.

Representative Cleon T. Knapp of Chisholm has also been working on a similar bill, and he and Senator Haycraft were working today on a bill combined from both, which each will introduce in his branch of the legislature. Both bills attempt to keep members of one party out of the other party's primaries. Haycraft's bill provides that unless a party casts 10 per cent of its general election vote at the primary election, it shall not be recognized as a party. Knapp's bill has a provision taken from Wisconsin, requiring registration of party affiliation at the primary election. Once a voter is registered as a member of a party, he can only have the ballot of that party at the primaries unless ninety days prior he formally declares his intention to change his party affiliations, when he is registered anew for his new party.

Attempts to Caucus.

Attempts will be made tonight to hold caucuses. The senate Republicans at 4, and the house Democrats at 8, all at the Merchants' hotel. Not much is likely to result from any of these caucuses.

There is little likelihood of any fight over the speakership, notwithstanding the fact that some of the Hennepin county members caucused Saturday and decided to try, under the leadership of Representative John Lennon, to unseat Speaker Dunn and put Representative W. I. Nolan of Minneapolis in his place.

Even those who might be disposed to oust the speaker see in such a move only an increase in the confusion and a lessening of a likelihood of a short and effective session.

Democrats in the legislature are practically all delegates to the Duluth convention, and they anticipate no trouble in getting away to attend. All of them expect to go unless something unexpected develops.

A few obstreperous members are threatening to move an immediate adjournment tomorrow, but nothing will come of it, even if the motion is made, which is doubtful, except much applause and few votes.

Southern Minnesota senators are making an aggressive fight against taking up reapportionment and will try to have the senate go on record against it at this session.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

CHIEF ASSET OF CITY IS THE RICH COUNTRY TRIBUTARY TO IT

will be instrumental in the growth of the country. The development of the tributary district is the medium of Duluth's greatest growth."

President Pennington remarked that he had made a recent trip through part of North Dakota and part of the Soo Line tributary country in Minnesota, and that he was wonderfully surprised with the progress being made. All of this country is directly tributary to this city.

"Only recently," said Mr. Pennington, "I had some literature sen out to the various commercial clubs of our lines, giving the men some advice regarding the methods of developing the country. I believe that this work is being done today and in this part of the country it cannot but make Duluth a great and prosperous city.

Can't Help But Grow.

"I can see agricultural development that is to make your city one of the greatest in the West. Here is where the work of those bent on taking the most of advantages should center. In my opinion Duluth can't help but grow and this growth is going to be accomplished through the development of the agricultural possibilities of the surrounding country."

Mr. Pennington stated that he believed the Canadian wheat crop would total 250,000,000 bushels this season. This would mean, he declared, that the biggest wheat movement in the history of the Head of the Lakes would pass through the Duluth gateway. He stated that it would be practically impossible for the Canadian railroads to handle all of the vast crop.

"We expect to have the road from Minneapolis completed by June 15," said Mr. Pennington in response to the question as to when the new Twin City line would be into Duluth. "Rain and red clay have been mainly responsible for the delay in our plans.

"We are going ahead rapidly with the work and expect to be here on that date. We expect to bring increased business here and we also want to help in making this one of the great centers of a great district.

"I am an optimist in regard to Duluth. I have for a long time been a firm believer in the growth of this city. The railroads have done much for Duluth in the past and of course will do much for you in the years to come, but I say again that it is the development of the tributary country, the education of the people to its advantages that will in the end be the one great factor in the growth of the city."

President Pennington and a number of the other officials of the Soo Line came in this morning in the president's private car. Vice President Martin stated that the traffic business of the road was very good at the present time and that the prospects, because of the indications of a very heavy wheat crop, were for a very large business this fall, especially in the Duluth traffic district.

General Manager Huntington is another optimistic believer in the future of Duluth.

"You can't help grow," he stated. "Your business is growing every year. The growth of the railroads is going to develop the resources of the country around Duluth, and once the district here begins to come into its stride the growth of Duluth cannot be held back."

Mr. Pennington, Mr. Martin and Mr. Huntington are the guests of Vice President Walker today.

The members of President Pennington's party are: W. L. Martin, vice president; George A. Huntington, general manager; E. F. Potter, assistant general manager; C. W. Gardner, comptroller; F. H. Kalk, chief engineer; A. H. Bright, general counsel; J. R. Michaels, superintendent Lake Superior division; W. R. Callaway, general passenger agent.

tions would be safe without a warship there.

Consuls Report Unrest.

There is a lack of encouragement, however, in reports from other points in Cuba. The consuls, while not reporting any actual uprisings, indicate the existence of unrest.

The hospital ship Solace, which has started from Key West for Guantanamo, was sent to enable Admiral Osterhaus to keep in communication from his flagship Washington with the Guantanamo naval station. The wireless plant at Guantanamo was destroyed by fire some time ago and it appears that the temporary construtoin has failed to connect with Key West, a difficulty which, it is expected, the Solace with her superior radio outfit will overcome.

Although the Cuban government has reported a victory over the insurgents' bands in the enighborhood of El Cobra, state department advices are that the situation there is still threatening and it is expected that the Paducah will carry out her original orders and sail to Santiago, the nearest port to El Cobra, as soon as her commander feels it safe to do so.

Although the Cuban government has declared the negro insurrecto movement entirely crushed in Santa Calara province, American Counsul Baeher at Cienfuegos reported to the state department today that demoralization was extensive and that white families were taking refuge in the town.

Negroes Making Attacks.

He reported that negro bands are making attacks and that several are operating in the vicinity of Cruces and Trinidad in the same province. Large numbers of strange negroes appearing in the province are believed to be from Haiti and Jamaica.

Owing to the decision of Gen. Monteaugado to divide his army into platoons of twenty and thirty men each to fight small bands of rebels in a very wild country, it is difficult for the American legation to obtain news of the operations.

Drowns in Pickerel Lake.

St. Paul, June 3.—While trying to recover his fishing line, which had dropped from his hand, John Miklas, aged 13 years, was drowned in Pickerel lake, near this city, Sunday. His three companions made a desperate effort to save him, but were unsuccessful. The body was recovered three hours later.

Missouri Auto Law Upheld.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 3.—The Missouri supreme court has sustained the constitutionality of the Missouri automobile law, which requires drivers of automobiles to stop their cars and give assistance to persons they injure.

BOTH CONFIDENT IN HOTEL STRIKE

Employers Say It Is Broken and Waiters Say It Is Only Begun.

New York, June 3.—The strike of waiters and cooks for higher wages, shorter hours and union recognition entered upon its second week today with both strikers and employers claiming the victory. Of the two score hotels and restaurants affected, less than half a dozen had closed their dining room doors, and the remainder appeared to be fairly well equipped with strikebreakers. The hotel managers declared that the strike was broken; union leaders laughed at the statement and repeated their avowed intention of calling out the workers in every hotel and restaurant in the city.

"Before you know it," said Business Agent Elster of the workers' union, "hotel workers of every kind, including the firemen and even the chauffeurs in the street, will be with us. Before many days the hotels won't have any lights."

LOUIS EMIL DENFELD OF DULUTH DESCRIBED IN THE LUCKY BAG

(From The Herald Washington Bureau.)

Washington, June 3.—"A rough house kid with a happy-go-lucky disposition," is the description of Louis Emil Denfeld of Duluth, in this year's Lucky Bag, the official class publication of the graduating class at the Annapolis naval academy. Young Denfeld is among those who will leave the academy on next Friday, for a month's leave of absence which probably will be spent at his old home in Duluth.

This is the Lucky Bag description of young Denfeld, as written by his classmates who edited that publication:

"A rough-house kid with a happy-go-lucky disposition. Shows his Dutch ancestry occasionally, when somebody leads out his Angora, which is a bizarre and exceedingly wooly type. Lou seldom bones but always gets a 2.7 and sometimes a small margin. Often one of the boys. He is noted for his success as a fusser. Generous, oighearted, non-Reg., he is liked by every one.

"His relaxations are bridge and smoking. He grieves over the latter's effect on his health and beauty, however, and frequently swears off only to recommence for the sake of his disposition.

"Although he has lived four years with John Fox and with Nino, he is still almost sane.

"Well known in Washington as one of the greatest living toe dancers.

"Favorite drink—vinegar.

"Ycu should have seen us that morning in Berlin.

"Ph! Hook?"

There are some references in the biography which cannot be explained except by "Louis" and his associates, but there is the term "fusser," which can be explained readily. For the benefit of young Denfeld's friends in Duluth it may be explained that this in plain English means that he is a ladies' man.

State Treasurer Dahl of Wisconsin Would Be Congressman.

Madison, Wis., June 3.—Andrew H. Dahl, state treasurer, today formally announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for congress to represent the Seventh district. DOCTORS TO TALK OF HEALTH WORK

Federal Department Plan Will Be Discussed at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 3.—One of the principal subjects of the many that will come before the annual meeting of the American Medical association, which will open its convention here tomorrow, will be the proposed department of health in the federal government, with a seat in the president's cabinet for its head.

Hundreds of physicians from all parts of the United States, with a representative delegation from Europe, already are here for the preliminary meetings today and tonight. About twenty kindred societies will hold their annual sessions in connection with the parent organization. Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey is expected to be here tomorrow to welcome the physicians.

are usually the result of the wholesale preparation of some mothers' recipe or doctor's prescription which has been found especially successful in relieving the ailments for which it is prepared, and which has stood the test of time.

Such is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, originally prepared from roots and herbs for female ills by Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass. For nearly forty years it has proven a great benefactor to the women of America in relieving female diseases of every nature. Its wonderful success proves its merit.

MINNESOTA POLITICS

Candidates for Governor Will Be Forced to Carry Fight Direct to People—Eberhart at a Disadvantage—Democrats Alive This Year and Many Will Attend State Convention.

Gordon's Reply.

Minnesota will see a real campaign for the Republican nomination for governor this year. The prospect of the passage of a primary election law by the legislature only heightens the interest. A primary law will require the candidates to take their cause before the people. They probably would have done that anyway, but the primary law will give the people a more forcible say in the nomination than would the old system. Of course the people have an opportunity to express themselves at caucuses, but few avail themselves of the privilege.

Governor Eberhart's keynote statement started something. The governor went out of his way to attack Sam Gordon. When he charged the lieutenant governor with defeating reapportionment and the direct primary bill, he was stretching a point and he probably knew it. All is supposed to be considered fair in politics as in love and war and if the governor could get away with his charges against Mr. Gordon, nobody would be likely to claim that he took an unfair advantage.

Mr. Gordon's statement, issued at St. Paul yesterday, is a vigorous attack on the governor and will be given consideration by men who give some thought to politics. Governor Eberhart's administration has been an administration of mistakes from a political viewpoint. Mr. Gordon takes advantage of the governor's inclination to follow advice blindly, and makes out a good case.

One of the most serious mistakes made by the governor was his failure to take part in the governors' conference, and Mr. Gordon makes much of that. Governor Eberhart would have made himself solid with a great body of Progressives if he had shown himself in sympathy with the Minnesota rate case. His failure to take part in the governors' conference has already cost him votes and has laid him open to charges of railroad influence.

The candidates for governor will carry their fight to the people. The primary law will require that. The governor has given Mr. Lee and Mr. Gordon some good campaign arguments and they will not hesitate to use them. It looks to the man up a tree that the governor is at a serious disadvantage in a fight carried direct to the people. The organization might have pulled him through a convention, but in a primary election, he will be handicapped from a start. A victory would probably be as great a surprise to his backers as it would be to his opponents.

The Extra Session.

The opening of the extra session tomorrow is likely to see some excitement. The members of the legislature will not caucus until tonight, so the legislative program is still a matter for doubt. If they should decide on a short program and be bound to go through with it, the session would be robbed of much of its interest.

A good many of the legislators believe with Bob Dunn that the legislature should convene and then adjourn sine die. Of course nothing like that is likely to take place, but the feeling of those legislators who believe that way is an indication of the sentiment with which the governor's extra session call in itself is not so unpopular as the fact that the governor called it at this time when it is an embarrassment to the farmer legislators and when his own political fortunes were in jeopardy.

If the caucus should decide to open the gates for the introduction of all bills, a flood of legislation that is not necessary or advisable at this time may be expected. Many legislators would like to square themselves with the home folks by action at the special session and therein lies the greatest danger of a long session.

Democrats Are Alive.

The legislature convenes tomorrow and the committees will be busy for the next two or three days, so the Democratic members will probably have an opportunity to attend the state convention here.

The gathering here Thursday will be a notble one. The Democrats of the nation are alive this year. They believe it is a Democratic year and they want to take part of the pre-convention activity as well as in the campaign which will follow the nomination of the candidates for president.

The Democratic candidate for president has a good chance of election this year. The Demorats who take part in the nomination of the candidate, if he should be successfcl, will feel pretty well about it, so every Democrat who can command enough influence in his home county to be elected a delegate to the convetinon here will be on hand.

Harvey Grimmer of St. Cloud, the secretary of the state central committee, will arrive in the city Wednesday and will make his headquarters at the Lenox. He will receive credentials and issue the delegate badges there.

Tiff for Chairman.

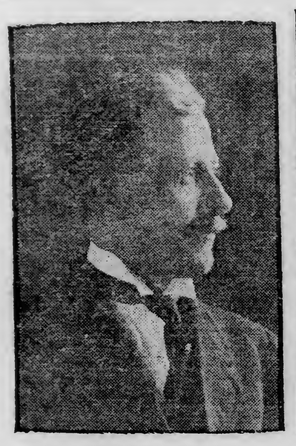

There is considerable speculation as to the chairman of the convention here. One rumor says that the Hennepin county delegation will propose M. C. Tiff for temporary chairman. J. M. Freeman of Olivia has been spoken of as permanent chairman. The Wilson men, who will be in control of the convention, will probably get together before the meeting and decide whom they will support, so as to avoid a contest.

NORWEGIAN-DANISH CONFERENCE ELECTS OFFICERS AND ADJOURNS

REV. EDWARD ERICKSON.

REV. JAMES SANAKER.

Rev. Edward Erickson, pastor of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street, was elected secretary of the Red River Valley district of Norwegian-Danish M. E. churches at the annual election of officers held at the First church last evening. The session last evening closed the annual district conference at the First church during the past week.

Rev. James Sanaker of Minneapolis, superintendent of the district, was elected president and Rev. Christian Olson of Hillsboro, N. D., treasurer. The next annual conference will be held at Hillsboro, N. D., the latter part of May, 1913.

The most important subject taken up yesterday at the closing sessions was the organization of a Home Missionary society, with the object of supporting the poorer churches in the district. In the past the poorer congregations have been taken care of through donations made by other churches. In the future this work will be systematized and a regular fund will be established in the district.

Most of the visiting pastors preached at local churches yesterday morning and afternoon. Rev. J. Forkeldson of Skien, Norway, preached at the First church at 10:30 o'clock and at 12 o'clock the following pastors spoke: Rev. E. Hanson of Ashland, Wis.; Rev. C. Christianson of Rugby, N. D., and Rev. Ole Rhorstaff of Grantsburg, Wis. Rev. K. Winberg of Virginia and Rev. Gustav Kvisgaard of Warren, Minn., addressed the Epworth league of the First church at 6 o'clock last evening. Rev. A. W. Rosness of Fergus Falls, Minn., and Rev. John Lorentz of Crookston, Minn., preached at 7:45 o'clock last evening. Rev. Mr. Thorkeldson also preached at the West Duluth church last evening.

LINCOLN GRADUATES GUESTS AT BANQUET.

The graduating class of the Lincoln school, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Fifth street, was tendered an honorary banquet Friday afternoon by the members of the seventh grade. The teachers of the school also attended the affair, which was entirely in charge of the Seventh grade class.

The dinner was served by the girls of the Seventh grade, while the boys of the class acted as guards and "policemen" about the hall and building. This was done to keep the many smaller boys of the neighborhood from interrupting the banquet. Following the dinner a program of toasts was enjoyed and the class day features of the graduating class introduced.

Daniel Bouman, president of the Eighth grade class, acted as toastmaster. Miss Myrtle Larson toasted the 1912 class and Miss Margaret Gorman gave a toast to the 1913 class. Miss Zera Wahl responded to "The Teachers;" Arthur Quade, "The Girls," and Miss Grace Lute, "The Boys." The class history was read by the Misses Ione Sensted, Margaret Jentoft, Mabel Johnson and Sheska Berg. The class prophecy was read by Alec Hammerstrom, Bruce Butchart, Roth Moe and Miss Pearl Deatherage.

The rooms and halls were beautifully decorated in the colors of the graduating class and the Seventh grade. The colors of the former class, maroon and old gold, were in the banquet room, while the red and green banners of the 1913 class were effectively displayed in the halls and class rooms. A five-course dinner was served under the supervision of the Eighth grade teachers, Misses Lucille Young and Ada Hawkes.

The members of the graduating class are:

Cora Amy Adelle Berquist, Mabel Eleanor Dahl, Pearl Nora Deatherage, Johanna Wilhelmina Ek, Olgo Emilia Erickson, Ione Vivian Fenstead, Esther Feyling, Ruth Victoria Fristedt, Clara Christina Gelin, Irene Elizabeth Higgins, Violetta Mertina Adella Heitsch, Ida Emilia Hjerpe, Mabel Louise Johnson, Esther Marie Johnson, Ruth Elizabeth Johnson, Eleanor Kmiecik, Amanda Louise Larson, Myrtle Olivia Larson, Grace Angeline Charlotte Lutz, Elsie May Matthews, Marion Irene McKeen, Signie Maria Nelson, Esther Victoria Rudberg, Elizabeth Gribble Swanstrom, Lizzie Otella Rood, Erick August Anderson, Daniel Mauritz Bauman, Adolph William Johnson, Alex Adelrod Hammerstrom, Elmer Gotthard Peterson, Arthur Julius Quade, Werner Matthew Strom, Agnar David Carlson, William Johnson, George Theodore Hesness, Sidney Grant McTaggart, Roy Emery Sandberg, Rose Myrtle Cheeseman, Edith Fae Gorton, Thora Andrea Hesness.

TESTIMONIAL CONCERT FOR MISS FRANCES BERG.

Miss Frances Berg will be tendered a testimonial concert Tuesday evening, June 11, at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Elizabeth Morton Dworshak will have charge of the program and a number of prominent soloists of Duluth will take part in the concert.

Miss Wally Heymar, Miss Catherine Morton, Miss Florence Hyland, Louis Dworshak, John Longton and George Suffel are among the artists who will be heard during the evening. Miss Berg is well known in this end of the city, having been educated at one of the West end schools and lived here since childhood.

SOCIALIST EDITOR WILL SPEAK HERE.

David Fulton Karsner of Minneapolis, managing editor of the Minnesota Socialist, will speak on "Freedom for All Mankind Through Socialism" tomorrow evening at Sloan's hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street. The meeting is under the direction of the West End Scandinavian Socialist club and is the first in Duluth preparatory to the coming presidential election this fall.

Mr. Karsner is one of the most interesting speakers on Socialism in this state. He has made an extensive study of the subject and his recent connections with the New York Call and the Chicago Daily Socialist have given him considerable insight into the subject. He started work when but 13 years old in one of the Chicago packing houses, later drifting into the newspaper work in which he spent seven years.

PROPERTY OWNERS WILL TALK PAVING.

The property owners on Second street from Twenty-first avenue to Vernon street will hold a special meeting tomorrow evening at the polling place, Twenty-eighth avenue west and First street.

It is proposed to pave Second street from the new cut-off at Twenty-first avenue west, over to Vernon street and then to Third street. This will provide a suitable highway for traffic bound for West Duluth. At the meeting special committees will be appointed to interview property owners, secure estimates and to bring the matter before the city council. Since the passing of the paving amendment early this spring a number of property owners have interested themselves in the movement.

"SATAN" SUBJECT OF A SERIES OF SERMONS.

Rev. J. A. McGaughey of the Second Presbyterian church, 1515 West Superior street, preached last evening on "His Origin," the first of a series of Sunday evening sermons on Satan. He said in part:

"Satan was first created by God as a powerful angel and was then known as the Anointed Cherub. At that time there were three great angels of the heavens, Gabriel, Michael and the Anointed Cherub. The two former angels still retain their places before God as they have been just and faithful to Him at all times. The Cherub, however, attempted to usurp the powers of the Creator and he fell from the heaven above to the regions below. It was then that he became Satan.

"In this event the order of creation again comes forth. In the Biblical order of events the angels were first created, then matter and lastly man and beast. The Satanic creation occurred at the fall of Cherub, who fell through chaos into the regions below. There is no other revelation given mankind and man can only work with the matter that was originally created. Nothing has been revealed since and so it is with the creation of Satan and the empire, over which he rules.

"God created Satan, not as the ruler of hell, but as an angel of heaven. He had made him one of the three most powerful angels, but his greed and jealousy for the complete control of the heavens caused him to forget his Maker. He attempted to usurp the powers and it was then that God interfered and cast him out of the heavens."

Next Sunday evening Rev. Mr. McGaughey will preach on "His Work," the second in the series of sermons on Satan.

BRYANT ALUMNI WILL HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET.

The Bryant Alumni association will ohld its annual banquet for the graduating class at the school assembly hall Tuesday evening, June 11. Percy Clarey will be toastmaster and Boyd Yergan, president of the association, will give the opening address of welcome.

During the evening the following program of toasts will be rendered: "The Bryant," Miss Lucille Gorby; "The Origin of the Alumni," Miss Clara Goodhand; and "The Old Times," Gaylord Halvorson. The program for the evening also includes a number of musical selections. The banquet will begin at 7 o'clock and will be attended by all the teachers of the school, the alumni association and the thirty-five members of the graduating class.

NOVEMBER 1904 FEBRUARY 1911

In 1904 Andrew C. Larsen of Sorenson & Larsen of Salt Lake City, Utah, was slowly dying of Bright's Disease. He was water-logged—having been tapped twice and the family physician told his partner that "It is as impossible for him to recover as it is to empty the ocean." His partner was advised to have him fix up his affairs. The treatment was changed to Fulton's Renal Compound. A few months later, March 31, 1905, patient was back to business, to the surprise of his physicians and everyone else.

As to permanence—we have been writing a few of these cases of several years ago on this point, and we have a line from Larsen dated February 9, 1911, from which we quote:

"Yours of February 6th to hand. I am in perfect health and haven't had a sick day for many years. The compound cured me and did it right."

How can physicians and hospitals look over these things and permit patients with kidney disease to die on Digitalis, Nitro Glycerine, Basham's Mixture, etc., under which failure is admitted by the books. We say this without qualification—if physicians who have kidney cases will add Fulton's Renal Compound to the heart, tonic and eliminative treatment they are already giving they will get results in a majority of cases in which failure is now the rule.

CONVENTION OF FINNISH SINGERS

Between 5,000 and 6,000 Expected to Attend Meeting in August.

The first annual reunion of the Finnish American Musical association of the United States will be held in Duluth on Aug. 2, 3 and 4 and is expected to bring between 5,000 and 6,000 people to the city.

Twenty-five choirs from all parts of the country and six bands, mostly from Michigan and Minnesota, will be in attendance. Singers will come from New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, California, Montana and other states.

A large delegation from Michigan is expected to attend this convention. It is understood that a boat will be chartered to bring the delegation to the Head of the Lakes.

The details of the convention are being worked out. On Aug. 2, the opening day, the delegates will meet and will hold a banquet in the evening. On the following day there will be a parade followed by a program of speeches and a concert at Lincoln park. In the evening a concert will be held at the Lyceum theater for the entertainment of the visitors.

At St. Paul's Episcopal church a meeting of the Sunday school commissioners will be held next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The work of the year will be reviewed and the annual reports will be made out.

KILL 300-POUND BEAR.

Willow River, Minn., June 3.—Steve Varvichek and John Dunalski killed a large black bear last week about half a mile north of the Ellson post office. The animal was first discovered in pursuit of one of John Dunalski's cows and when John interferred, bruin took after him. Not having a gun he hurried to Steve Varvichek's, who always has a rifle ready, and the two returned to the pasture where a little later Steve killed the brute. It weighed 300 pounds.

RAISE THE GROSS EARNINGS TAX.

The legislature meets tomorrow in extraordinary session, summoned for the purpose of passing a reapportionment law, a statewide primary law and a corrupt practices act.

All three of these measures should be passed, and the primary bill should by all means include a second choice provision to prevent the nomination of candidates favored only by a minority of the party.

But the legislature's activities should not be confined to these measures.

The scope of the work of the session should not be made too broad, or the session will be interminable and perhaps nothing will be accomplished.

But a session of the legislature at this time which failed to propose, for the people to act upon at the November election, an increase in the railroad gross earnings tax, would be a joke.

Unless action is taken now, two years will be lost because no change can be made in railroad taxes without the approval of the people, and there will not be another election until 1914.

The gain if the gross earnings tax is increased only to five per cent will be nearly two million dollars; and the loss will be that much if the legislature fails to act.

The people demand some relief from the intolerable situation under which in Minnesota, alone among Northwestern states, the passenger fare is three cents a mile. Perhaps no change in rates can be made unless the supreme court of the United States hands down a reversal of the Sanborn decision while the legislature is in session. But the legislature can increase railroad taxes nearer to a fair equality with other property; its right and its duty to do this are undeniable.

There are evidences that the forces close to the state administration which have opposed an extra session in the past are working actively to confine the work of the session to the three measures proposed by the governor, or to only two of them, omitting reapportionment.

It is for the legislature to say and to show whether these forces shall control its acts.

The natural division between measures that should be taken up at this session and those that should go over to the regular session seven months later is very clear and very logical.

Measures pertaining to the conduct of the election, like the statewide primary, corrupt practices and reapportionment, and measures that have to be passed upon by the people at the November election, like the increase in the gross earnings tax and the initiative, referendum and recall, should be taken up at the extra session.

All other measures, no matter how interesting or important, should go over to the regular session, which will come only a few months later.

If a definite line is not drawn, the bars will be down completely, and so many measures will come in that the session will be dragged out indefinitely, and the confusion will be so great that very likely nothing will be done.

But any line except the one suggested by The Herald is purely artificial.

And a line that would exclude the chance to gain two million dollars for the state by increasing the railroad gross earnings tax would make the extra session a travesty.

In Boston they say "Prevent the fly." Swat is not Bostonese, and the Boston flies all know it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Boston has the right idea, and it is not a matter wholly of rhetorical elegance or precision, either.

An ounce of prevention is worth a ton of swatting.

As The Herald said early in the season, the place to "swat the fly" is the place where he breeds by the billion—the foul places of filth and corruption which oughtn't to be left anyway, and which when left prove to be distributing centers, by way of the flies they breed, for countless disease germs.

Prevent the fly by blotting out these places, and there will be comparatively little swatting to do later.

Swatting, with the breeding places left untouched, is a hopeless, Sisyphean task. For one fly swatted to death, a million are born.

Boston's idea of prevention is the only remedy.

Of course if prevention is neglected, society must swat. It must keep the fly out of its homes and away from its food.

But the quicker the Boston idea is generally adopted in place of the "swat the fly" movement, the sooner the fly problem will be solved.

HURRAH FOR THE SUN!

The Herald is in receipt of Volume 1, Number 1, of The Seven States Sun, which boasts of being the only daily newspaper in the world actually printed on a railway train, and also the only one that has seven governors available as contributing editors. It is a sheet of two pages of seven columns each and is published on the Great Northern's "Seven States Special" which is carrying Minnesota men to the Pacific coast on their big trade extension trip. The Sun is essentially a booster organ, and is devoted to extolling the greatness of the Greater Northwest. And it does that to a turn. It is as interesting as it is unusual. It ought to be an effective factor in advertising the seven states it shines for—Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon. Here's to it! May its rays warm many spots now cold and fruitless through dark ignorance of the riches and possibilities and future of the Greater Northwest.

A Lost Opportunity.

The Democrats claim that the passage of the new cotton tariff would save the American people $80,000,000. That would give the coal magnates another fit because they didn't boost the price a little higher, with so much money lying around.

DULUTH'S "GLAD HAND" IS OUT.

Duluth's "glad hand" always is out to the newcomer, whether he be stranger or recognized friend, for to the stranger Duluth is eager to show her attractions and convince him of her present value to him and her future importance to the great inland empire; and to the friend she extends the sincerest of comradeship.

"We have with us tonight," to use the good old formula of our older brothers, one whose presence in Duluth is particularly welcome—President Pennington of the Soo line. Duluth welcomes President Pennington most heartily, accepting him as the greatest possible representative of a great railway system that has recognized the place Duluth and the Northwest must occupy in the nation's development. In the meeting tonight at which prominent men of the city and the visiting railway official will participate, the city, in a sense, will join hands with the railway in a yet clearer appreciation of a unity of interests already recognized. The city's attitude should be, not that of one asking or receiving favors, but of a party to an agreement looking to mutual benefit and development.

The Soo line already has done much toward the building up of the Northwest. It gives promise of doing much more. And with the help of Duluth it can develop a field of commerce and industry with incalculable possibilities. It is a task of common benefit, common interest, and it calls for common endeavor. Duluth recognizes the good will and the work done by its partner in the great work, and with that recognition extends most hearty and sincere welcome to President Pennington, and through him a cordial greeting to the organization which he represents.

Got to Them Hard.

Five hundred Wisconsin farmers have taken to planting alfalfa. It was a cinch that that alfalfa pancake story would bear fruit in some way or other.

RAILROAD TAXATION.

The suggestion that the legislature at the extra session ought to increase the railroad gross earnings tax may come in conflict with the growing sentiment that the gross earnings system should be abolished, and the taxation of railroads placed on the ad valorem basis.

But there should be no conflict, and there will be none.

The Herald believes that the gross earnings system should be abolished, and railroad property taxed by state authorities according to its value.

But it will take time and study to prepare the new machinery necessary for this change—more time than there will be available at the extra session.

Let the gross earnings tax be increased at the extra session, and then let the legislature at the regular session seven months later take up the work of restoring the ad valorem method of taxing railroad property. The measure it enacts can be presented to the people at the election in 1914, and in the meantime, if the gross earnings tax is increased, the state will be enjoying the larger revenues from the railroads.

Also, if by any chance the people reject in 1914 the proposal to adopt the ad valorem system of taxing railroads, the state will revert not to the present four per cent gross earnings tax, but to a five per cent tax or six per cent tax, as the legislature at the extra session shall judge to be best.

"FIVE MINUTES FOR MEMORIES."

It has been suggested that hereafter, on Memorial day, the people set apart five minutes of that day for memories that have kinship with the occasion.

That's a very pretty thought, and we'd like to see it carried out. It is to be hoped that this brief period of reflection will not be disturbed by automobile racing and other boisterous and dangerous merrymaking.

And if the idea is generally adopted, there is one subject we should like to see considered in those five minutes for memories.

We have thought much and done much honor to the "boys of '61," and we cannot do too much.

But why not give a little of our time and a little of our thought to the "girls of '61?"

They suffered, too, and they sacrificed. The nation owes much to its soldier heroes of the Civil war; it owes much, too, to the heroines who remained at home.

Isn't it time that the nation gave a little more thought to the wives who bore the burdens while their husbands went to war, to the mothers who gave their sons, to the sweethearts who gave their loved ones, to the noble women of war time who suffered and sacrificed that their men might save the nation?

"Five minutes for memories" is a fine slogan for Memorial day; and let some of the time, at least, be given to the wives and mothers and sweethearts of '61 to '65.

Apparently the greatest poll discoverer in the American primary is the big chief of Sagamore Hill.

Managers of Taft, Roosevelt and La Follette all are claiming that they have persuaded the South Dakotans that their particular man is the proper nominee. It only remains to learn what the South Dakotans themselves think on the matter.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

HELPING POOR KEEP THEMSELVES CLEAN.

To the Editor of The Herald:

One thing is yet needed very much to complete the accommodations at the poor farm. That is some one to trim the hair and shave the ones that are sick and too feeble to do it themselves, at least once a month. I have taken upon myself the past few years, to go out there every holiday to do this work and make glad the hearts of the real helpless ones by shaving them and cutting their hair, but as I am alone in my shop I cannot go as often as I would like to. I worked there all day Christmas, and when I came back on Labor day some of the most helpless ones had not had a shave or hair cut since. Now this is not right or human. One old man in one of the beds actually cried with gladness after I had shaved him and said in a feeble voice: "Jesus Christ will pay you." Now where there are two or more barbers in a shop some one may be induced to do this work say at least once a month for 25 cents a head. Since I have been doing it so long for nothing. Might this expense not be added to the county also. This is only my suggestion. May some others kindly do something or say a word to bring some results about.

A DULUTH BARBER.

Duluth, June 1.

HANDS BOUQUET TO HUMANE SOCIETY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

It is pleasing to note the splendid work being done by "The Humane Society of Duluth" under its efficient officer, Robert McKercher, and his able assistants in the rescuing of boys and girls from immoral surroundings, and placing them where they can be properly looked after and brought up in a moral atmosphere. Young girls are being snatched from the grasp of male parasites of humanity and the latter arrested and brought into the clutches of the law. Also think of the hundreds of cases during the late severe winter where some dumb horses have been blanketed and ordered blanketed, shod and in cases ordered off the street as unfit to work. What a blessing to the faithful horse that may unfortunately be driven by thoughtless and unhuman owners or teamsters that Duluth has such efficent and faithful humane officers. May the noble and splendid work of "The Duluth Humane Society" continue, is the wish of the writer.

Yours truly,

Duluth, June 3. R. M.

Ages of the Presidential Candidates.

In an article in the June American Magazine entitled "Our Next President and Some Others," the author, Ray Stannard Baker, presents the following facts:

"It is interesting to know that every one of the seven candidates, even including Roosevelt, has been admitted to the bar, and five of them have had successful careers in the law. Two have been judges. None of them is a business man, and no one, save Mr. Harmon, has had any considerable experience with business affairs, either large or small. No one of them is a rich man and though several of them, by virtue of their high talents, have been able at times to earn large incomes, they have all been hard workers. Two or three of them have been relatively poor men all their lives, living frugally and devoting themselves unreservedly to public work.

"All of the candidates, save Wilson, have had long experience in public office, and in dealing with public men and public questions. While most of them can be called able politicans, no one of them belongs to that extreme type known as a machine politician: a boss. There is to the credit of every one of them not a little sound public service.

"All of the seven, save possibly Harmon, are at the very prime of life for national leadership. These are their ages:

Underwood,	50 years old.
Roosevelt,	54 years old.
Taft,	55 years old.
Wilson,	56 years old.
La Follette,	57 years old.
Clark,	62 years old.
Harmon,	66 years old.

"It is also of curious interest than of important interest that most of the seven were born in states which have long been fertile in the production of presidents and presidential candidates. Wilson was born in Virginia, Clark and Underwood in Kentucky, Taft and Harmon in Ohio, and Roosevelt in New York. Only one candidate, La Follette, comes from what may be called a new presidential state."

How Blake does love the countryside!
He bought himself a farm,
To grow some cows and flowerets,
And soothe his soul to calm.
His youngest and their nurse lived there
And thrive on country fare.
But Blake tends stock in old New York,
The "lambs" are in his care.

How Blake does love the ocean shore!
'Tis music to his heart,
To hear the rolling waters,
To watch the boats depart;
How wife and daughters who are "out,"
At Newport colonize,
And Blake on brink of Nassau street
Can see the market rise.

How Blake does love the mountain views!
From lofty summit peaks,
Where sunrise thrill and sunset glow
To pensive spirit speaks,
His sons are camping in the hills
And spend the cash "sans thanks."
While Blake rakes in the greenbacks as Director of some banks.

For in these modern days, New York
Holds all—one need not roam.
Down at the moving picture shows,
Blake sees the ocean foam;
He sees the cows come down the lane,
The star rise o'er the range.
Don't pity the dear man at all—
He does not need a change!

A Youthful Fan.

Boston Traveler: The minds of the young idea are mostly taken up with the topic of the day—baseball, at present.

Tommy's mother was bouncing baby on her knee, muttering the usual fond foolish remarks, while Tommy was trying not to listen.

"O-oh, little wee petsy-wetsy!" chanted his mother. "Mumsy's and daddy's little darling! Um's precious, um is! Mumsy wouldn't sell oo for a hundred thousand dollars!"

"Oh, mother!" said Tommy reprovingly. "Why Pittsburg only paid $22,000 for Marty O'Toole!"

An Extravagant Comparison.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "There doesn't seem to be any hustle at all about that boy of Dascomb's."

"Hustle! Say, if there was any chance to fix up a race between Steve Dascomb and a glacier, I'd back the glacier."

THE EXTRA SESSION.

Hard on the Farmer.

Cuyuna Miner: The idea of calling the legislature in session now, is an absurdity. To begin with, the farmer legislator has more interest in his corn crop than in the political fortunes of Hon. A. O. Eberhart. Ed. will now have to try some other stunt.

Argument in Favor.

Albert Lea Tribune: The Duluth News Tribune, which stands for the Ed Smith organization, opposes the second and third choice provision of a primary election, and practically admits that with such a provision the governor or any choice of the machine would stand defeated before the people. It says that in demanding such provisions the rivals of the governor make open confession that they have no hope of being the plurality choice of their party. That may be true, and nothing against them either. On the other hand, in opposing the second and third choice propositions the organs of the Ed Smith combination virtually admit that the tool of the machine stands no possible show of securing a nomination.

The opposition ofthe machine is the best argument in favor of these propositions that we have seen.

Eberhart Is Scared.

Northome Record: You can make up your mind that Fortunatus Eberhart is scared stiff, or he never would have called the legislature in extra session.

Victory for The Herald.

Redwood Falls Gazette: The Duluth Herald has scored a victory.

And it has scored it for the people of the state. It was reserved for a Democratic publication to fight for the people in their demand for an extra session and the enactment of a state-wide primary.

The country press generally fell into line and worked for the readers. The Herald never faltered. Even after the governor said he would not call a session The Herald kept on the job.

The call just issued justifies that paper.

The Governor's Motive.

Breckenridge Gazette: Immediately following the close of the recent state Republican delegate convention Gov. A. O. Eberhart called an extra session of the legislature to meet June 10 to legislate on a state-wide primary, reapportionment and corrupt practices act. The call coming at the time it did and in the face of the governor's previous repeated refusal to call a special session and assertion that there was no demand for it causes us to speculate as to how the action of the convention affected him. Was it a revelation to him of the demands of the people, which he had till then failed to comprehend clearly, or did it give him inspiration to take the one last chance for political preservation? Time, we believe, will reveal the motive which prompted the call at this late hour, and in the meantime we hope the state-wide primary law to be enacted will provide for second choice.

Comes At Late Date.

Thief River Falls Times: Coming as it does, just at a time when the state is in a turmoil over the prospective results of the coming state campaign; coming at a time when his hopes for another term are at high ebb; coming at a time but a few months before a regular session should convene by law; coming at a time shortly after he has stated positively that there was no demand for an extra session, even though the people have clamored for it; and coming at a time when his political career is in the balance, the announcement of the governor's intention to call the legislators together is not taken with the best of grace throughout the state. Few of those legislators who a few months ago convened an extra session now stand ready to carry out the demands of their constituents, not because they went to be opposite, but because the session is called at a very inopportune time. Still it is better late than not at all, but by his delay, the governor has cost the state a considerable sum of money that would have come in from the railroad taxation; he has jeopardized his possibilities of again being the chief executive of the commonwealth, and he has carved out for himself a niche in the hall of fame that will soon be buried in the dust and hidden from view by the shadows of a setting sun.

Obvious Purpose.

Cass Lake Times: What the extra session should do:

Increase the railroad taxes.

Pass a state-wide primary law with a second choice provision.

Pass an equitable reapportionment bill.

Provide an effective corrupt practices act.

Submit constitutional amendments providing for the initiative, the referendum and the recall.—Duluth Herald.

All this and more, but when the extra session was called solely for one purpose, a purpose so obvious that one can see it in the dark, our faith in the ultimate good is sadly deficient.

Start a Back Yard Garden.

From Hanna Rion's "Let's Make a Flower Garden:" To start with, we found an old chicken yard on the place; and as we couldn't undertake chickens we removed the chicken houses and stored the lumber for the making of toolhouse and hotbed for the following spring, reserving one long stretch of the chicken wire for the support of sweet peas.

The rich soil of the former fowl yard made an ideal place to start our seed beds, and here we sowed in May blue ageratum, Marguerite carnations, cosmos, asters, marigolds, mignonette and pansies. We planted at each column of the front porch wild clematis found in a brush tangle near a brookside. The clematis is a long-legged vine which remains as bare about the knees as a Highlander, so we planted nasturtiums to cover the lower part of these vines; the sweet alyssum plants were invited to do the same favor for the nasturtiums, as they grew tall and were given to yellow leaves about the feet.

From the porch to the road the aforesaid hollyhocks were permitted to fulfill their prim mission by being placed in a straight row next to the walk. At their backs, adjoining the lawn, we placed alternate clumps of gilt iris and hardy phlox, with a generous sowing of opium poppies to insure midsummer gayety. Then we removed the few lonesome and purposeless shrubs dotted about the lawn to the other boundary of our grass plot, and by leaving an unbroken lawn we greatly improved the appearance of our frontage. To surround these shrubs and to keep them from feeling hurt, we made a long irregular bed, which ran between an apple and a cherry tree, holding a very indiscriminate lot of plants and a perfect kalleidoscope of color; we had not grown fastidious then and we wanted flowers, no matter whether they were intended for bedfellows or not.

Here California poppies, marigolds and calliopsis made a blaze of gold; cornflowers, larkspurs and ageratum equaled the sky in bluness; and phlox drummondi of every shade of salmon pink, white and red, were rivaled by the motley colors of the variegated pansy border. It was a beautiful chaos, and taught is much of the extent to which nature can combine colors without jarring the eye.

Twain and the Office Boy.

Tit-Bits: Mark Twain did not cherish a fondness for the average office boy. He had an idea that the genus was insufferable, and invariably when the humorist sallied forth into some business office there was immediate armed hostility between him and the boy.

One day Mark went to see a friend at his office, and the office boy on guard, in icy tones, said:

"Whom do you wish to see?"

Mark mentioned his friend's name.

"What do you want to see him about?" came next from the boy.

Mark Twain immediately froze up, and then with a genial smile he said:

"Tell him, please, I want to ask his hand in holy matrimony."

"HONI SOIT QUI MAL Y PENSE."

From "The Touchstone of Fortune," by Charles Major: Before reaching Gravesend we halted at a grassy spot near the river bank, when we ate our dinner. When the horses had rested we set off for Rochester, in which place we expected to spend the night at the Maid's Garter, a famous old inn kept by a friend of Pickering's.

I had noticed a twinkle in Pickering's eyes when he directed us to go to this tavern, but did not understand the cause of his merriment until I learned that by a curious old custom a maid seeking entrance for the first time must contribute one of her garters before being admitted. The worst feature of the usage was that the garter must be taken off at the door, and then and there presented to the porter, who received it on the point of his official staff.

After entering Rochester we went to the Maid's Garter and at once drove into the courtyard, as the custom is with travelers intending to remain all night.

When we left the coach and started to climb the steps to the great door, we found the landlord and his retinue waiting to receive us. Frances was in the lead, and when we reached the broad, flat stone in front of the door the head porter stepped before her, bowed, and asked humbly:

"Is my lady maid or madam?"

Frances looked up in surprise and he repeated his question.

"What is that to you, fellow?" asked Frances.

"It is this, my lady," returned the porter. "If my lady be a maid, she must pay me one of her garters as her admission fee to this inn. If she be madam, she enters free. It is a privilege conferred on the Maid's Garter by good St. Augustine when he was bishop of Canterbury, so long ago that the memory of man runneth not to the contrary."

"What nonsense is this?" asked Frances, turning to me, and Bettina asked the same question with her eyes. I explained the matter, and Frances, turning to the porter, said:

"I'll buy you off with a jacobus or a guinea."

"Not a hundred guineas would buy me off, my lady," answered the porter, bowing, "though I might say that a shilling usually goes with the garter."

"Well, I'll send you both the shilling and the garter from my room," said Frances, moving toward the inn door.

"The garter must be paid here, my lady. The shilling may be paid at any time," returned the porter, with polite insistence.

Frances was about to protest, but Betty, more in sympathy with the eccentric customs of inns, modestly lifted her skirts, untied her garter, and offered it to the porter, telling him very seriously:

"I am a maid."

The porter thanked her gravely, whereupon Frances, turning her back on the audience in the doorway, brought forth her garter, gave it to the porter, and we were admitted.

Our supper, beds and breakfast were all so good that they reconciled Frances and Bettina to the payment of the extraordinary admission fee, and when we left the next morning curiosity prompted them to pass near the garter rack in the tap room, where garters were hanging which had been taken from maids whose great granddaughters had become great grandmothers. The garters that had belonged to Frances and Bettina, being the latest contributions, hung at the bottom of the rack, neatly dated and labeled, and, as I left the room I overheard Bettina whisper to Frances:

"I'm glad mine was of silk."

We made a short drive to Maidstone, where we stopped over night. The next day a longer journey brought us to Canterbury, where we spent two nights and a day visiting the cathedral both by sunlight and moonlight; the combination of moonlight and Bettina being very trying to me.

The Child-World.

The Child-World—long and long since lost to view—a Fairy Paradise!
A Fairy Paradise!
How always fair it was and fresh and new—
How every affluent hour heaped heart and eyes
With treasures of surprise!

Enchantments tangle: The underbrink
Of dawns that launched the sight
Up seas of gold: The dewdrop on the pink,
With all the green earth in it and blue height
Of heavens infinite:

The liquid, dripping songs of orchard-birds—
The wee bass of the bees—
With lucent deeps of silence afterwards;
The gay, clandestine whisperings of breeze
And glad leaves of the trees.

I found you first sufficed
My soulmost need—if I found you again,
With all my childish dream so realized,

Eat Pie and Be Unafraid.

New York Times: More than once, moved by instinct and patriotism, we have ventured to defend the American pie from the ridicule of some of its many critics and from the condemnation of as many others. It is therefore with great joy that we find this product of American ingenuity and courage highly commended as a healthful and nutritious food by The New York Medical Journal.

Pie, says this high authority, is an admirable combination of fruit and carbohydrates, and the only real objection to it is that it is usually eaten by people who have already eaten enough. Were they to exercise foresight and self-control—were they to "leave a place for pie," instead of adding it as a superfluity to adequacy—never would there have arisen the existing prejudice from which it suffers, and the delights of pie would not be mitigated by fears of indigestion.

Properly chewed, according to The Journal, it is not at all indigestible, and in this respect it says that all pies are much alike. Flaky or soggy of crust, even a delicate stomach can take care of them, if it be not forced to do the work of the teeth. This is going far. The statement may be true, but it ought to be false, since it will encourage cooks to continue the making of pie, which, whatever else may be said in their favor, are not of high aesthetic quality.

The Journal thinks that the antagonism to pie is felt or pretended simply because foreigners don't make them, and we are afraid to be original. Our own explanation is that it has another basis—the Puritan theory that anything good is more or less sinful. The New Englanders have always eaten pie, three times a day, many of them, but they have done it with compunction and with a sense of yielding to temptation. Hence the legend that pie was injurious, though experience denied the charge.

The Medical Journal says that there is or may be a difference in value as food between the home-made pie and that of factory or foundry origin. There certainly is a difference in taste, though far from all home-made pies are even tolerable in that respect.

The Art of Conversation.

Frances E. Oliver in Harper's Bazar: In threading the maze of correct usage in the case of pronouns, we are lost because we fail to keep in mind the relationship between the pronoun and the verb. Whenever the pronoun of the first person is the subject of the verb, we should say, "I;" whenever it is the object or part of the object of the verb or a preposition we should say "me."

SUBJECT.

You and I will go.
Ho and I are friends.
Who rang the bell? I.
He is taller than I (am tall).
May John and I go home?
Mrs. B. and I went to town.

OBJECT.

This will please Mr. C. and me.
Between you and me, he is wrong.
Will you let John and me go?
It is for you and me.
Let you and me go to town.
Every one has gone except you and me.

The same distinction should be made between he and him, she and her; he and she are the correct forms for the subject, him and her for the object. After any form of the verb to be, however, we should use the subject form of the pronoun and say, "It is I; it is he; it is she; it is they."

We rise in the morning after a refreshing night's sleep and say that we feel good or grand. If the sun is shining we say that the weather is good or grand; if it is raining, the weather is bad. If many people come to the lecture, the attendance is good; if few come, the attendance is bad. Our clothes for special occasions are our good clothes. The dust on a country road in August is bad. We have a bad cold; if only we could have a good one! At the party we had a grand time. Mrs. A.'s gown was simply grand. If the hay field produces abundantly, we have a good crop. Your sick neighbor looks bad. Your pen doesn't write good.

You have got to buy a new hat. The man's hands began to get blistered. He has got to go home. We have got our lesson to get. You did not get to see them. We had not ourselves ready to go.

One feels like sending a literary detective to hunt down those who thus abuse these words and, having captured them, to shut them in a cell with a book of synonyms, a dictionary and Shakespeare's advice to "Mend your speech a little,

Lest it mar your fortunes."

Mr. Watterson's Bookkeeping.

Hearst's Magazine: Horace H. Lurton, associate justice of the United States supreme court, is sponsor for the following story:

A good many years ago, before the Courier-Journal had become the big daily that it now is, "Marse Henry" Watterson used to go to the cash drawer and take what money he needed, frequently forgetting to tell the cashier what he had drawn. The cashier finally complained to Mr. Haldeman, the business manager, that when Mr. Watterson failed to leave a memorandum of how much he had drawn, there was no way to balance the cash. Mr. Haldeman drew Mr. Watterson's attention to this point, and Marse Henry agreed to put a slip in the drawer whenever he took money from it.

About a week or two later Mr. Watterson went to the cash drawer and took what money he wanted. He then carefully made the following instructive memo: "All—H. W."

Generous Boy.

Judge: Little Harry's parents always kept a barrel of apples in the cellar. Not long ago they moved next door to an orphans' home. Shortly after moving, Harry's mother noticed that the apples disappeared with great rapidity.

"Harry," she asked one morning, "what is going on with our apples?"

"Mother," he replied, "I have to eat a great many apples."

"I am willing that you should have all the apples you want. But why do you eat so many lately?"

"Why, I have to eat a great many, 'cause the orphans want the cores."

L. R. CLARK PASSES AWAY

Well Known West Duluthian Succumbs to Bright's Disease.

Lou's Raymond Clark, 42 years old, of 5711 Huntington street, one of the most prominent Masons and business men in Duluth and a resident of west Duluth for the past fifteen years, died at 6:20 o'clock Saturday evening at the home of his father, M. M. Clark, lately deceased, 5608 West Eighth street. Mr. Clark had been sick for about a month and Bright's disease is given as the principal cause for his death.

He leaves a widow and four children. They are: Harry, Margaret, Edwin and Millicent. He was a past master of Euclid lodge, No. 198, A. F. & A. M., and a member of the Scottish Rite Masons. He was born in Garden City, Minn., in 1870, and moved to West Duluth in 1893 with his family. His father, M. M. Clark, died about ten days ago, during Mr. Clark's serious illness at St. Luke's hospital. He was taken to his father's home several days ago following a relapse.

Until a year ago, Mr. Clark was the cashier of the Western State bank, having served in that capacity for seven years. He resigned to engage in the real estate and insurance business with R. C. Weddell, under the name of Clark & Weddell. He was also one of the directors and organizers of the Citizens' State bank, which opened for the first time on May 1 of this year.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the West Duluth Masonic temple and will be held under the auspices of the Ionic lodge, of which the deceased was a past grand master. Rev. E. B. Collier will officiate and interment will be in Oneota cemetery.

NEW CHURCH FOR MIDWAY

The members of the congregation of the Midway Swedish Lutheran church will meet in the church parlors this evening to discuss a new building. Plans for the structure have already been drawn and these will be carefully gone over at the meeting this evening.

The building will have a frontage of thirty-two feet and will be sixty-four feet deep. The structure will have a full basement of concrete and the superstructure will be of brick. The plans also include provisions for a large auditorium to seat 400 people, school rooms, pastor's study and reception halls. The estimated cost of the building is $7,000.

The congregation now has a membership of about 120 adults and that many minors. The church is one of the strongest in the Minnesota conference and is at present in charge of Rev. J. A. Krantz, pastor of the Elim Swedish Lutheran church, Fifty-sixth avenue west and Elinor street. The church recently extended a call to C. W. Erickson, a theological student at St. Peter, Minn., to take charge of the church and the school work during this summer. He is expected to arrive some time this week to assume his new duties.

REAPPORTIONMENT IS INDORSED.

Resolutions indorsing the reapportionment bill were passed at the regular monthly meeting of the West Duluth Republican club held at the Commercial club Saturday evening. The resolutions also request the members of the legislature to work for the measure during the extra session, which convenes today. The resolutions have been forwarded to the local members of the state legislature.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY WILL GIVE BANQUET.

A banquet will be given Tuesday evening by the Dr. Bacon Missionary Society of the West Duluth Baptist church in the parlors of the church. The banquet is the outcome of a contest for membership between the Maroon and the Gold branches of the society.

The society was recently organized and had only ten members. As a result of the contest the society now has twenty-five members, the winning side having brought in eight and the other seven.

Those who will be present at the affair are: Maroons—Violet Siddell, Vivian Sayler, Katheryn Keyes, Callie Erickson, Evelyn MacDonald, Inga Johnson, Anna Balla, Fern Brooks, Hildekard Olin, Beatrice Drage, Marion Forbes, Jennie Hanson and Hazel Kent. Gold—Alta Jones, Ethel Little, Hattie Brown, Florence Hunt, Olive Stoeller, Anne Sidell, Ivadell Erickson, Lillian Huth, Ingaberg Olin, May McKay and Mrs. Arnold Johnson.

Reception for Pastor.

Preparations are being made by the women of the West Duluth Baptist church, Fifty-ninth avenue west and Grand avenue, for a reception to be tendered Rev. W. H. Stoughton, pastor of the church, Wednesday evening, by the congregation and its friends.

A program of music and addresses is being prepared, among the speakers being Rev. Allen Clark of the Plymouth Congregational church, Rev. W. L. Staub of the Westminster Presbyterian, Rev. W. H. Farrell of the Ashbury M. E. church, Rev. E. B. Collier of the Holy Apostles Episcopal church, Rev. C. W. Emery of the Merritt Memorial, Rev. Milton Fish of the Central Baptist church and Rev. R. E. Sayles of the First Baptist church.

The church will be decorated for the occasion and a luncheon will be served by the ladies of the church following the reception. Those in charge are: Mrs. George Little, Mrs. T. B. Jones, and Mrs. M. A. Allen.

Longfellows Win.

The Longfellow team defeated the Fairmonts Sunday by a score of 10 to 6, and would like to meet any amateur team in the city, especially the Proctor Juniors or the Gustafsons. Games can be arranged by calling up Tony Maleski, captan, Calumet 76-L, or Cole 120-A. The lineup of Sunday's game was:

BURGLARS BUSY AT HEAD OF LAKES

The report of the detective bureau of the local police department shows that burglars are busy in and about Duluth.

Fifteen arrests were made under this head during the past thirty days.

Property valued at $3,567 was stolen during the month. Of the entire amount stolen, $2,286 worth was recovered by the police department.

Safe blowers got away with $550 at New Duluth last week. They are still at large and there is small chance of getting them, say the police.

BREWING COMPANY BEING TRIED IN U. S. COURT.

Fargo, N. D. June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The John Gund Brewing company is being tried in the United States court here this afternoon, charged with selling beer at both retail and wholesale on bills of lading at Dickinson. The action is something of the nature of a test case, as that form of beer sales has been under a ban.

Rheumatics No Longer Dread Changeable Weather

The prescription, "Nurito," free from Opiates and Narcotics, found to be the antidote to uric acid, gives remarkable results, almost immediate relief and an absolute, quick cure to rheumatic sufferers. This is now testified to by many Duluth sufferers, and what is better than home testimony?

If you have Rheumatism, Sciatica or Neuritis, be assured that you will get rid of it or your money will be refunded. "Nurito" will banish all aches and pains, limber up those sore and inflamed joints and muscles. Go to The Boyce Drug Store or Lyceum Pharmacy and get a $1 box of "Nurito," the prescription that produces results.

You can feel it working.

PIPE SETS FIRE TO PRISONER'S DRESS

One of the prisoners in police court this afternoon caught fire.

The prisoner was Lizzie Thompson, who is well known to the police, but who has not been arrested for more than a year. She had been smoking a pipe when called to go into court and stuffed it into her pocket. The coals set fire to her dress and the smoke caught the attention of the judge. Court attaches helped extinguish the smudge.

FARM SPECIAL WORKING NORTH

Leaves Bemidji and Will Spend Monday Night at Blackduck.

Bemidji, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.) — At noon today the agricultural special train continued toward the north after having been here since Saturday evening. The train stops this afternoon at Tenstrike and will remain over night at Blackduck. Sunday was spent by the soil experts in a tour around Bemidji in autos, furnished by the Commercial club and the visitors were surprised at the agricultural developments in this vicinity. So much interest was manifested by the visitors here in the train, exhibits and lectures that the departure had to be delayed several minutes.

The train is made up of eight cars, one filled with Percheron and Clydesdale horses, Holstein and Guernsey cattle and blooded hogs. A poultry car, containing also incubator with broods hatching, eggs and market devices, a machinery car, an express car for storage, two lecture cars and business cars. There is an increase over the original train, the unexpected popularity making the additional cars necessary.

Experts on Cars.

The train is under control of De Willard, development agent of the Northern Pacific and it has on it now the following men who lecture to farmers: F. H. Scribner, dairyman of the United States agricultural department at Washington; R. M. Washburn, professor of dairies, University of Minnesota; O. M. Olson, soils, state university; A. B. Hostetter, marketing expert of the Duluth Commercial club; C. E. Brown, poultryman, state expert farm, Crookston; N. E. Chapman, poultryman, University of Minnesota; W. H. Tomhave, livestock expert, University of Minnesota; C. Q. Welsh, statistician university; J. A. Uye, farm paper editor, St. Paul; H. J. Maxfield, commissioner of immigration; W. R. Mackenzie, secretary of the Northern Minnesota Development association. W. H. Gimmel, general manager of the Minnesota & International railway; W. P. Dyer, superintendent of Bemidji schools and Otto Bergh professor of agriculture, Bemidji high school.

Tonight these will join the train: Thomas Shaw, forage crop expert, St. Paul; A. J. McGuire, superintendent northeast experiment station at Grand Rapids, Minn.; F. M. Merrill, expert of the federal department of agriculture located at Grafton, N. D. The train will finish its Minnesota trip on Thursday at International Falls.

HORSE RUNS AWAY; PAIR BADLY HURT

Motor Dashing Along Narrow Road Blamed for Near Tragedy.

Brainerd, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.—Crowded off a 25-foot embankment near the bridge at the power house in Deerwood, by a seven-passenger touring car, Charles Blomen and wife were dashed to the ground below when their horse backed down to get out of the way of the car.

Blomen had his skull fractured, and his wife is badly injured. The road is very narrow at this point; only permitting room for one vehicle. The car never stopped in its course.

The team of Frank Thiens, a Daggett Brook farmer dashed into the buggy driven by two St. Benedictine sisters, Sisters Hyacinthe and Joan of St. Joseph's hospital of Brainerd, and demolished their carriage to splinters. They were taken from the wreckage unharmed.

CLOQUET BEATS PROCTOR.

Slabtown Artists Win Game Played During Rain.

Cloquet, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cloquet defeated the fast Proctor team here yesterday by a score of 7 to 5. The locals bunched hits in the second and fourth and scored enough runs to win the game. The game was played in a drizzling rain which somewhat hindered the playing on both sides. Score: R. H. E.
Proctor .....000 410 000—5 8 4
Cloquet .....040 300 00x—7 6 3
Batteries—Hughes and Schaffer; Bonneville and McKenna. Umpire—Davis.

WISCONSIN OARSMEN WANT WESTERN REGATTA.

Madison, Wis., June 3.—Agitation for a Western regatta is being renewed by students of the University of Wisconsin this year. Near Prairie Du Chien, Wis., there is a broad, quiet stretch of the Mississippi river, offering a straight course several miles in length. Along the banks runs a double railroad track over which observation trains holding 4,000 people could be run in much the same way as it is done at Poughkeepsie. This is an important advantage, it is claimed, inasmuch as greater crowds would be interested and organized rooting would be a possibility.

The one important detail which has been lacking has been a crew to race with Wisconsin, which is the only university in the Middle West to maintain one.

Will Postpone Cases.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The cases against Winnipeg and Grand Forks baseball players will be called this afternoon, but will be continued until Wednesday or Thursday. Violation of the Sunday laws is charged.

MOTORCYCLIST KILLED.

Collides With Fast Going Automobile Near Ulen, Minn.

Ulen, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Holman, riding on a motor cycle, collided with an auto driven by Henry Trier near here this morning and was instantly killed. Both were going at a high rate of speed. The deceased was about 21.

YOUNG MEN FORFEIT BAIL; GIRL JAILED; OTHER FINED.

Robert Jaynes and Roy Richards forfeited $15 bail rather than appear in court this morning.

The girls who were arrested with them did not fare so easily. Mary Bonds got a jail sentence of thirty days, and Margaret Young, who claims to be a telephone operator at Lakeside, paid a fine of $12.

They were arrested at the St. James hotel late Saturday night.

John Hill paid a fine of $22 and Hilja Suoja was sent to jail for twenty days. They were arrested at the Nicollet hotel Saturday night. The woman has been in police court before.

Let the Bridal Corset Be a W. B.

The corset is the very foundation of a costume, and it is of utmost importance that brides should have the advantage of the exactly suitable corset, because once that is chosen, the work of the dressmaker to produce attractive becoming effects becomes merely mechanical.

For those who have well developed or stout figures—the W. B. Reduso Corsets are exceptionally desirable. They reduce the abdomen and hips from 1 to 5 inches without the use of straps or harness-like contrivances of any sort. We show these W. B. Reduso Corsets at $3.00 to $5.00. They are especially desirable for summer wear as the steels are proof against perspiration and will not rust or discolor the corset.

Other excellent W. B. models at $1.00 to $10.00.

Woman's Realm

The home coming of the college students from the various schools and colleges all over the country is of general interest to the younger people and to parents and friends, and soon the social life of the city will be taken up with parties of all kinds planned by and for the young people home for their vacations.

The students from here who have been studying at the University of Minnesota during this past year will be coming home in a few days. Some will arrive Wednesday and every day will bring home more of them. Among the Duluth students there this year are:

Misses Ethelwynn Phelps, Gladys Lenning, Jessie Reed, Gladys Segog, Myrna Presnell, Nellie McFadden, Dorothy Davis, Ethel Quinn, Gonska; Messrs. Archie Glass, Harvard Rockwell, Harold Cant, Lawrence Jaques, Leonard Mellugh, Lawrence Boyle, Phillip Petrier, John Jenswold, Jr., Morrison Harris and Sam Gingold.

Miss Jennie McLeod, who has been studying at National Park seminary, will be home tomorrow to spend the vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. J. McLeod, of Hunter's Park.

Miss Marguerite Culkin, who graduates this year at Vassar college, and Miss Dorothy Peck, Miss Annabelle Dunning and Miss Hazel Levin, who also attend that school, will all be home about June 15.

Willard Matter, who has been studying at Oberlin college, will be home about June 20.

Misses Mildred Washburn and Della Smith, who graduate from Wellesley this year, will return soon after June 15, but Miss Katherine Denfeld, who is also a graduate there this year, will visit in the East until the last of July.

Miss Ruth Neimeyer, who was a freshman there, will visit in Cleveland after leaving school and will be home the last of this month.

Miss Marjorie Shipherd and Miss Esther Coffin, who have been attending Wells college, are expected about June 15 to spend the summer here.

Miss Marion Williamson, James Wharton and Roger Spencer, who have been studying at Ann Arbor, Mich., this year, will be home about June 20.

Miss Elecy Cole, who has been at Burnham at Northampton studying and Fred Cole, who is at Harvard, are expected about June 14 to spend the vacation with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Cole of 1701 East First street.

Miss Jean Gibson, who is studying at Burnham, Northampton, will be home about June 15.

Miss Dorothy Baker returned Saturday from Boston, where she has been studying and will spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Baker of Lakeside.

Miss Edith Dight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dight, is expected home the last of this week from Graham Hall in Minneapolis.

Miss Marie Merrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Merrill, who has been studying at Miss May's school in Boston, will be home about June 10 and will bring with her three guests who will spend the summer here—Miss Katherine Hill, daughter of the former ambassador to Germany; Miss Penelope King, daughter of Basil King, and her cousin, Miss Lizzie Clark King of Saginaw, Mich.

One of the members of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, a personal friend of Mr. Erdtman's, will appear and he is arranging with other Minneapolis artists to assist.

SACRED CONCERT.

Church Choir Will Give Program.

A sacred concert will be given Wednesday evening by the choir of the First Swedish Lutheran church, Sixth avenue east and First street, at the church. A cantata, "The Great Light," will be a special feature of the concert, sung by Miss Gladys Reynolds, soprano; Miss Esther Wipson, contralto; Edwin Wipson, tenor, and Horace Brown, bass. The program for the evening follows:

Invocation, Rev. Carl O. Swo; "Praise Ye the Mighty God," chorus, bass solo and duets; "Every Valley Shall Be Exalted," soprano and bass solos and chorus; "Behold, a Virgin Shall Conceive," tenor recitative; "Brightest and Best," tenor and soprano solos, quartet and chorus; "Calm on the Listening Ear," contralto solo, quartet and chorus; "Arise, Shine for the Light Is Come," chorus and soprano solo; "Light of the World," ladies' octette; "He Knows It All," ladies' octette; "O Sacred Head," chorus; "The Crucifixion," bass recitative and chorus; "Slowly the Daylight Is Fading," chorus; "Easter Dawn," tenor solo and quartet; "Christ Is Risen," chorus, bass and soprano solos; "Crown Him With Many Crowns," ladies' octette, bass and soprano solos; "The Heavens Declare," chorus, bass solo and quartet; "All Hail the Power," (grand canon) chorus.

SECOND RECITAL.

Pupils of Mrs. D. H. Day Will Play.

Pupils of Mrs. D. H Day will appear in a piano recital this evening at the Y. W. C. A. This is the second of a series which Mrs. Day has arranged and the program will commence at 8:15 sharp. The numbers are interesting and the evening should prove a pleasant one. Miss Wally Heymar, violinist, and Miss Alice Mae Brown, contralto, will assist the pupils and anyone interested is cordially invited. The program will be as follows:

"Modern Philanthropy" Will Be Subject at Regular Meeting.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union of West Duluth will hold its regular meeting Thursday afternoon, June 6, at the home of Mrs. T. J. McKeon, 213 South Seventeenth avenue east.

"Modern Philanthropy" will be the subject for the afternoon, with Mrs. I. T. Swangle as leader. Courtenay Dinwiddie will speak on the subjects, as will also Miss Katherine A. King, principal of the Bryant school. The work at the Boys' and Girls' club in West Duluth, which is conducted by the W. C. T. U., will be discussed.

SPRING FESTIVAL.

Soloists Praised by Noted Critic.

The two concerts given recently at South Bend, Ind., by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra were reviewed for the South Bend Times and News by Chas. E. Watt, the distinguished writer on musical subjects and editor of Music News, the well known Chicago musical paper. Mr. Watt has often expressed his high opinion of Mr. Oberhoffer and the orchestra in the columns of his weekly magazine, but this is the first time he had an opportunity to hear the orchestra in one of its spring tour concerts or the four vocal soloists who accompany the orchestra throughout the entire trip. In view of the approaching concert by the orchestra here on Friday and Saturday at the Lyceum it is highly interesting to read Mr. Watt's opinion of Joseph Schenke and Horatio Connell, two artists who will make their first appearance in Duluth at these concerts:

"Joseph Schenke, the Cincinnati tenor, made his initial appearance in this city at this concert and impressed at once with the dignity of his bearing, the beauty of his voice and the brilliance with which he manipulates it. The splendid 'Lend Me Your Aid' from 'Queen of Sheba' was the medium employed for the exploitation of his powers and it was filled with intelligence of conception as well as beauty of vocalism. Mr. Schenke has a dramatic tenor of splendid volume and great carrying power. Never has the Auditorium resounded with more vital voice. . . . In the Prayer from Mozart's 'Magic Flute' Mr. Connell showed a tonal quality which was superb and his manipulation of the German text was a joy indeed. He has presence, poise, musicianship and great beauty of voice, a combination which places him in the very front rank of American baritones, and the beauty of his work yesterday was such that no one hearing it will be apt to forget it soon and he will hereafter take his place as one of the favorites in South Bend."

The sale of seats for the festival opened this morning at the Lyceum, and during the day there was a steady demand for all three concerts.

PREACHES TO GRADUATES

Rev. J. C. Farries Delivers Baccalaurete Sermon at Normal School.

About fifty graduates of the Duluth state normal school listened to an eloquent commencement sermon delivered yesterday afternoon at the school by Rev. J. C. Farios of the Glen Avon Presbyterian church. A larger audience of friends and relatives of the graduates, as well as those interested in the school attended this meeting, which was the opening exercise of the week's program of commencement exercises.

The alumnae banquet which was served Saturday evening at Torrence hall proved a delightful function, well attended by former graduates of the school. An interesting program of speeches was given and music by the Normal Glee club was enjoyed.

The officers elected by the Alumnae association at this meeting were: President, Miss Lillian Olsen; secretary, Miss Florence McKay; and treasurer, Miss Marion Brown.

The training department of the normal will have its final exercises tomorrow afternoon for which an interesting program has been prepared in which the little folks in the grades will take part.

Councils' O. K.

"The Coming of Columbus," a moving picture drama which will be shown at the Odeum June 6 to 9, is a film of especial educational value and the Woman's Council which always indorses anything of educational value has been asked for its assistance in making this subject of the value it should be in the city. Co-operation between the theaters and the council and the amusement committee in particular, has proved of advantage, and the council members are glad of an opportunity to further the educational interests.

Benefit Social.

Court Phoenix of No. 14 U. O. F. will give a benefit social this evening at Foresters' hall, Fourth avenue west and First street.

Church Meetings.

The Philathea class of the First Presbyterian church will hold its monthly business meeting this evening at 8 o'clock at the church parlor. After the business hour a social session will be held.

"Votes for Mother."

Topeka, Kan., June 3.—Toy balloons bearing the picture of a young boy carrying a banner upon which is inscribed "Votes for mother," will be used by the women of Kansas who are working to see equal suffrage triumph in this state during the rest of the present campaign. Mrs. Charles Clark of Kansas City, Kan., is the originator of the idea. The balloon is to be eighteen inches in diameter and of yellow paper. These will be turned loose at every fair and carnival in the state.

LADIES' NIGHT.

Brotherhood of Pilgrim Church Will Have Supper.

The Brotherhood of the Pilgrim Congregational church will have a "Ladies' Night" tomorrow evening at the church. A supper will be served at 6:30 o'clock at which Wilson G. Crosby will be the speaker. The wives and friends of the members will be entertained at this meeting which promises to be most attractive.

BENEFIT CONCERT.

Sigurd Erdtman Will Go Abroad and Will Sing Here June 20.

Sigurd Erdtman, the young Swedish tenor, whose voice has delighted so many here this season, will leave in August to spend a year abroad studying music.

Ernest Lachmund and other musicians who believe in Mr. Erdtman's future, have persuaded him to give a benefit concert here on June 20.

Committees from eight organizations for which he has sung have been appointed to help advertise the concert

Finest Art Exhibit Duluth Ever Saw Will Open Thursday

Dulthians are awaiting with interest the opening of the art exhibit at the courthouse on Thursday evening, of this week, which will give them a chance to see one of the finest collections of art of all kinds ever displayed in this city.

Through the efforts of the Duluth Art association this exhibit has been arranged for with the Minnesota Art society. The rooms in the courthouse, which will be given up to the display, will be open from 10 o'clock in the morning to 10 o'clock in the evening of every week day for ten days and on Sunday afternoons so that everyone will have a chance to see all of the exhibit.

It is absolutely free and open to all men, women and children and those in charge hope that there will be a big crowd there every session.

Paintings, including masterpieces; works by Minnesota painters, including three by C. C. Rosenkranz of this city and three by David Ericson; pieces of sculpture, artistic photographs, water color and oil pictures by students of the St. Paul Art institute; lace work by the women of New Ulm; baskets, pottery, painted china, woodcarving, tooled leather, book plates and other arts and crafts work will all be included in the exhibit as well as loan exhibits of rare books and bindings, lace collections and a lace and embroidery exhibit loaned by Queen Margherita of Italy.

A Minnesota industrial exhibit will include art applied to state resources, including flax, Red Wing clay, wrought iron handicraft, Mankato stone, Kasota stone, processes for stained glass windows, lace in process of making and plaster reliefs.

City planning and civic art, designs for districts, gardens, cities, etc., will interest many and etchings, pencil sketches and architectural plans will be shown. A case of minatures will be of general interest and much valuable jewelry is also among the articles on exhibit.

This is a big opportunity for the visiting of a fine display and interest is already high in the coming exhibit.

The exhibits are being put in place today.

High School Preparing for Class Day and Commencement

Class day and commencement day are the two big events of the graduation exercises of the Central high school and the members of the Senior class are making active preparations to make both of these programs to be given at the exercises noteworthy.

A. F. M. Custance and Prof. DeWitt C. Sprague have arranged the programs, Mr. Custance having charge of all the music for both nights and Mr. Sprague has trained the graduates who will take part on the commencement program.

Class songs and school songs, good natured raillery among the various classes, and class yells will have their place on the class night program on Wednesday evening, June 12, at the high school auditorium. A musical sketch, "Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before," arranged by Mr. Custance will also be a feature of this program. It deals with the possibilities of the commission form of government and is a forecast of what might happen in this city under commission rule. The following will fill this cast: Dorothy Gibson, mayor; Dorothy Jones, secretary; Marion Ingalls, treasurer; Helen Benson, chief of police; Mildred Prudden, Alta Hallock, Dorothy Pierce and Merna Newell, heads of the various departments under the new regime. In addition to the principals there will be a chorus of suffragettes, a body of ex-aldermen and a group of disappointed office seekers.

Robert Mars, president of the class, will speak.

Commencement Night.

Mr. Custance's "Alma Mater" will be sung on commencement night and the valedictory will be sung following the reading of essays by the following graduates:

Mary Anderson, "Are the Colleges of Today Preparing Girls for Practical Life?" Andrew Johnson, "The Rebirth of China." Mildred Prudden, "Prison Labor: Its Menace to the United States." Mildred Sherwood, "The Panama Canal: Its Aid to American Commerce." Fred Weinberg, "The Fourth Estate: A Consideration of the Power of the Press—Its Use and Abuse."

The class of graduates will be presented to Superintendent R. E. Denfeld for their diplomas by Principal Leonard Young and Mr. Denfeld will deliver the baccalaureate address.

Junior-Senior Ball.

The junior-senior ball, the biggest social event of the school year, will be given Thursday evening, June 13, at the Masonic temple.

"Grizzly Bear" Dance Is Stopped at Boat Club Hop

"Thou shalt not dance the Grizzly Bear, the Bunny Hug or any other of the much criticised dances," is one of the commandments of the boat club.

A statement to this effect was made Saturday evening at the main house of the club when several of the younger couples started in to execute the first named dance. Capt. Dan Mahoney, on behalf of the club, stopped the dance and stated that such dances would not be tolerated at any of the club houses, as it had always been the aim of the club to keep its standards up to the highest, and that members would have to respect this and keep out all disagreeable features.

A large number of the club members attended this opening dance of the season at both the main house and at Oatka branch and enjoyed the reopening of the club for the season. The electric power at the main house was cut off for some time so that many left early, although the dancing was resumed when the lights were again turned on.

THE EVENING STORY

THE RESURRECTION OF PETER TRIPP

By Phillip Biggs.

The story here told is true in all but the names I have given to the characters, and there are still people in the North of England who remember old Peggy Burden (as I call her) and the sweetheart whom she found again, so strangely, after forty years.

They remember Peggy, not many years ago as an old, old woman, well past 80 (though she had forgotten the year of her birth), and still a woman of sound mind and activity. It is true that she was hard of hearing, but if one raised one's voice pretty close to her she seldom mistook the meaning of the words, and her eyes were almost as bright as when she was a girl and the beauty of the black town when the colliers called her "Pretty Peg." All her beauty had gone now, except the bright old eyes of hers, and her face was as wrinkled as a crab apple, and her back was bent with the burden of her years.

But in the grey gown and a black woolen shawl and a little mob cap with a white frill she was a clean old body, and she kept her cottage—one of the six almshouses "for poor and deserving women over 60 years of age"—as neat as a bandbox. It was her great pleasure in life to invite children to tea with her, and they were not loth to go for she made cakes for them, and told stories of her childhood—a very long time ago when she was a little romp with tousled hair. To the elder girls she would also tell tales of the days when she went courting with Peter Tripp and with her trembling old hand she would point to an old photograph in a frame from which the gilding had long worn off, and say, "There he is, my deaires, just as he used to look in his Sunday clothes before he was taken from me." She was quite cheerful about the great tragedy of her life when Peter was "taken" from her—it was all such a long time ago—but sometimes the tears used to trickle down her old cheeks when to her special favorites she would open the bottom drawer of an old chest which with its contents she had kept with her as her own permanent possession and greatest treasure. Here, in the bottom drawer, folded up in tissue paper, and scented with sprigs of lavender, were a flowered muslin frock and a little bonnet trimmed with marigolds and a white silk petticoat. She would take out the frock and stroke it with her gnarled old hands, and say, "I was to wear this on my wedding day—but Peter went away the day before, and so it has never been worn."

Few people would have remembered how Peter went away—she never spoke of him as having died—if it had not been for Peggy's tale of their sweethearting. Because she was the last of her generation. Her brothers and sisters, her old playmates, her lovers, had all gone, and she was left alone, with a younger generation who used to call her "mother" and "Old Peggy."

At 20 years of age Peggy Bruden was a wild young creature, with a sharp tongue, a pair of roving roguish eyes, and a quick hand. Many young men, sturdy collier lads, were "daft" on her, but she had her own way with any boy who attempted liberties. Many a young fellow who had tried to snatch a kiss had gone home with a stinging face, and the other girls of her age, not so particular, said that Peggy was a bit too hoity toity, and wanted taking down a bit. "She will find her match some day," they said, and they were right.

It was when Peter Tripp came along. He was a stranger in the town, and came from Lancashire. He was 21 when he first met Peggy, and 22 when they fixed the wedding day. He was a tall, hulking lad—six foot two in his stocking feet—and with a square,

WHAT? LEAVE PETE BEHIND? HARDLY —By C. L. SHERMAN

ADVICE BY LEADING FISHERMEN ON HANDLING ANGLEWORMS AND FISH

St. Paul, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fishing experts in St. Paul will not agree with Agassiz, the great Boston naturalist, that it is best to boil fish-worms before using them for bait. Neither will they coincide in his belief that fish should be knocked in the head as soon as taken from the water, to properly preserve them. Such methods might have done in the old days, they say, but improved systems and hygiene now demand more humane treatment.

Archie M. Hayes, chief clerk to Governor Eberhart, who once caught a rock bass in the river near Hastings, and who, ever since, has been long on "Best Advise to Fishermen," approves the following:

"Never," he said, "never wantonly kill an angle worm by boiling. It's fearfully cruel. For many years I've had better success with a different method. This is it:

"Place the angleworm carefully between the thumb and index finger. Scrape its side free from all dirt. Then, just back of the fifth rib, inject hypodermically, a half-ounce of cocaine intermixed with one quart of prussic acid. The cocaine will deaden the pain and the acid will deaden the fish. Fine!

"In the case of fish, killing them outright or allowing them to die out of water, is 'crewel! crewel!' No one should murder a fish. Remember, it may have had a mother of its own, and funerals in fish families always are tiring. 'Tis a great deal better to take a baseball bat and a toothpick with you when you fish. Fasten one end of the bat up with the toothpick and drop your fish in the boat beside it. Then, if the fish in flopping around kicks the toothpick out from under the bat and gets killed—Well, it's not your fault."

Henry W. Shadle of the Pittsburg Coal company, from his sick bed in the Aberdeen, advised that a rope be tied about the neck of each angleworm and that you then run around a couple of blocks, thus dragging the worm to death. "They're so slick and limber," Mr. Shadle said.

"What about killing fish?" he was asked.

"Drown 'em!" Mr. Shadle replied promptly. "Grasp the fish by the upper left-hand fin and hold him in the water till he croaks. When he croaks, that's a sign he's had enough and it's the fish's way of saying 'Goodby, old head, goodby!'"

H. J. Maxfield, state commissioner of immigration, advises reading the Democratic campaign book to the fish. "That'll kill 'em," he said.

H. A. Riden, executive agent of the state game and fish commission, thinks the fish should be guillotined, unmercifully. He doesn't believe, however, that death applied immediately after the fish are taken from the water improves them either "palatably" or morally.

"Besides, it's hard on the fish," he said. "They can't stand it. Many have been known to die, when guillotined. Most fish like to have their heads on when ambling around either in he boat, or in the water. As to angleworms, I have no recommendation. Broiled angleworms ought to be just as good as boiled angleworms. I'll say this much, however, that if that Eastern scientist comes to Minnesota and tries any of those boiled angleworms on our fish out here, he won't get very far."

THE HOMECROFT CORNER

(A committee of the Duluth Homecroft society has agreed to take charge of The Herald's home garden column on Mondays. The scope of the column will be enlarged to take in all homecroft pursuits, but the garden talks will be continued. It is proposed to tell what should be done each week in the garden. This week a general article on planting has been prepared. —The Editor.)

Hints For Gardening.

Ground must be well drained, otherwise no good results can be expected. This is especially true as to clay ground.

The ground must then be well worked through, if clay, not too soon after a rain, as this makes it tough and hard. Rotted manure should then be worked in, if obtainable.

The best implements to do this work on new, or comparatively new land, are the digging fork and pronged hoe, followed by the rake.

The soil, however, must not be loose around the planted seeds or roots of plants. This lets in the air and the seeds or plant-roots dry out. When planting either seeds or plants the hoe or preferably the foot should be used to make the soil thoroughly firm. In planting plants the earth should be packed with the fingers around the roots, leaving no vacant places, and when the roots are covered so that stamping will not injure the roots, the earth should then be firmly pressed down with the foot.

In planting peas, beans and corn it is a good thing to press them with the foot after they are planted and before they are covered, then again when they are covered. After the planting is done the top should be lightly raked over, leaving the surface loose. In other words, the surface, inch or so, should always be kept loose to prevent the water rising by capillary attraction and evaporating, but it should be firm and solid around the seeds or roots to keep out air and to allow the water to rise from the sub-soil by capillary attraction.

All through the season, until about the middle of July, shortly after each rain and about once a week, if possible, the ground should be gone over with a hoe or rake to keep the surface loose. The way to keep down weeds is to keep the surface stirred so that they get started and then turned up to the sun and air while still small and tender.

This loose surface is called a dust mulch and prevents evaporation.

Peas.

Soil for peas should be worked up thoroughly with the hoe, and they should be planted in double rows about eight inches apart. Make these furrows with a hoe and scatter so that the peas will lie about one inch apart. Cover with from two to three inches of well pulverized soil, being sure to press soil firmly over seed either with the feet or back of hoe. If more are wanted, make double rows about three feet apart. Get Nott's Excelsior or American Wonder. Loosen surface soil as soon as peas appear above ground.

Potatoes.

Cut your seed potatoes so that each piece has from two to three eyes. Make your rows three feet apart and plant your pieces fifteen inches apart in the row, using only one piece in each place. Cover about three inches in depth. Average yield, thirty hills to the bushel.

Corn and Beans.

Corn and beans can be planted at any time now if your soil is loose and easily worked.

Beans should be planted in rows three feet apart and from one and a half to two inches deep. Plant so that beans will be about three inches apart. Better plant thicker and thin out later. Surface soil should be thoroughly loosened about plants as soon as they are up, and kept so during entire season. Burpee's New Kidney is a good variety for this section.

Corn should be planted in rows at least three feet apart. The hills should be about fifteen inches apart in the row. Put about six kernels in each hill and cover with fine soil, being careful not to get too deep—one-half inch is deep enough in most soils. Press the soil down firmly over kernels when you plant, but stir the top soil gently as soon as the sprouts are well above ground. If you want corn to smile at you and flourish, hoe frequently. Varieties: Peep o' Day and Golden Bantam. The later varieties will not mature in this climate.

Radish, Carrots, Beets.

Plant in rows twelve inches apart and cover with earth from a quarter to a half inch in depth. Put in seed enough for a good stand and thin out afterward where too thick. Lettuce seed should be just nicely under the ground.

WILL DRIVE 5,000 MILES.

Kansas Doctor and Wife and Daughter Start on Year's Journey.

Kansas City, Kan., June 3.—In a wagon so ingeniously constructed that it may be easily converted into a "diner," "sleeper" or "dressing room," Dr. Oscar P. Blatchley, a retired physician of Kansas City, Kan., with his wife and daughter, have started on a 5,000-mile drive that will take the travelers from here to Vermont, thence down the Atlantic coast to Florida, and then back home. It will require a year to make the journey as planned.

Dr. Blatchley, who built the wagon himself, said the trip, besides being for pleasure, was to give his 12-year-old daughter practical knowledge of botany, geology, geography and photography.

The route includes Des Moines, Chicago, Niagara Falls, New York and St. Albans, Vt., the latter place being Dr. Blatchley's birthplace. The two horses with which the start was made, are expected to make the entire trip. Dr. Blatchley formerly lived at Plano, Ill.

HOUSE MAY REFUSE TO REPEAL RECIPROCITY.

Washington, June 3.—Democratic members of the ways and means committee have considered the senate amendment to the metal tariff bill to repeal the Canadian reciprocity act. While they took no action, the general opinion is that the house will stand by Canadian reciprocity and disagree to its repeal.

Webster's White Liniment for Athletes

ITS stimulating and lubricating medicinal oils stimulate the circulation of the blood when rubbed thoroughly into the pores of the skin. Keeps your muscles supple and your whole body lithe and limber. Relieves soreness, stiffness and lameness. By causing a free flow of blood to the affected part it helps Nature to wash away the accumulations of body poisons and mineral deposits, which cause muscular rheumatism, lame back, gout, stiff neck, swellings, discolorations, stiff joints, sprains, cramp, neuralgia, bites of insects, etc., giving almost instant relief.

Webster's White Liniment is pure, clean, non-irritating. Its ingredients are selected with exacting carefulness as to their purity and strength, and scientifically compounded by experienced pharmacists.

In twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles. Your money refunded if you are not satisfied with results after a fair trial.

Under the Webster trade-mark and guaranty are sold sixty different articles, including effective remedies for all such human ailments as do not require a doctor—household remedies that should be in the medicine cabinet of every family—also pure toilet preparations.

Your druggist has them or can get them for you.

FOUR AIRMEN GO TO DEATH

Phil Parmalee, One of the Best Wright Men, Is Victim.

Crushed in Fall of 400 Feet —Three Fatalities in Europe.

North Yakima, Wash., June 3.—Struck by a sudden gust of wind, the aeroplane of Phillip O. Parmalee, one of the best Wright aviators, turned turtle while 400 feet in the air here late Saturday and crashed to the ground, plunging Parmalee to instant death. The accident occurred in plain view of sveral thousand spectators at the fairgrounds.

Parmalee had been aloft three minutes and had traveled but three miles from the fairgrounds when a sudden gust of wind struck the tail of his machine and overturned it. Parmalee's mechanician rushed to the scene of the accident in an automobile, but did not reach Parmalee for fifteen minutes after the accident. Parmalee was dead when he arrived.

Phil Parmalee held the American record for weight carrying, made at Chicago, Aug. 19, 1911, when he went aloft in a Wright biplane carrying 458 pounds. Parmalee arrived in Seattle two weeks ago from Los Angeles. With Clifford Turpin and E. D. Morton, a parachute jumper, they opened a two days' meet Wednesday.

Thursday Turpin's machine ran into the grandstand, killing two persons and injuring a score. Phillip Parmalee proceeded to North Yakima to fly.

One of the youngest aviators in the game, Parmalee had already tired of flying and said that after the Chicago meet he would retire from the game for good.

Turpin Out of the Game.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 3.—J. Clifford Turpin, who, while making a flight at Seattle last Thursday, met with an accident resulting in the death of two spectators, will retire permanently from the flying game, according to a telegram which he sent from North Yakima, Wash., to his brother, Joseph Turpin, of this city. Aviator Turpin is now on his way to St. Johns, Mich., with the body of Phil Parmalee, who was killed Saturday at North Yakima.

Two Germans Killed.

Bremen, Germany, June 3.—Albert Buchstaetter, one of the best known German aviators, and his passenger, Lieut. Stille of the German army, were killed Sunday when their monoplane plunged to the ground just after starting on the northwest aviation circuit of 524 miles.

The monoplane, guided by Buchstaetter, rose and was taking a curve preparatory to straightening out for the long journey when the accident occurred. Apparently the aviator overbanked his machine. The monoplane dropped so heavily that it was half buried in the earth and had to be taken apart before the bodies of the two men could be extricated.

Fifteen professional aviators, with members of the army aviation corps as passengers, had entered the contest, but after the accident the flight was abandoned. The calamity was witnessed by a distinguished gathering, among which was the Grand Duke of Oldenburg.

Buchstaetter was an experienced aviator who made several notable flights during 1911.

Fatality in France.

Paris, June 3.—Aviator Colidardeau was seriously hurt and M. Roby, his passenger, was killed when the aeroplane in which they were making a flight at Juvisy aviation field fell from a height of 500 feet.

MRS. QUINN ACQUITTED OF KILLING HUSBAND.

Chicago, June 3.—Mrs. Jane Quinn, accused of shooting and killing her third husband, John M. Quinn, last December, was found not guilty by a jury before Criminal Court Judge Kersten. The jury deliberated less than three hours before returning the verdict acquitting the woman, who testified that her husband was killed by a burglar.

LORIMER ON WAY TO WASHINGTON

Will Be Present When Attempt to Oust Him Is Made.

Chicago, June 3.—Senator William Lorimer left for Washington over the Pennsylvania line Sunday afternoon. He expects to be in the senate when Senator Kern begins his address. Friends of Senator Lorimer relterated their statement that he positively will not resign. The senator declined to discuss any phase of his case.

The senator was accompanied by William J. Cooke, who, according to his statement, will act as body guard and nurse to Mr. Lorimer.

"It will be my job," said Cooke, "to make him go to bed when he gets tired and to keep people from annoying him—say such as certain kinds of newspaper reporters."

Cooke said Senator Lorimer's condition still was poor, but that he intended to fight out the battle with his opponents in the senate.

However, it isn't the thought of being ousted from the senate that makes him feel poorly," said Cooke, "as he feels that he will not be expelled."

Only a few of the senator's friends knew he intended to leave Sunday. At his residence the inevitable reply to inquiries as to when he intended to depart for Washington had been that he had not decided on a date. Two minutes before time for the train to depart, the Lorimer automobile dashed up to the station, Senator Lorimer and his two sons hurried through the station without stopping, and the senator boarded the train.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

TRAIN WILL TOUR STATE

North Dakota Farmers Will Also Have N. P. Farming Special.

Three Weeks Will Be Spent Arousing Farmers of Neighboring State.

Fargo, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The most elaborate attempt to give the farmers of the state object lessons on improved farming will be the Northern Pacific Better Farming train, which is to put in three weeks on the main line and branches of this state. The work will be under the supervision of T. A. Hoverstad, director of the farmers' institute work of North Dakota and an able corps of assistants.

There will be a full train. One car will be devoted to poultry, showing incubators, brood pens, patent yards, egg traps and models of poultry houses.

There will be a livestock car showing types of draft horses, cattle of beef and dairy types, hogs and sheep, with instructions as to type, care and feeding.

The veterinary exhibit will occupy a car and special emphasis will be placed on how to prevent and treat animal diseases.

Some of the Exhibits.

There will be agronomy and pure seed exhibits, plant disease exhibits, home economics, chemistry and horticultural cars, on all of which will be experts in their various departments. Lectures will be given on all at the different stations. Programs will be issued and the public can take in whichever lecture is desired.

The cars and the operation is done by the Northern Pacific. The farmers' institute board provides the men and each town at which stops are made furnishes $50 for current expenses, as Governor Burke vetoed the appropriation for the farmers' institute work.

President Worst and Dean Shepperd of the agricultural college will be along to assist Director Hoverstad.

COMES FOR RIFLE AND IS ARRESTED

Alleged Slayer of Beltrami Man Captured at Baudette.

Baudette, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sheriff Hazen came here from Bemidji yesterday and returned south with Charles Swanland, who was arrested here Saturday by Village Marshal J. L. Donahue for killing his neighbor, David Vickstrom, near Kelliher, presumably through jealousy. Swanland is said to have admitted the killing, claiming he made a "mistake." He told his wife, before leaving home, that he had killed a woodchuck.

After killing Vickstrom, Swanland fled across the swamps of Northern Beltrami county. He was reported to have been here about two weeks ago, a man answering his description having left a rifle and packsack at the saloon of Charles Miller. Swanland came Saturday to get his rifle or to get $5 on it. Mr. Miller, recognizing him at once, notified Marshal Donahue, who made the arrest. He offered no resistance as he was taken into custody, but remarked that it was a wonder that the authorities had not gotten him long before, as he had been in the employ of the E. A. Engler Lumber company of this place for the past two weeks. Mr. Miller and Marshal Donahue will divide the $400 reward offered for Swanland's arrest.

BEMIDJI IS SUNDAY HOST TO BOOSTERS

Northern Pacific Farm Special Experts Shown Beltrami County Seat.

Bemidji, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bemidji was host yesterday to the Northern Pacific farm special which arrived here Saturday evening and spent yesterday seeing the sights of this locality on both land and water. Motor boat trips on the lake and automobile trips to farms in this locality were taken by the experts today.

Welcomed at Walker.

Walker, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fully 500 people met the agricultural special as it arrived here at noon, Saturday, at the largest gathering of farmers ever seen at the county seat of Cass county.

The Leech Lake band heralded the coming of the train and the visitors were given a rousing welcome. All the coaches were crowded to hear the lectures and the speakers on dairying and grasses who were flooded with inquiries from interested listeners.

Prof. Shaw in his talk on alfalfa growing, made a big impression among the farmers of this territory. As this section is particularly adapted to the growing of grasses it is predicted that Prof. Shaw's talk will be the means of a marked increase in the growth of alfalfa all over the county. The farmers who met the train at Backus, in this county, showed the same keen interest that was in evidence at Walker. Progressive farmers in this vicinity state that this agricultural train will be productive of a tremendous amount of good in this part of the state.

Pine River Greets Visitors.

Pine River, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Over 800 people were out at this point Saturday to greet the special and the train stopped from 2:30 in the afternoon until 9:40 p. m. The Pine River band welcomed the visitors and gave two open air concerts during the afternoon and evening. The evening session was given in Opera hall which was overtaxed to hold the large crowd in attendance. During the afternoon lectures were held in three cars and in the Opera hall with many people on the streets unable to get to hear the speakers. The speakers, and others connected with the train, were served with a sumptuous pike dinner at the Barclay, each guest having before him a two-pound pike, and all the "trimmings."

STATE LAWYERS HONOR MORGAN

North Dakota Bar Association Pays Tribute to Dead Jurist.

Bismarck, N. D., June 3. — The North Dakota State Bar association held a memorial service Saturday at the capitol in honor of Former Chief Justice David E. Morgan of the North Dakota supreme court.

President Greene of the North Dakota Bar association presided and dwelt in brief on the character and qualites so much admired in the deceased. Former Justice Ellsworth of the supreme court in a masterful address then spoke on the justice, truth and honor of Judge Morgan.

James W. Foley touched the deepest feelings of the assembled multitude with a beautiful poem.

Governor Burke Speaks.

Judge Carmody and Attorney General Miller delivered short eulogies and Governor Burke spoke for three-quarters of an hour in one of the most eloquent tributes ever delivered in North Dakota.

Judge N. C. Young of Fargo introduced a motion to appoint a committee of five from the North Dakota Bar association, with Attorney Greene, as president, to prepare suitable memorials for Judge Morgan. The motion then carried. Attorney Knauf of Jamestown introduced a resolution to have the president appoint a committee of three to make arrangements for the members of the bar association to erect a monument at Devils Lake in honor of the dead judge. The motion carried.

FOR GOOD ROADS WORK.

Automobilists of La Moure County Organize Club.

LaMoure, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new force in good roads work in LaMoure county has been launched, the LaMoure County Automobile club. Automobile clubs organized in the state up to the present time have nearly all been local in their nature, but LaMoure autoists believe that better results can be obtained through wider organization. They will conduct a county-wide campaign for better roads. The officers are: President, J. H. Stoutenberg, Edgeley; vice president, H. D. Bloss, Dickey; secretary, W. H. Hutchinson; treasurer, R. M. Crichton, Verona.

DELEGATES CHOSEN

To Represent North Dakota Republican League at Chicago.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 3.—The North Dakota Republican league met here and named the delegates to the national Republican club league, which will meet in Chicago at the same time as the Republican convention.

The representation from this state will include four debaters from each congressional district and six delegates at large. The delegates follow:

Delegates at Large—J. W. Jackson, Williston; Robert G. Patterson, Fargo; E. C. Cooper, Fargo; S. M. Ferris, Dickinson; Harley S. Grover, Lisbon; George B. Denison, Cando.

First District—W. J. Robinson, Wahpeton; J. D. McKenzie, Forman; Fred L. Goodman, Grand Forks; H. M. Johnson, Lankin.

Second District — A. D. Grant, Jamestown; E. J. Wanner, Valley City; W. H. Pray, Valley City.

Third District—L. J. Palda, Minot; Wellington Irish, Mott; Robert D. Beery, Mott; T. H. Poole, Bismarck.

The delegates will meet at the Congress hotel on Michigan avenue on the morning of June 18 and will at that time choose the officers for the convention.

ELLENDALE, N. D., COMMENCEMENT

Six Days to Be Devoted to State Normal Industrial School Event.

Ellendale, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Six days of commencement festivities will open here Saturday evening, June 8, when the juniors of the state normal industrial school will give the seniors their annual reception and banquet. Sunday evening the baccalaureate will be preached at the opera house by Rev. Dr. Knowlton of Fargo and Monday evening at the same place the annual school oratorical and declamation contest will take place.

Tuesday there will be the annual Alphian reception at Dacotah hall at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and the annual musical concert in the evening. Wednesday evening the class play, "The Rose of Plymouth Town," will be presented at the opera house. Thursday morning the commencement program will be given, Wesley C. McDowell of Marion delivering the commencement address. Thursday evening the president's reception will be held at Dacotah hall and Friday evening the Alumni association give a reception for the graduates.

WANLESS FINISHES JOB.

Duluthian Lays Intake Pipe for Marquette, Mich.

Marquette, Mich., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Contractor John E. Wanless of Duluth has completed the laying of the new intake for the water supply of Marquette. The pipe has been ready for several days, but a perfectly calm sea was necessary for the attaching of the clover leaf and Mr. Wanless has been waiting his chance.

F. L. Durocher of the Soo, the engineer engaged by the water board to look over the work last fall when trouble occurred over the inspection, donned diving suit and inspected every foot of the pipe from the intake to the short joint.

He pronuced the job O. K. and the intake in the best possible shape; stating in a report made to the mayor that the intake is placed where the bottom is clean rock, with no sediment or vegetable growth of any kind and that the clover leaf lifts the intake nine feet from the bottom, having the water come from a depth of sixty-seven feet The pipe extension is about 3,300 feet, but owing to a curve in the pipe the actual distance from the shore is 2,800 feet.

The completion of the intake marks the finish of the most important city undertaking of several years. The total cost, not lnuding the cleaning of the old intake, which is still in controversy between Contractor Wanless and the city, was approximately $60,000.

WILLIAMS COUNTY, N. D., COMMISSIONER CONVICTED.

Williston, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Guilty as charged was the verdict returned by a district court jury in the case against C. C. Borstad, county commissioner. The verdict presages his removal from office unless his appeal to the supreme court results in a reversal. Borstad and other members of the board were accused of failing to discharge the duties of their offices in proper manner. Some time ago a trial of three commissioners was held jointly, the jury disagreeing.

FORMER NORTH DAKOTA OUTLAW IS CONVICTED.

Williston, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bob Miller, once a notorious outlaw, with Northwestern North Dakota and Eastern Montana as his scene of operations, was convicted at Fresno, Cal., of an automobile robbery, and faces a term of from one to fifteen years in the California penitentiary. Records of Williams county depicting Miller's operations here were used in the California trial. He was charged with forcing an entrance to a garage and taking a mchine out.

Warren Burglar Not Taken.

Warren, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The burglar who broke into Gust Wickman's and the Pioneer Land company's offices last week, taking the contents of the two safes, amounting to a little over $100 in money and some notes and mortgages, has not yet been caught, although he has been looked for in Winnipeg. Suspicion pointed to a man who had been working as chaufeeur for both Wickman and the Pioneer company, and who left for Winnipeg, where a man of his description had been seen later.

La Follette Men Against Root.

Madison, Wis., June 3.—Governor Francis McGovern of Wisconsin, chairman of the Wisconsin delegation to the Republican national convention, in a telegram yesterday answering an appeal by William Barnes, Jr., of New York, refused the support of Wisconsin for Senator Elihu Root as temporary chairman of the convention. Governor McGovern said Senator Root represented "political views and methods that should not be sanctioned at the Chicago convention" and that Root's election would invite defeat in November.

North Dakota Banker Killed.

Krem, N. D., June 3.—Louis Charf, cashier of the Citizens' bank, met instant death by a crowbar while helping to hoist rock. The remains were taken to Mr. Charf's home at Canby, Minn., where the funeral took place Sunday.

Houghton — Capt. Fred Rogers and Engineer Peter Gagnon have gone to Chicago to take charge of the handsome steam yacht purchased during the past winter by Allen F. Rees. They will bring her to Houghton as soon as she is fitted out.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Fond du Lac—The marriage of Donald Ross Mihills of this city, and Miss Minnie May Schneider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Schneider, took place Saturday at the home of the bride's parents in Marshall Minn. Mr. Mihills and his bride will make their home at Elm Grove, near Marshall where the groom is managing his father's farm of 840 acres.

Madison—George Morrison, owner of a large farm in New South Wales, Australia, visited the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin to study methods of corn and potato culture. A large amount of pedigreed grain has been sent to Australia from Wisconsin, which has favorably impressed the Australians.

Eau Claire—The new "pay-as-you-enter" cars for the city trolley lines are expected to arrive this week. They will be placed on the main line from the Northwestern depot to Shawtown.

Ashland—The railroad rate commission of Wisconsin has set aside Monday, July 1, as the day for the hearing in the Ashland Water company case. The hearing will probably be held at the city hall.

Portage—The annual convention of the Wisconsin rural carriers closed here Friday by electing the following officers: President, W. G. Arles, Sturgeon Bay; vice president, Miss Edna K. Fuller, Merrimac; secretary, E. L. Demarest, Waupaca; treasurer, C. C. Granger, Sheboygan Falls; organizer, W. W. Morse, Baraboo; sergeant-at-arms, A. D. Larson, Sheridan; executive board, G. Bollenbeck, Beaver Dam; George Hiller, Janesville.

Chippewa Falls — Lightning struck and instantly killed John Nunke, aged 65, in his barnyard, six miles north of this city, Friday. It also killed a team of horses that he was driving. A wife and ten children survive.

Madson — William Freudenfeld of Dodgeville, wanted in the eastern district of Wisconsin for alleged misuse of mails, was arrested by Deputy Marshal W. H. Appleby and brought to Madison. He is charged with rendering account by postal card to a Milwaukee man. Freudenfeld some time ago was fined 1 cent by Judge K. M. Landis, Chicago, for a similar offense.

Milwaukee—Alfred C. Ryan, 28 years old, switchman, charged with the theft of diamonds and jewelry valued at $2,000 from the room of G. J. Wareham, 249 Wisconsin street, on May 25, was given a hearing in district court and had his case adjourned to June 14. Bail was fixed at $2,500, in default of which he was taken to the county jail.

Madison—Country pastors of Wisconsin and surrounding states will hold their third annual summer school of religion at the university farm July 15 to 26, under the auspices of the University Pastors' Association Secretaries alliance.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

International Falls—The Northern Pacific is now making a round trip rate to this city of $13, the return portion being good until late in the fall.

Roseau—County Auditor Bertilrud conducted the sale of state land for Roseau county on Monday. Although the attendance was not very large, about 1,000 acres were sold, mostly to local people.

Pine River—Jenkins will celebrate the Fourth again this year in its usual thorough fashion. The committee on arrangements is already busy making plans for the biggest and best celebration ever held in the village and no pains or expense will be spared.

East Grand Forks—The sandstone blocks, with which DeMers avenue will be paved, are being placed today. The work of laying the blocks was started on the bridge end of the avenue and is progressing rapidly.

Fasston—Ole A. Pedrson, a well known resident of Eden, died last week of heart failure, following an attack of pneumonia. The deceased was about 42 years of age and leaves a wife and family.

Roseau—Chris Hurd and Hans Christianson of Nereson report the disappearance of Hans Halverson, one of their neighbors, who left his home about May 17. He is a bachelor about 40 years old and in the early days was a stage driver between Roseau and Stephen.

Brainerd — Miss Amy Lowey left Brainerd on Thursday for a tour of Europe, which will consume a year's time. She will leave New York on a French liner. She will also visit her niece, Miss Blanquita Firth, now attending one of the prominent schools on the continent.

St. Cloud—The county has received $300 from the National Surety company in payment as a forfeiture of the bonds of Hans Goth. Goth was charged with passing obscene reading matter to a young girl. Soon after he was released on bond he disappeared.

Little Falls—The upper railroad bridge was so badly damaged Thursday afternoon by a badly loaded car of logging trucks that the Brainerd and M. & I. trains are forced to use the old east side main line and reach the depot by the lower bridge. The bridge was damaged about 1 p. m. when a freight pulled in from Brainerd.

Blackduck—The jury impanneled to try the case against Charles Sherberg, who was charged with violating the law which forbids Sunday shows, brought in a verdict of "not guilty." The trial was held before Justice Oberg.

Mankato—Emil Saenger of Nicollet county came to the city Friday and inquired about his brother, William. He interviewed Attorney C. L. Benedict in the hope that he would know something about him. He said that his brother, William, shipped some goods to Marcell in the northern part of the state, and that he intended to follow, to make his home there.

Stillwater—R. L. Ray died Thursday at Anoka, aged 39 years. Deceased was married to Jennie Holquist of this city eight years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Ray formerly lived at Paynesville, Minn. Surviving are the widow, parents, brothers and sisters, living at Lancaster, Ky. The remains were brought here and the funeral held Sunday.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D. — W. J. Price of the Fargo Plumbing & Heating company has returned from a Winnipeg business trip where he succeeded in landing seven good contracts.

Buttzville, N. D. — Buttzville entertained about 1,500 citizens of Ransom county Friday afternoon in the largest picnic that was ever held in this section of the state. Pioneers and new residents from every corner of the county were in attendance.

Esmond, N. D. — The State Bank of Baker has been incorporated to do business at the new town of Baker on the Drake-Fordville line of the Soo in Benson county. It has a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are George F. Orde of Minneapolis and E. Beissbarth and A. J. Scobba, both of Brinsmade, N. D.

Fargo, N. D. — John Keeble, an Indian from the Fort Totten reservation, pleaded not guilty to the charge of introducing liquor on an Indian allotment in the United States court. Keeble was committed to jail until his trial is called. The offense with which he is charged is said to have been committed about a year ago.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Charles Sauers, formerly of this city, now located in Fargo, was last week found guilty of forging the signature of his purported wife to an international money order received from Norway. The defendant denied the charge and said he had never received such an order, but a witness called positively identified him.

Fargo, N. D. — Robert M. Pollock will second the nemination of Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin for president at the national Republican convention at Chicago. Pollock is the president of the North Dakota Progressive Republican league in North Dakota and which was largely responsible for his victory.

Bismarck, N. D. — Thirty-seven farmers and business men have been delegated by the Missouri Slope Development league to represent that organization to be held in Seattle in June.

Langdon, N. D. — Judge Kneeshaw will open district court at Langdon on Wednesday, June 12. The criminal calendar contains eighteen cases, fourteen of which are blind-pig cases. Most of these cases have been continued from preceding terms of court.

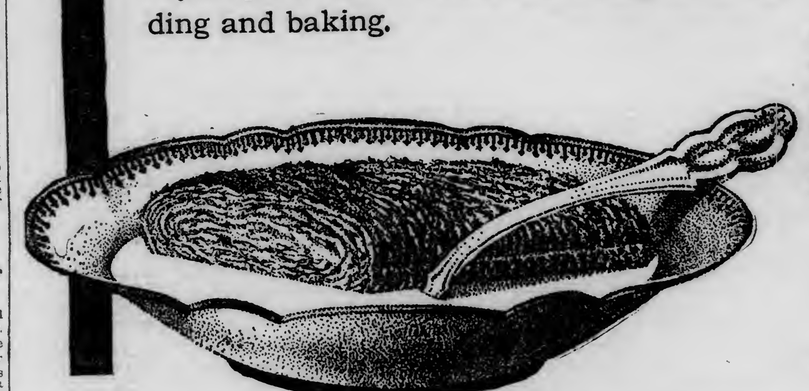

Bismarck, N. D. — County Superintendent C. L. Vigness has returned from Driscoll, where he attended the annual commencement of the Driscoll public schools. There were six pupils this year who graduated from the eighth grade. The diplomas were presented to the graduates by Supt. Vigness.

The One Perfect Food

The whole wheat grain is the one perfect, complete food given to man. This is affirmed by dietetic experience. It contains all the chemical elements that are found in the human body and in about the same proportion. As it is a complete, perfect food, why mix it with other grains? Nothing could be purer, more wholesome or more nutritious than

Shredded Wheat Biscuit

It is the whole wheat, nothing added, nothing taken away—no yeast, no baking powder, no grease and no chemicals of any kind—just pure whole wheat made digestible by steam-cooking, shredding and baking.

For breakfast heat the Biscuit in the oven a few moments to restore crispness; then pour hot milk over it and salt or sweeten to suit the taste. It is delicious for any meal with stewed prunes, baked apples, sliced pineapple, berries or other fruits. At your grocer's.

FREE BOOK ON FISHING

Tricks and Knacks of Fishing is a handsome cloth bound book that's brimful of interest for fishermen.

It tells how to cast, what flies to use, how to select hooks, how to choose lines, how to use a landing net, how to keep bait, how to take care of fishing tackle—and scores of other things you'll want to know.

It gives pointers on casting from a boat, on selecting rods and reels, on rowing for fishing, on building camp fires—it's the most complete book on fishing we've ever seen. We're sure you'll like it.

There's enough here to make a hundred fishermen happy. While they last we'll give one free with each rod selling at $1.00 or more.

Can't say how long they will last. Best to come for yours as early as you can—say, tomorrow.

SOURS WINS WITH HOMER

Wrecker Cleans Up With Bases Full and Sox Win, 9 to 8.

Duluth Team Plays Strong, Uphill Game—Peggers Lose Saturday Tilt.

Again one must refer to the wrecking crew with deference and pride. Yesterday with the game seemingly hopelessly lost to the perseverting Peggers, the hitters of the Sox came to the rescue, scoring five runs in the last inning and copping the final game of the series by the score of 9 to 8.

The game was sure some slugging affair. Foss, the sorrel-topped flinger with the port side delivery, started affairs for the locals and was given a rousing reception by the stickers of Jim Brown's club. The Peggers made six runs in the second round, after this Hoffman having better luck in stopping the congestion at the plate.

Hirsch, the reliable of the past, was doing mound labor for the invaders, and until the fusillade of the closing round it did look as if he had the Sox down for the loss of the closing game. But the wrecking crew is still wrecking hopes and aspirations of opposing pitchers, and thus did Mons. Hirsch get his, and withal, get it good.

To be paradoxical, but nevertheless more dramatic, it is better to start at the ending. The score sternly opposed the Sox by 8 to 4 figures. Erickson singled to start the rally. Hoffman dubbed to the drooping darkies in right, but what enthusiasm was started by this feat was quickly doused when Popham, hitting for Kuehn, whurled and McGrew duplicated the performance.

Some small comfort was handed out when Menelee doubled, scoring Erickson and sending Hoffman down to third. Leber walked and the bases were freighted. Then came Sours and destruction.

Hirsch fed him a fast one with a break on it, a little to the outside of the plate. The short belder hit it right on the nose and the pellet flew majestically over the right field paling, while the mob in the stand and bleachers rose en masse and cheered the sturdy wrecker.

It was by far the most exciting finish that there has been this season to a baseball game, bringing out the fact that the Sox are a hitting team liable to break up a game at any minute. It was the kind of a game that set the fans on edge and probably brought out more cheering than any contest of several seasons past. Sours was given a rousing reception as he trotteed across the platter with the winning run of the game.

Neither team scored in the opening round, the Peggers hanging up six runs in the second inning and getting what appeared to be a winning lead. With two down in the second, Sturgeon singled and promptly pilfered. Hirsch hit to Leber and the midget heaved wild to first and the first run of the inning was over. Freer singled and then Clothier hit one to deep center for three bases and putting Hirsch and Freer on the bench. McCurdo singled by third and Clothier was over. Baker crowned the swat period by putting over the fence and a total of six were sadly marked uot by the scorekeeper, a partisan.

The other two runs of the visitors came in the eighth. Kirkman tripled to deep center and scored when Krueger singleld. Altman singled and the second run of the inning was over.

In the sixth the Sox got their first two runs of the game. McGraw hit for three bags worth in the sixth. With Menelee down Leber walked and scored when Sours doubled. In the next round Blum doubled and came home on two successive passed balls.

In the eighth Leber doubled to right and came home when the Irish Orator hit a screamer down the third base foul line for three bags.

In the contest of Saturday the Sox took kindly to the offerings of Chesty McQuarry and hung up a total of fourteen hits for the matinee. On the other hand, Bob Worman, the reliable, was steady and a puzzle to the invaders, the Sox having little trouble in taking the first of the series by the score of 10 to 3.

Below is the score of both of the games:

SUPERIOR IS BEATEN TWICE

Flickertails Take Both Saturday and Sunday Games From Red Sox.

Grand Forks yesterday defeated the Superior Red Sox by the score of 12 to 10, the game going to one extra round. The game was a sort of comedy offering, in which errors, stupid work and heavy hitting fought for the lead. Superior used three hurlers during the fray and Deacon Lohr trotted out two during the hostilities. The visitors won out in the final round on two hits, an error and three outs at first.

Saturday's game was a heaving duel between Wilson and Chase, the Flickertail flinger having a shade, the Dakotas winning out by a score of 2 to 1. The contest was one of the best seen on the other side of the bay during the present season. The scores of the two games:

FORD PITCHES GREAT GAME FOR NEW YORK.

Detroit, Mich., June 3. — Russell Ford, after a bad start, blanked Detroit in the last six innings of yesterday's game, climaxed his performance by fanning Cobb in the ninth with two men on and nobody out, and New York defeated Detroit, 6 to 3. Seven of New York's hits came in the two innings runs were scored. Cree starred defensively. The score:

Batteries—Ford and Sweeney; Mullin and Stanage. Umpires—Hart and Connolly.

ST. LOUIS DROPS ANOTHER IN SPITE OF SHAKEUP.

St. Louis, Mo., June 3.—With a new manager and a changed lineup, St. Louis lost to Washington yesterday afternoon by a score of 6 to 3. Extra base hits and errors gave the visitors their scores. Wallace's and Pratt's fielding and Moeller's batting featured. The score:

St. Louis	2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—3	6	4

Batteries—Lake, E. Brown and Krichell; Groom and Henry. Umpires—Dineen and Perrine.

BOSTON TAKES TEN-INNING GAME FROM NAPS.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 3.—Boston defeated Cleveland in a 10-inning game, 5 to 4. Cleveland bunched hits in the third and scored three runs, but in the other innings could do but little with Wood. Manager Stahl of Boston returned to first base and was responsible for Boston's first three runs. The score:

Cleveland	0 0 3 0 0 0 0 1 0 0—4	7	6

CHICAGO PLAYS LOOSELY AND PHILADELPHIA WINS.

Chicago, June 3.—Chicago played a loose game behind Walsh yesterday and Philadelphia won, 3 to 1. All the errors of the locals figured in the scoring of the visitors, without a hit. Chicago's lone score was the result of a home run. Coombs and Walsh were opposed to each other in a pitchers' battle in which Coombs, with better support, had a shade. The score:

SAINTS LOSE TWICE TO MINNEAPOLIS TEAM.

St. Paul, Minn., June 3.—Minneapolis won both games of a double-header yesterday, the first by a score of 13 to 2, and the second 9 to 5. In the first game five of Minneapolis' hits out of fourteen were doubles. St. Paul's only two runs were made in the third inning, when Lewis scored on Dauss' home run hit. The second game was called in the sixth inning on account of rain. Scores:

First game—	R.	H.	E.

COLONELS DROP FOUR STRAIGHT TO COLUMBUS.

Columbus, Ohio, June 3.—Columbus made it four straight out of five in the series with Louisville by winning yesterday, 2 to 2, in a battle between Cook and Toney. The losers got one run lead in the sixth on two infield singles and Hayden's tripple. In the Columbus half, singles by Perring, O'Rourke and Geber, with a steal by O'Rourke, decided the game. Score:

KRAUSE PROVED A PUZZLE TO INDIANS.

Toledo, Ohio, June 3.—Krause proved too much for Indianapolis, and Toledo won by a score of 2 to 1. Only two hits were made of him. Indianapolis had three men on the bases and one out, but was unable to score. O'Leary and Casey of Indianapolis were chased from the game for kicking on a decision in the second inning. Score:

SLAPNICKA MAKES WILD PITCH AND BREWERS LOSE.

Kansas City, Mo., June 3.—A wild pitch in the twelfth inning by Slapnicka allowed Kansas City to take the last game of the series from Milwaukee, 5 to 4. Up to this time the locals had made but five hits. In the first, a walk, a single and an infield out gave Kansas City a run. In the sixth, a single, a base on balls and Carr's home run scored three for the locals. Score:

SODALITY WINS FROM THE JEFFS

New Duluth Team Also Wins From the Blue Bells.

In one of the best games that has been played so far in the Duluth and Superior league, the Sodality team defeated the Jeffersons by the score of 9 to 7, the game being played at Duluth Heights. In the six innings that he worked on the mound G. Cullens struck out twelve men and held the Jeffs safe after he went to the hill. Both Danielson and Knox were in the box for the East end aggregation and both were hit rather hard. The Sodality cinched the game in the eighth round by scoring four runs. One of the features of the game was the long home-run hit by Murphy of the winning team.

LONG SERIES STARTS TODAY

Duluth and Superior Will Hook in Fight for Lead.

While Grand Forks and Winnipeg are battling in the North for third place in the See-Eye race, Duluth and Superior will be having a long inter-city series for the first place. On the form that has been shown to date by the two teams there should be but slight prospect for the Red Hose to cut down the well established lead of the White Sox. There will be nine games in the long series, and it is expected that the locals will capture the long end.

It is expected that there may be some changes in the Superior team before the end of the series. Right at the present time Sommer is negotiating for a new twirler, and if such a thing is possible Cyrus Augustus Dahlgren will be reinstated and will be once more back with the Red Hose.

Dahlgren failed to report to the Cincinnati team, and therefore is at the present time suspended. If the national commission will act on the case of the crack minor league pitcher, Sommer believes there is a chance that he will be back with his former love. It is not believed that the Cincy Reds will use the pitcher in any event.

While the White Sox are going great at the present time, it is known that Darby has his eyes out for another pitcher, and this player may be seen in action before the team leaves for the next away from home series with Winnipeg and Grand Forks. So far Foss is an experiment. He is a youngster and had shown promise, but whether he will remain with the wreckers throughout the season, is another question.

Should the Sox get the long end of the games with Superior, the team will leave for Grand Forks and Winnipeg with a substantial lead for the race. Right at the present time the locals are playing the best ball in the league, and it has been the hitting of the Sox that has been winning games.

O'Brien is not overlooking any bets, however, and in the event that he has the chance to secure a pitcher that he has his eyes on at the present time, he will probably grab the chance.

WHAT IS FUTURE OF U. S. LEAGUE?

Officials Will Meet and Give Out Formal Statement to the Public.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 3.—Owners and representatives of six clubs of the United States league met here to formulate a plan for reorganization. They were in session for several hours. After adjournment it was announced that another meeting would be held today, after which a formal statement regarding the future of the league will be given out. John J. Ryan, owner of the Cincinnati team, and vice president of the league, acted as chairman, and W. T. McCullough, secretary of the Pittsburg club, as secretary. The following clubs were represented: Pittsburg, Reading, Cincinnati, Chicago, Richmond and Washington. While it was not definitely announced, it was said that probably two western cities would be taken into the league in the places of New York and Cleveland, the two clubs not represented at the meeting. President Whitman did not attend the conference.

PENNSYLVANIA WINS BIG TRACK MEET.

Philadelphia, June 3. — The University of Pennsylvania won the intercolligate track and field championship on Franklin field Saturday afternoon and thus brought new laurels to "Mike" Murphy, the noted trainer, who will coach the American stars at the coming Olympic games. The Pennsylvanians won by a margin of 10½ points over Cornell, the nearest competitor. The points scored were:

Pennsylvania, 28; Cornell, 17½; Michigan, 15; Columbia, 13; Harvard, 13; Syracuse, 12; Dartmouth, 11½; Yale, 10; Wesleyan, 7; Brown, 6; Princeton, 5; Bowdoin, 2; Rutgers, 2; Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1.

Five Records Broken.

Five intercollegiate records were broken and with them went one collegiate record and one world's record. The new world's figures were made in the pole vault by K. S. Gardner of Yale. After he and H. S. Babcock of Columbia had broken the intercollegiate record of 12 feet 8¾ inches by going over the bar at 12 feet, 9½ inches, the stick was put up to 12 feet 10 inches.

Gardner on his second try cleared it amid cheers. Babcock tried three times, but failed. The former world's record was 12 feet 10⅞ inches.

In the shot put R. L. Beatty of Columbia exceeded the collegiate record held by himself by making 48 feet 10¾ inches, against his old figures of 48 feet 7⅜ inches.

C. D. Reidpath of Syracuse lowered the intercollegiate record of 48 4-5 seconds in the quarter-mile event to 48 seconds. Reidpath also came within one-fifth of a second of equaling the intercollegiate record in the 220-yard dash.

In the half-mile run J. P. Jones of Cornell lowered his intercollegiate record from 1:54 4-5 to 1:53 4-5.

Fitwells Meet Defeat.

The Fitwells yesterday were defeated at Iron River by the strong team of that place, the score being 6 to 4. The contest was fast and well played throughout.

Score by innings: R. H. E.

Fitwells	0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 3—4	5	7
Iron River	0 0 0 1 1 2 0 2 x—6	7	6

Batteries—Thorsen, Thompson and Busha; Addington and Conners.

Beavers Are Butchered.

The Beavers handed the Eighth avenue west Wildcats a beating yesterday on the Tenth avenue west grounds, the former team winning out by the score of 30 to 15. Turrell and King were in the battery points for the Wildcats, while Jackson and Gray worked for the Beavers.

Students Stranded.

Oshkosh, Wis., June 3.—Six members of the high school track team, which was tied by Milwaukee South division for second place at the Ripon college field Saturday, were stranded in the college town last night with a collection of suitcases, loving cups and other trophies, and "hoofed" it home, a distance of twenty miles, finishing the "hike" in a half-famished condition.

JOE RIVERS CONCEDED CHANCE WITH WOLGAST

Uncle Tom McCarey's face, as the veteran fight promoter of Los Angeles listened to the story of the fight by rounds of that supposedly "inconsequential" Wolgast-Ritchie match, would have been worth studying, especially about the time that the San Francisco lad was progressing so rapidly in the second round.

If, by any chance, the Southern promoter, who has so much at stake for his Fourth of July card, looked as downcast and as pensive as Tom Jones was appearing at the same stage of the proceedings, his worst enemy couldn't have had the nerve to gloat. If there was dismay written over the features of a man's face, it was spelled out in bold relief over the manager of the champion. But that same look of despair was changed into smiles when the Michigander scored his two knockdowns in the third, and probably there was much the same appearance spread over the face of one T. McCarey down in Los Angeles.

However, all's well that ends well, and both Jones and McCarey thank their lucky stars that it was not worse.

In fact, if McCarey is so fortunate as to keep Wolgast from straying into the ring from now until Independence day, the drawing power of his card will be largely increased as a result of the ill-fated scrap engineered by Jimmy Coffroth.

Even without that fight, there was bound to be discussion as to whether Wolgast had gone back as a result of his operation, but at the same time there wasn't any decided feeling outside, perhaps, of San Francisco that such was the case. While it was admitted that such might be the case, the general tendency always is to "string" with the champion until he is defeated.

Wolgast certainly didn't look a week ago Saturday as good as we have seen him in the ring, and the most experienced of those at the ringside were of the opinion that he was in bad shape in that second round. He looks still to have his punch, but there are other qualifications lacking, and they must be considered.

To go over an old subject briefly, Wolgast lacked in these particulars:

His judgment of distance was bad.

He lacked in recuperation from body and chin blows that he could have taken at another time with ease.

All the way through he looked tired and lacking in the spirit that has made him a great fighter.

Wolgast Is Not Alarmed.

Neither Wolgast nor his friends seem to lay much stress on his lack of judgment in hitting. They point out that he hadn't been in a professional engagement for some weeks prior to his scheduled match with Freddie Welch and he couldn't expect anything else.

That may be true within certain lines, but juugment seems to be inborn to certain fighters and doesn't leave them until they are ready for the discard. Wolgast was never before as wild a swinger as he looked a week ago, and the fact that he has been out of the ring ought not to be blamed wholly. He has youth with him, and, even granting that the lack of practice affected him, it ought not to have made so much difference.

It is repeating statements to say that when a fighter loses his judgment of distance he is losing ground, but it has been proved time and again. There is little need to cite instances, for they have already been cited.

Jim Jeffries gave a little talk on that very subject one night in Reno before the Jeffries-Johnson fight, and what he said was borne out by what happened.

The white man had no judgment along that line and he was practically helpless against the black.

Successful boxers and champions do more than merely fight——they have to have a fair idea of where their punches will land, for wasting blows tires them as much as any other sort of work.

Judging from telegrams that Wolgast sent newspaper friends in Los Angeles, he proposes to continue with short-round bouts to work himself into shape. These bouts may give him back some of the things that he needs to continue his title, but, after all is said and done, isn't it possible that a good rest would be the right sort of treatment? Wolgast has been out of the ring sometime, yes, but he hasn't been resting. Let him have a complete change, quiet and no ring talk.

It Might Happen.

He might accidentally bump up against another tough boy such as Ritchie, and to suffer a knockout would be painful.

It is all well enough for Tom Jones to say that the championship isn't involved in these matches, but let Wolgast be knocked out and Tom would suddenly discover the trend of opinion.

Rivers ought to give the champion a hard fight, although possibly Willie Ritchie's style of fighting would be far more effective than the crouch of the Los Angeles favorite.

On the other hand, it must be admitted that Ritchie or Rivers or any other boy might adopt a different policy in a twenty-round match than in a four-round affair. Almost any good boy can afford to set a fast clip for four rounds and take a chance, where in a match of five times that length the battle would have to be patterned after different methods.

DATES SET FOR BIG AUTO RACE

Vanderbilt and Grand Prix Events Will Be Held in September.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 3.—The Vanderbilt and Grand Prix automobile race will be run on Sept. 17 and 23 respectively. Formal application for these dates was made to the automobile club of America, and it is considered certain that they will be approved.

The Pabst cup event will be raced in connection with the Vanderbilt event and the Wisconsin motor trophy will be in competition on the day of the Grand Prix race.

An effort was made to have the races held on Labor day and the Saturday preceding, but Indianapolis, which has the former date, refused to waive it.

CALIFORNIA WINS WESTERN CONFERENCE.

Stuart Field, Lafayette, Ind., June 3. — In a desperate battle for points fought under a boiling sun, athletes representing the University of California triumphed over the University of Missouri for first honors in the twelfth meet of the Western Intercollegiate Athletic association Saturday.

The Pacific coast men piled up a total of 41 1-3 points while Missouri was second with 29 1-3. Illinois was third with 26, Chicago fourth with 15 and Wisconsin fifth with 12½. Coy, through Wilson's splendid work, finished six with 10 points. Minnesota seventh with 8, Northwestern, Ames and Oberlin tied for eighth with 5 points each, Wabash got 4 1-3 points, Iowa, Purdue and Earlham 1 each, and De Pauw half a

RAILROAD GETS LIBRARY SITE

Canadian Northern Can Now Proceed With Erection of Virginia Depot.

Virginia, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The $12,000, which the Canadian Northern road agreed to pay for the library building and site property has been paid, the road has been given a perpetual right of way over the 40-acre tract owned by the city just west of the Technical high school and the city has vacated for the use of the railroad the streets known as Mary place and Putnam place. These three transactions give the Canadian Northern road a clear course through the city. The closing of these deals were merely formal matters as an agreement had been reached long ago and the construction work has been going ahead. Now that the site has been fully acquired it is expected that work on the depot building will be commenced soon.

MANY PIONEERS OF EVELETH JOIN

Organization of Old Settlers' Association Has Been Perfected.

Eveleth, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—One hundred and seventy-five names were enrolled as charter members of the Old Settlers' association of Eveleth at the meeting held in the city hall Saturday evening for the purpose of organization.

The council chambers were crowded and many if the early comers, who had not come in contact with one another for years, found genuine enjoyment in the prospect of renewing the pleasant relations of the pioneer days when Eveleth was only a small mining camp. F. R. Campbell, one of the leaders in the movement for forming the society, was unanimously chosen its first president and J. C. Poole, one of the first merchants of the town, was likewise elected secretary. committee was appointed to arrange for a banquet to be held on July 26, at which time an effort will be made to have every pioneer in attendance. Any person who has been a resident of the city for fifteen years is eligible.

DULUTH K. C. DEGREE TEAM GIVES WORK

Takes Active Part in Organizing New Council at Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Virginia council, No. 1640, is the name of a new local organization of the Knights of Columbus formed in this city Sunday, with the following officers: Grand knight, Edward L. Boyle; deputy grand knight, Luke F. Burns; financial secretary, Paul Sevetnich; recording secretary, James Mahoney; treasurer, John Pasternacki; trustees, Irving P. Ring, J. F. Kearney, Thomas Sullivan; chaplain, Rev. Father W. J. Powers; advocate, Lorin Gavin.

John Mahon, grand knight of the Duluth council, with the Duluth degree team, exemplified the first and second degree work. District Deputy James Nolan of Brainerd, with the Brainerd degree team, exemplified the third degree work. The new council, with members who transferred from other councils and new members, will start out with eighty-seven members, and it is expected the 100-mark will be passed quickly.

The clergymen present at the exercises were Fathers Schiffer of Chisholm, Culligan of Eveleth, Piernot of Gilbert, Hanley and McCoy, missionary priests of St. Louis, Hogan of Hibbing and W. J. Powers of Virginia.

There were visitors from International Falls, Bemidji, Winnipeg, Superior, Duluth, Brainerd and Hibbing.

At a banquet last evening at the New Fay hotel with E. L. Boyle as toastmaster, addresses were made by E. J. Kenney of Duluth, W. L. Barron of Brainerd, John Dwan of Two Harbors, Father M. C. Hanley and James Nolan.

The institution of the lodge and the initiation of the members took the entire day. All the visitors and candidates attended mass at Our Ladies of Lourdes church at 9 o'clock.

PROFESSOR TO GIVE POINTERS

Member of Minnesota U Faculty to Advocate Commission Form.

Eveleth, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prof. William A. Schraper, instructor in political economy at the Minnesota university, has been invited to come to Eveleth and deliver a lecture on the operation of the commission form of city government, such as is provided for in the proposed new charter for the city, the question of the adoption of which will be submitted to the people at a special election to be held Saturday, June 22.

Has Studied Its Working.

Prof. Schraper has made a close study of the results obtained under this plan in Mankato, St. Cloud and many other cities, small and large, and he is a firm believer in superiority of the commission form over the old style of city government. Interest in the new charter is awakening, and will become general when the instrument is published this week. It is planned to place a copy of the new charter in the hands of every voter, in order that all provisions may be read and thoroughly discussed.

LOSES LIFE IN PELICAN LAKE

Charles Fisher, Contractor of Orr, Drowns When Canoe Upsets.

Virginia, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Fisher was drowned in Pelican lake, forty miles north of here Saturday. He started across the lake in a canoe, and was found by parties out in a gasoline launch, drowned and hanging in the water from his canoe with one leg hooked over the side of the boat. It is believed Fisher was intoxicated. Fisher had been doing contract work in clearing land and also road contract work about Orr.

IS WOUNDED BY OWN SET RIFLE

Pool Location Man Sets Trap for Burglar and Shoots Himself.

Hibbing, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Setting a rifle in his woodshed to shoot whomsoever might open the door at night proved disastrous for Paul Huttenen, living in the Pool location, as he inadvertently sprung the trap himself and received a bullet through the arm and into the right side.

The wound is not considered serious. He is also said to have placed three bottles of poisoned beer in the shed for the convenience of the looked-for burglar.

SUNDAY MINSTREL SHOW IS BARRED

Mayor Saari of Eveleth Refuses to Permit Performance of Negroes.

Eveleth, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor J. S. Saari Sunday ordered the cancellation of the performance and street parade of the Dixie Fashion Plate Minstrels, that had billed to open a two days' engagement here on that day.

A license was inadvererently given the company for the two performances, and a petition was circulated in opposition to the Sunday performance. It received many signers.

Gilbert Chimney Struck.

Gilbert, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—During a severe electrical storm early in the morning lightning struck the chimney on the Oliver Iron Mining company's office at the Genoa mine, Bricks were scattered many feet; shingles were torn off and a hole put through the roof of the office. The water tank in the attic was in line of the bolt and the water splashed over the rooms, while all the wires in the building were burned out. The furnace doors were blown off and the place was soon full of smoke, although no fire was started.

Three young men sleeping in the office were badly scared, but not injured.

SOME FOOT RACERS.

Virginia Team Gets Lots of Runs at Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The game of baseball at the local park Sunday was cut short in the seventh inning by a heavy rain, thereby preventing the Mohami team of Virginia from making a record as long distance runners. When the game was called the scorer had 30 runs chalked down for the visitors and 11 for the home team.

VIRGINIA ELKS TO BUILD NEW HOME.

NIGHT PARADE AT STATE LABOR MEET

Novel Stunt Planned for Annual Gathering at Brainerd This Month.

Brainerd, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The State Federation of Labor will hold its annual convention here June 17, 18 and 19. It is expected that over 400 delegates and many visitors will attend. The local committee is making great preparations for the reception of the visiting delegations and for their entertainment.

On Monday evening, June 17, there will be a night parade of organized labor and some novel features will be introduced. Both local bands, the Brainerd City and Unity, have been secured.

On Tuesday evening there will be launch rides up the Mississippi.

On Wednesday evening an open air lecture will be given on child labor, illustrated by numerous pictures and the "Cry of the Children" will also be shown in moving pictures, a twenty-foot screen being erected on the lawn either in depot park or the Y. M. C. A. grounds. These lectures will be under the auspices of the Womans' Union Label league.

Will Visit Cuyuna.

In addition the Cuyuna range towns, Crosby, Ironton, Deerwood, Cuyuna and Barrows will offer good side trips to the delegates, who may wish to see the lake region and the iron industry. Soliciting funds in Brainerd to properly care for the big convention is a committee of business men and professional men composed of Dr. Werner T. Hemstead, Judge J. T. Sanborn and H. W. Linnemann.

SAVED MOTHER AND SON

"We gave Mellin's Food to baby according to the directions on the package. He gained half-a-pound the first week and a little more than half-a-pound the second week, and is now looking the picture of health, even after so short a trial with the Mellin's Food and after going steadily down grade on a preparation of cow's milk. We shall continue with Mellin's Food and recommend it to others. Since we commenced giving it to our baby, I have learned that your food saved my life in infancy."

JEWELERS AT FARGO.

Three Days' Meeting to Begin There June 12.

Fargo, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.) — The North Dakota Retail Jewelers' association will begin a three days' meeting here June 12.

The first night the visitors will be entertained at a theater party. An elaborate banquet is announced for the second evening at the Commercial club. Among the speakers will be Charles T. Higginbotham, consulting superintendent of the South Bend Watch factory; and Col. John L. Shepherd of the Keystone Watch company of New York. More than 100 visiting jewelers are expected in the city and Jamestown will be a strong bidder for the 1913 convention.

The third day will be given over to the annual meeting of the North Dakota opticians and among the speakers will be Mr. Williams, superintendent of the optical department of Sischo & Beard of St. Paul. George K. Monro of Jamestown, secretary, has just completed the program.

DISTRICT W. C. T. U. MEETING ELECTION.

New Rockford, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The district W. C. T. U. meeting for Eddy, Benson, Foster and several other counties held here elected the following officers: President, Mrs. M. A. Garry, Leeds; vice presidents, Mrs. G. Barber, Heaton; Mrs. A. D. Tomlinson, New Rockford; Mrs. R. F. Allison, Esmond; Mrs. C. Burton, Carrington; corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. M. Delmeter, Grand Forks; recording secretary, Mrs. F. M. Wise, Leeds; treasurer, Miss Nellie Whiteomb, Oberen.

ELLENDALE COURTHOUSE WILL BECOME HOSPITAL.

Ellendale, N. D., June 3.—The plan of converting the old courthouse when it is vacated by the officials on moving into the new courthouse, into a general hospital, was voiced at a large mass meeting.

The building is an ideal one for such purposes and the plan suggested is to have the county commissioners turn over the old building for hospital purposes and to receive as compensation all county nursing without charge. The plan met with the hearty approval of nearly every man present. B. S. Hodges, who presided, appointed as a committee to make further investigations, E. N. Leiby, J. M. Austin and F. M. Walton.

Bishop J. J. O'Reilly of Fargo sent word that he would be able to secure Catholic sisters and trained nurses to take charge of the hospital at once, but there is a sentiment among some of the supporters not to have it sectarian. Several citizens will donate $50 a year to its support, if established.

SEA CAPTAIN IS LOOKING FOR WIFE

Veteran of Sea Writes Mayor of Crookston to Find Him Wife.

Crookston, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.) — Probably the word has been passed that Crookston's Socialist mayor, H. L. Larson, is running a matrimonial bureau. This is a rather amusing error as he is a widower himself. The Sunday morning mail brought him the following letter:

"Portland, Or., May 28, 1912, honorable, the mayor of Crookston, honored sir—I hope you will pardon the liberty I am taking. I wish you would kindly advertise in your paper for me I would like to correspond with some good, honest widow without children and with some means. I am not poor, I am retired from a seafaring life. I am strictly temperate and I want a quiet home and good, quiet companion, about 45 or 55, for the remainder of my days.

"I have lived a true life, am honest and will be kind and loving to the right, good honest woman. Hoping you will oblige me, I am sir, respectfully, yours truly,

"CAPT. J. F. RYAN,

"6109 Thirty-sixth avenue southeast.

Mayor Larson feels keenly for the gallant sea captain and will do all he can to get him into communication with some deserving woman, and says his efforts for Capt. Ryan may also come in handy personally, as he is too bashful to announce himself as a candidate also, but that he might look the field over carefully as a representative of Capt. Ryan.

FAIR

J. Pluvius refused to keep entirely off the job, but his work yesterday did not amount to much, and on the whole the day was beautiful and enjoyable. Today is an ideal spring day, with bright sunshine and the temperature high enough for comfort. Fair weather is promised for tonight and tomorrow.

Gray, cold weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:15 and it will set at 7:56 this evening, giving fifteen hours and forty-one minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the last twenty-four to forty-eight hours light to heavy rains fell throughout the Northwest, Lake region, the Central valleys, Atlantic and Gulf states in connection with barometric depressions now centered over Lake Superior and Northwestern Mexico. Temperatures of 90 deg. or higher occurred Sunday in Massachusetts, Virginia, North Carolina, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada and California, and hail fell in the vicinity of St. Paul and Winnipeg. The outlook favors mostly fair weather in St. Louis and Douglas counties during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, June 3. — Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Tuesday.

Upper Michigan—Unsettled and somewhat cooler tonight; Tuesday fair and cooler.

Wisconsin—Generally fair in western, probably showers in eastern portion late tonight or Tuesday; cooler.

Minnesota — Generally fair tonight and Tuesday; cooler tonight.

Iowa—Unsettled weather with probably showers tonight or Tuesday; cooler tonight and in east portion Tuesday.

North Dakota — Fair tonight and Tuesday; cooler tonight; probably light frost in lowlands.

South Dakota—Fair tonight and Tuesday; cooler tonight.

Montana—Fair tonight and Tuesday; cooler in south portion tonight; probably light frost in west portion tonight.

Upper Lakes: Moderate to brisk southwesterly and westerly winds. Unsettled weather this afternoon and tonight; Tuesday fair weather.

IOWANS VOTE AT PRIMARY

Statewide Choice of Nominees for Office Is Being Determined.

Republican Senatorial Race Is Principal One in Question.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 3.—Statewide primaries are in progress in Iowa today, in which Republican, Democratic and other parties will choose nominees for United States senator, congressmen in the eleven districts, governor and a full set of state, county and township officers. The polls opened at 7 o'clock in the cities, and early reports indicated that a fair vote would be registered. In the country districts the polls opened at 9 o'clock, and in both city and country the polls will close at 8 o'clock tonight.

The senatorial contest overshadowed all other contests in today's voting. Senator Kenyon, who is opposed by Former Senator Lafayette Young, editor of the Des Moines Capital, for the Republican nomination, has made a vigorous fight to retain his seat in the senate, while the Des Moines editor is confident he will be returned to the position he held for five months following the death of the late Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver.

Des Moines the Battle Ground.

In Des Moines the principal issue was the senatorial race, and though this city is the home of Young, the Kenyon forces were active at the polls from early morning. The real battle ground in the contest appears to be here, and according to leaders on both sides, the result in Polk county and Des Moines probably will determine the result in the state at large.

Except in one or two districts, it was said there was little likelihood of changes in the personnel of the Iowa delegation in congress. The most interest centers in the Sixth district, where Congressman Nate Kendall is opposed by H. B. Allbree of Newton; in the Fourth, where Congressman G. N. Haugen is opposed by State Senator Henry L. Adams, and in the Eleventh, where Congressman E. H. Hubbard is opposed by George C. Scott of Sioux City.

In the Tenth district Representative P. Woods is opposed for the Republican nomination by Paul E. Stillman; in the First, Congressman Charles A. Kennedy by S. W. Neal, and in the Third, Congressman Charles E. Pickett by A. D. Sumner.

One Democrat Unopposed.

S. F. Prouty of the Seventh, H. M. Towner of the Eighth, William R. Greene of the Ninth, James W. Good of the Fifth, all Republicans, and I. S. Pepper, Democrat, of the Second, are unopposed. In the Sixth district the three Democratic candidates are L. V. Reynolds of Oskaloosa, and State Senator E. G. Moon and Sant Kirkpatrick of Ottumwa.

In the gubernatorial contest there was nothing to indicate, early today, the probable victor. All three Republican candidates, George W. Clarke, present lieutenant governor, Perry G. Holden, formerly of Ames Agricultural college, and State Senator A. V. Proudfit of Indianola were confident of success and their managers made optimistic claims.

E. G. Dunn of Mason City, Iowa, and John T. Hamilton of Cedar Rapids are the Democratic candidates for governor.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE EMPRESS.

First Summer Program of Vaudeville and Moving Pictures.

Yesterday, the Empress theater introduced its first offering under the summer season change of program. The bill consisted of three vaudeville numbers and three up-to-date motion picture films. The vaudeville-picture show will be in order at the Empress all during the hot summer months and until the regular vaudeville season opens in the fall.

With the most modern of ventilating plants, the Empress is expected to be one of the coolest spots in the city on a hot day and is expected to be inviting on that ground. The summer show is a 10-cent affair, except on Sundays and holidays when the better seats will be sold for 20 cents.

The Four Shannons, singers and dancers, presented an artistic and lively turn. Every member of the quartet is blessed with a pleasing voice and they introduce a number of new steps.

The Imperial Trio, head and hand balancers, are excellent in their particular line. They have an act which borders on the hazardous and they show considerable skill at their work.

Pauline Corbett, a dainty songstress, won much favor with two large audiences yesterday. She has an excellent repertoire of songs and has a captivating voice and manner. Her gowns are the latest creations.

Three films were shown. The subjects were: "Diamond Cut Diamond," comedy; "Calcutta," travel; "Desert Sweetheart," drama of Western life. The films will be changed Sundays and Wednesdays.

Amusement Notes.

"A Night Out" is the promising title of a new comedy by May Robson and C. T. Dazey, which deals with the results of hereditary influence in a humorous way. In developing this serious theme for a comedy Miss Robson and Mr. Dazey have developed a series of extremely ludicrous situations, with resultant complications. Miss Robson portrays the character of Grannum, and while it might suggest the character of Aunt Mary in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," it is distinctly different, and offers greater scope for the exceptional talents of Miss Robson, who has a world-wide recognition of her genius for portraying eccentric characters, developing the humor and pathos of the character alternately, and so naturally that it is more than impressive. It is realism. The play will have an elaborate production at the Lyceum June 5.

Miss Robson's cast includes Jack Storey, Paul Decker, John Rowe, Lewis E. Parmenter, Eddie Leaman, Geo. Hall, Faye Custick, Lotta Blake, Margaret Boland, Louise Rand and Edith Conrad.

Late popular songs and musical numbers will be featured in the production of the Boston Lyric Comedy company during its summer season of stock at the Lyceum theater, beginning next Sunday afternoon. The various big hits of the East will be included in the musical productions of the season. This feature promises to become popular.

Col. W. A. Thompson, who is at the head of the Boston Lyric Comedy company, which will open its summer season of musical stock next Sunday afternoon, is now making arrangements with the Eastern music publishers for the earliest copies of popular music numbers. In this way Duluth will hear the latest music numbers immediately after they are published. As the productions are all musical comedies, this feature will prove a valuable asset to the success of the season. The chorus of twenty voices is now rehearsing the musical numbers of "The Follies of June 9," the opening production.

GOING TO WILLISTON ON SPECIAL TRAIN.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—North Dakota firemen who attend the state tournament at Williston will be carried on board a special train which will run from Grand Forks to the convention city. The train schedule has been so arranged that it will provide accommodations for all the cities between Grand Forks and Williston.

Will Bridge Big Tank.

International Falls, Minn., June 3.—A bridge will soon span the Big Fork river near Laurel. Koochiching county and Beedy township, the latter to use part of the funds for this purpose which it secured by the sale of $6,000 of bonds for road and bridge purposes. This will close up one gap of the proposed state highway from Warroad to International Falls.

Electro Med. Doctors Cure Many Troubles

New Method Is Superior to Old, Cures Chronics in Short Time.

Not so many years ago, people were looking for help in supernatural agencies. Those were the times when they believed in witches, and in disease as a result of sin and punishment from God. In those times, there were men and women, nevertheless, who spent much of their time and energy in looking for herbs and roots which would heal sickness and relieve suffering. How different things are today. We know through experience that medicines, to the greatest extent, have failed to do the work, and the wide-awake physician of today is ever busy in harnessing the powers of nature and forces them into service to heal human ills and diseases.

Among the foremost Duluth doctors are Electro Medical Doctors. They have nearly abandoned the antiquated methods of doping the suffering patient with medicine. Instead, they employ the powerful X-Ray, the oxygen and ozone of the air, the electricity and high-infrequency. With these forces they succeeded in the cure of such diseases as Bright's disease, cancers, tumors, rheumatism, which had crippled some of the patients and made them invalids.

Mr. Wm. Labud of Bay River, Minn., had been suffering from heart trouble for a long time and no one of the doctors could cure him. In addition, he had been badly troubled with a bad stomach and with a congestion of the liver. He said to the doctors, that he had almost given up hope, for he had only a little money left and all his strength was gone. He was cured by the Natural Healing Method within a few weeks and is today strong and healthy.

Mr. Chisholm of Proctor, a young engineer, has been cured of a bad catarrh and bad blood he had been troubled with for some time. Today he enjoys the best of health and is thankful to the doctors who gave him back his health.

Miss Anna Grennier, a young lady of Chisholm, has suffered much from poison, which developed from diptheria antitoxin. Her blood was reduced so much that her people feared the worst. As a last resort she came to the Electro Medical Doctors, through the recommendation of a prominent business man of Duluth, who had praised the doctors because of their skill and honesty and their scientific machines. This young lady is well today and in the best of health, thanks to Electro Medical Methods.

Mr. Chas. Snitko, a young Russian, of 216 Lake avenue south, had been troubled with a bad cough and bronchitis and had all the symptoms of acute consumption. He was unable to work and suffered much. Through the effort of a friend who was cured by these new methods he was induced to go to the Electro Medical Methods at 26 West Superior street and within a few weeks he enjoyed his health again as the best among men.

Baking Powder Biscuits

Light as a Feather

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Baking Powder Biscuits made by this recipe are so far ahead of ordinary baking powder biscuits that, if once tried, you will never use any other recipe. Try it the next time you run short of bread. Save this recipe. 29

K C Baking Powder Biscuits

Three cups flour; ¼ to ½ cup shortening; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; about 1 cup milk or water; 1 teaspoonful salt.

Sift three times, the flour, salt and baking powder. Work into the flour the shortening, using lard or butter for shortening. Then mix to a very soft dough with the milk. The softer the biscuit enters the oven, the lighter it comes out. Never knead baking powder biscuits; press the dough into shape and roll lightly. Cut in small shapes and bake on a sheet or very shallow pan in a hot oven. In placing biscuits in the pans place well apart, not allowing edges to touch. Small biscuits are better than large ones. Large biscuits do not have the proper amount of time to raise and bake.

Have you seen the new K C Cook's Book? Brimful of appetizing recipes that simply must be successful every time if the few simple directions are carefully followed. You would gladly pay 50 cents for this valuable book, yet we send it absolutely free upon receipt of the colored certificate packed in every 25-centcan of K C Baking Powder. Jaqurs Mfg. Co., Chicago. Small cans do not have Cook's Book certificates.

SOUTHWEST RAINS LIGHT

Need of More Moisture in Kansas Sends Wheat Prices Higher.

Flaxseed Market Very Dull —Possible Speculation in July.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 3.—Wheat took quite a bulge on the markets of America today by reason of the fact that the rains that fell there late last week proved to be utterly inadequate to break the drouth and the deterioration of the crops has not been halted, though somewhat checked. Duluth July wheat closed today at an advance of 1½c to 1⅝c. There were similar advances at Chicago and Minneapolis. The Winnipeg market was closed on account of a holiday. Duluth cash wheat closed 1c over July. Durum closed ½c higher. Duluth July flaxseed closed at the advance of 1c.

News to the effect that the reported rains in Kansas and Nebraska late last week amounted to very little and were far from being sufficient to break the drouth, sent wheat up this morning on the markets of North America. There was a government forecast of rain in that section within the next twenty-four hours, but that did not prevent a radical bullish movement. Moreover the reports of the primary receipts showed quite a falling off in comparison with what they were a year ago. The American visible supply was reported to have decreased 1,300,000 bu, approximately since a week ago. This is no great decrease for this time of the year.

Duluth July wheat, which closed Saturday at $1.12⅝-¾ asked, opened today at $1.12⅞ bid and at noon was quoted at $1.14⅛ bid. There were higher quotations also from Minneapolis and Chicago.

The news from across the Atlantic was generally bullish. Liverpool wheat closed today ½d higher to ⅜d lower. The upward movement in the near option was caused by an improved demand on the part of France and Australian shipments and the expectation of smaller American and Manitoba shipments.

Flaxseed Is Dull.

Little business took place on the flaxseed market of Duluth this morning, but there was a current report to the effect that certain interests were picking up the July future in the expectation of a bulge, similar to that which occurred in the May option during the latter part of last month. Duluth July flaxseed at noon was up a cent at $2.25. There were ten cars of flaxseed on the track for inspection. Buenos Ayres June Saturday night closed ½c off at $1.78⅞ and London-Calcutta June and July closed today 1¾c off at $2.31⅝.

FLAXSEED.

The Duluth flaxseed market during the week ending last Saturday presented an interesting spectacle. May flaxseed went to an astounding figure. For weeks there have been murmurs on the Duluth Board of Trade that the price of flaxseed was being manipulated, but these murmurs were never so loud as they have been during the past week. Duluth May shot far beyond the figures that it commanded a year ago. Its bulge during the last days of May was phenomenal. This was the more remarkable in view of the fact that the arrivals of flaxseed from the country upon the Duluth market have been rapidly increasing. Last week the arrivals were nearly three times what they were a week ago. Yet the price of May kept going up by leaps and bounds and so did the cash price of the No. 1 American seed.

There has been very little of that No. 1 seed in the flaxseed that has been arriving. What No. 1 has come has been quickly snapped up to make delivery on the May option. Those who held the May option refused to take any lower grade of seed even at a discount, and as the No. 1 was very scarce it was but natural that there should be quite a bulge. Still, there have been charges that the climbing that the May option actually did was far beyond anything that the facts justified.

It is very remarkable that on Friday No. 1 flaxseed on track closed at $2.25, while the May option closed at $2.68, bid. Wednesday the flaxseed on track kept even pace with the May option. Thursday was a holiday. On Friday there was no longer any chance to get the flaxseed, which was on track, into the warehouse in time to use it to make delivery on the May option. In order to make delivery on an option, the shorts must have their flaxseed in the elevators and have in their possession certificates for it. Therefore, on Friday, t..e flaxseed on track was no longer held up by the high price of the May option and it quickly dropped to the neighborhood of the June and July options.

There is another feature of the bulge that is quite interesting. It was not until the end of the month of May drew near that the May option began to make its spread-eagle ascent. As long as there was time to bring Canadian flaxseed upon the Duluth market in time to make delivery on the May option, the price of that option stayed down pretty well. The difference between it and Winnipeg May did not go much above the amount of the duty, 25 cents, plus the cost of transportation from Port Arthur by water to Duluth. As the end of the month approached, the holders of the Duluth May option grew bolder and bolder and demanded higher and higher prices for it, in view of the fading possibility of Canadian flaxseed being rushed upon the Duluth market to be used in making delivery.

It is predicted that the same thing will happen with the July option. A broker operating for a company that has been holding a large number of May options on the Duluth market recently made this prediction. The very same broker made a like prediction some weeks ago in regard to the May option. The other brokers, many of whom represented clients who were short on May, laughed at him. But the event not only justified his predictions, but went away beyond them.

There have been no developments on the foreign markets that have justified any such rise as took place in the May option at Duluth. During the past week flaxseed on the London market has fluctuated within a margin of only 6 cents and Buenos Ayres within a margin of only 4 cents, yet the price of Duluth May went up 25 cents. The price of Duluth July during that same period went up only 4 cents.

It cannot be denied that the situation of flaxseed the world over has been bullish. Linseed oil is very high and in brisk demand. It is so scarce in Great Britain that the linoleum manufacturers have been buying it from manufacturers in the United States. Yet, bullish as the flaxseed situation is, it is hardly possible to figure out a justification for the spectacular rise of Duluth May.

J. G. Peterson, traveling representative of Ely, Salyards & Co. in Western North Dakota and Eastern Montana, who was visiting on the Duluth Board of Trade today, declared that the farms through that region were looking magnificent. "We shall probably have a fine wheat crop in the Nothwest in spite of the decrease in acreage," he said. "That decrease was owing to the early fall and late spring, but just because the farmers did not have time to sow all the wheat they wished to, on account of the lateness of the season, they put in more barley and flax. The flaxseed sowing is going on yet. I believe North Dakota and Montana this year will raise vastly more flax and vastly more barley than they ever did before. Much of the flax is just coming out of the ground. Wheat west of Minot is about five inches high and it is looking fine."

John Inglis wired from Hastings, Neb.—"I can add little to my daily wires from Kansas and Oklahoma further than to say that their crops are considerably reduced from late current estimates. Cooler weather with rains has arrested, for the present, the further spreading of the serious condition. The crop has been injured materially in both states as many fields are beyond recovery. I am surprised to find Nebraska in such poor condition between Lincoln and Hastings. This section of the state has lost all of its early promise. Apart from the firing the wheat is thin, short, stubby and unhealthy. The crop is also late and any return of hot weather will cause further impairment. Taking the total crop, between here and Lincoln, under most favorable conditions, I think it cannot make more than 10 bu to the acre. As there was no rain here, fields are still firing and spreading rapidly."

Good milling wheat is scarce in the United States and in all other parts of the world. The British market has of late been beared by the large supplies arriving from Canada. At the same time the general quality of the Canadian crop is poor, and it is believed that British buyers will soon take alarm over the quality. In this country the general opinion seems to be that before another harvest, mills generally in the United States will have great difficulty in getting milling wheat, regardless of price.

Minneapolis and Duluth grain brokers now seem fairly unanimous in the opinion that the wheat acreage in Minnesota and South Dakota will this year be up to the normal or about equal to the acreage sown last year, but that there is a great decrease in North Dakota. But conditions are so much more favorable than they were a year ago, or two years ago, that to compare the acreage is almost meaningless. It is thought that if present conditions are anywhere near maintained until harvest, the three states can easily produce 225,000,000 bushels of wheat.

A. D. Goodman, manager of the Duluth Universal Milling company, who returned yesterday to Duluth from Kansas City, where he has been attending the annual meeting of the National Federation of Millers, said today: "Grain dealers in Kansas City told me Friday that if there was not general rain through that section within a week, the wheat crops would be utterly ruined. Rain did come that very night, but it has proved to be utterly inadequate. I am afraid the situation in that part of the country is very bad. I think the government crop report, which comes out in a few days, will show that in Kansas and Nebraska has gone backward instead of improving."

Rycroft wired from Chicago: "Notwithstanding the severe break wheat took place Saturday on the reported rains west of the river, our own reports and those of others this morning state most emphatically that irreparable damage has already occurred in a very large area in Kansas and that Nebraska had no rain of moment and is losing its early promise rapidly. We believe that the next government report will show a decided falling off in the condition in these two states and that our market will sell very much higher when these figures come to hand."

John Inglis wires from Oxford, Neb.: "From Hastings to Kenesaw there is some fair wheat but there is firing from Kenesaw to Oxford and fields are red. There are some green spots only. You can eliminate 400,000 bu from Nebraska. Prairies are burned. It would require heavy rain to save the best. Weather is clear, hot and windy."

The following is from B. W. Snow: "My correspondence shows that at the majority of points in Kansas no rain was received Friday night. There has been nothing in the way of general relief and the crop loss still continues.

Grand Island, Neb., wired: "Saturday's rain over the greater part of the state was a mere sprinkle. Conditions are worse than before. There is very high wind again today."

Le Count wired from Kinsley, Kan.: "I motored from Wichita today. From Wichita to Kingman wheat is headed and looking fine. It is in splendid condition and will make a good crop if it fills well. From Kingman to Greensburg wheat is in bad condition, the result of the drouth. All fields show damage. In many localities 50 per cent is gone and must have rain soon or the crop will be a failure. From Greensburg here the crop is later and will last longer, but it needs rain badly. Rain on Friday was too late to be of much benefit and the condition of Kansas is desperate. Many thousands of acres are seen turning white, simply drying on the ground. There is no sign of rain."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Turn Upward on Report of Too Little Rainfall.

Chicago, June 3. — Wheat prices took an upward turn today in consequence of reports that in large districts of Kansas the rains had been too light to confer much benefit. Throughtout the many thousand of acres the crop was said to be drying on the ground. Besides, a liberal decrease in the visible supply total was looked for, and world shipments were considerably under actual requirements. The opening varied from ⅛c lower to an advance of ⅜@½c. July started at $1.08¼ to $1.08¾, ¼c off to ¼c up, declined to $1.08 and then rose to $1.09¼.

A further advance followed statements that wide stretches in Nebraska had fired and that west of Great Bend, Kan., there had been severe permanent damage. The close was firm, with July at $1.10⅛, a net gain of 1⅝c.

In the corn crowd the commission men had an abundance of selling orders. Fine weather, too, favored the bear side, but wheat strength led to a rally. July opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 72⅜c to 73c, sagged to 71⅝c, and reacted to 72⅝@72¾c.

Covering on the part of prominent shorts led to some advance, which, however, caused renewed selling. The close was steady, ¼@⅜c net higher at 72¾@73c.

Oats swayed according to the course of corn. There was considerable activity of a well-distributed sort. July started a shade to ⅛@¼c easier at 47⅞c to 48c, descended to 47½c and later climbed to 49½c.

Firmness at the yards was reflected in the provision market. One of the chief packing companies led openly in the buying. Initial transactions ranged from 5c to 12½c higher, with September delivery $18.30 to $18.52½ for pork, $10.87½ to $10.95 for lard and $10.42½ to $10.50 for ribs.

STAGNATION IN STOCKS

Market Rules Fairly Steady With Specialties Unusually Strong.

Mild Pressure Placed on the Coalers Towards the Close.

New York, June 3.—Apart from substantial gains in such specialties as Can and Tennessee Copper there were few changes of note at the opening of today's stock market. Most of the active stocks rose fractionally on light dealings with a steady general undertone.

Dullness and reaction followed the steadiness shown at the opening. Some specialties were unusually strong, however, American Tobacco rising 9 points with material gains in Harvester, Republic Steel preferred and Sears-Roebuck.

Little of interest occurred in the early part of today's stock market, with fluctations of a point in the coal shares, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Can and Tennessee Coppers. The Amalgamated company issued its annual report, showing earnings slightly in excess of the preceding year with a large gain in surplus.

American Tobacco was a feature of the high priced specialties, gaining over 14 points, on rumors of an impending stock dividend. Bonds were easy.

The market closed steady. Final dealings brought no change from the stagnant conditions of the early afternoon, except for mild pressure on the coalers and a further rise in specialties already mentioned.

WILL DECIDE UPON ROUTE

Council Will Consider East End Car Line Extension.

Olssen Saloon License and Drug Ordinance Also on Schedule.

The council, at its meeting tonight at the city hall, will decide upon the route of the street car line from Fifth avenue east and Fourth street to Chester park, consider a report on Ole Olssen's saloon on St. Croix avenue, probably pass an ordinance providing for an extra precinct in the Seventh ward and consider the proposed drug ordinance.

Several robberies have taken place of late in the Olssen saloon and it is probable that Olssen's license may be revoked. The matter will come up for discussion tonight, Chief Troyer having made a report on the place at the last meeting of the council and a committee having been appointed to inquire into the matter.

The route of the car line will come up for final settlement. The company is said to have the rails and other equipment in readiness to be laid as soon as the route is decided upon.

At the last meeting of the council property owners on Fifth street between Fifth and Sixth avenues east appeared and objected to using the street for street cars, as the street is too narrow for a double track, it was claimed.

It is said to be practically decided that the route will be up Fifth avenue from Fourth street, along Fifth street to Sixth avenue, up Sixth avenue to Seventh street, along Seventh street to Seventh avenue east, up Seventh avenue to Ninth street and along Ninth street to Chester park.

Residents of the Seventh ward claim that the Third precinct is too large and want it divided. It is probable that it will be divided. At present there are said to be 500 voters registering in this precinct. An ordinance has been drafted by which the precinct may be divided and it is expected to have its first hearing at this evening's session.

The proposed drug ordinance is also expected to be reported by the committee. It has been carefully revised, and the objections of the retail druggists met, without lessening the effectiveness of the ordinance.

LAWYER CALLED BEFORE COURT

C. D. Bensel of Montevideo Cited to Face Disbarment Action.

St. Paul, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. D. Bensel of Montevideo, licensed to practice law in Minnesota in 1875, has been cited to appear before the state supreme court June 11, to face disbarment proceedings. A order to this effect has been issued by Chief Justice Start at the request of the state board of law examiners.

Attorney Bensel is charged with drawing complaints against three women of well-known and respectable families at Montevideo, and incorporating slanderous statements in the complaints. The papers filed against him by Frank L. Cliff, president of the board of law examiners, declare that the allegations were "untrue and without any warrant or foundation."

The judge of district court in which the complaints were filed by Bensel ordered the slanderous language stricken from them. The cases were dismissed for want of prosecution and no attempt was made to bring them to trial.

The complaints are said to have been drawn up by Bensel following a dispute among members of the Ladies of the Maccabees, in which his wife figured.

"REAL AND FAKE ADVERTISING"

The newly former advertising men's club will meet tomorrow evening at the Commercial club. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m. and a program will follow the dinner.

H. C. Strong of the Northern Shoe company will read a paper on "The Line Between Legitimate and Fake Advertising," and a general discussion of the subject will follow.

Visitors are expected at the meeting from the Twin Cities and Chicago.

The new club is proving to be a very lively organization. The meetings held have been marked by interesting papers and discussions, and the members derive much benefit from them.

BOYS MUST NOT KILL SONG BIRDS

With vacation days drawing near, school boys will be cautioned not to kill or molest the wild birds. Humane Agent McKercher says that he intends to keep strict watch and will prosecute all offenders.

Not only is there a state law against the killing of birds, but there is also a city ordinance which makes it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $25 or ten days in the county jail.

Boys with sling shots and rifles are expected to refrain from making the innocent and useful bird a target and if any offender is caught, the humane agent promises to make an example of him.

In the public schools, the various teachers will call this matter to the attention of their pupils. In the smaller grades, where Bands of Mercy have been organized, it is considered a breach of honor to kill a bird or mistreat any animal.

NORTH DAKOTA STAMP COLLECTORS ORGANIZED.

Fargo, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Dakota Philatelic association has been organized. It is composed of stamp collectors of both North and South Dakota, some of whom are well known in national philatelic circles. The officers are: Rev. J. W. Hyslop, Aberdeen, S. D., president; S. M. Edwards, Argusville, N. D., vice president; F. R. Gellerman, Lignite, N. D., secretary and treasurer.

TWENTY-SEVEN WILL GRADUATE FROM CLOQUET HIGH SCHOOL

YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN WHO WILL RECEIVE DIPLOMAS THIS WEEK.

handsome boyish face with hazel eyes, very dare-devil eyes—and a mass of curly chestnut hair. He was not all that he ought to have been at first, and when he was drunk, which was every Saturday afternoon, he had the temper of a fiend, and the strength of one. He was always fighting them, and nearly killed a man in a tavern, and served three months in prison, which sobered him from that day.

But even then he would "stand no nonsense" from man or woman, and when he cast eyes on Peggy she soon found that her flirting ways would not go down with Peter Tripp. He threatened to give her a good thrashing if he caught her ogling other lads, and carried out his promise. After that they were as meek as lambs with each other, and they "walked out" together as steadily as if they were already married. And they were the handsomest couple in the town.

It was then that Peggy began to save up for her "bottom drawer," and bought the chest which she still has, and the wedding dress which she had never worn.

It was on a Wednesday evening when Peter came round to look at her wedding garments. Peggy's mother left them alone in the parlor and they sat there in the dusk holding hands together and telling each other all the happiness they would have when they were married, which was to be on the very next Friday. To see Peter sitting there with a kind of soft look in his eyes, and his great square shoulders bending forward as he stroked Peggy's hand, no one would have thought that he was the same Peter who had been the terror of the town when he was a young drunkard about a year ago. The thought seemed to come to himself for he told Peggy that she had made a changed man of him and saved him from goinng to the bad. He put his arm round her waist and drew her towards him, and she let her head lie on his broad shoulder.

"I'm very proud of you, Peter," she said. "You're the best looking lad in the town, and the bravest and the strongest." He had kissed her for that, and that night when he stood at the back door he said, "We'll be man and wife before two more nights come round. It's fine to think of, Peg." Peg thought it fine to think, and there was no happier girl in England.

But the next day the tragedy happened, one of those swift, blinding tragedies which happen once now and then in a colliery town, and are remembered with horror long years afterwards. The news came to Peggy when she was putting some bows on the flowered muslin frock before her wedding day. She heard women crying in the street with strange moaning cries, and she held her head up from her needle and listened with her face growing white.

"What's that?" she said to her mother. Then somebody banged at the door and a neighbor came into the kitchen with her shawl half pulled over her face. "Something's happened—down in the mine. There's fifty of 'em dead, they say. I thought I'd come round to tell you, to take the shock off, Peggy's lad is down there; she won't need that frock tomorrow, and more's the pity."

The neighbor's ways of taking the shock off was not successful. Peggy gave a shrill cry and flung her arms on the table, and put her head down upon them. It was as though she had been stunned. But she suddenly sprang up, and, seizing her shawl, threw it over her head: "I'm going to find my Peter, mother, she said. "Keep the kettle boiling."

The kettle boiled a long time, and then the fire went out, for Peggy did not come back that night. All through the night, with many women, she waited by the pit head until the gray cold dawn came. And for three more days and nights she stayed there, having her food brought to her, and refusing to leave. Three men were brought up alive and forty-six men dead. Living or dead, Peggy stared into the faces looking for Peter, but all the missing men were brought up except young Peter. He was never brought up, though they searched for him for a week. He had disappeared into the bowels of the earth, buried in a tomb of coal.

That was long, long years ago. The years had passed slowly to the girl who could not forget, though she regained her cheerfulness. And as they passed one by one, five by five, ten by ten, her beauty faded, her luxuriant hair grew gray and thin, and the bloom of her complexion withered, and Peggy became "old Peggy," without teeth, without relations, waiting in the little almshouse for death to knock at her door. Peter, the handsome young collier, had long been forgotten by everyone except Peggy, who kept his photograph over her mantelpiece, and the memory of his youth and handsome face, and strong, bold ways, in her old heart. If Peter lived he, too, would have been an old, old man, trembling perhaps with the palsy, bald and wrinkled, and toothless, waiting for death.

One day forty years after Peter had "gone away" a strange thing happened. The colliers who were working at a seam of coal deep down in the lower mine discovered the dead body of a young man, buried as it were in a coffin of coal formed by great slabs crosswise. They carried him up and stretched him upon the ground at the pit head, and stood round wondering.

It was the dead body of a young man—a very tall young man with a clear-cut boyish face, and hazel eyes, unshut in death, and shaggy chestnut curls. It seemed as though he had died but yesterday, as if, indeed, he might still be living and only stunned. The colliers could not give a name to him. Many of them had worked in the mine for years, and this was not one of their comrades.

No one was missing, and there had been no accident in the mine or any serious kind for forty years, when fifty men had been entombed. Crowds of people came up to look at the dead body, and among them was old Peggy, who had heard the news, and with a sudden and marvelous energy tottered through the town to the pit head drawn forward by an excitement which she could not describe. When she came near the dead body the crowd made way for the old soul, and a thrill went to every heart there when suddenly she gave a shrill cry for joy and falling upon her knees kissed with her poor withered old lips the cheek of the handsome boy who lay there dead.

"It's Peter," she said, "my Peter. Oh, my dear, beautiful lad!"

They took her as she lay half swooning upon the dead body of the tall young man. At first there were some who thought Peggy had gone mad, but afterwards it was proved that this was indeed Peter Tripp, who had been buried forty years before. It was proved by his photograph over Peggy's mantelpiece. He had been buried in the coal all those years, so closely coffined that no air had touched him, and no decay had spoilt the beauty of his dead clay. He lay there after forty years as he had been struck down in death. Peggy, still living, was an old and withered woman, but she found Peter again as she had cherished the memory of him in her heart, with his chestnut curls and his hazel eyes, and his square handsome face. Now old Peggy is dead, too, but there are people who have not forgotten that almost miraculous reappearance of Peter Tripp, and who find a solemn and pathetic moral in this strange, true tale.

UNIQUE STUNTS FOR ELKS' MEET

North Dakota Herd Will Browse at Fargo During This Week.

Fargo, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Elks of North Dakota and Western Minnesota will be here tomorrow and Wednesday for the second annual meeting of the North Dakota Association of B. P. O. E. The local members have arranged to devote tomorrow forenoon to reception. The state association meets in the afternoon, in the evening there will be a decorated auto parade, and all day and evening there will be open house at the Elk clubrooms.

Big Parade Wednesday.

Wednesday forenoon will be devoted to the big Elk parade. Ten massive silver cups have been offered for different phases of this, and it is expected that hundreds of Elks will be in line. The local Elks have arranged some unique features. Some of the visiting lodges will have special features. Minot, Grand Forks and Devils Lake Elks will bring bands. In addition the Fargo band and the famous First Regiment band will also furnish music. Wednesday afternoon there will be aviation exhibitions, balloon ascensions with parachute drops, and four harness events at the state fair grounds.

The local ladies are planning to take care of the wives, daughters, sisters and sweethearts of the visiting Elks.

The streets and business houses are elaborately decorated in Elk colors.

Jamestown is slated for the next annual convention, which is arranged to go to the lodges according to the date of their organization.

TWO HEIRS FOR $500 ESTATE

Uncle in Canada and Cousin in Sweden Claim Larson's Property.

An uncle in Canada and a cousin in Sweden each claims to be the only heir to a $500 estate left by Andrew Larson, a laborer, who died recently at his home in Virginia.

The case came up for a hearing this morning before Judge Gilpin of the probate court. The judge refused to allow the final account until the tangle had been straightened and the real heirs determined.

The uncle in Canada, upon learning of Larson's death, wrote to Fred B. Rossom of Duluth, administrator of the estate, claiming that he was the only surviving relative of the dead man.

At the hearing today it developed that a cousin in Sweden had written to Axel Osterberg, Swedish consul at Minneapolis, setting up a similar claim.

Judge Gilpin has decided to place both cases in the hands of Consul Osterberg for investigation. If both are found to be heirs it is probable that the money will be divided.

Larson left about $700, but after all claims against his estate had been paid the amount was reduced to $500.

FIVE SCHOOLS FOR TUBERCULAR

Chicago Will Almost Double Accommodations for Children This Summer.

Chicago, June 3.—Five open air schools for children of Chicago who have tubercular tendencies will be opened this summer in place of the three which have been conducted for the last two years. The increase was decided upon today by the board of Chicago school extension committee in co-operation with the board of education and the Chicago Tuberculosis Institution.

The teachers and a permanent equipment of tents, chairs, cots, dining rooms and kitchens are supplied by the board of education. The institute selects the children and provides nurses and medical attendance, while food and transportation for the children are furnished by the extension committee.

Nearly 6,000 children who are in need of medical attention of this kind, the committee believes, can be cured if sufficient funds are provided. Three dollars, a week, it is estimated, will provide for each child in the open air schools.

LORIMER WILL MAKE SPEECH

Says He Knows Nothing About Senate Poll on His Case.

Washington, June 3.—The fight over Senator Lorimer's election will come up in the senate tomorrow when Senator Kern, leading the forces opposed to the Illinois senator, will make the first speech in what promises to be at least a two weeks' debate.

Senator Len of Tennessee, Kenyon of Iowa and others are expected to speak against Mr. Lorimer and many will speak for him. Senator Lorimer will be in his seat and expects to speak in his own defense.

Senator Loolmer arrived here today from Chicago. He declined to answer directly when asked if he had any intention of resigning, and when asked about the reported poll of the senate, which is said to be against him, he replied he knew nothing of it.

The senator declined to discuss his plans further than to say he expected to speak in his defense.

BATTLESHIPS IN THE NAVAL BILL

Senate Committee Restores Provision Dropped By the House.

Washington, June 3.—The senate committee on naval affairs, today restored to the naval appropriation bill provision for two battleships, stricken out by the house.

SOLDIERS AT FAIR.

State Militia Will Attend North Dakota Show at Fargo.

Fargo, N. D., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The management of the state fair has made a ten strike by securing the North Dakota soldier boys as one of the closing attractions of fair week. The militia is to encamp at Sparta, Wis., July 15-25, and the regiment will reach here either Friday or Saturday of the fair and be reviewed by the state officials and the governor, and the different companies will be sent home from here.

Rosseau N. M. D. A. Delegates.

Rosseau, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Delegates from Rosseau county to attend the meeting of the N. M. D. A. to be held at International Falls, June 20 and 21, have been elected as follows: R. J. Bell, F. H. Brown, Walthre Anderson, A. A. Burkee. Alternates: F. W. Swanson, C. A. Carlquist, G. I. Brandt and Olaf Hildahl.

ISLE OF PINES

A letter just received from A. J. Hunter on the Isle of Pines speaks in glowing terms of their new home, and the great prospects for the future. Mr. Hunter has a beautiful home there, and a grape fruit grove that will soon be a very profitable shipper.

Mr. J. E. Elliott of Duluth, a friend of Mr. Hunter, arrived there a short time ago and has purchased 40 acres with a grove in bearing. The Duluth colony consists now of about fifteen families, all of whom seem to be perfectly satisfied with their new location.

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION —OF— LAKE SUPERIOR EXPLORATION COMPANY.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, That for the purpose of organizing a corporation under and pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 58 of the Revised Laws of Minnesota, A. D. 1905, and the Acts amendatory thereof, we, the undersigned, do hereby associate ourselves together to become incorporated under the name as hereinafter given, and adopt the following Certificate of Incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of this corporation shall be LAKE SUPERIOR EXPLORATION COMPANY.

The general nature of the business of this corporation shall be the exploring, drilling and prospecting for iron, copper, coal or other minerals, or the precious metals, either for itself or for others, by virtue of any contract or contracts therefor; the buying, owning, leasing, selling and dealing in such personal, real and mining property as shall be necessary or convenient for the carrying on of any of the business aforesaid. Any of such business may be carried on in the State of Minnesota, or elsewhere. The principal place of transacting the business of this corporation shall be the City of Virginia, in the County of St. Louis and State of Minnesota.

ARTICLE II.

The time of the commencement of this corporation shall be the 4th day of June, A. D. 1912, and the period of its duration shall be thirty (30) years.

ARTICLE III.

SENATE DECLINES TO ACCEPT THE EMPLOYES CHOSEN BY GOVERNOR

To Use Its Own, Who Hold Over From Regular Session.

House Also Likely to Reject the Appointees of Eberhart.

Compromise Between Two Branches on Legislative Program Is Probable.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The legislature convened in extraordinary session at 11 o'clock this morning. After the formal reorganization of each branch, the two met in the house chamber at 12:30 to hear the governor's message. The governor was informed that the legislature was in readiness by a joint committee consisting of Senators Pugh, Stebbins and Ahmann, and Representatives Westcott, O'Brien and Lundeen.

Governor Eberhart received his first rebuff from the legislature this morning when the senate resolved unanimously to dispense with the service of legislative employes appointed by him, and to use its own, who hold over from the regular session. The governor had appointed a full set of cloakroom keepers, janitors, etc., but the members had brought their own men along and insisted on using them. The house will probably take similar action; at any rate it will refuse to pay the governor's appointees. "He can pay them

SENATOR SERIOUSLY ILL AT WASHINGTON

GEORGE S. NIXON
Of Nevada.

Washington, June 4.—Senator George S. Nixon of Nevada is dangerously ill in a hospital here with an attack of meningitis.

Senator Nixon submitted to an operation for a catarrhal obstruction last Thursday. Spinal meningitis subsequently developed. Specialists from Baltimore were hastily summoned.

Senator Oliver of Pennsylvania was among those who called at the hospital today and to him doubt was expressed that Senator Nixon would live throughout the day.

DEMOCRATS ON THE WAY

First Delegate to the State Convention Arrives in Duluth.

Fully 1,000 Visitors Expected Here By Thursday Morning.

The Democratic state convention, which will elect twenty-four delegates to the national convention at Baltimore and will instruct them to vote for the nomination of Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey for president, will convene at the Auditorium at 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

The first delegate from outside of the city has already arrived in Duluth. A number will come in tonight, and many will arrive tomorrow. By tomorrow night the hotel lobbies should be crowded with enthusiastic Democrats.

Local Democrats are anxious to have the business men along Superior street decorate their places of business for the convention. The gathering is an important one, and the merchants will probably recognize it by having the business houses in festive array.

The action to be taken by the convention is by no means settled. The personnel of the delegation is still a matter for speculation. The Wilson men will be in control and the delegates to Baltimore will be for Wilson, with the exception of the two from the Fourth district; but the number of Wilson men anxious to go to Baltimore is much greater than the number of places to be given.

D. D. Daly of St. Paul, chairman, and Harvey Grimmer of St. Cloud, secretary of the Democratic state central committee, will arrive in Duluth tomorrow. They have taken rooms at the Lenox and will maintain headquarters there for the distribution of

OHIO DELEGATES AT LARGE GIVEN TO TAFT IN STATE MEETING

Vote at Columbus Stands 390 ½ to 362 ½ in President's Favor.

First Actual Test Vote on Resolutions Won By Administration.

Nominees for State Offices Will Be Chosen After Chicago Convention.

Columbus, Ohio, June 4.—President Taft won in the fight for Ohio's six delegates at large to the Republican national convention today by a vote of 390¼ to 362½.

The first actual test of delegates gave Taft a victory by a vote of 393½ to 359½, when the majority resolutions report was adopted. On the minority report, indorsing Col. Roosevelt, Cuyahoga county (Cleveland) voted 45 for Taft, 8 for Roosevelt. Montgomery county (Dayton) gave its delegation of 29 for Taft. Lucas county (Toledo) gave its solid delegation of 22 for Roosevelt.

Roosevelt and Taft supporters have practically agreed that it will be unwise to select a state ticket at this meeting. Following the selection of the six delegates the convention is expected to recess until after the national convention at Chicago.

Politicians this morning declared this to be the "tightest" convention the Republican party has ever held in Ohio.

GOMPERS FURNISHED FUND TO BRIBE THE JURY, SAYS FRANKLIN

Declares Darrow Told Him So in Working for McNamaras.

Claims Lawyer Said Not to Worry About Harriman's Connection.

Detective's Testimony in Trial at Los Angeles Is Nearing End.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 4.—Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor, sent the money direct to Clarence S. Darrow to be used in the bribery of George N. Lockwood, according to Bert Franklin, under cross examination today in the trial of Darrow for alleged jury bribery in connection with the McNamara cases. Franklin said Mr. Darrow had given him this information.

Franklin testified at the same time that Darrow had told him he need not worry about Job Harriman being implicated in the case. Harriman, Darrow told the witness, could account for his visit to the safe deposit vault the morning he secured the $4,000 by the fact that he took out $500 to pay a mortgage, said Franklin.

Examination Near End.

The cross-examination of Franklin was expected to come to an end some time during the day's sessions of the trial, and clear the way for the intro-

FORMER GOVERNOR FRANCIS ON POLITICAL CONDITIONS

NOTED MISSOURIAN VISITS DULUTH

DAVID R. FRANCIS.

Distinguished Missourian Thinks Bryan Is Not in the Race.

Says His Own Chances Are Not Worth Considering.

Former Governor David R. Francis of St. Louis, who is here today making an inspection of the Berwind dock at Superior, in which he is interested, believes that the race for the Democratic nomination lies between Clark, Wilson, Underwood and Harmon. Mr. Francis does not consider that William Jennings Bryan is in the race. It might also be stated that the former governor of Missouri modestly declares that he, himself, is not considered as a possible nominee.

G. Ashley Tomlinson acted as host at luncheon today, at the Kitchi Gammi club, to Governor Francis, Frederick Hartwell of Chicago, president of the Berwind Fuel company; John Scullin, owner of the St. Louis street railway system; W. A. McGonagle, W. J. Olcott, A. C. Weiss of Duluth, and Messrs. Link, Sabastian, Malcolmson, Rutledge, Wood and Gilbert, officers of the coal company. The visitors left at 3 o'clock on a special train for the range, and will return tomorrow at 5 p. m.

Bryan's Chances.

"I am pretty well satisfied that the fight for the nomination lies between Clark, Wilson, Underwood and Harmon," said Mr. Francis, when asked for an expression of his political opinion. "Mr. Bryan has stated that he is not seeking the nomination, and I am quite sure that he does not desire it, nor will he be considered."

Here Governor Francis was remind-

DEADLOCK BETWEEN TWO HOUSES MAY BE RESULT

Two-Measure Program of Senate Not Pleasing to the House.

If Senate Sticks to This Plan, Session Will Be Short.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A deadlock between the two branches of the legislature, with the senate in a very embarrassing position because of its precipitous rejection of all but two of the measures that were likely to be considered at the extra session, is a leading probability.

Much more than a majority of the senators are signers of the pledge limiting the work of the senate to the state-wide primary and the corrupt practices act.

This means, if it means anything, that if the house sends over other measures than these, the senate will vote them down.

Judging from expressions by house members last night, this attempt to throttle reapportionment and the increase of railroad taxes is not to be cordially received by the house.

It is a practical certainty that the house will pass by an overwhelming

ISMAY TESTIFIES FOR CAPT. SMITH

Says Speed of Titanic Was Justified as Long as Weather Was Clear.

London, June 4.—J. Bruce Ismay told the British court of inquiry today that it had been planned to drive the Titanic at full speed during a few favorable hours of her maiden trip and that he considered Capt. Smith fully justified in going at full speed through the ice region so long as weather conditions made it possible to see ice ahead.

BRIDEGROOM HAS THIRTY SUITS

Court Reporter From Philippines to Marry Beloit, Wis., Girl.

Beloit, Wis., June 4.—With an outfit of thirty white linen suits, David Lewis Cobb, reporter of the United States supreme court for the Philippines at Manila, is in Beloit for his marriage to Miss Mildred Peet of this city, which is announced for tomorrow. Mr. Cobb is a friend of President Taft and of the sultan of Sulu.

Two years ago, Miss Peet went around the world with her mother. On shipboard she met Mr. Cobb and the engagement developed before the couple landed.

Taft Back at Capital.

Washington, June 4.—The yacht Mayflower, with President Taft and his party on board, reached Washington this morning at 7 o'clock from Hampton Roads, where the president yesterday welcomed the visiting German fleet.

DIES AS VOTES ARE COUNTED

Congressman Hubbard of Iowa Succumbs to Heart Failure.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 4.—Congressman E. H. Hubbard of Sioux City, representing Eleventh Iowa district, died suddenly this morning at the home of John C. Kelly, editor of the Tribune.

Mr. Hubbard was a candidate for renomination in the Republican primary in the Eleventh district yesterday against George C. Scott of Sioux City, and early returns indicated that he had won the nomination.

Hear failure is given as the cause of Mr. Hubbard's death. He had made a hard campaign for renomination and apparently was in his usual health yesterday. Early last evening he walked to the home of John C. Kelly to receive election returns. At 8 o'clock he fell unconscious. At 10 he rallied and at 11 appeared much better, but a short time later he became unconscious and died at 5:30 this morning.

Arrangements for the funeral probably will not be made until his widow arrives. She is enroute from Washington.

REPORTS THE COTTON BILL

Washington, June 4.—The Underwood cotton tariff reduction bill was favorably reported to the house today by the ways and means committee. The bill is identical with that passed by both houses and vetoed by President Taft last August.

Democratic leaders repeat their claim that its enactment would save more than $50,000,000 a year to the users of cotton clothing.

MOTOR PLUNGES OVER EMBANKMENT

Seven Persons Are Hurt in Iowa and Two May Not Survive.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, June 4.—Two persons were probably fatally hurt and five more or less seriously injured in an automobile accident near Traer last night. An automobile driven by A. J. McGovern ran off a bridge and over a twelve-foot embankment. Mrs. McGovern and her mother, Mrs. Gaffey, were crushed and hurt internally, and it is feared they will die. Mr. McGovern was badly cut with glass and four children suffered severe bruises. McGovern had turned his head to watch a horse which the automobile had frightened and lost control of the machine for a moment.

HARMON HAS FIGHT ON HAND

Unit Rule Will Be Cause of Clashing Among Ohio Democrats.

Toledo, Ohio, June 4.—Governor Judson Harmon faces a fight on the adoption of the unit rule in the Ohio state convention which is to meet for organization this evening and adjourn until tomorrow, when six delegates at large to the Baltimore convention will be elected and a state ticket nominated.

His friends insist he is entitled to the undivided vote of the state's forty-eight delegates in the Democratic national convention, for the reason that he defeated Woodrow Wilson in the recent presidential preference primary.

The Wilson forces have nineteen of the forty-two district delegates and insist that inasmuch as they were elected at a direct primary they should not be bound by instructions for Harmon under the unit rule.

They are said to be willing to indorse Harmon for president and give him a complimentary vote at Baltimore, but do not want to be tied up with instructions.

State Insurance Commissioner E. H. Moore, campaign manager for Governor Harmon, is standing firm in his demand that the state convention shall adopt the unmodified unit rule. He declares that 620 of the 952 delegates will vote to support his contention.

The indications are that Congressman James A. Cox of Dayton, will be nominated for governor on the first ballot. He claims more than 600 votes. His only opponent is Oliver H. Hughes of Highland county.

SKIDS UNDER ROOSEVELT

Taft Plans to Prevent His Nomination Are Well Matured.

Do Not Intend to Stop Short of Any Political Expedient.

(By Willis J. Abbot.)

Washington, June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Former Representative Charles Landis of Indiana said the other day to a friend of mine representing an Indiana district in congress: "The skids are under Roosevelt, well greased, and when word is given he will be slid down into the marsh of oblivion."

That is one anti-Roosevelt view. Another was expressed by Perry Heath, who, though not now in political office, is a fairly good exponent of the views of the Taft administration. Said he: "The plan of the Taft administration for the purpose of preventing the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt is perfectly well matured, the leaders are chosen and it will be put through with military accuracy. I am told it is going to be pretty raw; that it will be so hard handed

MESSAGE BY EBERHART

Direct Primary, Corrupt Practices Act and Reapportionment Urged.

Amendments to Federal Constitution and Congressional Reapportionment.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor A. O. Eberhart's message to the extra session of the legislature delivered today in person, was as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Minnesota:

You have been convened in extraordinary session at this time for the purpose of enacting into law three measures demanded by the people of this state, to-wit:

1. A statewide direct primary law for the nomination of all elective public officials, national and state.

2. A stringent and effective corrupt practices act applicable to both the

The snatcher gives his name as Larry Wilkes, his home as St. Paul and his age as 18 years. He has an accomplice, also captured, who calls himself John Saschingpaur, also of St. Paul, and aged 16 years. Their victim of this morning was Mrs. N. B. Glockle of 523 West Sixth street.

TAFT MEN CONFIDENT

Claim President Will Win at Primary in South Dakota.

Senator Gamble Is Opposed for Renomination By Three Men.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 4.—South Dakota, the last state to hold a primary for the election of delegates to the Republican and Democratic national conventions, today witnessed the closing struggle between the supporters of the national party leaders.

Three lists of delegates on the Republican ticket; severally pledged to President Taft, Col. Roosevelt and Senator La Follette, evidenced the warmth of the three-cornered party fight. Followers of the president were hopeful as the day advanced that the strength of his opponents would be divided. Roosevelt leaders were confident the colonel would carry the state by a wholesome plurality.

Clark Ticket Divided.

On the Democratic side the battle was waged between the Clark and Wilson forces. The Wilson men contended they would gain by reason of there being two Clark tickets.

The presidential preference overshadowed the other contests, although much interest was manifest in the fight of Senator Gamble, who is opposed for re-election by R. O. Richards, Col. Melvin Grigsby and Thomas Sterling.

A three-sided fight for the gubernatorial nomination on the Republican ticket was waged between George W. Egan of Sioux Falls, Frank M. Bryne of Faulkton and Loomis S. Cull of Rapid City.

DIES RETURNING FROM HOSPITAL

Ironwood, Mich., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Lena Scholl died Sunday evening as she was returning to her home here from Ashland where she went a few weeks ago and underwent an operation for gall stones at one of the hospitals in that city. The operation had proved very satisfactory and it was thought she might return home but death came while on the train. Mrs. Scholl was 47 years of age and is survived by her husband. The funeral will probably be held on Wednesday, final arrangements being held in abeyance awaiting word from the distant relatives.

William Burns died Friday at his home on Oak street. He had been a sufferer of cancer for many years. He was 74 years of age, and his wife was called only three weeks before him. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Leary and Mrs. John Scott of this city and another married daughter who resides at Butte, Mont. The funeral was held yesterday morning from St. Ambrose church. Interment was at Riverside.

REVOLT IN CUBA WORSE

Conditions There Are Getting Darker, According to Consuls' Reports.

Gomez Will Be Given the Right to Declare Martial Law.

Washington, June 4.—The rebel movement in Cuba is reported gaining strength rapidly, and conditions are becoming worse, according to advices received at the state department today from an American concern at La Maya. This company reports the destruction of fields, buildings, stores and the loss of livestock, by rebel operations.

The consul at Cienfuegos, Santa Clara province, reports that much feeling of uncertainty exists in his district.

Will Sell Cuba Rifles.

The state department has authorized the war department to honor the application of the Cuban government for 5,000 rifles and 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition, which are to be used to arm the volunteers and the guards organized by plantation owners to protect their property against the insurrectos.

President Gomez wanted the latest type of Springfield rifles, similar to the 10,000 already supplied to the Cuban army. When it was found that such arms could not be sold without express authority from congress, and as it would take some time to secure the necessary legislation, the Cuban government decided to accept the Krag-Jorgensen rifles instead. These are practically new weapons, having been supplied with new barrels and put in thorough order when they were withdrawn from the regular army and set apart to form a reserve supply of about 200,000 stand, to equip a volunteer army in case of need. The weapons will be sold to the Cuban government at about $5 apiece, plus express charges.

Extend Gomez's Power.

Havana, June 4.—There is no question but that congress at a special session this afternoon will pass the bill authorizing the president to suspend the constitutional guarantees. But there is doubt as to whether the president will make the decree apply to the whole island or to the province of Oriente only.

Many disquieting rumors regarding suspicious movements of negroes in Havana and vicinity were afloat last night. One band is reported to have left the city during the night. Another armed band is reported in the vicinity of Wajay.

Several arrests of suspected negroes have been made in Havana. One of these is believed to be an emissary sent by Governor Estonez to start an uprising in the western provinces.

The government today was still without news from Oriente.

TWENTY-THREE GRADUATES

Given Diplomas at North Dakota Agricultural College.

Fargo, N. D., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ideal weather prevailed today for the graduation exercises at the North Dakota agricultural college. State Senator McDowell of Marion was the chief speaker and twenty-three graduates were presented with diplomas by President Clark W. Kelly of the board of trustees. Following the graduation exercises, the annual president's reception was given.

Celebrate Davis' Birthday.

Richmond, Va., June 4.—The birthday of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, was celebrated quietly here yesterday by veteran and memorial organizations. The state flag was flown from the capitol and the Confederate colors from other buildings.

RAILROADS

W. A. GARDNER MAY VISIT DULUTH

President of Northwestern Lines Is on Tour of Inspection.

W. A. Gardner of Chicago, president of the Northwestern lines, may be in Duluth tomorrow.

With a party of railroad officials Mr. Gardner is making a tour of the lines in his private car. It is reported that today the car is between Duluth and Chicago and it is more than probable that the party will visit Duluth for a few hours.

Local Northwestern officials had not been informed today that it is Mr. Gardner's purpose to visit Duluth, but one of them stated that Duluth would, in all probability, be included in the list of places to be visited as the president is particularly friendly to the city at the Head of the Lakes.

NEW CONTRACTS LET FOR HUDSON BAY ROAD.

Winnipeg, Man., June 4.—Robert Rogers, minister of the interior of Canada, announces that contracts for another sixty-five-mile stretch of the railway the government is building to Hudson Bay, were awarded yesterday. Contracts for the final 200 miles will be let within two weeks, he said. Whether Port Nelson or Fort Churchill will be the terminal of the line will be decided this week.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

AMERICANS DEFEATED BY ENGLISH GOLFERS.

London, June 4.—A combination of bad play and ill luck completely upset all forecasts of Fred Herreshoffs' chances of winning the British amateur golf championship at Westward Ho and put the American out of the contest in his first game today. D. A. M. Brown, the Isle of Wight player, beat him by 2 up and 1 to play.

W. C. Vanderpool, the only other American competing, met similar fate at the hands of H. L. Nicholl of the Royal North Devon club.

Steinenger Resigns.

New York, June 4.—President Lynch of the National league received a telegram today from President E. A. Steinenger of the St. Louis National league baseball club, announcing he had resigned that position.

Mr. Steinenger was defeated recently in a legal conutest with Mrs. Helen H. Britton, owner of the club.

BACON RIND HEAD OF OSAGE INDIANS

Pawhuska, Okla., June 4.—Chief Bacon Rind and Assistant Chief Henry Red Eagle, representatives of the insurgency of the Osage tribe of Indians, were elected yesterday at a tribal meeting.

This means that a protest will be entered at Washington alleging that federal agents have not conserved the Osage interests in a recent lease of 680,000 acres of mineral lands in the Osage nation.

The lease was made to the satisfaction of the old chief and his counsellors, but when the terms of the instrument became known among the members of the tribe, there was great dissatisfaction. Bacon Rind at once announced himself as a candidate for principal chief, and got the co-operation of Henry Red Eagle. Both made a canvass of the tribe, selected a slate of eight members of the council and made a campaign. The entire insurgent ticket was elected.

DECIDES ON PROBE OF BEEF TRUST

Washington, June 4.—The house judiciary committee in executive session today decided to undertake a preliminary investigation of the "beef trust." The committee agreed to report the Edwards resolution calling for the investigation, but before doing so a private inquiry will be made. The committee does not propose now to call any of the men heavily interested in the packing industry nor to undertake any sensational investigation of packing conditions.

WILL PROTECT RIGHTS OF SMALL CHILDREN ON THE PLAYGROUND

At the meeting of the park board yesterday Martin J. Murray, secretary of the West Duluth Commercial club, was appointed supervisor of the public playground at Fifty-second avenue west and Wadena street. Many complaints have been made of late that the playground was overrun with rowdies, who continually keep the children from using the grounds.

Mr. Murray appeared before the board on behalf of the Commercial club and told the members of the existing conditions. He said that the older boys and many amateur baseball teams continually use the grounds for their sports. In the afternoon, especially, the children in this neighborhood are never able to use the grounds for their amusements, he said. He also intimated that considerable objectionable language was used by these older boys and young men.

In giving Mr. Murray the supervision of the grounds, the members of the board stated that he could use his discretion as to its proper management. Several turning poles, swings and open-air gymnasium apparatus have been installed on the grounds.

KILLED AT STEEL PLANT

John H. Keller Falls Seventy-Five Feet to Concrete Floor.

Widow's Brother Killed in Same Manner Three Months Ago.

But five minutes after he started work this morning, John H. Keller, a steel worker at the Minnesota Steel plant, fell seventy-five feet from a scaffold to instant death on a concrete floor below. Workmen, who immediately rushed to the scene of the accident, found the young man dead, his skull having been crushed in the fall.

Keller was 26 years old. He leaves a widow at 24 South Sixty-first avenue west. The young man had lived in West Duluth for fourteen years. He was married five years ago. He is also survived by his father, Frank Keller of Minneapolis, who lived in West Duluth up to several months ago. Two sisters, Miss Agnes Keller and Mrs.

JOHN H. KELLER.

George Dunleavy, and two brothers, William and Albert, of Seattle, also survive him.

Mrs. Keller, with the death of her husband this morning, has had two violent deaths in her family within the past three months. Her brother, Eugene Foucault, was killed by falling off a scaffold on the new Nemadji river bridge early this spring. His death was also instantaneous and somewhat similar to that of his brother-in-law this morning.

Just how the young man met his death this morning is not known, but it is believed that he lost his balance while working on the scaffold, falling to the concrete floor below. The men had just started their work for the day and had finished hoisting their scaffolds up to the steel roofs.

The funeral arrangements will not be made until the arrival of the young man's father, Frank Keller, from Minneapolis. The body has been taken to the Richter undertaking rooms. It is probable that the funeral will be held Thursday afternoon.

Will Support Missionary.

Plans for a campaign to raise money for the support of a missionary in India will be made Thursday afternoon at a special meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Elim Swedish Lutheran church, Fifty-sixth avenue west and Elinor street. The members will meet in the church parlors at 2 o'clock.

Dance Is Postponed.

Euclid chapter, U. D., Order of Eastern Star, has postponed the dancing party which was planned for Friday evening, because of the death Saturday of Louis R. Clark. The celebration planned for next Tuesday evening has also been postponed. Arrangements for it will be made some time next week.

FURNACE IN OPERATION

Zenith Company Resumes Work After Seven Months of Inactivity.

The Zenith Furnace company resumed operations this morning, after having been idle for seven months.

From now on and well into next winter the furnace will be in full blast with a day and night shift, each of 250 men. With the opening of the plant today about 150 men were added to the payrolls of the company. About 500 men in all will be employed from now on. While the plant was idle during the past seven months the company spent $50,000 on repairs to the furnaces and ovens. About seventy-five men were employed during the winter by the Brown Construction company of Cleveland, which had charge of the repairs and improvements to the plant.

When the plant closed early last November there were 25,000 tons of pig iron in the yards. This has all been sold and a number of large orders are now waiting to be filled. The full capacity of 250 tons a day will be turned out from now on to meet the demands of the orders. Sufficient ore has been stored away to keep the furnace in operation without any delays. An average of eight carloads of pig iron a day will be shipped from the local yards.

With the opening of the plant today every mill and shop in West Duluth is now in operation. The Virginia & Rainy Lake mill was the last to open, after having been closed for six months. A crew of 250 men is employed in night and day shifts. Fully 2,500 men are now employed in the various shops, factories and mills in West Duluth.

Farewell at Arnold.

Miss Anna C. Johnson, who has been a teacher in the primary grades at the Arnold school for the past six years, was last evening the guest of honor at a farewell reception given by the ladies of the Presbyterian church. Nearly 200 residents of Arnold attended the affair, which included music, games and refreshments. Miss Johnson leaves next week for the East, where she will be married.

Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Murray of 419 North Fifty-fourth avenue west were surprised by their friends last evening in honor of their fifteenth wedding anniversary. The evening was spent in music and cards, after which refreshments were served to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. C. Yoho, Mr. and Mrs. W. Plows, Mr. and Mrs. N. Collins, Mrs. R Goodhand, Miss Myrtle Murray, Miss Bernice Murray, Bert Plows, A. L. Murray and Leonard Murray.

Rev. A. C. Reinertson, pastor of the church, officiated and interment was in the Oneota cemetery.

Clark Funeral.

The funeral of L. R. Clark, 42 years old, who died Saturday evening at his home, 5711 Huntington street, was held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the West Duluth Masonic temple, 615 Central avenue. The services were in charge of the Euclid lodge, No. 198, A. F. and A. M., of which the deceased was a past master, Rev. E. R. Collier officiated and interment was in Oneota cemetery.

Joseph Goneau Dies.

Joseph Goneau, 62 years old, 203 North Fifty-fifth avenue west, died yesterday afternoon at his home after a short illness. He is survived by a widow and five children. The funeral will be held at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning from the St. James' Catholic church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Kinnear place. Rev. D. W. Lynch, will officiate and interment will be in Calvary cemetery.

Gained 50 Pounds and Good Health

"An unequalled tonic and flesh-builder" is the hearty indorsement given by Mr. Wm. H. Wiggs. From a sickly and rundown condition he gained 50 pounds, and today is a strong, vigorous man.

"Some three or four years ago my health was not good and I only weighed 135 pounds. My doctor recommended Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey to be taken before each meal. In three months' time, to my surprise and delight, I had gained 20 pounds. And now I am a man of solid flesh, weighing about 185 pounds. I have always been a hard worker and am now close on to the age of 40 years, but I feel stronger and more vigorous than ever, and can do a day's work without the least fatigue and go home at night and sleep like a baby, which I know is all due to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey."—Wm. H. Wiggs, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

If for any reason you feel all worn out, your nerves all unstrung, brain weary, tired and have no appetite get a bottle of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey at once.

It will bring back the sparkle in your eyes, put an edge on your appetite and give you better digestion. Better digestion drives more nourishment into the body, builds more strength, strengthens the nerves, gives more resistance to disease, more energy to the whole system.

It has been the standard of purity and excellence for over 50 years; made of carefully selected grain, thoroughly malted; wholesome and pleasant to the taste.

STUB ROO TONIC!

E. A. JOHNSON.

Manufacturer Stub Roo Tonic.

Duluth, Minn., June 17, 1909.

Stub Roo Medical Co., Duluth, Minn.:

Dear Sir:

I will let you know about your antiseptic lotion — for four years I have suffered untold agony from rash of eczema, which I had all over my body, with terrible pain, and nervous from itching and heat that I could tear my flesh to bleeding when all the hard spells came. I had all the doctors in Duluth and used their prescriptions, but all in vain. I tried all the patent medicines I could think of, but nothing helped me. I was advised by a friend of mine to try the Stub Roo lotion, I did and got help from the first bottle. I used and spunged my body all over and felt like I was all well after I got through my first treatment. No more itching, it checked the pain and I felt fine and had a good sleep, that I did not have for four years. My eczema is gone and I can now realize the blessing of health. I shall never fail to praise the remedy and the treatment, and why not? When all other remedies failed, Stub Roo Lotion has cured me. It is certainly the best remedy for eczema or any inflammatory eruption of the human body. I will gladly answer letters anyone may write to me, and I hope one and all who try your treatment will be entirely cured as I was. May God's best blessing be on you now and forever,

Yours truly,

NORTON AS A SLEUTH

Plots and Counter Plots Feature Trial of Private Detective.

County Attorney Had Stenographic Report of Conversation With Prisoner.

C. F. Richardson, a private detective, who is on trial before Judge Dancer and a jury in district court, may be endowed with the cunning of a Gaboriau and the genius of a Sherlock Holmes, but he has nothing on John H. Norton, county attorney.

Judging from the story which was unraveled this morning, the state's prosecutor is no slouch at the sleuthing game. He took the stand in the Richardson case this morning and told how he had succeeded in getting Richardson to come to his office and how he had exacted a statement from him.

The county attorney testified that he had asked Richardson to call at his office, telling him that he had some work for him to do. It had been prearranged that Hugh McKinnon, the alleged victim of Richardson's "frame-up," was to accidentally meet Richardson in the corridor. According to Mr. Norton, the men met and spoke.

Mr. Norton testified that he then asked Richardson if he knew McKinnon and that Richardson said that he did. The conversation then drifted into the McKinnon burglary case and from there on a stenographic report of the conversation was taken by Miss Louise Emerson, the county attorney's stenographer, who took the stand and read her notes of the conversation. In the statement which Richardson had made to Mr. Norton, he admitted practically everything which is contended by the state, except as to who took the initiative.

The state claims that Richardson instigated a burglary at the Soo freight sheds last March by inducing Hugh McKinnon, a prospective witness against the Soo road in a personal injury case which was at that time pending, to steal several tubs of butter.

Richardson's Defense.

Richardson will make the defense that McKinnon, who was convicted at last term of court for grand larceny, second degree, had been stealing from the railroad for several months, and that when McKinnon's intentions in this case were learned, he allowed him to persist in his criminal designs until he had actually committed a burglary, after which he turned him over to the authorities.

Richardson will disclaim that he took the initiative in the Soo freight shed burglary. In his statement to County Attorney Norton, he declares that he was in the employ of the Soo railroad company, and told of several conversations which he had with the officials relative to the "trapping" of McKinnon.

L. A. Cunningham, who was jointly indicted with Richardson, and who is a special agent for the Soo road, came to Duluth today to give himself up for trial. He was placed under arrest and later released on bonds. Cunningham will probably be tried as soon as the Richardson case is through.

Vernon R. Bell, who last week was convicted of attempted arson, second degree, was one of the state's witnesses in the Richardson case this morning. Bell testified that he had been in the employ of Richardson, and that although he had had nothing to do with the Soo freight shed job, he had heard Richardson speak of it several times.

McKinnon, who was on the stand yesterday, testified in effect that it was Richardson who had suggested going to the Soo freight sheds.

AMUSEMENTS

Lyceum Notes.

"A Night Out" is the title of May Robson's new comedy, of which she is co-author with C. T. Dazey. The type of character selected is that of a very lovable but eccentric woman, an old fashioned grandma, whose generous nature and quaint characteristics involve her in a very funny complication, and from this come numerous situations of the laugh producing character. Miss Robson will assume the role of "Granmum," supported by an excellent company. There are many well-known players in the cast. The play will be seen at the Lyceum, June 5.

A. Cohn of New York, who is to be the personal representative of Col. W. A. Thompson during the summer musical stock season of the Boston Lyric Comedy company, which opens Sunday evening at the Lyceum theater, arrived in the city yesterday and announced that the company of thirty-five people will arrive on a special car tomorrow morning from Chicago.

The chorus of twenty voices, which is to be the feature of the summer stock season, has been rehearsing in Chicago for the past few weeks and the final dress rehearsals for the opening performance next Sunday evening will start at once. Charles Sinclair, formerly stage manager for Henry W. Savage, Ziegfeld's "Follies" and Anna Held, will have charge of the rehearsals and the productions during the season.

The Lyceum management announced yesterday that the seat sale for the opening production, "The Follies of June 9," will start Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

HUGE PIKE IN HORSESHOE LAKE

Strange tales of a giant pike which inhabits Horseshoe lake, about ten miles from Woodland on the Howard-Gnesen road, are brought back to Duluth by E. McDowell, B. E. Johnson and R. S. Forgy, who spent Sunday fishing on the lake.

H. A. Nelson and B. E. Johnson of the Gately company are heavily interested in lands around the lake, having a beautiful farm and summer home there. The three men spent Sunday at Mr. Nelson's bungalow and put in the day fishing on the lake.

"The settlers out there," said Mr. Johnson, "tell stories of a giant pike in the lake. They claim it has been there for years and has grown to an enormous size. It preys on all the smaller fish and they have picked up fish weighing two or three pounds with their heads or tails bitten off. Some of the settlers claim to have seen the pike jump, and say it is several feet in length. We spent the day trying for him with our heaviest tackle, but didn't get a raise, although we had good luck with smaller fish. The settlers are all after the 'big fellow,' but he seems to be a wily old pike and they haven't got him yet."

GIVEN DIVORCE AND ALIMONY

Cruelty, drunkenness and desertion are the grounds upon which a divorce was granted this morning to Mary Peterson, aged 37 and mother of four children. Her husband was Anton Peterson, 35 years old, whom she married at Cumberland, Wis., on Dec. 23, 1906. The divorce was given by Judge Dibbell of the district court.

Mrs. Peterson claimed on the stand that her husband left her six years after their marriage to live with another woman and that he lived with this woman for three years. She also testified that while at home he had treated her in a cruel and inhumane manner and that he was an habitual drunkard.

Although Peterson had engaged an attorney to fight the case and had filed an answer to the action, he put in no appearance at the trial this morning and the case went by default.

Peterson is supposed to be residing at Moose Lake. The court has made an order directing him to pay his wife's attorney's fees and alimony for her support and that of the children.

E. D. GRAFF DIES IN PITTSBURG

After it was thought that E. D. Graff, president of the Scott-Graff Lumber company, was on the way to complete recovery, following an operation performed some six weeks ago at a Pittsburg hospital, he died quite suddenly yesterday.

Mr. Graff was 66 years of age and had, until the past few years, enjoyed good health. He was at the head of the well known Duluth concern and although he did not live in Duluth he was most optimistic over the future of this city and visited here several times each year.

A nephew, Carroll F. Graff, a resident of Duluth, left yesterday to attend the funeral which will be held at Worthington, Pa., Thursday. The family home was at Worthington.

Mr. Graff leaves a widow at Worthington.

Formerly Mr. Graff was interested in the Tower Lumber company, having been one of the organizers of the company. He visited in Duluth early this spring. About six weeks ago it was found necessary to perform an operation and for some time he gave every sign of recovering.

Before Mr. Graff became interested in the local lumber concern it was known as the Scott & Holston Lumber company.

Mr. Graff was well known in Duluth and many of the older residents of the city will read of his death with genuine regret.

WILL CARRY CASE TO HIGHEST COURT

In district court yesterday Judge Dibell heard arguments in a case which may prove to be of exceptional importance and will likely result in a definite determination of the powers of the state railroad and warehouse commission. The case is that of the state against the Great Northern road and the question at issue is as to whether or not the state railroad and warehouse commission was within its rights in ordering the road to install scales at the Clarkson coal dock here. The commission so ordered the road, and the road appealed the case. The appeal was heard yesterday and the matter was taken under advisement by the court.

It is the purpose of both parties to the suit to make this a test case, and it will doubtless be carried to the highest tribunal before it will have been settled. The road claims that the commission has no right to make such a demand, as it constitutes practically a confiscation of the road's property. The state contends that it has a perfect right to so order such a convenience to be installed.

The railroad and warehouse commission was acting under a law passed at the 1911 session of the legislature.

W. J. Stevenson, assistant attorney general, appeared for the state and the road was represented by M. L. Countryman of St. Paul and Baldwin & Baldwin of Duluth.

PLEADS GUILTY; IS GIVEN LIFE

Brainerd, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Piersson, a Minneapolis bookbinder, pleaded guilty in district court yesterday afternoon to murdering George C. Douglas the homesteader who had resided in the vicinity of Pequot. Piersson told Judge C. W. Stanton that he wanted no attorney. He admitted the killing. He claimed, however, that the gun was discharged while he had a scuffle in the room with the old man, Douglas, and that it hit the stove.

Used Hammer, Too.

During the fight he struck Douglas with a hammer and with the stock of the gun. He admitted having been arrested several times for offenses. When asked if he had anything further to say, Piersson recited the whole apostle's creed without error. Judge Stanton sentenced him to imprisonment for life and he will be taken to Stillwater to serve his sentence.

COMPTROLLER LEAVES FOR NATIONAL MEETING.

W. S. McCormick, city comptroller, left this afternoon for Buffalo, N. Y., and will be absent for about ten days. Mr. McCormick has gone to attend the annual meeting of the National Association of City Comptrollers and Accounting Officers which will meet in Buffalo on June 6, 7 and 8. He has to be in the convention city a day or two ahead of the meeting time, for he is treasurer of the association and has to have his accounts ready for his report.

Mr. McCormick expects that Eben D. Fisher, first deputy comptroller of Greater New York, will be re-elected president. A fine program including speakers of national importance and standing has been provided and one of the most noteworthy meetings of the association is expected. Two hundred cities are members of the association.

Rheumatism

A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bidridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. If, after you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

FARGO ENTERTAINS ELKS' ANNUAL MEET

Fargo, N. D., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Elks of North Dakota have captured Fargo. There are hundreds of them here today from all over this state and western Minnesota participating in the second annual state meeting of the order.

This forenoon was devoted to welcoming the guests, registering the visitors and furnishing them with identification cards and tickets for the amusement. Open house was kept last night and today.

This afternoon at the Fargo theater President Morton Page of the state association called the convention to order. After invocation by Rev. Dr. Beard, Mayor Sweet of Fargo welcomed the visitors. The response for Fargo was made by Judge Miller and for the state by Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler Bauer of Mandan. The business session was not an extended one, being devoted to increasing interest in the state association and to plans for attending the grand lodge session at Portland in July.

Jamestown Next Year.

Jamestown was selected as the place for the third annual session of the association and Charles Klaus of that city was elected president.

After the business session the Elks were again entertained at the club rooms.

Tonight the decorative auto parade will be given, beginning promptly at 7:30. Four large silver cups have been offered for the four best decorated cars and these will be presented in front of the grand stand at the state fair grounds tomorrow.

Tomorrow morning there will be the annual parade and in the afternoon, the aviation and balloon exhibitions and harness races at the state fair grounds.

Five bands are furnishing music for the occasion and practically every business house and all the leading streets of Fargo and Moorhead are especially decorated in national and Elk colors for the occasion.

NOTES OF BOYS' DEPARTMENT

Members of the boys' department of the Young Men's Christian association will take a street car ride and "hike" next Saturday morning to the Jean Duluth farm. The expedition will be under the management of Norman D. McLeod, the secretary. The party will gather at the boys' department building, Sixth avenue east and Third street, and will go as far as possible towards the farm on the street cars. After reaching the end of the line they will walk the rest of the way, a distance of about five miles.

Another outing for the boys has been planned by John R. Batchelor, the physical director. This will be a bicycle trip to St. Paul, beginning on June 25.

Mr. Batchelor has gone to Cedar Rapids, where he will visit relatives for the next three weeks.

You Are Invited to Attend Our Thomson Glove-Fitting

Corset Demonstration

The demonstration of Thomson Glove-Fitting Corsets is always interesting because every Thomson corset has some special feature and function that makes it invaluable.

Thomson Glove-Fitting Corsets were the first made in America, and for more than fifty years they have been the first choice of women who are particular that their gowns shall have the correct figure.

The secret of the great success of these corsets lies in the fact that they fit the figure like a glove, in other words they are absolutely comfortable, which cannot be said of all corsets.

Miss Lewis, the expert corsetiere, will see that you get the right model, the right length and perfect adjustment of the garment about bust and hips.

IN POLICE COURT

So far as business in police court this morning was concerned postponements and dismissals were the main features. This afternoon several cases are being heard. Ed Donahue and Nellie Hood arrested at the West end are charged with disorderly conduct. Donahue pleaded guilty, but curiously enough, Nellie would not plead, merely saying that it was the man's fault. Therefore the court directed that a plea of not guilty be entered for her, and the case is being heard this afternoon.

William Byron was arraigned on a charge of non-support of his wife and three children and his case was put over for a hearing until 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Frank White, charged with trespassing in the Northern Pacific yards, where he was aimlessly trying to find a place to sleep, was arraigned and sent up for five days.

William Kennedy will have a hearing tomorrow afternoon on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree. He was arraigned this morning. It is charged that he stole a watch from one Martin McCarthy.

Isadore and Saul Goldberg, proprietors of the Holland hotel, were arraigned on a charge of opening the bar in their hotel before 5 o'clock on the morning of May 31. They pleaded not guilty and the hearing was put over until Thursday afternoon.

Fred Owens, who pleaded not guilty the other day to the charge of speeding an auto on First street, changed his plea this morning and paid a fine of $17.50.

J. Benjamin Eisenbrandt, manager of the bowling alley in the Y. M. C. A. building was arraigned on the charge of passing a check drawn on the Northern National bank for $45 when he did not have sufficient funds in the bank. He made good, however, and the case was dismissed.

Not Known in Duluth.

A Chicago dispatch says that Mrs. Evelyn Marie Yould McDonald, daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Yould of Duluth, is suing her husband, Harold A. McDonald, for wife abandonment. McDonald is a son of Dora McDonald, widow of M. C. McDonald of Chicago, who has often been in the limelight. There was an all-day chase by officers for young McDonald, and finally his mother agreed to appear with him at the police station and furnish bail. Now it is announced that the legality of the young couple's marriage is to be attacked on the ground that he was under age when the ceremony was performed on May 14. The name of Mrs. Evelyn Yould does not appear in the Duluth directory. The daughter is said to have been posing in Chicago for a film company when she eloped with McDonald.

BRYAN WILL LECTURE HERE

Will Talk on "The Signs of the Times" at First Church.

William Jennings Bryan, the great Commoner, who has been three times the Democratic nominee for president, will deliver his lecture, "The Signs of the Times," at the First M. E. church in this city on Friday, June 14.

Mr. Bryan yesterday accepted the invitation which was extended to him by the Young Men's Christian association of this city, under whose auspices he will deliver his lecture here.

The Y. M. C. A. management has been attempting for some time to arrange with Mr. Bryan for a lecture. Last evening, Assistant Secretary E. D. Ranck received a telegram from him stating that June 14 was an open date and that if it was acceptable he would come.

Mr. Ranck immediately wired an acceptance. Mr. Bryan's last appearance in Duluth was in 1909 when he delivered his lecture, "The Prince of Peace," at the Y. M. C. A. building under the auspices of the local association.

Mr. Bryan has many warm admirers in Duluth and always meets with a warm reception here.

YOUNG PURSE SNATCHERS SHOW AMAZING AUDACITY

after 11 o'clock this morning almost at the Fourth avenue entrance of the Phoenix block while Mrs. Glockle was walking down hill to catch a Duluth-Superior car. The two youths approached her and without a word of warning Wilkes grabbed her hand satchel and then he and his partner bolted across Fourth avenue and down to Superior street. Saschinpaur crossed Superior street in the direction of the Spalding, but Wilkes coolly walked into the city passenger office of the Milwaukee road in the corner room of the Palladio building. Mr. Kennedy, the agent of the road, looked up but saw merely a young man help himself to a time table next to the door and proceed to look it over. Mr. Kennedy paid no more attention, as the young man had evidently found what he wanted and asked no questions, and nonchalantly perused the folder.

In the meantime Mrs. Glockle ran down Superior street and excitedly called for an officer, announcing that she had been robbed. A crowd quickly collected and began looking aimlessly for the culprits. An elderly man, whose name has not been learned, was standing in front of the ticket office and had looked with wonder on the actions of the young men. When he learned of the robbery he told Mrs. Glockle and other members of the crowd that he believed that the man they wanted was inside. Officer Dickman entered and took the studious young man out, and Mrs. Glockle identified him. Again the nerve of Wilkes was evident. When he was identified, he sneered and said:

"Oh——, now you've got me; so take me out and get rid of this ——— crowd."

That was all he seemed to care. His partner was captured a few minutes afterwards on Michigan street. The purse was recovered and Mrs. Glockle continued on her way to Superior, but will appear later to file her complaint.

GOMPERS FURNISHED FUNDS TO BRIBE THE JURY, SAYS FRANKLIN

duction of other evidence by the prosecution.

Although the defense has professed itself well pleased with a number of points brought out by its examination of one of the state's chief witnesses, the special story told on direct examination by Franklin has not been materially changed as a result of attack by the defense.

Hint at Defense.

That Darrow will base his defense on the assertion that the agreement for the McNamara brothers to plead guilty had been made before the conclusion of the alleged negotiations for the bribery of Juror George N. Lockwood, has been indicated.

In continuing his cross-examination of Franklin, Chief Counsel Rogers for the defense asked Franklin concerning his meeting with Mr. Darrow and Lincoln Steffens in a local hotel, account of which was given on direct examination. It was at this time, said the witness in his direct examination, that Darrow showed him the list of names comprising the ninth special venire of McNamara talesmen, including the names of Lockwood and Kruger.

Mr. Rogers said at the conclusion of the session that Lincoln Steffens would testify that the arrangements for the pleas of the McNamara brothers had been concluded before the evening of Nov. 26, 1911, the time of the meeting testified to by Franklin.

DEMOCRATS ON THE WAY

badges and the arrangement of other details of the convention.

First Delegate.

John M. Duell of Rochester, a member of the Olmsted county delegation, is the first delegate to arrive from outside of the city. Mr. Duell arrived in Duluth last night. The counties from which delegates will arrive tonight are not known, but a number of delegates will come. The leaders of the Democracy of the state are expected to arrive early tomorrow, and there will be several conferences to clear up disputed points in the convention program.

The personnel of the delegates to Baltimore, the application of the unit rule and the wording of the resolutions instructing for Wilson are expected to furnish the excitement of the convention. The Ramsey county delegation of ninety-five is solid for Clark. Although greatly outnumbered in the convention, they will make a fight, especially on the question of the application of the unit rule. The two delegates to Baltimore from the Fourth district will be Clark men, and the unit rule would prevent them casting their votes in accordance with their preference. The Wilson men believe that the unit rule should obtain this year as in other years, so as to make the state's influence solid in the national convention, and they will probably have their way.

Bryan Men Busy.

Efforts have been made to stir up support for Bryan, although Bryan is not an avowed candidate for the presidential nomination. The wording of the instructions will probably be such that the Minnesota delegates will be able to go to Bryan if Wilson's nomination should prove impossible at Baltimore. The delegates will be bound to support Wilson as long as their support is desired by the New Jersey man, however, and the Wilson men will insist on instructions that will prevent a desertion from Wilson before his chances of gaining the nomination have disappeared.

The Democrats of Minnesota hold no district conventions, and all delegates to the national convention are elected at the state convention. The delegates from the various district caucuses select their delegates and then report to the whole convention for ratification. The caucuses amount to district conventions, as the state convention always ratifies the choice of the caucuses.

Over 1,000 people are expected to come to Duluth for the convention. The railroads have made a rate of a fare and one-third for the gathering, and many people are expected to take advantage of it to visit Duluth. The Democrats of the country have high hopes of electing their presidential candidate this year, and a good attendance at the convention will be a result of the prevailing enthusiasm.

DISBARRED FROM THE CALIFORNIA COURTS

ABRAHAM RUEF.

San Francisco, Cal., June 4.—Abraham Ruef, convicted political boss of San Francisco, who is serving a fourteen-year sentence for having given a bribe to one of the boodling supervisors during the incumbency of Mayor Schmitz, was disbarred by the supreme court yesterday from practicing as an attorney in the courts of this state, as the result of proceedings begun at the instance of the San Francisco Bar association.

MESSAGE BY EBERHART

nomination and election of all public officials.

3. A reapportionment of the legislative districts as required by and in accordance with the constitution of the state.

These three measures were fully considered by you at your last session and you are therefore thoroughly familiar with the subject matter of each. Hence no elaborate or detailed discussion of them is required of me at this time, but a brief reference to each measure is due and proper.

Direct Primary Law.

Minnesota has been a pioneer in the enactment of direct primary legislation. The first step was taken in 1899, when a direct primary law was enacted for Hennepin county.

At the following session—1901—this law was amended in some particulars, extended to the whole state and included all positions except state officers and certain minor officials. Since that date it has governed our political action in making party nominations for office.

Tried by more than ten years of actual experience in this state, the direct primary law has so established itself in the judgment and convictions of the people that no aspirant for public favor would have the hardihood to propose its repeal. It simply substitutes the direct action of the people themselves for the system of delegated authority exemplified in conventions. It makes public officials directly responsible to the people and it makes the people directly responsible for the selection of their representatives. It eliminates the domination of special interests by placing the people—who are the source of all political power—in direct control.

The insistent demand of the people for the right of direct and unhindered participation in all matters of government is attested by their unswerving support of the existing direct primary law and the passage at your last session of a law for the direct nomination and practically direct election of United States senators. The recent action of the congress of the United States in proposing an amendment to the Federal Constitution providing for the election of United States senators directly by the people is a further proof of the settled purpose of the people to exercise their political power directly and not through representative bodies.

Under the Constitution you are the lawmaking power of this state, and it is primarily your right and duty to determine what the law shall be, and in reaching that determination it is for you to consider the various details of the proposed legislation. Whether or not the direct primary law shall be non-partisan, what provisions it shall contain as to second choice, just how it shall be applied to the selection of delegates to national conventions and many other questions of detail which will arise in the consideration of this measure, are for you to primarily determine, and it is not my purpose to suggest any particular plan of direct primary, but confidently relying on your wisdom and patriotism, I earnestly recommend the prompt passage of a law providing for the nomination of all public officials by a direct vote of the people.

Corrupt Practices Law.

To pass a direct primary law without enacting a stringent and effective corrupt practices act would be to merely adopt the nomenclature of reform and reject the reform itself. The present law on the subject—passed over seventeen years ago—has, according to common report and belief, been "more honored in the breach than observance," and should be supplemented by a law that absolutely eliminates the improper use of money in conducting campaigns for nomination and election.

Legislative Reapportionment.

Section 23, article IV of the Constitution of the state provides: "The legislature shall provide by law for an enumeration of the inhabitants of this state in the year 1865 and every tenth year thereafter. At their first session after each enumeration so made and also at their first session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional, senatorial and representative districts, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts, according to the provisions of section 2 of this article."

Section 2, article IV provides: "The number of members who compose the senate and house of representatives shall be prescribed by law, but the representation in the senate shall never exceed one member for every 5,000 inhabitants, and in the house of representatives one member for every 2,000 inhabitants. The representation in both houses shall be apportioned equally throughout the different sections of the state, in proportion to the population thereof, exclusive of Indians not taxable under the provisions of law."

The last legislative apportionment was made in 1897, over fifteen years ago, and it is a matter of common knowledge that representation in our legislature today is grossly unequal under the constitutional provisions just quoted.

In the last campaign all political parties in their platforms distinctly pledged the people a legislative reapportionment as required by the Constitution. You were unable to pass a legislative reapportionment at the last session, but in this special session, with but few subjects pressing for your consideration, failure to pass a legislative reapportionment in accordance with the Constitution would be a deliberate defiance of the right of the people to govern themselves. To deny the people equal representation in the lawmaking branch of their government is to strike down the fundamental principle of popular government by subjecting the majority to the rule of the minority.

I earnestly recommend the early passage of a legislative reapportionment according to the Constitution.

Direct Election of United States Senators.

The legislature of Minnesota has repeatedly memorialized the congress to provide for the direct election of United States senators and congress has at last proposed such an amendment. I herewith transmit this amendment for your consideration and recommend its immediate ratification.

Federal Income Tax.

The last legislature failed to ratify the proposed amendment to the United States Constitution providing for a federal income tax, and I herewith again transmit this proposed amendment for your consideration and recommend its ratification.

Congressional Reapportionment.

Since your adjournment congress has assigned ten members of the national house of representatives to the state of Minnesota instead of nine, as at present. This necessitates the redistricting the state into ten congressional districts, and there is no valid reason why this session should not provide for such congressional reapportionment.

WANT TO STUDY WISCONSIN LAW

Minnesota Legislators Are Calling for Copies of Primary Provisions.

Madison, Wis., June 4.—Hundreds of requests for copies of the Wisconsin primary election law have been received at the legislative reference library and the office of Senator La Follette in this city during the last few days from Minnesota, since Governor Eberhart summoned the legislature of that state in special session to enact a statewide primary law. The Minnesotans are especially interested, apparently, in the second choice provision of the Wisconsin statute. One Minnesota inquirer asked for 200 copies of the Wisconsin law to circulate among the legislators and their friends.

out of his contingent fund if he cares to," said one member.

Talk of Compromise.

The split between the two houses was more definite than ever this morning, though from house sources there was talk of compromise. In the senate fifty-five members had signed the two-measure pledge, including all but these senators: Boyle, Cheadle, Dunn, Elwell, Glotzbach, Peterson, Sageng and G. H. Sullivan. The joint resolution binding the legislature to this program will be introduced this afternoon or tomorrow.

The house unanimously adopted a rule providing that all measures but six shall be excluded except by a two-thirds vote. The six are: State-wide primary, gross earnings, reapportionment, corrupt practices and the two federal constitutional amendments.

There is a suggestion that the house may propose to the senate to add the gross earnings tax to the two-measure program and compromise on that basis. This would put reapportionment over to the regular session.

House Democrats Caucus.

The house Democrats caucused this morning and decided that, if an agreement between the two houses proves impossible, they will move to adjourn without any further action.

Representative Knapp of Chisholm was called by Speaker Dunn to act as clerk pro tempore during the organization of the house.

The desk forces are little changed, though like the general force they are reduced in both houses. D. W. Meeker was made assistant secretary of the senate, vice W. A. Simonton, dead.

The house voted to increase its elections, general legislation and tax committees to thirty-one members each, to be appointed by the speaker.

Flowers for Members.

Gorgeous bunches of flowers appeared on the desks of Senator J. T. Elwell of Minneapolis, author of the Elwell road law, and Representative Dunn of Princeton, author of the 1-mill road tax amendment. They came from C. M. King of Deer River, president of the Northern Minnesota Development association, and chairman of the good roads committee of that body. Mr. Dunn was addressed as the author of the Dunn amendment, and Senator Elwell as "the builder of ways."

There are five permanent vacancies in the house membership. J. J. Anderson of Alexandria, C. E. Johnson of Atwater and W. A. Fisher of Minneapolis are dead, and Representative Edwards of Breckenridge and Representative Hoffman of Rochester have removed from the state.

The chance for an adjournment over Thursday for the Duluth Democratic convention is excellent.

ed that he himself, was being somewhat talked of as a candidate for the Democratic nomination.

"Oh I haven't been seriously considered," answered Governor Francis, a broad smile illumining his countenance. "I won't be considered for the nomination. It will be one of the four men I have named. I am here to look into the proposition of making briquets at our dock in Superior." Mr. Francis continued, "I was here once before, quite a number of years ago and the development of this district is really remarkable. From what we have seen this morning in our inspection of the docks here and at Superior, and from what I have been able to learn of the progress being made here, I am inclined to believe that your development has merely laid the basis, strong and well built, for your future growth.

"Mr. Hartwell and myself have faith in the future of the industrial progress here, and that is the real reason that I am here. I can only repeat that the progress that has been made during the interim of my two visits has really given me a remarkable surprise.

Development in Southwest.

"You know that the development of the Southwest is in some respects greater than the development that you are going through up here. We believe that we are undergoing a marvelous industrial growth all through the Southwest, and I am of the sincere belief that the South is also coming in for a tremendous growth along all the lines of industrial development."

Governor Francis remarked that he was greatly interested in agricultural development, being a member of the board of one of the agricultural schools of Missouri, and that he was impressed with what he had been told of the awakening agricultural interest in the northern part of Minnesota.

"We are in a period of awakening development along many lines," concluded Mr. Francis, "and right at the present time the country is making great progress in the volume of business. I am optimistic in regard to the business outlook of the country, for there is evidence on every hand of the tremendous growth of various industries within the past few months."

During their stay here the visitors were shown the docks here and Superior and were given as great an opportunity as the time afforded to gain an idea of the business done by rail and water routes. Mr. Sculiln concurred in the opinion expressed by Governor Francis regarding the development at the Head of the Lakes. The party left this afternoon for a trip to the range.

This Sale of Oriental Rugs Presents Matchless Buying Opportunities: Heed Them and Save Much

—We do not know when such opportunity for buying genuine Oriental rugs was offered before. We are sure not recently. We doubt if ever in this section.

—Ready cash often works wonders in the market metropolis. It did in this purchase of rugs. We were really surprised ourselves to find the rugs so good, considering the price concession we received.

—The variety is most pleasing. The wonder of patterns and the blending of the soft tones exemplify the craft of the best weavers of Persia, Turkey, Arabia and Syria.

—Here is a partial list of the values to be had at the hour this advertisement is being prepared. There are many others not listed though, which are equally as great values. Just the same we advise early selection to avoid disappointment.

MINNESOTA POLITICS

Delegates to Democratic Convention Will Arrive Early—Clash Expected on Wording of Instructions—Chairman Mills and C. E. Elmquist of Railroad and Warehouse Commission Will Have Opposition.

Delegates Coming Early.

Delegates to the Democratic state convention will begin to arrive in Duluth tonight. The majority of the delegates will not get in until tomorrow night, but the leaders will head Duluthward today and early tomorrow. By tomorrow night the hotel lobbies will be well filled.

There will be a certain amount of noisy oratory in the convention, but no serious hitch in carrying out the Wilson program is expected to be encountered. The St. Paul delegation, as the bulk of the Clark support in the convention, will endeavor to get representation on the delegation at large, will attempt to block the enforcement of the unit rule and will carry the burden of the contest against the indorsement of Fred B. Lynch as national committeeman.

The Ramsey county delegation will have fighters in its membership and they will spill some oratory, but they are on the wrong side of the fence in the contest this year and are so greatly outnumbered that they will not be able to accomplish anything. When matters come to a vote the Wilson men will have things entirely their own way.

There has been some informal discussion of the chairmanship probabilities, but apparently no definite results have been obtained and nobody knows what names will be presented to the convention. There has been talk of M. C. Tifft for temporary chairman and J. M. Freeman of Olivia for permanent chairman. Today it was learned that Mr. Freeman is not anxious to serve and his name may not be presented.

Contest on Instructions.

The only matter on which a split in the Wilson men may develop is the wording of the instruction to the delegation to Baltimore. Wilson men are in great number, Bryan men also, and many of them will hold out for instructions that will give the Minnesota delegation to Bryan in the event of Wilson's nomination becoming impossible. Others would leave the delegates free to go to any other candidate in case they decide that Wilson cannot be nominated. The contest on the instructions will be fought out at the meeting of the resolutions committee, and the wording that will be presented to the convention will depend largely on the personnel of that committee.

Legislators Coming.

The Democratic members of the legislature will come to Duluth for the convention unless something unforeseen happens at St. Paul. The bills to be considered at the extra session are expected to be introduced tomorrow and referred to committees and if that program goes through there will be little for the legislature to do Thursday while the committees are considering the bills. Some of the most prominent Democrats in the state are members of the legislature, and they would be sorely missed at the convention if something should occur to prevent their attendance.

Legislature Holds Attention.

The extra session of the legislature and the prospect of the passage of a primary election law will divert attention from personal candidacies for some time. The primary law to be passed will probably set the date for the election along in September, or on the same day as the county primaries, which is Sept. 14. Had the original plan to nominate the state ticket July 2 gone through, candidates for all state offices would have been to the front by this time, but until the nature of the primary law is determined, there will be a certain degree of timidity among all candidates.

Loftus Is Candidate.

George S. Loftus, president of the Minnesota Progressive league, the La Follette organization, is expected to be a candidate for member of the state railroad and warehouse commission. In fact, the leaders of the Minnesota Progressive league will nearly all go before the people at the primaries. James Manahan is a candidate for attorney general and James M. Peterson aspires to Senator Nelson's seat. Loftus, Manahan and Peterson were the most consistent supporters of La Follette in the state and their fidelity to the Wisconsin senator's cause will give them a certain amount of support in their candidacy at the primaries.

Contest in Sixth.

One of the warmest district delegate contests at the convention here Thursday will be in the Sixth district, where there are four avowed candidates and any number of possibilities. W. A. Burnett of Park Rapids, Con O'Brien of Brainerd, Joseph Wolf of Staples and J. D. Kowalkowski of St. Cloud are the avowed candidates. Nels Bergheim of Little Falls is also said to be in the field, while Fred Schilplin of St. Cloud also would like to make the trip to Baltimore. With such a wealth of good material, the Sixth should have little trouble in picking an acceptable delegation.

Fight on Stevens.

A fight on Fred Stevens is developing in the Fourth district, and the congressman will not have an easy time if he retains his seat through the elections this year. Hugh T. Halbert may get into the game again, but that is extremely doubtful. The candidate now considered most likely to give Mr Stevens a hard contest is Ambrose Tighe, whose name has been brought forward in the last few days. Mr. Tighe has great support in St. Paul and those responsible for his candidacy believe that he would be able to oust Mr. Stevens.

Mills and Elmquist Opposed.

Ira Mills and Charles E. Elmquist of the state railroad and warehouse commission are in for a hard contest. In a convention they would have a good chance of pulling through, unless the old organization were entirely defeated in the caucuses. In a statewide primary, they will not have such a good chance, as they are vigorously opposed in several parts of the state. George S. Loftus will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for one of the places on the commission and E. H. Canfield of Luverne, a militant Progressive, who was chairman of the resolutions committee at the recent convention at Minneapolis, will also be a candidate.

BIG CHORUS FROM CHICAGO

Will Attend the Convention of Swedish Singers at Duluth.

Chorus of One Hundred to Participate in the Sangerfest.

Besides the 1,000 Swedish singers from the Western division of the American Union of Swedish Singers who are coming to Duluth July 22 to 25 for the grand biennial convention and sangerfest, it was learned yesterday that a grand chorus of 100 voices from Chicago will take part in the festivities during the three days.

Olaf S. Nelson of Chicago, who was elected high grand master of the Independent Order of Svithiod at the annual convention in Minneapolis last week, announced yesterday by means of a telegram to local members of the Swedish Singers' union that he will conduct the chorus in the various concerts during the sangerfest. Mr. Nelson is at the head of the Svithiod lodge in Chicago and is director of the large chorus of 100 voices. Besides this chorus, nearly 400 members of the delegation will make up a grand union chorus, which is to be one of the main attractions during the sangerfest. Notice of the arrangements for the biennial gathering of these singers was received here yesterday by Charles P. Forsell, president of the Western division. The delegates will all meet in Duluth on July 22. A short business session will be held in the afternoon at the Spalding, which is to be made the headquarters during the sangerfest. In the evening of July 22 the first of a series of three concerts will be given at the Lyceum theater. On the next day a matinee and evening performance will be given.

The Svea Glee club and the Orpheus Singing society are at the head of the local work for the convention and are completing the arrangements for the three-day festival. The two Duluth singing societies secured the sangerfest for this city at the last gathering held at Chicago two years ago. The members of the societies are planning on a boatride and automobile drive for the delegates during the convention.

The final business meeting of the convention will be held in the sun parlor of the Spalding on the morning of July 24. The exact program for the sangerfest will not be announced for several weeks, but the tentative plans have already been decided upon and approved by the officers of the American union. The following committee is in charge of the arrangements: Charles Forsell of Duluth, president; Dr. Victor Nilsson of Minneapolis, first vice president; J. A. Wallin of Duluth, festival secretary, and Charles Johnson of Duluth, treasurer.

The officers of the Western division of the union are as follows: Charles P. Forsell of Duluth, president; Dr. Victor Nilsson of Minneapolis, first vice president; N. O. Johnson of Chicago, second vice president; Herman G. Nordberg of Chicago, recording secretary; Ernest Lindskog of Chicago, financial secretary; J. A. Wallin of Duluth, festival secretary; Charles Johnson of Duluth, treasurer, and Arvid Akerlind of New York, director-in-chief.

INSURANCE RATES TO BE INCREASED

Convention of Independent Order of Svithiod So Votes.

Without a dissenting vote, the delegates to the annual convention of the Independent Order of Svithiod at Minneapolis, voted Sunday to increase the insurance rates to the basis recommended by the National Fraternal congress.

Gust Hjerpe, delegates of Fridhen lodge, No. 43, to the Minneapolis convention, returned yesterday to Duluth. Mr. Hjerpe was a member of the insurance committee and he declared yesterday that every delegates at the convention was in favor of a raise in rates, although it will affect the older members to a greater extent than the new men.

The plan will be put to a referendum vote Aug 1, and should more than one-half the members vote in favor of the change, it will stand. The older members, incidentally, were granted a concession. Instead of basing the rate on the actual age of the older members, the rate to go into effect under the new orders is based on the age of th older members at the time they joined the society. The new rates will be effective Jan. 1, 1913.

The 200 delegates all voted to make a radical change in the constitution of the order, whereby the post mortem plan of assessment will be eliminated. The adoption of the National Fraternal congress rate table made it necessary also to alter the constitution so as to abolish the assessing of all members at the same rate, regardless of age.

The following officers were elected for the year: Olaf S. Nelson of Chicago, high grand master; Knut Rydstrom of Minneapolis, vice high grand master, and John A. Sandgren, high secretary. Mr. Sandgren has been secretary for the past eleven years, having been re-elected each year. Mr. Nelson was president of the Swedish Union Singers of America for a number of years.

LAST MEETING TO STUDY SOCIAL PROBLEMS.

The Central Baptist Brotherhood of the Central Baptist church, Twentieth avenue west and First street, will hold the last of the series of monthly meetings in the church parlors Friday evening. The study of social conditions in the West end will end with the meeting Friday.

A supper will be served at 6:30 o'clock by the ladies of the church, after which the regular meeting will be features. The following special subjects will be discussed during the evening:

Does our industrial system promote irreligion among men?

How can the church and workingmen work together?

What is the remedy for drunkenness?

Does Sunday give sufficient rest for the workingman?

What are the possibilities of a united church?

What more can our church do for the welfare of young people?

The series of monthly suppers and meetings to discuss the social conditions of the West end began last February. Rev. J. H. Giffin has had charge of the meetings, which have proved most successful. At the opening meeting Feb. 2, the conditions of poverty were studied and discussed. The saloon, Sunday labor, the extent of the church, cost of living, recreations of the young, church co-operation, labor unions, wage rates, Sunday pleasures, school societies and religious societies are among the subjects which were taken up during the past five months.

Leaves for Vacation.

Rev. Milton Fish, pastor of the Central Baptist church, Twentieth avenue west and First street, and Mrs. Fish will leave today for a three months' visit with relatives in Boston and New York. They will return home the latter part of August.

During the absence of Rev. Mr. Fish the church will be under the charge of Rev. J. H. Giffin. The regular services and meetings will be conducted during the absence of Rev. Mr. Fish.

June Festival.

Plans for a festival to be held June 11 will be made tomorrow afternoon at a meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Swedish Baptist church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street. The members will meet at the home of Prof. and Mrs. N. E. Erickson, 2624 West Second street.

McDonald Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. A. S. McDonald, 31 years old, wife of A. S. McDonald, 2731 West Third street, who died at her home yesterday morning after a short illness, will be held from the residence at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Rev. J. A. McGaughey of the Second Presbyterian church will officiate and interment will be in Forest Hill cemetery.

West End Briefs.

Miss Ruth Gothe of 1412 West Superior street left yesterday for a short visit with relatives at Chicago.

Miss Hazel Fish of 1824 West Second street left this morning for Minot, N. D., where she will spend several weeks with relatives.

Miss Ruth Hanson of 2025 West Sixth street has returned from a month's visit at Green Bay, Wis.

Miss Jennie Olson of 2717 West Second street, has returned from New York, where she spent the winter with relatives.

The Tabitha Society of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church, Twenty-third avenue west and Third street, will meet in the church parlors Thursday evening.

The choir of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church will hold its regular practice Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Benjamin Haskins of 2601 West Huron street left this morning for a short visit with relatives at Rochester, Minn.

Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Hewson of Nashwauk, Wis., left yesterday for Chicago after spending the past week at the home of Rev. and Mrs. G. E. Silloway, 310 North Twenty-second avenue west.

Mrs. John Osquist left yesterday for a two weeks' visit at Minneapolis.

Mrs. P. G. Wallace and son, Clarence, of 2311 West Third street, left yesterday for Pike Lake, where they will spend the summer.

Quick repairing at Economy Shoe Works, 204 Twentieth avenue west.

ANDERSON-NELSON.

Old Swedish Customs Are Followed at West End Wedding.

Miss Ella Anderson and Anthony Nelson were married last evening at their new home, 2105 West Sixth street. Rev. J. J. Daniels, pastor of the Swedish Mission church, read the ceremony, after which a wedding supper was served.

The wedding was celebrated after the old Swedish custom, the bride wearing a white silk gown with a white veil and a green cross. The bridesmaids—Misses Signe Clausen, Hedwick Carl and Amanda Cedarquist—wore Swedish costumes. The groom was attended by the Messrs. Knute Lindstrom, Joseph Larson and Charles Carlson.

TWO GRAFTERS RESIGN.

Atlantic City Mayor Has Received Their Withdrawals.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 4.—Mayor Harry Bacharach, after a conference with members of his cabinet and men back of the present inquiry into alleged corruption in municipal affairs, admitted that he had received the resignations of William Malia and Samuel S. Pheoebus, councilmen, who are alleged by detectives to have confessed to accepting bribes in connection with the passage of the concrete board walk bill.

"I believe the resignation of two other councilmen will reach me," said the mayor.

NEW PROBE INTO BRIBING OF McNAMARA JURORS.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 4.—The county grand jury has been called in special session to investigate further into the alleged bribery of McNamara jurors. J. F. Seward, Wells-Fargo agent at Venice, was the only witness called. It was said he was asked to testify concerning Mr. Darrow's business with his company.

How to be Certain of Curing Constipation

Prejudice is a hard thing to overcome, but where health is at stake and the opinion of thousands of reliable people differs from yours, prejudice then becomes yore menace and you ought to lay it aside. This is said in the interest of people suffering from chronic constipation, and it is worthy of their attention.

In the opinion of legions of reliable American people the most stubborn constipation imaginable can be cured by a brief use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You may not have heard of it before, but do not doubt its merits on that account, or because it has not been blatantly advertised. It has sold very successfully on word of mouth recommendation. Parents are giving it to their children today who were given it by their parents, and it has been truthfully said that more druggists use it personally in their families than any other laxative.

Letters recently received from Mr. E. M. Connelly, Genoa Jct., Wis., and Mrs. E. Bolch, Hatfield, Wis., are but a few of thousands showing the esteem in which Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is held. It is mild, gentle, nongriping—not violent, like salts or cathartics. It cures gradually and pleasantly so that in time nature again does its own work without outside aid. Constipated people owe it to themselves to use this grand bowel specific.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

IOWA WOMAN WELL AGAIN

Freed From Shooting Pains, Spinal Weakness, Dizziness, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ottumwa, Iowa.—"For years I was almost a constant sufferer from female trouble in all its dreadful forms; shooting pains all over my body, sick headache, spinal weakness, dizziness, depression, and everything that was horrid. I tried many doctors in different parts of the United States, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors. I feel it my duty to tell you these facts. My heart is full of gratitude to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my health."—Mrs. HARRIET E. WAMPLER, 524 S. Ransom Street, Ottumwa, Iowa.

Consider Well This Advice.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for nearly forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

CARLTON COUNTY UNITED FOR IMPROVED HIGHWAYS

Enthusiastic Meeting of County Development Association Held at Carlton.

Taxpayers Generally Favor Putting State Roads Under Elwell Law Operation.

Carlton, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the people of Carlton county have decided to get in on the good road pie while it is ready to cut was evidenced here yesterday when people from all over this county came here in wagons, carriages, trains and thirty automobiles from Cloquet to attend the meeting of the Carlton County Development association. Since the Elwell law has been declared constitutional by the supreme court preparations have steadily been made by Secretary Mahnke and other officers of the Carlton County Development association to hold a monster good roads meeting in the county and present united resolutions to the county board looking to the building of the roads that have been already laid out here under the provisions of the Elwell law, but were delayed by the county board while awaiting the decision of the supreme court on the constitutionality of the law.

The meeting was called to order at 10 a. m. by President T. M. Ferguson, who presided and C. F. Mahnke was secretary. Credentials were handed in by delegates and other delegates were seated in the monster meeting, as follows:

Cloquet, Joseph Loisel, L. P. Runkle, Fred D. Vibert, B. S. Whitman, Hugo Schlonk, W. L. Case, Louis McCulloch, J. A. Mattinen, John Long; Carlton, Spencer J. Searls, James Dunphy, W. H. Hassing; Moose Lake, C. J. Dodge, S. Swanson and H. T. Carlson; Thomson, Fred Olson, Thomas James, John C. Johnson; Atkinson, Oscar Isaacson, C. A. Brandt; Cromwell, Alex Bellanger, Joseph Wavrin, Charles Morse, Edward Echstrom, J. H. Wright; Corona, Ole J. Berg, Charles Berg, August Berg, N. A. Houck, G. W. Watson; Red Clover, John Kubista, Edward Walker; Holyoke, H. B. McCluskey, C. E. Nelson, George T. McKay; Perch Lake, John Bergman, H. H. Kattman, William A. De Lovely; Mahtowa, Charles E. Johnson; Skelton, H. E. Bunger; Beseman, A. Anderson, Mr. Jessup, Mons Olson; township of Moose Lake, Lud Olson; Wrenshall, Fred Habhegger, Sr., Winfield Holmes; Blackhoof, C. P. Munter, Albert Stennes, M. Cochwright; Knife Falls, John Peterson.

These were the delegates chosen, but they were outnumbered ten to one by the large number of visitors who had accepted the invitation to be present.

Committee on Resolutions.

After the delegates had been seated a resolution committee was appointed to present resolutions to the county board which was in session here at the same time. This committee consisted of Spencer J. Searls, Carlton; F. D. Vibert, Cloquet; C. P. Dodge, Moose Lake; Walter L. Case, Cloquet and Charles Morse of Cromwell. The committee retired to frame up their articles for the afternoon session.

The balance of the forenoon was taken up with an address by Assistant Attorney General William J. Stevenson of St. Paul, who explained the detail work of fighting the case against the Elwell law through the supreme court.

At noon the meeting adjourned to the fine Odd Fellows' hall, where lunch was served by the ladies of the four auld societies of the city.

At 1:30 o'clock the meeting reconvened and the resolution committee submitted the following resolution, which was unanimously adoptd, and a further committee was appointed to wait on the county board and present it to them:

Resolutions Adopted.

Resolved, by the Carlton County Development association, here assembled: "That it is the sense and desire of this convention that the board of county commissioners of Carlton county proceed at once to take all necessary and legal steps toward having the state highways within the county of Carlton, not including the state highway which runs along the boundary line between Carlton and Aitkin counties, brought under the provisions of Chapter 254 of the Laws of 1911, commonly designated as the Elwell law, as soon as the proper petitions are presented. Be it further

"Resolved that this convention designate a committee whose duty it shall be to use every effort to see that proper and legal petitions are presented to the county board for the purpose of bringing all the aforesaid state highways under the operation of the Elwell law, in every case where such petition has not already been presented; be it further

"Resolved that this convention recommend that if it is found not practical or advisable to commence work on all of the aforesaid state highways at once, that the following named state highways be given the preference and work commenced on them, to-wit:

"State highway No. 1; state highway No. 3; state highway No. 7.

"These being the main trunk lines connecting with the adjoining counties and continuing through the state; be it further

"Resolved, that this convention demand that the legislature of the state of Minnesota to be assembled during this month by special session enact a fair reapportionment bill, giving just and proper representation to the counties and legislative districts of Northern Minnesota; be it further Resolved, by this convention that we earnestly recommend the sale of the Virginian bonds, now held by the state of Minnesota, as recommended by Walter J. Smith, state treasurer, and we also recommend that the other foreign bonds held by the state be disposed of as soon as possible and the proceeds made available for domestic development in accordance with this recommendation."

Road Cost Explained.

After the resolutions had been adopted, the convention listened with the closest attention for an hour to the address of Cyrus M. King, chairman of the state highway commission. The address was supplemented with a blackboard and figures which had been placed there and explained by Attorney C. J. Dodge of Moose Lake, showing that the cost of building the three main roads in this county will be as follows: State Road No. 3, or the Duluth-Moorhead line, would require $30,000, to be divided up in ten years' tax payments, or each department would pay per year, county, $750; state, $1,500; local taxation of adjacent lands, $7,50. On State Road No. 1, the Duluth-Twin City line, the total cost would be $20,000, divided up in ten years, so that the cost of that will be per year, county, $500; state, $1,000; adjacent property, $500. On State Road No. 7 the total cost will be $7,000, or a yearly payment for ten years as follows: By county, $175; by state, $350; by adjacent land, $175. The address of Hon. C. M. King was replete with many useful gems of information for which the delegates had hungered, and he was given one of the very warmest ovations at the close of his talk. He then hastened over to get in touch with the county board before that body adjourned.

Later the county board reported that it had adopted the resolutions of the convention and would use every means within the bounds of propriety and legality to further the building of these roads.

Supt. of the City Schools Peter J. Oleson of Cloquet addressed the meeting on the subject of the university week which is to be held in that city commencing June 17 and ending June 23.

Asa Paine, formerly of Carlton but now of Minneapolis, and a member of the well-known Paine estate, which has large holdings here, made a splendid short talk, and told them of his experience on the old stage coach while coming to Carlton in 1870.

The same officers were re-elected for the ensuing year: T. Ferguson, president, and C. F. Mahnke of Moose Lake, secretary. It was also decided to assess each member of the association $1 for the expenses of the general cost of the year's work. The president is to appoint delegates from this county, five in number, to attend the meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association at International Falls later in this month.

START ROSEAU DITCHES.

Drainage Enterprise in Northern County Is Going Ahead.

St. Paul, Minn., June 4.—Bonds amounting to $238,000 for drainage work in Roseau county have been placed with the Security Trust company of St. Paul. Of this $125,000 was authorized by the state, and $113,000 by the county.

Work on the ditches is proceeding rapidly.

G. H. Mattson, representative from Roseau county, said:

"Everybody is satisfied with the progress of the drainage work in my county. The cost cannot exceed $1 an acre, and the increased crops due, will more than pay for them this year. The acreage under cultivation in the county has been increased at least one-third."

HYAMS LOSES OUT.

Boston Man Cannot Prevent C. & H. Voting Tamarack Stock.

Marquette, Mich., June 4.—United States District Judge Sessions yesterday denied the petition and dismissed the bill of Godfrey N. Hyams of Boston who sought an injunction restraining the Calumet & Hecla copper mining company from voting its stock in the subsidiary Tamarack and Isle Royale companies. Mr. Hyams is a minority stockholder in the companies.

JAMESTOWN HOSPITAL PATIENT IS BURNED.

Jamestown, N. D., June 4.—While melting paraffine in her room at the state hospital for the insane here Monday, Miss Farie B. Murphy was fatally burned. Her hair caught fire and before she could unlock her door, the flames spread to her clothing. Her screams brought assistance, the hospital attendants breaking in the door. She died four hours later. She had been a patient at the hospital three years.

VAGRANT IS HEIRESS.

Sentence Then Suspended Against Woman in Milwaukee Court.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 4.—A legacy of $10,000 and an interest in three plantations in Louisiana is said to be awaiting Mrs. Courtenay Weathersby, aged 28, formerly of New Orleans, who was in police court Monday charged with vagrancy.

Mrs. Weathersby is said to have married against her parents' wishes. Her marital life was of short duration, it being alleged her husband deserted her. She was employed as a nurse at the soldiers home but lost her position and being in desperate straits it is alleged purloined several small articles from the counter of a West Allis drug store which resulted in her arrest.

When the court was informed by her attorney that a fortune awaited her and that money was being sent for her return to New Orleans, sentence was suspended.

EXPLODING GASOLINE WRECKS WISCONSIN MINE.

Linden, Wis., June 4.—The Glanville mine was badly wrecked by the explosion of a 300-gallon gasoline tank on Saturday according to advices received here today. The explosion rocked the whole town and farms for miles around.

The gasoline was ignited from a lighted lantern. An engine house some distance away from the mine was reduced to kindling wood and a number of people were thrown from their beds. No one was killed.

LIQUOR-SATURATED CLOTHES BURN, KILLING WEARER.

La Crosse, Wis., June 4.—Adolph Schmidt, aged 24, was found on the doorstep of his home early Monday burned to a crisp. A broken bottle, supposed to have contained whisky, was found in the pocket of his charred coat. The only theory that can be advanced by the authorities it that Schmidt's clothes became saturated with liquor and caught fire when he struck a match. He was probably too intoxicated to fight the flames or call for help.

Oleo Decision to Stand.

St. Paul, Minn., June 4.—A definite decision has been reached not to appeal the oleomargarine case to the United States supreme court, according to Alex Janes, assistant attorney general.

The state supreme court held the bill passed by the 1911 session of the legislature to be unconstitutional insofar as it applied to coloring the oleo to resemble butter.

"It is probable that the law will be amended," Mr. Janes said, "so as to make it effective."

Suspend Mill City Doctor.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 4.—Dr. Charles H. Hunter, prominent in medical circles of the northwest, who was dismissed from the University of Minnesota faculty, following charges of mal-practice, last night was suspended from the Hennepin County Medical society, in acting on the charges. Dr. Hunter assisted in the organization of the medical college of the state university twenty-four years ago.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Eau Claire—Lightning struck a cable pole at Northline Sunday night and for five hours the telegraph wires of the Omaha Railway company and the commercial wires were out of commission.

Oconomowoc—The fourth annual Evangelical Lutheran sangerfest of Southern Wisconsin, composed of choirs from Janesville, Juneau, Jefferon, Mayville, Columbus, Watertown, Hustisford and Hartford, was held in Oconomowoc Sunday and was largely attended, nearly 3,000 being present.

Green Bay—Bay View Beach will be the scene of an aviation flight on June 8 and 9, when the Morok company of New York will send a licensed aviator to the summer resort to perform in a hydro-aeroplane.

Grand Rapids—Beginning this week the Consolidated Water Power company will pay their employes every two weeks instead of once a month, as heretofore. This rule was established some time ago for the employes of Grand Rapids, an innovation which meets with popular favor and is rapidly being followed by the mills and factories.

Marinette—A delegation of Masons from Appleton visited Marinette to inspect the Masonic temple. The Masons of Appleton are about to build a $30,000 temple.

Wausau—The Wausau Street Railway company has filed a petition with City Clerk Adam asking for a franchise to run a railroad line across city property in the north end of the city.

Manitowoc—Eleven bridges through out the county have been washed away during the recent heavy rains and will have to be replaced.

Fond du Lac—George H. Olmstead, vice president of the Helmer Milling company, was seriously injured by being thrown from the seat of an automobile truck.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Houghton—Prof. R. M. Wenley, head of the department of philosophy of the University of Michigan, who lectured throughout the Copper country last week, has returned to Ann Arbor. He expressed himself as delighted with his visit.

Calumet—Dentists from the different towns in the Copper country will leave next Friday morning for Marquette to attend a two-day session of the Marquette County Dental society. The meetings open Friday afternoon and will close Saturday evening.

Hancock—William Berryman of Quincy ,head machinist at the Hancock mine since the mine opened, was found dead in bed at the Milwaukee house Saturday evening. The body was found by John McWilliams, proprietor of the hostelry.

Houghton—The Houghton Light Infantry was inspected Sunday afternoon by Col. John B. Boucher of Cheboygan, commander of the Third regiment, Michigan National Guard.

Ishpeming—An Ishpeming business firm will pay prizes aggregating $100 to children who do the most effective work in an anti-fly crusade in Ishpeming between now and Oct. 1.

Hancock—The Beacon Hill-Freda Catholic church will be dedicated Sunday, June 16. Monsignor Melchoir Faust of Assinins will perform the ceremony and he will be assisted by Fathers Rezek of Houghton, Miller of Dollar Bay, Glaser of Hancock, Klopsic of Calumet and Kron of Quincy. The dedicatory sermon will be delivered by Rev. Dr. Rezek of Houghton.

Calumet—William Heighes, formerly of Centennial and at one time overseer of highways of Calumet township, died last week at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The body will be brought here for burial. A wife and six children survive.

Hubbell—The Ladies' Industrial society of the Hubbell Congregational church will entertain members of the congregation in the church parlors next Wednesday afternoon.

Negaunee—William Belstrom has been appointed manager of the Negaunee office of the Consolidated Fuel & Lumber company, to succeed the late William Dawe. Prior to April 5, when the Consolidated Fuel & Lumber company took over the Superior Lumber company, Mr. Belstrom was the manager of the Negaunee office of the latter concern.

Marquette—Robert Humes, keeper of Presque Isle, is having more trouble with hunters who persist in shooting the deer belonging to the island. Last week Mr. Humes found another deer that had been shot through the leg, and it was found necessary to kill it.

Escanaba—At a meeting of the Delta County Agricultural society plans were made for the erection of fair buildings and the construction of a race track.

Ishpeming—Thomas Ryan died Sunday from pneumonia. Mr. Ryan formerly was on the police force six or seven years ago. He left for Butte five years ago, and returned to Ishpeming three years later. Mr. Ryan was 55 years of age and leaves, besides his wife, four daughters and two sons. He was a member of the Hibernians.

Escanaba—The corner stone of the Swedish Evangelical Mission church will be laid with appropriate ceremonies on June 9.

Ishpeming—H. G. Becker, manager of the Ishpeming branch of the Swift company, who two weeks ago was transferred to Winnipeg, Man., where he expects to spend two or three months, has written friends here that the concern is doing a big business in that section. The Winnipeg house is a big three-story concrete structure, and forty men are employed in the branch.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Aberdeen, S. D.—The Cresbard Commercial club is working on plans for the annual old settlers' reunion to be held at Horning's grove, near Cresbard, June 20. Committees have been appointed and plans laid for making the reunion one of the most important public gatherings in Northern South Dakota this year.

Grand Forks, N. D.—On Wednesday and Thursday the Grand Forks Oratorio society will give its sixth annual music festival at the auditorium, giving four grand concerts beginning at 2:30 on Wednesday afternoon.

Mandan, N. D.—For the first time in about three years the water holes and coulies in the central part of the state are full of water, and the crops could not be looking finer. The subsoil is saturated, and with only average weather for the rest of the season that section will be given one of its greatest crops.

Walpeton, N. D.—A couple of fellows broke into one of the beer houses across the river and stole a quantity of beer. They came over on this side and were arrested. One of them, a husky young Norwegian, put up a big fight. He was finally overcome, bound and handcuffed and drawn to the jail in a wagon.

Bismarck, N. D.—A. N. Bourassa of St. John has been appointed by Governor Burke a member of the state board of pardons. Mr. Bourassa takes the place of S. A. Fischer of Strasburg, who resigned.

Fargo, N. D.—Senator A. J. Gronna in a telegram from Washington to a local paper announces an examination for admission to United States Military academy at West Point and asks that North Dakota young men who desire to enter the examination, communicate with him at once. The examination for the appointment which will be a competitive examination, will be held at Fort Snelling, Minn., July 1.

Bismarck, N. D. — The Bismarck branch of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company of Duluth has moved its offices to Fargo.

Minot, N. D.—Harry Buck, aged 17, was committed to Jamestown Saturday by the insanity board.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Crookston.—A. A. Bucklingham has sold out his business at Redford, west of Saskatoon, Sask., and is trying to dispose of his home there. Conditions in that section of Canada are very far from favorable with the farmers, many of them needing assistance this spring from the government to get seed.

Fergus Falls.—Preparations are already being made for the big state Elks' convention which is to be held in this city Aug. 21, 22 and 23. The gathering will be a very large one.

St. Cloud.—That John Warner, the missing railroad man, is still alive and well is believed. Two men living in the city stated to the police that they had seen Warner in the woods on Calvary Hill yesterday and that both of them recognized him.

Mankato.—Warren White, an old and well-known resident of Amboy, died at his home in that village last week. He was born in Washington county, New York, Oct. 5, 1823, and came to Sterling, this county, in 1865.

St. James.—The general merchandise store of P. N. Sterrie at St. James was entered by burglars Friday night, and robbed of about ten bolts of silk, a pair of shoes and a pair of overalls. The entire booty is valued at $500, as the silk was of a high quality. The burglars gained their entrance through a window in the basement.

Moorhead.—The supreme court has set aside the verdict of $1,000 in favor of plaintiff in the Lang case against the Northern Pacific and has given judgment for the defendant, on the ground that the evidence shows contributory negligence on the part of plaintiff.

Brainerd.—George D. LaBar, Dr. J. L. Camp, Alderman James M. Eldor and H. F. Michael have returned from St. Paul, where they saw Vice President Hannaford of the Northern Pacific in regard to establishing a gasoline car service in addition to the regular train service, such car to run to Deerwood, Barrows, Hubert and other points. Mr. Hannaford said he would take the matter under advisement.

Aitkin.—Wm. E. Lee, Republican candidate for governor, addressed the voters of Aitkin county at the court house Saturday evening.

Stephen.—While riding a refractory broncho, C. Anderson was thrown to the ground, but clung to the bridle, and in the mixup the broncho trampled on Anderson's face, gouging out an eye and breaking his nose, in addition to bruising his body and limbs. His condition today is serious, but he will recover, though his injuries are most painful.

Wahkon.—The Swedish Lutheran Sunday school of Isle will hold its annual summer picnic at the church June 8 at 2 o'clock p. m. Program in the church. Ice cream, lemonade, etc., will be served on the lawn.

St. Hilaire.—The Elhott land agency has just closed a deal for the sale of two thousand acres of Pennington county land to a banker of Macomb, Ill. Negotiations for this deal have been in progress several weeks. The sums to be paid for the different tracts will aggregate over $97,000.

Stillwater.—Mrs. Anna Maria Upsahl, widow of the late Mads Upsahl, died Friday afternoon at the City hospital, aged 90 years. She had been at the hospital the past three weeks. Deceased has resided here for the past thirty-five years and was well known. She is survived by a son, Henry, of this city.

Schlitz could give you LIGHT BOTTLES BUT Beer keeps best in BROWN BOTTLES

When beer in light bottles is exposed to light, the beer develops a disagreeable odor and "skunky" taste.

All brewers even cover the hand-holes of the case before shipping, to keep out the light.

Schlitz in Brown Bottles won't spoil after the case is open.

Pure beer, properly aged, will not cause biliousness.

Physicians and surgeons prescribe Schlitz, instead of malt tonics, as a builder of health.

See that crown or cork is branded "Schlitz."

WORST ENEMIES AND BEST FRIENDS.

According to dispatches from Washington, Col. Roosevelt's worst enemies in the present campaign are about to prove themselves his best friends. That is, provided there is sound basis for the statement that the Republican national committee intends to steam-roller the colonel out of as many delegates as possible, and, in the language of the correspondent, "give him ample excuse" to bolt the Chicago convention.

Truly "whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." No more suicidal idea than this ever was conceived by a passion-blinded political tyranny. If there has been any one thing in the campaign thus far that was entitled to the adjective "marvelous," it has been the hold that Col. Roosevelt has shown himself to have on the minds—and votes—of the people, where the people have had an opportunity to express their preferences. All the attacks and innuendos, all the cajolery and patronage that the backers of President Taft and the president himself could bring to bear, have served only to intensify the remarkableness of the colonel's position.

Now picture what will happen if the Taft men, by the exercise of simple power and opportunity, override the Roosevelt delegates, deny them rights to which they could show themselves entitled, if they were given a chance, seat the administration men in place of their opponents irrespective of the merits of the two hundred and some odd contests—in brief, it the Taft forces give their rivals "ample excuse" to bolt.

That there would be a bolt in such a case hardly anybody will doubt, if he has watched and studied the fighting nature of the ex-president. And if Col. Roosevelt, already possessed of a powerful following, be given an opportunity to go before the people next November with a clear case of personal and political grievance, nothing on earth can keep him from getting more support than he possibly could command were he to make the campaign as the duly accredited and recognized candidate of the Republican party. It is not impossible to conceive that in such a case he could even overcome Democratic opposition of any character.

If President Taft permits his followers to adopt any such tactics at Chicago as manifest unfairness in the seating of delegates, he will be doing himself the greatest wrong of his administration. He cannot be re-elected. That is certain. And by meeting his political end bravely and with insistent adherence to honest principles, he can at least leave in the public mind a confidence in his personal integrity that it plainly does not have in his official ability.

Either Way You Look At It.

Senator Lorimer insists that he sees no need for his resignation. Well, judging from that poll of the senate there isn't any great need.

TRICKING POPULAR FANCY.

If there were any doubt that present day politicians make use of psychology it would be dispelled by the way in which the opponents of Woodrow Wilson are placing him before the people. Duluth has had a sample of this in the address of a supporter of Champ Clark who, throughout his speech, referred always to the New Jersey governor as "Professor Wilson," thereby creating in those of his auditors who did not stop to analyze the matter, an impression of a high-browed, visionary theorist, who looked on life from the depths of a study chair and knew nothing of men as they are or of the management of large affairs.

That the trickery thus displayed by the opponents of Governor Wilson is deliberate is made clear by the fact that he is not entitled to the title they give him, inasmuch as his work for the last ten years has been entirely distinct from that of a professor. Since 1902 and until his election as governor of New Jersey, Woodrow Wilson has filled, with eminent success, a position of executive character, and one of the most difficult of such positions to be found in American affairs.

As president of a great university he had to exercise all the elements that enter into executive ability. He had to deal with men of all sorts of beliefs. He was responsible for the handling of large sums of money. He had to decide administrative questions and decide them quickly. In brief, his work was as distinct from that of the former of abstract theories as could be imagined, for the president of a great American university is not hired to occupy a chair in a lecture room, but to administer a most complicated and many-sided business organization.

That Woodrow Wilson learned the lesson of administration has been proved by his conduct of affairs in New Jersey since his election to the governorship. His overthrow of bossism in that state in matters of legislation has been emphasized by his wonderful victory in the recent primary, which he won without so much as making a campaign, through the confidence felt in him by the people who know him best and have seen the most of his work. His summary dismissal from his list of counsellors of Boss Smith of the New Jersey Democracy proved conclusively his belief in clean politics and clean government, and the voters of that state showed their appreciation at the polls.

Another false impression of the man that his opponents have managed to create and foster is that his connection with Princeton university has warped his ideas as to democracy. Nothing could be more completely false, for the determined fight made by President Wilson against the university tendency toward undemocratic ideas was one of the features of his administration.

It is a clever bit of political psychology that the anti-Wilson men are manipulating. Perhaps it has deceived a few. But when the delegates to the national Democratic convention meet at Baltimore they should remember that the Woodrow Wilson they will be called upon to consider is not a theorist or a dreamer; that he is a practical executive, a man of character, an official who has won and proved himself worthy of the highest office in a great state, and that if nominated he will have the confidence of the people of the United States as it can be had by no other man before the nation today.

Watch For a "Siam."

Candidate Lee thinks there is a trick of some kind involved in the Ed Smith primary election plans. Question is, just how few tricks the old party machine will be able to take.

A PLACE FOR A BOY SCOUT.

What would you do if you were one of a boating party, your craft should be upset, and one of your mates should be dragged from the water unconscious, though you and the others should reach the shore with no more serious experience than a thorough soaking?

That question confronted a party of young people at Louisville, Ky., the other day, and not one of the rescued knew what to do. In the words of the Associated Press dispatch relating the incident, "Miss Williams was alive, though unconscious, when taken ashore, but none of the rescuers understood how to resuscitate her," and she died, a martyr to her companions' ignorance of first aid methods.

Here is one effective and emphatic answer to the question sometimes propounded, "What good does the Boy Scouts organization do?" It teaches the boys how to act in emergencies of this character, one of the most common of incidents in localities where boating and swimming are ordinary pastimes. Had a trained Boy Scout been with that Louisville party, Virginia Williams would have been a survivor of that accident instead of the victim of a tragedy.

There are other teachings that enter into Boy Scout work, such as regard for personal honor, for courage, for the welfare of others, for clean lives and strong, healthy bodies. The movement takes hold of the youngsters when their minds are quick to seize and retain the instructions given, and the things they learn then are calculated to make them better men and more useful citizens than they would be without that training.

Not every boy, to be sure, will be called upon, either in youth or in more advanced years, to resuscitate a person taken half drowned from the water. But none of us can tell when he may have to act quickly in an emergency, and the training for such action is one of the best elements that can come into the life of any young person, whether it come through the Boy Scouts or the Girl Scouts or whatever organization or individual instruction. The Louisville incident only serves to emphasize the value of such training, and when that course is coupled with instruction in the things that go to make up good, sound, all-around manhood and womanhood its value is multiplied many times.

Same Old Jealousy.

England never could sit quietly by and see Uncle Sam pass her in anything. Now London is trying to keep up in the number of her strikes with the mill towns of Massachusetts.

PROTECT THE BIRDS.

Through the Open Court tonight a member of the humane society urges protection of the birds of Duluth against the ravages of the small boy with the slingshot and air-gun. It is a timely admonition. With the long vacation before him and the enthusiasm of freedom from school and study, the youthful hunter is bound to feel the call of the primitive in nature, and sally forth, if only to a nearby vacant lot or park, to prove his prowess with the deadly stone or shot.

While in some cases there may be a strain of cruelty in boyish escapades of this sort, it is more likely that the destroyers of the smaller creatures are moved mainly by the instinct of the chase that all the ages of evolution have not succeeded in eradicating from the race. Add to this instinct youthful thoughtlessness, and you have a combination that naturally leads to the development of the park and back lot huntsman.

But the practice is no less wrong and disastrous for its probable lack of evil intent. We need the birds. Their calls and the glimpses we get of them flitting here and there make the fields and woods more pleasant places of recreation, and the flitting creatures themselves do a world of good service in keeping down the pests of insect life that threaten crops and foliage.

Show your boys how the birds protect growing things, and teach them to enjoy the sight and songs of the flying creatures. Teach them, too, how the destruction of one bird may carry with it the destruction of a whole nestful of others dependent on that one. Join with the humane society in the work of protection, not only for the sake of teaching the children kindness, but for the good of the whole community.

Coming Out of the Clouds.

A college professor says the American people are overworked. Who says college professors are all theorists?

GIVE US ANOTHER REFORM.

With all the rage for reforms of various kinds that has broken out in this country in the last few years, why has no earnest worker for the good of the nation advocated some substitute for that most unpopular of common things, the bill?

Never since the day of its birth has an hour gone by that the bill has not been cursed in some place or other. It brings no happiness to anybody and it brings grief and rage to all. The weary bookkeeper and accountant rub their sleepy eyes and pound their aching backs at the last of every month and curse the bills that have to be made out. The man of smaller business who has to handle all such work himself glances over the pile of bills and wonders ruefully how many of them will meet with any financial response. The men who get them look at every separate one with reproach and loathing, and wish—never mind what they wish. Everybody knows so well that repetition is needless.

There is sympathy galore for the young bride who burned up her husband's collection of bills because she had seen plainly that they worried him, and she didn't like to have him worried. If that kind of treatment would bring real relief, what a rush there would be for young brides!

Here is a chance for the reformer. Let him rise from oblivion and give us a substitute for the bill, one that will bring universal joy and peace instead of universal the other thing, and nations yet unborn will rise up to call him blessed. Here is the chance for the ambitious genius. Send in a hurry call and get him to work. The world awaits him with open arms.

Several women's organizations in Wisconsin are planning a campaign to try to prevent the adoption of woman suffrage in that state. It looks like a waste of time, ladies, but perhaps the experience you get will be helpful when you finally are called on to take part in the state's and nation's affairs.

THE MISSION OF PARTY

By SAVOYARD.

"From his rich tongue
Persuasion flows and wins the high debate."

It was the idea set before American thought and food purveyed for American conscience, when in a powerful address to the voters of New Jersey the other day Woodrow Wilson discussed the mission of a political party. He admitted that there was opposition to him in his home state which is maliciously engendered and diabolically manipulated "by the great power of corruption centered in one man."

Among other things the governor told his audience:

"This archconspirator in the national ruin of his own party years ago now seeks to resume his clutch upon New Jersey's Democracy because I cannot bring myself to believe that the party was created to give men office.

"We need a rejuvenation, a rebirth of parties in the United States. We want to get down to the foundation and find out what party is made to stand for. What do you, the people, Democrats or Republicans, get out of this great fetish, so-called party loyalty? Are you supporting this government so that certain men can hold office? Where do you come in? Does the occupancy of public office by a certain set of men fill the mouths of your family with bread? Does it remove any of the great public wrongs that are eating into the hearts and poisoning the minds of the citizens of this republic?"

There is an idea for every man who would use party for the common weal and not for private aggrandizement. The Democratic party gained national victories in 1874, 1878, 1882, 1884, 1896, 1890 and 1892. Were Democratic principles substituted as public policies for Republican dogmas? Not a bit of it. And why? Because the Democratic party was and is full of men—thousands of them leaders—whose sole idea of politics is to discharge one set from office and establish another set in their stead. And as long as Jim Smith and other bosses of his kidney are able to control the primaries and conventions of the Democratic party that party will be impotent to institute the reforms that patriotic Dmocrats have so long contended for, so earnestly desired.

Take the two antagonistic ideas of taxation for public purposes and taxation for private gain, or tariff reform and tariff protection. There are thousands of Republican politicians who care not a rap for protection except to avail themselves of it to obtain office, and there are just as many Democrats who see no good in tariff reform other than its use to get place and power. These men are statesmen of fortune, who have no convictions upon any public question except the majority of the day of election. That accounts for the bitter and intense hostility of your boss like Smith to leaders like Woodrow Wilson, who stand for nothing unless it be that when the Democratic party gains a victory at the polls that victory shall bear fruit—the engrafting of Democratic principles upon the policies of a Democratic administration and upon the legislation of a Democratic congress. It is going to take a giant to bring these thingsc about—to make the party virtle and take it out of the ditch of negation.

There is much of truth in that notion that a great deal that is good in government is the consequence of "intelligent selfishness"; but there is such an enormous deal of selfishness that is ignorant and vicious! That is why human government is so far from being an exact science. Even good men are prone to think that whatever is to their individual advantage is bound to be for the common blessing. Ben Tillman expressed that view when he demanded for South Carolina a part of the tariff stealing. As long as a majority of congress agrees with Tillman in that monstrous proposition this country will be cursed by a protective tariff.

What sorth of church would it be that allowed each member to indulge one sin? It would be a congregation of liars, thieves, blasphemers, homicides, gluttons and such—each one perfect, however, except he is indulged to practice his special sin. That is the sort of party we will have as long as we allow members to preach and practice the Tillmanism of sharing the stealing. The favorite way of exploiting Tillmanism is to clamor for a tariff of raw materials, that is the foundation stone of a protective tariff, without which the dogma of protection could not survive two sessions of any congress we ever had. Take the tariff otf raw materials and protection will fall automatically off of finished products ready for the ultimate consumer. That is going to be done some day. Do you know who is likely to do it? Why, the G. O. P. It stole the issue of sound money from the Democrats and got twenty years of power as a reward. I could name you two of the ablest of the Republican leaders now in congress who expect their party to appropriate and carry out the idea John G. Carlisle and Roger Q. Mills had of the tariff.

The election of Woodrow Wilson as president would put an end to all that; but you put a Joe Bailey ite on the tariff question in the White House—Clark and Underwood are of that kidney—and it would not be hazardous to predict that the Republican party will steal our tariff idea as it did our currency idea. And besides, the party that gives the country genuine tariff reform of the Cleveland-Bryan, Morrison-Mills, John G. Carlisle-William L. Wilson brand, will stay in power more than twenty years.

The Hon. Heyburn is in eruption again—this time neglecting the Southern Confederacy and directing his guns against the press gallery. Heyburn is one of the ablest men in public life, but he is an irreconcilable—he and William Alden Smith of Michigan being the last of the bloody shirters. Smith is a talker and nothing else, but Heyburn is a strong debater, one of the strongest in the senate, a match for Bailey and worthy the steel of John Sharp Williams himself. Next to Burton the Hon. Heyburn is the strongest man on the Republican side. He is a standpatter, one of the few of that ilk from the trans-Mississippi, the others being Warren, Smoot, Curtis and Perkins.

Hale of Maine was always opposed to the admission of new states from the West. He viciously attacked the Democratic side of the forty-fourth congress that passed the bill to admit Colorado, though if that bill had been defeated there would have been no contest of Tilden's election in 1876 to the presidency. Hal also opposed the admission of the Dakotas, Montana, Idaho and other rotten boroughs of "the Wild and Wooly." He opposed the admission of Arizona and New Mexico. There is tradition for it that Edmunds would not have resigned from the senate if a batch of new senators from the West had not come to subtract from senatorial ability. Had Hale prevailed the "progressives" in politics would not have been nearly so strong. Not even Heyburn's great abilities and pronounced standpatism reconciled Hale to him.

Old Ben Butler used to attack the newspapers and he was never so breezy and so entertaining as when making a speech denunciatory of the press gallery; but he supplied so much good "copy" that the boys enjoyed it. Heyburn does it pretty well, but in a skirmish like that he is not in Old Ben's class.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

BIRDS A NECESSITY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Let us protect our friends the birds. They are exceedingly useful to us, beautiful to look at and pleasant to listen to.

Northern Minnesota is blessed with many song birds and game birds. Reports from the government officials tell us the birds are worth many million dollars to the farmers of America by feeding on destructive insects.

Now that this locality is fast becoming interested in agriculture, we need the birds.

The writer was surprised a few days ago to see beautiful bright red birds with black wings in the woods about Duluth. A nearby homeowner said he did not allow any shooting near his property and the birds are very tame for wild birds.

Now that the summer season is here again, parents should teach their children not to kill birds, either by gun or slingshots.

Before school closes, it is exceedingly desirable that every teacher in the public schools should call attention to this important subject, and leave a lasting impression in the minds of the children for all summer.

"Don't kill the birds; we need them."
A MEMBER OF THE DULUTH HUMANE SOCIETY.
Duluth, June 3.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS AND THE VETERANS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

When Principal Young of the high school, as a result of the boys refusing to parade on Decoration day, said "Our boys seem to be mostly interested in themselves," he was only recognizing the commercialized teaching of our public schools and only paying a tribute to their intelligence which is trained to work the worker, rather than work themselves, and in both cases only for themselves, all benefits to be represented by profits which profits only give a living to five per cent of our school graduates when they get out into the world's game of chance, and a mere existence to 95 per cent who only get exploited by the fabric 5 per cent. The former are expected to be thankful for that as long as the master class (which is the 5 per cent) are satisfied to let them work out a commercial supremacy that as Gen. Fred D. Grant declared has been the cause of all war for the last 300 years and in which the 95 per cent get all the blows, suffering, and misery, but no profit except a mere pittance in the shape of a war pension, if they are lucky or unlucky enough to not be killed in the pomp and pagentry of war.

Knowing the above facts how can we expect the above boys to be very enthusiastic over the battle records of the past when they know that all wars are mistakes.

But the above reasoning is no excuse for the action of the high school boys who have got the benefit of our later day intelligence, for they should have guided their action by the intelligence of fifty years ago and given due homage to those grand old men who dared and did the best that was in them to uphold a national life that was the light of those days in the world's progress for its emancipation from chattel slavery, which is steadily but surely bringing an industrial emancipation that will make the world free as an indirect result of that loss of life of fifty years ago. The benefit is conferred on all present and future life throughout the whole world.

Duluth, June 3. GLUE.

Wilbur Wright.

New York Times: It was sixteen years ago that Prof. Samuel P. Langley shot into the air, without a rider, but equipped with a propelling steam engine, his heavier-than-air "Aerodrome No. 5," and watched its strange circlings above the Potomac river near Quantico. In that year Wilbur Wright and his brother, Orville, read of the fatal fall of Otto Lilienthal from one of his motorless "gliders," and wondered "what the difficulties were that could not be overcome." An august problem that had defied the cunning of mankind since Daedalus could not deter these Yankee souls. Lilienthal's glides warned them that they must first practice to fly like birds, while Langley's motor taught them that the ultimate solution should result in an automatically balanced machine. Wilbur Wright lived long enough, if persistent rumor be not untrue, to perfect an automatic device assuring stability, so that men need no longer practice flight like the fowls of the air, but may trust to the machine.

However this may be, the world is ready to believe it. It disbelieved Langley, whose experiments in aerodynamics, embodied in an epoch-making report in 1891, became the study of the brothers Wright. These experiments established eight fundamental principles, not the least amazing of which was the discovery that it takes less power to support a plane at high speed than at a low speed—a fact that still, according to Alexander Graham Bell, "opens up enormous possibilities for the aerodome of the future." But men scoffed and when the man-carrying successor to "Aerodrome No. 5" toppled into the water at its launching, Dr. Langley died broken-hearted at their ridicule. But the Wrights had already forgotten their humble mechanics and were applying the principles of the masters. They practiced in view of the life-savers at Kitty Hawk, projected their horizontal steering rudder in front, and invented the flexible wing-tips that enabled them to hold the planes in balance.

They had outdone the masters. Yet men smiled when they saw pictured the first flight of the power machine on Dec. 17, 1903, and heard the corroboration of life-savers at the Kill Devil station. The two brothers did not care. They put up a shed near Dayton, their home town, invited the reporters to witness an attempt at flight, and were stoical when the papers said, knowingly, that "wind conditions prevented a start." Only now and again an excited farmer who had observed the miracle would come to town to "see the editor" about it. But four years later, when the government asked for bids for a flying machine, the world roused itself to attention. Then every one exclaimed:

Can such things be
And overcome us like a summer's cloud
Without our special wonder?

Wilbur Wright was not a martyr. His life, if it means anything, shows that a man can carry a great work to success, not only without credit from his fellows, but with supreme indifference to their opinion.

A Frightful Shock.

Youth's Companion: The president of the university had dark circles under his eyes. His cheeks were pallid; his lips were trembling; he wore a haunted expression. Every now and then he turned and glanced apprehensively behind him.

"You look ill," said his wife. "What is wrong dear?"

"Nothing much," he replied. "But—I—I had a fearful dream last night, and I feel this morning as if I—as if I—" He hesitated and stammered. It was evident that his nervous system was shattered.

"What was the dream?" asked his wife.

"I—I—dreamed the trustees required that—that I should—that I should pass the freshman examination for admission!" sighed the president.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1892.

•••Fred Dewey, yardmaster of the Northern Pacific railway; J. McNaught of the Great Northern and D. C. Clark of the Lake Superior Terminal & Transfer company have been elected delegates from the Head of the Lakes to attend the yardmasters' convention at Lincoln, Neb., on June 7.

•••Hon. W. M. Campbell, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, was in the city yesterday to attend the funeral of his old friend, John J. Cosello.

•••Samuel Van Baalen, shoe dealer a 5 West Superior street, has made a voluntary assignment to Theodore G. Frerker.

•••The Tilden club met last evening in its regular headquarters. George Giles, T. T. Hudson and Mayor d'Autremont were appointed to draft resolutions on the death of J. J. Costello, who was a member of the club.

•••A. L. Ordean and wife have left for New York and will sail from there for an extended trip to Europe.

•••Eight business and private cars arrived on the Omaha road yesterday and were at once transferred to the Duluth & Iron Range tracks, and started for the most thorough inspection of the mines and lines of road yet made by the owners. There are about sixty-five persons in the party, and among them are Benjamin Brewster, A. R. Flower, H. H. Hollister, H. H. Porter, Marshall Field, David Dows, Jr., J. C. Morse, J. H. Chandler, Col. Ely, Maj. Pickands, President Carpenter and General Manager Grestsinger. The party represents at least $400,000,000 of capital. The new ore docks, the Ely extension, grading and filling and new steel rails will be looked into carefully and the party will return for the annual meetings of the Duluth & Iron Range Railway company and the Minnesota Iron company which will be held in Duluth on June 6.

•••Mrs. Smith of Springville, N. Y., is in the city, the guest of Mrs. Ed-Hazen.

•••B. B. Richards of Dubuque, Iowa, is in the city. He is the senior member of the firm of Richards & Poole of Duluth.

•••James G. Blaine has resigned the secretaryship of state and the resignation has been accepted by President Harrison. It is said that Charles E. Littlefield of Rockland, Me., has been selected to present Blaine's name to the Republican convention as a candidate for president.

•••There was a large gathering of citizens today at the funeral of John J. Costello. All the aldermen and city officers, representatives of the Jobbers' union and the directors of the chamber of commerce were present. The pall bearers were: Charles Hartman, W. C. Sargent, H. Van Brunt, Benjamin Howard, Alex Poirier and Capt. Monaghan.

THE EXTRA SESSION.

Looking Four Years Ahead.

Winona Independent: Now that Minnesota is to have a special session of the legislature, the income tax amendment to the constitution should be ratified before the session adjourns. Also the primary law should give citizens a chance to express their preference for presidential nominees.

Distribution of Forces.

Cambridge North Star: It is said that there is going to be a people's lobby at the special session of the legislature to investigate bills and methods and report to the public every day. We move to make the committee large enough so that at least one member can be assigned to the governor's office, another to Billy Hamm's office and another to Ed Smith's.

Political Mistake.

Rochester Post and Record: The call for a special session of the legislature has marooned the gubernatorial candidates at sea. It has completely overturned their plans, and they are compelled to make new programs. While it is embarrassing to the candidates it is pleasing to the people, for it gives them the power to express directly their preference as to who shall fill the executive chair, as well as who shall fill the other elective state offices. Governor Eberhart is severely criticised for his action by many members of the legislature who believe the extra session unnecessary. Certain it is he would have fared better in public estimation had he called it in time to permit a presidential preference election. The prevailing opinion is that he has made a political mistake, so far as he himself is concerned.

Flip-flop.

Owatonna Journal-Chronicle: No more amusing political dip-flop has ever been executed, in the history of the state, than Governor Eberhart's sudden, eleventh-hour determination to call a special session of the legislature to adopt a direct primary and corrupt practices act.

Fear is Motive.

Anoka Herald: There is no getting around the fact that Eberhart has lost strength immeasurably since he failed to keep his word to the Northern Minnesota development congress. At the meeting of that body at St. Cloud last fall there was great indignation over his course and while the meeting itself refrained from more than passing condemnation, it was clearly evident that Mr. Eberhart had lost friends by the thousands north of the Twin Cities.

He is said to have claimed that there was no demand for an extra session of the state legislature at the state convention last week, the demand was repeated and he called the session for June 4. That he has at last heard the cry from Northern Minnesota avails him nothing since it has been so evidently prompted by fear of inevitable defeat in the coming campaign rather than through fair treatment of the northern part of the state.

The Governor Awakens.

Aitkin Age: The Minnesota legislature will meet in extra session June 4.

The Republican state convention in passing a resolution demanding a primary vote on governor exploded the mine that shook the governor to action.

For a year he has firmly maintained that there was no need for an extra session, frantically attempting to protect the railroads from the action on the increased gross earnings tax and the brewers from unfavorable temperance legislation. Even reapportionment was treated indifferently by him—his keepers didn't want it.

But when the recent primaries smashed the Smith-Eberhart machine and it was a certainty that Eberhart could not be nominated by the convention system, he saw a great light and declared that the time was ripe for an extra session to enact a primary law and reapportionment legislation. But true to his subserviency, he did not fail to say that he hoped no further legislation would be undertaken. In other words, he would keep the state from receiving a just railroad tax for two more years.

When the legislature was in session the increased gross earnings tax was dropped because it was understood that the railroads would not raise the passenger rate to three cents a mile and it was not wished to "hamper" the railroads by excessive regulations. After the legislature adjourned the roads boosted the rate arbitrarily before waiting for a court decision. The legislature will now put the gross earnings amendment before the people—see if they don't. The governor will not dare to veto that bill.

King Adolph's last desperate play for perpetuating his roll of "Man of Destiny" will also be shocked when a legitimate primary law is passed—a primary law requiring first and second choice. No law especially favoring him will be enacted.

We're glad there is to be an extra session. It means an end to government by special interests—and heaven knows Minnesota needs the change.

Is This a Prediction.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: There will be no general reapportionment by the extra session. It will, however, come with the next regular session. The state senators are not going to legislate themselves out of office.

Reapportionment is Wanted.

Bemidji Pioneer: The governor has asked the legislature to pass a reapportionment act at its special session in June. The legislature should do this and pass an equitable measure. Beltrami county wants reapportionment and the man who opposes it need not look to this county for favors. Furthermore, Beltrami county is not the only one in the state that is asking for justice.

Even Dream Figures Go Up.

New York Sun: "Everything's gone up so, the prices of provisions, coal—everything—that finally," said Mr. Glimmerton, "I've been compelled to raise my dream figures. I've had to do it.

"These dream figures appear in a waking dream of fortune with which for some years I have beguiled myself as a remedy for insomnia.

"When I originated this dream I was satisfied to have it yield me, in my mind, a net annual income of $5,000 on which I could find at that time a modest, but fair degree of comfort and be able to meet things as they came along. With this income I supplied myself in the simplest and easiest way possible.

"I imagined that some rich and generous benefactor had conferred upon me the capital sum of $100,000, which I invested in such a manner as to yield nearly $5,000, thus providing for my current wants and, blessed thought, with its permanancy insuring me against life's vicissitudes.

"But now the old dream won't do, or it won't do in the old form, everything has gone up so. More than once in the last year or two I've found the real figures, now so much bigger than they were before, coming out on top, scattering, dissolving the dream figures and keeping me awake and this won't do. I've got to have more money somehow, simply got to! and so I've revised the figures of the dream fortune, and I thought that while I was about it I might just as well raise them enough. I have now made the fortune that the said rich and generous benefactor is to give me $200,000, to yield a yearly income of $10,000, which I am sure would be enough."

The Higher Etiquette.

Students at Kansas State agricultural college are taking a course in table manners.—News Note.

'Rah, 'rah! for the classes in dining room lore—
Sis boom! for the "prof" of the table;
What odds if the forks at each plate are a score?
To choose the right ones we are able;
We are onto the curves, the deceitfulest crooks
Of the maker of spoons, and the cutler;
And, no matter how grand and imposing he looks,
We never say "Sir" to the butler.

'Rah, 'rah! we're the boys who ne'er shed our coats
Nor charge, like an army, to dinner;
We've filled endless books with voluminous notes,
And our etiquette now is a winner;
We've drilled with our napkins and handed and poured
We can buzzle the junk of the sutler;
But this is the ultimate triumph we've scored—
We never say "Sir" to the butler!

Parcel Post Would Benefit Farmers.

Farm and Fireside: An agricultural paper published at Springfield, Ohio, is fighting for the adoption of the parcel post, and in its current issue publishes an official statement of the facts relating to this question written by William J. Powell, first assistant postmaster general of the United States, who speaks directly for the department.

On the subject of the farmer and the parcel post, Mr. Powell says:

"By far the greatest advantages of a parcel post system would accrue to the residents of rural communities. A parcel post would give the farmer an opportunity of distributing such products as butter, eggs, fresh vegetables, etc., at a reasonable cost, direct to the consumer, thereby eliminating the middleman's profits, with a resultant advantage both to himself and the consumer. It would afford him a prompt delivery of his parcels and enable him to enjoy comforts which he would otherwise be denied. Its added facilities would result in improved roads and increased value of farm property generally.

"The farmer naturally prefers to trade with his local merchant and make his purchases where he can personally inspect the goods before buying. He is frequently not in a position to hitch up and go into town to buy even some of the necessaries of life, and very often goes without the comforts he would obtain where he able to order by postal card or telephone the purchases he desires and have them delivered by parcel post on the rural route. He is now compelled to attend to his own parcel delivery and this induces him to buy in large quantities, and it is mainly on the business done by freight in shipments of 100 pounds or more than the mail order houses are able to underbid the rural merchant and secure profitable orders. A parcel post will provide the local merchant with a cheap medium for delivery of his wares to rural patrons, and will enable the farmer to receive his parcel direct at his home at a reasonable price, by 'phone or indited order, with twenty-four hours. Such a condition would tend to break up the rural 'clubbing' orders to mail order houses, increase the consumption of goods and benefit mutually the patrons and the small-store men all over the United States."

WORST ENEMIES AND BEST FRIENDS.

According to dispatches from Washington, Col. Roosevelt's worst enemies in the present campaign are about to prove themselves his best friends. That is, provided there is sound basis for the statement that the Republican national committee intends to steam-roller the colonel out of as many delegates as possible, and, in the language of the correspondent, "give him ample excuse" to bolt the Chicago convention.

Truly "whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." No more suicidal idea than this ever was conceived by a passion-blinded political tyranny. If there has been any one thing in the campaign thus far that was entitled to the adjective "marvelous," it has been the hold that Col. Roosevelt has shown himself to have on the minds—and votes—of the people, where the people have had an opportunity to express their preferences. All the attacks and innuendos, all the cajolery and patronage that the backers of President Taft and the president himself could bring to bear, have served only to intensify the remarkableness of the colonel's position.

Now picture what will happen if the Taft men, by the exercise of simple power and opportunity, override the Roosevelt delegates, deny them rights to which they could show themselves entitled, if they were given a chance, seat the administration men in place of their opponents irrespective of the merits of the two hundred and some odd contests—in brief, if the Taft forces give their rivals "ample excuse" to bolt.

That there would be a bolt in such a case hardly anybody will doubt, if he has watched and studied the fighting nature of the ex-president. And if Col. Roosevelt, already possessed of a powerful following, be given an opportunity to go before the people next November with a clear case of personal and political grievance, nothing on earth can keep him from getting more support than he possibly could command were he to make the campaign as the duly accredited and recognized candidate of the Republican party. It is not impossible to conceive that in such a case he could even overcome Democratic opposition of any character.

If President Taft permits his followers to adopt any such tactics at Chicago as manifest unfairness in the seating of delegates, he will be doing himself the greatest wrong of his administration. He cannot be re-elected. That is certain. And by meeting his political end bravely and with insistent adherence to honest principles, he can at least leave in the public mind a confidence in his personal integrity that it plainly does not have in his official ability.

Either Way You Look At It.

Senator Lorimer insists that he sees no need for his resignation. Well, judging from that poll of the senate there isn't any great need.

TRICKING POPULAR FANCY.

If there were any doubt that present day politicians make use of psychology it would be dispelled by the way in which the opponents of Woodrow Wilson are placing him before the people. Duluth has had a sample of this in the address of a supporter of Champ Clark who, throughout his speech, referred always to the New Jersey governor as "Professor Wilson," thereby creating in those of his auditors who did not stop to analyze the matter, an impression of a high-browed, visionary theorist, who looked on life from the depths of a study chair and knew nothing of men as they are or of the management of large affairs.

That the trickery thus displayed by the opponents of Governor Wilson is deliberate is made clear by the fact that he is not entitled to the title they give him, inasmuch as his work for the last ten years has been entirely distinct from that of a professor. Since 1902 and until his election as governor of New Jersey, Woodrow Wilson has filled, with eminent success, a position of executive character, and one of the most difficult of such positions to be found in American affairs.

As president of a great university he had to exercise all the elements that enter into executive ability. He had to deal with men of all sorts of beliefs. He was responsible for the handling of large sums of money. He had to decide administrative questions and decide them quickly. In brief, his work was as distinct from that of the former of abstract theories as could be imagined, for the president of a great American university is not hired to occupy a chair in a lecture room, but to administer a most complicated and many-sided business organization.

That Woodrow Wilson learned the lesson of administration has been proved by his conduct of affairs in New Jersey since his election to the governorship. His overthrow of bossism in that state in matters of legislation has been emphasized by his wonderful victory in the recent primary, which he won without so much as making a campaign, through the confidence felt in him by the people who know him best and have seen the most of his work. His summary dismissal from his list of counsellors of Boss Smith of the New Jersey Democracy proved conclusively his belief in clean politics and clean government, and the voters of that state showed their appreciation at the polls.

Another false impression of the man that his opponents have managed to create and foster is that his connection with Princeton university has warped his ideas as to democracy. Nothing could be more completely false, for the determined fight made by President Wilson against the university tendency toward undemocratic ideas was one of the features of his administration.

It is a clever bit of political psychology that the anti-Wilson men are manipulating. Perhaps it has deceived a few. But when the delegates to the national Democratic convention meet at Baltimore they should remember that the Woodrow Wilson they will be called upon to consider is not a theorist or a dreamer; that he is a practical executive, a man of character, an official who has won and proved himself worthy of the highest office in a great state, and that if nominated he will have the confidence of the people of the United States as it can be had by no other man before the nation today.

Watch For a "Slam."

Candidate Lee thinks there is a trick of some kind involved in the Ed Smith primary election plans. Question is, just how few tricks the old party machine will be able to take.

A PLACE FOR A BOY SCOUT.

What would you do if you were one of a boating party, your craft should be upset, and one of your mates should be dragged from the water unconscious, though you and the others should reach the shore with no more serious experience than a thorough soaking?

That question confronted a party of young people at Louisville, Ky., the other day, and not one of the rescued knew what to do. In the words of the Associated Press dispatch relating the incident, "Miss Williams was alive, though unconscious, when taken ashore, but none of the rescuers understood how to resuscitate her," and she died, a martyr to her companions' ignorance of first aid methods.

Here is one effective and emphatic answer to the question sometimes propounded, "What good does the Boy Scouts organization do?" It teaches the boys how to act in emergencies of this character, one of the most common of incidents in localities where boating and swimming are ordinary pastimes. Had a trained Boy Scout been with that Louisville party, Virginia Williams would have been a survivor of that accident instead of the victim of a tragedy.

There are other teachings that enter into Boy Scout work, such as regard for personal honor, for courage, for the welfare of others, for clean lives and strong, healthy bodies. The movement takes hold of the youngsters when their minds are quick to seize and retain the instructions given, and the things they learn then are calculated to make them better men and more useful citizens than they would be without that training.

Not every boy, to be sure, will be called upon, either in youth or in more advanced years, to resuscitate a person taken half drowned from the water. But none of us can tell when he may have to act quickly in an emergency, and the training for such action is one of the best elements that can come into the life of any young person, whether it come through the Boy Scouts or the Girl Scouts or whatever organization or individual instruction. The Louisville incident only serves to emphasize the value of such training, and when that course is coupled with instruction in the things that go to make up good, sound, all-around manhood and womanhood its value is multiplied many times.

Same Old Jealousy.

England never could sit quietly by and see Uncle Sam pass her in anything. Now London is trying to keep up in the number of her strikes with the mill towns of Massachusetts.

PROTECT THE BIRDS.

Through the Open Court tonight a member of the humane society urges protection of the birds of Duluth against the ravages of the small boy with the slingshot and air-gun. It is a timely admonition. With the long vacation before him and the enthusiasm of freedom from school and study, the youthful hunter is bound to feel the call of the primitive in nature, and sally forth, if only to a nearby vacant lot or park, to prove his prowess with the deadly stone or shot.

While in some cases there may be a strain of cruelty in boyish escapades of this sort, it is more likely that the destroyers of the smaller creatures are moved mainly by the instinct of the chase that all the ages of evolution have not succeeded in eradicating from the race. Add to this instinct youthful thoughtlessness, and you have a combination that naturally leads to the development of the park and back lot huntsman.

But the practice is no less wrong and disastrous for its probable lack of evil intent. We need the birds. Their calls and the glimpses we get of them flitting here and there make the fields and woods more pleasant places of recreation, and the flitting creatures themselves do a world of good service in keeping down the pests of insect life that threaten crops and foliage.

Show your boys how the birds protect growing things, and teach them to enjoy the sight and songs of the flying creatures. Teach them, too, how the destruction of one bird may carry with it the destruction of a whole nestful of others dependent on that one. Join with the humane society in the work of protection, not only for the sake of teaching the children kindness, but for the good of the whole community.

Coming Out of the Clouds.

A college professor says the American people are overworked. Who says college professors are all theorists?

GIVE US ANOTHER REFORM.

With all the rage for reforms of various kinds that has broken out in this country in the last few years, why has no earnest worker for the good of the nation advocated some substitute for that most unpopular of common things, the bill?

Never since the day of its birth has an hour gone by that the bill has not been cursed in some place or other. It brings no happiness to anybody and it brings grief and rage to all. The weary bookkeeper and accountant rub their sleepy eyes and pound their aching backs at the last of every month and curse the bills that have to be made out. The man of smaller business who has to handle all such work himself glances over the pile of bills and wonders ruefully how many of them will meet with any financial response. The men who get them look at every separate one with reproach and loathing, and wish—never mind what they wish. Everybody knows so well that repetition is needless.

There is sympathy galore for the young bride who burned up her husband's collection of bills because she had seen plainly that they worried him, and she didn't like to have him worried. If that kind of treatment would bring real relief, what a rush there would be for young brides!

Here is a chance for the reformer. Let him rise from oblivion and give us a substitute for the bill, one that will bring universal joy and peace instead of universal the other thing, and nations yet unborn will rise up to call him blessed. Here is the chance for the ambitious genius. Send in a hurry call and get him to work. The world awaits him with open arms.

Several women's organizations in Wisconsin are planning a campaign to try to prevent the adoption of woman suffrage in that state. It looks like a waste of time, ladies, but perhaps the experience you get will be helpful when you finally are called on to take part in the state's and nation's affairs.

THE MISSION OF PARTY

By SAVOYARD.

"From his rich tongue
Persuasion flows and wins the high debate."

It was the idea set before American thought and food purveyed for American conscience, when in a powerful address to the voters of New Jersey the other day Woodrow Wilson discussed the mission of a political party. He admitted that there was opposition to him in his home state which is maliciously engendered and diabolically manipulated "by the great power of corruption centered in one man."

Among other things the governor told his audience:

"This archconspirator in the national ruin of his own party years ago now seeks to resume his clutch upon New Jersey's Democracy because I cannot bring myself to believe that the party was created to give men office.

"We need a rejuvenation, a rebirth of parties in the United States. We want to get down to the foundation and find out what party is made to stand for. What do you, the people, Democrats or Republicans, get out of this great fetish, so-called party loyalty? Are you supporting this government so that certain men can hold office? Where do you come in? Does the occupancy of public office by a certain set of men fill the mouths of your family with bread? Does it remove any of the great public wrongs that are eating into the hearts and poisoning the minds of the citizens of this republic?"

There is an idea for every man who would use party for the common weal and not for private aggrandizement. The Democratic party gained national victories in 1874, 1878, 1882, 1884, 1896, 1890 and 1892. Were Democratic principles substituted as public policies for Republican dogmas? Not a bit of it. And why? Because the Democratic party was and is full of men—thousands of them leaders—whose sole idea of politics is to discharge one set from office and establish another set in their stead. And as long as Jim Smith and other bosses of his kidney are able to control the primaries and conventions of the Democratic party that party will be impotent to institute the reforms that patriotic Dmocrats have so long contended for, so earnestly desired.

Take the two antagonistic ideas of taxation for public purposes and taxation for private gain, or tariff reform and tariff protection. There are thousands of Republican politicians who care not a rap for protection except to avail themselves of it to obtain office, and there are just as many Democrats who see no good in tariff reform for either than its use to get place and power. These men are statesmen of fortune, who have no convictions upon any public question except the majority of the day of election. That accounts for the bitter and intense hostility of your boss like Smith to leaders like Woodrow Wilson, who stand for nothing unless it be that when the Democratic party gains a victory at the polls that victory shall bear fruit—the engrafting of Democratic principles upon the policies of a Democratic administration and upon the legislation of a Democratic congress. It is going to take a giant to bring these thingsc about—to make the party virile and take it out of the ditch of negation.

There is much of truth in that notion that a great deal that is good in government is the consequence of "intelligent selfishness"; but there is such an enormous deal of selfishness that is ignorant and vicious! That is why human government is so far from being an exact science. Even good men are prone to think that whatever is to their individual advantage is bound to be for the common blessing. Ben Tillman expressed that view when he demanded for South Carolina a part of the tariff swag. As long as a majority of congress agrees with Tillman in that monstrous proposition this country will be cursed by a protective tariff.

What sorth of church would it be that allowed each member to indulge one sin? It would be a congregation of liars, thieves, blasphemers, homicides, gluttons and such—each one perfect, however, except he is indulged to practice his special sin. That is the sort of party we will have as long as we allow members to preach and practice the Tillmanism of sharing the stealing. The favorite way of exploiting Tillmanism is to clamor for a tariff of raw materials, that is the foundation stone of a protective tariff, without which the dogma of protection could not survive two sessions of any congress we ever had. Take the tariff off raw materials and protection will fall automatically off of finished products ready for the ultimate consumer. That is going to be done some day. Do you know who is likely to do it? Why, the G. O. P. It stole the issue of sound money from the Democrats and got twenty years of power as a reward. I could name you two of the ablest of the Republican leaders now in congress who expect their party to appropriate and carry out the idea John G. Carlisle and Roger Q. Mills had of the tariff.

The election of Woodrow Wilson as president would put an end to all that; but you put a Joe Balleyite on the tariff question in the White House—Clark and Underwood are of that kidney—and it would not be hazardous to predict that the Republican party will steal our tariff idea as it did our currency idea. And besides, the party that gives the country genuine tariff reform of the Cleveland-Bryan, Morrison-Mills, John G. Carlisle-William L. Wilson brand, will stay in power more than twenty years.

The Hon. Heyburn is in eruption again—this time neglecting the Southern Confederacy and directing his guns against the press gallery. Heyburn is one of the ablest men in public life, but he is an irreconcilable—he and William Alden Smith of Michigan being the last of the bloody shirters. Smith is a talker and nothing else, but Heyburn is a strong debater, one of the strongest in the senate, a match for Bailey and worthy the steel of John Sharp Williams himself. Next to Burton the Hon. Heyburn is the strongest man on the Republican side. He is a standpatter, one of the few of that ilk from the trans-Mississippi, the others being Warren, Smoot, Curtis and Perkins.

Hale of Maine was always opposed to the admission of new states from the West. He viciously attacked the Democratic side of the forty-fourth congress that passed the bill to admit Colorado, though if that bill had been defeated there would have been no contest of Tilden's election in 1876 to the presidency. Hal also opposed the admission of the Dakotas, Montana, Idaho and other "rotten boroughs" of "the Wild and Wooly." He opposed the admission of Arizona and New Mexico. There is tradition for it that Edmunds would not have resigned from the senate if a batch of new senators from the West had not come to subtract from senatorial ability. Had Hale prevailed the "progressives" in politics would not have been nearly so strong. Not even Heyburn's great abilities and pronounced standpatism reconciled Hale to him.

Old Ben Butler used to attack the newspapers and he was never so breezy and so entertaining as when making a speech denunciatory of the press gallery; but he supplied so much good "copy" that the boys enjoyed it. Heyburn does it pretty well, but in a skirmish like that he is not in Old Ben's class.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

BIRDS A NECESSITY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Let us protect our friends the birds. They are exceedingly useful to us, beautiful to look at and pleasant to listen to.

Northern Minnesota is blessed with many song birds and game birds. Reports from the government officials tell us the birds are worth many million dollars to the farmers of America by feeding on destructive insects.

Now that this locality is fast becoming interested in agriculture, we need the birds.

The writer was surprised a few days ago to see beautiful bright red birds with black wings in the woods about Duluth. A nearby homecrofter said he did not allow any shooting near his property and the birds are very tame for wild birds.

Now that the summer season is here again, parents should teach their children not to kill birds, either by gun or slingshots.

Before school closes, it is exceedingly desirable that every teacher in the public schools should call attention to this important subject, and leave a lasting impression in the minds of the children for all summer.

"Don't kill the birds; we need them."

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS AND THE VETERANS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

When Principal Young of the high school, as a result of the boys refusing to parade on Decoration day, said "Our boys seem to be mostly interested in themselves," he was only recognizing the commercialized teaching of our public schools and only paying a tribute to their intelligence which is trained to work the worker, rather than work themselves, and in both cases only for themselves, all benefits to be represented by profits which profits only give a living to five per cent of our school graduates when they get out into the world's game of chance, and a mere existence to 95 per cent who only get exploited by the fabric 5 per cent. The former are expected to be thankful for that as long as the master class (which is the 5 per cent) are satisfied to let them work out a commercial supremacy that as Gen. Fred D. Grant declared has been the cause of all war for the last 300 years and in which the 95 per cent get all the blows, suffering, and misery, but no profit except a mere pittance in the shape of a war pension, if they are lucky or unlucky enough to not be killed in the pomp and pageantry of war.

Knowing the above facts how can we expect the above boys to be very enthusiastic over the battle records of the past, when they know that all wars are mistakes.

But the above reasoning is no excuse for the action of the high school boys who have got the benefit of our later day intelligence, for they should have guided their action by the intelligence of fifty years ago and given due homage to those grand old men who dared and did the best that was in them to uphold a national life that was the light of those days in the world's progress for its emancipation from chattel slavery, which is steadily but surely bringing an industrial emancipation that will make the world free as an indirect result of that loss of life of fifty years ago. The benefit is conferred on all present and future life throughout the whole world.

Duluth, June 3. GLUE.

Wilbur Wright.

New York Times: It was sixteen years ago that Prof. Samuel P. Langley shot into the air, without a rider, but equipped with a propelling steam engine, his heavier-than-air "Aerodrome No. 5," and watched its strange circlings above the Potomac river near Quantico. In that year Wilbur Wrigat and his brother, Orville, read of the fatal fall of Otto Lilienthal from one of his motorless "gliders," and wondered "what the difficulties were that could not be overcome." An august problem that had defied the cunning of mankind since Daedalus could not deter these Yankee souls. Lilienthal's glides warned them that they must first practice to fly like birds, while Langley's motor taught them that the ultimate solution should result in an automatically balanced machine. Wilbur Wright lived long enough, if persistent rumor be not untrue, to perfect an automatic device assuring stability, so that men need no longer practice flight like the fowls of the air, but may trust to the machine.

However this may be, the world is ready to believe it. It disbelieved Langley, whose experiments in aerodynamics, embodied in an epoch-making report in 1891, became the study of the brothers Wright. These experiments established eight fundamental principles, not the least amazing of which was the discovery that it takes less power to support a plane at high speed than at a low speed—a fact that still, according to Alexander Graham Bell, "opens up enormous possibilities for the aerodome of the future." But men scoffed and when the man-carrying successor to "Aerodrome No. 5" toppled into the water at its launching, Dr. Langley died broken-hearted at their ridicule. But the Wrights had already forgotten their humble mechanics and were applying the principles of the masters. They practiced in view of the life-savers at Kitty Hawk, projected their horizontal steering rudder in front, and invented the flexible wing-tips that enabled them to hold the planes in balance.

They had outdone the masters. Yet men smiled when they saw pictured the first flight of the power machine on Dec. 17, 1903, and heard the corroboration of life-savers at the Kill Devil station. The two brothers did not care. They put up a shed near Dayton, their home town, invited the reporters to witness an attempt at flight, and were stoical when the papers said, knowingly, that "wind conditions prevented a start." Only now and again an excited farmer who had observed the miracle would come to town to "see the editor" about it. But four years later, when the government asked for bids for a flying machine, the world roused itself to attention. Then every one exclaimed:

Can such things be
And overcome us like a summer's cloud
Without our special wonder?

Wilbur Wright was not a martyr. His life, if it means anything, shows that a man can carry a great work to success, not only without credit from his fellows, but with supreme indifference to their opinion.

A Frightful Shock.

Youth's Companion: The president of the university had dark circles under his eyes. His cheeks were pallid; his lips were trembling; he wore a haunted expression. Every now and then he turned and glanced apprehensively behind him.

"You look ill," said his wife. "What is wrong dear?"

"Nothing much," he replied. "But—I—I had a fearful dream last night, and I feel this morning as if I—as if I—" He hesitated and stammered. It was evident that his nervous system was shattered.

"What was the dream?" asked his wife.

"I—I—dreamed the trustees required that—that I should—that I should pass the freshman examination for admission!" sighed the president.

•••James G. Blaine has resigned the secretaryship of state and the resignation has been accepted by President Harrison. It is said that Charles E. Littlefield of Rockland, Me., has been selected to present Blaine's name to the Republican convention as a candidate for president.

•••There was a large gathering of citizens today at the funeral of John J. Costello. All the aldermen and city officers, representatives of the Jobbers' union and the directors of the chamber of commerce were present. The pall bearers were: Charles Hartman, W. C. Sargent, H. Van Brunt, Benjamin Howard, Alex Poirier and Capt. Monaghan.

THE EXTRA SESSION.

Looking Four Years Ahead.

Winona Independent: Now that Minnesota is to have a special session of the legislature, the income tax amendment to the constitution should be ratified before the session adjourns. Also the primary law should give citizens a chance to express their preference for presidential nominees.

Distribution of Forces.

Cambridge North Star: It is said that there is going to be a people's lobby at the special session of the legislature to investigate bills and methods and report to the public every day. We move to make the committee large enough so that at least one member can be assigned to the governor's office, another to Billy Hamm's office and another to Ed Smith's.

Political Mistake.

Rochester Post and Record: The call for a special session of the legislature has placed the gubernatorial candidates at sea. It has completely overturned their plans, and they are compelled to make new programs. While it is embarrassing to the candidates it is pleasing to the people, for it gives them the power to express directly their preference as to who shall fill the executive chair, as well as who shall fill the other elective state offices. Governor Eberhart is severely criticised for his action by many members of the legislature who believe the extra session unnecessary. Certain it is he would have fared better in public estimation had he called it in time to permit a presidential preference election. The prevailing opinion is that he has made a political mistake, so far as he himself is concerned.

Flip-flop.

Owatonna Journal-Chronicle: No more amusing political flip-flop has ever been executed, in the history of the state, than Governor Eberhart's sudden, eleventh-hour determination to call a special session of the legislature to adopt a direct primary and corrupt practices act.

Fear is Motive.

Anoka Herald: There is no getting around the fact that Eberhart has lost strength immeasurably since he failed to keep his word to the Northern Minnesota development congress. At the meeting of that body at St. Cloud last fall here was great indignation over his course and while the meeting itself refrained from more than passing condemnation, it was clearly evident that Mr. Eberhart had lost friends by the thousands north of the Twin Cities.

He is said to have claimed that there was no demand for an extra session of the state legislature at the state convention last week, the demand was repeated and he called the session for June 4. That he has at last heard the cry from Northern Minnesota avails him nothing since it has been so evidently prompted by fear of inevitable defeat in the coming campaign rather than through fair treatment of the northern part of the state.

The Governor Awakens.

Aitkin Age: The Minnesota legislature will meet in extra session June 4.

The Republican state convention in passing a resolution demanding a primary vote on governor exploded the mine that shook the governor to action.

For a year he has firmly maintained that there was no need for an extra session, frantically attempting to protect the railroads from the action on the increased gross earnings tax and the brewers from unfavorable temperance legislation. Even reapportionment was treated indifferently by him—his keepers didn't want it.

But when the recent primaries smashed the Smith-Eberhart machine and it was a certainty that Eberhart could not be nominated by the convention system, he saw a great light and declared that the time was ripe for an extra session to enact a primary law and reapportionment legislation. But true to his subserviency, he did not fail to say that he hoped no further legislation would be undertaken. In other words, he would keep the state from receiving a just railroad tax for two more years.

When the legislature was in session the increased gross earnings tax was dropped because it was understood that the railroads would not raise the passenger rate to three cents a mile and it was not wished to "hamper" the railroads by excessive regulations. After the legislature adjourned the roads boosted the rate arbitrarily before waiting for a court decision. The legislature will now put the gross earnings amendment before the people—see if they don't. The governor will not dare to veto that bill.

King Adolph's last desperate play for perpetuating his roll of "Man of Destiny" will also be shocked when a legitimate primary law is passed—a primary law requiring first and second choice. No law especially favoring him will be enacted.

We're glad there is to be an extra session. It means an end to government by special interests—and heaven knows Minnesota needs the change.

Is This a Prediction.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: There will be no general reapportionment by the extra session. It will, however, come with the next regular session. The state senators are not going to legislate themselves out of office.

Reapportionment is Wanted.

Bemidji Pioneer: The governor has asked the legislature to pass a reapportionment act at its special session in June. The legislature should do this and pass an equitable measure. Beltrami county wants reapportionment and the man who opposes it need not look to this county for favors. Furthermore, Beltrami county is not the only one in the state that is asking for justice.

Even Dream Figures Go Up.

New York Sun: "Everything's gone up so, the prices of provisions, coal—everything—that finally," said Mr. Glimmerton, "I've been compelled to raise my dream figures. I've had to do it.

"These dream figures appear in a waking dream of fortune with which for some years I have beguiled myself as a remedy for insomnia.

"When I originated this dream I was satisfied to have it yield me, in my mind, a net annual income of $5,000 on which amount I could live at that time a modest, but fair degree of comfort and be able to meet things as they came along. With this income I supplied myself in the simplest and easiest way possible.

"I imagined that some rich and generous benefactor had conferred upon me the capital sum of $100,000, which I invested in such a manner as to yield yearly $5,000, thus providing for my current wants and, blessed thought, with its permanancy insuring me against life's vicissitudes.

"But now the old dream won't do, or it won't do for me. Everything, everything has gone up so. More than once in the last year or two I've found the real figures, now so much bigger than they were before, coming out on top, scattering disturbing visions of steam, figures and keeping me awake and this won't do. I've got to have more money smoehow, simply got to! and so I've revised the figures of the dream fortune, and I thought that while I was about it I might just as well raise them enough. I have now made the fortune that the said rich and generous benefactor is to give me $200,000, to yield a yearly income of $10,000, which I am sure would be enough."

The Higher Etiquette.

Students at Kansas State agricultural college are taking a course in table manners.—News Note.

'Rah, 'rah! for the classes in dining room lore—
Sis boom! for the "prof" of the table;
What odds if the forks at each plate are a score?
To choose the right ones we are able;
We are onto the curves, the deceitfulest crooks
Of the maker of spoons, and the cutler;
And, no matter how grand and imposing he looks,
We never say "Sir" to the butler.

'Rah, 'rah! we're the boys who ne'er shed our coats
Nor charge, like an army, to dinner;
We've filled endless books with voluminous notes,
And our etiquette now is a winner;
We've drilled with our napkins and handed and poured,
We can juggle the junk of the sutler;
But this is the ultimate triumph we've scored—
We never say "Sir" to the butler!

Parcel Post Would Benefit Farmers.

Farm and Fireside: An agricultural paper published at Springfield, Ohio, is fighting for the adoption of the parcel post, and in its current issue publishes an official statement of the facts relating to this question written by William J. Powell, third assistant postmaster general of the United States, who speaks directly for the department.

On the subject of the farmer and the parcel post, Mr. Powell says:

"By far the greatest advantages of a parcel post system would accrue to the residents of rural communities. A parcel post would give the farmer an opportunity of distributing such products as butter, eggs, fresh vegetables, etc., at a reasonable cost, direct to the consumer, thereby eliminating the middleman's profits, with a resultant advantage both to himself and the consumer. It would afford him a prompt delivery of his parcels and enable him to enjoy comforts which he would otherwise be denied. Its added facilities would result in improved roads and increased value of farm property generally.

"The farmer naturally prefers to trade with his local merchant and make his purchases where he can personally inspect the goods before buying. He is frequently not in a position to hitch up and go into town to buy even some of the necessaries of life, and very often goes without the comforts he would obtain where he able to order by postal card or telephone the purchases he desires and have them delivered by parcel post on the rural route. He is now compelled to attend to his own parcel delivery and this induces him to buy in large quantities, and it is mainly on the business done by freight in shipments of 100 pounds or more than the mail order houses are able to underbid the rural merchant and secure profitable orders. A parcel post will provide the local merchant with a cheap medium for delivery of his wares to rural patrons, and will enable the farmer to receive his parcel direct at his home at a reasonable price, by 'phone or indited order, with twenty-four hours. Such a condition would tend to break up the rural 'clubbing' orders to mail order houses, increase the consumption of goods and benefit mutually the patrons and the small-store men all over the United States."

Investigate the Cause

IF your house was cold last winter—there was probably a good reason for it outside of the shortcomings of your heating apparatus.

Investigate the cause. For your own and your family's comfort's sake root out the cause or rectify it before cold weather sets in again. Visit the up-stairs rooms and the attic. Note the cracks and crevices under the eaves and around the chimney or window frames. Nose around down cellar—inspect and make a mental note of the openings between the foundation and the base beams of the entire structure. Then recall all that you learned at school about heat and how, like cream, it always rises to the top.

No matter what the construction of your house may be—whether clap-boarded, bricked, tiled or with walls of concrete—you cannot expect to keep the heat indoors and evenly distributed throughout unless it is properly insulated against cold. And the only heat-and-cold insulation is

LINOFELT

On an investment of not more than one per cent of the cost of a building, a single thickness of Linofelt has cut 40 per cent off the fuel bills of hundreds of other satisfied home-owners—it will do as much and more for you.

Figure it out for yourself. Heat always rises and if the roof and eaves or the attic floor of your house are not sheathed with Linofelt you are simply tossing good money after bad, buying and burning fuel in a mad effort to heat your rooms and all outdoors besides.

As this is the case, don't let another summer pass without investigating the fuel and comfort-economies of Linofelt. Call up our local agent now. Tell him to demonstrate just why and how the specially prepared flax fibres of Linofelt keep a house warmer in winter and cooler in summer than any other known substance. Tell him to give you an estimate on the cost of the Linofelt needed—and let us help make your house a real home in satisfaction and fuel economy by furnishing the means of keeping it comfortable the year 'round.

FOR SAFETY UPON WATER

Senator Nelson Introduces Proposed "Ocean Safety Act of 1912."

Covers Lessons Drawn From Titanic Disaster—Other Washington Doings.

Washington, June 4. — An all-inclusive bill, to be denominated "the ocean safety act of 1912," designated to cover all the navigation lessons drawn from the Titanic disaster, was introduced yesterday by Senator Nelson of Minnesota, chairman of the commerce committee, which, through a sub-committee, investigated that disaster.

The bill includes stringent regulations for better wireless equipment, continuously operated, on ocean and Great Lakes vessels carrying fifty or more persons, just as provided in a bill which passed the house yesterday, and almost identical with a bill already passed by the senate. This wireless section vests control of the apparatus in the master of the vessel, and to avoid the wireless communication being shut off by failure of the vessel's engines, required a powerful auxiliary power supply, that can communicate 100 miles at all times.

Other Terms of Bill.

The Nelson bill would recognize foreign steamship laws whenever they are as effective as American laws and regulations; would equip every passenger craft leaving an American port with sufficient lifeboats to accommodate everybody aboard, together with other safety equipment; and would create a commission of five persons to investigate here and abroad merchant marine construction. It would require rigid port examination, boat drills, define qualification of seamen, penalize failure to assist any person in distress at sea, and make criminally liable any master, managing owner, steamship director or principal resident agent of a foreign steamship for sending from an American port a vessel so unseaworthy as to endanger life.

Pension for Mrs. Schley.

After a speech by Senator Rayner, the senate agreed to a $150 a month pension for Mrs. Schley, widow of Admiral Schley, after it had first rejected by 42 to 10 an amendment proposed by the pension committee to cut the amount to $50 a month. It was stated during the debate that Mr. Schley's present income was about $420 a year. Senator McCumber, chairman of the committee on pensions, who had reported the bill for $50 instead of $150 as introduced by Mr. Rayner, objected to the increase as discriminatory. "To give Mrs. Schley $150 would be a rank injustice to the widow of every other officer who has served under the flag," he said.

Costs $6 to Bathe a Senator.

Charging that it costs $6 to bathe a senator in the luxurious bathrooms in the senate office building, Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi renewed the agitation for the removal of the baths to make place for public documents. The documents now occupy all the space in an abandoned car barn, and the discussion arose in connection with a provision in the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, appropriating money to continue the payment of the rent for that structure. Mr. Williams suggested that the documents should be removed to the basement of the office building, but it was stated that all the space had been appropriated.

"Let us move out the baths," said Mr. Williams. "There is no use to have the government bathe us. The establishment arouses public criticism and is of little use. It is like going through a bull pasture with a red flag, which makes a bad impression on the bull. It gives the muckraker a chance to rake, and the graft is not worth while. There is no sense in it."

Investigate Linen Imports.

A sweeping investigation of the importations of Irish and Scotch linens has been ordered by Secretary MacVeagh as a result of a conference with Assistant Secretary Curtis, Collector Loeb of New York and John E. Wilkie, chief of the customs special agents. Extensive frauds, depriving the government of considerable duty, probably are being perpetrated by under-valuation of these goods, it is claimed at the treasury department. A cursory examination disclosed, it is said, that by the operations of one small house, the government had lost at least $18,-000. The practice is believed to have extended to many other cases.

Would Revise Sherman Law.

With the beginning of the investigation of the alleged "beef trust" by the house judiciary committee, it is declared there will begin an inquiry into big combinations that will make recent congressional efforts along that line insignificant by comparison. The object of the proposed far-reaching investigation, according to Representative Clayton, chairman of the committee, is the complete reconstruction of the Sherman anti-trust law or the enactment of some legislation calculated to take its place. Insisting that the Sherman law is "obsolete," Mr. Clayton said that some statute should be provided that would make monopolies impossible.

Akin's Franked Letters Held Up.

An investigation of the law office of the postoffice department is sought by Representative Akeron Akin of New York, who introduced a resolution asking that a special committee be appointed to inquire into the conduct of the department for withholding from delivery mail sent under a congressional frank.

Mr. Akin recently delivered a speech in the house in which he attacked several prominent New York politicians. Included in his remarks was a reference to a former member of congress. Mr. Akin took this excerpt and had it printed on the envelopes in which he sought to mail copies of the speech. Assistant Attorney Goodwin of the postoffice department held up the mail as a violation of the postal laws. Mr. Akin in his resolution objects to this censorship of his congressional privilege.

Incorporation Bills Favored.

The senate committee on the judiciary has ordered a favorable report on Senator Lodge's bills which would incorporate the National Institute of Arts and Letters, and the National Academy of Arts and Letters.

No Meal Tickets for Delegates.

The economy wave in congress has washed away an appropriation of $50,-000 sought for the entertainment of delegates to the international congress of chambers of commerce and industrial associations to be held in Boston in September. Representative Peters of Massachusetts, Democrat, in despair gave up his fight for the appropriation, and agreed to accept a substitute measure passed by the senate which merely authorized the president to invite the delegates. "That would be disgraceful," protested Former Speaker Cannon. "How would it look if anyone of us should ask a guest to cross the sea to visit us, and then tell him to bring his lunch?"

The national government will issue invitations, but there will be no meal tickets or hotel reservations enclosed.

Protect American Shipping.

The house passed a bill designed to protect American shipping and commerce against alleged monopoly of the so-called foreign "shipping trust." The committee introducing the measure reported that 90 per cent of all shipping entering American ports was in foreign pools, and that no competition existed. Refusal of clearance paper to "trust" ships, refusing entry into American ports and the imposition of heavy fines or the confiscation of such vessels, are among the penalties provided for conviction of violation of the law.

WIRELESS TERMS PROPOSED.

International Meet Is Opened at London; to Be Invited to America.

London, June 4.—The American delegation to the international conference on wireless telegraphy, which opened here today, will invite the congress to hold its next meeting in the United States.

It is stated that the Americans have been officially instructed to procure the adoption of the foreign regulations:

"All ships carrying more than 100 persons must maintain a continuous watch for calls made on standard wave lengths distinct from all other wave lengths—the wave length in commercial business to be increased from 400 to 800 meters; rigid restrictions against publicity in the case of intercepted personal and confidential messages; governments are urged to insure the taking of regular meteorological observations on all ships, and their transmission to central stations in Europe and America, and storm warnings to be re-distributed to ships at sea.

"Distress signals, weather observations and storm warnings to take precedence over all commercial and private messages. Provision must be made for a systematic inspection of the installation and operation of all radio apparatus, and the various radio systems must be forced to co-operate in sending distress, storm and weather messages."

The Americans are ready to make a strong fight for the addition of the rule giving precedence to distress, weather and storm messages, which is opposed by certain wireless interests here.

For Shallow, Wrinkled, Freckled, Pimpled Skin

(From Woman's Home Journal.)

If you have any cutaneous blemish, don't use paint, powder or anything else to cover it up. Too often this only emphasizes the defect. Besides, it's much easier to remove the disfigurement with ordinary mercolized wax. Applied nightly, the wax will gradually remove freckles, pimples, blackheads, moth-patches, sallowness, red or yellow blotches, or any surface eruptions. The affected cuticle is absorbed, a little each day, until the clear, soft, youthful and beautiful skin beneath is brought wholly to view. Ask the druggist for an ounce of mercolized wax and use this like you use cold cream. Remove in morning with soap and water. Many who have tried this simple and harmless treatment report astonishing results.

If bothered with wrinkles, sagging cheeks or double chin, a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel will prove effectual.

DULUTH EXTENDS A FORMAL AND CORDIAL WELCOME TO THE SOO LINE

OFFICERS ARE GUESTS AT BANQUET

Fully 500 Business Men Pay Tribute to Road's Enterprise.

Speakers Thank Guests for Spirit of Co-operation Shown.

Informal Spirit of Good Fellowship Marks the Evening.

Duluth welcomed the Soo road last evening.

The welcome may have seemed tardy, but it was not Duluth's fault. Duluth has been trying to formally express its appreciation of the coming of the Soo for nearly two years, but it was never possible before to get all of the head officers of the road here at once, before.

They were all here last evening, guests of honor at a banquet at the Spalding hotel, and fully 500 business men told them what they thought of them. Duluth was not in full dress for the occasion. It was an informal banquet, both in dress and in the feeling of good fellowship that prevailed, but it could have left no doubt in the minds of the officers of the road of the friendly feeling that Duluth has toward them and toward the great railroad system they represent.

There have been bigger banquets in Duluth—a few; there have been more elaborate and expensive banquets; there have been more famous after dinner speakers heard; but there has never been a gathering of men more representative of all classes of business in Duluth, nor one in which good fellowship and optimism and the spirit of co-operation seemed to prevail as it did last evening.

The banquet was originally planned by the Duluth Commercial club which sent President Pennington of the Soo a formal invitation more than a year ago. When Mr. Pennington was able to set a date when he could be in Duluth with the other officers of the road, the Commercial club invited all the other public organizations, including the Greater Duluth club and the Rotary club, and the neighborhood improvement clubs, and the city officials, to co-operate in making the banquet a successful and a representative one. The auxiliary organizations promptly accepted the invitation, and entered into the plans enthusiastically. The large dining room of the Spalding was crowded to its capacity last evening, and not ten more people could have been comfortably seated.

The dinner and the service reflected credit on the hotel management. During the evening the Spalding trio, consisting of the Misses Heymar, Brown and Lawson, played a number of selections which were much appreciated and warmly applauded.

W. A. McGonagle presided as toastmaster and served in his usual efficient manner, introducing the various speakers with very brief and pertinent little talks. He also fully held up his end in the little sallies directed at him by several of the speakers.

Following the regular printed program, Mr. McGonagle called on Vice President W. L. Martin for an impromptu talk, but Mr. Martin very gracefully excused himself, after thanking Duluth for the reception given him and his associates.

Mayor McCuen was the first speaker called on, and dwelt upon the importance of the coming of the Soo.

"At one time," he said, "I thought it impossible for the road to build in to Duluth on account of the natural difficulties, but these difficulties were overcome. On behalf of the citizens whom I have the honor to represent as chief executive, I want to thank the road for the enterprise it has shown, and to welcome its officers here tonight."

The dining room had been most effectively decorated with American flags and wild cherry blossoms, with a red carnation for each guest, and at the end of the room was one of the trade marks of the Soo road, lighted by a little incandescent bulb.

The officers of the road present were: President Edmund Pennington; W. L. Martin, vice president; George A. Huntington, general manager; E. F. Potter, assistant general manager; C. W. Gardner, comptroller; F. H. Kalk, chief engineer; A. H. Bright, general counsel; J. R. Michaels, superintendent, Lake Superior division; W. R. Callaway, general passenger agent.

MR. PENNINGTON'S ADDRESS

President Pennington's talk was very brief and very much to the point.

"If ever I wanted to be a talker, it would be tonight," he said, after having been given a most enthusiastic reception, all the guests rising from their seats.

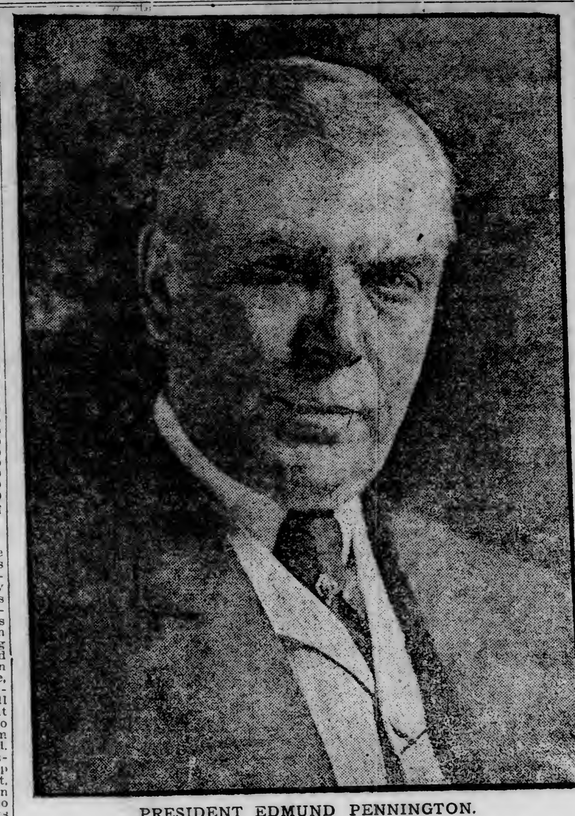

"If I were an orator I might attempt to express my appreciation of this reception, but not being one I cannot.

"It is a fact that we have built into Duluth, and in the last five years we have built 654 miles of railroad leading into your city. This road has cost us $29,134,000. That goes to show that we have confidence in the future of your city. It has opened up 300 new stations that you did not have before, and they are all tributary to your city. It has opened up a great farming community. We are here because we have confidence in your city and in the entire Northwest.

"You have, here in Duluth, everything that any city could want, or ought to have to become a great city. If you don't use it here at home, it is your own fault. You have all got to get out and hustle.

"The railroads spend their money far in advance of development, and frequently have to wait for years before they get interest on it. The newest line to Duluth, from the Twin Cities was begun ten years ago, and it is just being completed now. These lines were all drawn out on paper, and there are many more of them not yet built. Duluth will get its share of them.

"But as I said before, I am not the talking man of the road, and I am going to let the talking man do the talking."

PRESIDENT EDMUND PENNINGTON.

HOUSE SHUNS THE SERIOUS

Duluth Railroad President Gives Snappy Talk on Railroads.

Commends Soo Line for Seeing Opportunities in Duluth Traffic.

F. E. House, president of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, spoke on "Duluth Railroads." His talk was not entirely serious, but under the bantering tone and words was a wealth of expression of appreciation of the Soo's entrance into Duluth. Mr. House said:

"If I could not work for the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company I would choose the Soo! I like the quiet and efficient way with which that progressive company goes ahead and pushes itself into territory supposed to be adequately served by other roads, which territory apparently suddenly wakens to the fact that it has not really been served at all until the Soo came along, and out of the kindness of its heart, and on account of being inspired with a deep pity, the crippled transportation facilities with which the public was struggling proceeds to clear up the situation by furnishing its unequalled service at much reduced rates! For further particulars address Mr. Martin, vice president in charge of traffic, Minneapolis, Minn.

F. E. HOUSE.

"Look at a map of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, and Manitoba and see an object lesson of the quiet handiwork of the modest and unassuming guests of our city upon this occasion and see if you ever saw a more magnificent example of the capacity for pulling money out of the pockets of unsuspecting and innocent bondholders! The system that shows in such heavy black lines on this map starts from Sault Ste. Marie and Chicago and their lines run a race apparently to reach the Twin Cities. After catching their breath they decide to combine and by their united strength they push themselves by a short main line of only 560 miles up to Portal, on the line between North Dakota and Saskatchewan. Now it is evident to the merest layman, that there's no use having a line into Portal unless you do something else to protect it, so the Eastern sucker coughs up some more money and a line goes from Glenwood, Minn., to Winnipeg, 332 miles. Of course, such lines are practically thrown away without feeders, so the suffering sucker in New York groans and puts up more dollars in an endeavor to save what he has already blown in, and a net work of feeders is planned and built to different controlling points. Of course, all of this waste of money keeps our guests on their jobs. There's no use trading horses in the middle of a stream and when a railroad president succeeds in bleeding your pocket not only once, but two or three times, you had better keep him in charge, because he will get tired after a while; but if you put in a new man, he feels it his duty to go through the whole process from the beginning until you are stranded. But now the bondholder asserts himself, and after a good look at the map with the heavy black lines upon it, he says, "this all looks very well on paper, but the one thing needful to put upon this gigantic structure its cap-stone, is to get into Duluth! Of course, this will put a very serious check upon the future growth of the Twin Cities, Winnipeg, etc., but why need we worry about traffic to and from those comparatively unimportant points if we are snugly entrenched in Duluth."

Duluth People Not Half Bad.

"No sooner said than done, and the Soo Line enters the future metropolis of the Northwest under physical difficulties very seldom met with in modern railroad construction. Among the many other advantages to us from the advent of this "live wire," it gives Duluth's citizens this opportunity of greeting the "men behind the guns," whose energy in constructing and ability in operating, place the Soo Line in the front rank of the successful railroads of the Northwest. I am proud of the opportunity of extending to these gentlemen the welcome and congratulations that are so practically evidenced by the attendance here of our leading business men.

"As a brother railroad man, I wish to say to our railroad guests that on the whole, this Duluth bunch is not half bad! To be sure you will find that they may occasionally get the idea into their heads that you ought to put on special service for every case of straw hats that goes out of Duluth over your line, Or they may try to make you think that inasmuch as your passenger trains are running anyhow, they should be allowed to ride for nothing, but you will find after all that, after you have given Mr. Martin his chance to hypnotize them with his oratory on the freight business, and Mr. Calloway has talked an arm off them on the money that you lose each year in the passenger business, they will see the error of their ways and play the game squarely. I have had the pleasure of living with Duluth people for eleven years and I have found that they are a strenuous lot of kickers when they are wrongfully treated and a most loyal company of friends and backers when rightfully treated.

"Seriously, gentlemen, the coming of a railroad system like the Soo, means no small thing to a city and I feel sure, from my knowledge of the standing of the Soo Line among the railroads of the Northwest that it will ask no favors at the hands of the Duluth business men, except those that it is entitled to by reason of its ability to serve you faithfully, and I am equally certain that the management of this great company will, as it becomes more intimately acquainted with the broad minded men of Duluth, have no fault to find with the character and quantity of the support that it will receive at their hands.

"We are especially complimented upon this occasion zy having with us practically the entire force of the men at the head of this system and is may interest those present who do not possess the privilege of being in the railroad business, to learn something of the duties assigned to these different gentlemen and as one who has 'dabbled' in the business for thirty-three years, perhaps I can enlighten you.

The Officers' Duties.

"The president is usually chosen because of his good looks and is paid for looking wise and telling ghost stories to his stockholders!

"The vice president in charge of traffic is the one who suggests raising rates and then suddenly goes to Florida and stays till the storm blows over!

"The general manager rides over the road and delegates to the assistant general manager all of the work to be done in the operating department, while he plays golf at Minnikahda.

"The general counsel puts in his time endeavoring to keep the president and general manager on the legal track and out of jail. He is one of the busiest men of the party.

"The acting chief engineer spends the money as fast as it is earned and gets no credit for it. I speak feelingly, because I had a good many years at that myself and now I find fault with my chief engineer for doing exactly what I used to do with such ghoulish glee.

"The comptroller, really the only real sane man in the organization, with the assistance of the auditor, keeps the accounts, and if you only knew how hazy an idea the average railroad man has of the value of a dollar, you would see how difficult a job he has in trying to induce the president to keep anything for the stockholder.

"The division superintendent, with his train master and general agent, together with the general freight agent and general passenger agent, are the ones who do the work. They are expected to be able to make one of you business men believe one thing and another of you the direct opposite thing and never crack a smile.

"With this little inside information, permit me, my Duluth friends, to commend to your kindest consideration, these guests of ours, now to be our neighbors and friends. Treat them considerately for they have troubles enough of their own without shouldering too many of yours."

CAN MAKE OR BREAK CITY

Julius H. Barnes Says Railroads Are the Greatest City Builders.

Urges Renewal of Faith in Future Greatness of Duluth.

Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the Duluth Traffic commission, gave a most interesting talk on the relations between the traffic commission and the Soo.

"We are compelled again and again to ask for service and rates which depand upon the spirit of the railroad whether or not they are granted," said Mr. Barnes, after expressing his pleasuro at being able to testify to the spirit shown by the Soo. "The spirit in which the Soo road has met our requests has always been most gratifying. I understand Mr. Pennington and Mr. Huntington, and Mr. Martin have been together in team play for a quarter of a century. Perhaps their salaries held them, but I doubt it. Perhaps they remained purely for the sake of the financial rewards, but I doubt it. Through all the lean years, I believe they had a vision of the road that would be. I believe they had an ideal toward which they were building. Believing this, and knowing that they have brought their road to Duluth from five directions in three years, speaks more encouragingly to me than anything that has happened in this city in years.

"In 1895 the tonnage of this port was about seven million tons. In 1910 it was 35,000,000. Factories must come where traffic moves. The railroads are the greatest city builders in this country. Railroad managers can make or break a city within limits. They can retard the growth of this city ten or twenty years, or they can accelerate it. I believe that railroad managers try to be fair in their dealings with the public, as a rule, but tonnage speaks in a loud, clear voice that cannot be denied.

"The old days when a manager would break a road for personal gain are gone. The managers of the new school seek to build up the territory which they serve.

"Duluth is now the terminus of four transcontinental lines, and will soon be the terminus of a fifth. Think of these things, gentlemen, and renew your faith in Duluth. The factories are coming. They cannot help but come. Tonnage creates rates, and rates create tonnage. It grows in itself.

"I want Duluth to stand for just what the Soo stands for—honesty, fair dealing, perseverence, courage, and foresight."

DULUTH AND WHEAT BELT

A. W. Frick Asks Soo to Bring Canadian Grain Here.

"We Both Need It in Our Business," He Says.

A. W. Frick, president of the Duluth board of trade, prefaced his speech with some remarks regarding the local officers of the Soo road, which created no little merriment.

"For years we had been dealing with your road indirectly," he said, "and finally we had an opportunity to deal directly with you. I want to congratulate the road on the caliber of its local representatives. Your agent, Mr. Sherwood, used to come up to the board and visit us to extol the merits of the Soo Line's service. He got some of us to believe him, and we began to give him a little business. He kept coming oftener, and kept getting more business, as we realized that he was telling the truth in the main.

"Then we began to miss him. We kept on sending him the business, but he didn't show up. Then we decided to go and look for him, and return some of his calls, and incidentally ask him where some of the empty cars he had promised us were. We couldn't find him, but we found that he was swamped with the business, and wasn't looking for any more just then. Since then, however, the trouble has adjusted itself.

"To the north of us, gentlemen, is an empire of wheat, barley and oats. In five years it will be raising 500,000,000 bushels of wheat. Duluth should handle 100,000,000 bushels of that a year. On behalf of the Duluth board of trade, I ask you to get busy and bring us that grain. We need it in our business, and your road needs it. The coming of the Soo road has been a good thing for Duluth. Let us get together, gentlemen, and build up a great city here."

SPEAKS FOR THE JOBBERS

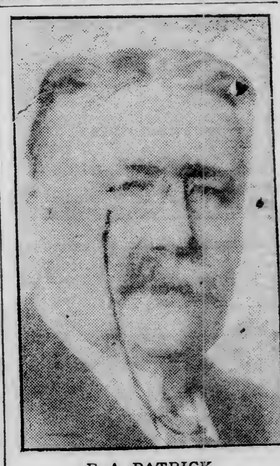

F. A. Patrick Briefly Reviews the Traffic Situation in Duluth.

Time Coming When Roads Must Co-operate on Terminals.

F. A. Patrick, representing the Duluth jobbers, gave an able review of the traffic situation in Duluth.

"No interest," he said, "has watched more closely the railroad development than the jobbers. For years we have had connections to the West, but it did not seem that we were getting the proper service. We hope the Soo will set an example and give this terminal what is due us. We have been treated more like the end of a stub line than like a great terminal. I was talking recently to the head of a great railroad system that serves Duluth and he said to me, 'The Soo crosses us seventeen times in coming to Duluth.' 'Yes,' I replied, 'but don't you cross the Soo seventeen times also?' That condition brings up an important problem that must be solved.

"Several years ago Col. Parker prepared a plan for a terminal system for Duluth. Col. Parker is an expert at such work and the plan he prepared, was I believe, an excellent one. The time is approaching when we are going to ask the railroads to get together on such a plan. Col. Parker stated that there was no question of the ability to handle twenty times the passenger service and ten to fifteen times the freight service with such a plan. His plan would bring the passenger trains in on overhead trestles and the freight trains underneath. I think we can count on the co-operation of the Soo road in bringing this about. It may come slowly, but it is coming."

F. A. PATRICK.

ONE SLOGAN IN DULUTH

That Slogan Is "I Am for Duluth," Says P. E. Dowling.

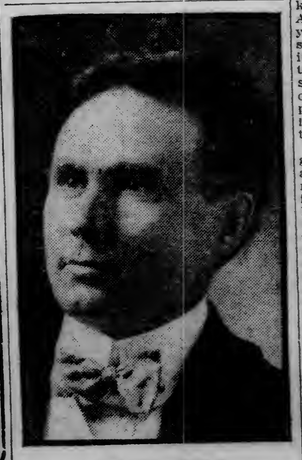

Duluth Needs the Soo and the Soo Needs Duluth.

P. E. Dowling was called upon to speak for the Greater Duluth club, of which he is president, and responded briefly and ably.

In opening his talk, he briefly outlined the aims and purposes of the Greater Duluth club.

"It is a democratic organization," he said. "In its membership you will find the presidents of railroads and their stenographers; the presidents of banks and their clerks. It welcomes every citizen of Duluth."

Mr. Dowling then warmly welcomed the Soo to the city. "We certainly needed the Soo," he said, "and I think the Soo realized it needed Duluth. I want to assure the officers of the road who are our guests tonight, that in no city in this broad country of ours will they find a greater degree of loyalty to home institutions than they will here. There is but one slogan in the city, and that is: 'I am for Duluth.'

"Duluth has caught a new spirit. It proposes to no longer trail in the procession, but it proposes to lead. The president of the Soo and his associates are our guests tonight. I wish we could keep them here. I wish we could bring other railroad presidents here, and keep them. We want them all to feel that Duluth is their city and that what benefits Duluth benefits them. I thank you, gentlemen.'

HUMAN SIDE OF CITY LIFE

A. H. Bright Speaks on Growth of a Patriotic Citizenship.

Business Men Stand Behind Every Movement for Civic Betterment.

"On an occasion like this, our minds are quite naturally absorbed in the consideration of material things, the building of the great highways of commerce, the development of the country tributary to a commercial center, the making of a city.

"It is entirely fitting to thoroughly realize all this, as a wise man considers well the true basis of every enterprise, the foundation of whatever he would build. But the material side is not all; there remains the human side embraced in current phrases, such as, the social welfare and the civic life. The first has to do with the removal of unjust burdens and the remedy for poverty, ignorance and vice, which are a constant menace to every city; the second, primarily has to do with the creation of a worthy and patriotic citizenship devoted to the business of governing the city.

"Business men of American cities have too long neglected these vital matters because they had too much else to do and have left them to others who generally had nothing else to do and were without training or character sufficient to warrant the trust.

"No wonder, bad conditions have resulted. The only wonder is that they have not been worse.

Giving Service.

"The time has come, however, and the hour has struck when business men of our cities, regardless of politics or creed, stand back of and actively promote every sound movement towards the social welfare and the civic betterment. Our business men always gave of their money; it is one thing, however, for a business man to give

YOUR GRAY HAIRS QUICKLY VANISH

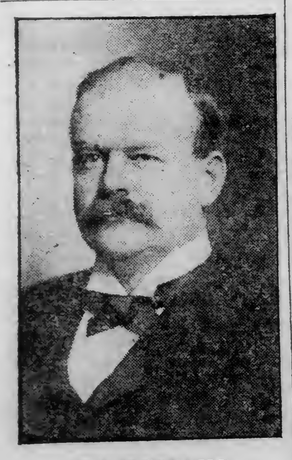

A Harmless Remedy, Made From Garden Sage, Restores Color to Gray Hair.

A feeling of sadness accompanies the discovery of the first gray hairs which unfortunately are looked upon as heralds of advancing age. Gray hair, however handsome it may be, makes a person look old. We all know the advantages of being young. Aside from the good impression a youthful appearance makes on others, simply knowing that you are "looking fit" gives one courage to undertake and accomplish things. So why suffer the handicap of looking old on account of gray hairs, when a simple remedy will give your hair youthful color and beauty in a few days' time?

Most people know that common garden sage acts as a color restorer and scalp tonic as well. Our grandmothers used a "Sage Tea" for keeping their hair dark, soft and luxuriant. In Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy we have an ideal preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for dandruff, itching scalp and thin, weak hair that is split at the ends or constantly coming out. A few applications of this valuable remedy will bring back the color, and in a short time it will remove every trace of dandruff and greatly improve the growth and appearance of the hair.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today, and notice the difference in your hair after a few days' treatment. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented.

Toastmaster.

Mr. McGonagle has presided at many banquets in Duluth, but never more effectively than he did last evening. His introductory remarks were always terse and to the point, and speakers who tried to score off him found him ready with a reply.

money and quite another thing to give himself to this great service.

"I can imagine nothing more significant than the movement apparent in more than one American city whereby the business men are giving the city the benefit of their combined intellectual and moral force in their organized support of these greater interests.

"This is but one manifestation of the great worldwide movement towards better conditions among men. We see it in every civilized nation; the marvel of our times is the awakening of old China. It is even felt in India, priest ridden and shackled in the iron bonds of caste. Degenerate Turkey has been bettered by it and Russia's tragic history bears witness to its power. Let us not be deaf to the call nor ignore the movement of this mighty spirit.

"The splendid manhood which has made Duluth commercially great will surely not neglect her more vital interests, for it is just as pertinent to ask of the city as of an individual: 'What shall it profit to gain the whole world and lose your own soul?'"

ARE TIRED OF THE KICKS

J. B. Cotton Says Duluth Has Been "Broken" By Railroads Long Enough.

City Wants Terminal Rates and Is Going to Get Them.

"The advent of the Soo marks in part our commercial emancipation," said Joseph B. Cotton, who was scheduled to speak for the citizens of Duluth, and who warmed up to his subject with all his old time fire, receiving a most enthusiastic ovation at the close of his talk.

"I have recently returned from Los Angeles and while there attended a banquet given by one of the city's clubs to some guests. Across the end of the hall they had three mottoes which have made the city jump to a population of more than 300,000 from 70,000 in ten years. Those mottoes were 'Action, Boost and Pull Together.'

"A few years ago they told us that Duluth was not on the map. We were only an adjunct to the Twin Cities. We have heard that kind of talk too often, but such gatherings as this give the lie to it. A few years ago we were told that the ore on the Mesaba range was worthless. We were told that the Cuyuna range did not exist and that if it did the ore was valueless. We were told it was our business to sit idle and watch the ore and the grain and the lumber pour through here for the six months of the year and the remaining six months we were supposed to hibernate like the Indian or the snake. I want to pay tribute to the Soo because it does things. It reaches out into country that was thought to be valueless and has made it flourish.

"The thing that has stood in the way of Duluth's progress has been railroad discrimination. With all due respect to the Twin Cities they are accidents. They are there because they got started first.

"When Duluth went after a steel plant, its representatives were told that Duluth had nothing but winter; that it had no labor; that it had no limestone. But worst of all, and the hardest argument to meet was the statement: 'What's the use of building at Duluth, anyway. We can ship from Pittsburg all rail as cheaply as we can from Duluth, to any points in the West.' And that was true. It has been truthfully said here tonight that railroads can make or break a city. We've been broken long enough here in Duluth. We want terminal rates, and we're going to get them. We want rates based on mileage. We want to see our citizens have something to do the year around.

"These gentlemen, our guests here tonight, deserve our praise and commendation. On behalf of our loyal citizens, I bid them welcome and promise them—not a square deal only—but the same loyal, generous treatment they have given this coming young giant of the West."

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Activities of Other Municipalities, Which Might or Might Not Be Copied in Duluth.

MAYOR Blankenburg of Philadelphia has been prompted to take up the waste paper nuisance investigation upon a complaint made by a resident of a section of West Philadelphia, who mailed the mayor a communication with ten pieces of advertising matter thrown upon his doorstep between the hours of 11 a. m. of Feb. 14 and 1 p. m. of Feb. 15. The collection included six copies of two editions of a so-called weekly newspaper, two copies each of two ward papers, one each of a daily and a weekly, a "news letter," medicine directory, envelopes with enclosures, folders, cards, circulars and pamphlet. "What we require is more stringent legislation against this indiscriminate distribution of reading matter of this character," said the mayor, discussing the collection placed before him. "The restrictions should be made so that the law can be enforced and I would like to arouse public interest in the matter so that something definite can be done."

The subject of the disposition of waste paper is a live one in Duluth. Duluth suffers as much from the evil above mentioned as almost any city. The members of the Woman's Council have repeatedly attempted to get waste paper boxes for the principal street corners, but have met with little success. Duluth has an ordinance against throwing paper in the street, but no arrests are made under it.

DEADLOCK BETWEEN TWO HOUSES MAY BE RESULT

vote the Rines-Mattson-Warner bill increasing the gross earning tax on railroads from 4 per cent to 5.

If the senate wishes to put itself in the attitude of rejecting this measure, house members said last night, that is its own lookout, and something its members must explain to their constituents.

"Our consciences, at least, will be clear," said a house member from Southern Minnesota.

The fact that a plan to shut out reapportionment was the beginning of the senate's move aroused the ire of members from Northern Minnesota last night.

Protest by Knapp.

Representative Cleon T. Knapp of Knapp of Chisholm gave out this aggressive statement after hearing what the senate members had done:

"It is apparent that an effort is being made on the part of certain senators to obtain an agreement whereby the senate shall consider only a primary bill and a corrupt practices act. It is stated that already enough signatures have been obtained to limit the senate to the consideration of those two measures.

"As a member from the northern section of the state, and as one vitally interested in reapportionment, I protest against what I consider to be most unfair tactics and procedure.

"Regardless of the fact that this session has been called at a time when it is a hardship on the members to be in attendance, I feel that any act on the part of the individual members, or either branch of the legislature, whereby fair and just legislation is denied a fair hearing, brands this session at its outset as a farce and not truly representative. No logical argument can be advanced against the justice of the claim of the north to more fair representation.

"When the hour arrives in the state of Minnesota when we of the North, or in fact of any section suffering from inequality in representation, are denied a hearing before the only tribunal that can give us justice and relief, then I say that the hour has arrived in this state when extra or regular sessions mean nothing but political juggling and manipulation.

"It is sufficient crime to deny to Northern Minnesota the representation to which it is justly entitled, but it is worse than crime to deny us the privilege of a hearing."

More Than Majority Sign.

The Republican senators in their caucus ast night ratified with practical unanimity the two-measure program, and turned over to a committee consisting of Senators Gunderson of Alexandria, Dwinnell of Minneapolis and Moonan of Waseca the duty of drawing up a joint resolution providing for the passage of these two measures and an immediate adjournment. The plan was to introduce it in the senate today and to have some house member offer it in that body.

After the Republicans had acted they received a committee from a meeting of Democratic senators which reported that ten of them had met at the Saint Paul and agreed to the program. There were then thirty-six signers, four more than a majority of the senate and the Democrats who fell in line are in addition to that number.

Attitude of the House.

If the senate sticks to this attitude the session will be short indeed. If only a statewide primary and a corrupt practices bill are to be considered, there seems no reason why the session should not end next week.

However, the house program, which will be ratified, and perhaps changed in some particulars, at a caucus tonight, is more ambitious, and if it is followed out the session might drag along two or three weeks. It might, of course, get away and run longer than that; but the sentiment in favor of an adjournment at the earliest possible date is so unanimous and so strong that it will probably prevent the house from taking the militant stand it might take against the senate's short program.

Neither house can adjourn without the consent of the other. If the senate finished up its two-measure program it could not quit unless the house voted to quit, too. If the house wishes to stand pat on its program, even though the senate has agreed not to follow it, it can keep the legislature in session until it is through.

It might do that if the season were different, if the session were being held in January or February, when nine-tenths of the members now admit an extra session should have been held, if there were any legislative pay coming in or if the house members were not so anxious to get home.

The house may do it anyway, but it isn't likely that it will. The probabilities last evening seemed to be that the senate would stand fast for its two-measure program.

The signers of the agreement included Twin City members and senators from Northern Minnesota.

Curiously enough some of the most ardent advocates of reapportionment signed the agreement. Some of them, however, like Senator D. M. Gunn of Grand Rapids, signed it with an openly expressed proviso. Senator Gunn's proviso was in the plural. He signed it with the understanding that he was free to vote against both of the two measures proposed if he felt like it, that he was free to vote for an immediate adjournment without any action at all, and that he was free to vote and work for reapportionment if a reapportionment bill were introduced.

It weakens the standing of the agreement somewhat that Senator Gunn's signature was accepted with this understanding.

The House Program.

The tentative agreement which seemed to give widespread satisfaction among the house members yesterday afternoon included these measures:

Statewide primary.
Corrupt practices.
Reapportionment.
Increase in railroad gross earnings.
Ratification of the Federal constitutional amendment providing for the income tax.
Ratification of the Federal constitutional amendment authorizing the income tax.
Curative measures if their authors are able to get a two-thirds vote in favor of taking them up.

As the result of a gathering of members of all factions in the rooms of Speaker Dunn yesterday afternoon, at which the above measures were discussed, it was decided to recast several of the house committees.

The elections committee is to be enlarged to thirty-one, to consist of three members from each congressional district and four at large.

The general legislation committee is to be recast and enlarged.

The rules and legislative expense committees are to be increased to nine members each, and are to consist of one member from each congressional district.

Reapportionment Bill.

The reapportionment bill which will be introduced will be the Congdon bill, as it passed the house at the regular session, with very few changes.

One important change will be to make the measure effective next year instead of this year, thus preserving to the senators the full four-year term for which they were elected, and removing one obstacle which, though disguised by many other arguments on which the fight against reapportionment was made in the senate, really was responsible for the failure of the bill at the regular session.

Another change which is of much local interest will be the abandonment of the "shoestring" district system, under which each part of the iron ranges was attached to a part of Duluth. This will give the ranges one district entirely to itself, and preponderance in another district if not the complete control. The details of this change have not yet been worked out.

Utility Commission.

Should the bars be thrown down and general legislation be taken up, Representative Frank Minnette of Sauk Center will reintroduce his public utility commission bill and push its passage. If the program is restricted he plans on introducing the bill at the regular session next winter, and he is confident that it can be passed.

As introduced last winter the bill put all public utilities under state regulation, as Wisconsin has done so successfully. The tax commission was the body chosen to administer this duty, though in Wisconsin it is the railroad commission. As those back of the bill were principally interested in telephone regulation, they later amended their bill so as to make it apply only to telephone. They believe now that this was a practical if not a legal error, and that the measure should be made general in its application. It would give the state full authority to regulate capitalization, rates and service of all public utilities in the state.

Many Bills Ready.

No bills will come into the house until tomorrow, under the house rule requiring all bills to lie on the speaker's desk twenty-four hours before introduction, which Mr. Dunn said yesterday afternoon he would enforce today, at any rate.

Many bills are ready for introduction, however.

Representatives Rines, Mattson and C. H. Warner will join in the bill increasing the railroad gross earnings tax. Mr. Warner was included because he introduced a 5 per cent gross earnings bill at the regular session.

Two Democrats will be in early with important bills. Representative Albert Plaender of New Ulm, leader of the house Democrats, will introduce a bill ratifying the Federal constitutional amendment providing for the popular election of United States senators, and Representative Clinton Robinson of St. Charles will introduce again his bill ratifying the income tax amendment, which passed the house at the regular session and died in the senate.

State-Wide Primary.

The senate elections committee, of which Senator Haycraft of Madelia is chairman and Senator James P. Boyle of Eveleth a member, put in several hours yesterday whipping a state-wide primary law into shape, without completing its labors. The committee is agreed on the second choice proposition, but has not yet settled on a method of applying it. It has decided to eliminate the requirement of the Wisconsin law that candidates must secure petitions of a certain percentage of the party vote to be entitled to participate in the primaries. This leaves it open to any candidate who wishes to file. The judiciary, state and local, is included, but there is no non-partisan judiciary nomination. The candidates are to select the state and county committees, but there is to be no party platform.

No Tonnage Tax Bill.

Representative Thomas Frankson of Spring Valley, author of the tonnage tax bill of 1911, said to The Herald yesterday afternoon that in all probability he would not introduce the bill at the extra session. He believes that the work of the session should be confined to the few urgent measures relating to the conduct of the election or requiring the ratification of the voters at the November election, and that the addition of other measures would only increase the confusion and render it less likely that anything of constructive value will be put through.

"Only a complete throwing down of the bars, opening the way to general and miscellaneous legislation, would would induce me to introduce the tonnage tax bill at this time," said Mr. Frankson.

The Democrats will ask the legislature to adjoin over Thursday on account of the Duluth convention. As it is utterly unlikely that any bills will be back from the committees by that time, and therefore the legislature will probably have little or no actual work to do, there seems to be no reason why this request should not be granted, the two bodies will at least excuse their democratic members for the day.

Those Virginia Bonds.

The legislature may call upon the state investment board to sell the Virginia state bonds at the market price and invest the proceeds in the bonds of subdivisions of the state, issued for purposes of domestic development.

The plan of taking this action appealed strongly to the meeting of house leaders which considered legislation yesterday afternoon, and W. J. Brown of Marshall, who was the legal clerk of the house last session was asked to redraft the bill which was put through the house by Representative Mattson of Roseau and through the senate by Senator Boyle of Eveleth.

After that bill had passed both houses the last day, it was killed through the activity of State Auditor Iverson, who induced the senate to reconsider its action and kill the bill.

State Treasurer Walter J. Smith recently entered a vigorous appeal before the state investment board, of which he is a member, in favor of this action, and he is receiving many warm letters of commendation from all parts of the state.

The house Democrats at the caucus last night at the Merchants indorsed the two Federal Constitutional amendments providing for the income tax and the direct election of United States senators.

Short or Long Session?

Is it to be a short session or a long one?

Is there to be a little done, a little more done, a lot done or is nothing to be done at all?

These were the questions "before the house" yesterday and last evening, and practically all discussion around the temporary legislative headquarters in the hotel lobbies ran to one angle or another or these problems.

It is curious, though not unnatural, that universally nine-tenths of the interest was attracted by the length of the session rather than by what the session will produce.

On the side of a short session are the very impressive facts that the members get no pay for their work, except the mileage allowance, which does not go far, and that most of them are busy at home with their own personal affairs at this season, and find it hard to be away for any great length of time.

In favor of getting something done are the facts that an election is close at hand, much closer than it was at the regular session, and that despite the many witticisms at the expense of the legislature, there really is a considerable proportion of its members who really want to do constructive work for the people.

In favor of a long session is the possible failure of attempts to agree on a definite and limited legislative program.

In favor of a fruitless session is the possibility of a congestion of measures and the confusion that would result—not to speak of the possibilities offered by a large field of measures for playing one against another to defeat both—a common and often successful parliamentary trick.

A day or two will tell the tale.

One sure thing is that the members are not at all cheerful about the extra session, and that in legislative circles it is about as unpopular a thing as you could mention.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

that it will probably justify Roosevelt in a bolt. But the Taft people feel that what Roosevelt has done already justifies them in fighting the devil with fire and they do not propose to stop short of any political expedient which may be employed to prevent his nomination."

The Roosevelt Attitude.

These two interviews are fair indications of the Taft attitude at the present moment. The Roosevelt attitude is no less vicious. His followers make no secret of the fact that he will either force his nomination on the Republican party or bolt the ticket. Every little technicality that is raised is hailed by the Roosevelt people as a serious violation of the rights of the people—Roosevelt being the people. There could be no more utterly unjustifiable attack made upon a public man than that made by Senator Dixon upon Col. New because of the latter's refusal to give the Roosevelt committee 250 tickets to the Chicago convention. Col. New's defense was complete and convincing. He pointed out that it was at no time the policy of the national committee to issue tickets in large blocks to the committees of the various candidates. All precedent is against it, and as at the present moment both Senator La-Follette and Senator Cummins are avowed candidates for the nomination, if 250 tickets should be sent to the Roosevelt commitee, the same number should properly be sent to them. This sort of a mere reasonable explanation does not seem to satisfy either the Colonel or Senator Dixon, his commander-in-chief. As a result the press of the country teems with stories of the unwarrantable affront put upon Col. Roosevelt, while the perfectly common sense explanation will hardly get a hearing.

Less than three weeks before the convention it is perfectly apparent that the fight in the Republican party is going to be less for the purpose of electing a president than on the one side to defeat Taft and on the other side to demolish Roosevelt. My own opinion is that the Taft people have given up hope of his election, but will insist upon his nomination whatever the ultimate result may be. That his nomination can be effected with his control of the national committee nobody doubts. Neither does anybody doubt that in such event Roosevelt will run as an independent.

Would Get Democratic Votes.

Therein comes the one problematical feature of the coming election. Nobody can figure on the Roosevelt strength. If he runs independent he is likely to draw to himself a great number of Democratic votes which he would not get if he were the regular Republican nominee. Beyond doubt his adoption of so many of the policies which the Democrats under Mr. Bryan's leadership have accepted in late years will bring to him many Democratic votes, and possibly the support of many Democrats who have notoriety, if not exactly political prominence. From some of his close followers here I learn that there is a feeling that his strength as in independent candidate would be very much greater than as the regular Republican nominee. It would be almost impossible, for example, for Mr. Bryan to attack him should he be a candidate on a platform, every plank of which Mr. Bryan has warmly indorsed. It would become necessary in that event for the Democrats to put forward a man of rather conservative views, and there again would come in the Bryan influence, because such a man Mr. Bryan would hardly support.

Therefore the action of the Chicago convention is full of importance to the organization of both parties. It will undoubtedly split the Republican party in twain. But with Mr. Bryan holding the great influence he does in the Democratic party it is liable to cause a breaking off of a large section of that party to Roosevelt support. I do not mean that Bryan himself is likely to support Roosevelt, but for six years he has been persistently applauding every utterance that Roosevelt has made, every new principle that Roosevelt has enunciated. Itwould be absolutely impossible for him to antagonize Roosevlt on any ground except the merely personal one. And in the meantime he has educated tens of thousands of his followers to believe that with Bryan himself not in the field as a candidate, Roosevelt is the best exponent of the principles which Bryan has so long advocated.

DEFENDS ITALIAN ACTIONS.

Minister of Foreign Affairs Denies Charges as to War Methods.

Washington, June 4.—In a cablegram made public here by Marquis Cusani, the Italian ambassador, received from Italian minister of Foreign Affairs San Guliano, the conduct of the Turkish-Talian war by the Italian forces is vigously defended.

"The Italian government," the cable reads, "although it has not yet ratified the conventions at The Hague, has always conformed itself, during the whole course of the war, to the prescriptions sanctioned by the international agreements."

The cable denies that the Italians "massacred or banished" thousands of the inhabitants of Tripoli; that bombs have been thrown from aeroplanes on non-combatants; that the Italian fleet bombarded undefended cities; that a Turkish hospital ship was sequestrated; and that the liberty of Mohammedans in the islands occupied by the Italians has been restricted.

WOULD CHARGE MORE FOR EMPTY MAIL BAGS.

Chicago, June 4.—George Gardner, assistant superintendent of the railway mail service, was a witness yesterday before Examiner Frank Lyon, who is inquiring into the efforts of railroads to release the rates on empty mail bags and pouches.

"The new classification raises the rates on mail pouches at least 50 per cent," said Gardner. "The government handles about 300 carloads of mail pouches by railroad annually, and an increase as the new schedule proposes would mean a large increase in the shipping cost."

Pending the result of the investigation, the new rate is under suspension.

LEAVES MONEY WITH WIFE AND DISAPPEARS.

Alexandria, La., June 4.—Dr. G. W. Gibson, a young dentist of Mission, Texas, has mysteriously disappeared here and evidence obtained by the police leads to the belief that he was murdered. Blood stained clothes identified as belonging to Dr. Gibson were found.

Dr. Gibson arrived here Sunday with his wife and two small children. He left his hotel about 9 o'clock at night, telling his wife he was going to visit some old friends in Pineville, across Red River from Alexandria. That was the last seen of him.

Mrs. Gibson told the police that while on the train two Mexicans saw Dr. Gibson with a roll of money and one of them remarked in Spanish, "We must have that." If he was murdered for his money the object failed, as Dr. Gibson left his money with his wife.

PHILLIPS WANTS TO CENSURE U. S. JUDGE

City Council Sends His Resolution to Ordinance Committee.

Hill Street Railway Line Goes as Planned By City Fathers.

THE COUNCIL IN BRIEF.

Opposing petition to proposed hill street car route ignored.
Plan to put scales on ice wagons decisively defeated.
Third precinct of Seventh ward cut in two; other precincts affected as to numbers.
Council restricts use of sirens or sirenos on motor vehicles.
Move to cinch repeal of Volk street car franchise for line to New Duluth.
Central avenue to be resurfaced; Twenty-first avenue to be paved.
Library board appointments confirmed.
Narcotic drugs ordinance put over one week.
Notices of claims for damages filed.

In general the meeting of the city council last evening was tame, and most of the business was of a routine nature.

The closest thing to excitement which occurred during the entire session was when Alderman Phillips, who is a Socialist, introduced a resolution censuring Federal Judge Cornelius Hanford of Seattle, Wash. for refusing to grant naturalization papers to one Leonard Oleson for the sole and only reason that he has declared himself a socialist. The resolution proposed handed Judge Hanford without gloves declaring that by his action he has besmirched the ermine and that it tends more to create disrespect for law and order than the "silly vaporings and ranting of misguided fanatics."

Alderman Makowski moved that the resolution be referred to the committee on ordinances and resolutions and Mr. Phillips protested volubly. The resolution provoked a brisk discussion during which Alderman Scott said that the council would be making itself ridiculous by passing such a resolution. Alderman Gibson declared that the circumstances in the case should be carefully investigated before the resolution was adopted by the council, and Alderman Hector of the committee on ordinances and resolutions said that he does not believe about Judge Hanford's decision here is what has been seen in press dispatches, and there is no way of knowing whether or not these are authentic.

When the vote on the motion to refer came, Alderman Hector protested. He asserted hotly that such reference is nothing short of foolish.

"If you want our committee to go to Seattle and investigate this matter, we will go," he said. "Otherwise, I for one will not make a report at all. This is absurd."

Anyway the resolution was referred to the committee, only Aldermen Hector, Phillips and Scott voting "no."

The council decided not to change its order for the construction of a double track street car line on the hill. At the last meeting of the council there was a verbal protest from a number of residents affected, and last evening petitions, well signed, voicing such opposition, were filed, giving as reasons for the opposition that Seventh avenue east is only thirty feet wide and therefore not adequate for a street car line; that the streets proposed for the route are beautifully shaded by trees, which, the petitioners believed, would be considerably damaged should the line be put through as proposed. The petitioners suggested that a more feasible route would be along Sixth avenue east from Fifth to Ninth streets, and pointed out that Sixth avenue is now being graded and could be adjusted to suit the purpose.

However, in addition to those opposing the proposed route, there were quite a number present wearing white badges demanding a street railway line in upper central Duluth, and when the council resolved not to heed the request of the petitioners, these stamped and applauded enthusiastically. The proposed extension will be routed along Seventh street from Sixth to Seventh avenues east and along Seventh avenue east from Seventh street to Ninth street.

The resolution recently introduced by Alderman Phillips requiring scales to be carried on ice wagons, came up last evening on a report of the committee on ordinances and resolutions disapproving the proposed ordinance. A spirited discussion preceded the endorsement of the committee's report by the council, Alderman Phillips being the only dissenting voter. George Duren, inspector of weights and measures, spoke against it as did Aldermen Kern, Hector and others, while Alderman Phillips supported it and Morris Kaplin, its instigator, addressed the council in behalf of the ordinance. The aldermen opposed to the ordinance declared that they failed to see the good that the scales would do, and that while the ice companies did not care whether or not they would have to install them, the people would have to pay the extra expense caused the companies.

Alderman Bernard's ordinance to amend the election ordinance establishing wards and precincts was adopted. The only effect of this is that the Third precinct of the Seventh ward is cut in two and as a result other precincts of that ward have their numbers changed. As to the divided precinct, that portion above Third street will be the Third, that below Third street will be the Fourth, the present Fourth precinct will be changed to the Fifth and the present Fifth precinct will become the Sixth.

Alderman Hector's ordinance forbidding sirens or sirenos on any motor vehicles other than those belonging to the fire department was adopted without opposition.

Two curious ordinances were introduced and referred. One was to repeal an ordinance repealing the street railway franchise granted to A. C. Volk & Co. in 1906 for a street railway from Seventy-first avenue west to New Duluth; and the other was to again repeal that franchise. A possible flaw in the former repealing ordinance, passed in January, 1908, caused this combination in order that the local traction company may have a clear bill of health so that it may extend its line to New Duluth this summer.

Liquor licenses were granted to William Cudahy, 2232 West Superior street; Sam Smith, 320 East Superior street; Chris Hanson, 1907 West Superior street; Sadowski & Ptaszek, 2231 West Superior street, and John Martin, 534 West Superior street. A license to run a dance hall at 18 Lake avenue north was granted to L. C. Coffin.

An application for a liquor license at 619 East Fourth street was received from Herman Krause, who recently returned after serving Uncle Sam in the Philippines and other places in the regular army.

The board of public works was ordered to receive bids for the resurfacing of Central avenue, West Duluth, between Roosevelt and Cody streets, and for paving Twenty-first avenue west. The estimated cost of the former is $24,217 for brick and $26,000 for creosote blocks; and for the latter, $25,500 for brick and $30,178 for sandstone blocks.

The council approved the action of Herman Bros., Becklinger & Reindel in continuing to light the streets of New Duluth up to April 25, ten days after their contract had expired. This gives the board of public works the authority to pass the bill of that company.

In a resolution the council granted City Comptroller McCormick $25 extra to cover his expenses to the convention of city comptrollers to be held at Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. McCormick will leave for Buffalo this afternoon.

Alderman Neff's resolution authorizing the lighting of the canal piers from June 15 to Sept. 15 at the same price as that of last year was adopted.

Mayor McCuen's appointment of S. H. Bingham, Rev. Carl G. Olson and U. C. Tower to the library board was confirmed.

The ordinance concerning the sale of narcotic drugs was slightly amended and then at the request of Alderman Gibson, final action was put over for one week in order that the aldermen may become better acquainted with its provisions.

Morris Tomkin filed a notice of a claim for damages against the city, claiming personal injury by tripping and falling on a defective sidewalk in front of 627 West Superior street, through which he says he injured his right knee and left hand.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Altman filed notice of a claim to the extent of $3,500 for damages to property at 1121-23 West Michigan street, and Elizabeth A. Murphy, G. L. Murphy, Gabriella C. Murphy and wife, G. S. and Mary F. Thomas, Eleanor C. Kelly and J. Nelson, Henry C. Murphy and wife, also filed claimes amounting in the aggregate to $1,000, for injuries to buildings and lots at 1125-27 West Michigan street; all alleged to have been causd by the recent overflow of Buckingham creek, which had been covered over and converted into a sewer.

WILL BOOST FOR DULUTH

Preparations for the Excursion Over the Range Almost Complete.

The wholesalers' committee of the Commercial club, under the chairmanship of W. B. Cross is busily perfecting the plans for the Duluth Boosters' excursion, which is to be taken over the range territory some time this month. At present it is intended to start on the morning of June 11, and make it a three-day outing. This will be done, if nothing occurs to make it imperative to change the date. The exact itinerary will soon be determined.

The committee has been receiving excellent encouragement from those whom it has approached in regard to taking part in the excursion, and it is now assured that at least 100 Duluthians will make up the party, representing for the most part the large business houses of Duluth.

Each business house will supply its excursionists with souvenirs, which will be given away at the various towns through which the train passes. It is believed that the train will carry a whole carload of souvenirs, though they will not be all in one car, by any means. In addition the party will circulate a vast amount of literature, setting forth the splendid advantages of Duluth as a business and a residence city.

The train will consist of ten cars in all. It will leave over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern and will return over the Duluth & Iron Range. Frank Berry is to be in charge of the train.

In addition to the 100 or more representatives of various business interests of Duluth, including the railroads, the train will carry the full Third Regiment band of sixty pieces. The excursionists will wear white caps, trimmed with blue ribbons, as they did last year, and each man will carry a blue pennant with the word "Duluth" in white letters.

A committee consisting of Norton Mattocks and Harry A. Earnshaw is compiling a "Song Birds' Book," which will contain appropriate songs to be sung by the whole party in concert, whenever there is a fitting occasion. Each man will be supplied with one of these books.

It's apt to "stay lost" unless you advertise for it.

NEWSPAPER MAN FOUND DEAD IN ROOM IN BRONX.

New York, June 4.—Frank Cusick, a newspaper man, was found dead last night in a furnished room in the Bronx. He apparently had been dead several days. The police reported that death was due to gas asphyxiation. Mr. Cusick came from Portland, Or., and had worked for various newspapers in Portland, Chicago and New York.

Of Course You Know All about COLORADO

If you have been there before, you need no persuading to go again. Hundreds of thousands of people are taking their vacations there this year. Your memory holds no other place where the mountains are so green. In no other land do the white clouds float so lazily in the clear blue sky. Not even in books is Romance half so fair. Every man or woman who has a touch of poetry in his or her veins desires to go. And that is why the cities and the level country of the Middle West pour out their myriads of people into these glorious mountains every year. Of course you, too, are going to Colorado, if you possibly can. The only question is of the best way to go.

There are five routes to Colorado, but the route that most people travel, and all people recommend, is

HOME CROWD FINALLY WON

Duluth Wrecks Red Hose Hopes and Wins By 6 to 5 Score.

Extra-Inning Game Pulled From Fire By Tenth Round Rally.

Some wreckers, gents! Some wreckers!

Some one once said, probably in this part of the country, that it is an ill wind that does no one good. Spoken like a true scout. Yesterday's wind blew dust and adjectives about the field, but it also blew in a 10-round 6 to 5 victory for the wreckers.

It would not require the least imagination to guess that the game was a very hard one for the visitors to lose. Will Sommer and one Kid Taylor are becoming desperate in their anxiety to win a game. In the third inning of yesterday's contest the hope of the visitors grew resplendent and shone as brightly as a debutante before the midnight hour.

And then came the final half of the tenth round and destruction to the hopes of the invaders. And thus is life made unhappy and filled with woe, like the biscuits in the boarding house.

The weather man was in a most unhappy mood. Gusts of wind blew across the diamond, despite the efforts of Joe, the official ball chaser, two pails and the hose. Dust filled the eyes, the mouths and the ears of the players, coloring their countenances and their adjectives. The heavy gale carried flies far out of their course and rendered the work of the player difficult—but in the end it was all to the mustard.

Foss was roped and branded for labor on the hill. He lasted until the fourth round and was then derricked and the trusty and loving services of Johnson substituted. There were four runs across the pan when Johnson mounted the incline—but one more was scored off the puzzling delivery of the lean boy.

Some sizzling plays featured the game, despite the meanness of the elements. Briggs and Sours ran back and tore some flying clouts out of the air and Popham in left field, after misjudging the first one sent his way, gave a sterling exhibition of what an outfielder ought to do. In passing it is also only fair to say that O'Brien stole third base—a feat that took the enemy quite by surprise and nearly gave one of the violent kind of fans apoplexy.

The Sox started like quarter horses. Popham singled by third and McGraw walked. Meniece died for the sake of moving the boys along. Leber singled out of reach of the second sack guardian and two runs came trickling over. Leber pilfered and counted the third one of the game when the Orator lifted one beyond second base. Visions of an easy game rose with the obscurity of the dust.

A double play cut down the invaders in the first and in the second they offered little trouble. Then came the third and a trio of runs.

With Ford down Leber tried to cover too much territory and spoiled all chance of grabbing the offering of Kid Taylor. Olson singled past second and Francis brought both men home with a double down the left foul line. Roy lofted to Sours, and when O'Brien permitted Briggs' offering to escape from him Francis came lolling over with the third run of the contest.

Before Fass was yanked in the next round another run came over. Anderson doubled and scored on Rhoades' unexpected single. From there on everything was quiet along the Wabash until we tied things up in the seventh.

In this jolly round Popham singled conveniently out of the reach of Ford at third advanced two bags on a sacrifice and infield out, and counted when Leber slammed another past the third sack. Oh joy!

This tie-up condition of traffic on the home plate terminal remained until the tenth stanza, when it looked as if the misfortunates from across the bay had really won a baseball game. With two down in this round Olson deliberately stepped into a slow one and was allowed to get away with it by McGloom. He stole and came across when O'Brien let the offering of Francis speed on its way to the outfield.

Leber came with his home run. Loping joy ran with long, bounding strides on the open ranges of unreigned and unbridled hilarity. But more was yet to come. With two dead Blume singled, stole neatly and counted when Erickson smote one down the old alley by third. Thus did the wreckers wreck.

The home crowd plays on the other side of the pond today.

ELEVENTH STRAIGHT WIN FOR MR. MARQUARD.

New York, June 4.—Marquard won his eleventh straight victory of the season here yesterday, easily defeating St. Louis in the third game of the series, 8 to 3. Meyers hit a home run into the left field grandstand in the third inning with three on bases. In this inning Bresnahan ordered Sallee to walk Murray with two out and two Giants on the bases. Six New York runs followed. The score: R. H. E.

PLAYER SHECKARD WORKS SOME "INSIDE" BASEBALL.

Boston, June 4.—Chicago won from Boston, 4 to 3. Houser's home run with two men on bases accounted for the locals' tallies. Sheckard worked a double play in the sixth inning by taking Campbell's fly on the bounce, although he could easily have caught it; then he threw to Evers, who touched second base for an out on McDonald and tagged Hess who had held the base. Kling's protest on the play caused his removal by the umpire. The score: R. H. E.

BATTING RALLY WINS FOR PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, June 4.—A batting rally in the eighth inning gave Philadelphia a victory over Pittsburg, 4 to 3. Errors of both teams proved costly. Magee's catch, which robbed Byrne of a home run, was the fielding feature. The score: R. H. E.

BROOKLYN MADE TRIPLE PLAY BUT LOST GAME.

Brooklyn, June 4.—Brooklyn made a triple play against Cincinnati but lost the game, 7 to 4. The play came in the eighth inning when with the bases full, Mitchell drove to Tooley, forcing Bescher at the plate. Miller made a bluff throw to second, drawing Marsans toward the plate, and he was run down. In the meantime Hoblitzel took a lot of room off second and was also nailed on a quick throw. Miller had two put-outs and two assists in the play. Phelps' thumb was broken in the fifth inning by a foul tip. The score: R. H. E.

PHILADELPHIA BEAT SOX AT CHICAGO.

Chicago, June 4.—Philadelphia batted Chicago hard and at opportune times and won, 8 to 4. Most of the visitors' hits were for extra bases. Plank pitched consistent ball until the eighth, when the locals started a batting rally which netted two runs and was stopped only on a decision which proved unpopular to spectators and players. Manager Callahan argued with Umpire Westervelt and was put out of the game. Because of a noisy demonstration policeman walked to the clubhouse with Umpire Westervelt. No violence was offered him, however. Murphy, in attempting to steal a base, wrenched his ankle and retired. The score: R. H. E.

SENATORS WIN OVER ST. LOUIS CRIPPLES.

St. Louis, June 4.—St. Louis presented a patched lineup yesterday afternoon and lost to Washington, 13 to 4. The contest was featured by the reappearance of Lon Criger behind the bat. It was the first time the veteran had been in active service for two years. Waldon, a local catcher, made his debut with St. Louis. Williams and McBride featured with the bat. The score: R. H. E.

NOTES OF THE PASTIME

"We'll win tomorrow," said Kid Taylor after the game, "if we have to kill the umpire." "Start anything and it will cost you real money and besides you will be out of the game for a week," was the response of our worthy president. Thus is the rowdyism curbed before it has the chance to start.

One might be excused for believing that some of the players were doing a Salome yesterday, while waiting for the circuitous descent of a fly. The wind made the ball circle with undulating curves and all that sort of thing, and the players were forced to do something likewise.

Uncle Joe and his blonde assistant took grave and dignified delight throwing pails of pure Superior water at the feet of the players. Rhoades was doused once and some of the others escaped by jumping with the current. Much water and patience were used in curbing the dust.

In the eighth inning O'Brien stole third standing up and the crowd yelled. He started before Peggy Rhoades started to deliver the ball and landed safely without giving Shorty Anderson much of a real chance for a peg.

In the third round Sours went far back and cavorted gayly with the wind after the lofting fly from the bat of Indian Roy. He pulled down the ball from over his left shoulder, making one of the prettiest plays of the matinee. In the seventh round Little Leber went over against the fence and garnered a tall one from the bludgeon of Olson.

Kid Taylor changed his lineup in the hope of winning. He switched Roy from the hard angle of the diamond to first base and the copper-colored one performed very nicely. Ford was at third and Briggs pulled some glittering stuff at the shortfield position.

As the days go by, greater grows the impression that young Blum is one of the sweetest fielding proposition that ever has appeared in these parts. Yesterday he pulled a great play, spearing one with his gloved hand while keeping a clinging toe anchored to the bag. Often he pulls plays that save his team mates from errors, simply through his remarkable ability to spear about any old ball that is heaved in the general direction of the bag. The players say they don't look especially where they are throwing the ball when they start one to first.

KILBANE WILL FOLLOW OTHERS

Cleveland Fighter Is Going After Some of the Lightweights.

New York, June 4.—If Johnny Kilbane, the new featherweight champion, adheres to his apparent intention of going against K. O. Brown, Owen Moran, Leach Cross or some other of the lightweights now providing activity he will be emulating the example of more than one of his predecessors on the 122-pound throne. Abe Attell and Terry McGovern form most notable examples of featherweights going out of their class to meet lightweights.

In the case of Terrible Terry the pride of Tuckahoe first began as a bantam, then grew into a featherweight, and won all his bouts with ridiculous ease. It was as a featherweight that he tumbled Pedler Palmer, the English champion, and annexed his first world's title. Then he set out for the lightweights and disposed of every man with a reasonable claim to that title in his time. As fate would have it, he finally succumbed to a man in his own rightful class, featherweight, Young Corbett turning the trick.

Attell's experience was similar in more ways than one. Abe also finally fell before a featherweight after reigning over the division for twelve years and also defeating many crack lightweights. His most memorable set-to with a lightweight was his four round bout with Bat Nelson when the latter was champion. Abe realized the laurels to be gained by knocking out the champion in the class above his own and strived to put Nelson down for the count. As it was, he easily outpointed Nelson in the brief four rounds. But the law in Philadelphia, where they fought, forbade decisions, so he did not capture the lightweight title.

Fight fans are wondering whether Kilbane will have the same success against lightweights that McGovern and Attell enjoyed, if indeed he does allow himself to get matched up with any.

WARNING FLAGS USED.

The small craft warning for bonts on the bay was shown for the first time yesterday at the boat club. The heavy wind during the afternoon rendered it rather unsafe for boats to be out on the water, and so in accordance with the arrangements made with the United States weather bureau, the red pennants of warning were exhibited at the main house, Oatka and Spirit Lake branch.

CONTESTS GIVE LINE ON TEAM

Olympic Material Judged From Intercollegiate Meets of Saturday.

Chicago, June 4.—As a result of the Eastern and Western intercollegiate outdoor track and field meets held on Saturday the committee in charge of the selection of the American Olympic team which will compete in the world's games at Stockholm, Sweden, this summer now has a good line on the different performers who may be selected for the team.

Davenport Looks Good.

The consistent work which Capt. Ira Davenport of the University of Chicago has done since he first became eligible for intercollegiate competition should assure his selection. Although his time in the quarter and half did not equal that made in the East, the Maroon was not pushed and in both races he pulled up an easy winner.

Murphy of Illinois, the pole vaulter, who has been a consistent performer in this event for the last two years, certainly is entitled to consideration. In every meeting outdoors and indoors he has cleared the bar around the twelve-foot six-inch mark. Last Saturday he barely missed clearing twelve feet, eight inches. As he went over the bar his elbow touched it. The stick wavered for a few moments and then toppled off, robbing the athlete of a new record.

Nicholson of Missouri, the high hurdler who cleared the barriers in 15 1-5, beating the time made in the East by two-fifths of a second, is sure to make some of the hurdlers run to beat him.

Illini Have Contender.

Case of Illinois, who was only inches behind in the 120-yard high hurdles, deserves a lot of consideration. Until last Saturday when he finished a close second, the Illinois hurdler has not been defeated in the last year. It may be that Case will reverse matters in next Saturday's trials, but the pair certainly are the superiors of any hurdlers who competed in the Western meeting.

Other men who performed well in the Western intercollegiate meet are Metcalf of Oberlin, who established a new record of 9:42 4-5 for two miles; Wilson of Coe college, who won both dashes and covered the century in even time, one-fifth of a second faster than the time made at Philadelphia, and Coyle of Chicago, who has been clearing the bar in the pole vault at more than twelve feet in every meet.

MACK GETTING SOMEWHAT BLUE

Athletic Leader Declares His Team Must Brace Soon.

Chicago, June 4.—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Americans, is quoted as saying that if his team does not "get together" pretty soon, it will be all off with the championship for this season.

"I made up my mind that we would get a good start this spring. We started in early at San Antonio, and were favored with ideal weather, and opened the season perfectly satisfied that we were in just as good condition as when we quit last season. Yet here we are now well down in the race. While the boys are confident that we will soon be in the running, I have come to the conclusion that we have no time to lose; we must certainly hold our own on the Western trip if we are to repeat this season."

Manager Mack remarked that as soon as ball players had reached their best work, and figured that there was little chance for increase of salary, they were apt to be exceedingly careful of themselves. He thought they lost ambition and lacked the aggressiveness shown in their earlier work. Pitchers are more careful, and don't care to take chances with their arms; sometimes underrate their opponents, and from a fighting machine, become easily discouraged.

With his old pitchers on edge and working regularly, Mack is well satisfied that the champions can outplay all comers. He has not been able to discover a good young pitcher, and today has the task of a lifetime on hand to bring his great team to the front.

LEACH CROSS BEATS BROWN

Men Engage in Fast Ten Round Mill at New York.

New York, June 4.—Leach Cross defeated Knockout Brown in a 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden last night. Cross weighed in at 133¼ at the ringside and Brown two pounds lighter.

Brown had the better of the first two rounds, the third was even, Cross took the next six, and Brown finished strong with slightly the better of the last round. Brown played to the body with lefts, using his right occasionally to the head, while Cross jabbed with his left and used right uppercuts.

Cross scored two knockdowns, once in the fifth with a left on the face and a right swing to the jaw, and again in the seventh, but each time Brown was up instantly, fighting back hard, and in the tenth round he rallied remarkably with clever in-fighting.

DRAW FOR POSITIONS.

College Crews to Row on the Hudson June 29.

New York, June 4.—Drawings for positions in the races of the intercollegiate rowing association on the Hudson on June 29 have been made. Reports to the contrary notwithstanding, Leland Stanford will be there, dispatches that they have been unable to raise the money, having been denied by the crew in answer to a dispatch from Morton Bogue, chairman of the board of stewards of the association.

The positions were:

Varsity eights: Wisconsin No. 1, Pennsylvania No. 2, Syracuse No. 3, Columbia No. 4, Cornell No. 5, Stanford No. 6.

Freshmen eights: Pennsylvania No. 1, Columbia No. 2, Wisconsin No. 3, Cornell No. 4, Syracuse No. 5.

Varsity fours: Columbia No. 1, Syracuse No. 2, Cornell No. 3, Pennsylvania No. 4.

HORINE CONFIDENT.

Leland Stanford Boy Sure of Winning Olympic High Jump.

Chicago, June 4.—George Horine of Leland Stanford university, holder of the intercollegiate high jump record, passed through Chicago today en route for New York, where he will await the sailing of the American Olympic track team, for which he has been selected.

Horine was ineligible to compete in the conference meet Saturday at Lafayette on account of having competed under the colors of the Olympic Club of San Francisco in the National A. A. U. championships last July at Pittsburg.

Horine declares he was in the best shape of his career and expected to score in the Olympic games.

"There is not a uestion in my mind," declared Horine, "that I will jump 6 feet 7 inches or better in Sweden. This talk about my form in the event being illegal is all poppycock."

RUNQUIST CLUB WINS ITS NINETEENTH GAME.

Grasston, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Runquist fast baseball aggregation took their nineteenth successive game Sunday from the Pine Grove team by a score of 20 to 3.

The contest was a slugging match from start to finish on the part of Grasston.

The Pine Grove team was helpless in the hands of the Runquist bunch, due to the classy playing of this now famous ball team.

Administrator Resigns.

St. Louis, June 4.—Edward Steinigner, administrator of the estate of M. Stanley Robison, late owner of the St. Louis National league baseball club, resigned and was allowed $11,000 as administrator's fees and $2,500 for attorney fees.

Jean Posey Knocked Out.

London, June 3.—Jem Driscoll, the featherweight champion of England, last night knocked out the French champion, Jean Posey. The fight was before the National Sporting club and went twelve rounds.

Games Called Off.

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 4.—Cincinnati-Chicago games in the United States league to be played here yesterday and today were called off by telegram from J. J. Ryan, president of the Cincinnati club, from Pittsburg, where he attended a meeting of the United States league magnates. The reason given was the rearrangement of the schedule.

Golf Tournament.

Philadelphia, June 4.—Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow of the Marion Cricket club, the present title-holder, led the field with a score of 85 in the first round of play for the championship of the Women's Eastern Golf association on the links at St. Martins. Miss Edith Hoblitt of Wilmington was second with a score of 88.

Jeff Boyle Some Fighter.

Peru, Ind., June 4.—Packey McFarland failed to stop Jeff Boyle, a Canadian lightweight, here last night in their six-round bout. Boyle started gamely and held up well under severe punishment.

Refuses to Act on Fight.

East Las Vegas, N. M., June 4.—Positive assurances were received here that the New Mexico legislature would refuse to act on any prize-fight legislation now before that body. The legislature will adjourn Saturday. An effort on the part of Senator Evans, who introduced an anti-prize fight bill, to have it reported by the committee was voted down.

Badgers to Race Again.

Madison, Wis., June 4.—One week from next Thursday the Wisconsin crews—freshmen and varsity—will again ship their shells and prepare for another contest at Poughkeepsie. Coach Harry Vail says little about the chances. The only prediction he will make is that, barring accidents and assuming that the men develop more as regards the catch and rhythm of the stroke, Wisconsin's chances for success are fairly bright.

ON THE IRON RANGES

HIBBING PARKS BEING FIXED UP

Park Superintendent Wolf Is Beautifying Big Mesaba Range Town.

Hibbing, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The park board will hold a regular meeting tonight and hear the first report of the park superintendent, Conrad Wolf, as to what has been done and what will probably be advisable to be undertaken in the park improvement campaign of the present summer. Mr. Wolf has just completed preliminary work at the Hibbing cemetery, where 500 shade trees have been planted and flower plots arranged about the grounds. Shade trees are now being planted along the boulevards in the residence section and within a short time the grounds will be laid out for new parks at the north and south ends of the city.

To Care for Library.

At a meeting of the library board yesterday it was decided to turn the care of the library grounds over to the park board. The fence now surrounding the premises is to be removed, the present board walk to the building replaced by cement and trees are to be planted throughout the grounds and flower beds arranged. The board also decided to add a large number of new books. The Hibbing library is one of the best patronized in the state and its field of usefulness is constantly being enlarged.

UNMUZZLED DOGS ARE GIVEN CHANCE

Two Harbors Ordinance Is Changed So Stray Curs Can Be Impounded.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the regular meeting of the city council last night the dog muzzling question was discussed again and changes in the ordinance decided on. Some time ago the city council passed an ordinance requiring that all dogs within the city limits be muzzled, and instructed the police to shoot all unmuzzled animals that were found running the streets. The police accordingly have been shooting the curs on the spot when found unmuzzled, but did not always kill them and the consequence was that the dogs would suffer probably for days. Complaints have been made to members of the council that the practice was too summary and that some amendment should be made to the ordinance.

Will Impound Dogs.

So acting in accordance with the wishes of the public the council passed a resolution giving the police authority to capture and hold any curs found unmuzzled and put them in pound for twenty-four hours, and if the owner wished to redeem them they will be obliged to pay a fine, if not the authorities will dispose of them by the fun route.

A resolution raising the salaries of the chief engineer of the city water and light plant, the chief of police and the city attorney, each $10 passed. The increase gives the chief engineer $110; the chief of police $85; and the city attorney $70.

TACONITE PAIR WED.

Married at Coleraine and Leave for an Eastern Trip.

Taconite, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Carrie Dalzell and David Roche were married yesterday morning at the Catholic church in Coleraine, Rev. Father O'Gorman, officiating. The bride was attended by Miss Nora Byrnes and the groom by Edward Welsh. After the ceremony the bridal party motored back to Taconite, where breakfast was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Joseph Dalzell. Mr. Roche has been employed in the meat market of the Oliver Mining company for a number of years and is a general favorite. Mrs. Roche has made many friends during her sojourn here. The groom and his bride were serenaded by the Taconite band of about twenty members. Mr. and Mrs. Roche left immediately for a wedding trip to various points in the East and on their return will be at home in Taconite in Leroy avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent are rejoicing over the arrival of a son.

After a lingering illness, Mrs. Unger died here. She is survived by her husband. Interment took place at Coleraine.

Miss Edna Rickenberg and brother, Clarence, left Monday for their former home in Michigan.

Supt. Van Dyke gave an interesting entertainment in the village hall, displaying a number of patriotic pictures of the Civil war. A number of selection were also given.

Miss Erickson gave a musical recital Friday evening, which was well rendered and well received.

The class play, "The Adventures of a College Bride," will be given by the senior class of the Coleraine Greenway high school in the village hall this evening.

The chimney of Supt. Plummers' residence was struck by lightning in the recent storm.

GAME WARDEN WOOD FINALLY LANDS MAN

Cedar Island Lake Illegal Fisherman Dragged Into Court and Fined.

Virginia, Minn., June 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eric Sandstrom of Elba was brought into Gilbert Monday shirtless, having lost the garment in resisting arrest by Game Warden George E. Wood. Sandstrom was fishing with nets in Cedar Island lake some time ago and while the warden was taking another prisoner he escaped. Since then Chief of Police Teller of Gilbert and Warden Wood have made two trips each to Elba, but did not locate their man. Monday Mr. Wood came face to face with Sandstrom and after a tussle took him into Judge Anderson's court, where he pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs, all but $27.50 being suspended, which he paid.

Two More Arrested.

Henry Wuikkula and Nat Lakkanen were arrested by Game Warden Wood Saturday charged with using nets and trout lines in Pelican lake. Three boats and a quantity of fish were seized. Wuikkula is said to be an old offender. Lakkanen stated he had sold several boarding house in Virginia, but could not remember to whom he had made sales. On account of other business being in the way these cases were adjourned in Judge Carey's court until Saturday, each man giving bond for $100.

BURIED AT IRONWOOD.

Mother of Two Hibbing Women Is Laid at Rest.

Ironwood, Mich., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Mrs. Mary a (Watters) Gregory was held yesterday afternoon from the First M. E. church, Rev. W. B. Coumbe officiating. Death was caused by cardiac asthma, she being unable to leave her bed for the past five months. Deceased was born in Devonshire, England, March 26, 1845, and came to this country nearly forty years ago, settling in Pennsylvania, where her husband died. Mrs. Gregory, with her children, came to Ironwood in 1885, and at first made a home at the Aurora location, later moving in town and taking up their residence on Curry street, where she passed away. She was the mother of twelve children, ten of whom are living, Samuel of Butte, Mrs. Ed. Strick and Mrs. William Crowel of Hibbing Mrs. L. Eichelberger, Mrs. Francis Scott and Mrs. John Moore of Conemaugh, Pa., Thomas, Joseph, Mrs. Walter Winn and Miss Lucinda of this city. The funeral was very largely attended, the Daughters of St. George, in which organization deceased held membership, attending in a body. The floral tokens were many and very beautiful. Interment was at Riverside cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Strick and son and Mr. and Mrs. William Crowel and son of Hibbing came here to attend the funeral service.

BOYLAN WILL STICK.

President of Virginia Council Expects to Keep Job.

Virginia, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—President M. Boylan of the city council expects to hold his job as president when the newly elected councilmen take their seats, as the effort to recall him failed. The council will meet tonight to canvass the vote cast at the recall election, when two aldermen were indorsed and three rejected. It is not anticipated a fight will be made to oust Boylan from the presidency.

ELY NEWS NOTES.

Surprise Shower Is Given for Miss Thomas.

Ely, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Young Ladies of the Queen Esther Circle gave a surprise shower last evening at the home of Miss May Brown, in honor of Miss Cora Thomas. Miss Thomas was presented with a beautiful piece of cut glass by the circle.

Ely Lodge, No. 173 Knights of Pythias will hold their annual memorial service Sunday morning at the Methodist church. The pastor, Rev. E. F. Stidd, preaching the sermon.

At a recent meeting of the officers of the Vermillion District Sunday School association plans were discussed for the promotion of work among the Sunday schools of the district. It was decided to hold a monthly meeting of the teachers of all schools in Ely and Winton, fraternalizing, and having the lessons for the following month discussed and taught, so that there might be greater effectiveness in the various schools.

HIBBING K. C. COUNCIL.

Another Range Organization of Knights of Columbus Being Formed

Hibbing, Minn. June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A council of the Knights of Columbus will be instituted here Sunday of next week by the Brainerd and Duluth Degree teams and fully 200 visitors are expected to attend the ceremonies which will be held at Close hall. The regular work will be followed by a banquet at which a number of prominent Knights of Columbus from Duluth and the range towns are expected to be the principal speakers. The local lodge will have a charter membership of about sixty.

Married at Biwabik.

Biwabik, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Annie Farajter of this place and John Sipper of Sharon were married yesterday morning by Rev. Father Saloven. The couple left for the Twin Cities on their honeymoon. Mr. Sipper is in the employ of the Missabe railway at Sharon, where they will live.

W. L. Hill, proprietor of the Hill hotel, left yesterday for St. Paul, having been summoned as a juror on the United States court.

The dance given by the senior class of the Biwabik high school at the Finnish Temperance hall Saturday evening was well attended.

EXERCISES AT WINTON.

Six Pupils Will Be Advanced to High School Work.

Winton, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The promotion exercises of the school will be held at the Torenius hall tonight. Six young people will be advanced as follows to the high school: Carl Erickson, Lawrence Hagen, Florence Johnson, Lillian Kearney, Esther Nelson, and William Peterson.

The ladies aid society will be entertained at the home of Mrs. J. Christie on Thursday afternoon.

NEW LORIMER FIGHT IS ON

Senator Kern Attacks Validity of Illinois Man's Seat in Senate.

Effort of Majority of Committee Is to Prevent Action.

Washington, June 4.—Senator Kern's speech today leading the attack on Senator Lorimer's election brings that case actively before the senate, where it is likely to be the principal topic of consideration for at least the next two weeks, and possibly may prolong the session of congress.

Senators Lea and Kenyon, who with Mr. Kern are the minority of the Lorimer investigating committee holding that the Illinois senator's election was brought about by corruption, are ready to join in the fight against the majority report, which completely exonerates Mr. Lorimer.

While the whole question of the validity of the election is the principal consideration before the senate an important feature which promises to precipitate the first fight and the first test of strength is the contention that Lorimer's case, in legal parlance, "res judicata," or has been once decided by the senate and cannot be reopened.

Protest "Second Trial."

A majority of the committee which made the second investigation holds that Lorimer cannot be tried again on practically the same charges on which the senate by a vote of 46 to 40 acquitted him March 1, 1911. The minority holds that this reasoning does not apply to Senator Lorimer's case.

The complexion of the senate has been altered considerably since Mr. Lorimer's vindication and this leads to much speculation. It has been reported that a poll made by Mr. Lorimer's friends convinced them they could not expect more than forty supporting votes, and that many senators had declined to indicate their views, now that Mr. Lorimer was advised to resign.

It was even said that Vice President Sherman recently carried that advice to Mr. Lorimer in Chicago. Neither, however, has confirmed it, and Senator Lorimer today reiterated his refusal to talk about resigning. He will be in his seat during the attack, and defend himself with a speech if his health permits.

Two Years of Sensations.

In the two years that Senator Lorimer's election has been under fire it has furnished probably more sensations than any other case of its kind. Mr. Lorimer was elected by the Illinois legislature on May 27, 1909, after a prolonged deadlock in which the names of more than one hundred candidates, Democrats and Republicans, had been presented unsuccessfully. However, it was not until nearly a year later that the validity of his election was challenged when the now famous "confession" of Charles A. White, a member of the Illinois legislature, was published, charging that he had received $1,000 from Lee O'Neill Browne, Democratic leader of the Illinois house of representatives, in return for his vote for Senator Lorimer, and also $900 as a share of a "general corruption fund."

Temporary Confessions.

Then in rapid succession followed a sensational series of "confessions" by other members of the legislature. These confessions, however, were later modified or repudiated with the exception of White's. The other men claimed they had received the money out of a general fund, and not in return for their Lorimer votes, and in some cases charged intimidation by Cook county authorities to wring the confessions from them.

Lee O'Neill Browne was charged with distributing "Lorimer money," but was acquitted by a jury and other indictments were quashed. Charges of jury bribing in the Browne case were unsustained in court.

A committee of the United States senate reported that the charges of corruption were not proved, and held Senator Lorimer's title to his seat valid.

Condemned in Illinois.

Immediately afterward the Illinois senate appointed a committee of its own to investigate, and this committee reported that Lorimer would not have been elected without bribery and corruption, and the Illinois senate by a vote of 39 to 10 indorsed that view.

In the meantime, after a series of notable debates in the United States senate, Mr. Lorimer was vindicated there, 46 to 40, with five senators not voting. The quota of senators was 92, with one vacancy in Colorado.

Since then, by the admission of New Mexico and Arizona, the quota has increased to 96, but the Colorado vacancy still exists and there are 95 men to vote on the case this time. But of the 46 who voted to retain Mr. Lorimer, eleven are not now in the senate and four of the five who refrained from voting are also no longer members. The ranks of the forty who voted against Lorimer have been depleted by only five, and these places have been taken by men who seem to have indicated that they will follow the views of their predecessors.

One Change Each Way.

Senator Curtis of Kansas, who voted for Mr. Lorimer before, is said to be ready to vote against him this time, but this is counterbalanced by Senator Jones of Washington, who voted against Mr. Lorimer but will vote for him this time.

This alignment seems to throw the balance of power mainly with new senators.

The second investigation brought out the charge that Edward Hines, the millionaire lumberman, had raised a fund of $100,000 to "put Lorimer over," but the majority of the investigating committee exonerated Hines as well as Lorimer. The senator's election, the majority report holds, was due entirely to political conditions in Illinois, which made Mr. Lorimer the only candidate who could muster a majority.

Official Map of the Weather

The weather man is handing out a beautiful brand of his product, but the highest temperature yesterday was only 66 deg., and the mercury dropped to 40 during the night, so straw hats are not entirely comfortable. Continued fair and slightly warmer weather is promised for tonight and tomorrow.

Cloudy and cool weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:15 and it will set at 7:57 this evening, giving fifteen hours and forty-two minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Hot weather continued in Southwestern and Southern states; the maximum temperature at Phoenix, Ariz., was 108 deg. Monday. During the last twenty-four hours light showers fell over Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, the lake region, Upper Mississippi valley and Gulf states. Frosts occurred last night in Wyoming. Conditions favor fine weather in St. Louis and Douglas counties during the ensuing thirty-six hours and probably forty-eight hours."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, June 4.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Wednesday:

Wisconsin and Minnesota—Fair tonight and Wednesday; not much change in temperature.

Upper Michigan—Cloudy tonight, with cooler in extreme east portion; Wednesday fair, with rising temperature.

Iowa—Fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer in northwest portion tonight.

North Dakota—Fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer in west portion tonight.

South Dakota—Fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer tonight.

Montana—Fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer in north portion tonight.

Upper Lakes—Moderate to brisk westerly winds; generally fair weather tonight and Wednesday.

FOUR DIE TRYING IN VAIN TO SAVE MAN FROM SUFFOCATION

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 4.—Five persons perished as the result of being overcome by gas fumes in a grain well at the dairy of Jacob Sachs in Fairmont, this city, today.

Henry Estermann, a city fireman, who went into the pit to get out the bodies, was also overcome and lies at the city hospital in a serious condition. Two of the dead are women. The dead:

MRS. ANNA ESPLAGGE.
MRS. WILLIAM KOESTER.
JACOB SACHS.
JOSEPH NIEHOFF.
ROBERT ATKINS.

Four of the victims forfeited their lives in efforts to rescue Jacob Sachs, the first victim. Estermann was overcome while being lowered into the well. He was pulled out and rushed to the hospital. The firemen then used grappling hooks and brought the bodies to the surface.

The pit, or well, was used by Sachs for the storage of wet malt feed, which he fed to his milch cows. The grain had fermented and germinated deadly gases which caused the death of five persons.

Healthy Mothers

Women who bear children and remain healthy are those who prepare their systems in advance of baby's coming. Unless the mother aids nature in its pre-natal work the crisis finds her system unequal to the demands made upon it, and she is often left with weakened health or chronic ailments. No remedy is so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend, and no expectant mother should fail to use it. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant and elastic those fibres and muscles which nature is expanding, prevents numbness of limbs, and soothes the inflammation of breast glands. The system being thus prepared by Mother's Friend dispels the fear that the crisis may not be safely met. Mother's Friend assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother, and she is left a healthy woman to enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for our free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature.

BELGIANS IN OPEN REVOLT

People in One District Seek Annexation to France.

Many Wounded and Immense Damage Done in Street Battles.

Brussels, Belgium, June 4.—The post-election riots in Belgium have taken on a revolutionary character. Following last night's trouble at Liege and other places, the Socialist central committee declared today that it would proclaim a general strike tomorrow.

At Antwerp one battalion of scouts and a section of artillery of the civil guard joined the manifestants. They rebelled against the police authority, and vented their feelings in demolishing windows. The clerical press demands the dismissal of these troops.

Over Fifty Shot.

In addition to the troubles at Liege and Verviers, where gendarmes fired upon a crowd, killing or wounding over fifty persons, among whom were two children, there was less serious rioting yesterday and last night at Bruges, Tournai, Ghent, Louvain, Antwerp and in this city.

A number of Jesuit colleges and Catholic institutions were attacked by mobs and the windows of the buildings smashed. The gendarmes charged the rioters with broadswords.

The favorite cries of the manifestants are those demanding the administrative separation of the Flemish and the Wallon provinces. Some of the newspapers report a growing sentiment among the working classes in the Walloon districts of the southeast in favor of the annexation of their provinces to France.

The agitation is spreading throughout the country, and 50,000 additional reservists will be called out.

Enormous Damage Done.

At Liege enormous damage was done by the rioters last night. Today the streets in the center of the city were piled high with broken tables, chairs, beams, planks and stones, which were the arms used by the mob in the attacks upon the police.

The tramways were wrecked. In the Place St. Lambert the rioters overturned the street cars and used them as barricades, from behind which they hurled missiles at the police, injuring several.

The most serious encounter occurred in the vicinity of the Socialist headquarters, known as "Populaire." Firing revolvers in the air, the protestants advanced slowly through the streets to "Populaire," sacking stores and cafes as they went. After they had arrived at the headquarters several shots were fired from within the place upon the mounted gendarmes in the street. The commandant, thinking the soldiers were about to be overwhelmed, gave the order to fire at will. Several volleys were exchanged, during which a number of persons were killed and twenty others wounded.

Protest Against Government.

Mons, Belgium, June 4.—Two thousand miners struck today in protest against the maintenance of the present government.

Mobs Attack Convents.

Ghent, June 4.—Rioting continued throughout the night. A score of persons were wounded in a fight with gendarmes. Mobs attacked several convents, breaking the windows of the buildings. The rioters also smashed all the windows in the stores on several streets.

Fight in Verviers.

Verviers, June 4.—A mob today assailed the gendarmes with missiles. The gendarmes charged repeatedly, and when the rioters refused to disperse, opened fire. Thirty of the mob fell, killed or wounded. Seven gendarmes were injured. Many arrests were made.

LUTHERAN COLLEGE HEAD HAS RESIGNED.

Velva, N. D., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—President H. M. Normann of the Northwestern college of this city, maintained by the Synod Lutheran conference of the Dakotas and Minnesota, has resigned, effective at the close of the present school year. He had great reason to expect strong support.

"We attribute the result to the dissatisfaction of the voters of Iowa caused by Taft carrying the Iowa delegation and then losing his own state. The overwhelming defeat in New Jersey started a tidal wave of progressiveness."

LAFE YOUNG IS BEATEN

Senator Kenyon Is Renominated in the Primary in Iowa.

Taft's Defeats in Ohio and New Jersey Blamed for the Result.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 4—Primary returns collected today from 520 scattering precincts in the state, outside of Des Moines and Polk county, showed that United States Senator W. S. Kenyon of Fort Dodge received 37,000 votes and Lafayette Young of Des Moines, approximately 18,000 votes in those precincts in yesterday's Iowa primary.

In Polk county with four Des Moines precincts and fourteen rural precincts still uncounted this morning, Senator Kenyon led by 3,445. His total vote thus far tabulated in Polk county was 6,955 and Young's was 3,510.

It will be late today before the returns from a majority of the precincts have been compiled.

Governorship Is Close.

The governorship contest on the Republican ticket was extremely close. Although George W. Clarke held the lead in the returns at hand today campaign managers for P. G. Holden declared they expected Holden would be returned winner.

Clark's friends place his possible plurality over Holden at more than 10,000.

The Democratic vote throughout the state was the lightest that has been registered in a number of years. John T. Hamilton, on the face of incomplete returns, led E. G. Dunn of Mason City, for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Seek Cause of Defeat.

In making an analysis of yesterday's primary vote, Mr. Young's managers said:

"Mr. Young lost in many of the southern counties of the state where he had great reason to expect strong support.

MUCH GOOD LAND STILL AVAILABLE

Small Percentage of Fort Berthold Claims Have Been Filed on.

Minot, N. D., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The last list of names up to 2650 of those holding numbers for filing on claims on the Fort Berthold reservation was called yesterday by Superintendent Frank L. Wood. No more names will be called till Aug. 15, when the numbers from 2650 to 6000 will be called and the holders given an opportunity to file.

Claims on the reservation do not appear to have been particularly attractive to number holders, or there were a large number who registered without any intention of filing, as out of the first 2400 names called, only 560 have filed on land. This leaves about 700 claims still open for filing, and much of the land is very good.

COUPLE IN DULUTH ON WEDDING TRIP.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the St. Charles' Catholic church yesterday, Rev. John Kornbrust married Joseph Letendre and Miss Mary Reuter. Mr. Letendre has been in business in Cass Lake practically since the town was started and Miss Reuter is a daughter of a prominent farmer living southwest of town. After the nuptial high mass a wedding breakfast was served at the Letendre home, at which a number of friends from a distance participated. The couple will be at home in Cass Lake after their return from a short wedding trip to Duluth.

Akeley Beats Cass Lake.

Cass Lake, Mnn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cass Lake and Akeley played here Sunday and after seven innings the game was stopped on account of rain with the score 3 to 2 in favor of Akeley. The Akeley team left for Grand Rapids where they played yesterday afternoon.

Minot Forger Sentenced.

Minot, N. D., June 4.—On a charge of forgery, W. P. McDonald was yesterday sentenced by Judge Leighton to the state penitentiary for a year. McDonald was arrested at Valley City last week. He was charged by E. H. Schropal with forging a check, and McDonald, when arraigned in justice court, admitted his guilt and was bound over to the district court. He had been in trouble on a previous occasion in this county.

Woman's Realm

Duluth housewives will have the opportunity of taking a ten weeks' course this summer in the cooking, canning and preserving of fruits and vegetables, grown in Duluth gardens. The American Homecroft society has planned to give instruction in a practical course in "Economic Homemaking" with the scientific cooking and canning of fruits and vegetables.

Ten weeks of the summer will be devoted to this work. The schools will be fully equipped for demonstration work, and a competent woman supervisor will be in charge. This work will be open to every housewife in Duluth and the following course of study has been outlined by C. E. Roe, educational director of the Homecroft society:

Preparation of Vegetables for the Table.

Structure and Composition of Vegetable: Classification of vegetables. General principles underlying vegetable cooking.

How to Prevent Waste in Preparing Vegetables: Losses in cooking vegetables. Changes that take place in cooking. Salads and salad dressings.

Early Greens and Their Uses: Marsh marigold, dandelion, spinach, beet greens. Food values and methods of cooking and serving. Canning for winter use.

Rhubarb: Preparation and preserving. Sauces, pies, conserves, puddings, cordials.

Asparagus: Methods of preparing boiled, on toast, escalloped, salad, soup, canning for winter use.

Lettuce: Salad, greens, garnish, etc.

Peas: Food value and method of cooking. Boiled, salad, soups, escalloped. Canning for winter use.

Carrots: Food value for children. Methods of cooking—boiled, soups, salads, etc.

Beets: Boiled, baked, salads, pickles, beet hash. Canning without pickling.

Beans: Boiled, baked, soup, salad, pickles. Canning for winter use.

Cabbage: Medicinal value. Methods of cooking—boiled, soup, salad, escalloped.

Cauliflower: Boiled, escalloped, puree, pickles. Canning for winter use.

Onions: As a relish, boiled, baked, escalloped, pickled. For flavoring other foods.

Tomatoes: As a fruit, salad, stewed, baked, soups, escalloped, pickles. Canning for winter use.

Corn: Boiled, escalloped, soups, succotash, as a breakfast cereal. Canning for winter use.

Potatoes: Food value and methods of cooking. Boiled, baked, escalloped, creamed, soups, puree with cabbage, salad, French fried, chips, etc.

Squash: Steamed, baked, escalloped, pies.

The uses of all other vegetables grown in Duluth gardens will be taken up in this demonstration work.

Home Canning.

Double Sterilization Process: Nearly all of the vegetables mentioned in this outline can be successfully canned for winter use, thus affording a supply of delicious vegetables for the table all through the winter months.

Learn to do this work and thereby cut your grocer's bills in halves.

Canning and Preserving of Fruits and Fruit Juices.

Canned Whole, Preserving Natural Fruit Flavors: The canning and preserving of all fruits grown in Duluth, or purchased in this market; also the making of jellies, jams and conserves will be included in the work of the cooking school.

Poultry Products.

Eggs. Food value. Method of cooking—boiled, poached, omelets, fried, baked, milk scrambles, custard making and other uses in cooking.

Chickens: Fried, boiled, fricasseed, roasted, and canned for winter use.

Economic Use of Other Meats.

How to Buy: Choice of cuts, with a view to economy.

Savory Dishes From Cheap Cuts: Casserole cookery. Developing and improving the flavor of meats.

WOMAN MAY HELP GOVERN SACRAMENTO

MRS. LUELLA JOHNSTON.

Luella B. Johnston wants to help govern Sacramento and the present indications are that she will have her wish. At the recent election in that city for members of the city commission, Mrs. Johnston received a large vote and was seventh on the list of candidates. Ten survived this preliminary vote and Mrs. Johnston will now go before the voters for their final decision. Many of them are women. So far as available records show, though the West has produced several women mayors, this is the first time a woman has aspired to a city commission.

PLAYGROUND MEETING.

Reorganized Society Will Elect Directors and Plan Summer Work

A meeting of the reorganized Playground association which will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. building will prove of importance in the planning for this summer. A board of directors will be elected and an open discussion of the subject is invited.

The importance of the disposal of this question of playgrounds for the children, particularly in the summer months, is generally felt and an invitation is extended to all who are interested to attend this meeting. Those in particular who have suggestions to offer as to the summer use of parks and playgrounds in relation to children are asked to attend this meeting.

Social center work and other allied subjects will be discussed in connection with the playground work.

LAST RECITAL.

Pupils of Mrs. Day Please in Concert Program.

The last of the two piano recitals by the pupils of Mrs. D. H. Day was given at the Y. W. C. A. hall last evening before an audience that completely filled the large assembly room. The pupils were mostly so far advanced in their musical studies that the programs have been more in the nature of concerts than merely pupils' recitals, and their work has been so uniformly good that it would seem to work an injustice not to mention the names of all the participants. However, the playing of the two "little girls," Helen Hudson and Marie McGreevy, can be praised without slighting any of the rest. Their shading, and phrasing and the wonderfully firm, strong touch of their tiny hands were truly remarkable.

Miss Wally Heymar, the well known violinist, played a "Meditation," by Massenet and a "Spanish Dance," by Rehfeld so brilliantly that the audience demanded an encore to which she gracefully responded with Godard's "Berceuse." Miss Alice Mae Brown sang a very appropriate number "Roses in June," by German. She was also encored so enthusiastically that she sang in response a "Lullaby," by Bond.

Master Louis Hoople, who appeared on the program, distributed the bouquets to the students as they finished their numbers.

ORCHESTRA PARTY.

Kansas Firm Gave Its Employes Musical Treat.

Kansas has for many years been known as the home of some unique and original characters, some who gained notoriety through acts of rather an extreme character, others by acts of a decidedly commendable nature and worthy of emulation.

An article printed in a recent issue of the Hutchinson News would seem to indicate that the latter kind of people still exist. In the present case, the incident referred to, deals with a music festival given last month by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra dedicating a new convention hall just built. Following is the article in question:

"To show their appreciation of the loyalty and faithful service of the 150 employes of the Rorabaugh-Wiley Dry Goods company, the heads of the company decided that instead of giving a dinner party as had been planned earlier in the season, they would give a line party at the symphony concert last evening. They did and nearly 150 happy people sat and listened to music played by the artists of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, Emil Oberhoffer conductor. And their pleasure was doubly enhanced owing to the conditions under which they were attending the concert."

In conclusion it is interesting to note that the concerts were attended by over 4,500 people and such was the enthusiasm and enjoyment that negotiations were immediately opened for the return of the orchestra next season. The orchestra will be at the Lyceum on Friday and Saturday of this week.

REPORT RECEIVED.

Public Welfare Board Hears of Work of Woman's Council.

Consideration of a report from the amusement and civic welfare committees of the Woman's Council sent in by Mrs. Charles W. Jerome, was the chief matter taken up at the meeting of the board of public welfare held yesterday in the courthouse.

The work done by the women during the past year was outlined and a discussion followed its reading. The board held over the plan suggested by the women of introducing social center work in Duluth in opposition to commercialized amusements, for special investigation. The committee reports that the men engaged in amusing the public for money may not be expected to look too closely into the character of the entertainment so long as the financial returns are adequate.

Judge Windom made a few remarks relative to the penal farm proposition now practically determined upon by the county commissioners. No action was taken and the board members announced further scrutiny of the situation during the week.

Meetings of the board are held in the courthouse each Monday afternoon and any one with ideas or expressions in welfare work are always welcome.

PROGRAM ISSUED.

President Vincent of State University to Open Art Exhibit.

A program of the special features of the free art exhibit which will open Thursday evening at the court house and will continue for ten days, ending Sunday, June 16, has been made out. Catalogues containing full information and the program can be procured at the public library for a nominal charge.

President Vincent of the Minnesota University will make the opening address Thursday evening at 8 o'clock and the rest of the program follows:

The full program for the ten days:

Thursday, June 6, 8 p. m.—President Vincent, opening address.

Saturday, June 8, 3 p. m.—Mrs. Andreas Ueland of Minneapolis, chairman of the handicraft committee of the Federated Woman's clubs, "Foreign Handicrafts and Their Relation to Minnesota." 8 p. m. Mrs. Ueland, assisted by Mrs. Selma Jager, who will demonstrate lacemaking, "The Craft of Lacemaking and Its Possibilities in Minnesota."

Monday, June 10, 3 p. m. and 8 p. m.—Charles Broschi, sculptor, of St Paul, demonstrations in modeling.

Tuesday, June 11, 3 p. m.—Mrs. Henrietta Olberg of Minneapolis, "Flax and Its Artistic Possibilities in Minnesota;" 8 p. m. Mrs. Olberg, "Scandinavian Handicraft and Its Relation to Duluth."

Wednesday, June 12, 3 p. m. and 8 p. m.—Mrs. Lenora Hamblin of St Paul, "City Planning," illustrated by lantern slides and plans in the exhibit.

Thursday, June 13, 8 p. m.—Bishop McGolrick, "American Art."

Friday, June 14, 8 p. m.—Allen Albert, associate publisher of Minneapolis Tribune, "Picture of the State Art Association."

Maurice Flagg of St. Paul, manager of the exhibition, writes that a weaver will give demonstrations of weaving at each meeting.

The exhibitons will be open from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

The exhibit will be absolutely free and every one is welcome to attend any time during the ten days. The rooms will be opened every morning at 10 o'clock and will be open until 10 at night, with the exception of the two Sundays, when the rooms will be open in the afternoons only.

Seen in the Shops.

One of the display windows of a Superior street jewelry store is attractively filled with little inexpensive gifts for the graduates.

A big maroon and gold pennant of the Central high school senior class forms an effective background and other smaller pennants bring in the school atmosphere.

Enameled jewelry mounted on sterling silver maks an acceptable gift to delight any girl. There are bar, belt and beauty pins, sets of long and short pins, flower pins, and pretty brooches in this ware, which are all dainty and useful. Cuff buttons, fobs and stick pins are suggestions for the gift to the young man and drinking cups in their little leather cases would be nice for either boy or girl.

Pretty little sterling silver frames are nice gifts, as they preserve the pictures of the class mates which one likes to have around.

Mesh bags are also in the display as well as many attractive leather novelties.

Convention Plans.

The convention committees of the Christian Endeavor union will meet this evening at the First Presbyterian church to discuss their plans for the coming convention which will be held in Duluth, June 20 to 23.

The state union is endeavoring to secure Ralph Connor, the noted writer, for an address on "Christian Citizenship." It has been announced that C. J. Junt of St. Paul will be in charge of the convention music and a trip on one of the river steamers to Fond du Lac Saturday will be especially attractive to the convention delegates.

It has also been arranged to hold the early morning open air meeting on Sunday morning, June 23, in Chester park.

Other details will be arranged at the meeting this evening and will be announced later.

Mission Course Opens.

With Mrs. Milton Fish, president of the Interdenominational Missionary union, in charge, the mission extension course was opened this morning at the Y. W. C. A. A large attendance of interested persons listened to a lecture by Mrs. B. D. Wells of Chicago on "The History of the Mormons," which she gave in a clear and concise manner.

Miss Grace Lindley of New York, who will conduct a Bible study course on the Book of Acts, was unable to arrive in time for today's session, but she will be here by tomorrow morning and will open her course then, finishing it Friday and Saturday.

The afternoon session opened at 2 o'clock, with Mrs. J. D. Morrison presiding. Mrs. Wells' afternoon talk was on "China's Break With the Past" and "The Chinese Women."

Miss Nettie E. Trimble and Mrs. J. H. McCabe will be the leaders of tomorrow's sessions.

Church Meetings.

The Women's Missionary society of the Lester Park M. E. church will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. William Vaughn, 5333 London road.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Christian church will meet Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with Mrs. E. R. Cobb, 526 East Fifth street, instead of tomorrow afternoon.

THE EVENING STORY

CUPID'S RIVAL

By William Ransom.

"Betty! Oh, Betty, what ever shall I do?" And Mrs. Jack Humphries thrust an orange-colored envelope into her friend's hand with an air of absolute tragedy.

Betty smiled, but as she read the brief message her face grew very serious.

"Am bringing Derecourt dinner. Do your best. Home seven.—Jack."

Now, under ordinary circumstances, Vera Humphries and her charming little friend would not have been in the least put out by such a message and Jack Humphries knew it was always safe to bring business or other friends home to his delightful little flat, because it was always dainty, and the dinner, though unpretentious, was sure to be perfect; but on this day of all others their smart and capable maid had gone home to a sick mother!

"Whatever can we do, Betty? I would not have had this happen for anything! Don't you remember a few days ago Jack said that Vernon Derecourt could do such a lot for him. He is a very big man, you know, and the dear boy said he would so like to get him to come here and have dinner."

Betty had lived with the Humphries since she had been left an orphan two years before. The girls had been school chums, and Betty had taken up black-and-white work about the same time Vera had married a young barrister.

Betty was a very bright, sweet-natured girl, full of fun and good spirits, and Vera and her husband often wondered that at twenty-five she should still be a bachelor girl; but there were times when no one was by that sweet mouth would droop pathetically, and the glorious grey eyes would be heavy and misty with tears, but she had never told anyone of that brief, sweet dream that had come to naught.

"Well, it is certainly very awkward, but it'll be all right. We've got a nice little dinner cooking merrily enough, and we can open that can of peaches and make some snow eggs as extras," said Betty.

"The dinner is all right; but what about the serving and waiting? We must have things done properly. And it is no good sending for Mrs. Moggs; she can do cleaning and rough work, but she is no good for anything else."

"No, I can hardly imagine that good lady as either cook or parlourmaid," laughed Betty. "Vera, do you know it is nearly half-past six now? There is no time to lose. I'll set the table while you see to the dinner, and then you've got to change your dress, and make yourself look very charming. A man's wife is a great power, you know."

Deftly Betty set out shining plate and dainty linen, and arranged some flowers on the table, her mind busily at work as to how their present difficulty might be solved. She stood back and surveyed her handiwork with satisfaction just as Vera came back, then she danced up to her friend and waltzed her round the table.

"I've got an idea! And you've just got to leave everything to me! I promised you it shall be all right, and I have never failed you yet. You have twenty minutes. Go and put on your pretty blue dress, and don't worry about a single thing. No, I'm not going to tell you anything; and you must make me a solemn promise to go straight into the drawing-room when you are ready."

Mrs. Jack was at her wits' end. She had no solution of the difficulty in her own mind, and felt too bewildered to dispute the air of authority Betty had taken, though she did say:

"But what about you, dear—are you going to get ready now?"

"Yes, I am going to dress now. I shall be ready in time."

Her eyes danced as she watched Vera safely into her room, then she slipped into the one usually occupied by the absent Jane.

A clean muslin apron and cap lay on the girl's bed, just as she had put them ready to wear when a telegram had called her away. Betty stood for a moment looking at them.

"There's nothing else for it, so here goes!" she murmured. And in two or three minutes a great transformation had taken place, and there was no denying that she looked very charming with the snowy apron over a plain black frock, and with the neat cap on her soft, dark hair.

She glanced in the glass, and laughed softly.

"I really should not have known myself! What a difference clothes do make! Now I must get back to the kitchen, or the dinner will be spoiled!"

As she proceeded to dish up the dinner, she heard Vera's door open and was prepared to forcibly resist any intrusion into her domain, but at that moment Jack's cheery voice sounded, bidding his guest enter. She was just conveying a carefully-cooked cauliflower on its perilous journey from the saucepan to the dish, when she heard Derecourt speak, and she gave such a start of surprise that it nearly landed on the floor for the visitor's voice reminded her of the long ago.

It was only at the last minute that Vera caught sight of Betty, and almost screamed aloud. But Betty grasped her arm.

"There was no other way, Vera; and everything is all right; only please remember to call me Jane. You can bring them into dinner now."

Jack's first impulse was to roar with laughter when he saw Betty, but Vera gave him a hearty kick.

"Not a word, and call her Jane!" she managed to breathe.

Betty had imagined that Vernon Derecourt would be a pompous, middle-aged man, but at first sight of the handsome young fellow who came into the dining room her heart bounded, and she went white to the lips, for it was her knight of the long ago!

She soon learned from the conversation that he had unexpectedly come into a fortune, and had had to change his name. Vernon Chesney he had been when, seven years ago, a foolish quarrel, chiefly her fault, had parted them. He had gone abroad, and she had never thought to see him again.

Vera spoke to Betty, and as she answered he looked up with a start that made him spill the wine he was about to drink, for she was absurdly like the little sweetheart whom he had been vainly seeking, grey eyes and sweet mouth, but, of course, it was ridiculous. Betty had been a rich man's daughter, and it was only a chance resemblance.

When Betty had cleared the table she went back to the kitchen, and flung off the cap and apron which she felt she hated, then turned off the electric light, shut the door, and sat down in the darkness, which was relieved only by the glow from the dying fire, and she was soon deep in thought.

Suppose she had been herself tonight, and wearing her pretty cream gown, what would he have said? Did he still care—for she knew he had cared long ago? But it was no good wondering.

Faintly she could hear them talking, and one voice thrilled her with mingled pain and joy. Now he was singing, and as the beautiful, haunting strains of "The Rosary" came to her ears she buried her head in her arms and sobbed bitterly. A few seconds later Vera burst into the kitchen, and she jumped up hastily.

"Betty, it is too awful! The light has gone out! It is that wretched slot meter! Oh, haven't you got a shilling? I've every other value in silver, but not one shilling!"

"No," whispered Betty, "I'm quite sure I haven't a shilling. I wanted some change this afternoon."

"What shall we do? How awful for him to know about its being a slot meter! Good heavens, here they come," she added tragically, under her breath, as Jack appeared in the doorway, and they could hear him trying to keep back his guest.

"It is all right, Derecourt. Don't you trouble to come—I'll soon put it right, if you don't mind sitting in the dark a minute," said Jack cheerily.

But he did come on, for, to his great amusement, he had heard the agonized appeal for a shilling.

Betty choked back a sob, and Vera turned to her in alarm.

"Betty you are crying." But the girl only turned away.

But Derecourt had caught Betty's name, and in two strides his arm was round her, where she stood in the dim firelight.

"So it is my little Betty after all," he said tenderly. "My darling, have you forgotten me? I have searched everywhere for you."

Betty was trembling now with incredulous joy and amazement, and she could not speak.

"Betty, darling, do you love me? I've got a shilling in my pocket, but I'm not going to give them a light until you tell me. Betty, do you love me?"

And she murmured something that evidently satisfied him, for he held her very tightly and kissed her sweet, soft lips.

Then, and only then, with his arm still round her, he led her to where the others stood.

"I'm a bit of an electrician," he said mischievously, as he dropped the necessary coin in the slot.

PINE RIVER TO HAVE FARMERS' CREAMERY.

Pine River, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Pine River Co-operative Creamery association, composed entirely of farmers, has been organized, the date of the legality of the association to be June 15. The association was capitalized at $3,000 and not less than 500 cows will be pledged to furnish cream. It is the intention to purchase the local creamery which is owned by a private individual, but if this is not feasible a new butter factory will be erected. The officers elected are: President, W. B. Bogart; vice president, A. Olson; secretary, Iver Iverson; treasurer, Leander Wilson; directors, John Ackerman, N. D. Fritzner, Maurice Finne, E. W. Parker, J. K. Ramsey. The next meeting of the association wil be held on Tuesday, June 11.

ATTACKS THE MILLER BILL

Department of Justice Opposes Plan for Indian Lands.

Says "Carnival of Crime" Followed Enactment of Clapp Amendment.

(From The Herald Washington Bureau.)

Washington, June 4. — Chairman James M. Graham of the house committee on expenditures in the interior department has received letters from Ernest Knaebel of the department of justice and Samuel Adams, assistant secretary of the interior, strongly protesting against the passage of the Steenerson-Miller bill, providing for the amendment of the Clapp law and for the issue of patents for lands in the White Earth reservation, titles to which have not been attacked by the department of justice.

"The department of justice is unalterably opposed to the Steenerson bill with reference to White Earth lands, as reported by Representative Miller," says Mr. Knaebel. "The report contains statements that are totally at variance with information obtained by the department. The report states that Indians have made affidavits and brought evidence to show they were mixed bloods, and after they had sold their lands claimed to be full bloods.

"Carnival of Crime."

"This statement would be entirely correct if to it were added the fact that the Indians who made such affidavits were induced to make them by persons who desired to secure their allotments.

"The report states that undoubtedly some frauds occurred. The information of the department is to the effect that a carnival of crime seldom paralleled even in Indian affairs followed the passage of the Clapp amendment."

Both Mr. Knaebel and Mrs. Adams oppose the making of a new roll, and particularly having this work done by the court of claims, which is too far removed from the Indians and has no machinery for doing the work. It is declared that the roll already made is accurate and includes all the information called for in the pending bill.

Mr. Adams also asserts that the only persons to be benefited by the passage of the proposed law would be the minor Indians, and the absolute repeal of the law is desirable. He also makes reference to "locking the stable door up on empty stalls."

EAU CLAIRE U. S. COURT.

Judge Sanborn Presiding at Session Beginning Tuesday.

Eau Claire, Wis., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A session of the United States court for the western district of Wisconsin opened here this morning, Judge Sanborn presiding, and will probably be in session two weeks.

A grand jury was charged and placed at work on pending cases.

Among the cases to be tried is the $25,000 personal injury suit of F. L. Wilkins of Barron against Murphy & Co. of Chicago. Wilkins, while working in a warehouse belonging to the defendant company, was struck on the head by a pulley which became loosened and fell.

Among the criminal cases to be tried is that against A. B. Bjornstad, the North side pawnbroker, who is charged with defrauding by mail.

Find Kidnapped Indian Girl.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 4.—Three years' search by government Indian agents for a child kidnaped by her negro father from her Creek Indian mother, culminated here yesterday when an agent took Anna Atkins, aged 9 from a negress, the second wife of her father. She will be returned to her mother at Wagoner, Okla., from where she was taken, and her allotment of 160 acres, sold by her father, will be restored. The father was killed at Gary, Ind., last January.

SUPERIOR

COUNTY FAIR WILL BE HELD IN SEPTEMBER.

Plans for the annual Douglas county fair will not be abandoned, according to a decision of the members of the association at a meeting held last evening. A monster exhibition of the local produce will be shown early in September at a location to be announced later. In all probability a special building will be erected for the fair, as the sentiment among the members is in favor of the move.

Eligible for Pension.

Five Superior public school teachers are today eligible to retire on the pension act. These teachers have taught in Wisconsin schools for the period of twenty-five years or more and under provision of the act are now entitled to draw the maximum pension of $450.

Class Day Exercises.

The graduates and members of the junior class of the Superior high high school entertained yesterday afternoon at the annual class exercises of the school. The school auditorium was filled and a program of recitations, musical numbers and class features was rendered during the afternoon.

NO IMMEDIATE FIGHT IN MEXICO

El Paso, Tex., June 4.—The main forces of federals and rebels in the vicinity of Chihuahua are not likely to meet for at least a week more, because of the destruction of portions of the Mexican Central railroad.

Generals Villa and Rabago, with a large force of federal cavalry, are moving toward Chihuahua from the southwest, their flank movement being expected to harrass Gen. Orozco's rear when the main columns of Gen. Huerta are brought north of the railroad.

Another flank movement is said to have been begun by the federals from the east. The rebels have sent a large force of cavalry westward to check Generals Villa and Rabago, but as yet no men have started eastward.

Gen. Orozco expects the main engagement to be fought at Bachimba, a mountain pass forty-six miles south of Chihuahua, which he now is fortifying, but whether Gen. Huerta of the federal troops will accept the challenge or move his troops around behind Bachimba and into Chihuahua, is an alternative which rebel scouting parties have been unable to determine.

Rebel scouts report that a small force of federal cavalry has come as far north as Santa Rosalia, sixty miles south of Bachimba, but declare that Gen. Huerta has thus far made no attempt to reconstruct the lines north of Jiminez. Progress overland with heavy artillery would be difficult and slow.

So confident is Gen. Orozco that there is no immediate danger of an attack by Gen. Huerta's main columns, that he has sent Gen. Francisco Del Tori southward to retake Santa Rosalia.

The knowledge that a battle even at Bachimba, forty-six miles away from Chihuahua, is not imminent for several days, has relieved the tension which existed in the latter place for some time.

PLAN NEW YORK FIRE DEVICES

New York, June 4.—The civic organizations which have been studying the proposed new building code have reached what they term "standard" requirements, which they believe should be installed in every loft and factory building to afford adequate protection to human life against fire. The requirements are embodied in a report made by the Citizens' union and is understood to have been indorsed by the other civic bodies.

The investigators insist that the only sure means of exit from a loft or factory building in time of fire is the "horizontal exit," which is provided by a fire wall built up through the entire building, with accessible doors on each floor or by doors on each floor through the party wall of the adjoining building.

Under such conditions the workers on any one floor are as safe as those on the ground floor, as they have a ready means of exit through the fire wall, out of the fire zone, without having to go downstairs. Once beyond the fire wall there should be plenty of time for them to reach the street without panic or inconvenience. Fire escapes, they say are entirely inadequate.

WISCONSIN TAX LAW IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

Madison, Wis., June 4.—The supreme court of Wisconsin today held that the part of chapter 116 of the laws of 1901, exempting from taxation certain classes of property of educational institutions, is unconstitutional because it violates the rule of uniformity in taxation.

WANT TOWN OF FIELD DIVIDED

Settlers in the town of Field, St. Louis county, have petitioned the county board to divide the town so that township 62-18 will be a new township to be known as the town of Owens, and that township 62-19 will retain the name of Field.

It is proposed to name the new township after John Owens, an old and respected settled of that vicinity. Mr. Owens was former clerk of the district court in Duluth and at one time lived in the city. He has a homestead on 62-18.

The petition has been received by J. O. Walker, deputy county auditor and clerk of the board of commissioners and will be presented at the monthly meeting of the board, which will be held Thursday.

The various committees of the board will hold their usual routine sessions at the courthouse tomorrow morning and afternoon.

KELLOGG WANTS OPEN SESSIONS

New York, June 4.—Frank B. Kellogg, Republican national committeeman from Minnesota, issued a statement today reading in part as follows:

"I shall make a motion in the national committee that all sessions of the committee be thrown open to the press. The eyes of the country in this contest are on the national committee. For one, I prefer that the public should fully be informed as to the merits of every contest. At this time, in a crisis in the Republican party, the members of the national committee stand in the nature of trustees, and I hope and believe they will perform their duty with credit."

CHAUTAUQUAN DIES.

Manager of 1912 Platform in Devils Lake Called.

Devils Lake, N. D., June 4.—There is genuine regret here in Chautauqua circles over the unexpected death at Helena, Mont., of Rev. George Hindley, a pastor of that city, whose funeral was held at Helena Sunday.

After five seasons' services as superintendent of the North Dakota Chautauqua, during which he managed the platform in such a manner as to endear himself to the thousands of patrons, the news of his passing cast a cloud over a very bright sky.

Dr. Hindley had accepted the invitation to handle the platform at the 1912 assembly and his arrival was looked forward to with anticipations of great pleasure by every one who knew him. Dr. Hindley was a real Chautauquan. He entered into the very spirit of the occasion and with ever a kindly word, a pleasant smile and a warm clasp of the hand, he was known as a genuinely good man.

Dr. Hindley is a native of Indiana, going to Minesota after which he located at Helena, Mont., where he was identified with prison reform work, as chaplain for some time. He leaves a wife and six children in the immediate famly. Dr. Hindley was about 70 years of age.

"TRUSTY" WALKS AWAY.

Inmate of Marquette Penitentiary Takes French Leave.

Marquette, Mich., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.) — Antonio Datello, a trusty at the Marquette prison, who has been employed outside the walls for several months past, walked away Saturday afternoon, and has not yet been retaken. He is an Italian, 24 years of age, of swarthy complexion, with black hair. He is afflicted with a persistent skin trouble that kept his back in a constant state of eruption, and which prevented his employment in the shops. He is five feet and a half tall. Datello was sent up from Dickinson county for manslaughter and had been confined at the prison for the past five years. He is believed to have gone east along the South Shore right-of-way, and it is thought that he is heading for Pennsylvania.

ARE STANDING FIRM.

North Dakota Delegates Resist Boss Barnes' Blandishments.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 4.—Practically every member of the North Dakota Republican delegation has replied in the negative to the appeal of William Barnes, Jr., for support for Root for chairman. No meeting of the delegates has been called, now will any be held until Chicago is reached. The delegates are standing firm by La Follette, although efforts have been made to secure them for Roosevelt.

CASS LAKER MISSING.

Empty Boat on Lake Arouses Suspicion Mike Oruk Was Drowned.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mike Oruk, a Russian has been missing from his home here for a week and no trace of him has been found. Not much concern was felt over his whereabouts for several days until day before yesterday when it was learned that an empty boat was seen on the lake a short distance out from the saw mill. Several articles that were believed to have belonged to Oruk were found in the boat and this led to a searching party being organized to drag the lake in that vicinity but to no avail. Monday afternoon County Attorney Funck and Coroner E. F. Miskella made a search of his house, it being reported that he had been buried in the cellar, but their investigations also proved fruitless, and his whereabouts still remain a mystery.

McCORMICK'S ESTATE RUNS INTO MILLIONS.

Ashland, Wis., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ashland and Bayfield counties are interested in the settlement at Tacoma, Wash., of the estate of the late R. L. McCormick, formerly of Winona, Minn., who held vast timber holdings in Minnesota and Wisconson along as well as on the Pacific coast with the Weyerhaeusers.

According to the order the estate is valued at $2,050,689 less the inheritance tax of $492. The family residence and all personal effects becomes the property of the widow, Anna E. McCormick. One half of the remainder of the estate, which includes stock in the Weyerhaeuser Timber company, several banks and other enterprises also goes to Mrs. McCormick and the remaining half is equally divided between the two sons, William L. McCormick and Robert A. McCormick.

PLANNING BOAT CLUB ACTIVITIES.

At a meeting of the cabinet of the Duluth Boat club, held in the office of President J. H. Barnes, it was decided that the various captains should make preparations for the opening of the summer season of the club in about two weeks. Plans for the reservation of certain hours at the various tennis courts of the club were discussed, it being stated that courts may be reserved for women during certain hours of the day.

A local tennis tournament will be held here the present season. Negotiations are also being carried on with Delafield, Wis., for a eight-oared race with the club crew.

NORTH DAKOTAN WILL SECOND LA FOLLETTE.

Madison, Wis., June 4.—Information from authoritative sources received here indicates that E. M. Pollock of Fargo, N. D., has been selected by Senator La Follette to second the latter's nomination at the Chicago convention. Michael B. Olbrich of this city, who returned yesterday from California, said he had heard that Mr. Pollock would make the seconding speech, but that his information had come from a friend of Pollock and not directly from the senator. Mr. Olbrich is preparing the nominating speech.

TO SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

Senate Decides on Plan to Restrict Consideration of Bills.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., June 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a session of the senate this afternoon following the joint session, a resolution offered by Senator Gunderson was adopted by a viva voce vote providing that all measures introduced must go to a special committee of nine. None except those relating to state-wide primaries or corrupt practices shall come out of committee, except when all nine members approve or when two-thirds of the senate votes to call them out.

This was adopted in lieu of the proposed joint resolution plan because it appeared to be impossible to put such a resolution through the house.

The following bills were introduced:

G. H. Sullivan—A joint resolution ratifying the federal amendments providing for an income tax and direct election of United States senators.

W. W. Dunn—State-wide primaries without the second choice provision and a bill providing presidential primaries with a convention to nominate presidential electors.

Murray—Corrupt practices act.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

Tom Watson Arrested.

Thomson, Ga., June 4.—Thomas E. Watson was arrested at his home here yesterday afternoon on a federal warrant charging him with sending obscene matter through the mails. Watson's arrest grew out of a publication in his magazine of an article said to reflect on the Catholic religion.

Titanic Victim's Will Probated.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 4.—The will of Walter D. Douglas of Minneapolis, victim of the Titanic disaster, has been admitted to probate. The estate is valued at $3,000,000, consisting principally of stocks and bonds with $260,000 life insurance and real estate of the same amount.

The widow, saved from the Titanic, receives the bulk of the estate.

AMERICAN EXCHANGE NATIONAL BANK

SOUTHWEST STILL DRY

Lack of Rain in That Section Sends Wheat Up in This Country.

Flaxseed Trade Is Dull—Scarcity of Good Seed Boosts July.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 4.—Wheat took a new bulge on the American markets today by reason of continued reports of damage in the Southwest by drouth, the rain that has fallen amounting to very little, and being far from adequate to relieve conditions, even in the few spots where it has occurred. Duluth July wheat today closed at an advance of ¾c. Cash wheat closed a cent over July. Durum closed ¼c up and oats 1½c up. Rye and barley closed unchanged. July flaxseed closed at an advance of 1c.

Some rains were reported this morning to have occurred during the last twenty-four hours in the drouth-stricken hard winter wheat region of the Southwest, but the precipitation, where it occurred at all, was so slight as to be of little of any consequence. As a result, brokers on the grain markets of North America kept advancing wheat. Reports continued to come of damage to wheat in that part of the country, vast areas drying up, while farmers were eagerly looking for signs of rain.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.14⅛, opened today at $1.14⅛ bid, and at noon was selling for $1.14⅞. There were marked gains likewise at Winnipeg, Minneapolis and Chicago. Liverpool wheat today closed unchanged to ¼d higher. The nearer options were prevented from having a bullish movement on that market by favorable wheat crop reports from Russia and elsewhere in Europe.

July Flaxseed Climbs.

A representative of one of the flaxseed companies operating on the Duluth market today repeated the prophecy, which he has made before, to the effect that July flax will go a great deal higher before that month is past, and that it will act very much in the same way in which Duluth flax acted. His company is understood to be the one which held the Duluth May flax options on which the shorts defaulted. He was asked today whether his company would make complaint to the board of directors to compel settlement for damages because of the default, and he said he did not think anything of the kind would be done. "We do not wish to be unreasonable," he said. "Cash has to be put up to cover any rises that occur. The clearing house takes care that we can suffer no loss. If we have to take cash instead of having the flaxseed delivered, we shall be satisfied. I do not see why we should make any complaint. If there are any people on the board who think they have not had a square deal, let them complain. All we did was to buy up good flax as fast as we could get it for shipment. We had to have it. Of course that had the natural effect of putting up May."

Trading was dull on the Duluth flaxseed market this morning. There was a good demand for the choice flaxseed, but a very poor demand for the off-grade seed, and as there was little of the choice seed to be had, trading did not amount to much. Duluth July flaxseed at noon today was 2c up, at $2.27 asked. Winnipeg July at noon was 1½c up, at $1.96½ asked. Buenos Ayres June yesterday closed 1½c lower, at $1.77¾, and London-Calcutta June and July today closed 1¾d lower, at $2.29⅞.

MARKET GOSSIP

The following reports were received by B. W. Snow:

"Alvo, Neb.—Weather is very dry and wheat has gone back rapidly."

"Lowell, Ind.—Corn planting finished on high land, but river bottoms are still too wet. Oats looking well."

"Shelbyville, Ind.—Twenty per cent of corn acreage yet to be planted. Oats looking well."

"Stockton, Iowa—All corn planted. Crops doing well."

"Martinsville, Ill.—Not much more than half the corn crop planted on June 1."

"Jean, Kan.—Rain on the 31st helped out everything. Wheat was suffering from dry weather. Oats very poor."

"Gilmer, Texas—Corn is small but looks well. Oats are making a full field."

Kansas City wired as follows: "Good judges of wheat, who have been in Nebraska and Western Kansas, the last few days say they are greatly surprised at the poor condition of wheat. It is hard to explain. The soil is hard, the plant stunted and the color very bad. A few more hot days without rain will put our crop in very bad shape."

Duluth car inspection: No. 1 northern 10; No. 2 northern, 7; No. 3, 1; no grade, 1; total wheat, 19; last year, 79; flax, 10; last year, 2; barley, 1; last year, none; corn, 1; last year, 19; oats, 2; last year, 9; total of all gains, 33; on track, 80.

A dispatch from Abilene, Kan., says that wheat in that region has declined 25 per cent in the last few days. Fields are turning brown. Wheat is heading out but eight inches and with small heads.

The crop report of the Burlington railroad shows a loss of 10 to 50 per cent of the Nebraska wheat crop.

The following is from Chelsea, Faulk county, South Dakota, June 2: "There are very high winds and dry weather. The dust is blowing and has begun to damage grains."

A rain was reported at Lincoln, Neb., but it lasted only twenty minutes and was succeeded by clear, bright weather. Some rain was reported at Omaha.

Hutchinson, Kan., wires that wheat there is losing out very fast, the rains not being sufficient to do much good.

Stockton, Kan., reports wheat very bad. The damage is estimated at 20 per cent now and it is said that there will be much more if rains do not come soon. It is getting worse all the time. Wheat is potted and larger spots are appearing.

Houston wired from Kansas City: "Kansas and Nebraska have no more wheat than last year, when they raised 90,000,000 bu. The promise on May 1 was 130,000,000 bu."

A wire from Mankato says that wild oats are playing havoc in the wheat fields around there and a lot of land is being plowed up and sowed to other grains.

A man at Chicago from Nebraska is quoted as saying that from Lincoln to Hastings, 100 miles, wheat is nearly gone.

Hutchinson, Kan., wired: "Conditions are serious in our territory today. The rain of Friday night was of no benefit. We think the outlook today is worse than at any time this spring."

John Inglis wired from St. Joseph, Mo.: "Wheat in Western Nebraska is a failure. East from Red Cloud to the state line it shows some improvement, but it is very uneven. Some is good and some is very poor. The general condition is below the average. Rain is needed to finish as the crop is late and will be ready to cut before July 1. Weather is clear and cooler."

Kansas City wires: "There are messages here claiming 40 to 60 per cent damage."

Le Count wired from Ellsworth, Kan.: "Eastern Russell and some parts of Ellsworth county have some wheat heading out and it is looking fine. Many fields are fair and others are very poor. Weather is cool. Over the greater part of the state the soil is very dry and wheat is deteriorating very rapidly from drouth, much of it being too far gone for recovery."

The Minneapolis Commercial West says:

"While there is unquestionably a shortage of flaxseed in the United States, supplies in the West are larger than a year ago. Oil trade is fair but not really active. Raw linseed oil in car lots f. o. b. Minneapolis is quotable at 72c and 73c. There is a demand for oil cake at $31 for prompt shipment. For September shipment and later, probably $31.50 could be had.

"The flax acreage in Minnesota and the Dakotas doubtless is up to the normal area, but owing to the drouth in North and South Dakota the last two years, comparison with the acreage of those two seasons does not amount to anything. In a general way it may be said that if conditions continue favorable until harvest there will be a big crop of flax grown in the three states and Eastern Montana. In the latter state the acreage is the greatest it has ever been."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Lack of Rain in Southwest Makes Wheat Tone Bullish.

Chicago, June 4.—Wheat prices showed a tendency to rise today on account of continued absence of moisture in Nebraska and Kansas. Reports indicated that the condition of the crop in the first named state had fallen off 9 to 30 per cent as compared with a week ago. Whole sections were said to have been killed outright by hot winds. Suspension of a prominent concern in Liverpool led also to an uneasy feeling on the part of shorts. On the other hand, foreign crop prospects were generally favorable. The opening here ranged from ⅛c lower to ⅜@½c up. September started at $1.06⅛ to $1.06½, a gain of a shade to ⅜@½c, and mounted to $1.06⅝.

Statements that wheat in the western part of Nebraska was a failure caused a further advance but the market eased off on reports of rain in a few points in both Kansas and Nebraska. The close was heavy at $1.06⅝ for September, a net gain of ¼@⅜c.

Although corn appeared easy at the outset as a result of the fine weather, the market later hardened with wheat. Trade, however, was not large. July opened a sixteenth off to a like advance, at 72⅛@73c, and ascended to 73¼c.

After a dip below opening figures a sharp upturn occurred in consequence of improved shipping demand. The close was firm, 1@1⅛c net higher for July at 74c even.

Moderate buying on the part of a leading house gave firmness to oats. The big cash sales here yesterday helped the bulls. July started a shade to ⅛@¼c higher at 49⅜c to 49½c, touched 49¼c and rallied to 49⅝c.

Selling pressure on ribs depressed the provision market as a whole. Demand for pork and lard was decisively slow. Initial sales varied from last night's level to 10c below, with September delivery $18.75 to $18.82½ for pork, $11.07½ to $11.10 for lard and $10.57½ to $10.60 for ribs.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Dullness of Final Hour Is Accompanied By Slight Declines.

Substantial Net Gains the Rule and Close Is Steady.

New York, June 4.—General strength was shown in the stock market at the opening today. Gains of a point were recorded by Reading and Union Pacific, and such specialties as American Tobacco and Sears-Roebuck rose from 1⅛@2 points. The copper stocks on London's lead registered substantial fractional gains.

The strength at the opening was well maintained in the early dealings. Almost a score of stocks advanced a point or more, with the activity greatest in the industrials.

Absence of selling pressure seemed to account for the better tone of the day's early stock market. Over-night political events calculated to increase bearish sentiment were ignored. Reading rose over two points, with Lehigh Valley and Union Pacific next in favor among the active railroad issues, while Steel displayed more strength than recently.

Coppers reflected the improved tone of those stocks abroad. American Tobacco, Harvester and Sears-Roebuck were conspicuously strong specialties. Poor April earnings restrained any movement in St. Paul. Bonds were steady.

The market closed steady. The extreme dullness of the final hour was accompanied by some slight sagging of prices, but substantial net gains were the rule.

London Stocks.

London, June 4.—American securities opened steady and about unchanged today. During the first hour of trading a few shares eased off, but most of the list advanced. At noon the market was steady, with values ranging from ¼ above to ¼ below yesterday's New York closing.

South St. Paul Livestock.

South St. Paul, Minn., June 4.—Cattle—Receipts, 2,800; killers, steady to weak; steers, $5.75@8.25; cows-heifers, $3.75@7.00; calves, steady, $4.50@8.00; feeders, steady to 15c lower, $3.00@6.15. Hogs—Receipts, 6,100; 5c lower; range, $7.00@7.35; bulk, $7.25@7.30. Sheep—Receipts, 500; steady to weak; lambs, $4.00@8.90; wether, $5.00@5.75; ewes, $4.50@5.25; woolstuff at 25@50c premium.

Cotton Market.

New York, June 4.—Cotton opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 3 points in response to better cables than looked for and some scattered covering. Weather conditions in the South were considered very favorable, however, and the market later sold off to a net loss of 2@3 points under scattering liquidation. With the government's condition report expected at midday business was very dull and was attributed chiefly to evening up of small scattering accounts.

Cotton: Spot closed quiet and five points higher; middling uplands, $11.45; middling gulf, $11.70; no sales.

Futures closed very steady. Closing bids:

June, 10.94; July, 11.08; August, 11.12; September, 11.21; October, 11.28; November, 11.32; December, 11.35; January, 11.32; February, 11.36; March, 11.43; May, 11.48.

New York Money.

New York, June 4.—Money on call, steady, 2½ to 3 per cent; ruling rate, 2¾ per cent; closing bid, 2½; offered at 2¾ per cent. Time loans softer; 60 days, 3 per cent and 90 days, 3 per cent; six months, 3½ to 3¾ per cent. Close: Prime mercantile paper, 3¾ to 4 per cent. Sterling exchange firm with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.84.60 for 60-day bills, and at $4.87.10 for demand. Commercial bills, $4.83¾. Mexican dollars, 48c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds firm.

WARD TO BE ROOSEVELT'S CHAMPION

Will Lead Colonel's Friends in the Republican National Committee.

Barnes Is Likely to Oppose Him as Proxy for Perkins.

Chicago, June 4.—The Roosevelt forces in the Republican national committee will be led by William L. Ward, committeeman from New York, according to information received here today.

The inability of S. A. Perkins, committeeman from the state of Washington, to be present because of an accident, raised the probability that William Barnes, Jr., Mr. Ward's chief antagonist in the New York delegation, may hold a proxy in the committee and marshal the Taft forces during the fight in that body.

This development was the most interesting feature in today's preconvention events. Senator Dixon, Medill McCormick, Mr. Ward and other Roosevelt leaders will reach here tomorrow. The organization of the Roosevelt committeemen already has begun. Senator Dixon personally will direct the so-called "delegates' committee," which is to be the "flying wedge" of the Roosevelt campaign among incoming convention delegates.

Will Oppose Root.

Theodore Roosevelt's determination to renew the fight on Senator Elihu Root for temporary chairman and to bend every effort to his defeat when the Republican national convention is opened June 18, has caused general unrest among the Republican leaders and national committeemen who already have reached Chicago for the preconvention work.

Members of the national committee and leaders in both the Taft and Roosevelt headquarters discussed Col. Roosevelt's statement with reluctance today. It was apparent the Roosevelt leaders in the West had expected a cessation of the fight against Senator Root, but Alexander H. Revell and Edward W. Sims declared themselves this morning in hearty accord with Col. Roosevelt in his decision to fight William Barnes, Jr., Senator Root and the entire national committee if necessary.

No Change, Says Rosewater.

Victor Rosewater of Omaha, acting chairman of the national committee, who arrived this morning, said he believed Col. Roosevelt's attitude would make no change in the plans of the sub-committee on arrangements, which has selected Senator Root for the temporary chairmanship. Mr. Rosewater said this committee's action was final, unless some member of the national committee demanded that it be renewed by the full committee.

The national committee is likely to be the scene of the first fight on the temporary chairman. In view of Col. Roosevelt's opposition to Senator Root, one of the active Roosevelt men on the national committee may bring up for review in the full committee meeting, it is believed, the action of the sub-committee on arrangements, of which Col. Harry S. New is chairman. The committee, it said, will undoubtedly sustain Chairman New and his sub-committee, throwing the temporary chairmanship fight onto the floor of the convention.

Expect Open Hearings.

Open hearings on the contest cases which are to be taken up by the national committee Friday apparently are assured. Acting Chairman Rosewater is himself favorable to such action, since President Taft and Col. Roosevelt both have asked for it.

Former Senator Charles Dick of Ohio, President Taft's contest attorney, said on his arrival from Washington that he strongly favored the open hearings; and Ormsby McHarg, the Roosevelt contest attorney, long has favored such conduct.

"The impression prevails that Col. Roosevelt opposed open hearings four years ago," said Mr. McHarg. "It is not true. We urged open sessions, but the national committee refused our request."

"The committee has no reason for refusing the newspaper men admission into the consideration of cases," said Acting Chairman Rosewater. "If the principals themselves want the sessions open. The committee has never conducted star chamber proceedings,' for attorneys for both sides have been present when cases were argued."

Decide Behind Closed Doors.

Mr. Rosewater said the committee undoubtedly would reach its decision on each contest case behind closed doors, after the arguments had been made. Up to today contests in 230 cases have been announced and more are expected.

The small group of active political leaders here this morning expectantly was watching trains for the arrival of Senator Dixon, Representative William B. McKinley, William Barnes, Jr., or some of the other Eastern generals in the opposing camps. A few additions were made early in the day to the ranks of the national committeemen who have reached the scene, but the majority of them probably will not arrive until Wednesday.

FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE.

BARROWS,

THE NEW MINING TOWN ON THE Cuyuna range, offers splendid opportunities for investment and for the establishment of business in various lines. This town is located in the richest part of the range, adjoining the Barrows mine, which will ship ore this season, and where a large force of men is now employed in putting down the third shaft, two being already completed. A number of other mines adjacent to the townsite will be opened up, making Barrows one of the greatest mining centers on the range. Streets are graded, cement sidewalks in, and buildings are going up rapidly. Lots are now offered at from $150 to $400 on the partial payment plan. Buy now while you can buy at the first offered price; get located in a live new town and prosper with the development of the country.

A few years ago lots that were sold in Hibbing, Virginia and Chisholm at the prices we are now asking are worth today several thousand dollars. For further information apply to

IN THAT BUYING QUEST OF YOURS

Advertise for Real Estate Interestingly, Informingly and Without Over-Stinting of Description.

TO HAVE YOUR WIFE

BECOME A HERALD AD READER IS BETTER FORTUNE FOR YOU THAN AN INCREASE IN SALARY

For the ad-reading housewife makes the family expense money "go farther"—makes it buy more and better things—and, in the course of a year, will have saved a surprising sum, without curtailing home supplies in the least.

The ad-reading housewife simply applies business methods to buying the needed home supplies. She learns when, where, how much to buy at a time. She manages her buying.

And the habit of wise buying—practiced by ad-readers exclusively—lends to wise and systematic and frictionless management of all home routine and affairs. So that the man whose wife becomes an ad reader is, indeed, lucky—for the whole outlook for him is bettered and brightened!

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION WILL NOT BE ENTIRELY A L[illegible]EFEAST

HOUSE MAY ATTEMPT TO BREAK AGREEMENT SIGNED BY SENATORS

Bill Increasing the Gross Earnings Tax May Test the Compact.

Not Easy to Agree on State-Wide Primary Law's Provisions.

Four Principal House Committees Are Announced By Speaker Dunn.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Is the senate agreement on the two-measure program an impregnable barrier, as its creators intended it to be?

Or is it a fence of straw, as some of the house members believe who, though no more anxious than others to spend a protracted interval in the state capitol, are in favor of a more ambitious program than the senate has laid down?

Practically the whole problem of what the session is going to amount to depends on the answer to those questions.

On the face of it, the senate agreement is tight enough.

Fifty-five out of the sixty-three senators are pledged to oppose all measures except a state-wide primary bill and a corrupt practices act—especially to oppose reapportionment.

For the opposition of Southern Minnesota to reapportionment was the moving spirit which, aided by the gen-

BOB DUNN MAY BE CANDIDATE

Close Friend of Princeton Man Declares for Him for Governor.

St. Paul, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.) — C. H. Warner of Aitkin is out with an interview in the Pioneer Press this morning declaring for R. C. Dunn of Princeton for governor. As Warner is close to Dunn, the interview is taken as an indication that Dunn is considering getting into the race.

SIX SHOT IN ROW IN NEWARK, N. J.

Striking Laborers and Police in Battle—Many Wounded By Missiles.

Newark, N. J., June 5.—At least six persons were shot and many other wounded by missiles in a street battle here today between 150 striking laborers and the police. Five strikers, a policeman and a citizen are at the city hospital, most of them suffering from gunshot wounds.

GOMPERS IS NOT BLAMED

No Knowledge of Bribery of McNamara Jurors Is Laid to Him.

Assistant Prosecutor in Darrow Trial Explains the Evidence.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 5.—That the prosecution merely desired to place in evidence the fact, alleged by them, that certain sums of money aggregating about $200,000 had been sent to attorneys for the McNamara defense was stated today by W. J. Ford, assistant district attorney, in discussing the placing on the stand of H. H. Flather, cashier of a Washington, D. C., bank. Mr. Ford said that the calling of Flather as a witness was not an attempt to incriminate others with Clarence Darrow, now on trial for the

ATTEMPT TO THROTTLE IT

Attack on Reapportionment in House By Southern Minnesota.

After Aggressive Talks By Knapp and Others, Motion Defeated.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.) — Southern Minnesota made an attempt to throttle reapportionment in the house this morning and failed, 60 to 48. Representative Davies of Watonwan county, an opponent of reapportionment at the regular session, moved to reconsider the vote of yesterday, adopting the house legislative program, stating that he did so in order to cut out reapportionment. Representatives Knapp of Chisholm, Fowler of Minneapolis and Campbell of Minneapolis made a hard fight against the motion, and won. Representative Knapp said:

"I am for reapportionment because it is fair and honest. The question before the house is not the merits of reapportionment or of any reapportionment bill, but whether or not this house shall refuse reapportionment even a decent hearing. I rise to protest against this procedure, because I should be a traitor to Northern Minnesota if I failed to do so. There is no use in considering the fact that this is an inopportune time for an extra session. The subject is included in the governor's call for an extra session, and it ought not to be throttled. If the time has come when a measure like this is to be denied a fair hearing, then the day has arrived when a session of the Minnesota legislature, regular or special, is a farce."

Mr. Knapp's aggressive talk was

COURT CLEARS YOUNG HALSTEAD

Directs Verdict of Not Guilty in Trial for Embezzlement.

Washington, June 5.—The trial of Griffin Halstead, son of the late Murat Halstead, and a former broker, charged by Hubert I. Klinepeter, a chauffeur for Mrs. Mark Hanna, with the embezzlement or larceny of a $5,000 stock certificate, came to an end today in the District of Columbia supreme court when Justice Barnard ordered the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty. It was claimed Klinepeter lost the money in a regular brokerage transaction.

SHERMAN SAYS IT WILL BE TAFT

Vice President Predicts Convention Majority of Near 100.

Washington, June 5.—Vice President Sherman at the White House today declared he believed President Taft would be nominated by the Republican national convention.

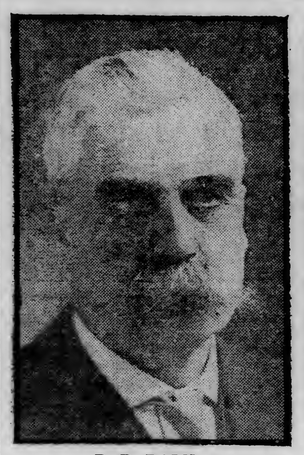

"I have not the slightest doubt that Mr. Taft will be nominated," he said. "He will have at least 100 more delegates than Roosevelt. I would not like to name the exact figure, but that will be near Mr. Taft's majority. That is my real opinion, too, not a mere boast."

CHAMBERMAIDS JOIN IN STRIKE

New York Waiters Get Encouragement in Their Trouble.

New York, June 5.—Cheered by the fact that a few chambermaids have joined the movement, the striking waiters continued their fight today for shorter hours, more pay and recognition of the union. Employers assert that the strike is losing ground and that many waiters are applying for their old positions. The strike leaders deny this, and point not only to the chambermaids' walkout, but to the recruits from the clubs who joined the strike yesterday. Among these were seventy-five waiters in the New York stock exchange luncheon club. Only two veteran captains remained at work.

ROOSEVELT AND WILSON

South Dakota Presidential Primary Returns Come in Slowly.

Sterling Leads for Senator Over Gamble—Byrne for Governor.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 5.—With the principal local interest in yesterday's primary election in South Dakota centered in the race for governor, precinct judges gave their first attention to the count for that office, with the result that less than half of the 1,500 precincts had reported today on the presidential preference.

These returns, however, indicated that Former President Roosevelt will have the whole of the South Dakota delegation to the Chicago convention, and Governor Woodrow Wilson has won out over Champ Clark for the Democratic delegation by about 2 to 1.

That Col. Roosevelt will have a plurality of several thousand is apparently assured. President Taft seems to be third in the Republican race, Senator La Follette having polled a substantial vote which in some counties exceeded that of Roosevelt.

Taft and Roosevelt Managers Each Claim Certainty of Victory.

Chicago, June 5.—Congressman William B. McKinley and Senator Joseph M. Dixon, respectively directors of the Taft and Roosevelt forces, signalized their advent today in the convention city by issuing statements containing diametrically opposite "certainties."

The Taft leader, in a formal statement, said:

"President Taft will be the nominee of the convention with approximately 600 votes on the first ballot."

Senator Dixon, in an equally positive statement, declared:

"The nomination of President Taft is physically and humanly impossible with the delegates elected."

Congressman McKinley added that the personal presence of Col. Roosevelt in the convention would "only make the outcome more certain against him."

Dixon Is Confident.

Senator Dixon insisted that the Roosevelt men "absolutely control the convention without taking the con-

U. S. MARINES LAND IN CUBA

Four Hundred and Fifty Men Are Sent to Protect Property.

Washington Will Order Four Battleships to the Island.

Caimanera, Cuba, June 5.—Four hundred and fifty American marines under command of Col. Lucas were landed this morning at Deses Point, close to Caimanera, from which point they proceeded by train for Guantanamo City. The announced purpose of the movement is to guard American property, and not for intervention.

Will Send Battleships.

Washington, June 5. — After a conference between President Taft and Secretary Knox at the White House today it was announced that the government immediately would dispatch four American battleships to Cuban waters.

Answered Calls for Help.

The marines referred to in the Caimanera report are said here to be a portion of those that had been in camp at the United States naval station on Guantanamo bay since the arrival there of the cruiser Prairie a week ago.

OHIO STICKS TO UNIT RULE

Harmon Will Have All Her Forty-Eight Votes at Baltimore.

Congressman Cox Nominated for Governor By the Democrats.

Convention Hall, Toledo, Ohio, June 5.—Governor Judson Harmon today won Ohio's forty-eight votes for presidential nomination at the Democratic national convention at Baltimore, under the unit rule. The Ohio state convention by 597 to 355 adopted a resolution instructing the delegates to vote solidly for Harmon at Baltimore, until released by him or by a majority of the delegation.

Congressman James M. Cox received the nomination for governor.

The convention adopted the report of the committee on credentials, seating ten Harmon delegates and ten anti-Harmon men from Miami county, which was the only contest reported. There was talk of electing twelve delegates at large to the national convention, with half a vote each, instead of the six provided for in the call.

Won in Preliminary.

Harmon defeated his political foes in the preliminary session last evening by organizing the body with George S. Long of Troy, private secretary to the governor, as permanent chairman.

Senator Pomerene, who was slated for permanent chairman, was defeated in the committee on permanent organization by a vote of 10 to 7 after he had expressed himself as opposed to the unit rule.

SLIDE ON POLE IN SLEEP IS FATAL

Chicago Fireman Found Dying on the Fire Hall Floor.

Chicago, June 5. — While asleep and yet attempting to slide down the brass pole in a fire engine house, Lieut. Joseph T. Ealak fell from the second floor of his quarters today, and was killed. There had been no alarm of fire and the circumstances indicated that the lieutenant, while in a somnambulistic state, believed that he was rsponding to a call of fire.

The strange fall had no witness and the unconscious lieutenant lay for some time on the cement floor before he was discovered. He was removed to a hospital, where he died.

The dove of peace will not be perched over the Democratic state convention at the Auditorium tomorrow. Wilson sentiment predominates in the state and there is no doubt of the delegation to Baltimore being instructed for the New Jersey governor. Other questions to be considered will develop contests, however, and will give opportunity for a display of oratory, and perhaps of heat.

Chief among the contests is that between F. B. Lynch, national committeeman, and his political opponents, who will throw their support to T. T. Hudson of Duluth for the indorsement. Mr. Hudson this morning announced his candidacy for committeeman and he will have the support of the Ramsey county delegation, which is leading the fight on Mr. Lynch. The combination in opposition to Lynch includes D. W. Lawler of St. Paul, James Bennett, Jr., of St. Cloud, H. L. Buck of Winona and what is known as the Bryan wing of the St. Louis county delegation.

Mr. Lynch arrived in Duluth this morning. He and his friends are prepared to put up a vigorous contest and are satisfied that they will win. The opposition to Mr. Lynch is composed of some fiery elements, which will not be downed until they have touched off some fireworks. Therein lies the cer-

KENYON'S LEAD IN IOWA GROWS

Majority Over Lafe Young Likely to Pass the 70,000 Mark.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 5.—Belated returns today from Monday's statewide primary election only increase Senator W. S. Kenyon's majority over Lafayette Young, editor of the Des Moines Daily Capital, for the Republican nomination for United States senator. Although returns are incomplete, the junior Iowa senator's majority probably will pass the 70,000 mark.

George W. Clarke's plurality in the gubernatorial contest is more than 30,000 over his Republican opponents, P. G. Holden of Ames and A. V. Proudfoot of Indianola. Proudfoot received a comparatively small vote. E. G. Dunn of Mason City claims the Democratic nomination for governor by a majority of 20,000 over John T. Hamilton of Cedar Rapids.

The present Iowa delegation to congress will be candidates for re-election. A special election will be held in the eleventh district to nominate a candidate for congress to succeed Congressman E. H. Hubbard, who died suddenly yesterday after having been renominated. In many congressional districts the Democrts were unopposed for nomination.

D. W. Hamilton of Sigourney was unopposed on the Democratic ticket for the nomination for United States senator.

W. L. Harding of Sioux City was nominated for lieutenant governor on the Republican ticket while G. A. Kenderin of Iowa City was the unopposed Democratic nominee.

Polk County Farmer Dies From Resulting Excitement.

Crookston, Minn., June 5.—Simeon Vaudrin, a well known farmer who has resided four and a half miles east of Gentilly for thirty years, died suddenly after but a few hours' illness Monday afternoon from heart failure brought on by excitement and over exertion.

He had a corn planter hitched behind his wagon and after passing through a gate got out to shut it, when the team started and he feared they would get cut on the wire fence and ran some distance. He stopped the team, drove home and went to bed feeling very ill. At noon he lost consciousness and died shortly afterwards, before Dr. Norman reached his bedside.

He was 58 years of age and leaves a wife and a large family. One son, Simeon, resides in Crookston, driving one of the street sprinklers.

Dragging River for Couple.

Channing, Mich., June 5.—A big searching party is dragging the Michigamme river for Mr. and Mrs. Bert Gribble, a Crystal Falls couple, who disappeared last Tuesday. They were traced to the river at Channing, where it is believed they took a raft to Crystal Falls, fishing on the way. A partly submerged raft and fishing poles have been found.

COUNTY WILL HELP WIDOW ESTABLISH HOMESTEAD RIGHTS

St. Louis county will not turn a deaf ear to the appeal of Mrs. John Buskala, aged 44, a widow and mother of six, who, unless she receives aid of some sort, will lose her homestead rights in a 160-acre farm in Alango township, this county.

John Buskala, her husband, who died on April 24 last, left no property except homestead rights. The family has been in hard circumstances since his death and is said to be destitute of even the bare necessities of life.

Town supervisors at Alango became acquainted with the facts in the case last week and wrote to County Auditor Odin Halden concerning the woman. They stated that she was without means to support herself and children, that credit at the stores had been declined and recommended that the county give them help.

Auditor Halden referred the case to Poor Agent Shogran, who, since he has been investigating the case, has received a letter from the woman in which she wants to know if the county can help her so that she can keep her residence of the homestead as required by federal law in proving up the land.

Mrs. Buskala wrote that in order to establish her rights and secure a title of the land from the government she would have to remain on the farm for the next three years. Since she has been thrown on her own resources, she says, she finds herself and children objects of charity.

Of the six children in the Buskala family, the oldest is 18 years old and the youngest 2. The children are: Emil, 18; Mary, 16; Annie, 14; Hilja, 6; Arvid, 3, and William, 2. Her husband, she says, came to this country thirteen years ago from Finland and at the time of his death was a naturalized citizen of the United States.

The Buskala family has relatives residing at Winton and Ely, but they are not able to contribute to the support of the family, at least as long as they reside on the homestead. Mrs. Buskala does not wish to be removed to the poor house as she would then in all probability lose her homestead rights.

Agent Shogran has made arrangements to furnish the family at once with the necessities of life and is working out a plan whereby the county may be able to contribute enough to the support of the woman and children so that they will not be obliged to abandon the land.

Alango township is in 62-19, a few miles from Angora. The nearest postoffice is Wagoner.

PURSE SNATCHER BOUND OVER TO GRAND JURY

Larry Wilkes, the 18-year-old purse snatcher, who was arrested yesterday after a chase by Mrs. M. B. Glockle of 523 West Sixth street, whose purse he had grabbed and made off with, was arraigned late yesterday afternoon in municipal court. He told Chief Troyer that he would plead guilty but as no plea can be entered in the lower court, he was bound over to the grand jury and is now in the county jail. It may be that he will plead guilty before one of the judges of district court before the grand jury convenes, and receive his sentence without the preliminary maneuvers.

John Faschingbauer, his 16-year-old accomplice, was turned over to the juvenile authorities and his case will be looked into. Wilkes told the officers that he has traveled all over the country "bumming" his way.

Mrs. Glockle, the erstwhile victim of the robbery, says that her satchel contained an opal ring, a diamond ring and a small amount of change. She feels very sorry for the boys.

PUT ISMAY UNDER FIRE

Britons Get Him to Say He Knew Passengers Were Left on Titanic.

Report That White Star Rejected Extra Life Boats Is Made.

London, June 5.—J. Bruce Ismay, president of the International Mercantile Marine, resumed his testimony today before the British board of trade inquiry in the loss of the steamer Titanic. For the most part his replies were "I don't know," or "That's outside my province."

Toward the close of the session Sir Rufus Isaacs, the attorney general, again reverted to Ismay's personal conduct at the time of the disaster, which is perhaps more discussed than any other detail.

"You knew you had not boats on the Titanic to accommodate all the passengers and crew?" asked Sir Rufus.

"I did," Ismay replied without hesitation.

"So that if all the boats had left the ship there would still be persons on board?" pressed the attorney general.

"Yes."

Knew Passengers Were Left.

"When the last boat left the Titanic you must have known that a number of passengers were left on board?"

"I did."

"Where were these passengers when your boat left?"

"I can only assume that they had gone to the aft part of the ship. I really was not thinking about them."

Discussing the light seen in the distance by the survivors, Ismay said his impression was the lights were not those of the steamer Californian, because they were dull white.

Lord Merzey, the head of the court, asked:

"Have you any doubt that the Californian did see the signals from the Titanic?"

"Judging from the evidence I have not," said Ismay, who then explained that the matter of providing or not providing the ship's officers with marine glasses was left to the judgment of the commanders.

"Rejected Additional Lifeboats."

The question whether the designer of the Titanic had provided for forty lifeboats caused a long discussion. When asked for the facts Ismay responded: "I have no recollection."

Sir Robert Finlay, representing the White Star line, said the fact was that the board of trade was debating at the time the matter of requesting ships to carry more lifeboats. The White Star company discussed a plan for meeting such requirements. A detail was the question of the davits which could launch four boats.

Thomas Scanlan, M. P., attorney for the Seamen's union, declared he had evidence from a confidential source that the designs for the Titanic provided for forty lifeboats and that the company rejected them.

The incident of the wireless message received by Capt. Smith and which he handed to Ismay, containing a warning of the icefield ahead, was again thrashed out. When Sir Refus asked if the witness did not consider the report of ice serious, Ismay replied:

"It didn't concern me. I thought the captain would take any steps necessary to avoid it."

Criticized the Company.

Lord Merzey read from the American hydrographic and Nova Scotian reports of warnings covering the Titanic route, that an icefield probably would be encountered, and laid stress upon the word "probably." He made the comment that it was extraordinary that great shipping companies should agree to choose such a route.

"SWAT THE FLY" CAMPAIGN

Started Too Late This Year —Posters in All Schools of City.

The crusade against the festive fly has opened, but so far is not on an elaborate scale. So far as a public movement is concerned the extent reached is the hanging of elaborate posters in schools of the city, both public and parochial, which will be a daily reminder to pupils to swat the fly.

The campaign this year started too late for an organized movement, but it is hoped that with the start given this year and the interest that it is expected will be aroused, the city will be in a situation next year to go about the fight with the pest in a systematic way. Then districts will be established as in larger cities, and prizes offered for the largest number of flies killed in each district. This year that cannot be done.

LID IS CLAMPED ON FEVER EPIDEMIC

Scare Still Exists at Lakeside, But Danger From Contagion Is Over.

That the lid is clamped down on the threatened scarlet fever epidemic at Lakeside is the assertion of the city health authorities. Dr. Fahey, city health commissioner, says that parents who have been keeping their children away from the Lakeside school, fearing contagion, may rest easy and may safely send their children to school again. The school has been fumigated and every measure taken to stamp out the disease with the result that it is now connned to the few cases—six in all—which started the scare.

The doctor says that the fault does not lie with the health department but with the parents who failed to call medical aid when their children took sick. When the disease first developed no report was made to the health department until it had gone pretty well along and then heroic measures had to be taken. But the danger is now passed, it is asserted.

WORK IS NOW PLENTIFUL

All of West Duluth's Industries Are in Full Operation.

Estimated That 2,500 Men Are Employed in Mills and Factories.

About 2,500 men are at work at the present time in the various factories, mills and furnaces in West Duluth. The number is estimated as being the largest in the history of West Duluth.

With the opening of the Zenith Furnace yesterday morning and the Virginia & Rainy Lake mill early last month, two of the largest concerns are now in full operation with day and night shifts. The Alger-Smith mill is employing 400 men in two shifts and from the present supply of logs expects to run well into next December. The Virginia mill also plans to run into the winter season before closing down.

Following is a list of the larger factories, mills and furnaces in West Duluth, giving the approximate number of men at work in each shop at the present time: Zenith Furnace company, 500; Virginia & Rainy Lake mill, 300; Alger-Smith mill, 400; National Iron company, 200; Standard Box & Lumber company, 65; Zenith Box & Lumber company, 60; American Carbolite company, 100; Duluth-Superior Dredging company, 25; Imperial Iron works, 50, and the Nelson Sash & Door company, 25. There are a number of smaller factories which employ from 10 to 25 men throughout the year. These and the men at work on the Grassy Point bridge will bring the approximate total up to 2,500.

MINNESOTA PIONEER DIES

C. D. Marble, One of Duluth's Oldest Citizens, Passes Away.

Clarendon Dix Marble, 82 years old, who had been a resident of West Duluth for the past twenty-three years and one of the pioneers of Minnesota, died last evening at his home, 1117 North Fifty-seventh avenue west, after an illness of two weeks.

He was born in Dixfield, Me., in 1828 and was one of a family of fourteen children. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Willoughby of South Braintree, Mass., and two twin brothers, Densmore and Dennison Marble of Massachusetts. He leaves two daughters, Miss Lydia Marble, who is in charge of the West Duluth branch of the public library, and Miss Hattie Marble, also of West Duluth.

Mr. Marble came to Minnesota in 1866, living at Minneapolis for five years. He then returned to Maine, coming to West Duluth later in 1889. He was in the real estate business for several years with his son, L. L. Marble, who died here several years ago. The deceased was a member of Euclid Lodge No. 198, A. F. and A. M. The body will be taken, this evening, to Bixfield, Me., where the funeral will be held from the home of his brother, D. S. Marble.

CONVENTION OF SOCIALISTS

Nearly 100 Members of State Society in Session at Smithville.

Nearly 100 members of the state Finnish Socialist society are in session this week at the Finnish school at Smithville. The members are holding their annual state convention.

Prof. Sirola, head of the Finnish school, is in charge of the local convention and is directing the meetings. The convention met Monday and will end with the election of officers Saturday morning. A banquet for all the delegates will be held Friday evening. Prof. Sirola just returned from a trip to the East, where he visited relatives.

Among the questions that are being taken up are the presidential situation, the Socialist campaign, and the membership campaign. The organization is national and comprises branches in every state in the union. There are about 15,000 members in the Finnish National Socialist society, which has its headquarters in New York city.

REOPEN SEATTLE CITIZENSHIP CASE

Wickersham Disagrees With Decision Made By Judge Hanford.

Washington, June 5.—Disagreeing with the decision of Federal Judge Hanford of Seattle, Wash., depriving Leonard Oleson of his citizenship because he is a Socialist, Attorney General Wickersham has instructed the United States attorney at Seattle to assist Oleson in reopening the case to seek a reversal of the decision.

The action of the attorney general was almost simultaneous with vigorous protests by Representative Berger of Wisconsin on behalf of the Socialist party. Mr. Berger discussed the question today with President Taft and Secretary Nagel.

Judge Hanford decided that Oleson could not attach himself to the principles of the Constitution of the United States because he was a member of the Socialist party.

It is said an appeal probably will be taken direct to the supreme court if Judge Hanford refuses to reverse his decision.

Representative Berger announced that he would offer an impeachment resolution in the house tomorrow.

Mr. Berger has a letter from Attorney General Wickersham stating that the department of justice was "of the opinion that a gross injustice had been done to Mr. Oleson."

SHE MISSED HER SMOKE.

Chief Sensation of Old Woman's First Train Ride.

Faribault, Minn., June 5.—Mrs. Dennis Debault, aged 82 years, living north of this city, recently had her first ride on a railway train when she rode from Faribault to Comus, a distance of about six miles. She enjoyed the ride very much, but thought it a very long time to wait for a smoke, for she smokes her pipe almost constantly. Mrs. Debault came to this county from Canada about sixty years ago, when only a few Indian tents marked the location of the present city of Faribault. She is healthy and active and equal to many young girls in performing household work. She never complains of being ill or tired and never takes a nap in the afternoon.

FIFTY MORE CHILDREN ENTER THE WEST END GARDEN CONTEST

It was announced yesterday that the prize garden contest of the West End Commercial club will end Sept. 1. At that time the prizes for the following best gardens will be awarded to any child under 15 years of age: flower, $5; strawberry, $5; potato, $5; vegetable, $5 and best kept garden, $10.

Yesterday afternoon William L. Anderson, secretary of the club, received word that fifty children of the Bryant school have entered the contest and are to begin at once working on their gardens. This is the second school to enter, the Ensign school having entered fifty names about two weeks ago. To date nearly 150 applications have been received by Mr. Anderson.

The work of cleaning up the West end and beautifying this end of the city is now being taken up by the adults as well as the children. The older people have entered into the plan and the aim of the Commercial club to make the West end the "homecroft section" of Duluth, promises to become a reality. The many alleys, yards and vacant lots are all being cleaned, following the request made recently by the members of the Commercial club.

L. A. Simonson, one of the members of the committee at the head of the prize garden plan, is instructing a number of the children in the art of keeping a strawberry patch under proper cultivation. Mr. Simonson has volunteered to give instructions to any child desiring to enter the contest and is willing to assist in setting out the plants.

Dr. O. A. Oredson, father of the movement in the West end and chairman of the committee representing the Commercial club, said yesterday that fully 300 children will have entered the contest by the middle of this month. "As soon as the schools have closed for the summer," said Dr. Oredson, "I expect a large number to join the present 150 in the contest. It will be a great pastime for the children during their summer vacation, besides being healthful, practical and instructive."

CHILD'S FALL MAY BE FATAL

Little Agnes Mehrman Seriously Injured While Playing on Porch.

As the result of a fall of twenty-seven feet from the porch of her home on to a cement sidwalk, Agns Mehrman, the 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mehrman, 1723 New street, is now lying at St. Mary's hospital in a critical condition. The child's skull was slightly fractured and her recovery at present is doubtful.

The accident occurred at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, while Agnes and sevral of her playmates were playing on the porch of the Mehrman home. The children were watching a workman carrying some boards through a window of the home, when Agnes leaned over too far, falling to the ground.

The cries of her companions attracted her mother and several neighbors to the scene. Mrs. Mehrman became hysterical and was taken to the hospital with the injured child. Dr. J. W. Ekblad was called and he found that the child had sustained two fractures of the skull, besides other bruises and probable internal injuries.

Last evening the hospital attendants were in doubt as to the child's recovery and did not expect her to live until this morning. It was larned through one of the atendants this morning that the child's condition is slightly better and that her recovery is probable, should no complications follow. The exact nature of the internal injuries could not be learned last evening on account of the weak condition of the child. It is probable that an examinath will be made today.

PROPERTY OWNERS WANT PAVING JOB RUSHED.

Residents and property owners on Twenty-first avenue west are pleased with the action of the council in ordering the board of public works to receive bids for the paving of the avenue from the railroad tracks to Third street.

The engineering department has made the estimate on the paving of the street as follows: For brick, $25,500, and for sandstone blocks, $30,178. The property owners are satisfied with the estimate and are now urging the board of public works to hurry the pavement. In all probability the street will be paved by this fall, according to one of the members of the board.

The agitation for the paving of the street began last fall, when the street car company began building its cut-off along the avenue from Superior street to Third street. At this time the property owners were all against the paving of the street and the necessary signatures for the petition could not be secured by those behind the movement. Following the recent election when the third amendment was adopted, allowing for yearly payments on street improvements, the property owners readily signed the petition for the pavement.

With the new cut-off in operation and the traffic on the avenue practically trebled, the residents have begun to realize the necessity for a pavement. Should the proposed plan of paving First street from Twenty-first avenue to Vernon street materialize, a paved road from the center of the city to West Duluth would be the result. The West End Commercial club is now working on the paving of First street and it is probable that petitions will be circulated some time this summer.

Linen Shower.

Miss Mae Monaghan of 413 North Twenty-fourth avenue west entertained at a linen shower last evening in honor of Miss Helen Koneczny, who will become the bride of Melvin Colman Sundby Tuesday evening, June 18. The decorations were apple blossoms and hearts. The evening was spent in music and games, favors being won by the Misses Mae Campbell and Ceeil Thomas.

Refreshments were served the latter part of the evening to the following guests: Mrs. P. H. Gallagher, Mrs. J. Campbell, Mrs. Matt Koneczny, Mrs. George Wetterhahn, and Misses Eva O'Neil, Florence Tamlyn, Cecil Thomas, Mae Campbell, Mae Nolan, Alice Nolan, Lydia Von Drashek, Minnie Kramer, Jennie Smith, Loretta Reilly, Ida Reilly, Grayce Flood, Lillian Monaghan, Mary Polski, Pearl Sundby, Asbedell Ryan, Anna Knutson, Ellen Anderson and Mae Monaghan.

Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Olsen of 1322 West Fourth street entertained a number of their friends last evening in honor of their first wedding anniversary. The evening was spent in music and games, after which refreshments were served to the following guests: Messrs. and Mesdames Albert Olson, William Weston, Axel Erickson, N. JONES CASE IS EXPLAINED

Charges of Corruption of Court System Made to President.

Politics Cuts Big Figure in Plea in Land Fraud Affair.

Washington, June 5.—The causes which controlled President Taft in granting an unconditional pardon to Willard N. Jones, convicted in the famous Oregon land fraud cases, became known today, and it was learned that it was based on the same charges of unfair and improper methods by the United States government's prosecution of the alleged frauds which stirred the country six years ago.

Franklin P. Mays and Hamilton H. Hendricks are seeking pardons on the ground that they likewise were denied their constitutional rights. Mays, indicted with the late Senator Mitchell and Former Representative Hermann, was convicted of conspiracy and sentenced to four months imprisonment and to pay a fine of $10,000. Hendricks was convicted of subornation of perjury and sentenced to thirteen months and to pay a fine of $500. Consideration of their appeals for executive clemency will be based on the investigation which resulted in Jones' pardon. These cases have not yet reached the president.

"Reign of Terror."

The "Oregon land fraud prosecutions were conducted almost wholly along political lines," and "a veritable reign of terror existed" were the charges submitted to Attorney General Wickersham in a brief by Harry H. Schwartz, former chief of the field division of the general land office, and James S. Smith, attorneys for Jones in the pardon proceedings.

The methods of Detective William J. Burns, who developed the government's case, and others of the prosecution were severely attacked in the brief. The whole jury box list of over 600 names, from which the grand and petit juries were drawn, was determined and selected, it was alleged, by the government prosecutors and detective, and the political enemies and assistants of Jones, along political lines, "with the purpose and result of securing men who were prejudiced and who would convict."

Intimidated Witnesses.

The brief also charges that witnesses were intimidated into giving false testimony against Jones under the threat of indictment; that witnesses were so threatened by a member of the grand jury and by government detectives in the presence of their families; and that in various cases then being tried, numerous persons were indicted and compelled to give evidence against other defendants, not true in fact, and that thereafter such indictments were dismissed.

It was alleged that Burns and the political enemies of Jones and other defendants "investigated, interviewed and then selected or rejected men in making up the jury bor in 1905" from which the Jones jury was drawn. The government, it was charged, procured copies of the jury lists before they were placed in the box. Alleged records of the reports of government detectives or agents upon the qualifications of the men whose names were on this list, are cited. Some of these are alleged to refer to the politics and religion of prospective jurors, and contained such descriptions as "convict Christ" and "yellow dog Democrat who would convict any Republican on sight."

"Most Obscene Epithet."

Men regarded as unfavorable, it was charge, were referred to by "that most obscene of all obscene epithets."

The jury box was filled on Aug. 17, 1905, on which date, the brief alleged, Detective Burns sent the following telegram to W. Scott Smith, private secretary to the late Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock:

"Jury commissioners cleared out old box from which trial jurors are selected and put in 600 new names, every one of which was investigated before they were placed in the box. This confidential grand jury was drawn today, and is composed of splendid men in whom we have the very greatest faith."

As an instance of how Jones was "jobbed" into accepting as trial jurors men who had alread expressed themselves as being convinced of the defendant's guilt, and as of being for conviction, the brief charges that the government prosecutors indicted a man jointly with Jones and "immediately put that man on the secret pay roll of the government and promised him immunity."

"Poor Devil in Their Power."

"Having the poor devil in their power," the brief continues, "they caused him to lie to Jones about the supposed fairness of the trial jurors and to induce Jones to accept men who had expressed belief in his guilt and had expressed themselves for his conviction. Also, monthly for almost a year, these government men submitted a voucher signed by this dummy defendant, and with the funds so received, paid him $3 per day for his duplicity and daily betrayal of men who in good faith believed him in jeopardy and were jointly with him seeking to defend themselves.

"By joining Jones' indictment and trial with a dummy defendant who betrayed his defense, his witnesses and his attorneys and secrets to the prosecution, "the brief declares that the government took an unjust, unconscionable and unlawful advantage."

Charge Political Plot.

"The prosecution believed or pretended to believe," the brief declared, "that it was necessary to destroy the wing of the Republican party then in control in Oregon, known as the Mitchell faction. To accomplish that destruction, Detective William J. Burns, Inspector Thomas B. Neuhausen and a detective force were employed, originally to secure evidence, but later this force of men, aided by a large number of Democratic and anti-Mitchell politicians, who hoped to, and all of whom did, profit by the destruction of the Republican party in Oregon, perfected an organization whose activities included from making federal judges and United States senators and filling jury boxes down to using public funds to bribe a joint defendant into driving this petitioner into accepting prejudiced jurors."

Speechless For Thanks

Mena, Ark.—"I find Cardui to be all you represent," writes Mrs. H. B. York, of this city. "I suffered from womanly ailments, for nearly two years, before I tried Cardui I have been so relieved since taking it. I cannot say enough in its praise. It has done me a world of good, and I recommend Cardui to all women." Cardui is over 50 years old, and the demand is greater today than ever. Cardui is the standard, tonic medicine, for women of every age. Would you like to be well and strong? Then take Cardui. Its record shows that it will help you. Begin today. Why wait?

WORD COMPLICATION PUZZLES OFFICERS

Volk Street Railway Franchise Jumbled Up With Technicalities.

Granted that there have been cases of insanity brought on by poring over puzzle pictures, pigs in clover and other devices to twist the human thinker, warning has been given from the city hall to the aldermen to be careful in studying out the status quo of the matter of the Volk franchise for a street railway line to New Duluth. Two ordinances were introduced in the council last Monday night to cinch the repeal of that franchise although it had been repealed some time before, and again restored to good standing.

The franchise was granted to A. C. Volk & Co. in 1903 but on Aug. 19, 1907, an ordinance was introduced repealing the franchise. Then on Jan. 6, 1908, the ordinance was passed repealing the repealing ordinance of August, 1907, thus restoring the rights of the company. However, on Jan. 7, following this restoration by the council A. C. Volk & Co. sent to the city a communication waiving all rights to the franchise and surrendering the same. The ordinance restoring the rights was approved on the following day and on the 10th of the month the ordinance was published, thereby making the restoration effective. It then became a question as to where the franchise "was at."

Last Monday evening an ordinance was introduced, the preamble of which reads as follows:

"An ordinance to repeal an ordinance entitled 'An ordinance to repeal an ordinance entitled "An ordinance granting to A. C. Volk & Co. and assigns the right to construct, maintain and operate an electric street railway in the city of Duluth, etc.'"

None of the city officers except City Attorney Carmichael could figure out the complication and all suffered from headaches.

Mr. Carmichael says that even in view of the excessive play on words it simply means that when the most recent ordinance is passed, the local traction company will have no technicality in its way for the construction of its proposed extenston to New Duluth.

HUBBARD FUNERAL TO BE HELD FRIDAY.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 5.—E. H. Hubbard, congressman from the Eleventh Iowa district, who died suddenly yesterday morning, will be buried Friday afternoon. Services will be held at the residence, 2804 Jennings street, with Rev. Wallace M. Hamilton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiating.

Latest returns from the Eleventh district show that Mr. Hubbard carried the district by 2,500 majority over George C. Scott.

GRAND FORKS EXERCISES.

Thirty-Four Students Will Get High School Diplomas.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 5.—(Special to The Lerald.)—Thirty-four students will receive diplomas of graduation tomorrow from the Grand Forks high school. Supt. J. DIABETES

Treatment That Costs Nothing If It Fails to Benefit.

Diabetes has long been considered an incurable disease, and the only hope held out to patients has been to prolong their years by abstemious living. A newly discovered plant in Mexico called Diabetol herb has been found to be a specific in the treatment of diabetes, quickly reducing the specific gravity and sugar, restoring the weight and building up the system.

The treatment is very inexpensive; $1.00 worth of the herb will last two weeks and will remove the worst symptoms in the most aggravated cases. Call at our store and see the proofs and get a free booklet of diet lists, showing the proper foods for diabetes. Boyce Drug Store.

UNITED NORWEGIAN LUTHERANS' MEET

National Gathering of Organization Begins at Fargo June 6.

Fargo, N. D., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.) — Tomorrow Fargo will see the opening of the national convention of the United Norwegian Lutherans of America. It is estimated there are over 2,000 visitors already in the city and that number will be increased 500 daily. The atendance Saturday and Sunday may reach 4,000.

The presence of one of the bishops of the church from Norway is a big feature of the meeting. Prominent churchmen and laymen from all parts of the United States are in attendance. North and South Dakota and Minnesota are the strongholds of the organization and it is expected that several thousand Dakotans who have not formerly attended the annual sessions will take in the big religious meetings during a part of the eight days it is to remain in session.

COMBERS STRIKE IN THE WOOLEN MILLS.

Lawrence, Mass., June 5.—About 300 combers at the Washington mills of the American Woolen company struck today in sympathy with 400 strikers in the combining and carding room. The strike originated over the discharge of an operative who belongs to the Industrial Workers of the World.

WOMAN HAD NERVE.

North Dakota Matron Drives Horse After Bad Runaway.

Maxbass, N. D., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—After she had been thrown from her carriage, and severely bruised about the face and head, Mrs. C. M. Cosgrove of Hurd, still nervous and badly shaken up, ordered her disabled buggy patched up and her spirited horse hitched to it for the return drive home. She said she had driven the horse for five years without an accident and she meant to cure him of any more runaways. She drove home.

SEEKING MISSING PAIR.

Officers Look for Bagley, Minn., and North Dakota Men.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Local officials search for A. A. Davis of Larimore and H. M. Rounce of Grand Forks, who have disappeared, has been futile. Mr. Davis, who is a member of the legislature, was in Kempton and Arvilla the day following his departure from Larimore.

H. M. Rounce dropped out of sight at Bagley, Minn. It is feared by members of the family that he has met with an accident.

BETTER THAN MEDICINES

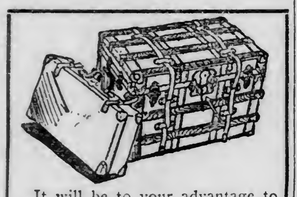

Electricity Is Working Greater Wonders Every Day in Curing Chronic Ailments.

Mr. Charles Hatlund from the Range was driven almost frantic with lumbago when he came to Duluth with a back burned and blistered, trying to get relief from pain in the back which had troubled him several months. When he laid his case before the Electro Medical Doctors, he said: "Not one of the doctors I had has done me any good, tho I spent a great deal of money." It took only one treatment to convince him that Electro Medical Treatments are greater than any medicine in the case of lumbago, usually called kidney trouble. What others could not do in a few months' time, the Electro Medical Doctors accomplished in a few weeks, and today Mr. Hatlund enjoys his health.

Mr. Wm. Carlson, 1920 Missouri ave., Superior, has been suffering from Catarrh and Bronchitis. He had taken a great deal of medicine but failed to get a cure. Electro Medical methods have healed his disease and today he is free from it.

Nearly two hundred people have been cured in Duluth and other towns with this wonderful natural agency. At least two hundred more have applied for Electro Medical treatments, who will come to Duluth later in the summer and make this city their home until cured. The financial conditions of the country are poor and the doctors are making but little money for the stockholders of the corporation; they are living in great hopes that the financial situation will brighten up in the near future and people can take treatments without feeling embarrassed financially.

One of the doctors of the corporation said: "We know that Electro Medicine will win a great victory in this part of the country, because we have cured so many diseases which never before would have been thought to be curable. We are glad to preach a new gospel of health. Electrical treatments are just in their infancy, and we have much to learn as yet, but we feel a great deal nearer our goal in healing diseases with the aid of Electricity, than we ever felt before. If we can cure diseases such as Bright's Disease, Cancer, Tuberculosis of the Joints and Diseases of the Bladder, we feel that we have accomplished a great deal more than we could do before with medicine alone. We find that many people who had doctored for years, failed to get a cure for as simple a disease as Stomach Trouble, Rheumatism, Stricture or Blood Poison; these, however, are among the easiest to cure with Electro Medical methods. In fact, in the long list of chronic diseases, there is hardly one which the Electro Medical Doctors could not guarantee a cure for. Those who are seriously looking to be cured are welcome to a free consultation at the offices of the doctors at No. 26 W. Superior Street. (Next to Gidding's.)

Rosy as a Girl

Summit, N. C.—In a letter received from this place, Mr. J. W. Church, the notary public, says: "My wife had been ailing for nearly 12 years, from female ailments, and at times, was unable to leave the house She suffered agony with her side and back. We tried physicians for years, without relief. After these treatments all failed, she took Cardui, and gained in weight at once. Now she is red and rosy as a school girl." Cardui, as a tonic for women, has brought remarkable results. It relieves pain and misery and is the ideal tonic for young and old. Try it. At druggists.

MACK SURE OF VICTORY

Says People Have Determined to Oust the Republicans.

Democratic National Committee Will Meet June 24.

New York, June 4.—"The Democratic party has several candidates for the presidential nomination, and any one of them is strong enough to defeat either Taft or Roosevelt," remarked Norman E. Mack, chairman of the Democratic national committee, while here on a flying visit.

"If half what Roosevelt and Taft are saying about the Republican party is true, then that party ought to be indicted by the grand jury," Mr. Mack continued. "This country has never witnessed such a spectacle as has been given by President Taft and Col. Roosevelt in the last two months.

"The American people have made up their minds to kick the Republican party out of power, and it doesn't make any difference whether they nominate Taft, Roosevelt or a dark or brown horse."

Meet Woodson Monday.

Chairman Mack will confer with Urey Woodson, secretary of the national committee, next Monday in Baltimore, and on June 18 or 20 the committee on arrangements, of which Mr. Mack is chairman, will meet to select the temporary officers of the Baltimore convention and arrange other details.

The national committee will meet on June 24, the day before the convention, to consider contests and make up the temporary roll. Notifications of contests have been sent to Secretary Woodson in Kentucky and there are three or more minor cases that are to come before the committee from Ohio, Illinois and Washington, D. C.

Will Meet On Schedule.

Chicago, June 5.—Regardless of any possible prolongation of the Republican national convention in Chicago, the Democratic national convention will convene on June 25, in the opinion of Urey Woodson, secretary of the Democratic national committee who was in Chicago yesterday.

"We will meet on schedule time," he said. "In my opinion the Chicago convention will require only the ordinary time. Somebody is going to be nominated like a flash by the Republicans after the contests are disposed of."

ARCHBALD CASE EVIDENCE ENDS

House Committee Will Decide Its Course in Executive Session.

Washington, June 5.—Investigation by the judiciary committee of the house into charges of improper conduct against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court, has been concluded insofar as taking of testimony is concerned. The committee will discuss in executive session the action to be taken.

Judge Archbald declined an opportunity to defend himself by going on the witness stand. The only defense offered was by his attorney, Col. Worthington, who read into the record the judge's statement in court when he imposed the fines of $1,000 on the officials of the wire trust who were indicted.

ADVERTISING MEN HOLD MEETING

Discuss Fake and Legitimate Advertising Following Banquet.

One of the best meetings and dinners of the Duluth Advertising Men's club of the year was held last evening at the Commercial club. Felix Seligman of the Columbia Clothing company presided and addresses were made by H. C. Strong, A. F. Maas and others. Mr. Strong's topic was "The Line Between Fake and Legitimate Advertising." There was an informal discussion among the members following this address.

FAVOR CLARK; BEAT DUBOIS

Majority of Idaho Democrats Refuse to Send Him to Baltimore.

Couer d'Alene, Idaho, Junue 5.—The Idaho state Democratic convention selected sixteen delegates to the Baltimore convention, each with half a vote, instructed for Champ Clark, but Fred T. Dubois, manager of the Clark national campaign, was not among them. The Dubois forces maneuvered for every point, but were defeated at every turn by the determined anti-Dubois majority. The presentation of Dubois' name, with twenty-three others, for places on the delegation, let loose a flood of indorsement and condemnation. In an instant charges and recriminations were flying between the rival factions, and the convention broke into shouts and cheers.

Judge K. L. Perky, a Dubois leader, clearly outlined the fight as "Mormon" and "anti-Mormon" when he proposed as a compromise measure that Dubois and B. P. Miller, D. L. Evans and G. H. Fisher, the candidates of the so-called "Mormon" counties of O'Neida and Bannock, be elected delegates at large by acclamation. This proposal was voted rown, it being charged that the selection of Duboise was as a red flag to a bull to the Democrats of Southeastern Idaho, and that it was useless to expect a Democratic ticket in the state if Dubois was again to become a dominant figure in Idaho politics.

Six for Clark.

Wheeling, W. Va., June 5.—At the delegate conventions held in the five congressional districts of West Virginia yesterday, Speaker Champ Clark secured six instructed delegates in the Second, Third and Fourth districts.

FOSTER CONTEMPT CASE DISMISSED BY COURT.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 5.—Detective Robert J. Foster of Indianapolis, who was charged with contempt of court by the defense in the trial of Clarence S. Darrow, the Chicago attorney, for alleged jury-bribing, has been dismissed by Presiding Judge Willis of the superior court. The dismissal was granted on the ground of insufficient evidence.

GEN. BOOTH ANNOUNCES COMING BLINDNESS.

New York, June 5.—"In a few hours, comrades, I may be under the painful compulsion of announcing that the general is hopelessly blind," are the words of General William Booth in a cablegram from London addressed to all members of the Salvation Army in America.

"If the unexpected blow regarding the loss of my eyes has not actually fallen, as reported by the newspapers," the head of the army says, "it is hovering dangerously near. Instead of the restitution of my sight, which I had hoped for, and which I know you have earnestly prayed for, the doctors tell me I am on the eve of entire blindness."

NEW DREADNOUGHT HAS TWO ACCIDENTS.

Rockland, Me., June 5.—In spite of the fact that she ran on an uncharted reef and injured her hull for a length of nearly fifty feet, the new battleship Arkansas was able to meet all requirements in her speed trials yesterday. She ran at varying speeds, from 10 to 19 knots, and her engines developed 17,000-horse power. Today the ship will go out again for three runs at the contract speed of 20½ knots, and three at full speed.

During the trials the Arkansas met with a second accident, this time to the machinery. The low pressure turbines developed a flaw, and this delayed the trials several hours until the defect could be remedied.

IN PROBATE COURT

In probate court yesterday afternoon at a hearing on claims in the estate of Morris Thomas, a well known timber dealer in the old days of Duluth, Judge Gilpin took under advisement the claim of Dan Duggan, who says he is entitled to $550 for services performed for the late Mr. Thomas in developing a farm in Aitkin county. Duggan was proprietor of the old Windsor hotel in 1906.

Judge Gilpin yesterday appointed Gurine Soldberg guardian of Elmer, Charles, Lawrence and Albert Soldberg, four children who have been left an estate of $7,200, part of which is in St. Louis county, Minn., and part in North Dakota.

The court appointed Leon St. Germain guardian in the matter of the estate of Augustine Pauline Germain, who died here recently, but who left an estate in Germany.

A partial division of the estate of Mary Ash was made by the court, an equal portion of $5,000 being given to Edna J. and Frederick Ash and Louisa I. Ames.

MONTANA CROPS FINE.

Agricultural Expert Lauds Conditions After Trip Over State.

Bozeman, Mont., June 5.—Edwin Willson, agricultural agent for the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railways, is here, after a rapid tour of the chief agricultural district of the state. The winter wheat outlook, he reports, was never better in the recent history of the state. The crop is not at the same advanced stage all over the state, but is uniformly excellent everywhere.

Along the Billings & Northern railroad, and north of Great Falls, it is so far advanced that a good crop for those regions is assured. Rains have been abundant, Mr. Willson says, and the winter season was generally favorable.

EIGHT LOUISIANA VOTES FOR WILSON.

Baton Rouge, La., June 5.—An uninstructed deegaton to the Democratic national convention at Baltimore was elected by the Louisiana state convention. Twelve of the twenty delegates have announced a preference for Speaker Clark, eight being supporters of Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey. Col. Ewing was unanimously re-elected national committeeman.

NEED DOWN TOWN SITES

Dr. Robert Forbes Denounces Churches Which Sell Central Locations.

Says Results of Religious Revivals Are Frequently Disappointing.

Churches which had sold their down-town locations and moved to places farther out of the business centers of cities, merely as a financial move were strenuously denounced in an address delivered last evening at the First Methodist church by Dr. Robert Forbes of Philadelphia, secretary of the home missions and extension board of the Methodist Episcopal churches of America. The address was made at the annual rally of the Methodist Episcopal alliance. There were present about 300, consisting of pastors and other representatives of the various Methodist churches of Duluth.

Dr. Forbes laid great stress on the necessity of down-town churches maintaining their locations in the heart of the city. He said the down-town churches of Duluth had taken the right attitude in regard to this matter. It was necessary for churches to be located in the congested centers of population. He said the Duluth churches, in keeping pace with the growth of the city's population had done exceptionally well.

The speaker said the results of most of the recent religious revival movements had been disappointing. He cited particularly the Men and Religion Forward Movement. This, he said, had created a great deal of fervor and enthusiasm, but had not had the desired effect of bringing men into the churches. The church, he said, needed strong men, who would do their work conscientiously, whether that work lay in the country or in the heart of a great city.

The speaker was presented by Rev. P. K. Copper, the presiding elder, who announced that Bishop John W. Hamilton of Boston, who was also to address the meeting, was not able to be present, having been suddenly called East.

Just before the address, a selection was rendered at the organ by William Hancock. Rev. George Silloway led in the opening prayer. A vocal selection was rendered by a male quartet, consisting of Rev. J. G. Annand, Rev. C. A. Oaten, Rev. W. H. Farrell and Rev. C. W. Emery. At the close of the meeting, the gathering sang the doxology.

Dr. Forbes left this afternoon for the East, where he will again take up his duties as secretary of home missions.

TAKES SUPERIOR POSITION.

North Dakota Rate Expert to Become City Statistician.

Bismarck, N. D., June 5.—Rate Expert James A. Little has tendered his resignation to take effect July 1st, to the board of railroad commissioners. Mr. Little, who is rated throughout the West as a man of exceptional ability, has been offered the position of statistician and industrial commissioner by the city commision of Superior, Wis., and will leave North Dakota to accept this offer, which is in the way of a big advancement.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Activities of Other Municipalities, Which Might or Might Not Be Copied in Duluth.

WITH the idea that the man who fails to obtain employment becomes a charge on the city, while if he secures employment he becomes an aid, Commissioner Maddox of Fort Worth, Tex. will ask that the city commission establish as soon as the city hall repairs are completed, a free city employment agency. Office space for such a department is being provided for in the remodeling of the building, which is now nearing completion. Under the plan suggested by Commissioner Maddox the bureau is to act for men and women alike without any charge. The expense, it is said, will be nominal.

The "discovery" of the Fort Worth commissioner was anticipated long ago by Duluth. Largely through the efforts of the local labor unions and sympathizers, this city some years ago established a municipal employment bureau and opened headquarters in a store room on the Michigan side of the Manhattan building. Almost from its beginning the bureau was a success, for working men realized that they could obtain jobs through its sources free of charge and that authentic information would be given them. The idea started by Duluth took such hold upon the state at large that shortly after the municipal bureau was established here the state organized such a bureau in the leading cities of the state so that the Duluth bureau was merged into that of the state and is now being operated by the commonwealth.

Joseph Burke, local manager, says that locally, at least, the bureau is a complete success and is doing an enormous business. Business has increased to such an extent of late that the bureau had to leave its old quarters on Fifth avenue west and take up new and larger ones in the Lonsdale building at the corner of Third avenue west and Michigan street.

Mr. Burke says that jobs are going begging and that he can place many more men.

HYDROPLANE AT ASHLAND.

Fourth of July Committee Prepares for Novel Celebration.

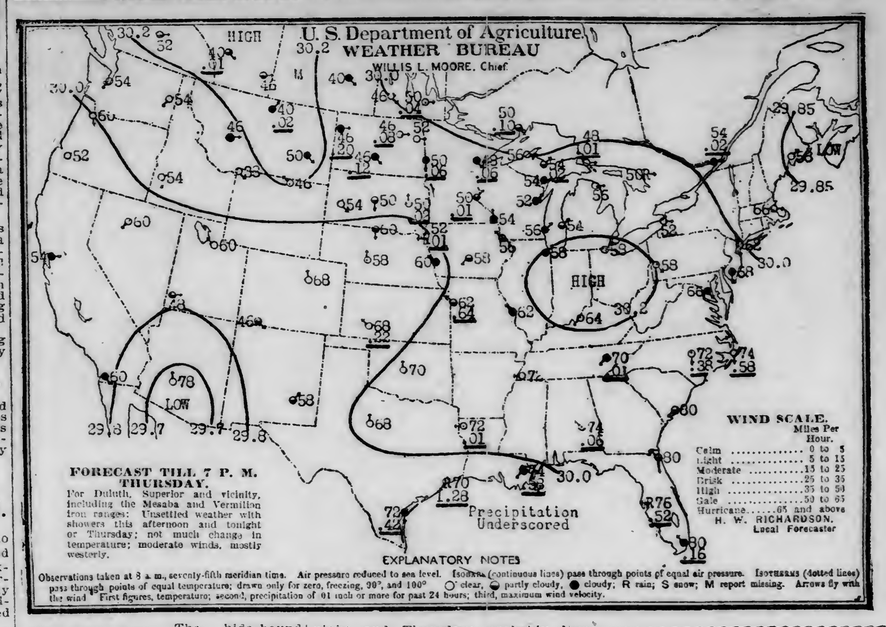

Ashland, Wis., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first hydroplane ever working in the Northwest will be seen here July 4, if plans of the committee in charge for the big celebration here that day are carried out. The committee has secured $1,000 in subscriptions and expects to secure more to defray the expense and closing a deal for a hydroplane flight over Chequamegon bay and Lake Superior.

The actual contract price for the hydroplane exhibition is about $800 and it is believed that it will be the means of bringing thousands of people to this city from all parts of the Lake Superior region, regardless of whether they have local celebrations or not.

BULLET FIRED THROUGH SOUTH SHORE TRAIN.

Marquette, Mich, June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—A bullet was fired through a window on the Duluth express on the South Shore road Saturday night. The shooting occurred fifty miles east of Marquette. Charles Sundberg, the conductor, narrowly escaped being hit by the bullet.

RAIN

The hide-bound Republican on the hilltop, who presides over the weather, dumped buckets of water on the faithful Democrats this morning. He says he is going to continue turning on the showers during the convention tomorrow.

A year ago today the weather was fine.

The sun rose this morning at 4:14 o'clock and will set at 7:58, making fifteen hours and forty-four minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comments on weather conditions:

"Showers fell during either Tuesday or last night in northern border states, the Missouri valley, and South Atlantic and Gulf states in connection with disturbances centered over Eastern Canada and Arizona. High temperatures continued in the Southwest and extreme South. Frost occurred last night in Northwestern Wyoming. Conditions favor rather unsettled and showery weather in St. Louis and Douglas counties during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

Weather Forecasts.

Chicago, June 5.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Thursday:

Upper Michigan—Unsettled tonight and Thursday.

Wisconsin—Unsettled with showers tonight or Thursday; not much change in temperature.

Minnesota—Unsettled weather with showers tonight or Thursday; warmer in east and south portions; cooler in northwest portion tonight.

Iowa—Unsettled weather with showers tonight or Thursday; warmer in southeast portion tonight.

North Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Thursday; probably light frost in lowlands tonight.

South Dakota—Cloudy and cooler tonight; Thursday generally fair.

Montana—Generally fair tonight and Thursday; cooler in southeast portion tonight.

YELL "LIAR," USE FISTS

Congressman and Newspaper Reporter Fight in the Capitol.

Thomas of Kentucky Wins Battle By Reaching for His Pocket.

Washington, June 5.—In the calm atmosphere of the house judiciary committee was bred late yesterday a battle that failed to ruffle the Archbald impeachment hearing, but which caused excitement in the corridor outside the committee room. The participants originally were Representative Thomas of Kentucky, Democrat, and Joseph Annin, a 90-pound reporter for a local newspaper. Later John Kirby, connected with the Washington bureau of a New York publication, joined in the fray. Mr. Kirby admits tipping the scales at 200, and is sturdy. The battle was declared a draw.

Mr. Thomas, a member of the committee, entered the committee room some time after the hearing had commenced. He was flushed and apparently laboring under excitement. Waving a copy of the local newspaper he proceeded to read an account of yesterday's proceedings in the committee, which he construed as being a direct attack on himself. He paid his compliments to the newspaper fraternity and withdrew.

A few minutes later he sent a messenger in for Mr. Annin, who promptly went into the hall.

Flashes of "Liar."

Annin's paper published what Thomas said was an untrue story, that Thomas had denounced the house judiciary committee and that he had infrequently attacked its inquiry into Archbald's case. When Annin joined Thomas, they soon were in heated argument. "Liar," flashed back and forth, and then Kirby reinforced Annin. Thomas' version, told in a formal statement, said Annin struck him and that he struck back.

"He ran, still striking at me," Thomas added, "and a fellow by the name of Kirby ran up behind me and struck me on the back of my head. They both grabbed me and threw me to the floor, but I freed myself and they both did a running stunt that would do credit to the champion runner of America. I took after Kirby, but he outran me and the last I saw of him he was still burning the wind."

Battle by Rounds.

According to eye witnesses of the affair, the following describes the proceedings by rounds:

Round 1—Thomas sparred dramatically for an opening and advanced cautiously. Annin held his ground and watched his opponent closely, awaiting for an opening. It came. Annin swung right to jaw. They clinched and no clean blows were struck. Still wrestling at bell. Honors even.

Round 2—Still in clinch. Kirby (weight 200 pounds), jumped lightly into corridor and collided violently with the combatants. Wrestling continued with Thomas as center of flying pinwheel. Capitol policemen were sought to referee the bout, but could not be found. Honors still even.

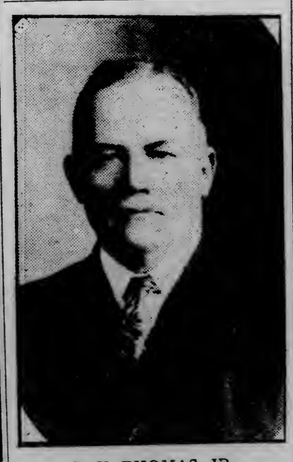

Round 3—Thomas displayed amazing foot-work, but fell into trick play and went down with a crash. Annin, breathing heavily through an incipient moustache was thrust violently aside by Kirby, who assumed easy position astride Thomas. Thomas, evidently in distress, crying "he hit me first; he hit me first." With agitation and much effort Thomas felt in his pocket, Kirby decided to end the bout. Thomas' round.

Bumped Into Gompers.

Annin, seeing Thomas' motion toward his pocket, tripped lightly into a nearby corridor and disappeared, colliding violently with Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who also was seeking safety in a nearby committee room. Kirby, with equal alacrity, hastened in an opposite direction, pursued by Thomas.

Kirby, in his flight, seized a mail sack and dropped it as a barrier before Thomas' impatient feet. While Thomas executed an Indian war dance around the mail sack, Kirby vanished.

It is thought no action will be taken by the committee, although assault on a member of congress by a civilian, while the former is attending a session, is a grave infraction of the Constitutional protection afforded the members.

Representative From Kentucky.

RIFLE THIEF IS CAUGHT IN ACT

John Fisher Steals From Farmer and Is Now on Rock Pile.

A man giving his name as John Fisher was arrested late yesterday afternoon after a short chase, charged with stealing from Ed Ferguson, a farmer of Northern Wisconsin, a new rifle which the latter had just purchased here. Ferguson claims that he was waiting for a train in the Soo station when another man sat with him and opened a conversation, later inviting Ferguson to cross the street with him and get a glass of beer. The latter complied and on his return saw Fisher heading out another entrance with the rifle.

Ferguson raised a hue and cry and gave chase. A crowd gathered and the pursued man started up Sixth avenue, when he ran into a policeman, who promptly folded him into his arms. Ferguson believes that Fisher and the hospitable stranger were in "cahoots."

Fisher was arraigned before Judge Cutting in police court this morning, charged with larceny in the third degree. He had previously told the police that he was drunk when he took the gun or he would not have done such a thing. The police, however, declare that he had every appearance of sobriety when arrested.

In court he told the judge a different story. He said that while standing in the waiting room of the Soo station some man whom he did not know came up to him, handed him the gun and told him he could have it. The court asked Fisher if he really expected to be believed in telling such a tale, but he stuck to his story. Judge Cutting then handed him the alternative of paying $81.12 or spending sixty days on the rock pile. A scarcity of finances resulted in Fisher becoming the guest of Sheriff Meining.

Is Coffee a Poison?

Read this

The average cup of coffee contains about 2½ grains of "caffeine"—the drug that you read about here

Coffee drinkers often suffer from headache, nervousness, indigestion, biliousness, heart irritation and other symptoms of ill health—due to "caffeine," the drug in their coffee.

The cause is often not understood until expert medical test shows up the bald facts

One can get relief from the ills caused by coffee by quitting it for ten days and using

POISON SQUAD MEMBER COLLAPSES UNDER TEST

Philadelphia Student in Serious Condition for a Time, but Has Recovered.

COMPANIONS ARE SICK

Every Member of Band Suffers Nausea as Result of Caffeine Experiments.

PHILADELPHIA, May 11.—Serious results have followed the feeding of caffeine, a drug lurking in chocolate as well as coffee, to the eight student members of the "poison squad" of the Hahnemann Medical College here. All have been subject to severe headaches and serious attacks of nausea, while one member of the squad was in such a serious condition after taking the caffeine-laden water for the first twenty days that he had to be placed in a special ward in the hospital. He received constant attention, has recovered and at the college is said to have rejoined the squad.

The "poison squad" at the Hahnemann college was formed very quietly. It came into existence on March 1 and is under the direct supervision of Dr. Edmund T. Nesbit, director of the Hering laboratory of the college.

Dr. Nesbit called for volunteers from among the students. He said he wanted men who were willing to do something for the benefit of humanity at large, even though it might be to their own discomfiture. Twenty-five students volunteered. Of these fourteen of the most perfect physically were chosen, eleven as regular members of the squad and three as alternates. * * * * * * *

For thirty days the members of the squad were given doses of caffeine while Dr. Nesbit and his assistants made personal observations, taking the pulses and temperature of the members of the squad and making notes on their general physical condition. It was not until within the last few days that one member of the squad weakened under the experiment to such an extent that it was necessary to send him to the hospital. Dr. Nesbit refuses to reveal the name of the student who collapsed, but declares that through proper treatment immediately he soon recovered. * * *

The caffeine was administered in a solution and was mixed with the water the squad drank. The students did not know when they were getting the caffeine. There were no stated times for giving it in order to keep the mind of the student free from worry in order that the physical condition might not be changed materially through the action of the brain.

Before joining the "poison squad" each student had to sign a release against any action for damages against the college. * * * * * * *

The laboratory was organized about fifteen months ago with Dr. Nesbit as director, and almost immediately an exhaustive study was started to ascertain the destructive qualities of caffeine as used in food stuffs. * * *

The students continued to live at the dormitories or at boarding houses, but they were required to take their meals at the training table located in the hospital near the diet kitchen. Before each meal the temperature was recorded, the pulse and respiration were taken and the blood pressure was tested. During the period the drug was administered only Dr. Nesbit knew the amount apportioned to each man and when and in what quantity it was administered.

BIG G. O. P. CHIEFS MEET

tested delegates into consideration."

Numerous conferences of the leaders were held in the morning, and the hotel lobbies and the corridors of the national committee headquarters in the convention building were crowded with new arrivals.

All roads led to Chicago today, so far as members of the Republican national committee were concerned.

Before night a majority of the committeemen, as well as leaders who come to look after the interests of particular candidates for the presidential nomination, were expected to arrive, in readiness for the formal organization of the committee, which is scheduled to be taken up tomorrow. On Friday the committee is expected to be prepared to begin consideration of contests.

Some Early Arrivals.

The early arrivals included Senator Newell Sanders of Tennessee, who is to be one of the active workers at Taft headquarters; Former Governor Durbin of Indiana and Will H. Hays, vice-chairman of the Republican committee of that state; Foster B. Brown of Chattanooga, former attorney general of Porto Rico, who is to assist Charles Dick of Ohio in presenting the Taft claims in the contests, and J. W. Blodgett, national committeeman from Michigan.

"The idea of holding open sessions of the contest hearings is agreeable to me," said Mr. Blodgett, "although it is probable that closed hearings would expedite the proceedings.

"Will Senator Root be temporary chairman? Of course, Mr. Roosevelt will not be able to defeat the senator, who is one of the really big men of the country."

Congressman William B. McKinley of Champaign, Ill., president Taft's campaign manager, and Leroy T. Vernon, publicity director of the Taft committee, came from Washington today.

Murray Crane on Hand.

Among others who arrived to participate in the convention preliminaries were Senator Murray Crane of Massachusetts; Representative G. P. Lawrence, also of Massachusetts, who probably will hold Senator Crane's proxy in many of the sessions of the national committee; Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania; Former Governor J. Franklin Murphy of New Jersey, a member of the national committee; Fred W. Estabrook of New Hampshire, also a member of the national committee, and Lucius N. Llettauer of New York, a Roosevelt delegate.

Members of the sub-committee on rules also are here. These include Charles F. Brooker of Connecticut, chairman, and W. M. Ward of New York and F. B. Kellogg of Minneapolis. They will prepare a revision of the rules for procedure in the national convention.

Kellogg for Square Deal.

F. B. Kellogg, who attended last Saturday's conference with Col. Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, declared he would use every effort, personally, to have every contest decided purely on its merits.

Lafayette B. Gleason of New York, who was selected by the sub-committee on arrangements as temporary secretary of the convention, also reached Chicago today, as did F. C. Bryan of Washington, assistant to Former Senator Dick.

ROOSEVELT AND WILSON

tricts, and C. H. Dillon of the First district, are nominated on the Republican ticket, but the returns do not indicate thus far who their Democratic opponents will be.

Richard F. Pettigrew had no opposition for senator on the Democratic ticket. Returns thus far show Thomas Sterling to be in the lead for United States senator on the Republican ticket, with Senator Gamble second and R. O. Richards third.

Lieutenant Governor Frank Byrne has a good lead over G. W. Egan for the Republican nomination for governor, and the rest of the Progressive state ticket is also doubtless nominated.

No Comment by Roosevelt.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 5.—With only incomplete returns at hand from the South Dakota primaries, Col. Roosevelt said this morning he would make no statement, although his latest information indicated he had carried the state by 10,000 to 12,000. He said that in one or two cases calculations based upon the early returns had been upset and that he preferred to reserve comment until he was assured of the result.

Col. Roosevelt was asked about the authenticity of dispatches from Chicago, in which some of his supporters were quoted as saying he would surely attend the convention.

"That is their own guess," Col. Roosevelt replied.

He said he still believed it would be unnecessary for him to go to Chicago, as he expected the national committee to decide the contest on their merits. A few national committeemen, he said, might vote against him regardless of evidence, but he believed that others of the Taft committeemen would act fairly, because, he declared, they must consider their political existence and the effect of their acts upon them when they should return home.

Col. Roosevelt said he expected a visit from Gifford Pinchot and Medill McCormick later in the day.

OWES LIFE TO POOR AIM

Mille Lacs Boy Is Shot in Leg By Enraged Neighbor.

Quarrel Over Horse That Strayed Results in Shooting.

Rudolph Erickson, son of a farmer at Eastwood, near Mille Lacs, Aitkin county, was brought to St. Luke's hospital on last evening's Soo train, severely wounded in the left leg, the result of a shooting by a neighbor named John McGrath. The hospital authorities said today that they believe no serious results will develop although the condition of the patient is still uncertain, the shot being fine and hard to locate. Peter Erickson, father of the young man, was struck by McGrath, who used the gun as a club, and is suffering from a deep scalp wound.

Young Erickson says that the trouble arose over a horse which had strayed from the Erickson barn and entered McGrath's property. The wounded man says that the horse broke down a fence and McGrath, who became enraged, would not permit the young man to take the animal until the damage was paid for. Young Erickson, so he says, then returned home, got his father and the two went to remonstrate with McGrath. The latter, it is claimed, opened fire without preliminaries of any kind. The charges in both barrels of the shotgun struck Erickson.

Neighbors, attracted by the shooting, interfered and arrested McGrath and then sent the wounded man to the train to be brought to Duluth.

Erickson says he believes that McGrath meant to murder one or both of his opponents and only his poor aim prevented a tragedy.

HOUSE MAY ATTEMPT TO BREAK AGREEMENT SIGNED BY SENATORS

eral desire for a short session which shall not give Governor Eberhart too much chance to claim credit for the political deathbed throe that induced him to call the legislature together.

The senate agreement looks unbreakable.

Yet already it has been proved to be breakable, and the house members are strongly minded to experiment with it.

Eight Broke Away.

Senator G. H. Sullivan yesterday tried to get the senate to suspend the rules in favor of his measures ratifying the Federal Constitutional amendments providing for the income tax and the direct election of United States senators.

He failed, of course, as he probably expected to do; but he got sixteen votes for his motion. Sixteen out of sixty-three isn't many; but few have overlooked the fact that eight at least of the sixteen were men who had signed the pledge to consider no measures but state-wide primaries and corrupt practices.

Almost before the signing was completed, these men had joined Senator Sullivan in his attempt to bring about immediate consideration of two other measures.

Now the house is wondering what will happen, for instance, if it passes and puts up to the senate a bill increasing the railroad gross earnings tax to 5 per cent, or a bill providing for legislative apportionment.

If the senators stick to their pledge, they will have to vote the measure down.

If they vote it down, they will have to explain to their constituents why they were opposed to these measures, one of which provides a just and democratic partition of legislative power, and the other of which provides for taxing railroad property a little nearer on the same basis as other property is taxed.

Furthermore, the fact that unless action is taken at this session on railroad taxation, the gain for two years will be lost forever, because under the Constitution the people must ratify any change in railroad taxation, is rising to haunt the minds of those who have pledged themselves to the two-measure program, which excludes fair railroad taxation.

There is little danger now of any complete throwing down of the bars that will open up the way for general legislation and thus prolong the session indefinitely and lessen the probability of effective results from the session.

House Program Firmly Fixed.

The house program, which is the result of an amicable agreement between all factions of the house membership, is firmly fixed as a house rule, which only a two-thirds majority can change. That means 80 votes out of 115. Though five members are missing, three by death and two by removal from the state, it takes just as many votes to pass a bill or to break a rule as it would if all were here.

The house program is a very reasonable one.

It admits reapportionment, state-wide primary, increase in the railroad gross earnings tax, corrupt practices act and ratification of the federal constitutional amendments providing for the income tax and for the direct election of United States senators.

Only by mustering eighty votes, practically an impossible thing except on a measure regarding which there is substantial unanimity, can any other measure be taken up or this altered.

The senate program is, as stated before, to exclude everything except state-wide primaries and corrupt practices.

And it is backed by the famous agreement, initiated by Southern Minnesota senators fearing reapportionment and pushed by Twin City members fearing a distance tariff law, and signed by all but eight members of the senate.

The difference between the two programs can be accounted for in two ways.

One is the senate's recorded opposition to reapportionment.

The other is the fact that while the house members face an election five months hence, the senate members are reckless in the thought that their accounting to the people will not come for two years and five months.

The senate rule is strong enough, especially as it is backed by the agreement.

All measures must go to a special committee of nine members, one from each congressional district, to be appointed by the lieutenant governor.

No measure may come out of the committee except it be by its unanimous consent, or by a vote of two-thirds of the senate membership, which means 42 votes out of 63.

Could Gordon Do Anything?

A first thought naturally is that here is a chance for Lieutenant Governor Gordon to pick a progressive committee that will help break the combine.

And, in parenthesis let it be said, in the palmy days of Al Ferris and Ed Smith no such perfect combine ever was made as this.

But in all the state there are only eight senators unpledged to the two-measure program; one short of enough to make the committee of nine.

And it's worse than that. One member must come from each of the nine congressional districts.

Of the eight unpledged members, two—Boyle and Cheadle—come from the Eighth congressional district. Two—G. H. Sullivan and W. W. Dunn—come from the Fourth district. In three congressional districts there is not a single unpledged senator. The best Sam Gordon could do would be to appoint six free lances and three combine members.

And the committee's action must be unanimous if anything but the two measures are to come out of it on its motion.

And when it comes to getting forty-two votes to override this rule—there are but eight unpledged votes to get the forty-two from, assuming that the agreement holds.

One thing is very clear. The house, and the eight unpledged senators are going to have a much better time than the fifty-five senate combine members, especially if the house sticks to its program and puts over to the senate all the bills included in it.

Rockne's New Phrase.

Senator A. J. Rockne of Zumbrota is something of a phrasemaker.

It was he who at the last session provided a new classification of the infinitely sub-divided elements in the Republican party by calling one of them the aggressive progressives.

Yesterday he gave a name to the extra session.

He called it "a post mortem investigation of a political suicide."

And you have one guess as to whose suicide is meant.

No Enthusiasm for Governor.

There was nothing enthusiastic about the reception given by the legislature yesterday to the author of its misfortune—Governor Eberhart. The applause when he entered to read his message was very mild. The statewide primary and reapportionment planks of his message were liberally applauded.

Doubtless there would have been considerable applause for the increase in railroad taxes if it had been in the message.

Only it wasn't.

And yet, really, the increase in the railroad gross earnings tax is the livest measure before the session.

There is a good deal of amusement over the governor's attempt to run in some of the friends of the administration as janitors, doorkeepers, etc.

Without consulting any of the senators or representatives he appointed, through the capitol custodian, a full set of legislative attendants.

Both houses have their own employes, brought over from the regular session, all of them appointed through the influence of senators or representatives. Though the number is considerably curtailed in both houses, both houses wanted their own men. The senate promptly tied a can to the governor's appointees, and the house refused to let them go to work and will refuse to pay them.

Harry Clarkson, a Minneapolis real estate dealer who is secretary of the Republican campaign committee in Hennepin county, is the innocent victim of one phase of this episode.

He appears to be about the only one of the governor's appointees who is not disappointed because the legislature nullified the appointment.

A few days ago Mr. Clarkson received notice that he had been appointed as a page in the house. Not being familiar with legislative practices, he assumed that this was a nice fat place with plenty of pay and not too much work.

When he came over to the capitol yesterday and learned that if he was to be a page he would have to put on short breeches, sit on a front bench and run errands for the members, he promptly retired in disgust.

The State-Wide Primary.

It is going to be no easy matter to agree even on a state-wide primary law. There will be disputes over many points, and on several they are likely to be long and heated. There is opposition to the second choice provision, largely from supporters of the administration. There are different opinions as to the way in which the second choice is to be worked out. There are various schemes intended to keep Republicans in their own primaries and Democrats in theirs. There is a dispute as to whether judges should be included in the primaries. There are differences of opinion as to whether there should be provision for some sort of state party gatherings to issue platforms, and how they are to be arranged for.

The primary election bill which the senate elections committee has been working upon, and which will be presented to the house election committee when it meets by Representative Cleon T. Knapp of Chisholm, provides for excepting presidential electors. Probably there will be an attempt to make the selection of presidential electors the basis for a platform-making convention, though the contests for these places are usually not interesting enough to draw out anything like a representative gathering.

It was decided this morning to include United States senators and supreme and district court judges in the bill, and the second choice provision will apply to United States senators.

But as the bill stands, it applies to all officers, state and local, with these exceptions, and with the present exceptions as to towns, villages and smaller cities.

It is provided that a political party which fails to cast 10 per cent of the total vote at the preceding general election shall lose its standing as a party.

The ballot proposed provides for registering first and second choices. Any candidate receiving a majority of the first choice votes is nominated. If no candidate received a majority, the candidate having the smallest number of first choice votes is to be dropped, and the second choices of those who voted for him credited where they belong. This is to be continued until some candidate has a majority or until only two candidates remain. In the latter contigency, the one having the largest total vote is nominated.

If all the candidates of a party for any one office do not total 10 per cent of the vote cast for the nominees of such party for state officers at the last general election, there is no nomination for that party for that office, though the candidate may be nominated by petition as an independent candidate.

The state nominees are to meet on the second Thursday after the primary election at the state capitol to select a state central committee. County candidates select county committees at the court house.

The House Committees.

It will not be possible at this session to make the criticism made at the regular session, that there was a combination that controlled the house committees.

What it amounted to then was that Speaker Dunn, who appointed the committees, put his friends and supporters in good places, as the custom usually has been.

This time, however, pursuant to an agreement made at a conference presided over by Speaker Dunn, all business will be in the hands of four principal committees, and no member will belong to more than one committee.

Unconsciously, the participants in this agreement leaned a little backward. By enlarging the principal committees, and providing that no representative should be on more than one of them, there were provided places for two more members than there were available to assign.

This Speaker Dunn got around by assigning to unimportant places the two house members who have left the state. If the house had made the committees larger, probably he would have had to appoint one or more of the members who have died.

The committee assignments, announced today, are as follows:

Taxes and Tax Laws.

Dunn, R. C., McKenzie, Warner, C. H., Holmberg, Congdon, Hopkins, Rice, McNeil, Just, Fuchs, Denzer, Untiedt, Libera, Greene, Aker, Anderson, A., Converse, Whiting, Lydiard, Swartz, Peters, Diessner, Christie, Schuler, Clarke, Thielen, Sulerud, Hafften, Lundeen, Sampson, Lee, I. J.

and protection from the planters, mostly Americans, between 400 and 500 of these marines have been sent to the city of Guantanamo, about fifteen miles inland from the American naval staton.

The large Santa Cecilia plantation is in that neighborhood. Some of its buildings have been burned and some of the livestock has been stolen by negro marauders nominally attached to Gen. Estonoz' army of insurrectos.

The permanent American naval station at Guantanamo Bay is south of Caimanera. Guantanamo City is ten miles north of Caimanera, and there is railroad connection between the two places. American property in the vicinity of Guantanamo City consists of mines, sugar plantations, etc., located in the Guantanamo valley, which is a flat horseshoe-shaped basin surrounded by mountains. In the valley are great cane fields supporting nine sugar mills, many owned by American companies, among them the Santa Cecilia Sugar company of New York, the United Fruit company and the Nipe Bay company.

STAPLES K. P. LODGE HAS ENJOYABLE PICNIC.

Staples, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.) — A big celebration was held by the Knights of Pythias at Fishtrap lake near this city on Monday. A special train conveyed the passengers to and from the lake.

The special left Staples at 9 a. m. with over 150 persons enrolled for a good time. Fishing, boating and launching were the scheduled events on the lake and those who stayed on land were entertained with games and athletic events.

After supper the younger people started a dance in the city hall after securing the services of the famous Lincoln musician.

The train started for home, but was stopped when about half way there by a telegram stating that a large party of picnicers had been left behind. The train was doubled back and after picking up the stragglers returned to Staples.

WELCOME---AND GOODBYE.

Duluth tomorrow is to have the privilege of entertaining the state Democratic convention. Today she is host to a majority of the delegates to that meeting, but the real significance of their presence here will not appear until the gavel shall have fallen on the opening of the convention. Then they will form into an organization that will last for a few hours, and at the end of that time will dissolve. But not as the last such body that met here, in 1904, dissolved, for another two or four years, for in the light of present events and as nearly as human judgment can determine, the dissolution of the Minnesota Democratic convention in 1912 will be permanent.

Eight years ago, when the Democrats of Minnesota met in Duluth to determine who should receive the votes of Minnesota's delegates to the national Democratic convention, there was a good deal of talk about the possibility of doing away with the convention system. Today there is more than a possibility of such a thing in Minnesota. In fact, there is practical certainty of it, for the convention that will open tomorrow morning will exist contemporaneously with a session of the state legislature called expressly to do away with the convention system. So if any citizens of Duluth never have attended a state party convention and wish to be able to tell in time to come of any such personal experience, they will have to be present at the Auditorium and see the 1912 body in action, as it will, in all probability, be the last of its kind to be seen in Minnesota.

Duluth should give cordial welcome to the visiting delegates. They come from every section of the state and two or three score of them are the chosen representatives of their various sections in the state legislature. They are men worth meeting and talking to, for they are among the active workers of their several communities, men who are in touch with affairs of today and who are doing their part in shaping the affairs of tomorrow.

With the prospect that she is to see a doubly interesting party convention, Duluth welcomes the Democrats. In their capacity as representatives of the members of that party in the whole state, may they do their full duty to those whom they represent, and give the people reason to look back on the last such meeting in Minnesota as one that at least was not a thing to be thought of with shame, but as an example of the best that could be had under a system whose days were numbered.

Real Popular Bunch.

The latest senate poll on the Lorimer case shows the following among those who are counted as sure to vote for the Illinois man: Brandegee, Clark of Wyoming, Crane, Cullom, Dillingham, Du Pont, Gallinger, Guggenheim, Heyburn, Oliver, Penrose, Smoot, Stephenson and Warren. And yet Lorimer would have folks believe he is a staunch friend of the people.

RESIDENTS OR BUILDERS?

One of the most pertinent and encouraging features of the banquet Monday night in honor of President Pennington and other officials of the Soo road was the talk by A. H. Bright, general counsel for the Soo, on patriotic citizenship. In his address Mr. Bright said:

> The time has come when business men of our cities, regardless of politics or creed, stand back of and actively promote every sound movement towards the social welfare and the civic betterment. Our business men always gave of their money; it is one thing, however, for a business man to give money, and quite another thing to give himself to this great service. I can imagine nothing more significant than the movement apparent in more than one American city whereby the business men are giving the city the benefit of their combined intellectual and moral force in their organized support of these greater interests.

Mr. Bright's words put the question squarely before every citizen—Are you content to be merely a resident of your city, or do you want to be a builder as well? Duluth is fortunate in having a number of able men who find time for and devote energy to affairs of public and civic moment. There are others whose assistance would be of unquestioned value, if they would only consent to give it.

Commercial growth is necessary to a community that is ambitious to move forward, but it is not the only thing that counts. There are other things, that Mr. Bright referred to when he spoke of "these greater interests." How, for example, can any city expect to attract people to it when its housing conditions, its city government, its public service, its schools or its social conditions are being neglected by a large part of the citizens?

No city on earth exists without these problems of civic betterment or development to meet and solve. Throughout the country, even throughout the world, men of large mind and earnest purpose are striving to find the best ways to provide for the everyday welfare of the mass of the people. And in hundreds upon hundreds of cases these men are acting in unison with the movement for civic and social betterment, not looking for personal gain, but for opportunities to do mankind and their neighbors a real service.

This, more than any that has preceded it, is an age of thought for man in the mass instead of for the welfare of any given class. The man of ability who neglects to give his personal power to the movement is out of touch with the times, and by just as much as he might do and leaves undone, is holding back the great work. Whether his failure to "get into the game" be from selfishness or sloth or indifference or what-not, the result is the same.

Mr. Bright put the matter well and forcibly. It is up to every able citizen of Duluth to determine whether to be a mere inhabitant, who takes the good things that come to him and does nothing, or whether to be a builder of his community and city, who helps to bring about other good things that shall benefit his neighbor as well as himself.

Modest Man.

New York is lionizing Capt. Rostron of the Carpathia, but he has yet to be Hobsonized by the pretty girls of Gotham. What's the matter?

GIVE US REAPPORTIONMENT.

Indications at St. Paul are that there is to be a fresh attempt on the part of certain members of the state senate to block the plans for a reapportionment of representation in the legislature, just as such a movement was blocked at the regular session of that body more than a year ago. That such an attempt is contemplated is proved by the effort to restrict legislation at the extra session to two measures—a direct primary law and a corrupt practices act. The movement against reapportionment has even gained such strength as to make possible the adoption in the senate of a resolution providing that all other bills presented or received from the house shall go to a special committee, and not be reported out unless by the unanimous consent of that committee or on the demand of two-thirds of the members of the senate.

This is all wrong. The special session of the legislature was summoned to accomplish certain primary objects, one of which was just reapportionment, and any attempt to throttle such action will be nothing short of defiance, not only of the governor but of the will of the people of the state. As the Minneapolis Tribune says, reapportionment is "a constitutional duty. All that the legislature needs is to distribute its seats as nearly as may be according to population. * * * Failure can come only by trying to evade the Constitution and cheat the people."

In his message to the legislature Governor Eberhart pointed out plainly not only the need of reapportionment, but the constitutional duty laid upon the legislature to make a reapportionment. The members of the house are ready to take such action. Indeed, they were ready and actually took the step at the regular session, but the senate blocked the movement then, and some of the members of that body are showing an unjustifiable desire to accomplish the same thing now.

In the plans already drawn for reapportionment two things appear that should make it easy for the opposing senators to lay down their opposition. One of these is the provision that the reapportionment shall not take effect until next year. This would do away with the objection that some of them would be legislating themselves out of a job. The other provision is the doing away with the "shoe-string" feature that made the former reapportionment bills seem objectionable to some members from the northern part of the state. With these two changes it would seem that any reasonable being would be willing to grant the people of the state their constitutional rights, and refusal to adopt reapportionment is nothing less than a denial of those rights in the face of all justice and reason.

Among the suggestions made at St. Paul is one that the house compromise with the senate by adding an increase in the gross earnings tax to the two-measure program. The house should also add reapportionment, and stand pat on those four. The state needs them, and needs them now. If these four things be accomplished and all other action left for the next regular session, the legislature can wind up its extra session in short order and rest assured that its few additional days in St. Paul have been well spent.

Highly Promising Outlook.

With Bill Barnes representing Taft on the national committee and Bill Ward representing Roosevelt, there is a possibility that the committee's deliberations will show some fireworks that will make the convention itself look rather tame.

RESTRICTING CIVIL SERVICE TENURE.

According to the Postal Record, the organ of the National Association of Letter Carriers, there is a provision in the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill as it passed the house that, should it become a law, would be "but the entering wedge in prying open the whole civil service structure and will eventually mean a return to the old 'spoils system.'" The provision is described as one to limit the tenure of office of all civil service employes in the District of Columbia to five years.

With all due respect to the opinion of the Postal Record, it is hard to see just how this particular instance is any serious menace to the civil service as a system. It looks rather like an attempt to solve a problem that has vexed official Washington for several years — how to free the government treasury from the weight of incompetent and inefficient employes who, by the terms of the present civil service provisions, have a life tenure on jobs that they could not hold down under any private management that demanded full value in ability as a return for the salary invested.

Supposing the terms of the new bill's provision were put into effect, how would that constitute any return to the "spoils system"? It would of course mean the dropping of a given number of employes, and the hiring of others, but since those others would have to establish their fitness through the operation of the civil service examinations, it does not appear that there would be any opportunity for political favoritism to determine the personnel of the new employes. Certainly, the new proposition would operate to maintain a high efficiency in the government offices, and that is the great aim of the civil service.

It does not seem reasonable to believe that a majority of the members of congress in either house would favor a return to the "spoils system." Or even if they did have such an idea, it would hardly do to let their constituents know of it, or to attempt to bring it about. The value of the present civil service system has been well exemplified for the people at large to sit quietly and see it done away with or even modified to any great degree.

In the present instance the modification is rather toward the nature of a contract for a term of years such as any employer may make with an employe, and certainly there is nothing in such a plan to cause alarm, as long as the place must always be filled in accordance with civil service requirements. It seems as if the Postal Record has become rather needlessly alarmed, but if it can suggest some other form of meeting the problem before the national government, no doubt congress would willingly consider it.

All these beef trust investigations are very intersting, but it would be more to the point if there could be some way found to pull the price down within reach.

Meanwhile, remember that Boosting means getting under and pushing upward. It isn't enough just to stand back and cheer the fellows who are doing the hard work.

Champ Clark was a college president and for twenty-two years was the youngest such official in the country. Yet we never hear his backers speak of him as "Professor Clark."

RELIGION AND THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Would you kindly permit some fair-minded reader to answer straight and to the point my questions, strange, perhaps, but nevertheless honest? They may be asked by millions of parents and children of this republic as well as by your humble servant. If the church is legally separated from the state and state education completely and always, how can you explain why all over the country you have ministers dedicating school buildings, orating and invocating at commencement exercises and offering benedictions at the close of the same, totally ignorant of the fact that there are many children present who and whose parents do not believe in such religious views at all, and whose convictions, be they one or many, if the Constitution is of any value, are entitled to the fairest consideration and the most deligent protection? Of course, any self-respecting citizen will never be found to impose his religious functions on unwilling victims, but you will nevertheless find plenty men ignorant and impolite enough to do so. No child's conscience should be interfered with according to our laws, yet year after year that law is wantonly violated, unless there is some explanation which I am as yet ignorant of. The same question may be asked of all institutions of a public nature. All religions ought to be taught, and exercises held belonging to each child's conviction or the present law should be held that no religion or no reference to religion whatever should be made within the four walls of any public school under the United States flag.

VERITAS.

International Falls, June 3.

GOVERNOR WILSON'S PROGRESS

Indianapolis News: When Governor Wilson carried his home state of New Jersey with practical unanimity, thereby emphasizing his victory over one of the worst assemblages of state bosses that the country endures and in letting which he marked his entry into public life, he took a long stride forward on the road. The coincidence of this victory with his hardly less striking success in Minnesota and Texas made it look like the last turn in the road. When Governor Wilson announced his candidacy and started out to get acquainted with the country, or to let the people get acquainted with him, he at once commanded favorable attention. Men so equipped as he with a knowledge of the law and of business affairs, and with the record of a student and thinker, are not so plentiful in American politics that his advent could be made unnoticed. It was distinctly welcomed. Then followed the reaction, aided by the efforts of rival candidates appealing in combination against him, and for a time his craft floated in slack water.

But the real worth of the man made its impression and again he caught the current. New Jersey and Texas and Minnesota propelled him powerfully. The eyes with brains behind them have never lost sight of him. The reason that he is gaining in strength and popular consideration has been indicated by the temper of conventions and primaries the country over. Taken collectively they show that progressive elements are the strongest in both parties. Clark and Wilson have led Underwood and Harmon, and Bryan has approved both the former. In the face of this it would be a blunder for the Democratic party to nominate a so-called conservative candidate. The broader requirement is for a man with sanely advanced ideas. Here again, we think Wilson towers above Clark, because of his personality and principles and the prospect that he could get an independent vote that Clark could not reach.

The Just and Merciful Judge.

J. W. Foley's tribute to the late Judge D. E. Morgan of North Dakota delivered at memorial exercises in Bismarck June 1:

I loved him because he was human—as human a man as you'll find;
Real to the core of his being with a soul that was blessed and kind;
Friend of the needy in trouble; cheer of the struggler in strife;
Sowing the seeds that bring blossoms all down the way of his life;
Gentle of speech and in manner, modest and simple and true,
Leaving this world of ours better just for his having passed through;
Stranger to lie and deception; gracious with sincere and mild,
With the strength of man, heart of woman, and soul, still unspoiled of a child.
And so, when the strife is all over, and all our trials and tears;
When life is cast up in the balance and all of the deeds of our years
Are weighed up and counted and measured; when each of us steps to the bar
To answer the roll call of Judgment, and comes to see Things as they Are;
God grant us a judge who's like he was—somebody who just understands
The soul of a man well as he did, and put the whole case in his hands;
And Mercy will write the Opinion that comes down to us from above,
And Kindness concur in the findings, and their Greater Seal shall be Love.

Taking It Out on the Child.

Toledo Blade: When the battleship Texas, the largest warship ever built in an American yard, slipped into the water the other day, the president of the United States, the secretary of the navy, the governor of Texas and the Texas representatives and senators were notable by their absence.

The honor of choosing the child who should act as sponsor fell to the governor of Texas. He decided upon a daughter of a Republican state committeeman, who is friendly to the Roosevelt candidacy.

The president felt that he had been insulted. The secretary of the navy had perforce to assume the air of disgust of his distignuished chief. The Democrats of Texas were angered because the daughter of a Republican, and not one of their own offspring, had been chosen and they raised so much fuss that the governor said he'd have nothing more to do with the affair. The Texas delegation, ever mindful of the fickle voters at home, ostentatiously ignored the launching.

The "unfaltering littleness of man!"

One Little Bird and I.

We love the tall trees on the hill,
We love the cowslips by the rill,
We love the violets in the glade,
We love the cool, delightful shade.
We love the wild rose in the glen,
We love the dark, mysterious fen,
We love the wind and the blue of the sky,
One little bird and I.

Ah, what care we, for the storms and rain?
What care we for the strife and pain?
Today's fair sky is a dreamy blue,
Tomorrow is a world a-new.
The balmy breath of the new-born spring,
The fairy butterflies a-wing—
Fill with joy as the hours go by
One little bird and I.

Through the joys of the bright daylight,
Through the gloom of the whispering night,
Through the heartache and the care,
Through the pain that we must bear.
Through the journeylngs to and fro—
Through the strivings here below,
There's one who watches from on high,
One little bird and I.

THE EXTRA SESSION.

The Last Resort.

Hinckley Enterprise: Forced by overwhelming public sentiment and as a last resort to save his official neck, Governor Eberhart has called a special session of the legislature to pass a primary election law. And it is by no means sure he will not reap more benefit from it than will those who have been calling so strongly for it. Eberhart's chance in a convention had gone glimmering. There was a certainty of defeat in a convention for him. In a primary election, with the opposition to him and machine—corporation—brewerey control, which he represents, divided among several candidates; and the certainty of the saloon support of Eberhart, there is little question of his standing a much better chance of winning in a primary election than in a convention, although there is little doubt a majority of the Republican votes of the state will be against him.

Into the Fire.

Waseca Herald: In calling an extra session of the legislature, Governor Eberhart seems to have jumped out of the frying pan and into the fire.

Redeeming Feature.

Pine River Sentinel: The special session of the legislature and reapportionment will mean that those office seekers who do not favor a real equitable apportionment bill will have to look to some other surce than the people for their favors at the election this fall. This is the one redeeming fature of the extra session.

Political Move.

Foley Independent: There is much criticism regarding the extra session of the legislature and whether the desired results will follow. As it appears at present, it is purely political for the governor to break into the ranks, thereby saving himself from utter defeat.

New Circumstances.

Morris Sun: The governor has had all kinds of opportunities in the past to urge the passage of the laws he now sees such urgent need for, but the necessity for them did not appeal to him quite as strongly as it did when he had the opportunity to feel of the real sentiment throughout the state as ricted at the recen state convention.

Questions.

Cambridge North Star: But the governor blundered as usual. Why didn't he call it in the winter when business is slack and farmers less busy than they will be in June and July? And why, oh why, didn't he call it so that the people could have a chance to vote upon the presidential proposition? Why can he wait until the convention notified him that he had to do something that the people wanted? Answers to these questions may be made by Messrs. Smith, Reese and others. But they won't be; that is, not publicly.

In a Panic.

Winona Independent: Governor Eberhart must have been in a panic when he consented to call a special session of the legislature to pass a statewide primary law. If his opponents don't knock his chances for the nomination as high as Gilroy's kite they are poor dabblers in the game of politics.

Unpopular Action.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: Judging from the interviews of the state senators and members of the house, Governor Eberhart's call of an extra session is not popular, although a large number assert they will vote for a state-wide primary. It is to be hoped they will take time enough to give us a safe and sane primary law, which will permit the members of each party to select their own candidates.

Ruling Caste.

Cincinnati Times-Star: The gasoline 'bus was jolting horribly down Riverside drive the other morning. Two fur overcoated men took up twice as much room as they were entitled to on one of the seats, that run lengthwise of these awkward contrivances, inside. One of them—a bold-beaked, rude-eyed, ruddy-colored man—talked loudly.

"History will never repeat itself," he stated, as an oracle. "The common people will never rise against us. We are their superiors and their masters, and they know it. They will only fawn upon us."

Another man entered the 'bus. He stood in the aisle, because no one moved aside to give him a seat. The conductor pretended blindness. Finally a man in the aisle became impatient.

"Move up, please," said he to the fur overcoated men. "I think I can squeeze in next to you."

"There is no room," said the loud talker.

"Nevertheless, move up," said the man in the aisle angrily. "Make room. You are taking up twice as much space as you have paid for."

The talker tried to stare him down. "Do you know who I am?" he bellowed. "I am So-and-So"—giving the name of a man who inherited a fortune and a bad name. He has largely dissipated the one and has not bettered the other. The man in the aisle put his straw-colored mustache right up close to the face of the man in the fur overcoat and whispered so that every one in the 'bus heard him.

"I believe you," said he. "I've always heard you described as a bluff and a bully and a cad. Now, I'm going to find out if you're a coward, too. Move over!"

The man in the fur overcoat moved over, reluctantly. At the next corner he got out. Still, the chances are that he believes himself one of the ruling caste.

Tramps.

When the feel o' summer's in your heart—the rain and the pleasant weather—
Friend, 'tis the time to call up your dog, and go on the road together!
With a bit of bread and cheese for both, and maybe a flute for playing—
A pipe, too, if you like a smoke, and a glad, stout heart for straying.
Nothing like it! But shun all the ways where the feet of men grow weary,
And leave behind you the toil and heat of the cities old and dreary:
Then go where the wood-folk love to hear your flute's soft notes a-dreaming,
When the silver sun rays sloping fall on the golden grass a-gleaming;
And ever the dappled shadows flit, a-glimmering and glancing,
As if all the green leaves overhead were wood-elves blithely dancing;
Just sauntering through the greenwood glades, and whistling soft and cheerly—
Oh, friend, there's naught like a tramping life, for tramps that love it dearly!
When the end is come, and I reach the bourne where all God's folk cross over,
I'll go to the Master of Life and say: "Dear Lord, I'm just a rover!
Master, these pilgrim souls like mine, they were never made for homing—
Even Heaven will never Heaven be, 'less we may go a-roaming!
Just let me pluck a reed to make sweet tunes for Heavens playing,
Then call up my little dog once more from where Thy dogs are straying,
And, forever and always, in the rain and the pleasant weather,
With the joy and tramps that angels know, we'll go on the road together.

Flattery.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: One must be a genius to be a successful barber. One is reminded of the tonsorial artist who operated in the same village for fifty years, and never made a mistake. In his early days, a handsome boy got into his chair.

"Shave sir?" asked the barber.

"You flatter me," laughed the youth. "You flatter me. No, I can only use a haircut."

Years passed. In fact, thirty years did it. The same man came to the same barber.

"Hair cut, sir?" asked the barber.

"You flatter me!" sighed the man. "No—only a shave."

FOR PRESIDENT— WOODROW WILSON.

New York World: Woodrow Wilson should be the Democratic candidate for president.

That is the opinion of the World. That is the counsel of the New Jersey primaries. That is the logic of the situation.

It is time for facts and not for theories. Judson Harmon might prove a strong candidate in New York and Ohio, but his nomination has been rendered impossible. Champ Clark would be a hopelessly beaten candidate in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. He could do no better than Mr. Bryan, who has lost these states three times and would lose them again if nominated. Oscar W. Underwood is of presidential size, but he has been untested as a candidate in the North and is an unknown quantity to most of the voters. Woodrow Wilson alone has a record of continuing victory in the section in which victory is essential to Democratic sucess.

What other Democratic candidate could poll so many votes in the great debatable states of the East—New York, New Jersey and Connecticut?

What other Democratic candidate, who could carry these states, would be so strong in the great debatable states of the Middle West—Ohio and Indiana?

What other Democratic candidate could make so powerful an appeal to hundreds of thousands of thoughtful independent voters without whose support no Democratic president can be elected?

What other Democratic candidate could so well stem the rising tide of Roosevelteasm, which now threatens to engulf representative government and Republican institutions?

What other Democratic candidate would so fully measure up to the ideals of the sane radicals and the sane conservatives upon whose joint action the result of the election will hinge?

The World hitherto has withheld its active support from all candidates. It advocated an open convention at Baltimore, and advised its Democratic friends to await the action of the Republicans at Chicago. The open convention is assured. The measure of all the candidates has been taken. The situation is clarified and further delay is unnecessary.

Like a twentieth-century Genghis Khan, Theodore Roosevelt, with his horde of prairie Populists and Wall Street Socialists, is sweeping down upon the Republican national convention. Mr. Taft seems as powerless to check him as the degenerate Romans were to check the descent of the Goths and the Vandals. The historic party of Lincoln and Seward and Chase and Sumner and Conkling and Chandler and Blaine and Garfield and Harrison and Sherman and McKinley is apparently in the death throes. This is the twilight of the gods, and the Democratic party must rise not only to its opportunity but to its responsibility.

How can it do its duty better than to match sanity against lunacy; statesmanship against demagogy; the historian against the debaucher of public opinion; the first term against the third term; the tariff-reformer against the stand-patter; the man who would prosecute trust magnates against the man who protects trust magnates; the man with clean hands against the man who draws his campaign fund from Wall Street; the supporter of constitutional government against the champion of personal government; law against lawlessness; Americanism against Mexicanism; the republic against the dictatorship?

Who better represents these issues than Woodrow Wilson? Who is better qualified than Woodrow Wilson to appeal to the intelligence and common sense of the American people against the most cunning and adroit demagogue that modern civilization has produced since Napoleon III?

Who would stand a better chance of election in this great national crisis?

Governor Wilson has had more public experience than Grover Cleveland had when he was elected president. He is better known to the rank and file of the party than Samuel J. Tilden was when he was nominated for president. The World believes that he would be a progressive constitutional president whom the American people could trust and for whom they would never have cause to apologize.

We appeal to all Democrats to consider this matter soberly and thoughtfully and without prejudice. We appeal to the delegates to the Democratic national convention to be swayed by no considerations except those of principle and the public welfare. We appeal to Mr. Bryan to throw his political influence upon the side of Governor Wilson and aid the Democratic party to meet adequately this great crisis in the nation's history. He has the most brilliant opportunity for disinterested, patriotic leadership that has come to any American of this generation, and he has before him in Theodore Roosevelt a striking example of the meaning of ruthless and unyielding ambition.

It is not in behalf of Woodrow Wilson that the World urges his nomination. It is not merely in behalf of the Democratic party as a party. It is in behalf of the American people. It is in behalf of American institutions. It is in behalf of the republic. It is in behalf of the nation that is now confronted with the gravest menace that it has faced since the obliteration of human slavery and the overthrow of secession.

A Woman's Idea of a "Light Lunch."

J. E. House in the Topeka Capital: The women are so funny we never grow tired of laughing at them. It fell to two Topeka women recently to put up a lunch for a picnic party of four. They talked it over and decided to take barely enough to permit the party to subsist during the day. "We'll just take a light lunch," said one of them, "and you needn't bother with it at all. I'll have enough for both." "I think it spoils the day," said the other, "when you have to bother with what you are going to eat." And so it was decided. On the day of the picnic both women appeared with baskets of food. When the "light lunch" was spread at noon it was found to consist of the following articles: Ham sandwiches, roast beef sandwiches and chicken salad sandwiches—enough of each variety for twelve people—a dozen hard boiled eggs, four boxes of sardines, enough cold buttered biscuits for a family of ten, one jar of strawberry jam, three pounds of potato chips, four grape fruit, one marble cake, two bottles of pickles, a quart of ripe olives and a quart of green olives, one dozen oranges, one dozen bananas, a quart of cream, a box of wafers and hot coffee. As we have hitherto said over and anon remarked, the women are funny.

"Roosevelt's Most Dangerous Opponent."

Philadelphia North American: The New York World is a powerful influence in the Democratic party. It is so deservedly. For it is one of the great newspapers of the country, able, courageous and unbribable. Therefore a two-column editorial which it printed yesterday must be regarded as an important feature of the presidential contest.

In an admirably presented summary of Woodrow Wilson's qualifications and potential popular strength for the presidency, the World commits itself unqualifiedly to support of his candidacy, and utters a plea to all factions of the Democracy and to the independent voters of the country which merits the attention of every thoughtful citizen. * * *

We wish that we could believe that the motives of the World were as unmixed and admirable as this praise and sound counsel are deserved and useful. We have no desire to be unjust. But the wish instinctively arises that this support had not been deferred until the World's fight for Taft had been crushed by the people and until Hearst's pocket candidate, Clark; Bryan, against whom the World is traditionally committed, and Underwood and Harmon, utterly without popular strength, had become the only agencies save Governor Wilson through which the World's blows at Roosevelt could be struck.

For all the belated good that it may do to Woodrow Wilson, from whatever motives, however mixed, we say, "More power to the World!" The North American does not indulge in double-dealing with any Democratic readers. Our support will be given whole-heartedly to Theodore Roosevelt.

But our Democratic and independent readers will believe us when we say that there is nothing that we wish more than the nomination of Woodrow Wilson as well as of Theodore Roosevelt. He is the Democrat who would be Roosevelt's most dangerous opponent; the one man whose name will be put forward at Baltimore who would remove the election of Roosevelt from the category of absolute certainties.

Too Many in the Party.

Life: A certain knight of Spain, as high in birth as a king, as Catholic as the pope, and equal to Job in poverty, arriving one night at an inn in France, knocked a long time at the gate till he had alarmed the landlord. "Who is there?" said the host. "Don Juan Pedro," replied the Spaniard; "Hernandez, Rodriguez de Villanova, Count of Malafra, Knight Santiago and Alcantara." "I am very sorry," replied the landlord, shutting the window, "but I have not rooms enough in my house for all the gentlemen you have mentioned."

Why Uncle Went Away From There.

Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph: "This bill was innocent on its face, but beneath there lurked a most sinister significance."

The speaker was discussing in Little Rock a measure of which he disapproved.

"The bill reminded me, in fact," he said, "of a Little Rock urchin's question—innocent enough in appearance, dear knows—was this:

"'Would you mind making a noise like a frog, uncle?'

"'And why,' said the uncle, with an amused smile—'why, Tommy, do you desire me to make a noise like a frog?'

"'Because,' replied the urchin, 'whenever I ask daddy to buy me anything, he always says, "Wait until your uncle croaks."'"

Antiquity of Hymns.

Etude: While hymns as we know them today are a comparatively recent innovation in church services, they are a very ancient institution and existed long before the Christian era. Many important collections of hymns date back to about five hundred years before Christ, though of course hymns existed long before that period. Among the collections—which have come down to us from then are the Sanskrit "Rik-Veda," a Chinese "Book of Odes," the "Buddhist Hymns," the Grecian "Homeric Hymns" and the "Odes of Pindar." The Latin Hymns," or hymns of the western church, while the "Lutheran Chorales" date from the sixteenth century. The hymns which play so prominent a part in the services of the modern Protestant churches were not in wide general use until about 1860.

Three Reasons Why Your Refrigerator Should Be a Seeger

First—They are Clean and White and Sanitary. One case of typhoid prevented will justify the purchase of a SEEGER.

Second—The Seeger Siphon System of Air Circulation inside draws the air over the ice more often, lowers the temperature, and prevents decay of perishable foods.

No one realizes the waste nor danger from food half spoiled by sluggish air circulation in the ordinary refrigerator.

Third—Seeger Refrigerators reduce your ice bills. This is not a claim—it is a fact. The Siphon circulation lowers the temperature, and the Seeger walls are built to keep it low. Cheap walls make big ice bills.

We believe these three—sanitation, circulation and insulation—are absolutely needed to give you real refrigerator satisfaction, and they are combined in the Seeger beyond all hope of imitation.

It will be our pleasure to show them to you.

CONVENTION OF DIOCESE

Episcopal Clergymen Holding Their Annual Conference in Duluth.

Will Be Followed By Meeting of Women's Auxiliary Thursday.

The annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of Duluth is being held today at Trinity Pro-Cathedral. It opened this morning with a sermon by Archdeacon Parshall, and immediately after this service the convention was called to order, Bishop Morrison presiding.

At 12:30 o'clock lunch was served and the convention resumed its session at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The business will probably be completed this evening, but if not the convention will be continued tomorrow.

This evening the Sunday school commission will meet in St. Paul's church, when the annual report of the Sunday schools will be read.

On Thursday at 9:30 a. m. the annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Diocese of Duluth will be held in the pro-cathedral.

On Thursday evening at 8 o'clock a reception will be given to the members of the convention and of the Women's auxiliary and the churchmen of Duluth at the Episcopal residence.

At the meeting of the women's auxiliary, the bishop will speak. His address will be followed by a business meeting and a luncheon. At 3 p. m. Miss Grace Lindley will give an address, and this will be followed by a talk by Miss Baker, a returned missionary from Japan.

ELKS HAVING SPORT.

Fun-Making Winds Up Fargo State Meet.

Fargo, N. D., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.) — This is the last day of the State Association of Elks' meet, it being devoted entirely to fun, including the big parade and other features.

The program for the afternoon was given at the state fair grounds. Presentation of the four cups won last night in the auto parade were made as well as the six cups for various features of this morning's parade in front of the grandstand. This was followed by the aviation exhibition by Lucky Bob St. Henry, the balloon ascension by George H. Webster, a local member, and four harness events. The farewell reception to visitors will occur at the club rooms at 8 o'clock this evening.

The following officers were elected: President, Charles Klaus, Jamestown; vice president, L. J. Palda, Minot; secretary, Robert E. Wallace, Jamestown; treasurer, Darby O'Malley, Valley City. The next place of meeting will be Jamestown.

Private Detective Says He Did Not Plan Theft From Soo Road.

Defense in Trial of Alleged Conspiracy Case Is Heard.

It is expected that the Richardson case in district court before Judge Dancer will go to the jury late this afternoon.

The case is one which involves the prosecution of C. F. Richardson, a local private detective, who the state claims was hired by the Soo railroad claim department to induce a man to commit a burglary, and secure his conviction so that it could be brought against him when he appeared to testify against the Soo railroad in a personal injury action tried a few weeks later.

Richardson and L. A. Cunnihgham, a special detective in the employ of the railroad company, were jointly indicted for grand larceny, second degree for aiding and abetting one Hugh McKinnon to commit a similar offense in the stealing of several tubs of butter from the Soo merchandise sheds last March. McKinnon confided in detectives who were placed on his trail, fell into their trap and was caught red-handed while burglarizing the freight sheds.

E. J. Kenney and H. B. Fryberger, attorneys for Richardson, at the inception of the trial, moved the court to dismiss the indictment on a point of law claiming that if the detectives employed by the Soo helped McKinnon steal and did so with the consent and knowledge of the claim department of the railroad, that it constituted no offense. Judge Dancer did not so hold and denied the motion.

Richardson's story of the affair is that he was originally hired by Mr. Fryberger, attorney for the Soo road, to get into touch with McKinnon who was an eye witness to an accident which was made the basis for a personal injury suit and to find out if he would be willing to testify in the railroad's favor at the trial.

On cross-examination today, Richardson admitted that although he had been detailed to look up the personal injury matter for Mr. Fryberger and that he had spent two or more days with McKinnon that he never as much as intimated to McKinnon anything with regard to the personal injury suit.

Mr. Fryberger Drew Out.

Richardson's testimony was that when he first met McKinnon that the latter although the men were strangers, sized him up as a "yeggman," and that McKinnon boasted of some of the jobs he had "pulled off." Deeming this of importance, Richardson said, he communicated the information to Mr. Fryberger. Richardson stated that Mr. Fryberger then refused to have anything more to do with the McKinnon matter, because he did not want a "crook" and a "bad man" for a witness.

Richardson testified that he then took the matter up with the claim department of the road. The day before the burglary took place, McKinnon came to him, he said and suggested that they rob a saloon. Richardson said that he had refused. McKinnon then suggested another place on Superior street mentioning no name, the defendant testified. McKinnon also wanted to steal from the time-freight of the Northern Pacific road, said Richardson, who claims that he also turned down this proposition. Finally, the witness testified, McKinnon suggested pilfering the Soo freight sheds. Richardson fell in with this idea.

E. J. Williams, special agent for the Northern Pacific road, was put on the stand to testify that after Richardson had learned of McKinnon's plan to rob the time-freight that the detective had informed him and had told him to be on the lookout. A. C. Taylor, claim agent for the Soo, also testified in behalf of Richardson bearing out the defendant's story.

The claim of the state throughout the trial has been that Richardson put the idea of the Soo freight shed robbery into McKinnon's head and carefully laid out the plans for the job so that McKinnon's could be caught with the goods on him. McKinnon's testimony was to this effect.

Assistant County Attorney Greene is handling the case for the state.

AUTOMOBILE THIEVES ABANDON MACHINE.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Automobile thieves who stole a car from H. W. Ausbury of this city failed to get away with their haul, meeting with an accident and being compelled to abandon the machine at Mallory, Minn., when it was found lying in the ditch. The thieves had evidently been making high speed in the darkness, and at a turn of the road, went into the ditch where they disabled the machine. Officials are without clues as to who the thieves were.

ITINERARY ANNOUNCED

Duluth Boosters Will Visit Every Town on the Ranges.

Will Spend Three Days Calling on Their Northern Neighbors.

The first trade extension excursion under the direction of the wholesalers' committee of the Commercial club, will be held next week. The excursionists will leave Duluth Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock and will spend three days on the range, returning Thursday evening.

A good crowd is lining up for the excursion. All lines of business are expected to be represented. While wholesale dealers have been most prominent in arranging the excursions, the trips to be held during the year will be general boosting trips, that will carry messages of friendship from the city to the smaller towns in the surrounding territory.

The special train for the range excursion will go out over the Duluth & Iron Range tracks, visiting Two Harbors, Tower, Ely and other towns on the first day, going to Virginia for the night. On the second day, Coleraine, Bovey and the other towns on that branch of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern will be visited, the train going to Hibbing for the night. The third day will be given to the towns on the line between Hibbing and Duluth.

Nearly every town on the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges will be visited. In some only a short time will be spent, but in the larger towns enough time will be given to allow the excursionists to get in touch with the business men and to spread the Duluth spirit. At Coleraine an opportunity will be afforded for a visit to the washing plant, and some time will be given to visiting the mines at different points.

Business houses are being enlisted for the excursion next week and for two others to be held during the year. The second excursion will be to International Falls and other border towns, and the third will be a boat trip to the Copper country of Michigan.

PLAN ATTACK UPON MEXICO

Orozco Gives Sanction to Proposal Made By Zapata.

Rebels May Issue Bonds to Raise Needed Money.

Chihuahua, June 5.—Gen. Pasquale Orozco, chief of the revolution in Northern Mexico, has formally sanctioned an attack on the City of Mexico by Emiliano Zapata, rebel leader in the south.

An emissary from Zapata was informed by Orozco that he would permit the attack on the Mexican capital provided the southern leader would not molest foreigners and could dominate the situation. The sending of the envoy to Orozco confirms earlier claims of the rebels in the north that they are acting in unison with those in the south against President Madero.

Reinforce Rojas.

Reinforcements were sent south from here today to support the vanguard of the rebels under Col. Antonio Rojas at Santa Rosalia, forty-six miles north of the federal base at Jiminez.

Persistent reports here are that Gen. Huerta has moved his federal forces no considerable distance north of Jiminez. The rebel cavalry may be moved southward to harass him, as he has sent most of his own cavalry on a flank movement west of this city.

Infantry and artillery alone remain in Huerta's columns, and the rebels may take advantage of this condition by sending bands of mounted men into the vicinity now held by the federals. Prospects of an engagement at Bachimba between the main bodies of the two armies are as yet remote.

Rebels May Issue Bonds.

Gen. Pasquale Orozco came here today from Bachimba to discuss certain subjects pending before the state legislature, now in session. One of the measures under discussion provided for the raising of needed funds, it being contemplated to issue short time interest bearing bonds of small denominations. The payment of these will be guaranteed by the state and they may be used as currency.

The Mexican congressmen who have come here from the city of Mexico to talk peace with Gen. Orozco were in conference with him today. The congressmen were stopped, they declare, at Neuvo Laredo, Mex., by secret service men of the Mexican federal government, but managed to get across the American boundary on their way to Juarez. They claim they represent a faction of the Mexican congress which will recognize Orozco if he lays down his arms.

CASS LAKE FIREMEN ACCEPT O'NEIL'S CHALLENGE

Cass Lake, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The firemen held their regular monthly meeting Monday evening, and while they were making allowances for the expenses of the delegations to the Coleraine tournament and also the state meeting at Minneapolis this month, William O'Neil, president of the Commercial club, challenged the firemen to a game of baseball to be played next Sunday afternoon. The firemen accepted the challenge.

The proceeds of the game will be used towards completing the sidewalk to the new docks on the lake.

PEOPLE'S BREWING COMPANY

Annual Election of Officers—Ten Per Cent Dividend to Stockholders.

The sixth annual meeting of the stockholders of the Peoples' Brewing company was held at the company's premises Tuesday afternoon, June 4. The officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Frank G. Sandstedt; vice president, M. J. Fillotrault; Theodore Frerker, secretary; A. V. Anderson, treasurer; board of directors, Charles Peterson, Mike Gleason, Matt J. Doyle, Eveleth, and Henry Tohmfor of Chisholm. The officers for the past year were thanked for their achievements during their term of office. The company declared a 10 per cent dividend to its shareholders, 3 per cent more than last year, and checks were issued for this amount. A new addition was made to the plant in the bottling department during the year and it has acquired more land around its present site to meet the growing demands of the plant. President Frank Sandstedt, who was re-elected to the office as its president again the coming year, was given a hearty vote of thanks for the manner in which he has conducted and financed the affairs of the stockholders.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

SPECIAL IS BIG MAGNET

Farmers All Along Line of M. & I. Turn Out to Greet Train.

Growth and Development of Northern Minnesota Surprise All.

Northome, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rain and wind storms at a number of places touched by the Northern Pacific agricultural special have cut down the attendance somewhat, but the attendance at the places visited on the Minnesota & International railway since the train left Brainerd Friday morning has been quite large. One noticeable feature is the great interest that is being taken in the subjects of dairying and potato growing. Almost all of the farmers who have handed in their names with the request that specialists visit them in the future, have asked for help along these lines. The potato planters and diggers that are shown in the machinery car have excited much interest and at many places groups of farmers have decided to join together and buy the implements they need to handle a large acreage of this crop. Farmers who have heretofore grown only sufficient potatoes for their own use are planning on raising from three to twenty acres each. Efforts are also being made to get pure bred dairy sires in the communities, some breed being selected as the only kind to be raised in the neighborhood.

Maxfield Is Pleased.

State Immigration Commissioner Maxfield, who joined the special at Bemidji Sunday, is spending the time at the various stops in getting acquainted with the settlers and studying the conditions in Beltrami and Koochiching counties. "I am greatly pleased with the way the people are coming into this country," he said, "buying the land and making permanent homes. At Bemidji we noticed evidences of prosperity among the farmers and a general desire to do better farming. At Tenstrike they told us they had secured more new settlers since January last than they had acquired in the preceding ten years. At Kelliher I was told that a great many new settlers had arrived there this spring, bought land and were now building their homes and commencing their clearings. A great many people have gone to take up homestead lands north of upper Red lake. Practically all of the homestead land south of upper Red lake in the vicinity of Foy and Sauk, has been taken up, excepting the swamp lands. The Crookston Lumber company has sold 10,000 acres to actual settlers since Jan. 1. J. J. Opsahl of Bemidji has sold over 2,000 acres to actual settlers this spring. These facts augur well for Northern Minnesota and its future development."

D. A. Wallace, editor of The Farmer, joined the train at Blackduck yesterday. Mr. Wallace is particularly interested in the development of Northern Minnesota. "The signs of agricultural development are particularly encouraging throughout Northern Minnesota this spring," he declared, "this being especially true of those districts traversed the past week by the agricultural special. Weather conditions have been ideal for the hay and pasture crops, also for the preparation of ground for cultivated crops. Such small grain as has been planted has been stooling heavily during the cool weather and should yield heavily. The rapid influx of settlers which has taken place during the past six months is evidenced on every hand and indicates a continued demand for Northern Minnesota lands during the coming year. At all the towns visited by the agricultural special train the attendance of farmers has been unusually large and the talks on dairying, potato growing and stock growing, all mainstays of the man who expects to make a real success in the pioneer districts of our state, have been listened to with the greatest of interest. Northern Minnesota, by all signs, should make great strides the coming year."

NATIONAL CHURCH MEET AT MARQUETTE

Finnish Evangelical Lutherans in Session in Michigan City.

Marquette, Mich., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.) — With delegates present from all over the country, including Canada, the fourteenth annual convention of the Finnish Evangelical Lutheran National Church of America began here today and will conclude Friday. There will be many notable features, the most important of which will be the dedication of the church which was recently completed. The church will be dedicated tonight at 8 o'clock, and the people of Marquette are cordially invited.

EPISCOPAL MEETING.

Annual Convocation of Marquette Diocese On at Ishpeming.

Ishpeming, Mich., June 5.—The annual convocation of the Episcopal church of the Marquette diocese is being held here today with lay and clerical delegates present from all parts of the Upper Peninsula.

The meeting began this morning with holy communion at 7 a. m. Morning prayer was read at 8:30 a. m., and the business session began at 9:30. The session will continue throughout the day with Bishop Williams presiding. At 7 p. m. there will be services, at which Rev. W. L. Rogers of Detroit will preach the convention sermon. Mr. Rogers is interested in the Men and Religion Forward Movement, and is a good speaker. The public is invited to all the sessions.

FOUR CONVICTS BREAK FROM MICHIGAN PRISON.

Jackson, Mich., May 5.—Chester Tibbits, a trusty, was the fourth convict to escape from Jackson prison within twenty-four hours. Tibbits obtained his freedom on Monday by tying two pieces of scantling together and scaling the prison wall. He had been a model prisoner and was night fireman in the engine room. Three other prisoners, Howard Combs, William Wilson and William Miley, escaped on Sunday, but Combs and Wilson were captured. The officers have been unable to find any trace of Tibbits or Miley.

IRON RIVER MINE WILL SOON SHIP

Jones & Laughlin's New Property, Well Equipped, to Be Worked Extensively.

Iron River, Mich., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Jones & Laughlin company's new mine here, of which Will Walters, second son of Capt. Thomas Walters of Ishpeming, is superintendent, will soon begin shipping. The mining of ore has been started on a small scale. Only one drift, at a depth of 175 feet from surface, has been opened. The shaft in which work was started last fall is now down 200 feet, and it is to be sunk some distance farther. Before the end of the year ore will be coming from two, and possibly three, drifts.

Mr. Wallace has made an excellent record at the new mine. It is now well equipped with buildings, with the exception of a barn, which will be constructed within a month or so. All of the machinery is now in position and a fairly large tonnage of ore will be mined and shipped this year.

BURGLAR TAKES A FALL.

Noise Arouses Calumet Man and Intruder Is Arrested.

Calumet, Mich., June 5.—G. E. Bromley, a negro porter employed on one of the South Shore trains entering Calumet, was arrested by Marshal Trudell in the Central hotel early Sunday morning, charged with burglary. He was arraigned before Justice Fisher and demanded an examination, which was set for Saturday morning.

It is charged Bromley attempted to enter through the transom of a room occupied by Tony Semans, and that he lost his balance and fell to the floor, the noise awakening Semans. Although the alleged intruder made a hasty exit, Semans is said to have followed him to a room across the hall, and then gave the alarm. The arrest followed. Semans had a purse containing about $13 on his dresser.

Semans, the complaining witness, himself landed in court Monday, having been arrested on complaint of Johnson Bros., proprietors of the Wolverine livery, charged with over-driving a horse. He entered a plea of guilty and was fined $25 and costs.

PLANNING FOR PICNIC.

Calumet & Hecla Miners Arranging for Annual Event.

Calumet, Mich., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Calumet & Hecla miners at a well attended meeting, laid the plans for the annual picnic in Tamarack park, Aug. 10, by naming the following officers to have general charge of the big event: Chairman, Richard Tucker; secretary, Ed. Anderson; assistant secretary, Harry Williams; treasurer, Peter Hammes; grand marshal, A. Barrett; aides, Henry Warren and C. Weekes.

Committees—Refreshment J. Brown and Ed. Huber; fruit, J. Brown and W. T. Phillips; gate, Richard Andrews; sports, Hjelmar Kumbela.

Other committees will be appointed at the next meeting to be held Saturday afternoon at the same place, and the above committees will be augmented.

Bids are to be advertised for bands of music to take part in the parade and also play at the park during the afternoon and evening. Other details for the picnic, including the selection of a speaker, chairman of the day, etc., will be arranged for at subsequent meetings.

SUICIDE IN CEMETERY.

Missing St. Cloud Man Found Hanging to Small Tree.

St. Cloud, Minn., June 5.—The lifeless body of John Warner, aged 57, who has been missing from his home since May 25, was discovered by Max Hieber, Jr., hanging on a small tree in the woods west of North Star cemetery, as he was on his way to visit the grave of his dead mother. The body when found was in a sitting position, as the tree had bent on account of the weight of the man. The man had used a handkerchief which he tore in strips to commit the act. He came to this city five years ago from Morris, Minn., and worked at the Great Northern car shops.

The deceased is survived by his wife and six children, four boys and two girls. They are Thomas, John, Peter, William and Mary of this city and Elizabeth (Sister Slorina) of Milwaukee.

TO BE NOMINATED IN SECOND NORTH DAKOTA

J. A. MINCKLER.

Knox, N. D., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is expected J. A. Minckler of this city will be nominated, without opposition, as the Democratic candidate for congress from the Second district. For a time it appeared that there would be opposition, but the members of the party finally got together. Mr. Minckler has resided in Knox twelve years, being engaged in the banking business. He is a native of Maine, where he was born forty years ago, and a graduate of the University of Wisconsin.

BURKE'S NAME NOT TO BE PRESENTED

Bismarck Has It Governor's Name Will Not Be Offered.

Bismarck, N. D., June 5.—It is reported here that the North Dakota delegates to the Democratic national convention has decided not to present Governor Burke's name for president, though they were instructed by the vote of the March primaries.

As Governor Wilson is the second choice of North Dakota Democrats, it is expected he will receive the support of the North Dakota delegation.

SOUTH DAKOTANS BUY.

Pleased With Land in Vicinity of Cass Lake.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Elmer Drew and Thomas Young of South Dakota came here to look over some lands in this vicinity with a view to purchasing. One look at the Dr. G. A. Christensen place on the shores of Little Wolf lake northwest of town was enough to satisfy them and they closed the deal immediately. Next morning they were both busy making a start on planting a large field to potatoes. Their families will arrive in a few weeks.

Akeley Ball Club Fight.

Several members of the Akeley ball team engaged in a fight on the Great Northern depot platform early yesterday morning while on their way home from Grand Rapids. Those engaged in the encounter were Indians and one of them received several cuts about the head which required the services of a physician to patch up. The Akeley team won from Grand Rapids Monday afternoon by the same score by which they defeated Cass Lake the day previous, 3 to 2.

FATAL "SMEARCASE."

Cottage Cheese Kills Husband and Wife and Chickens.

Camp Crook, S. D., June 5.—Ptomaine poisoning, due to eating "smearcase" or cottage cheese improperly made, resulted in two deaths and may cause another and killed a flock of chickens at the ranch of Matt Pederson near Willett, in the northern part of this state.

The cheese was eaten by Matt Pederson, his wife and her brother, Nels Nelson of Hettinger, N. D., who arrived just after Pederson had died. Mrs. Pederson and her husband ate the cheese at the same time, Mrs. Pederson being seized with an attack of paralysis first, dying in a few hours. Her husband died the next day.

When Nelson arrived he, too, ate the cheese and is not expected to live.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Eau Claire—An important business deal was closed Tuesday when the Huebsch Laundry company purchased from the Eau Claire Industrial Corporation the big factory building at the north end of the Dewey street bridge and which is better known as the Gotzian building. The amount of the consideration was not given out.

Madison—The program for the state convention of Prohibitionists to be held in Madison on June 11 and 12 includes a banquet, business sessions and a street parade. The convention will be held in the Y. M. C. A. building at the university. The convention proper will be preceded by a popular banquet to be held in the university Y. M. C. A. dining room on Monday night, June 10. Among the speakers is E. W. Chafin, Prohibition candidate for president.

Tomahawk—J. W. Elliot, formerly of the general offices of the Soo line in Chicago, has accepted the position of superintendent of the trade and commerce at Tomahawk. Mr. Elliot will act as industrial secretary of the Tomahawk Advancement association.

Oshkosh—Mike Xempis, a Greek laborer, while working alone in the grinding room of the Diamond Match company's plant, was badly burned when he stepped on the composition on the floor, causing an explosion. The explosion set fire to the room and threatened a serious blaze, but the flames were confined to the grinding room.

Hudson—Len Schofield, 2 years of age, a painter and paperhanger of River Falls, died of heart failure after dancing on the excursion steamer Frontenac on Lake St. Croix Monday.

Ashland—Harry George and little daughter Grace of Duluth are visiting in the city with their aunt and uncle Mr. and Mrs. Guy Burnham.

Fond du Lac—A telegram received here said that Mrs. Frederick Rueping and party set sail at Bremen June 1, bringing home the body of Frederick Rueping, who died abroad. They expect to reach Fond du Lac next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Eau Claire—The work of closing up the break in the Dells dam caused by the big gate at the extreme west end of the dam being carried out Friday has been practically completed, and it was expected it would be open soon and all gates in the dam would be closed up so that the head of water above the dam would be restored to its normal level.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Negaunee—Rev. E. V. Saarinen, for the past five years the pastor of the Finnish Lutheran church, and wife, left Tuesday for Chicago, enroute to New York whence he will sail for Europe. After visiting in Paris, he will go to Finland, where he intends to remain.

Marquette—Rev. Mr. Sebastian Maier, who is affiliated with the Marquette diocese, has arrived from Germany, where he went, following his ordination to the priesthood, to give his first mass and where he spent about two months at his home. Rev. Maier completed a three years' theological course at Quebec, March 3.

Houghton—Dr. William P. Scott, health officer of Portage township, is planning the most important campaign for pure food ever attempted in Houghton. The plan is to prosecute dealers who leave food exposed to flies.

Ishpeming—The city is now working a force of about twenty-five men and ten teams on new street work. About sixteen men are employed steadily at the crusher plant, located in the gravel pit, near St. Lawrence mine.

Ishpeming—Residents of the North Lake and Dexter locations will not have a rural free delivery route at present, their petition asking for one having been turned down by the postal authorities. The reason for the action of the authorities is the fact that the route out and the route back would be identical for four miles.

Marquette—Arrangements have been made between the owners of the Marquette opera house and Hampton Durand, who came here last week as pianist of the theater, whereby Mr. Durand becomes manager of the opera house for the summer and the coming regular season.

Calumet—John Plautz of Lake View was arrested Saturday, charged with threatening to kill Anton Bent, who also lives at Lake View. He denied the allegation and demanded a trial which was set for Thursday, June 6 by Justice Jackola. He was released on bonds in the amount of $200.

Hancock—The baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of 1912 of the Hancock high school will be preached Sunday evening, June 16 at the Hancock Congregational church by the pastor, Rev. Mandus Barrett.

Calumet—Abel Immonen, aged 40, died Monday morning at the family residence, Laurium, of cancer. He is survived by a wife and five children. The funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon.

Calumet—Copper Country Shriners will go to Marquette, June 12 to take in the annual mid-summer business and ceremonial session of Ahmed temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

East Grand Forks—Practically all of the teachers who taught here during the past school year have left the city for their homes or for some summer resort where they will spend their vacation. Several of them are remaining in the city until after the Grand Forks oratorio music festival.

Bemidji—Mrs. Tina Caswell, 17 years old, married nine months ago, and who recently has been employed as kitchen girl in a Bemidji hotel, became violently insane and has been sent to the state hospital at Fergus Falls.

Luverne—The presence of a complete family circle and a large number of relatives and friends from a distance marked the celebration of the sixtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cheney Drew, at their home in this city Saturday.

Bemidji—Frank Slipp of Baudette has completed a deal whereby he leased the Riverside hotel from the Hamm Brewing company. Mr. Slipp will take charge immediately and is making arrangements for the reopening of the hotel. The company will make many improvements to the house.

Crookston—J. A. Hendricks is a candidate for county attorney for Polk county on the Republican ticket. He is a native of Minnesota, born in Dakota county in 1865, afterwards residing in Carver and Renville counties. In February, 1895, he opened his law office at Fosston, where he has been in active practice up to the present time.

International Falls—A papermaker lost his watch last week, it being stolen from his clothes in his locker while he was at work. The police on Saturday arrested Jim Chambers, an Austrian, for the theft, and Monday in municipal court he was convicted and sentenced to serve sixty days at the county jail.

St. Cloud—On the noon train that passed through this city Monday there were about twenty deaf mutes from the Faribault school. They are on their way home to different parts of the state, where they will spend their summer vacation.

Spooner — Mrs. Margretto Morden, wife of Robert Morden, assistant electrician for the Shevlin-Mathieu company, died Thursday afternoon at their residence in Baudette after but a brief period of illness from lobar pneumonia.

Moorhead — William Crossman received a wire from Mrs. J. M. Bayer stating that his mother, Mrs. Charles H. Loud of 77 North Third street, San Jose, Cal., formerly of Moorhead, was dead.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Mandan, N. D.—Fire broke out Sunday night in the Beviers millinery store and the stock of the establishment was damaged to the extent of $300, which was fully covered by insurance. The fire was caused by crossed electric wires in the display window.

WANT MINNESOTA LAND FUNDS FOR DRAINAGE.

Chicago, June 5.—The executive committee of the national drainage congress has decided to ask the federal government to begin at once a survey for a system of drainage of the swamp and over-flowed lands of the country. The committee decided to ask congress to set aside as a drainage fund all money received from the sale since June, 1905, of public lands in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin.

The recent floods along the Mississippi river were set forth as showing an urgent need of a drainage system. Both the Republican and the Democratic conventions are to be asked to favor the drainage system in their party platforms.

STOCK FEED HAS A DROP

Bran and Shorts Show Decline From High Price Levels

Wet Spring Has Caused Luxuriant Growth of Grass.

Stock feed of all kinds is still very high, but it has lately taken quite a drop. This is true of bran, shorts, oats and hay, and to some extent of corn. The wet spring weather has caused a luxuriant growth of grass in many parts of the country, and the result is that the demand for feed has fallen off enormously, and the prices have necessarily come down.

Bran and shorts have been very high all winter and through the early spring. The rise in the price started last fall by German purchasers, who, being extremely short of such feed in their own country, bought immense quantities of it in the United States and shipped it across the Atlantic. Moreover, the demand for flour during the winter has been poor, and in consequence the flour mills have been doing less grinding, and thus producing less of the bran and shorts than would have been the case with business in a normal condition. Thus there has been a big demand of these by-products at the very time when small quantities of them were being produced.

Bran last April was selling locally at $25 a ton. It is now selling at $22 a ton. Local feed dealers expect it to go much lower in the near future. Under normal conditions, it would be bringing $16 to $18 a ton at this time of the year.

Shorts last April were bringing locally $26 to $27 a ton. The present price is $23.50. If conditions were normal it would be $14 to $16.

Oats likewise have been gradually working done. There was a short crop of oats last year. A month ago oats were selling at Duluth for 56 and 57 cents a bushel. They are now almost down to 50 cents a bushel. Local feed dealers expect them to be selling as low as 40 to 40 cents a bushel in July. In the middle of June, 1910, oats were bringing 38 cents a bushel and in the middle of June, 1911, 39 cents. Those were about normal prices.

Hay is on the down grade. No. 1 prairie, however, is still at $16 a ton. Usually at this season of the year it is seling for about $12. The floods in the South were the main factor in putting up the price of hay this spring. The Southern crop of last year was short, but the floods swept away vast quantities of stacked hay from the fields and carried it down stream. As a result there has been an enormous Southern demand for Northern hay. Growing pastures, however, have lessened this demand, and the demand in other parts of the country and it is believed that there will be a steady decline in the price of this product for some time.

Corn is now selling at 80 to 85 cents. It has declined only a little, being drawn down a few cents in sympathy with the downward movement of other kinds of feed. As a rule at this time of the year it is bringing about 60 cents a bushel. Last year's corn crop was of poor quality for the most part, containing too much moisture, and much of it had to be kiln-dried, before it was salable at all. Hence, the price rose. There is usually a very small movement of corn in the late spring and summer and it is not used much for feeding, being too heating for horses and stock. In September, when the weather grows cooler, the price will probably stiffen. As a rule there is no new corn upon the market before December. What is sold at Duluth comes for the most part from South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska.

WILL FRAME WISCONSIN CONSERVATION PLANS.

Madison, Wis., June 4.—To furnish the governor and legislature with complete information regarding the policy to be pursued for the conservation of the natural resources of Wisconsin, the state conservation commission will prepare a series of reports covering all phases of the problem. At a meeting of the commission next October the reports will be submitted wth recommendations for future legislation.

BANQUET ENDS YEAR'S ACTIVITY

La Salle Literary Society Members Have Dinner at St. Louis Hotel.

The La Salle Literary society of the Cathedral high school held its annual banquet last evening at the St. Louis hotel, closing a successful year. Covers were laid for thirty.

Although the society has been organized less than one year, it has put on two dramatic performances and several oratorical and extemporaneous speaking contests. The aim of the society is to promote public speaking among the students of the Cathedral school.

Following the dinner last evening, there was a program of speeches and music. The officers and some of the members of the society made short speeches appropriate to the occasion. During the course of the after-dinner program there were expressions of regret at the separation of the senior class from further connection with the society on account of graduation. The dining room was elaborately decorated with the schol colors.

Those present were: Michael Ahern, Edward Casey, Edward Dillon, William Daugherty, Joseph L. Gruesen, John J. Hock, A. McDowell, James Patt, Emil Ruf, Harry Ryan, Al. Scanlon, Walter Toben, George Wagner, Emil Belanger, Archie Boisjoli, Frank Daugherty, Joseph Dillon, William Fitzgerald, Clarus Graves, Edm. Killeen, Frank Kelly, James Lamb, Cletus Lee, Joseph Murphy, Thomas Patterson, Henry Summers, John Sullivan, Leslie Sutton, George Walker.

The officers of the society are: President, Harry Ryan; vice president, James Lamb; secretary, Edward Dillon; treasurer, John L. Sullivan; critic, James Patt; historian, William Fitzgerald; sergeant-at-arms, Emil Belanger; moderator, Brother Victor.

FAKE SOLICITORS.

Tae season of fake charity solicitors is with us again.

Yesterday the attention of the Associated Charities was called to a woman engaged in this kind of business.

She told a pitiful story that would soften the heart of a sphynx and asked for money.

She said among other things that her husband had lost his leg three months ago and that there were starving children at home.

Her address was given as 248 Garfield avenue. The Associated Charities investigated and found that the woman did not live there.

Secretary Dinwiddie believes that all cases of charity beggars should be investigated in order that imposters may be detected.

EXHIBIT AT COURTHOUSE

Duluth Art Lovers Are Promised a Treat for Next Ten Days.

Rare Paintings, Sculpture and Handicraft May Be Seen Without Charge.

Duluth art lovers will find much of interest in the big free art exhibit which will be held for ten days beginning tomorrow evening at the court house. The exhibition will consist of paintings, sculpture work, handicraft, artistic photography, etchings, etc., and will be shown by the Minnesota State Art society under the auspices of the Duluth Art association.

Not only will hundreds of handsome pieces of work be exhibited, but several lectures and demonstrations will be given during the course of the exhibit by well known local and out-of-town artists and speakers. Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the University of Minnesota and Bishop McGolrick of this city will be among the speakers.

The opening address will be delivered by President Vincent tomorrow evening. Arrangements have been made for the use of the large corridor on the third floor of the courthouse building for this meeting which will, of course, be open to the general public. The meeting has been called for 8 o'clock.

During the following ten days interesting lectures and demonstrations will be given in connection with the exhibit. One of the features of the lecture course will be illustrated talks on "Town and City Planning" which will be delivered by Mrs. Lenora Hamblin of St. Paul.

Bishop McGolrick will on Thursday next week deliver a lecture on "American Art." On Monday, a St. Paul sculptor will give demonstrations in clay modeling. Demonstrations in weaving and lacemaking as well as on other handicraft topics will be given at various times during the exhibit.

American Work.

The pictures and paintings, of which about 130 will be shown, are modern American work, selected from current collections. Several have been loaned from the Art Institute of Chicago, the American Federation of Art at New York, and the McDowell Art club of New York.

Perhaps half of the paintings exhibited will be Minnesota work. Although most of the Minnesota pictures shown will be from the brush of the Twin City artists, Duluth will be represented in the collection. C. S. Rosenkranz, 7 West Superior street, this city, has three pictures which will be shown. The topics are "Summer," "The Poplars," "The Hornbean Tree, Winter." The paintings will be exhibited on the fifth floor of the court house.

No less interesting than the pictures will be the sculpture work on exhibit. One of the attractions in this collection will be three statuettes by Prince Paul Troubitsky of Chicago, who has been holding a series of exhibits of his work in various art centers of the country. Mrs. Jessie Neal of St. Paul also has an interesting series of statuettes in plaster which will be shown. They are said to be very virile and life-like.

The art craft work will make up an attractive section of the exhibit. Among the art craft work, perhaps the largest single exhibit from an individual is that contributed by James H. Wynn of Chicago, who has a fine collection of jewelry, among which is a jewel casket of silver with pearl and onyx. This casket is valued at $1,600.

In the handicraft exhibit a collection of drawings, sketches and designs for city planning and civic art work will be shown. There will also be an interesting lecture in connection with this feature of the exhibit. The art craft work will be exhibited on the third floor of the courthouse in the grand jury and juvenile courtrooms.

Program.

The program for the ten days of the exhibit is as follows:

Thursday, June 6, 8 p. m.—President Vincent, opening address.

Saturday, June 8, 3 p. m.—Mrs. Andreas Ueland of Minneapolis, chairman of the handicraft committee of the Federated Woman's clubs, "Foreign Handcrafts and Their Relation to Minnesota;" 8 p. m., Mrs. Ueland, assisted by Mrs. Selma Jager, who will demonstrate lacemaking, "The Craft of Lacemaking and Its Possibilities in Minnesota."

Monday, June 10, 3 p. m. and 8 p. m.—Charles Broschi, sculptor, of St. Paul, demonstrations in modeling.

Tuesday, June 11, 3 p. m.—Mrs Henrietta Olberg of Minneapolis, "Flax and Its Artistic Possibilities in Minnesota;" 8 p. m., Mrs. Olberg, "Scandinavian Handicraft and Its Relation to Duluth."

Wednesday, June 12, 3 p. m. and 8 p. m.—Mrs. Lenora Hamblin of St. Paul, "City Planning," illustrated by lantern slides and plans in the exhibit.

Thursday, June 13, 8 p. m.—Bishop McGolrick, "American Art."

Friday, June 14, 8 p. m.—Allen Albert, associate publisher of Minneapolis Tribune, "Pictures of the State Art Association."

The exhibits will be open from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily. Catalogues of the articles shown may be had for a nominal charge to cover the cost of printing.

Stillwater Waiter Drowns.

Stillwater, Minn., June 5.—Jack Tawner, aged 27, a waiter at the Stillwater club and the Grand cafe, was drowned while bathing in the St. Croix river Monday evening. He had gone up the river in a canoe with a friend. He was clad in a bathing suit and was drowned after being seized with cramps. The body was recovered in a little over an hour.

For New Vitality Send Me The Free Coupon

There is today no excuse for any man remaining weak. The vital, manly man is admired by all men as well as all women; there is an influence about him no one can resist; he knows no fear; he knows no weakness; he knows no result of debility. It is this same VITALITY which carries our young soldiers to war without thought of death. Vitality, reader, is what you MUST have if you would enjoy all there is in a life of health, strength and manly vigor. I can give you this same life and vitality: if I can do for you what I am doing for thousands of others I can put the vigor of youth into your blood and nerves; I can make you feel young again and keep you feeling young; I can drive away all debility, weakness and despondency. You will laugh at trouble, you will tackle obstacles with the vim to win, just as all other hearty, vital men may do. I don't ask you to use drugs, I ask no change in your present mode of living; just cease all dissipation and then use my HEALTH BELT. All else will come My Health Belt with suspensory attachment is the greatest nature cure and VITALITY supply that the world has ever known or probably ever will know. Nothing is taken for granted; you feel better immediately, at once, from the first time used. Worn all night while you sleep, it pours a great stream of Vitality and energy into your weakened system; it is a wonder working giant of power; made as I now make it, I am getting results of which no man ever dreamed. Just think, over ten thousand men applied to me during the month of February; I am now sending great shipments of my Health Belt to every part of the civilized world. There is a reason I am curing; I am giving men back their lost strength. It makes you feel ambitious, full of vim; you awaken mornings sparkling with bright, clear-eyed, clear-brained health; the weakness has all disappeared from your back; you are "just feeling fine." Special attachments to my Health Belt cure rheumatism, kidney, liver and stomach trouble.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE CONVENTION

Some Gossip of the Delegates Who Are Here for the State Democratic Gathering.

Former Senator F. E. Dutoit is one of the interesting convention delegates. Mr. Dutoit comes from Chaska in Carver county, where he has lived since 1856 and has published the Valley Herald since 1866. Mr. Dutoit has had a long career as a holder of public office. When he was 21 years old, he was elected county superintendent of schools of Carver county and he held the office for two terms. He was sheriff for twenty-one years following and then was appointed court commissioner, holding that office four years. He was three times elected state senator from a strong Republican district. After twelve years of service in the senate, he declined to be a candidate two years ago. He is a receptive candidate for presidential elector at the convention here.

W. A. Burnett of Park Rapids, a candidate for delegate from the Sixth district, arrived this morning at the head of the Hubbard county delegation.

George B. Lowry and D. S. Carraway of Fergus Falls were among the early arrivals last night. They expect others of the Otter Tail county delegation to arrive this evening. The delegation is uninstructed, but is thought to be for Wilson.

Z. H. Austin and Guy Thomas of Minneapolis are holding up the Bryan end. They say they will make no move for Bryan instructions, but that Wilson instructions will be practically an indorsement of Bryan and a delegation instructed for Wilson would go for Bryan if it should become advisable.

E. R. Ribenack, representative in the legislature from the Fiftieth district, arrived home this morning to attend the convention. He says that nearly all of the Democratic members of the legislature will arrive tonight or early tomorrow morning.

The Hennepin county delegation will caucus at the Spalding at 8 o'clock tonight. It is expected to vote as a unit for Lynch for the national committeeman indorsement.

C. A. Quist of Minneapolis arrived this morning and mixed with the crowd in the lobby of the Spalding.

T. O'Connor and R. T. Daly of Renville arrived this morning. They each want the other to run for delegate-at-large.

Fred B. Lynch believes that strong Wilson instructions should be given, with a provision that the delegation shall vote for a Progressive Democrat if the nomination of Wilson should become impossible. Mr. Lynch believes Wilson's nomination is not only possible, but probable.

* * *

D. D. Daly, chairman of the state central committee, believes that P. M. Ringdal of Crookston is the strongest man the Democrats of Minnesota could nominate for governor. He believes that Ringdal can be induced to file and that Hammond cannot be so persuaded. The people of the Second district want Hammond to run for congress again, and he will listen to the pleas of the home folks, in Mr. Daly's opinion.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

tainty that tomorrow's meeting will not be a lovefeast.

The Ramsey county delegation, which is for Clark will enter protest against the application of the unit rule, which will bind the two Clark delegates from the Fourth district to vote with the majority of the state delegation for Wilson. The fact that ten men are in the field for the six places on the delegation at large, and that there are contests for district delegate places in seven of the nine districts of the state insures the elimination of tameness from the convention.

Delegates Arrive.

Scattering delegations have already arrived in Duluth, but the bulk of the delegates will not arrive until late this afternoon and tonight. The Ramsey county delegation, ninety-five solid for Clark and against Lynch, will arrive on a special train over the Great Northern at about 7 o'clock this evening. The Hennepin county delegation, which is instructed for Wilson, will arrive a little later on a special train over the Omaha. Other delegations from over the state will arrive this evening and by early tonight the lobbies of the hotels will be crowded with delegates.

D. D. Daly of Minneapolis, chairman of the state central committee arrived last evening and took up quarters at the Lenox. He was joined there this morning by Harvey Grimmer of St. Paul, secretary of the committee, who is in charge of headquarters for the distribution of badges and the dissemination of information to the delegates.

National Committeeman Fred B. Lynch is at the Spalding, where the Hennepin county delegation will be quartered. Z. H. Austin of Minneapolis, who is for Bryan above all others but is not opposed to Wilson instructions at the convention here, has opened Bryan headquarters at the Spalding and will also take part in the fight on Lynch.

C. W. Bibb, C. M. Gerber and Frank W. Murray arrived from Minneapolis last night and opened Clark headquarters at the St. Louis. They declare that they are not convinced that the many uninstructed delegates cannot be swung for Clark and they intend to do some work for their man. Their claims are not considered seriously by the Wilson men, who say there is no doubt of the tenor of the instructions.

Executive Committee.

A meeting of the executive of the state central committee has been called this evening at the Lenox, but on account of a caucus of the Hennepin county delegation at the Spalding tonight, the executive committee's meeting will probably be postponed until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. At that time, a decision will be made on the man to be recommended to the convention for temporary chairman. Indications are that Judge M. C. Tiffit of Minneapolis will be the man. For permanent chairman, John M. Freeman of Olivia and Andrew French are spoken of, and one or the other will undoubtedly have the chair.

The fight against the indorsement of Mr. Lynch will furnish the greatest excitement tomorrow. It is coupled with D. W. Lawler's candidacy for delegate-at-large, his candidacy being directed against that of Mr. Lynch. The O'Connor-Murphy-Lawler organization in St. Paul carried the primaries and is bringing a solid Clark delegation to Duluth. Mr. Lynch, who also lives in St. Paul, is for Wilson and opposition to him as national committeeman and as a candidate for delegate-at-large was joined with the opposition to the presidential candidate he favors.

Delegates at Large.

The national committeeman contest will not have a monopoly on the discord, however. Ten candidates are in the field for the six delegate-at-large places. A contest within a contest comes from the Sixth district, where two factions each have a candidate for delegate-at-large, besides two candidates for district delegates. The Stearns county convention indorsed W. F. Donohue of Melrose as candidate for delegate-at-large and J. D. Kowalkowski of St. Cloud for district delegate. A combination between James R. Bennett, Jr., who led the Clark fight in Stearns county, Donohue, Kowalkowski and Joseph Wolf of Staples, who is also a candidate for district delegate, will furnish some excitement, both in the state convention and in the Sixth district caucus. Opposed to them are Con O'Brien, Brainerd, for delegate-at-large and W. A. Burnett of Park Rapids for one of the district places.

There is a harmonious difference of opinion among the Seventh district delegates already here as to their candidate for delegate-at-large. There has been considerable talk of T. O'Connor of Renville and he has many friends on the delegation from the Seventh. Mr. O'Connor will make no active canvass and declares that he would like to see R. T. Daly a candidate. J. M. Freeman of Olivia, who may be permanent chairman of the convention, is also considered.

There was a split in the Winona county convention over the question of supporting L. L. Brown or H. L. Buck for delegate-at-large. The county was against Wilson and the two contesting delegations, which are coming to Duluth, will vote with the Clark men. Mr. Brown's name may be presented to the convention in addition to that of Mr. Buck, but there is a question as to that.

Question of Proxies.

The contest between the Winona county delegations, the credentials committee will be called upon to consider a question over proxies in the Hennepin county delegation. The Hennepin county convention passed a resolution holding that wards might elect delegates to fill vacancies. It is understood the delegation will refuse to accept proxies, and some people who are against the controlling organization will endeavor to gain seats on proxies in the convention.

The convention will open tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Auditorium. The seats in the big building are being arranged by order of congressional districts, so that the congressional district caucuses for the choosing of district delegate may be held without confusion. The convention will be called to order by Chairman Daly of the state central committee.

Up to last night it was thought that Alfred Jaques of Duluth and J. B. Galarneault of Aitkin would be elected delegates from the Eighth district without opposition, but it developed that certain elements opposing Galarneault will bring out C. M. King of Deer River. Mr. King has not expressed himself.

Four candidates in the First district, four in the Second, four in the Third, five in the Sixth, three in the Seventh and six in the Ninth will develop differences of opinion in the district caucuses, so there is no line possible on the personnel of the state delegation to Baltimore.

GOMPERS IS NOT BLAMED

alleged bribery of a juror in the McNamara case.

Mr. Ford added that no attempt would be made by the prosecution to show that either President Samuel Gompers or Secretary Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor had any guilty knowledge of the alleged corruption of jurors and witnesses in the McNamara case.

Unfortunate Impression.

"It is unfortunate that the impression was created," continued Mr. Ford, "that we intended to cast any reflections upon Mr. Gompers, Mr. Morrison or any other high officials of the American Federation of Labor. In producing the ledger account of Morrison as custodian of the McNamara defense fund in Washington, we only intend to prove that large sums of money were withdrawn and sent to Mr. Darrow."

The effort to have the ledger's page containing the defense fund account admited as evidence was exepcted to be renewed when court met today. Up to adjournment late yesterday, the attorneys for Darrow had succeeded in keeping it out.

The prosecution intimated if its examination of Cashier Flather were not further obstructed, but little time would be required to conlude it and Franklin was expected to resume the stand today.

Denied By Gompers.

Washington, June 5. — Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, said of Detective Bert Franklin's testimony in the Darrow trial at Los Angeles:

"That is an absolute falsehood, made of whole cloth. I don't know Franklin and I never had any dealings with him. I did not send any money to him or to anybody. I do not handle any money.

"There is nothing to this and it is absurb on the face of it. I have documentary proof which disputes his story. I do not care to give the correspondence out at this time."

ATTEMPT TO THROTTLE IT

loudly applauded. A few of those voting against the Davies motion were Southern Minnesota men who said they were against reapportionment but that they would not vote to deny it a hearing.

Resolutions ratifying the two Federal Constitutional amendments were introduced as follows: Income tax, Senator Peterson and Representatives Andrew Anderson and Robinson; popular election of United States senators, Representatives Pfaender, Mattson, Knecland, I. J. Lee and Campbell; each introducing separate bills.

The bill by Pfaendor of New Ulm, Democratic floor leader, was the first in, and he moved that the rules be suspended and the resolution adopted. Republicans who had bills in, and who feared this as a Democratic move, objected, so Mr. Pfaender withdrew his motion, though he first offered to let all the other authors join with him in the credit for introducing his bill.

Two bills increasing railroad gross earnings tax came into the house. Representatives Rines and C. H. Warner proposed an increase from 4 to 5 per cent, and Representative Minette, Democrat, proposed an increase to 6 per cent.

Representative Bob Dunn tried to get the rules suspended on two important bills not in the program, and failed. One practically prohibited the sale of the Virginia state bonds for less than par, and the other amended the road law so that each county must get at least 1 per cent of the state fund, regardless of its local work. He also had a bill authorizing cities and villages to spend money for armories. He needed eighty votes to suspend the rules, and got but sixty-five; whereupon piqued, he withdrew all three bills.

Representative Lundeen introduced his bill of last session providing for the primary election of delegates to presidential conventions, but without provision for a preference vote on candidates.

In the senate Senator Haycraft wanted to make the elections committee primary bill, described elsewhere, a special order for Friday, but it was concluded by the senate to have all the four pending primary bills printed and placed on general orders for consideration. A poll taken of the senate shows thirty-four senators for the second choice primary, nine were noncommittal and nine were not reached.

The legislature failed to adjourn for the Duluth convention, but both houses excused the minority members so they can attend. It was felt that an adjournment over tomorrow would not have been well taken by the state at large because of the importance of pending legislation and the general desire to get through.

GERMAN ADMIRAL AT WHITE HOUSE

Officers of Visiting Warships Are Received By President Taft.

Washington, June 5.—The admiral of the German visiting squadron, together with the captains of the cruisers Moltke, Stettin and Bremen and a number of officers, including Prince Christian of Hessen-Philippstahl-Barchfeld, arrived in Washington this morning from Hampton Roads to pay their respects to President Taft.

This and other calls on high officials of the Federal government will take up much of their time today. During the forenoon they visit the secretary of state and the secretary of the navy, wearing the brilliant full dress uniform of the German navy.

At the White House they have been invited to dinner in the evening. This will form the most important function of their sojourn, as during its course the president is to address them on behalf of the United States, and the German admiral will reply.

WOOL RATE FROM DETROIT TOO HIGH

Discrimination Is Found By Interstate Commerce Commission.

Washington, June 5.—Freight rates on wool from Detroit, Mich., to the Atlantic seaboard were held by the interstate commerce commission to be discriminatory against Detroit and in favor of Chicago shippers.

It was ordered that hereafter the rate from Detroit should not exceed 78 per cent of the rate from Chicago. The present rate from Chicago is 50 cents a hundred. The commission regards this rate as low.

The opinion was announced today in the case of Traugott, Schmidt & Sons against the Michigan Central and other Eastern railroads, and expresses the belief that the conclusions of the commission "may result in some increase of the charges under which this commodity (wool) is transported, but if those charges as finally established are reasonable and non-discriminatory there can be no legitimate ground for complaint."

COMMENCEMENT BEGINS AT WEST POINT ACADEMY.

West Point, N. Y., June 5.—Commencement exercises which will last a week, began at the United States military academy today with a mortar battery drill, followed by sub-calibre target practice with 6-inch rifles. On Wednesday, June 12, the exercises will culminate with the awarding of diplomas to the graduating class by either the secretary of war or Gen. Leonard Wood, chief of the general staff.

Missionary Meet at Enderlin.

Enderlin, N. D., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state convention of the North Dakota Women's Home Missionary society of the Methodist church will be held here June 12 and 13 and Mrs. Cotton Mather of Colorado, a national missionary worker, will be among the principal speakers.

Milady's Toilet Table

By Mme. D'MILLE

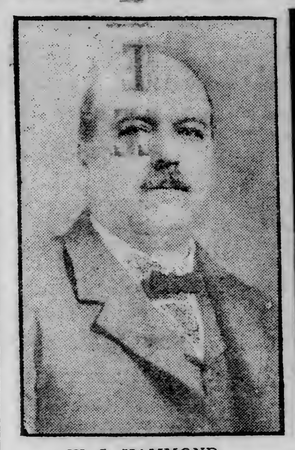

"More women worry over superfluous hairs than any other disfiguring blemish. Wild hairs on face or forearms can be easily, quickly and safely removed by the use of delatone paste. Just mix powdered delatone with enough water to cover the hairs; apply, and after two or three minutes rub off, wash the skin, and the hairs will be gone.

"The luxury of a perfect dry shampoo cannot be equaled. To four ounces of powdered orris root add an original package of therox. Sift a teaspoonful of this mixture on the head, then brush out thoroughly and the scalp will be clean, cool and refreshed, while the hair will be light, wavy and beautifully lustrous.

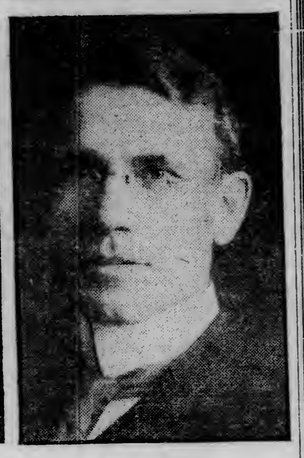

"To make a true complexion beautifier that will give your skin a lovely tone instantly, yet is harmless and lasting, dissolve an original package of mayatone in a half pint of witch hazel and rub a little on face, neck and forearms each morning. Mayatone will not come off nor show like powder and keeps the skin soft, fair and youthful looking.

"The eyebrows should be brushed gently each day to train them to grow in an arch, and if they are thin and straggly pyroxin should be applied with finger tips. Pyroxin will also make the eyelashes grow long and silky."

BIG DEVELOPMENT CONGRESS OPENS

Seven States and Alaska Are Represented at Seattle Meeting.

Seattle, Wash., June 5.—The first Northwest Development congress, called by the governors of the seven Northwestern states and the territory of Alaska, assembled here today with delegates from Oregon, Washington and Alaska in attendance. Delegations from Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota and Minnesota will arrive tonight.

The congress was called to order by Lewis Penwell of Helena, Mont., president of the Northwest Development league. The morning session was devoted to addresses of welcome and to the appointment of the committees.

NINE INJURED IN WRECK IN CANADA

Winnipeg-Calgary Express Derailed—Two Are Seriously Hurt.

Winnipeg, Man., June 5.—Nine persons are known to have been injured, two seriously, in the wreck of the Winnipeg-Calgary express train of the Canadian Pacific railway, near Gull Lake, last night. Most of those who suffered were settlers and were passengers in a colonist car.

The injured:

John Sells, news agent, Winnipeg; cut about head and badly bruised all over body.

Cecil M. Owen, baggageman, Medicine Hat; cut on head, left arm crushed and injured internally.

Edward Armstrong, brakeman, Medicine Hat; cut on head.

A. A. Ester, commercial traveler, San Francisco; arm crushed.

Mrs. Oddson, Seattle; cut on head.

Mrs. Mary Sallstead, Washington; cut on head and generally shaken up.

Mrs. J. P. Cooper, Glasgow, London; cut on head.

Baby of Mrs. Henry Spiers, London, England; bruises on head.

Mrs. Alice Snelling, Bloomsbury, Middlesex, England, knee injured.

Baggage, mail and colonist cars and two refrigerator cars left the track and were partially wrecked. The train was running about forty miles an hour at the time of the mishap. The accident was due to a broken rail.

REPRESS RIOTS IN BELGIUM

Public Opinion Is Brought to Bear on Socialist Activities.

Brussels, June 5.—The force of public opinion has been exerted to arrest the wave of sanguinary rioting, destruction of property and sacking of churches which spread over the country as an expression of Socialist resentment at the government victory at the polls Sunday.

Today the press united in urging the people to abstain from violence. M. Vandervelde and M. Denis, the Socialist leaders, appealed to their followers to refrain from rioting, and if the general strike is not called it is believed the disorders gradually will die out.

The conservative newspaper Independence Belge says:

"Belgium, to safeguard the national unity, must meet the problem of the Walloon provinces, where a majority of the population is wearied in being governed by the Clerical majority of the Flemish provinces."

The Clerical press urges the repression of the manifestations and insists that the victory of the Clericals is a triumph for the party of order and national prosperity.

ORATORY WILL FLOW FREELY

One Hundred Speeches to Be Made at Arkansas Convention.

Little Rock, Ark., June 5.—With a temporary organization planned that is favorable to the candidacy of Speaker Champ Clark, delegates to the Arkansas Democratic convention began to gather here today for the opening of the convention called to name and probably instruct delegates to Baltimore.

Indications were it would be late in the day before the matter of selecting delegates was taken up, as 100 of the 550 delegates to the state convention had announced their intention of addressing the gathering. It was said an effort by Clark people to force the unit rule would be opposed by followers of both Governor Wilson and Governor Harmon.

Go for Test March.

Chicago, June 5.—A battalion of troops, 675 strong, left Fort Sheridan today for Dubuque, Iowa, to participate in a test march of 200 miles from Dubuque to Camp Sparta, Wis., with troops from Fort Crook, Fort Snelling and Fort Brady.

DOCTORS CONDEMN SO-CALLED SUPERFLUOUS HAIR "CURES"

While there may be no perceptible harm noticeable with the first few applications of the numerous so-called superfluous hair "cures" other than causing slight skin troubles and an increased growth, real danger and disfigurement lurk in their frequent use, which, if continued, will produce eczema or other serious skin diseases.

Furthermore, after each removal, the hair grows out again more rapidly, coarser and stiffer than before and eventually it will become so coarse that no preparation will be strong enough to remove it without ruining the skin.

It is surprising that these unknown and uncertain means should be employed when there is such a reliable and trustworthy preparation as DeMiracle, the only absolutely non-poisonous depilatory that dissolves hair, thereby taking the vitality out of it, consequently retarding and preventing an increased growth.

Beware of the imitator who resorts to copying certain phrases of the DeMiracle advertising to inveigle you into using a worthless, poisonous concoction. When a faker tries to deceive and delude you by alluring and impossible claims, tell him that DeMiracle Chemical Company will forfeit Five Thousand Dollars if it can be proven that any so-called superfluous hair "cure" ever eradicated one single growth of superfluous hair. Insist on proof when a claim is made that such a preparation is "indorsed by the medical profession."

DeMiracle is the only depilatory that has ever been indorsed by reputable physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals, prominent magazines and newspapers. To substantiate our claim, we will send copies of the testimonials on request.

Only goods of merit can stand the test of time. The mere fact that fake-dangerous preparations are short-lived should alone be sufficient warning to avoid the use of any depilatory but that of proven merit. DeMiracle was the largest selling depilatory ten years ago and more of it has been sold each year since than the combined sales of the nostrums.

All reliable dealers sell and recommend DeMiracle, knowing it to be the best and safest depilatory. Some unprincipled ones will tell you they cannot procure it so that they may more easily influence you to purchase their own or possibly some other dangerous, worthless substitute under another label for a few cents more profit. To protect you from just such imposition, if your dealer will not supply you, mail us $1.00 and we will send you, all charges paid, in plain, sealed wrapper, a $1.00 bottle of DeMiracle, and we will make you a present of a full-size jar of DeMiracle Cream. If you care to, give us the name of the dealer who tries to sell you a "just as good" imitation or substitute. Write for free booklet, which will be mailed sealed in plain envelope. The DeMiracle Chemical Company, Dept. 32E, Park Ave., 129th and 130th Sts., New York. You can always procure DeMiracle without argument in Duluth from I. Freimuth.

PLAN BIG WORK FOR CHILDREN

Miss Lathrop Talks With Secretary Nagel About Federal Bureau.

Washington, June 5.—Julia C. Lathrop of Hull House, Chicago, who will be the first chief of the new children's bureau of the department of commerce and labor, conferred with Secretary Nagel today about the appointment of her assistants and the scope of her work. The bureau actually will come into existence July 1. Congress has been asked to appropriate $25,000 for its first year's expenses.

In the opinion of Secretary Nagel, no branch of his department is expected to accomplish more beneficial results than the new bureau. The department contemplates an energetic and co-operative campaign for the welfare of the nation's children. State institutions and private societies, organized for child improvement, will be asked to help in giving statistics of conditions among children.

DUCHESS OF CONNAUGHT IN MONTREAL HOSPITAL.

Montreal, June 5.—The physicians attending the Duchess of Connought issued the following bulletin this forenoon:

"Her Royal Highness, the Duchess of Connaught, passed a comfortable night. Condition this morning is satisfactory and does not give rise to undue anxiety."

The Duchess was brought to this city last night on a special train from Quebec and was taken to the Royal Victoria hospital. Her illness has been diagnosed as peritonitis, but its origin has not yet been determined. The entire governor-general's household was brought to this city on the same train with the duchess.

INCUBATOR BABY

"It is with great pleasure and pride that I herewith enclose a photo of my son 'Jack,' a genuine Mellin's Food baby. When I tell you that he was an incubator baby and that at the age of three months he weighed three and one half pounds and was so pitiable an object that even the doctor seemed to think the case hopeless, you can more readily appreciate the change. He could scarcely retain the lightest nourishment and was so weak, one could barely hear him cry. I tried him with Mellin's Food and the improvement was a wonder to everybody."

S.S.S. REMOVES BLOOD HUMORS

Every pore and gland of the skin is employed in the necessary work of preserving its smooth, even texture, softening and cleansing it, and regulating the temperature of our bodies. This is done by an evaporation through each tiny outlet, which goes on continually day and night. When the blood becomes infected with humors and acids a certain percentage of these impurities also pass off with the natural evaporation, and their sour, fiery nature irritates and inflames the skin, and dries up its natural oils, causing pimples, boils, pustules or some itching rash, or hard, scaly skin affection. S. S. S. cures skin troubles of every kind by neutralizing the acids and removing the humors from the blood. S. S. S. cools the acid-heated circulation, builds it up to its normal strength and thickness, multiplies its nutritious, red corpuscles, and enriches it in every way. Then the skin, instead of being irritated and diseased by the exuding acrid matter, is nourished, soothed and softened by this cooling, healthy stream of blood. S. S. S., the greatest of blood purifiers, expels all foreign matter and surely cures Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum and all other diseases and affections of the skin. It removes pimples, blackheads, and other unsightly blemishes from the skin and assists in restoring a good complexion. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice desired free to all who write.

SOX FINALLY LOSE A GAME

Superior Defeats Home Guard at Hislop Park By 7 to 2 Score.

Worman Hit Hard While Jensen Proves a Puzzle to the Wreckers.

Yesterday the wrecking crew was left in the round house, and the way frieght, typifying lack of speed and other cumbersome qualities, was allowed to proceed. In other and more explicit words, Superior won from Duluth at Hislop park by the score of 7 to 2. Worman and Foss worked on the mound for the loceed locals and Jensen threw for the Red Hose.

Jensen did not allow the wreckers more than one hit in any inning but the sixth, this merry round being accumulative of two runs, thus by their concentrated efforts in this rallying round did the Sox escape the splash of the calcimine. On the other hand, the one with the Marquise ring, both Worman and Foss had off days and other ailments.

There was joy and riotous reign of celebration in the village last evening tide, for it is seldom that the neighbors win a game and scarce ever that they take a game from the gang that are paid over here.

Superior opened with three, unfeeling and not according to firmly established openings. Ford hit to center, Taylor hit to right, and just to prove that the sluggers over there are versatile, Roy banged one to left, scoring Ford. Persch sacrificed and then Francis brought both runners over the platter with a sizzling hit to center.

Philosophers tell us that it is natural to rest after violent exercise. For two frames the Red Hose failed to mar the plate with their spikes. Then came the fourth and four runs.

Anderson was hit in that portion of anatomy which mythology and history say supplied Eve and the beginning of romance, or fiction, namely the rib, and ambled to first. Jenson beat out an infield hit. Popham fumbled, fuzzled ad otherwise mistreated the offering of Ford, and the bases were filled with humans, giving Superior the benefit of the doubt. Taylor smote to center for three bags and three scores were in, being graciously assisted by McGraw's fumble. Roy double and the fourth run of the round was in.

In the very next inning Old Faithful Worman, who was not faithing very well yesterday, was relieved by Foss, but the danger and other disagreeable things had passed. But, heigh ho, it would be to the Swift and Armour for the White Sox to grab all the games in the schedule, for W. J. Sommer is anything but a good loser.

Here is the sixth and the dodging of the calcimine—Menecice singled and scored when Little Leber doubled. The angel child came all the way home when Sours was being doused at first.

Foss allowed but one hit while he was treading on the mound, the showing being the best he has made since receiving transportation and encouragement from O'Brien.

Weather permitting the teams are scheduled to resume hostilities here this day and Superior is scheduled for a thorough rout.

TIGERS HIT WELL AND NEW YORK FIELDS POORLY.

Detroit, June 5.—Heavy hitting by Detroit, combined with the listless fielding of New York and the wildness of two pitchers gave the locals an easy victory, 14 to 1. Fisher was taken out at the end of the sixth and Spears, a recruit, finished the game. Works was effective.

LAJOIE CELEBRATES TENTH ANNIVERSARY.

Cleveland, June 5.—Cleveland won from Boston, 5 to 1. Bedient was knocked out in the fourth, Cicotte replacing him with the bases full and none out. Boston got nine hits off Gregg, but could not bunch them, Gregg striking out 11. Yesterday was the tenth anniversary of Lajole's becoming a member of the Cleveland team. He was presented with a horseshoe containing 1,000 silver dollars, the gift of the fans, and $125 in gold, the offering of his fellow players. Lajole celebrated the occasion with a double, single and sacrifice fly.

HEAVY HITTING DECIDES GAME FOR COLUMBUS.

Columbus, Ohio, June 5. — Hitting by Perring, Congalton and O'Rourke decided yesterday's game, though a couple of runs resulted from Riggert's bad throw after he had taken Miller's liner. McQuillen let St. Paul down with four hits, three of which were two-baggers, and had his opponents practically helpless with runners on bases. Catcher Smith caught his fiftieth consecutive game of the season.

OLD DULUTH PITCHER ALLOWS BUT TWO HITS.

Louisville, Ky., June 5. — Minneapolis had a walkover, defeating Louisville in the first game of the series by 16 to 0. Patterson allowed but two hits while Laudermilk and Rowan were batted hard. The locals played poorly in the field, making eleven errors. Only three Louisville players reached first base. Hayden broke his collarbone by running in the right field bleacher steps trying to intercept Altizer's home run, and Madden was badly spiked on the hand when he retired Allen at the plate.

SELECTIONS FOR OLYMPIC GAMES

A Dozen Athletes Are Chosen to Represent America at Stockholm.

New York, June 5.—A dozen athletes were tentatively picked as members of the American team to compete in the Olympic games at Stockholm. The action was taken by the executive committee of the American Olympic committee, which recommended the men to the team selection committee, whereupon Chairman James E. Sullivan telegraphed them to report to Manager Halpin in this city not later than June 11. The men notified are: Frederick H. Allen, broad jumper; E. J. Beeson, hurdler and high jumper; H. H. Bellah, pole vaulter and javelin thrower; J. E. Courtney, sprinter; James J. Donohue, all-around man; Clarence S. Edmundson, middle distance; Peter C. Gerhard, sprinter; M. W. Hawkins, hurdler; George L. Horine, high jumper; F. W. Kelley, hurdler; Walter McClure, 1,500 meters; Ralph Rose, weight man.

Duplicates Low Score.

Philadelphia, June 5.—Mrs. Ronald H Barlow of the Marion club duplicated her Monday score of 85 in the second round yesterday of medal play for the championship of the Women's Eastern Golf association. Her 170 for the two days is 16 strokes less than her nearest competitor, Grace Semple of St. Louis, who made 93 on both days.

Miss H. S. Curtis of the Essex county golf made the course in 88, making her total 187. Miss Edith Noblitt of Wilmington is fourth with 188.

Mantell Beats Sullivan.

Sacramento Cal., June 5.—Frank Mantell, Sacramento, middleweight, won a ten-round bout from Montana Dan Sullivan here last night. Both men resorted to in-fighting continually with Mantell the aggressor all the way and Sullivan weakening and growng wild after the first ten rounds.

OUTSIDER WINS DERBY

Tagalie With American Jockey Up, Takes the English Classic.

King's Horse Is Fourth and the Favorite Not Placed.

Epsom Downs, England, June 5.—W. Raphael's Tagalie, a little favored horse, won the Derby today. L. Newmann's Jaeger was second and August Belmont's Tracery third.

Tagalie with Johnny Reiff up won by four lengths. The king's horse Pintadeau was fourth.

Reiff is an American jockey and rode Richard Croker's Orby to victory in the derby of 1907.

A heavy downpour of rain interfered with the pleasure of those who decided to go to Epsom by road for the Derby. However, the sun soon broke through the clouds and towards noon fine weather was experienced at the track, with threats, nevertheless, of more showers and possibly a thunderstorm.

On the coaches leaving London were many Americans, including those who come annually to England to see the great race meeting. Herman B. Duryea, owner of Sweeper II, who remained a strong favorite, came over from Paris with a party of friends.

While most of the papers tipped Sweeper II to win, there ran through the racing columns a vein of hope that King George would imitate the example of the late King Edward and carry off the prize with Pintadeau.

American visitors backed Sweeper II heavily, their confidence being strengthened by the fact that "Danny" Maher was to ride.

The presence of the king and queen made certain a brilliant gathering of society.

Mr. Duryea had set his heart upon winning the derby and was confident of success. The betting encouraged this view. It made Sweeper II the favorite at 3 to 1 with L. Newmann's Jaeger at 9 to 1, J. B. Joel's White Star, 100 to 10, and the King's Pintadeau 18 to 1.

BADGERS HOPE FOR A VICTORY

Wisconsin Students Believe They Have Chance at Poughkeepsie.

Madison, Wis., June 5.—One week from Thursday the Wisconsin crews—freshman and varsity—will again ship their shells and prepare for another contest at Poughkeepsie. Coach Harry Vail says little about the chances. The only prediction he will make is that, barring accidents and assuming that the men develop more as regards the catch and rhythm of the stroke, Wisconsin's chances for success are fairly bright.

That the Wisconsin varsity has never yet won first place in the Eastern regatta is ascribed not so much to lack of material in the university as to lack of material out for the crew. Instead of a field of forty candidates, 200 should enter the competition for seats in the shell, says Coach Vail, who believes that with such a large number he could develop an eight that could defeat the best of the Easterners. He asserts that brawn is not so essential as form, and that the ideal crew is made up of fairly large men, who are not so big-muscled as to be clumsy. Every man who weighs 165 pounds has an excellent chance of making the crew, says Vail.

In 1907 the Wisconsin freshman crew won the race at Poughkeepsie, the only time it has taken first place.

The record of the new coach covers a period of many years. Vail rowed on the famous Ross-Nagle crew until 1883 and then went into professional sculling. He won the championship of Brunswick, Halifax, Nova Scotia and the New England states. In regattas he defeated every man except one, Jake Gaudaur, called the best in the world. Equipped with this excellent record, Vail is coaching the University of Wisconsin oarsmen with an experience of forty years, and in the breasts of hundreds of loyal friends of the Cardinal this year there is an indefinable feeling that the Badgers will this time win.

GIBBONS WILL MEET FRENCHMAN

St. Paul, Minn., June 5.—Michael J. Gibbons, world's champion welterweight boxer, may leap into the middleweight class before the month of June passes away, for Manager Edward Reddy is considering a proposition to match his title holder with George Carpentiere, the middleweight champion of France and England.

Reddy yesterday received a wire from Mangaer Billy Gibson of the Madison Square garden of New York offering Gibbons a ten-round bout with the French champion and the local boy manager immediately telegraphed an answer to the effect that while he was not prepared to allow Mike to step into the middleweight class, he would consider the Carpentiere match provided there was money enough offered to warrant the jump. When asked what he considered a fair sum for such an important step Reddy calmly remarked: "Ten thousand cold dollars."

"Of course the garden club management may not choose to hand me $10,000 for the fight," said Reddy, "but it is worth just that much for us to take the chance, so you see we get the flat guarantee of $10,000 or we stick to the welterweight division. Personally I believe Mike can beat the Frenchman, and as everyone is begging us to take a whirl at the middleweight game this match may afford us the opportunity we are looking for."

Reddy yesterday signed up for a match at Brooklyn with Tommy Connors. The bout will be booked on June 12 or 13, and Gibbons started training today. Connors is a tough Brooklyn boy who has a wicked wallop in either arm, and Gibbons does not propose to take any chances with him.

YOUNG JOE HORINE IS A WONDERFUL ATHLETE

San Francisco, Cal., June 5.—For seventeen years the greatest height cleared in the running high jump that was known to the athletic world consisted of M. J. Sweeney's record of 6 feet 5⅝ inches, established on Manhattan field, New York. Almost every season since 1895, when Sweeney startled the enthusiasts with his sensational jump, reports from various meetings have included many results in the neighborhood of six feet or better. In later years W. B. Page, from the University of Pennsylvania, made a college record of 6 feet 4 inches. This was the nearest approach to Sweeney's record until Dad Moulton, already jubilant in the pole vault mark of Lee Scott, offered George Horine, a Stanford student, as a candidate for the world's high jump record.

Reports from the Cardinal campus proved that Horine was a six-footer any time he competed, which feature of local athletics was soon presented to the community in Horine's leap of 6 feet 4 inches last spring, when he equaled Page's mark.

Startled in the anticipation of Horine some day surpassing Sweeney's record, a realization of the height to be cleared by the Stanford boy in his aspiration offered a tendency to discourage the thought. The apparently impossible height suggested for a new record is not realized until the bar, raised over the average man, is observed. When Horine succeeded in breaking Sweeney's mark with a leap of 6 feet 6¼ inches a few weeks ago, the conclusion was that another decade would pass before the Stanford boy's fame would be erased from the record book.

In the Stanford-California dual meet three weeks ago Horine came through with the greatest result of the athletic season, 6 feet 7 inches. To measure this height it was necessary for the officials to have the aid of a bench in order that the field judges could witness the correct mark. With the crossbar placed half a foot over the head of a six-foot man, some idea of the wonderful height to which Horine raises himself is presented. In this manner only is a correct comparison offered. As Horine's style is free and with little run, it is practically a spring from the ground. Imagine an individual jumping over the head of the ordinary man, or picture Horine jumping higher than it is possible to measure without the aid of a ladder.

DULUTH CREW FULL OF FIGHT

Ten Eyck Has Eight Men With Lots of Grit and Spirit.

While the eight of the Duluth Boat club is lighter than the crew of last season, there is the growing belief that there is more fight in the boat and that the men under the tutelage of Ten Eyck are going to round in to one of the most representative eights that has ever been sent over the old course along the bay front.

With new men it is often the case that they are slow to develop. Right at the present time the crew is going as well as it can be expected to speed up. Glass and Grant are both showing development, while St. Pierre, a horse for work, is coming along nicely.

Jimmy is working hard on some of the old men, for they have some hang over faults of the old regime that have not as yet been ironed out. But, dropping the discussion of form for the time being, it can be said that the coach has a crew that is going to give him all it has, and also a bunch that is liable to come awfully fast during the last month of work.

Nothing is absolutely certain in athletics and war, but the indications are not wanting that with Thorburn, Lathrup, Kent, Thompson, Glass, Quimby and St. Pierre in the boat, Ten Eyck is going to develop a crew that will make a fine showing at the Winnipeg regatta.

JOHNSON NOT IN GOOD SHAPE

Reports From Training Camp Say Black Is Very Heavy.

Las Vegas, N. M., June 5.—The thin, arid, high altitude air of New Mexico is going to be a big factor in the fight on the Fourth of July between Jack Johnson, king of the heavyweights, and Jim Flynn, the doughty fireman of Pueblo.

Johnson isn't in shape; it's going to be mighty hard for him to get anywhere near the condition he reached when he took the title from Tommy Burns and defended it against Jeffries. This much was palpable to the experts who saw Johnson attempt to box six rounds in fast style Sunday.

Big Crowd Watches Jack.

A big crowd was at his training camp—a fine young press agent said there were "at least 6,000"—and Johnson, as usual, did his utmost to please his admirers. He cut up a lot of didoes, but the fact is he didn't box very well.

Johnson is nearly a head taller than Flynn and he's likely to get many a bump and jolt under the chin, provided Jim can get under or through the champion's guard.

Ryan is trying to teach Flynn how to stop punches in some other way than taking them on the jaw.

Flynn a Modern Sharkey.

"Take a few on your arms or shoulders," is Ryan's constant order. He realizes that he never can teach Flynn to sidestep or duck the lightning jolts of John Artha. But it isn't going to be that kind of a fight. Some one is going to get slaughtered on Independence day, for Flynn is going to be coached to go straight into the formidable fists of the champion just as Tom Sharkey of old used to lam into Jeffries and Fitzsimmons.

It never got Sailor Tom much besides a terrific quilting, but anyway, this whole fight is just a gamble as to whether Johnson can come back in case he ever "went." It he's the Johnson of old there's something coming to Flynn, probably. But if the gas wagon and the limpid lights and the flesh pots of Paris and London and the bubble water have deprived Johnson of his stamina to any great degree and if he can't become acclimated and reduce his paunch without sapping his strength then the big black bear has an elegant chance to get his trimmings.

At least that is the way Jack Curley and Tommy Ryan figure it.

TOURNAMENT PLANNED.

Racquet Wielders of Boat Club to Have Local Meet.

Plans are being considered at the present time by Captain Joseph Horsk of the field department of the Boat club for the holding of a local tennis tournament. Some discussion was made of the plan at the cabinet meeting of the officers of the club held yesterday. It is also stated that plans are going to be formulated for the reserving of courts for the women members of the club.

John J. Ryan in Trouble.

Cincinnati, June 5.—The bank account of John J. Ryan, owner of the Cincinnati franchise in the United States league was garnisheed here today after fourteen players of the Cincinnati club had filed separate suits for a month's salary. The sums named in the suits aggregate $1,200.

Perkins vs. Scott.

Milwaukee, June 5.—Billy Perkins, claimant of the middleweight championship of Northern Wisconsin, is tonight scheduled to meet "Steamboat Bill" Scott of Milwaukee in a ten round no-decision bout.

SPORTING NOTES

Rebel Oakes has been doing some fancy clouting of late and helping the Cardinals climb up among the chosen few.

With pitching championship ball and hitting near the .300 mark it begins to look like a prosperous year for Rube Marquard.

Cleburne is running away with the pennant in the South Central league, having won twenty-five of the first thirty-two games played this season.

With a long series of games at home, the Detroit Tigers figure that they have a real chance to go to the front after all.

The Cincinnati Reds found tough picking against the Cubs and the Cardinals, while the Giants went right along winning their games.

Pitcher O'Toole and Catcher Kelly make a strong battery for the Pirates, and look to be worth all that Barney Dreyfus paid for them.

George Rohe, the former White Sox third baseman and hero of the world's series of 1906, has been released by the Mobile Southern league club.

The old Cub machine is still doing business at the old stand. Manager Chance has not been able to find youngsters that look as good to him as his veterans.

Of that $25,000 option on the Anderson team held by President Comiskey of the White Sox, Carolina association fans say that Bull Powell alone is worth more than that amount.

It is said that Ray Keating, the Lawrence pitcher and sensation of the New England league, will join the Highlanders next fall. Keating was a star with the Hamilton, Can., league team last season.

Roger Salmon is pitching great ball for the Wilmington team of the Tri-State league. Connie Mack still has a string on the collegian and he will very likely be back with the world's champions next season.

They call Ralph Capron of the Milwaukee team the Ty Cobb of the American association. Capron is a former Minnesota university football player and is credited with doing 100 yards in 10 2-5 in football togs.

FOR IMMIGRATION BUREAU.

Government Man Tells Plan for Placing Settlers.

Chicago, June 5.—Plans for an immigration bureau, a woman's bureau and a bureau of information to be situated at Washington, were outlined by M. O. Leighton, hydrographer of the government geological survey, at a meeting of the national drainage congress and members of the American reclamation federation. The work of the bureau would be the placing of immigrants on reclaimed swamp lands and the spreading of information on the subject of swamp lands and the importance of draining them.

ON THE IRON RANGES

GRAND JURY HAS FINISHED LABORS

Short Session Held at Hibbing, Two Indictments Being Returned.

Hibbing, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grand jury charged by Judge Hughes yesterday and placed at work on pending cases finished today and was discharged. Only two indictments were made public, although of course, others may have been found.

Nick Mazan and Tony Mazan were indicted for first degree assault, the first for shooting Steve Lipichh and the other for cutting Mike Radakaevich during a Sunday night row in Virginia a few weeks ago when the police were called out to quell an incipient riot.

Some Accused Not Indicted.

No bills were found against Mike Karkas, Pete Libich and Mike Radavich, who were also alleged to have been implicated in the trouble. The first criminal case will be tried next Monday, the State vs. Gus Matila, charged with assaulting John Purja at Chisholm last winter by hitting him with a gun. There are several criminal cases to be tried that were passed along from the recent Virginia term. There are also some civil actions pending.

SELLERS PIT MAY SOON BE WORKING

Hibbing Council Will Hear Application to Vacate Nearby Streets.

Hibbing, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council last night took action that it is hoped may result in the big Sellers open pit mine being worked very soon when it acted on the application of the Lake Superior Consolidated Iron mines, the name under which the Steel corporation works the mine, to have the streets and alleys on property adjoining the Sellers vacated. The mining company wants the vacation of the public thoroughfares between South street on the south and North street on the north, the line running diagonally between the northwest corner of North street to between Fourth and Fifth avenues on South street. The council set June 14 as the date for a hearing on the application.

If the request of the mining company is granted it will mark an important step in the adjustment of the difficulty the company has experienced with adjacent property owners that resulted in the mining operations being stopped by injunction proceedings several months ago.

Hibbing Spurns Injunction.

The threat of several of the unlucky bidders of the big paving contract awarded Coons & Butler of injunction proceedings to tie up the work because it is claimed the contract was not regularly let, does not worry the mayor or the council. Victor Power, before the meeting, told the mayor what to expect if the contract was not set aside. The mayor reported the matter to the council and it was agreed to stand pat and fight the injunction proceedings if they develop. As Judge Hughes is holding court here it is possible application may be made for the injunction today or tomorrow, as the disgruntled contractors seem to mean business.

VIRGINIA IS AFTER FAKERS

Ordinance to Be Prepared to Stop Vending on Streets.

Virginia, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The council's proceedings moved smoothly last night for the first time since Mayor Murphy took the reins. Although the three new aldermen will not take their seats until next Tuesday, they were present and it was evident the council felt the effect of the recent castigation that three of its members had received by being recalled.

The city attorney was directed to prepare an ordinance to keep the street fakers from selling on the street corners.

August Fitger, owner of the Alexander Reid store building, was given authority to occupy the street during enlargement and alterations to the building.

Thirty-five property-owners in Rooney's addition on the North side petitioned for an extension of water mains and the water company was directed to make the extensions as requested.

The aldermen and all city officials were invited by Supt. Lafayette Bliss to attend the commencement exercises at the Roosevelt auditorium June 12.

To Install Drinking Fountains.

The street commissioner was directed to install sanitary drinking fountains on Chestnut street at the corners of Central avenue, Cleveland avenue, Wyoming avenue and Railroad avenue. The street commissioner also was directed to go ahead and grade and finish the city's part of the Virginia-Wolf road. Neil McInnis had advised Mayor Murphy that the county was going right ahead with its part of the road through Nichols township.

On the mayor's recommendation it was decided to post speed limit signs on all the roads leading into the city.

The council voted the mayor $500 for his contingent fund. A part of this will be used to aid the delegation from the fire department to go to Minneapolis, taking along a band for the purpose of making a demonstration and a claim to the state firemen's convention in 1915.

The bid of C. C. Butler for curb and gutter, crossing walk and sidewalk work, aggregating $18,482.37, was accepted and the contractor will proceed with the work. The street commissioner was directed to have the street sweeper work only at night after 11 o'clock.

Nervous Wrecks From Sore Feet: Gives Cure

The nagging irritation from daily foot torture causes thousands of nervous break-downs. Besides there is the pain, the haggard face and peevish disposition. Don't waste an hour, here is a treatment that will cure your feet quickly. No matter how many patent medicines you have tried in vain this treatment, formerly known only to doctors, will give prompt results. "Rissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effects are marvelous. All pain goes instantly and the feet feel simply delightful. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off; bunions, aching feet, sweaty smelling feet, get immediate relief. Use this a week and your foot troubles will be a thing of the past. Calocide works through the pores and removes the cause. Any druggist has it in stock or will quickly get it. A twenty-five cent package is said to be enough to cure the worst feet.

CUTS THROAT IN EVELETH SALOON

"Little Joe" Slashes Himself With Razor and May Die.

Eveleth, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—An Italian, known as "Little Joe" attempted suicide at 11 o'clock last night by cutting his throat with a razor in Dominick Jerome's saloon. He had been conversing with a few friends, when he went to the toilet. Hearing groans issuing from the toilet, the night bartender investigated and found the man lying in a pool of blood. He was taken to the Moore hospital. The wound is believed to be fatal.

VERY LARGE CLASS.

Ely Eighth Grade Graduates Are Quite Numerous.

Ely, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The eighth grade promotion exercises to be held in the audiaorium of the high school will be as follows:

A Mayday dance, Eighth grade, with a duet accompaniment by Lenore Sletten and Rachel Conan; invocation, Rev. Victor Koivumaki; selection, high school band; essay, "The American Indian," Elmer Pearson; class history, Eda Hilpakka; recitation, Owney Hegiman; "Funiculi Funicula," boys' glee club; oration, George Porthan; class will, Selma Pete; solo, William O'Rourke; class prophesy, Florence Spriletzner; selection, high school band; recitation, Anna Friesberg; "Maxims of the Class of 1912," Eli Rosenbloom; "Welcome Pretty Primrose," girls' glee club; presentation of certificates of promotion, A. J. Thomas; "A Beautiful World," Grammar department chorus; "America," audience joining with chorus.

The class colors are red and white. The motto colors are red and white. Into the Sea." The flower chosen by the class is the carnation.

The class of 1912 is one of the largest ever graduated from the grade schools and comprise the following: Eda Abrahamson, John Allesich, Elin Almen, Berna Anderson, John Autio, Mark Bacevetz, Matt Berkovich, Andy Blackmore, Margaret Brown, Rachel Conan, Eva Coombs, Winnifred Enright, Anna Friesberg, Peter Handberg, Ivar Hanson, Ennie Harlo, Owney Hagman, Tiny Helbacka, Eda Hilpakka, Alma Hill, Winnifred Hodge, Irene Homer, Harvey James, Amelia Janekesela, Sally Jylha, Fannie Kantola, Lillie Kero, John Kloubuchar, Dewey Knutson, Walter Koski, Albena otchevar, Anna Kotchevar, Corinne Kurvinenen, Henning Lindberg, Hildur Lindberg, Signe Mackl, Dorothy Neff, Ruth Nicholls, Hulda Nieminen, Charles Nieminen, William O'Rourke, Leo Pauley, Elmer Pearson, Paul Pearson, Elma Pekkela, Joe Peshel, Selma Pete, John Plath, George Porthan, Clinton Rapson, Ell Rosenbloom, Edith Saari, John Skala, Lenore Sletten, Waino Somero, Irene Sondstrom, Florence Spreitzer, Lillie Souminen and Mary Wulotz.

VOTE DOWN PARK DEAL.

Eveleth Councilmen Want More Time Before Accepting Deed.

Eveleth, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Acceptance of the deed for the park site tract was voted down at the council meeting last night, in order to give the members longer time to examine the abstract. The cost of the property is $21,000. It lies in the central part of the city and will provide a beautiful park and playground. The regular monthly bills were allowed.

LAKE COUNTY BOARD PLANS HIGHLAND ROAD.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—County Commissioners Otterlie and Norlen left today for Highland to look over the country and get an estimate on the cost of building a road connecting the state road, which runs fifteen miles straight north from Two Harbors, to a road recently built in the neighborhood of Highland. There is a distance of about four miles between the two roads, and the land in general is very swampy, which will make it difficult to make a good sound roadbed. The county officials are of the opinion that such a road would greatly benefit the county and moreover give the settlers who have their homes in the vicinity of Highland some way to get out other than by rail. The county plans to do considerable road work this summer. The road between Knife River and Two Harbors is being graveled at present and considerable work is being done on the county road between here and Beaver Bay.

HIBBING BALL PLAYERS DEPART FOR RED WING.

Hibbing, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.—If the Duluth-Hibbing traveling men's team don't win the big game at the U. C. T. meet at Red Wing it will not be because they did not have a good ball team, as some local cracks, all drummers, left for Duluth today to join that bunch for a trip to Red Wing. Hibbing will furnish the following good ball players for the Hibbing-Duluth team: Frank and A. C. Klessman, Robert Geeselman and Al Burroughs.

BEAR RIVER PATRIOTIC.

Bear River, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—People from all parts of the Bear River valley were here Memorial day and greatly enjoyed the exercises given at the cemetery in the town of Marcum. The following program was rendered:

Music, Myrhaug's band; reading, "Lincoln's Address at Gettysburg," J. F. Wilkie; song, "America," by all; Address, J. J. Johnsrud; music, Myrhaug's band; "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground," Misses Rosenbloom and Everett; address, Rupert Swinnerton; "The Vaant Chair, Mrs. McCauley; address, in Norwegian, Rev. J. I. Fadum; song, Misses Rosenbloom and Everett; music, Myrhaug's band.

Virginia Lodge Delegates.

Virginia, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The representatives from Virginia who will go to St. Paul for the grand lodge and grand encampment of the I. O. O. F. next week are George V. Trimble, representative to the grand lodge, W. J. Bemallack representative to the grand encampment, Edward C. A. Johnson, grand junior warden for the grand encampment, and Isaac Van Domlin, who goes along with the delegation as a spectator on account of his interest in I. O. O. F. affairs.

Ely Blast Breaks Glass.

Ely, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—As men were making the excavation for the laying of the new sidewalks and storm sewers on First avenue east an improperly protected blast sent two rocks through the glass front of the Laing Hardware company's store yesterday. Fortunately no damage except to the window was done.

Rain Bothers Visiting Mines.

Hibbing, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The rain here today interfered with the visit to nearby mines planned by Ex-Governor David Francis of Missouri, who arrived last night on a special Missaba train accompanied by T. F. Cole, W. A. McGonagle and other Duluthians, besides officials of the Berwind dock. The party today abandoned the idea of visiting local mines and left this morning for Virginia.

Drowned Man's Body.

Virginia, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Fred Fisher, who was drowned Saturday morning in Pelican Lake when he fell out of a canoe, was brought to Virginia, and is being held while friends or relatives may be communicated with.

INTERIOR VIEW OF PUMPING STATION.

Nashwauk, Minn., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.) — The power house and pumping station at O'Brien lake and the concentrator and transforming houses have been completed and the washing of the low grade iron ore is now in progress.

The ore-washing plant here and the one at Coleraine are the only ones of the kind in the country. The local plant is owned by the Wisconsin Steel company, a subsidiary of the International Harvester company. It is designed to treat ore from the Hawkins mine. Much of the deposit of the Hawkins mine is interminglied with sand and loam and some idea of the immense quantities of ore on the property may be gained when one learns that the cost of the washing plant is estimated at nearly $600,000.

There is a railroad track leading from the mine to the plant and the building of this track was an expensive proposition because it was necessary to cross a muskeg swamp. At the point where the railway track terminates near the concentrator house an immense concrete abutment was built. It is twenty-eight feet in height and eleven feet below the surface. The ore is hauled from the mine and taken across a trestle which extends from the abutment a distance of 250 feet past the ore-washing mill.

Take Water From Lake.

The power house and pumping station is located on O'Brien lake and is about 2,000 feet past the ore-washing mill. A stell supply tank with a capacity of 22,000 gallons of water and which is built on a steel tower 134 feet in height, is located near the ore-washing mill. The water for washing the ore is pumped from the lake to the tank through 16-inch iron pipes by a pump which has a capacity of 2,500 gallons per minute.

The pumping station is built of steel, is 45 by 50 and 24 feet high. The boiler house is 34 by 40 of the same height and constructed of the same material. It is equipped with two Sterling water tube boilers of 500-horse power and fed with automatic feed stokers. The power house and pumping station is equipped with 500-kilowatt turbine generator of 3,600 revolutions per minute with a pressure of 2,300 volts to the substation, 2,500 feet distant, where the voltage is stepped down to through transformers to 440 volts for power circuits and 110 volts for lighting circuits. A portion of the power house equipment is a Prescott pump which has a capacity of 2,500 gallons per minute and is to raise the water 200 feet above the level of the lake.

The washing plant has three motors; one of 100-horse power on screens and logs; one of 20-horse power on conveyor; and a 20-horse power motor on the ore pockets. The substation or transformer house is of solid cement, 14 by 16 and the windows are of fireproof glass. It is equipped with 150-kilowatt transformer.

Can Enlarge Concentrator.

The concentrator house is of steel construction, is 50 by 60 and its height to the eaves is 85 feet. One unit will be used to begin with but the plant is so constructed that additional units can be added. The base of the building is twenty feet lower than the base of the ore pockets. The ore pockets are 18 by 36 and 27 feet high. The ore is conveyed from these pockets up through a steel incline to the top of the concentrating house by means of a 36-inch endless belt 300 feet in length. An electric overhead crane is located in the upper story and is used in making repairs when necessary.

The plant is the most modern and economical of its kind in the country and with one unit has a capacity to wash 1,000,000 tons of ore per season.

MAY RAISE THE NIAGARA.

Frigate Sunk in 1812 to Figure in Perry Centennial.

Detroit, Mich., June 5.—Plans for the celebration of Perry's victory over the British fleet in Lake Erie, during the war of 1812, were discussed at a meeting here yesterday of the Perry Centennial committee. The celebration occurs at Put-In-Bay, Lake Erie, in the summer of 1913. Maj. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, retired, and Col. Henry Watterson were among the members present.

While details are still to be worked out, it is said a flotilla of torpedo boats, destroyers and submarines and several cruisers of a draught which will permit their passing through the Welland canal will participate in the ceremonies.

It is proposed to raise the old frigate Niagara from the bottom of the harbor at Erie, Pa., where it has rested since the war of 1812, and have it occupy a prominent place in the naval parade.

BRIGANDAGE IS THE WORD

Roosevelt So Characterizes Choosing of Ohio Delegates-at-Large.

Calls It Illustration of Taft's Theory of Government.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 5.—"Pure political brigandage," Col. Roosevelt said of the capture of Ohio's six delegates at large to the Republican national convention by supporters of President Taft. He said it was a fresh and conclusive proof that Mr. Taft and his advisers care nothing for the will of the people.

The former president also replied to a statement of William Barnes, Jr., whom he attacked as a disciple of bossism, and commended to the attention of his opponents, including Mr. Taft, the report of the legislative committee which last spring investigated conditions in Albany.

In his statement Col. Roosevelt said:

"The plain people of the Republican party of Ohio have just held a state-wide primary in which they repudiated Mr. Taft by over 30,000 majority.

"The politicians, by adroit manipulation, have succeeded in giving Mr. Taft the six delegates at large, in frank and cynical defiance of the emphatic action of the people themselves. This is of course pure political brigandage. In this fight I have from beginning to end sought to give the people the right to say whom they wanted to have as president, and have not merely by word, but by action, made it evident that I did not wish the nomination unless the majority of the rank and file of the Republican party wished me to have it.

"Illustrates Taft's Theory."

"This action in Ohio is merely a fresh and conclusive proof that Mr. Taft and his advisers care nothing for the will of the people and are eager to get the nomination without any reference to whether or not the delegates represent the people whom they are supposed to represent. It is a crowning illustration of Mr. Taft's theory of government of the people by a representative part of the people."

Saying that Mr. Barnes has been chosen to head the Taft forces, the colonel declares that Mr. Barnes stands for "the right of the bosses to rule the people and the supremacy of privilege over the rights of humanity."

Col. Roosevelt has not made up his mind whether he will go to the Chicago convention and he is making preparations to bring the seat of war as close as possible if he chooses to remain at Sagamore Hill. Workmen began today the erection of telegraph wires to the colonel's home. With the aid of sounders and a corps of telegraphers manning direct wires from Sagamore Hill to the Roosevelt headquarters in Chicago, Col. Roosevelt will be able to follow the contest step by step, and give his directions in minute detail.

COFFEE BOILS OVER.

North Dakota Bachelor Is Badly Burned Preparing Meal.

Mohall, N. D., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Scalded so badly about the face and shoulders that the loss of the sight of both eyes is feared. Edward Fitzgerald, a bachelor farmer, residing on his claim south of this city, was brought to this city for treatment. Fitzgerald was boiling coffee in a large lard can on a gasoline stove and when the steam forced the lid off the can he got the full force of the boiling fluid in his face. Both eyes are blistered shut.

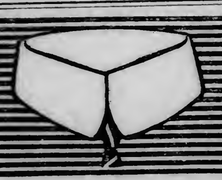

MOTT, N. D., FAMILY SCARED BY LIGHTNING.

Mott, N. D., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lightning struck the home of O. H. Opland, register of deeds, and though it did but small damage it gave the family a scare. All were seated at the supper table when the bolt struck the chimney, came down the pipes and struck the metal around the floor linoleum. It ripped off the side of the wall and all were dazed from the shock.

HITS MAIL CRANE.

North Dakota Fireman Has Close Call From Death.

Enderlin, N. D., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. G. Congdon, fireman on a train running near here, leaned too far out of the engine cab and his head struck a mail crane, the blow rendering him unconscious. Engineer Aker found his companion hanging limp out of the widow, stopped the train and took him to a hospital. He will recover.

Woman's Realm

Dear Normal, to thee we've been faithful and true.
Now with blessings we leave thy dear halls.
Through these years union hast nourished us, now we must part,
To go forth where our duty shall call.
All thou has given, in thought and in deed,
We shall keep with us ever through life;
Thou shalt ever have cause to be proud of our class,
For we'll conquer, though hard be the strife.

Farewell! May thy future be glorious and bright;
To thy children the lesson still give;
With freedom to think and with patience to bear,
And for right ever bravely to live.
Oh, may we be held in thy love and esteem;
In thy heart may we all have a share;
We never forget thee, but ever hold dear
The years of thy fostering care.

This class song, written by Miss Ruth Erickson, president of the graduating class of the normal school and sung to the tune of "Oh, Believe Me, If All those Endearing Young Charms," a clever parody on "Alexander's Rag Time Band" and other songs and yells featured the class day exercises at the normal school this morning, which were held following the closing chapel exercise.

An interesting class history was read by Miss Lelia Stickles, who outlined the doings of the class of 1912 since the entrance of part of the members in 1907, telling of the class functions and other events of note during their school life.

George Stickles, the only male member of the class, with his long roll of parchment containing the class will, occasioned much merriment with his bequests to various members of the faculty. To President Bohannon he left the tears of the senior class; to Miss Genevieve Taylor, the class advisor, the key to all class secrets, and to every other teacher son appropriate gift.

Class Prophecy.

Miss Janet Haley, as class prophet, caused much laughter in her disposal of each member of the class at a time twenty-five years from now.

She told of a trip to a wedding in 1937 of a party of jolly bachelor maids, including Mabel Whiteside, now kindergarten teacher in the Duluth normal school; Lida Peterson, who has added to the normal degree those of M. D., and LL. D.; Petronella Stenberg and her assistant, Bessie Boerner, who since their graduation have been teaching domestic science in Alaska, and Luelle Vanderpool, now Miss Taylor's successor, as leader of the Duluth toy symphony orchestra.

Each other member of the class was cleverly brought into the prophecy in ridiculous situations.

Streamers of maroon and gold and pink and green class colors of the school were effectively festooned in the large assembly hall.

This afternoon the graduates were the guests at a pretty reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Washburn in Hunter's Park.

Training School Exercises.

The children in the training school delighted a large audience yesterday afternoon at the closing exercises which included a pretty little cantata, a May pole dance, and a "toy symphony" orchestra and several other little dance numbers and drills.

Maypole Dance.

The May pole dance by the children of the kindergarten was delightfully executed by the following little tots:

Virginia Abraham, Wirth Giffin, N. C. Giffin, Helen Baldwin, Virginia Ball, Emmons Collins, Kate Dickerman, Arthur Kennedy, Bernard Ullorin, Helen MacGregor, Garvin Nesbit, Robert Olson, Margaret Mitchell, Shirley Spengler, Ernestine Traubman, Warren Whitely, Alexander Wood, Sammy Atkins, John Clark, Hunner, Roy Ellis, Catherine Dunlop and Jean Gale.

The "Toy Symphony," written by Hadyn for one of Count Esterhazy's entertainments, was given by the pupils of the seventh and eighth grades, in a manner worthy of much older musicians. John Radowski and Edwin Skinner played the first violins, Agnes Alexander, second violin; Charles Le Richeux, nightingale; Glen Pearson, guail; Carl Gebauer, rattle; Philip Warner, triangle; Hamilton Phelps, drum; William Richardson, trumpet; Jeanette Welbanks, piano. Some of the instruments, the cuckoo, nightingale and quail, were procured in Europe.

Those in the chorus for the orchestra were:

Katherine Abbott, Cordelia Collins, Robert Congdon, Anna McEwen, Catherine MacGregor, Elinor Mitchell, Winifred Parsons, Hamilton Phelps, Beatrice Spengler, Mary Baldwin, Elizabeth Stephenson, Sue Alexander, Gertrude Barnes, Genevieve Blanche, Gladys Braden, Marion Dight, Charles Fraker, Elizabeth Horr, Katherine Johns, Marion Lutes, Raymond Lyons, Dorothy Moore, Sylvia Rakowski, John Simonson and Charles Clark.

Cantata Given.

The cantata, "Midsummer Eve," is a dainty little fairy story in which the leading part of Dorothy was taken by Helen Silberstein, who was charming in her role. The others who had important parts were Maxine Spengler, Ruth Williamson, Faith Douglas, John Abbott, Suzette Hodges, Jack Gow, Donald Spencer, William Stephens, Harold Williamson, Betty Bohannon, Helen Lounsberry and Margaret Bradbury.

The fourteen gay little green elves with peaked green caps were John Ball, Jack Ball, Genevieve Black, Gertrude Collins, Eleanor Colter, Florence Draper, William Olson, Corinne Whitely, Frances McCreevey, Eleanor McKibbin, John Abbott, Mary Barthe, Bernard Silberstein and Rowe Williams.

The will-o'-the-wisps, whose black costumes made them invisible, except for their round faces and the little glowing lights that flashed and went out and flashed again, were Mary Mitchell, Marion Bailey, Edith Colter, Helen Christensen, Hein Stilson, Elizabeth Ryerson, Richard Bowden, Robert Dewse, Donald Miles, William Final, Wilson Crosby, George Bohannon, William Hearding and Virginia Hearding.

Ten girls in fluffy pink crepe paper gowns with caps that looked like inverted flowers took part in a pretty chrysanthemum drill. The girls were Margaret Walker, Grace Gleason, Caroline Lyder, Margaret Craig, Clara Elizabeth Baldwin, Mildred Dunning, Frances Cochrane, Eleanor Keyes, Virginia Warner and Ruby Stearns.

In the large chorus which sang "Day Is Dawning," "Hail to Our Queen" and the chorus part of all the other songs, were Lucius Bellamy, Hastings Barber, Richard Sellwood, Allan Black, Elizabeth Black, David Black, Dona McGregor, Alexander Gow, Harry Strong, Benton Stearns, Helen Macrae, Max Gebauer, J. Williamson, Thomas Crosby, Robert Dowse, Virginia Hearding, Donald Miles, Merry Mitchel, Helen Stilson, Elizabeth Ryerson, Newton Ryerson, Marion Bailey, George Bohannon, Richard Bowden, Helen Christensen, Edith Colter, Wilson Crosby, Jane Baldwin, Newton Black, William Final, Gilbert Dickerman, Jack Gow, William Hearding, Ernest Locker, Rosalie Parsons, Frederick Rowe, Gerald Sellwood, Boyd Spencer, Edward Spring, Cecelia Stephens, John Stevenson, Charlotte Warner, Josephine Crosby.

Graduation Exercises.

The graduation exercises will be held tomorrow morning at the normal assembly hall commencing at 10:30 o'clock. After opening devotional exercises and music President George E. Vincent of the University of Minnesota will deliver the address on "The Larger Selfishness," and J. L. Washburn, resident director of the state normal board, will present the diplomas to the class.

These formal commencement exercises are open to the public; any one interested in the school will be welcomed. The program as arranged for the morning follows:

Hymn—"The Spacious Firmament".....Haydn
Responsive Scripture reading—Psalm cxlviii
Response—"Gloria Patri"
Piano solo—"The Trout".....Schubert-Hiller
Ruth Geddes.
"One Spring Morning".....Nevin

SCENE FROM MAY ROBSON'S "A NIGHT OUT"

May Robson will be seen at the Lyceum tonight in her new play "A Night Out."

Miss Robson will repeat her old success "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" tomorrow evening.

The roles she plays in the two plays are similar but the plays are entirely different in plot.

begins and does not cease until a city is reached where the men can order what they desire. In the words of the musicians 'the only change from ham and eggs is eggs and ham.' A person can exist on ham and eggs, but these Germans prefer dainty dishes accompanied by steins.

"The kitchen in the rear end of the baggage coach is a popular place. In the evening, when the train has to leave early in order to reach another city in time for a concert in the afternoon the members of the orchestra gather up a lot of foodstuffs, carry them to the car and cook it themselves. It has been discovered that there are a number of good cooks in the orchestra. The manicured hands of the director would never be taken for the hands which deftly turn a steak in a skillet. Still the man is on the list of amateur chefs and well near the top. Other members of the orchestra are popular as cooks stand at the top as musicians.

"No rehearsals are conducted on the road. If a rehearsal is necessary it is held in the morning before a concert. The artists in the orchestra are so well drilled before they leave their home city that rehearsals are quite unnecessary. There is no room in the Pullmans for the musicians to get grouped properly for rehearsals."

This orchestra will play a series of three concerts at the Lyceum theater Thursday and Friday evenings and Saturday afternoon, with an extra children's matinee on Friday afternoon. The advance sale promises a good house at each of the concerts, but the expenses are heavy and a capacity house will no more than clear the costs of the festival.

MAYHEW-STROM.

Pretty Home Wedding of Popular Young People.

A pretty event of this evening will be the wedding of Miss Edith Mayhew to Herman C. Strom, which will take place at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Clement G. Townsend, 236 Lewis street.

Apple blossoms and boughs of cherry blossoms have been artistically arranged about the house as a setting for the event which will take place at 8:30 o'clock. Rev. E. E. Sayles of the First Baptist church officiating.

The bride's gown is of white satin trimmed with panels of lace and her veil is caught with lilies of the valley in a Juliet cap about her head. Her bouquet will be a shower arrangement of the same flowers.

Her bridesmaid will be Miss Mabel Baillie who will wear a gown of white and pale blue silk with overdress of marquisette and will carry a bouquet of pink roses and white sweet peas.

Mr. Strom will be attended by Elmer Blu as best man.

Before the ceremony Miss Elizabeth Maddox will sing "Oh Promise Me," and Miss Louise Prosser will play the wedding music.

Mrs. Townsend will be be assisted by Miss Schiller, Miss Laura Schiller, Miss Clara Schiller and Miss Marjorie Baillie.

ATTRACTIVE CONCERT.

Benefit Recital Will Be Given for Frances Berg.

A benefit recital is being arranged for Miss Frances Berg, one of Duluth's most talented young musicians, by Mrs. Elizabeth Morton Dworshak, who has been her teacher for several years. An excellent program will be given by musicians who are well known and a large attendance is practically assured.

Miss Wally Heymar, violinist; George Edward Suffell, baritone; Miss Florence Hyland and Miss Catherine Morton, vocalists, will assist Miss Berg, who will play several pretentious numbers.

FOR MISS MARTIN.

Tea and Linen Shower for Bride-to-Be.

Mrs. Robert Bruce Liggett of 1014 East Third street was hostess at a charming afternoon tea yesterday at her home in compliment to Miss Alice Martin, whose wedding to E. R. Playground Directors.

Directors of the playground association were elected at a meeting last evening at the Y. M. C. A. building. A meeting of these directors this afternoon will result in the election of officers and the appointment of committees to carry on the work.

Miss Nellie Stoughton was appointed to head a special committee of five to co-operate with the schools and the drama league in arranging pageants and festivals for the celebration of the Fourth of July in a safe, sane and interesting manner.

Judge Alfred Jaques was made temporary chairman of the directors in Saturday afternoon, with an extra children's matinee on Friday afternoon. The advance sale promises a good house at each of the concerts, but the expenses are heavy and a capacity house will no more than clear the costs of the festival.

Spring Festival of Music LYCEUM

Friday next, symphony night; Sat. at 2:30, grand popular matinee; Sat. at 8:15, grand opera night. Seats: $1.50, $1 and 75 cents; gallery 50 cents. On sale at Lyceum.

MANY CHEFS IN PARTY.

Kitchenette Attached to Pullman —Popular Among Musicians.

When the Minneapolis symphony orchestra was at Decatur, Ill., recently, an enterprising reporter of the Decauter Herald visited with members of the orchestra in their special Pullman cars and records his experience with the following entertaining article:

"The mode of travel of the fifty-two musicians who compose the Minneapolis symphony orchestra is interesting. The musicians admit that traveling in Pullmans could be improved upon, and although they have the latest thing in sleeping cars, complaints of discomfort because of scant room, are frequent. All traveling is done by night. The two big Pullmans which are used by the musicians have been equipped with the latest conveniences, including a sort of kitchen in the rear end of the baggage car. The entire equipment makes a good sized train, and the expense of travel is heavy. Many days the members of the orchestra have lived on ham and eggs. When a series of small towns is struck the siege of ham and eggs apartments has gone to Canada for a two months' visit with her parents.

Will Reside in St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Cahrles P. Catlin of 212 Fifteenth avenue east are at the Holland hotel for a few days before leaving for St. Louis, where they will make their future home. Mr. Catlin will have charge of the St. Louis office of the Community Silver company.

Alumnie Banquets.

Alumni banquets at the various schools are proving of interest to graduates and former graduates.

The newly formed alumni association of the C. C. Salter school will give its first banquet at the school tomorrow evening to the members of the eighth grade graduating class and they expect to make this an annual affair. E. A. Mooney, principal of the school, will be the toastmaster and the following program will be given:

Presentation of the Eighth Grade to the Alumni".....
Miss House.
Address of Welcome.....
Abe Miller.

Picnic Supper for Guild.

Miss Edna Harris will be hostess to the members of the Silver Guild of St. Paul's Episcopal church Monday evening at her home in Lakeside. A picnic supper will be served in the grove in the yard.

Will Give Play.

"Men, Maids and Matchmakers," a delightful little three-act play, full of comedy and humor, will be played by members of the Christian Endeavor society of the First Presbyterian church Friday evening in the parlors of the church.

The hour set for the play is 8 o'clock and the evening should prove of general interest for the members of the cast have been rehearsing steadily and possessing a good deal of ability the performance should be most entertaining.

The play is being given to raise funds to use in defraying the expenses attendant on the state convention of the Christian Endeavor, which will be held in Duluth later in the month.

Will Travel Abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Schneider of 1222 East Third street and, daughter, left Duluth Monday for a three months' trip to Europe, traveling chiefly through England, France and Germany. They will sail from Montreal Saturday, June 8, on the White Star line steamer Margentic.

Personal Mention.

THE EVENING STORY

ON BLAIKIE'S BUSY DAY

By Grace E. Cody.

It was noon of Saturday, and in spite of a rushing half day just lived, Blaikie saw no prospect of getting away from his office before dark. He figured that there was enough important work piled on his desk to last three days, and he had just decided to work straight through the lunch hour, to save time, when the telephone bell rang. Swinging round, he jerked down the receiver, and this is what he heard:

"That you, Mr. Blaikie? This is Augusta, the maid, say, what we going to do, Mr. Blaikie? The man has just been here an' turned off all the water. Yes, sir; turned the water off the house, sir. First he come and told us to fill up the bath tub and everything else, if we wanted any water over Sunday, and he talked awful sassy, too. He said you hadn't paid for it, and you'd have your troubles getting the water on again. Said you'd have to go and pay three dollars and a half for a permit or something, besides paying up the tax. And he said—"

"Look here, Augusta"—Blaikie succeeded at last in breaking in—"what are you talking about? My water tax was paid last May. He couldn't shut off the water."

"But he have so, sure, Mr. Blaikie. You can ask Mrs. Manford. She talked to him, too. She told him the lady of the house was downtown, and she was sure you must have paid, but, he wouldn't stop for nothing. He went ahead and turned it off, and then he come around to the kitchen and told me he'd done it—just as sassy."

"Oh, he did, did he! Well, I'll see to it, Augusta. You tell Mrs. Manford I said there was some mistake, and I'd attend to it right away."

Two minutes later the man who had not time to eat his lunch was striding toward the elevator. He understood the whole thing, but there had been no use explaining to Augusta. The water tax on his residence frontage was paid, as he had said, but the charges on the vacant fifty feet to the north, which he had acquired a year or two before for the purpose of preventing a flat building from being squeezed in next to his house, were regulated by a meter which had no connection with the house, and he had only that morning mailed a tardy check in payment of them.

Blaikie had always felt injured about having to put in a meter and pay extra rate on that vacant lot, just for sprinkling, but he had not exactly planned to let the thing run until the water was turned off. Now, he reflected savagely, some bungling idiot, despatched from the city hall, for the purpose of shutting off the water from the vacant lot, had shut it off at the house instead. And Blaikie was not soothed by remembering that his wife's friend, the exquisite Mrs. Manford from New York city, was visiting in his home, and that the next day would be Sunday.

By the time he reached the city hall and found the water department his face was richly flushed. "Can you give me a few minutes?" he inquired meekly enough, but his tone implied, "You'd better, and be quick about it."

"Certainly," was the genial answer, and Blaikie proceeded to pour out his troubles, not forgetting to mention that he had mailed a check for the trifling sum that morning. "Look here, John," said the man behind the desk when Blaikie paused, "did you send anybody out to shut off the water at 6030 Diversey avenue?"

"No, sir," was the answer.

"Of course he didn't," Blaikie put in, impatiently. "Nobody said he had. The frontage of my residence is paid, I tell you. The man was probably sent out to shut off the water from the vacant lot and he's made a mistake and shut it off at the house instead—and I want to know what you're going to do about it. I can't stay here all day to find out, either. This is Saturday and I'm going to have water in the house before night or know the reason why."

The only part of this outburst to take effect was the sentence, "You look it up," and slow moving machinery in human shape was presently started to examine the records and ascertain whether the water tax on Mr. Blaikie's residence was paid, while Blaikie, the busy man, stumped back and forth in the office, growing warmer and warmer.

"Well, Mr. Blaikie," said the man behind the desk at least, with the air of announcing something entirely new, "the water tax on your residence was paid last May." It took some effort on Blaikie's part to answer calmly, "I told you so half an hour ago. And I'm in a hurry. What I want to know is, are you going to get that water turned on again or not?"

"This seems to belong to the meter department," was the urbane answer. "You see, no man has been sent out from here. We don't know anything about it." Accordingly to the meter department Blaikie went and told his story again, in a voice that was going up the scale crescendo. A second lengthy investigation revealed the fact that a man had been sent out from there to shut off the water at the meter. "But that man wouldn't shut off the water at your house, Mr. Blaikie," said the cheerful man.

At this point Blaikie lost his poise completely and shouted at the top of his voice. "Wouldn't! Wouldn't, do you say? Don't stand there telling me what he would do or wouldn't do. I tell you he has done it. The water is turned off right now. What are you going to do about it?"

"But, Mr. Blaikie, he'd have had to take out an iron rod ten feet long in order to shut off the water from your house. He didn't go prepar—"

"Didn't eh? Didn't go prepared. Did you or did you not hear me say that my maid had just telephoned me that it is turned off? Call up my house, if you don't believe it."

"All right. "What's your number?" Blaikie gave it with a grunt of exasperation. "Ask if it's Mr. Blaikie's residence," he directed curtly. "Ask if you're speaking to the maid. Then ask if the water's been shut off." The clerk obeyed implicitly. "Yes, sir, it's shut off," Augusta answered promptly.

"Will you go and open the faucets and then tell me whether the water runs or not?" was the next query. A scornful smile wreathed Blaikie's lips, but he waited in silence until the word came back. "She says it runs all right, Mr. Blaikie" was the report. "You see, the man undoubtedly thought that meter affected your house, too." Blaikie set his lips and swallowed once or twice. He was sympathizing with that sea captain who hailed a passing ship and begged for water because his crew was dying of thirst, and on being told to let down a bucket and pull some up, discovered that he had sailed into the Amazon without knowing it. But he died hard.

"Give me that receiver," he demanded. Then he said, "Hello, Augusta. I want you to go and open those faucets again and see whether the water keeps running. That may have been just a little that was standing in the pipes."

After what seemed to Blaikie an unearthly wait the cheerful answer came back, "Yes, sir, it runs all right."

"Well, look here, then, what did you mean by making me race over here on a fool's errand when I didn't have time to breathe?"

"Why, Mr. Blaikie, that man he said 'twas off, you know," Augusta explained sweetly. Then Blaikie hung up the receiver and faced the little group that had gathered.

"Gentlemen," he said, with a sickly smile, "I don't smoke myself—but I'll remember you."

Keep Up Your Courage

By ALVA ARMSTRONG.

The woman who makes good must be blessed with strength and health, and an ambition to learn and take advantage of every opportunity that comes her way. She must work with all her heart and play with all her heart; above all things avoiding indifference.

Here is the temperament that recognizes that encouragement is all nice and pretty, but if one is going to do the thing that counts one desn't need it; that refuses to be dismayed by repeated failures and that has a certain faith that what has been done by many may be done by another; that nobody goes through life without disappointments, heartaches and the breaking of pet illusions; that there is nothing more common than trouble, but that it is the wise ones of earth that keep it in the background. That's the great lesson of life.

1912 WILL BE BANNER YEAR IN ORE BUSINESS

David T. Adams Says Mills Are Running at Full Capacity.

Turning Down Orders for Prompt Delivery—Ore Stocks Low.

More ore will be shipped from the Lake Superior and Michigan iron mining districts during the coming season than ever before in the opinion of David T. Adams, a former Duluth mining man who is now a resident of Chicago, and who is at his offices in this city today.

"The iron business was never better than it is at the present time," said Mr. Adams this afternoon. "The mills are running full capacity and are refusing orders for immediate delivery. Stocks on the lower lake docks are pretty well cleaned up and I look for a tremendous movement down the lakes this season and next.

"From my own personal knowledge, I am able to say that the mills of the Bethlehem Steel company in Pennsylvania are turning down orders for prompt delivery and have about four months' work ahead. Other steel mills are also running full capacity.

"On the lower lake docks, stocks are pretty low. There should be at least 50,000,000 tons of ore on hand on these docks all the time. This spring the shipments from the docks to the furnaces has been exceptionally heavy and stocks have become more or less exhausted.

"The fact that the steel mills are rushed with orders is pregnant with meaning. In my opinion, 1913 will be a banner year not only from a manufacturing standpoint, but also in the ore trade on the Great Lakes.

"The Cuyuna iron range is just coming into its own. A few of the mines which are just being developed are shipping this year and I have no doubt but that several more will be shipping in 1913.

"The Cuyuna range, I believe, should be classed as the second largest iron producing country in the United States. I would put the Mesaba range first and the Iron River range of Michigan third.

"The Cuyuna range product is a comparatively new ore. It will be classed with the old range ores and there should be a differential of twenty-five cents per ton over the Mesaba product for the same grade of ore. It has a good structure and will carry the finer grade of Mesaba ore for mixture purposes."

Mr. Adams declares that last year's slump in the ore business was not directly due to over-production. He places the responsibility for the dull times on the politicians and government officials who have directed an agitation against the business and money interests of the country.

Mr. Adams will return to Chicago tomorrow.

Business Is Fine.
Ben Blumenthal, manager of the Leiser company store is in the East in company with Mr. Leiser and the Leiser corps of buyers for the Leiser chain of stores. Mr. Leiser when in Duluth a week ago, expressed his great satisfaction in the continued gains in the Duluth store under Mr. Blumenthal's progressive management.

Paying Wheelage Tax.
News that an officer was on the trail of those who have not paid their wheelage tax had a very satisfactory effect in the city hall today. Delinquents kept the city clerk's force busy receiving money and issuing tags all day. Almost thirty took out tags before noon, and this afternoon the rush continues.

Dr. H. W. Clarke, Dentist,
Second floor front, 202 Palladio Bldg.

Get Twenty Days Each.
Ed Donahoe and Nellie Hood, arrested Monday night at West end, were given a hearing yesterday afternoon before Judge Cutting in municipal court. The man had pleaded guilty and was set up for twenty days, but the woman pleaded guilty to drunkenness only, she got a similar sentence.

Two Vags Will Work.
In Judge Cutting's section of municipal court yesterday afternoon two vags, Axel Olsan and Andrew Lundgren, pleaded guilty and the court handed them a chance to earn their living on the hill for the next thirty days.

Will Attend Funeral.
The funeral of E. D. Graff of the Scott-Graff Lumber company, who died recently in a hospital at Worthington, Pa., will be held in that city tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Graff was well known at Duluth. His last visit to this city occurred in February of this year, when he came to attend the annual meeting of the lumber company. Z. D. Scott, also of the Scott-Graff Lumber company, left Duluth yesterday for Worthington to attend his business partner's funeral.

Sunday School Meeting.
A meeting of the officers and workers in the Episcopal Sunday School commission will be held this evening at St. Paul's Episcopal church, Lake avenue and Second street. Following the meeting there will be a reception.

Property Owners' Meeting.
The Twenty-third avenue west property owners will meet this evening at the Franklin school, Fifth avenue east and Seventh street, for the purpose of completing a petition for the grading of Seventh street. A special invitation has been sent to each of the owners of property abutting the proposed improvement to attend the meeting and bring a description of his real estate.

Lester Park Club.
The next meeting of Lester Park Improvement club will be held Thursday, June 6 at 8 p. m. at the Lester Park school. This club was organized May 15 for the purpose of improving building up, cleaning up and beautifying one of Duluth's beauty spots, in the way of better lights, better car service and other improvements.

School Board Meeting.
Only routine business is expected to come up at the meeting of the school board at the Central high school Friday evening, the regular monthly meeting of the board. Arrangements will be made to close up the schools, plans for repairs at the different buildings will be made and general school business discussed.

Undergoes Operation.
Willis E. Downie, son of E. Downie, a local stockbroker, who was operated upon for appendicitis at St. Mary's hospital Sunday night is reported to be recovering.

Visiting Old Friends.
Capt. J. A. Pearce of St. Louis Park, Minn., and Judge J. D. Stevens of Regina, Sask., are the guests of old time friends in the city today. Capt. Pearce formerly resided here and Judge Stevens once lived in Northern Michigan.

Furness Gives Picture Party.
Thomas Furness, managing owner of the Odeum theater, entertained a large party of business men this morning at the first showing of the greatest motion picture ever produced, the "Coming of Columbus." The picture surpasses anything ever seen before in Duluth.

GOOD PRICE FOR WEST END BLOCK

Superior Street Business Property Is Sold for $28,000.

A choice piece of West end property changed hands today in the transfer of a two-story brick block at 2016-2020 West Superior street from Sarah P. Smith to B. J. and Alex Summerfield of Cloquet for a consideration of $28,000.

The building is occupied by the Fedje Clothing company and the Palace 5 and 10-Cent store, and fronts seventy-five feet on the lower side of Superior street between Twentieth and Twenty-first avenues west.

The sale was made through the office of Stryker, Manley & Buck, who were agents for the seller. P. George Hanson & Sons, a real estate agency of the West end, represented the purchasers.

AFTERNOON TRAINS BRING DELEGATES.

Afternoon trains today brought in a large number of convention delegates, some of them among the most prominent Democrats in the state.

Several of the counties will caucus this evening and determine on their votes on the various questions to come before the convention tomorrow. Some of the counties which sent uninstructed delegates have not yet determined their sentiment between Wilson and Clark, although the number included in that class is small.

St. Louis county headquarters have been opened in Parlor B at the Holland. The Hennepin county delegation will have headquarters at the Spalding and the Ramsey county delegation will be at the St. Louis.

TRAIN JUMPS TRACK AT SPIRIT LAKE; FIREMAN HURT

The Northern Pacific train from the steel plant to Duluth struck an open switch at Spirit Lake at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon, and the engine and passenger coach left the track, running along the ties for a distance of about 100 feet.

The train left the steel plant at 1:30 o'clock. It was running past the icehouses at Spirit lake, at reduced speed, when the engine left the track. Nobody was injured but the fireman, W. H. McClure, who jumped and broke his leg.

The passenger coach was next to the engine, the baggage car being at the rear of the train. The baggage car did not leave the tracks.

The passenger coach was filled with steel plant workmen, and they were badly shaken up, but nobody was injured. There were five or six women among the passengers, but they were not hurt.

An engine and a caboose went out after the passengers and brought them to the city, the fireman being taken to St. Mary's hospital.

HAS NO CHANCE TO PROVE HIS SLANDERS

DR. KARL FRANCKE.

Dr. Karl Francke does not say limbs and feet; he says legs and knees with all the brutal frankness of the scientific man. According to him the knees of lovely woman bow inward because lovely woman swathes her legs in interfering garments like the hobble skirt. Dressmakers scoff at the scientific opinion and say that woman is no more knockkneed now than she was in the days of hoops. Concerning this point mere man must accept the authority of the dressmaker for the opportunities vouched him by the hobble skirt were wanting when lovely woman wore fuller garments over her (we quote the professor) legs.

Board Makes Assessments.

The board of public works yesterday afternoon viewed North Eighth street from Hammond avenue to Catlin street and made the preliminary assessments for the improvements ordered for that section of the thoroughfare. The street is to be paved with concrete.

Industrial Excursions.

The publicity committee of the Commercial club will revive the industrial excursions, which proved so popular with the citizens last summer. The first trip will probably be taken to the new knitting mill. The excursions will be held every two weeks.

Sailors in Cutting Affray.

A cutting affray yesterday afternoon on the steamer Bransford, tied to dock No. 2 at Allouez, resulted in the arrest of Frank Williams, steward on the boat, who is accused of cutting Charles Graman, fireman on the steamer. Williams is charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and Graman is being held as a witness.

Dr. Day on Suffrage.

Dr. D. H. Day of Duluth gave an interesting talk to the members of the Douglas County Suffrage club at the regular meeting held at the public library. Dr. Day pointed out the improvements in Colorado since the women were given the vote. The defeat of Mayor Gill at Seattle was also discussed by the speaker.

Suspends Publication.

Publicity Items, the official paper of the Commercial club, has suspended publication, owing to the various other channels through which the club funds have been diverted. Many other advertising plans are now being arranged and with these in operation, the appropriation for publicity will be entirely used up, not allowing for the publication of the items.

SIDETRACK LORIMER CASE.

Senators Take Up Education Bill Discussion for a While.

Washington, June 5.—The Lorimer case was temporarily put aside in the senate today, while Senator Kern, who is making a two days' speech against the Illinoisan, gave way to Senator Page, for a speech on a vocational education bill.

Mr. Lorimer left his seat on the Republican side, and crossing the aisle to Senator Kern, shook hands with him across Senator Chamberlain's desk.

"I suppose," said Senator Chamberlain, "that you think each of us who is going to vote against you is a devil of a fellow?"

"Not at all," returned Senator Lorimer with a smile. "I don't think so at all."

For five minutes the three members chatted, Lorimer's face wreathed in smiles.

Action on the Lorimer case may be postponed until after the national convention.

RAINS NEAR DRY REGION

Reports of Precipitation in Omaha District Pull Wheat Down.

Scarcity of No. 1 Flaxseed Is Gradually Forcing July Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 5.—What started out to be a bullish day on the wheat markets of North America closed with declines instead of advances on account of reports of rains so near the drouth-stricken region of Kansas and Nebraska that these rains were regarded as good indications of a breaking of the drouth itself in the near future. Duluth July wheat closed today at a decline of ⅞c. July cash wheat closed 1c higher. Durum closed ¾c off and oats ⅛c up. Rye and barley closed unchanged. Duluth July flaxseed closed at an advance of 2c.

Although wheat had a general bullish movement on the markets during the early part of the session today, by reason of continued reports of extremely dry weather in Kansas and Nebraska, there was a downward movement before noon. This downward movement was due to the report of a good shower in Eastern Nebraska, especially around Omaha. This region needed rain, but not so badly as Western Nebraska and most of Kansas. Yet the fact that the rain fell so near to the regions where it has long been badly needed, had a bearish effect on the price movement today, and the value of wheat went down, in spite of telegrams of drouth damage and the news of the appearance of insects to complete the destruction in Ohio.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.14⅞ bid, opened today at $1.15 bid and remained strong until late in the morning, when the reports of the rains began to have their effect. At noon, Duluth July was considerably below the closing price of yesterday, selling at $1.14¾. At the same time there were lower quotations at Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

News from across the Atlantic was bearish on our markets, but wheat closed higher at Liverpool, being ¼@⅜d higher. The Continental demand was good, especially in France and Platte offers were firmer.

July Flaxseed Climbing.

The scarcity of No. 1 flaxseed on the Duluth market has been affecting the July option about as it did the May option. Today at noon, Duluth July was 2½c higher at $2.28½ asked. There were but three cars of flaxseed on the track for inspection. Winnipeg July was up 1c at $1.27¼ bid. Buenos Ayres May closed last night 2¾c off at $1.75½ and London Calcutta June and July today closed unchanged at $2.29¾. Trading on the Duluth market was very dull. There was a good demand for the No. 1 seed, but very little of it was to be had.

Canadian bonded grain receipts: Flax, 2 cars.

Le Count wired from Wichita last night: "I have just returned from a 500-mile auto trip and I find that all the fields show damage. Much wheat will make half a crop and some fields are ruined beyond repair, regardless of weather. From Ellsworth to Wichita wheat is in better condition, but the soil is very dry and wheat is deteriorating rapidly from drought. The whole crop is prematurely ripening. The territory that might produce a good crop is small compared with the territory already prematurely injured. There are no signs of rain."

The Ohio agricultural experiment station today issued the following bulletin: "Information received by the department of entomology of the Ohio experiment station has confirmed the observations in the wheat field stations indicating that much of the wheat which survived the destructive cold and ice of the winter, will succumb to destructive insects, Hessian flies, cinch bugs, joint worms and midge all are in evidence.'

The following is from B. W. Snow: "Central City, Neb.—The corn situation is unsatisfactory. Some stands are good. Others are as low as 50 per cent. The wheat crop is heading and the yield will be short. Rain is needed."

"Marshall, Mo.—Much corn has to be replanted. What is heading out and oats are looking well."

"Clearwater, Kan.—Not more than half a crop of wheat is possible."

"Cordell, Okla.—Wheat has declined at least half in prospect and the weather continues dry."

"Ottawa, Ill.—Corn planting is not yet completed and there is much replanting to do. Corn fields are in poor condition."

"Marion, Kan.—The weather is very dry. They are suffering badly for rain and some fields are thick with chinch bugs. Wheat is headed, but needing rain."

Reports of primary receipts on the American markets make it look as if wheat were pretty well cleaned up through the country and that farmers have very little to offer. If the farms had much it would undoubtedly be attracted to the market by the high prices that now can be obtained. Today Duluth and Minneapolis together reported receipt of only 133 cars of wheat against 194 cars a year ago today.

Darnbusch of London says: "Indian official crop results of the various provinces are now being cabled over, from which it would appear that the yields may prove better than anticipated. In the United Provinces and Oudh the outturn of 'pure' linseed has totalled 159,000 tons against only 103,000 tons last year. The mixed is returned at 140,000 tons, or the same as a year ago. Bombay and Sind, however, have a crop no larger than 9,500 tons, against 25,700 tons last season. Other returns are daily awaited."

Morgan, Kans., says: "We have lost 65 per cent of our crop of wheat on account of chinch bugs to date and more will follow with this kind of weather."

H. J. Atwood, president of the Atwood-Larson company, was today elected a director of the Duluth board of trade, to fill out the unexpired term of E. H. Smith, western manager of the American Linseed company. Mr. Smith resigned on account of the necessity of spending a considerable fraction of his time at the company's Minneapolis office. Mr. Smith had served out about half of a three-year term.

A wire from Kansas City says: "The Coates, Kan., region had very good wheat prospects until two weeks ago. Owing to lack of rain since, the crop has been in bad condition."

Talmidge, Kan.: "In some of the wheat fields 50 per cent of the heads are white and dead. On 35 acres on one farm, 30 to 40 per cent will not be worth selling. Other Kansas advices confirm the same report."

Snow's report of June 1, based on returns mailed locally about May 28, before the drouth damage in Kansas and Nebraska was apparent, makes the winter wheat condition 77.1, or 1.2 per cent higher than on May 14. The spring wheat acreage is 19,208,000, or 704,000 acres less than last year. The condition is 95.3. The government method of figuring the present report indicates 383,000,000 bu of winter wheat and 265,000,000 bu of spring wheat, or a total of 648,000,00 bu. From this must be deducted whatever loss occurred west of the Missouri river since May 28.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Rain in Kansas Causes Decline in Wheat Prices.

Chicago, June 5.—Rain in Kansas and promise of some tonight for Nebraska turned the wheat market today in a downward direction. Assertions that the moisture supply in Kansas had consisted mainly of showers hardly enough to lay the dust led to a rally, but the effect was only temporary. Strength of cables had little influence, being considered a reflection of recent advances on this side of the Atlantic. The opening varied from ⅜c lower to ¼c up. September started at $1.06⅛@1.06½, ranging from ¼c decline to ⅛c gain, touched $1.06⅝ and then sank to $1.06⅜@1.06¼.

Reports of rain at Omaha and of a downpour at Salina, Kan., drove the market still lower. The close was nervous at $1.05⅞ for September, a net loss of 1c even.

Bull leaders bid corn higher. Sellers were conspicuously absent. July opened unchanged to ⅛@¼c off at 73¾@73⅞c to 74¼c.

Afterwards the market sagged in sympathy with wheat. The close was easy with July at 73¾c, a decline of ¼c net.

Oats ran up sharply on good general commission buying. Cash houses took a prominent part in the purchasing movement. July started ⅛@⅜c up at 50½@50¾c and climbed to 51¼c.

Trade in provisions had a steady tone. There was only light volume of business. Initial sales swung from last night's level to 2½c below, with September deliveries $18.70@18.72½ for pork, $10.97½@11.00 for lard, and $10.52½ for ribs.

London Stocks.

London, June 5.—American securities were dull and featureless during the early trading today. At noon prices ranged from unchanged to ⅜ higher than yesterday's New York closing.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Market Apathetic Early, But Broad and Active in Last Hour.

Average Price Level Highest of the Day at the Close.

New York, June 5.—Coal stocks were features of strength at the opening of the stock market today, Reading, Lehigh Valley and Norfolk & Western soon rising a point or more. American Tobacco and Brooklyn Rapid Transit also were strong with fractional advances elsewhere in the active group.

Dullness followed the opening, after which moderate activity was resumed, with a further hardening of the leaders and gains of 1 to 2 points in various industrials.

Trading was of the usual professional character during today's early session on the stock exchange. Coal shares again led the movement. Standard specialties also made gains. Every indication of bullishness gave way to apathy, which was taken as proof of the market's artificial condition.

Crop advices were more cheerful and the steadiness of steel stocks reflected reports of greater activity at industrial centers.

Bonds were steady.

The market closed strong. Greater breadth and activity was manifested in the last hour, when the average price level was the highest of the day. Smelting, Amalgamated Copper and the lesser copper shares were special features of strength.

Cotton Market.

New York, June 5. — The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 4 points, and active positions sold about 4 or 5 points net lower during the early trading. The decline was checked by scattering covering and moderate support from some of the trade interests who were buyers yesterday, but the market rallied only 2 or 3 points from the lowest and was very quiet late in the first hour.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 11.45; middling gulf, 11.70. Sales, 66 bales.

Futures closed quiet. Closing bids: June, 10.88; July, 11.02; August, 11.07; September, 11.14; October, 11.22; November, 11.26; December, 11.51; January, 11.27; February, 11.31; March, 11.37; May, 11.42.

Time loans easy; 60 days, 3 per cent; 90 days, 3 per cent; six months, 3½@3¾ per cent. Closing: Prime mercantile paper, 3¾@4 per cent. Sterling exchange steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.84.50 for 60-day bills, and at $4.87.15 for demand. Commercial bills, $4.83¾. Mexican dollars, 48c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds steady.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., June 5.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Trade is gradually assuming summer proportions, and the heavy orders that have been featuring the market for the past several months, are less in evidence. The day's clearance was composed almost entirely of retail orders for farm mares and general purpose horses from the farming interests of Michigan, Wisconsin, and Northern Minnesota. There was a light demand for mules. Receipts about fifty head. Values as follow:

Drafters, extra	$190@230
Drafters, choice	120@150

FIERCE WIND DOES DAMAGE

Fences Fall and Boats Overturn During Brief Hurricane.

The wind storm which descended upon the city yesterday afternoon in a fierce gust and which lasted but a few minutes did considerable damage and several people had close calls from accident.

A board front, which had been erected before a building at Lake avenue and Superior street while repairs were going on, was blown down and several pedestrians as well as a man driving an automobile were nearly caught beneath it. Fortunately all seemed to anticipate what would happen and got away in time. The man with the automobile had the closest call. He was unable to get away quickly because of several people in front of his machine, and just as he succeeded, it fell, missing him by about an inch.

Two sailboats in the harbor were turned over and the life-saving crew picked up one of the parties, the members of the other righting their boat and climbing on board before help could reach them.

A huge pine tree on Thirty-second street, Park Point, was uprooted. It pitched over the roof of a small cottage, doing some damage to the house.

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Men

Send Name and Address Today—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Healthy.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his health, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 4671 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

ENGINEER'S WIFE DISAPPEARS

W. W. Nelson, Park Point, Looking for Mrs. Nelson and Children.

W. W. Nelson, one of the United States engineers at the Superior entry and residing at 2029 Minnesota avenue, Park Point, is looking for his wife and four small children, who disappeared about noon yesterday.

Mr. Nelson is all the more worr'ed because his wife's mind seems to have been affected after a recent illness and he fears that harm may have befallen both her and the children.

It was thought for a time that Mrs. Nelson had taken the children and left for Sault Ste Marie, but inquiry at the railroad offices shows that no party answering the description left the city yesterday.

The children range from 2½ years of age to 10. It is impossible to describe their dress for Mr. Nelson found that his wife had visited one of the local stores yesterday and fitted out each child in new dress.

Mrs. Nelson told the neighbors that she was leaving for Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Mrs. Nelson was quite ill recently and the illness seems to have left her mind in a weak condition, according to her husband.

MARINE

HARD COAL IS RECEIVED

First Three Cargoes of the Season Arrive in Port.

Steamers Davidson and Brown Arrive Only Five Minutes Apart.

Beating the steamer Louis R. Davidson by five minutes, the steamer J. J. H. Brown arrived at 7:45 last night with the first cargo of hard coal received at the port of Duluth this season.

Since the opening of navigation last spring there has not been a single cargo of hard coal received at Duluth until yesterday. There were three boats yesterday, the steamer Nicholas arriving after the Brown and Davidson had docked.

The scarcity of hard coal cargoes was due to the strike of the coal miners, the mines suspending operations for some time. About ten days ago the miners went back to work and even the most optimistic of the shippers did not anticipate the first arrival of coal before June 15.

Shipping has begun earlier than was expected that it is expected that hard coal will now come up the lakes in large quantities as the supplies on the local docks are very low and coal is pouring into the lower lake ports from the mines. The cargoes received yesterday came from Buffalo.

Up to this time the boats have been coming light to Duluth and taking grain and ore at this port. There is not much doing in grain at the present time as the rush is over. Ore cargoes are plentiful, however.

The Juniata, the first Anchor line boat to arrive this year, came in this morning with package freight. The Anchor line boats are equipped this year with wireless outfits.

The tug America of the Union Towing company, left yesterday with the barge Hartnell for Ashland. The Hartnell was loaded with ore. She will be towed from Ashland down the lakes.

PEOPLE ARE LAND CRAZY

May Robson Says Canadian Cousins Are Becoming Land Gamblers.

Miss May Robson, the comedienne, today described the Northwestern Canadian country, through which she has been played, as one of the most remarkable parts of North America. At the Spaulding the actress stated that in her travels over the country she has never been so impressed as she was during the stops at some of the towns in the Canadian Northwest.

"They sold lots at the corner as I have seen men selling peanuts and pop corn in other less thriving and energetic communities," declared Miss Robson. "Some of the men in my troupe told me that people were sleeping on billiard and pool tables. In one yard I saw beds spread out under small coverings to keep off the rain, and every one of the beds was occupied. Some of the beds had three people in them.

"The people seem to be land crazy up there. A man will sell his house in the morning and come around in the afternoon and make his neighbor a flattering offer for his lot and house. Speculation has seized the people like I have seen the gambling fever lay hold of some of the residents of the little towns in the far West. Fortunes have been made in the buying and selling of land and the desire to accumulate money rapidly is the dominant characteristic of the men of the various communities through which we played."

IN THE DAY'S WORK AT WASHINGTON

Williams Charges Graft.

Washington, June 5.—Grafting in connection with the rental of buildings in Washington for government purposes, was charged in the senate by Seantor Williams of Mississippi, in connection with the consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. Other senators also criticized the extensive rent bills of the government.

The records show $586,274 is paid annually for the rental of buildings in Washington used largely by the executive department. Senator Smith of Georgia contended this aggregate would reach $800,000 a year. Mr. Williams said the government paid four times as much as other tenants would be required to pay.

Senator Gallinger concurred with his Democratic colleagues as to rent outlay, saying that the tendency is to "run riot in the line of extravagance."

Extend Presidential Term.

The house judiciary committee voted to report favorably the constitutional amendment proposed by Representative Clayton of Alabama, extending the term of the president to six years and prohibiting more than one term.

Stand Pat Against Battleships.

House leaders declare that the addition to the naval appropriation bill by the senate of two battleships is certain to throw that measure into a long conference. They added that there would be no compromise on the part of the house, the majority of which had held two caucuses and had voted for no battleships appropriations. Chairman Padgett of the house naval affairs committee was emphatic in his declaration that there would be no back down by the house conferees.

Favors Rostron Medal.

The house merchant marine committee agreed to report favorably the senate bill bestowing the thanks of congress and a $1,000 gold medal upon Capt. A. H. Rostron of the steamer Carpathia, for his rescue of the Titanic survivors.

Favor Federal Incorporation.

A federal incorporation act such as was recommended by President Taft was urged upon the house judiciary committee by a delegation of officers of the national chamber of commerce, which included Harry A. Wheeler, Chicago; George H. Whecher, Berlin, N. H.; J. P. Truesdell, New York; A. J. Logan, Pittsburg; Bernard N. Baker, Boston; J. D. Mullen, Wilmington, Del.; Frederick Bode, Chicago; P. T. Hicks, Saginaw, Mich.; A. H. Vogel, Milwaukee; C. G. Craddock, Lynchburg, Va.; P. K. Kruesi, Chattanooga, Tenn.; E. W. Wells, Minneapolis; A. C. Dixon, Eugene, Or., and A. F. Farquhar, New York.

SURPRISED AT CITY'S GROWTH

F. B. Clark, Former Lumberman, Is Visiting Old Friends Here.

F. B. Clark, known to hundreds of his Duluth friends as "Dad," is in the city today, having come from Grand Rapids, Mich., where he is engaged in business at the present time.

A number of years ago Mr. Clark was engaged in the lumber business here, the firm name being Clark & Jackson. Since leaving Duluth Mr. Clark has been in Seattle and also engaged in the lumber business in Arizona.

"The Puget Sound country is one of the greatest lumbering sections in this country," said Mr. Clark at the Spalding today. "In fact it is also developing into one of the best agricultural sections of the Northwest. In natural resources it is very difficult to surpass that part of the country.

"Seattle is rather quiet at the present time, but the town is all right. Cities in that part of the country are bound to grow. The lumber industry is also getting better, for with the increase of general business there has come a greater demand for the products of the Northwestern timber regions.

"Say, you are growing some here. I have not been in Duluth for a number of years, and the progress that has been made during the past few years is surprising."

GOOD WATER FOR SANITARIUM

Well at Nopeming Now Flowing About 10,000 Barrels a Day.

St. Louis county's sanitarium commission is much pleased with the final results in the well-digging operations at Nopeming, the site of the new tubercular sanitarium, in view of the fact that it was necessary to drill through 215 feet of solid rock before water was struck and that for a time it looked very doubtful if water could be reached.

The well now flows about 10,000 barrels a day and if this keeps up, the county will not have occasion to worrry over the matter of a supply of good pure water to the patients who will soon occupy the new institution.

The well was drilled by A. P. Lacey, a West Duluth contractor, the cost being about $2,000.

Music at Grand Forks.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—After an absence of two years, the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra arrived this morning to open the sixth annual music festival at the Auditorium this afternoon. The festival opened this afternoon with the popular orchestra concert. This evening the operatic program will be given and tomorrow afternoon the symphony program will be the feature.

WAGE-EARNING VIRTUE

In selling real estate—perhaps more than in any other thing in which want advertising is the dominant factor—persistency earns attractive rewards! The property owner, who is determined to sell to the buyer to whom the property would be worth most, is eventually paid very high wages indeed for his persistency in advertising.

DEMOCRATS OF MINNESOTA ASSEMBLE IN CONVENTION IN DULUTH TO ELECT AND INSTRUCT DELEGATES TO BALTIMORE GATHERING

SECOND CHOICE WILL BE PROVISION OF THE STATE-WIDE PRIMARY

Opposition of the Few Eberhart Supporters Cannot Prevent It.

Indications Are That Reapportionment Is Dead at This Session.

Result of Combine Between Southern Minnesota and Twin Cities.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—If a state-wide primary bill goes through at the extra session, and there is practically no doubt about that, it is certain to contain the second choice provision.

This in spite of the opposition of the Eberhart supporters, who are few enough, apparently, in either branch of the legislature.

As stated in The Herald yesterday, a partial poll of the senate showed more than a majority of its members in favor of the second choice provision.

No poll of the house has been taken, but the action yesterday afternoon of the house committee on elections, which includes thirty-one members, is fairly indicative of the temper of that body.

When the Hayfield-Knapp primary election bill was referred to a subcommittee to be reported back to the general committee at an early meeting, probably this afternoon, a motion was made that whatever bill is reported by the sub-committee must provide for the second choice feature.

This motion was adopted unanimously.

The discussion befort the committee was rather desultory, and because it

APPRAISE KANSAS CITY RAILWAYS

Cooley and Arnold Are Named By Judge Hook at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—United States Circuit Judge William C. Hook, who has charge of the receivership of the street railway system in Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kan., today appointed Prof. Mortimer E. Cooley of Michigan university and Elon J. Arnold of Chicago, subject to their acceptance, to investigate and appraise the value of the street railway property for use in the negotiations between the cities and the receivers for a new franchise. Messrs. Cooley and Arnold have heretofore served in similar capacities on behalf of cities and other public bodies.

GAMBLE MAY FORGE AHEAD

South Dakota Senatorial Nomination Not Yet Determined.

Byrne and Johnson Are the Nominees for the Governorship.

Redfield, S. D., June 6.—S. W. Clark, manager for Thomas Sterling, apparent leader in the four-sided senatorial race, concedes that Senator Gamble's chances have improved since the full returns from Minnehaha county came in. That county gives Gamble 1,998, Sterling 1,200, and divides 2,400 among Richards and Grigsby, who are eliminated elsewhere by light votes. Clark expresses the fear that returns from Homestead county may give Gamble the lead.

Both Claim Victory.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 6.—This morning the result of the contest for the Republican senatorial nomination in South Dakota was in doubt, with victory claimed by both Thomas Sterling and Senator Gamble.

Gamble claims to have won by not less than 2,500. The Sterling men

CAMPAIGN EXPENSES

Proposed Corrupt Practices Act Is Elaborate and Comprehensive.

Statements of Expenditures Required Monthly During Campaign.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The corrupt practices act, upon which Senator Lende in the senate and Representatives Frankson and Campbell in the house have been working, and which in substance will probably be the election committee bill in both branches, is an elaborate and comprehensive affair.

It prohibits expenditures of money for campaign expenses except for the following purposes:

1. For the candidate's necessary personal traveling expenses; for postage, telegraph, telephone, or other public messenger service.

2. For rent and necessary furnishing of hall or room during such candidacy, for the delivery of speeches relative to principles or candidates.

3. Payment of speakers and musi-

ARE TALKING OF DIVISION

People of Northern Minnesota Wrought Up Regarding Reapportionment.

Movement to Divide State Projected, If Senate Remains Obstinate.

Akeley, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.) — All Northern Minnesota is greatly wrought up over the action of the state senate in placing the bars up against reapportionment, and according to a statement made by William M. Taber, president of the State Bank of Akeley, and one of the most prominent "boosters" for this section of the state, there will be a general uprising which will mean the division of the state, and will end in a North Minnesota and South Minnesota in fact as well as in name as present.

Section 23, article 4 of the Constitution of the state provides: "At the first session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States,

FIRST FRUIT OF SESSION

House Ratifies Two Amendments to the Federal Constitution.

First Bombardment of the Senate's Two-Measure Program.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—By a unanimous vote, the house this morning passed resolutions ratifying the federal constitutional amendment providing for the direct election of United States senators and the amendment providing for the income tax. This is the first fruit of the extra session in either branch, and it is the first bombardment by the house of the senate's two-measure barrier.

The house committee on general legislation met before the session and voted to return all the individual bills to their authors, and to report both measures as committee bills. When this was done, on motion of Chairman Mattson, the house suspended the rules and passed both bills, the vote being unanimous in each case. The bills now go to the senate.

The Congdon reapportionment bill of 1911 will be introduced in the house tomorrow or next day, as soon as it can be put into shape to introduce. Senator Boyle and Representatives Knapp and Healey are at work redistricting St. Louis county to do away with the "shoestring" district, to which objection has been made.

Representative W. A. Campbell of Minneapolis had the rule suspended for the first time to receive a bill outside the house program. He offered one repealing the absurd provision of the 1911 automobile law, which requires all vehicles, from baby carriages and wheelbarrows to farm wagons, to carry two lights.

GERMAN OFFICERS SEE THE MIDDIES

"June Week" at Naval Academy Featured By Foreigners' Visit.

Annapolis, Md., June 6.—Today's observance of "June week" at the naval academy took on an international aspect with the arrival of the officers attached to the squadron of German warships now in Hampton Roads. They will be entertained by Supt. Gibbons at luncheon, and will make an inspection of the buildings and grounds.

The naval aviators here will demonstrate their skill with the hydro-aeroplane for the benefit of the visiting foreign officers.

Old graduates, from as far back as the 50's, are here to attend their annual reunion this afternoon. As is customary, the oldest member present in point of date of graduation will preside over the formation for the march to the banquet hall, while the youngest will act as adjutant. It is expected more than 100 naval academy graduates will be present.

The climax of the week's exercises will take place tomorrow afternoon, when President Taft will present the diplomas to the members of the graduating class. Afterwards the president is expected to call upon Governor Goldsborough at the executive mansion.

LOSES WIFE IN CENTRAL PARK

Milwaukee Man Finally Finds Her Safe in Another Hotel.

New York, June 6.—Frank M. Davis, a Milwaukee manufacturer, lost his wife last night in Central park. Today he found her, with the aid of the police. Mrs. Davis was traced to a hotel near the Fifty-ninth street entrance of the park, where she sought shelter when her husband failed to meet her as arranged.

He had told her to meet him near the animal house, but by mistake she waited near the plaza entrance. When he failed to appear she appealed to a policeman, who suggested that she go to a nearby hotel.

FIFTEEN HORSES IN BARN STABBED

Chicago, June 6.—Wild neighing and stamping by 180 horses in the barn of the Walsh Transfer company led to the discovery today that fifteen of the animals had been fearfully slashed and stabbed. One of the animals died and another had to be shot to be put out of misery.

The police attribute the crime to warfare between rival organizations of teamsters.

George Setinia and Michael Stopke were arrested on suspicion of being the wielders of the knives.

White Star Director Says Titanic Had Boats and Men Enough.

Calls Searchlights "Worse Than Useless" and Objects to Binoculars.

London, June 6.—The disaster to the steamer Titanic has done little to alter the views of Harold Sanderson, a director of the White Star line, as to the sufficiency of the present equipment of trans-Atlantic steamers for all practical purposes.

Mr. Sanderson was recalled by the wreck commission today, and disputed the usefulness of additional lifeboats, of searchlights, binoculars and larger crews of seamen, but he added:

"There is a popular cry for binoculars and extra boats, and we want to satisfy it."

"There are," continued Mr. Sanderson, "certain risks coming from the sea, which it is impossible to eliminate, just as there are on land."

Only Reason For Boats.

The witness emphasized the fact that small boats were carried only for the purpose of transferring persons from ship to ship, or from ship to land, and said that if more seamen were carried in order to man additional boats, they would have nothing to do until there was a wreck.

Searchlights, he declared, would be "worse than useless; they would be a positive source of danger. The worst Propose Such Action If Roosevelt Makes Fight Upon Root.

Republican National Committee Begins Work at Chicago.

Madison, Wis., June 6.—If Col. Roosevelt makes a fight on Senator Root for temporary chairman of the Chicago convention, the La Follette delegates, numbering thirty-six, will put up a candidate of their own in opposition to him.

This was the assurance here today of State Treasurer Dahl, delegate at large from Wisconsin. Who their choice for chairman would be has not been decided, but Senator A. J. Gronna of North Dakota will probably be chosen.

It is said that whenever possible, the Wisconsin men will demand a roll call to place the delegates on record on important issues.

A steering committee of four men of the Wisconsin delegation will be named to direct the La Follette fight on the floor. It will meet either in Madison or Milwaukee soon. The Wisconsin delegation probably will meet in Chicago on the Saturday prior to the convention.

National Committee Meets.

Chicago, June 6.—Although the representation was not complete, a majority of the members of the Republican national committee assembled at the Coliseum today, prepared to enter the first of a ten-days' series of meetings which will determine who shall fill over 230 contested seats of a total of 1,078 on the floor of the convention when it is called to order, June 18.

This meeting is expected to develop a skirmish between the Taft and Roosevelt forces which may become highly important in foreshadowing the line of fighting that will be carried into the convention.

The Taft leaders, according to reports from various sources, had decided to use their claimed majority of

T. T. Hudson's name will very likely not be presented as a candidate for national committeeman when the Democratic state convention reaches the question of an indorsement for that office late this afternoon. The convention was called to order shortly before 11 o'clock and adjourned for the noon recess at 12:30, until 2:30 p. m. Mr. Hudson had not formally withdrawn from the race at 1 o'clock, but his friends admitted that his name would likely not be presented. The contest may develop when the election of delegates-at-large comes up, but if the delegates-at-large elected are to Mr. Hudson's liking, he will not allow his name to go before the convention as a candidate for national committeeman.

Although it had no part in the harmony program, except a move to throw oil on the troubled waters, F. B. Lynch withdrew as a candidate for delegate-at-large this morning and several angles of discord were thus straightened out. In the Second district, Congressman Hammond also withdrew from consideration as a candidate for delegate-at-large and T. J. Knox's name was substituted.

The delegate-at-large slate may also be upset in respect to H. L. Buck, who seemed to have support enough this morning to insure his election. Only the actual election of the delegates will determine the personnel of the delegation, for names presented from the floor may upset all of the preliminary forecasts.

Harmony Prevails.

Harmony began to take possession of matters early this morning. Up to the time of a recess about 12 o'clock to allow the districts to choose the members of the various committees, nothing was settled, however. In several of the districts, bitter contests were in prospect. The recess gave the delegates an opportunity to mix with each other and order began to emerge from the chaos. At the time of the adjournment at 1 o'clock, only three districts had not settled their choice for delegates, and in only the First was the contest of any great moment. In the Eighth district, the contest between J. B. Galarneault of Aitkin and C. M. King of Deer River has not approached acrimony at any time and the choice of either will not cause any bad feeling.

Wilson Men Control.

The Wilson men had all their own way this morning. No objections were entered to the temporary organization by the Clark people, and unless the instructions to the delegates should develop a contest, the convention bids fair to be the veritable love feast it was expected to be.

The Clark men are badly outnumbered and they showed no disposition this morning to step in and attempt to show their strength. There has been talk of an attempt being made to have the delegation go to Baltimore uninstructed, but even that plan may be abandoned. The support of many Bryan delegates, who are in the convention uninstructed, would be necessary to make a respectable showing in an effort to head off Wilson resolutions, and a combination of the Bryan men with the out-and-out Clark delegates is extremely unlikely.

Even in the keynote speech delivered by Temporary Chairman John M. Freeman, harmony prevailed. Mr. Freeman lauded Woodrow Wilson, Champ Clark and William J. Bryan impartially. Minnesota Democrats may not believe that political expediency calls for the nomination of Bryan this year, as they showed by their indorsement of Wilson, but they have not lost their affection for the Peerless Leader. The demonstration that followed the Bryan eulogy by the temporary chairman this morn-

HUERTA ARMY ON THE MOVE

Mexican Federals Are Getting Nearer to the Rebel Forces.

Gen. Campa Said to Have Gone to Juarez for Ammunition.

Jiminez, Mex., June 6.—Gen. Huerta's federal army of 3,000 is en route today to Santa Rosalia, forty-six miles north of here, where it should arrive at nightfall. Santa Rosalia is only nine miles from La Cruz, where Col. Antonio Rojas and the rebel vanguard is reported to be stationed. It is believed, however, that Rojas will fall back toward Bachimba, sixty miles north, where the main columns of Gen. Orozco's rebel army are gathered.

Word reached here today of a sharp skirmish near San Juan de Guadaulpe in the southern part of Durango, near the Zacatecas state line, between Gen. Blaquet and the rebel forces under Gen. Campa and Gen. Argumedo. The federals are reported to have driven the rebels westward and away from Torreon, their objective.

Campa After Ammunition.

El Paso, Tex., June 6.—E. C. Llorente, Mexican consul here, today declared that information from his secretary was that Gen. Campa left his command with Gen. Argumendo in the south and had come to Juarez to assist in getting ammunition for the rebels.

Liberal officials in Juarez deny this.

The Mexican consul also asserted to-

DOUBLES HER RIFLE ORDER

Cuba Will Buy 10,000 Guns —Property Guard to Be Formed.

United States Has Over 1,500 Men Ready to Be Landed.

Washington, June 6. — President Gomez has informed the United States through American Minister Beaupre that he is forming a volunteer guard to protect foreign property, and asks that his recent order for Krag-Jorgenson rifles be increased from 5,000 to 10,000 and that 2,000,000 cartridges accompany them.

President Gomez hopes, by forming the volunteer guard, to relieve the regulars guarding foreign property, that they may pursue the insurgents.

The Cuban president is said to be entirely in accord with the despatching of marines to the interior for the protection of the foreign lives and property. He has informed Minister Beaupre that he believes this will be of material benefit in quieting the situation.

Big Force Available.

With four American battleships steaming toward Guantanamo, the force of marines immediately available for the protection of foreign life and property in Cuba is increased to more than 1,500.

Altogether the battleships Minnesota, Missouri, Mississippi and Ohio—the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet—which put out from Key West late yes-

SPORTING EDITOR SENT TO "COVER" THE ART EXHIBIT

Other Turners Beside the One That Played With St. Louis.

Blonde Lady in Green Tights Is a "Swell Splash."

(BY BRUCE.)

[Note—Nothing in this shall be construed as a "knock" on the art exhibit. It's worth passing up even a ball game to see, and it's free to the public, morning, afternoon and evening. —The Sporting Editor.]

Today the sporting editor was asked to go and "cover" the art exhibit. First it came in the form of a request, threats later being resorted to. Therefore we were forced to go, while the office boy laughed gleefully, forgetting, no doubt, that there are things beside ethical culture for which he generally wants tickets.

Mr. Rosenkrantz met us at the door, and it seemed that there was a sort of condescending pity on his chiseled countenance. Somewhere it says that art is a sort of an altar, upon which the slow fire of enthusiasm and worship burns. It ran something like that. But it would never do to permit the main gazabe to think, even suspect, we might innocently ask whether Turner was the same guy who plays the infield for Cleveland.

"There's a swell splash," we remarked gazing at a beautiful blonde lady in nile green tights.

Mr. Rosenkrantz gasped. A man with a stern face and a hammer in his hand, moved nearer.

On the first chance offered the lead was booted all over the lot.

"That is vaudeville," said Mr. Rosenkrantz, "and if you stand over here and look through your hands, you will see the beauty of it."

"She's a beauty, all right, and she has some swell curves," we thoughtlessly replied, growing confident and believeling that art is iuman after all. "The guy who blocked that one out is some boy. Believe us, she's some Jane."

Mr. Rosenkrantz was frowning, almost audibly. "It is not the lady," he replied, icily. "Its the picture, its technique, the shading, the wonderful lights."

"A Flossy Doll."

Goodnight!

Far down the hall there hung a doll with her face all daubed red and with one of these seven-league expressions in her eyes. She was looking wistful, like a gamin outside the baseball park, around fifth inning time.

"That is one of Henri's," said Mr. Rosenkrantz. "He belongs to the impressionist school. He is quite a dauber and you must have distance to appreciate his work."

"How does he make a living," we asked.

Here Mr. Rosenkrantz walked away with a scorn and rapid step. You should always try to avoid making breaks like this.

Courage groveled back on all fours and after a lapse of time another man came by and we asked for more information.

"Art," said this man, "is like music or a book; you must let it grow on you. Pictures can't be appreciated in a short time. Some people come back many times; some remain here half a day at a time. The emotional mood is the proper one in which to enjoy art."

Then we realized what a simp we were when it came to scoring this art game. Art, right there we realized, had degrees and different orders. One is liable to get swelled on himself when he can warble "Alexander's Rag" through without stubbing his toe, but the man with the stern face spoke of Wagner, (not Honus) and Beethoven and a fellow named Schlitz—no, wait—Litszt, and said that real music and real art spoke in a voice inspired.

There was a picture near the corner of a lady in pink things and a parasol, sitting in some kind of a garden. First crack the thought came that she was waiting for the handsome, genial fellow like you see in moving pictures; the one who brings candy to the children, squares himself with mother and the watch dog, and discusses the stock market with father.

But no; there was nothing like that. The man with the stern face expalined that the lady was in a reverie; that she was moved by the beauty of the scene and that her thoughts were above linen showers, and all those sort of things.

So, you see, art is something harder and much more difficult to catch than a line hit over near the left field fence.

There was another picture—of a sweet young thing in a swell set of scenery, giving the chills to a young fellow. She was seated at a piano, and judging from the picture, he was trying hard to make a front and get by with some nifty converse.

From the look of the doll, there was nothing doing. Her back was turned to him and her chin gave out storm signals.

Clarence Got His.

"Little Clarence has got his," we amiably suggested to the man with the stern face, who stood looking intently at the walkout.

He turned and looked and we clung faintly to a stand, on which there was a bust of an old man that looked strangely like Jake Beckley, who used to play with St. Louis.

Once a fighter remarked that looks never hurt no one—that fellow was a l—.

Finally the man spoke—anything but that look of scorn, of contempt.

"The name of the picture is 'The Song,'" he stated. "Indeed, no, there has been no quarrel, as you suggested."

Again we were in bad. It was all the city editor's fault. Imagine sending the society editor to one of those polite little boxing matches.

So it seemed that there had been no trouble. The doll had been warbling a bit, and they were both in the soulful mood. Art gradually grows on one. You've got to get warmed up, just like a pitcher or a nag. Art is awfully interesting; after a while you get to taking chances with yourself and seeing whether you can guess right.

The picture was by Charley Hawthorn, and it is said to be one of the most beautiful in the exhibition, it looked fine to us; but we had it pegged wrong.

Art must be a moody thing. Most of the gals in the frames were looking so serious that naturally one without the warm-up canter would right away guess a broken date, or a misunderstanding, or a hat that hung too far on one side. But the chances are a 10-to-1 shot against you' playing a winner. Nature, the higher thought, and some kind of music that you don't see on the pianos when you drop around to fuss a little, are generally behind all this stuff.

Believe us, it is some exhibition. Those pictures, the man with the stern face condescended to tell us before we sneaked away, have come from far and near, making one of the finest exhibitions that has ever been promoted around these parts. He did not tell us on what per cent these artists played, but the exhibition is all to the howdy do.

But, take a tip from us, warm up before you start to make cracks about those pictures. Get that emotional mood, if you have to go without one of those ratina summer suits and give up auction bridge.

To appreciate art you must surely lift yourself up. Imagine sitting in the sun in the bleachers on a midsummer day, with a fur overcoat and a winter polo cap, and enjoying a baseball game. There is some art in everything, even in borrowing a quarter; but there is more art in some things than there is in others.

The exhibit will open formally tonight.

CLOQUET ALUMNI DANCE.

Pleasing School Event Held on Tuesday Evening.

Cloquet, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual high school alumni dance was given Tuesday evening in the Nelson opera house, to 120 members and friends of the Alumni association. The graduating class of 1912, twenty-seven in number were initiated into the association previous to the dancing. Red and white, colors of the class, were used with striking effect in decorating the room, and together with many pennants and banners produced a college-like effect.

Lunch was served by Hotel Cloquet, and Freeman's orchestra furnished the music.

The committee in charge of the affair were Misses Mary Lingren, Fannie Simmerfield, Lillian Rousseau, Caroline Erwin, Hazel Hall, Mary Rogentine and Messrs. Ed Dupont, Dr. Ralter, Harry Sarette and Reuben Swenson and they deserve praise for the unqualified success of the first dance given by the association.

UNIQUE WINDOW DISPLAY.

Fast Color of Wash Fabrics Shown By Darky Washerwoman.

The corner windows of the Glass Block store have had a very interesting display the past two days.

Through the agency of an old darky woman with wash tub and soapy water the fast colors of Renfrew Devonshire wash fabrics were being demonstrated. "Aunt Liza" was vigorously rubbing away and to use her expression upon a card, "I jes' keeps a-rubbin' and a-rubbin' and the cullur jes' keeps a-lastin' and a lastin'."

The window attracted wide attention from the passers-by and demonstrated the fast color of the goods shown.

METCALF WILL BE TAKEN TO ST. CLOUD.

Ray J. Metcalf, aged 26, a former deputy clerk of district court at Fergus Falls, Minn., who pleaded guilty on May 31 before Judge Ensign of the district court here to a charge of having passed a "no fund" check for $45 and who was committed to the state reformatory, will be taken to St. Cloud tomorrow by Sheriff John R. Meining.

Metcalf had not been working several weeks prior to his arrest. His last employment was at Marble, Minn., where he was a foreman in a railroad warehouse. He has a wife and one child. Metcalf admitted to the court that he was addicted to the use of liquor.

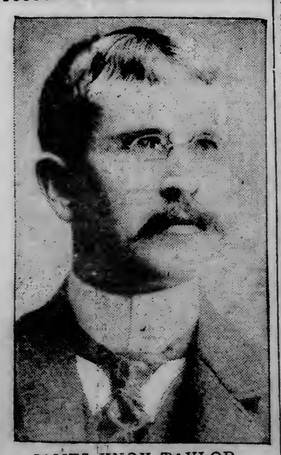

CASS LAKER'S BODY RECOVERED FROM LAKE.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Mike Cruk was found last night in Cass Lake. He had been missing ten days, causing various rumors of foul play. Evidently he was out in a rowboat and was drowned. He had money in his pockets, also a bank account. No coroner's inquest is considered necessary.

WILLISTON HIGH HAS GRADUATED TWENTY.

Williston, N. D., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The high school graduated a class of twenty this year, as follows: Earl W. Heffelfinger, Raymond A. Wilde, Clara B. Solberg, Esther H. Jack, Charles M. Schafer, Beverly Randolph, Luella Conley, Janette Haven, Logan Hardaway, Carrie Held, Genevieve Allen, Edith Crow, Herman Eidness, Paul Glass, Dina Nedrud, Walter Charnholm, Walter McGahey, Martha Wagner and Maybelle Bostrom. Rev. E. P. O'Neill delivered the commencement address and the diplomas were conferred by A. N. Eidsness, president of the board of education.

PAPAL DECREE CONDEMNED

Episcopal Conference Passes Resolution Aimed at Marriage Order.

Also Censure Custom of Having Sectarian Teachers in Indian Schools.

The recent papal decree declaring null and void all marriages not solemnized by a Roman Catholic clergyman was unequivocally condemned at the annual convention of the Episcopal churches of the Duluth diocese, which was held yesterday in Trinity procathedral. The resolution condemning this decree declared that the decree sought to render illegitimate the millions of children of marriages that were performed by government officials and Protestant clergymen, without being ratified by any Catholic clergyman. The resolution took the ground that the state had a right to designate what functionaries should perform marriage.

Another anti-Catholic resolution was one that condemned the practice of having sectarian teachers in the government schools, paid and supported by the government. This had reference to the Indian schools.

Another condemned the hanging of denominational pictures on the walls in such schools.

Another protested against the histories used in public schools, giving the statement that the Episcopal church was founded by Henry VIII. The position was taken that the Church of England existed in the time of the enactment of the Magna Charta, in the time of the early Anglo-Saxons and even in the time of the ancient Britons, antedating the Anglo-Saxons in England. A special committee was appointed to make a thorough study of this subject and report at the next annual convention of the diocese.

At the convention the Episcopal churches of the Duluth diocese were represented by their ministers and by lay members. The diocese embraces approximately the north two-thirds of the state, including all north of the south line of Stearns county. The meeting was presided over by the bishop of the diocese, Rt. Rev. J. D. Morrison.

The standing committee of the diocese, consisting of four clergymen and four laymen, was elected for the ensuing year as follows: Rev. H. F. Parshall of Cass Lake, Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh of Cloquet, Rev. Frank Durant of Hibbing, Rev. J. E. Murphy of Wadena, W. E. Magner and George H. Crosby of Duluth, James A. Brown of Fergus Falls and J. H. Beatty of St. Cloud. Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh was elected secretary of the diocese and J. W. Lyder was elected treasurer.

In the evening, commencing at 6 o'clock, a complimentary dinner was given by the clergy of the diocese in honor of Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh, who has been a clergyman of the Episcopal church since 1870. The affair was in recognition of the conferring upon his by his "alma mater," Hobart college, of the degree of doctor of divinity.

Later in the evening a meeting of the Sunday school commission of the diocese was held at St. Paul's church. This also was presided over by the bishop. Addresses were delivered by Rev. Thomas MacLean, pastor of Trinity pro-cathedral; Richard Close, superintendent of the Sunday school of St. Paul's church; Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh and Rev. H. F. Parshall. Probably the most impressive address was that given by Mr. Close, who spoke of modern Sunday school methods. He said the Sunday school should be run on the same principals as the regular week-day school. There should be a regular system of examinations and promotions from grade to grade. He said boys over 14 ought to be taught by men and not by women. After the meeting was over a large number of clergymen and others enjoyed the hospitality of Dr. and Mrs. Ryan at the rectory, where refreshments were served.

Today a meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Duluth diocese took place at the cathedral, opening at 9:30 a. m. At 11 a. m. the board of missions of the diocese held a meeting at the Northern National bunk, the main purpose being to apportion the work and fix the salaries of the missionarles. This evening a reception will be given at the Episcopal rectory for the delegates to the convention, the women's auxiliary and others who took part in the meetings. The reception will open at 8 p. m.

WANTS TO RUN THE COUNTY "JAG" FARM.

Richard J. Holt, a farmer of Meadowlands, believes in the old and timely suggestion about coming early and avoiding the rush.

He has applied to the board of county commissioners for a job as "foreman" on the proposed penal farm.

Holt writes that he was born and raised on a farm and intimates that what he don't know about agriculture isn't worth knowing.

Incidentally, Holt has a wife, who he says would make a good "matron" for the "jag farm."

The applicant says that he has no political pull but can furnish all sorts of good references as to his qualifications for the job.

As the county has no penal farm at the present time, Mr. Holt's application was pigeonholed for future reference.

MANY CHURCHMEN AT FARGO MEETING

Prominent Dignitaries Attend United Norwegian Lutheran Conference.

Fargo, N. D., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.) — United Norwegians Lutherans of America began an eight-day session here today with splendid attendance from many points over the United States.

President Dahl of the American organization presided. This branch of the Lutherans is larger than all others combined and the meeting of the national organization in Fargo and the presence of the leading bishop from Norway is attracting a great deal of attention.

Distinguished church dignitaries and laymen from all over the country are in attendance.

TEN DEATHS DURING MAY

County Board Receives the Monthly Report From Poor Farm.

During the month of May, there were ten deaths at the county poor farm according to the monthly report made yesterday afternoon to the board of poor commissioners by Dr. C. J. Woolway, superintendent in charge of the county almshouse, hospital and tuberculosis sanitarium. The meeting of the board was a short one, only matters of routine importance being disposed of.

During the month past, there were seventy-one hospital cases treated under the direction of Dr. Woolway. Of this number twenty-five were discharged, two were sent to St. Luke's hospital for operations and three died. An old inmate of the poor farm, aged 70, also died during the month. There were six deaths at the sanitarium.

At the county almshouse, there were seventy inmates on May 1. Five were admitted, thirteen were discharged and one died, leaving sixty-one inmates at the institution on June 1.

At the sanitarium for the pauper tuberculosis cases, the number of patients on hand for treatment on May 1 was twenty-eight. Three new cases were admitted, two were discharged and six died, leaving twenty-three cases on June 1.

The average number of inmates at the poor house during the month was 26; at the hospital, 18; and at the tuberculosis sanitarium, 25.

NO EVIDENCE TO SUPPORT LARCENY CHARGE.

Indictments returned by the May grand jury against John and Joseph Marshall, brothers, and Howard Wasson, charged with the theft of sixty cords of wood from the Pike lake road, were dismissed yesterday by Judge Ensign of the district court on the motion of County Attorney John N. Norton.

The evidence available, Mr. Norton stated, was insufficient to warrant a conviction. The Marshall brothers, who were in cutody, have been released. Wasson had not yet been apprehended.

HONORED BY FREE MASONS

T. W. Hugo Given Appointment of Nation-Wide Importance in Order.

Will Head the Scottish Rite Branch in State of Minnesota.

By a letter of appointment from the Hon. James D. Richardson, thirty-third degree, soverign grand commander of the supreme council of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, Southern jurisdiction, U. S. A., to Former Mayor T. W. Hugo, one of Duluth's citizens is advanced from a local Masonic celebrity to one whose jurisdiction is state wide and his fame national, as he has been appointed the deputy of the supreme council for the state of Minnesota, with authority and powers similar to that of the grand master of the state of the American Rite.

Mr. Hugo has been identified actively with all branches of Masonry since 1871, having been initiated in Minden lodge, at Kingston, Ontario. When he came to Duluth in the winter of 1881-82, he had attained the degree of the Royal Arch and joined Duluth Commandery, No. 18, elected junior warden at the next election and commander at the next; was grand commander of Knights Templar of Minnesota and took the Minnesota Knights to Denver as the Minnesota battalion in 1893. It is however, in his connection with the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite that he is best known today, having recently practically devoted all his energies to those bodies. After receiving the degrees of the Scottish Rite in Minneapolis, he, in company with seven others were constituted a lodge of perfection in Duluth on Feb. 7, 1889, by the sovereign grand inspector for Minnesota, Col. Samuel Emery Adams, thirty-third degree, whose position Mr. Hugo now assumes. Mr. Hugo was elected the first master and as the Chapter Rose Croix, Council of Kadosh and Consistory were instituted he was the first master of each of them and has held the office ever since.

As this new office requires his resignation from all others he will be the only master and pastmaster which the Duluth bodies have ever had and on account of the length of time he has held the mastership of the four bodies he is accredited with having conferred more Scottish Rite degrees than any man living in th United States or elsewhere, while his masterships in Scottish Rite bodies if extended as of one body amounts to a period of ninety years. Mr. Hugo has seen the Scottish Rite grow under his charge from seven members to over 1,000 and the standing of the Rite firmly established. Its financial responsibility keeps pace with its numerical strength, while its advocacy and practice of the "Duluth Idea" of taking a share in the work of public welfare is well known by its infant welfare, consistory nurse, free concerts and other acts of a similar character.

The services of Mr. Hugo have been recognized in many ways, previous to this appointment. He has been given the grand cross of the Court of Honor for meritorious services rendered to the Rite. There are now only seven others with that dignity in the United States in addition to the thirty-third degree honorary. In the state of Minnesota are four sets of Scottish Rite bodies: Minneapolis, the largest; Duluth next, St. Paul and then Winona. In Hibbing is Iron Range Lodge of Perfection. All of these are under the jurisdiction of the new deputy. While it would be difficult to collect information of all his Masonic history and activities a few more may be noted, such as the premier soverign of St. George's conclave, Red Cross of Constantine, past grand sovereign of the entire Western jurisdiction and a Grand cross of the same; also the first chief adept of the society of Rosicrucians west of the Atlantic states; vice president of the Minnesota Masonic home; a writer on Masonic subjects and an advanced thinker along progressive lines.

GRANTED SPECIAL DISPENSATION

Ionic Lodge Will Initiate a Class of Fifteen Candidates.

Ionic lodge, No. 186, A. F. & A. M. will hold an afternoon and evening session at the Masonic temple, Monday, June 24 to confer the third degree on a class of fifteen candidates.

Warren E. Greene, worshipful master of the lodge, who will confer the degree, has received a special dispensation from the Minnesota grand lodge to work more than the regulation number. Owen Morris of St. Paul, grand master, granted the permission.

With the meeting June 24, Ionic lodge will wind up activities for the summer. Work will be suspended during the hot months and will be resumed again in the fall. A special meeting of the lodge was held last evening, at which first degree work was exemplified.

June 24, on which the lodge will put through the large class of candidates, is St. John's day and is of some significance in the order. The meeting will be open to all Masons.

Wife Beater Appeals.

Stanley, N. D., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Found guilty of the charge of wife-beating, John Arrison, a farmer, has appealed to district court and given his liberty on a $1,000 bond. Arrison was arrested by Sheriff Dolan after an alleged brutal assault upon his wife.

Child Drinks Poison.

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

William Switzer, 26 years old, seems to be determined to have his wife come back to live with him, but he doesn't appear to be particular as to the methods he adopts to win his beter half back to him.

Not so very long ago Switzer made a bluff at committing suicide at Ashland, Wis. He wrote a note to his wife bidding her good-bye. Then he left most of his clothes on the shore, with another farewell message attached to them.

At the same time he disappeared. When his wife was asked about his death she promptly declared it to be a fake, explaining that all he wanted was to try to force or scare her into returning to him. She asserted that she would never live with him again.

Early this morning it is claimed that he threatened her with a revolver, using the firearm as an additional reason for her to go back to him. Mrs. Switzer is living with her mother at 732 Garfield avenue, and one of them called up the police when the gun came into view. A detail from headquarters hurried out in the Franklin, but too late to intercept Switzer. He had made his getaway.

Part of the officers searched the coal docks and lumber piles at this end of the interstate bridge and the others went to Superior. From the toll taker they learned that Switzer had crossed ahead of them on the run. On the Superior side a slow and systematic search was started for the fugitive. The officers were certain that he could not have gone any great distance but they seemed unable to get their hands on him.

After half or three-quarters of an hour a woman timidly came forward with the information that a strange man was hiding behind the dresser in her home. She said that he had run inside without any warning and had told her to say nothing of his presence. She expalined her early silence by saying that she had been afraid to say anything. Investigation disclosed Switzer, the man they were looking for. He was in the residence of Mrs. Inga Oseland at 213 Main street.

Switzer was brought to this side of the bay and booked on a charge of assault. He will probably be arraigned in police court this afternoon.

Pete Linstad was in a most generous mood late yesterday. He met Patrolman James Woods and insisted upon buying him a drink. He refused to end his attentions when the cop advised him to go along and paddle his own canoe before the sea got so stormy that he couldn't navigate. The patrolman had to send him to headquarters to get rid of him. In police court this morning he pleaded guilty to drunkenness but received a suspended sentence.

Dan Crowley has been doing little or no work most of the last winter, according to the police. He denied that he is guilty of vagrancy when arraigned in court today and his trial was set for this afternoon. He claims to have a home here.

* * *

J. H. Sanford of Elbow Lake, Minn., has written the local police asking if they can get any information relative to Frank Low. It is stated that he left home in February and that nothing has been seen or heard of him since. He is about 26 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs about 145 pounds and is of slender build. The letter states that one F. Low was drowned along the lake shore about two months ago.

B. M. Peyton was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of violating the traffic ordinance. It was claimed that he did not comply with the regulations at Third avenue west and Superior street. Sentence was suspended in police court.

William Mitchell got a straight sentence of sixty days in the county jail when he was convicted in police court yesterday afternoon on the charge of keeping a house of ill-fame. The court granted a stay of twenty days, during which time an appeal may be taken. Mitchell furnished $250 bail this morning to secure his liberty.

John Benson persisted in fighting in the patrol wagon when brought to headquarters last night. This morning he pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk and disorderly and paid a fine of $7.

Max Dunlop, a well known character of Duluth, was arraigned late yesterday afternoon in police court, charged with burglarizing a saloon at 103½ East Superior street, owned by G. Hagen. It is claimed that he cut a hole in the panel of one of the outer doors of the saloon some time last night and otherwise wrecked it. The marauder procured from the saloon $25 in cash, a bottle of whisky and a gold mounted pipe.

The reason suspicionu pointed to Dunlop is that there was left behind during the thieving a fancy fishhook, which Mr. Hagen had seen on Dunlop for several days, and in fact, which Dunlop displayed with a good deal of pride. The police are satisfied that in Dunlop they have the right man and feel that the fancy fishhook caught the fisher.

Dunlop waived examination and was bound over to await the action of the next grand jury.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Activities of Other Municipalities, Which Might or Might Not Be Copied in Duluth.

THE itinerary of the trip for the purpose of inspecting sewage disposal plants which Mayor Lunn of Schenectady, N. Y., proposes to take in is announced. The first plant visited will be that at Westmount, near Montreal, Can., where garbage is disposed of by incineration; thence to the plant in Montreal, said by the mayor to be one of the poorest plants on the continent. Milwaukee will come next on the list, and here the party will inspect the largest disposal plant in the country. On the return trip Cleveland, Columbus and Detroit will be visited in the order named. In two of these cities the reduction system is in use. The opportunity of inspecting Detroit's municipal asphalt plant will also be taken advantage of by the party on its way home. This is said to be operated at the least cost and to be the most successful municipal asphalt plant in the country.

Duluth will soon have to solve the problem of sewage disposal, and already there is considerable agitation against the further pollution of the lake. It has a modern plant for the disposal of garbage.

ROMANCE BEGAN IN LUMBER CAMP

Superior Man Weds Cloquet Woman He Met When She Was Hurt.

Cloquet, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Tracy Frank of Cloquet and John Dinan of Superior were married Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock at the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, Rev. Father Lemmer officiating. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Sadie Schiedermayer, and the groom by Charles Frank, brother of the bride. Both ladies were handsomely gowned, the bride in a dark blue peau de crepe silk trimmed in real old lace, and her maid in raisin colored silk and both wore large hats that matched their dresses.

The bride carried white roses and Miss Schiedermayer pink roses. A sumptuous dinner was served at noon at the home of the bride's uncle, Louis Leimer, on the Leimer farm, to which seventy-five guests had been bidden.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Frank, who came to Cloquet about two years ago from Appleton, Wis., and took up a homestead and a pretty romance is being told of the courtship. Mr. Dinan was in charge of the logging operations of the Mullery-McDonald Lumber company last winter at a camp near the Paul homestead, and during the deer hunting season, when Miss Frank was seriously wounded by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of a small nephew. Dinan came to the rescue and was of considerable assistance.

A compartively brief courtship followed and although Miss Frank had traveled much all her life, she met her fate in a lumber camp. Mr. Dinan's sister, Mrs. Margaret Goff of Duluth, and several men friends of the groom came out from Duluth in motor cars to attend the wedding, among them Messrs. Mullery and Mullery, McDonald, Kenney and Anker and Killeen, the later of the Murphy-Killeen firm of Superior. Mr. and Mrs. Dinan left on the afternoon train for the Twin Cities and the East, to be away a month, after which they will spend some time at Mr. Dinan's summer home in the northern woods.

CLOQUET BOOZE SELLER IS SENTENCED TO JAIL.

Cloquet, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Paul Clark was given sixty days in the county jail by Municipal Judge W. H. Skemp Wednesday. Clark had a joyous escapade Sunday, carrying booze into the lumber yards and selling to the Indians. He is an old offender.

WOULD CONSTRUCT JAIL AT CLOQUET

Several Duluthians Among Bidders for Contracts to Be Awarded.

Cloquet, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council tonight will consider the bids offered at the meeting Tuesday for building the new Cloquet jail. After opening the bids and transacting some routine business the council adjourned until tonight.

These are the bids for the jail proper: Emil K. Zauft, Duluth, $12,500; J. F. Schleunes, Duluth, $10,993, with $2.50 per cubic foot for rock excavation work; Levi Connors, Cloquet, $17,500; Joseph Bodway, Cloquet, $23,230; Otto Johnson, Duluth, $12,834; J. F. Fredin, Duluth, $13,694; D. J. McGillvary, Cloquet, $15,405; Redfield & Colburn, Cloquet, $11,831.

The plumbing and heating bids were: Bergstrom & Johnson, Cloquet, $1,350; wiring, $975; Ole Bruno, Cloquet, $2,410; D. P. Black & Co., Duluth, $2,690.

For lighting and wiring the Burgess Electric company of Duluth submitted a bid of $460, and the Ostlund Electric company of Cloquet for $583. Diebold Safe & Lock company of St. Paul submitted a bid on steel jail work of $1,525, and Thomson & Stewart of Duluth, for steel work, $1,038.50, and J. S. Ray & Co. of Duluth, $1,186.

The ordinance for muzzling dogs, subject to notice posted by the mayor, was given its final reading and passed the council.

Licenses to Peddle Milk.

Complying with the recently passed ordinance which compels all milk dealers to take out license, the following secured official permission to peddle milk: John Blomberg, John Lundquist, Erick Manu, Albert Bisett, Pete Danielson, John Ottoson, Solomon Nygren, Andrew Fahlstrom, Charles Nelson, Ole Hagen, August Johnson, C. A. Johnson.

President Wilson appointed the entire council a committee to meet with the school board Wednesday morning to confer on the matter of the city purchasing the Washington school building, the same to be remodeled for jail, fire hall and city office purposes. Nothing definite was done at the meeting Wednesday morning, the council looked over the building and the matter was taken under consideration, to be decided at a later date. The Washington school is an ideal situation for such a purpose, as it fronts Avenue C and is in the heart of the business section. The growth of the city and the concentration of business to that section has made the location of the Washington undesirable for a school.

NERVOUS MEN

Restored to Health and Vigor

Longest Established, Most Successful and Reliable Specialist in Diseases of Men. For over 20 years in Duluth.

Every normally constituted and healthy man has a natural and abundant endowment of potential energy or reserve nerve power.

Units of nerve-energy are drawn from the blood and stored in the cellular substance of the brain and gangilla for use in the performance of involuntary function and voluntary action. .

In a condition of absolute and perfect health these reservoirs of vital power, or nerve, are well stored, and potential energy is so abundant that the whole physical and mental being is filled and thrilled with the triumphant consciousness of power.

Such a man possesses personal magnetism, and unconsciously inspires those who come into social or business relations with him with a feeling of his easy mastery over almost all conditions. The "American Disease" is Neurasthenia, "brain fag," debility. Call it by what name you please, for we do not treat the name, but we do successfully treat the condition, and restore the patient to that health which is essential to his social and commercial success if he is to fill a man's place in the world.

The Napoleons of finance, the captains of industry, the men of affairs are the ones most afflicted. Perfect health, however, is all-essential to the man of lower position, as well as to the one who aspires to the highest. Many a man fails on account of a physical handicap to achieve the ambitions for which his natural mental qualifications fit him. The connection between mind and body is so intimate, and their interdependence so marked, that physical perfection is essential to the greatest achievement.

When we know the patient's true condition by thoroughly examining him, we can tell him exactly if his troubles are curable or not. If you are sick you will be wise to accept every successful business man's motto: "Do it now." There should be no "tomorrow" by a man who is suffering.

The nervo-vital diseases include nervous debility, decline, insomnia, melancholia and disorders of graver nature which involve the brain and spinal cord, and are of a paralytic nature.

The associated pelvic diseases are: Stricture, bladder, prostatic and kidney diseases; varicose veins, hydrocele, rupture (hernia), lithasis (gravel) and diseases of the lower bowel.

We have made the cure of men our life study, and we have been eminently successful. The effect of the treatment is to cure those diseases and to restore men to the full enjoyment of nature's best gifts to the normal physical and mental conditions that characterize health. Our offices are open from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m., at No. 1 West Superior street. All consultations are free.

Are There TWO Sides to Your Roof?

PROBABLY you have never stopped to think that your roof has an under side. The purpose of the outer side is easily understood. In fact, a roof's sole reason for existence, in the popular mind, is to keep out rain and snow.

But the under side would be just as highly valued as the outer if more people knew about

LINOFELT

What makes the under side of your roof so vitally important is the simple natural law that Heat always RISES. The under side of that roof ought to keep the heat inside your house.

With a real under side to your roof you could cut 40 per cent off your coal bills every winter. There's just one way to get it: Call up our local agent at once and arrange to have your roof lined with Linofelt. Or, if your attic is unfinished, have its floor laid with Linofelt.

By so doing you will get great economy and comfort at a very low cost. For Linofelt is genuine heat-and-cold insulation. Write for our booklet today and learn all about it.

CHURCH MEMBERS ASK COUNCIL TO REVOKE LICENSE

The men of the First Presbyterian church will join with the chief of police in asking that the saloon license now held by Ole Olssen, 202 St. Croix avenue, be revoked.

Chief Troyer has recommended to the council that in view of the fact that Olssen has been convicted of the illegal sale of liquor and that a number of crimes have arisen at the Olssen place, in his opinion, he should be deprived of his license.

The Presbyterian church men have passed the following reslouition and will put it up to the council Monday evening:

"Whereas, under date of May 27, 1912, C. H. Troyer, chief of police of the city of Duluth, presented to the common council a communication recommending that the saloon license held by Ole Olssen, 202 St. Croix avenue be revoked on account of the unlawful occurrences which have taken place in said saloon and the unfit character of said Olssen to hold a saloon license.

"Now, therefore, be it resolved that it is the sense of this meeting that said common council should immediately take the necessary action to revoke the license of said Ole Olssen, and that no transfer of said license should under any circumstances be permitted.

"Resolved further, that a copy of this resolution, signed by the men present, be transmitted to the common council of the city of Duluth."

The signers are: W. H. Hoyt, George Wilson, A. J. Frey, Norman McLeod, C. A. Graves, K. C. Hoxie, Leonard Young, John Brown, Jr., Austin Lathers, C. E. McLean, Thomas Thorburn, C. H. McEnnan, Robert Yost, Alex Guthrie, D. C. Kienly, Fred W. Buck, R. H. Magie, James M. Goodell, J. B. Adams, F. L. Berkheiser, ames Blackwood, F. N. Monroe, J. K. McCullogh, F. H. Rogers, R. W. CAMPAIGN EXPENSES clans at public meetings, and their necessary traveling expenses.

4. Printing and distribution of list of candidates, sample ballots, pamphlets, newspapers, circulars, cards, hand bills, posters and announcement, relative to candidate, or public issue or principles.

5. For copying and classifying poll lists.

6. For filing fees to the proper public officer, and if nominated at any primary for contributions to the party committee.

7. For campaign advertising in newspapers, periodicals or magazines.

Political advertisements must be labelled plainly as such, and the label must state the amount paid or to be paid.

Nomination expenditures are limited to 30 per cent of one year's salary of the office sought, and if there is no compensation $50 is the limit. Candidates may not be solicited for contributions for religious, charitable or other causes, or for tickets or advertising.

Circulars Must Be Signed.

No person is to publish, issue or circulate, or cause to be published, issued or circulated, otherwise than in a newspaper any literature or any publication tending to influence voting at any election or primary which fails to bear on the face thereof the name and address of the author, the name and address of the candidate in whose behalf the same is published, issued or circulated, and the name and address of any other person causing the same to be published, issued or circulated.

No person, firm or corporation is to knowingly make or publish, or cause to be made or published, any false statement in relation to any candidate, which statement is intended or tends to affect any voting at any primary or election.

No person is to receive or accept any money, property or other thing of value, or any promise or pledge thereof, constituting a disbursement made for political purposes contrary to law.

No candidate shall make any disbursement for political purposes except under his personal direction which for any purpose shall be considered his act, through a party committee, or through a personal campaign committee, whose authority to act shall be filed, as provided in this act.

There are elaborate regulations designed to prevent expenditures by anybody except the candidates or their committees, and to regulate the amount and character of their expenditures.

Statements of expenses are required monthly, and on the Saturday preceding the primary or election, verified by oath. The statements must include the source of the money spent, the purpose for which it was spent, and every amount due. If the statements are not filed the candidate cannot go on the ballot.

Cannot Promise Offices.

No candidate, in order to aid or promote his nomination or election, is to appoint or promise to appoint any person, or secure or promise to secure or aid in securing the appointment, nomination or election of any person to any public or private position or employment, or to any position of honor, trust or emolument. This is not to prevent a candidate from stating publicly his preference for or support of any other candidate for any office to be voted for at the same primary or election; nor prevent a candidate for any office in which the person elected will be charged with the duty of participating in the election or the nomination of any person as a candidate for any office, from publicly stating or pledging his preference for or support of any person for such office or nomination.

No person being an employer or acting for or in behalf of any employer is to give, distribute or cause to be given or distributed to any of his employes, any printed or written matter containing any threat, notice or information, that in case any particular ticket or a political party or organization or candidate shall be elected or any measure referred to a vote of the people shall be adopted, work in his place or establishment will cease, in whole or in part, or his place or establishment will be closed up, or the salaries or wages of his workmen or employes be reduced, or other threats, expressed or implied, intended or calculated to influence the political opinion or actions of his workmen or employes.

Candidates for nomination may file with the secretary of state for publication in pamphlet form as hereinafter provided, a typewritten or printed statement, duly signed and verified as hereinafter provided, with or without his portrait, cut of suitable size and nature for such pamphlet, giving the reasons why he should be nominated. These statements are to be distributed by the state.

Cost to Candidates.

Each candidate for nomination or election shall pay for the space at the rate per page as follows: United States senator in congress, or presidential elector, $300 for the first page or any fraction thereof, and $150 for the second page or any fraction thereof. Each candidate for the office of representative in congress $200 for the first page or any fraction thereof, and $100 for the second page or any fraction thereof. Each candidate for a state office, $300 for the first page or any fraction thereof, and $150 for the second page or any fraction thereof, except the candidate for lieutenant governor, who shall pay at the rate of $100 for each page allowed him or any fraction thereof. Each candidate for member of the state senate, $60 for the page allowed him, or any fraction thereof. Each candidate for member of the state legislature, $20.

If any voter has information that any provision of this act has been violated by any candidate for which such elector had the right to vote, or by any personal campaign committee of such candidate, or any member thereof, he may, by verified petition, apply to the district court of the county in which such violation has occurred, to the attorney general of the state, or to the governor of the state, for leave to bring a special proceeding to investigate whether or not there has been such violation, and for appointment of special counsel to conduct such proceeding in behalf of the state.

In Name of the State.

If it appears from such petition or otherwise that such candidate, committee or member thereof has violated any provision of this act, and that sufficient evidence is obtainable to show that there is probable cause to believe that such proceeding may be successfully maintained, then such judge or attorney general or governor, as the case may be, shall grant leave to bring such proceedings and shall appoint special counsel to conduct such proceeding.

If such leave be granted and such counsel appointed, such elector may, by a special proceeding brought in district court, in the name of the state upon the relation of such elector, investigate whether or not such candidate, committee or member thereof has violated any provision of this act.

If judgment is in favor of the plaintiff the relator may recover his taxable costs and disbursements against the person whose right to the office is contested, but no judgment for cost shall be awarded against the relator, unless it shall appear that such proceeding has been instituted otherwise than in good faith. All costs and disbursements in such cases shall be in the discretion of the court.

If the court finds that the candidate or his personal campaign committee or any member thereof has violated any provision of this act in the conduct of the campaign for nomination or election, judgment shall be entered declaring void the election of such candidate to the office for which he was a candidate, and ousting and excluding him from such office and declaring the office vacant. The vacancy thus created shall be filled in the manner provided by law, but no person found to have violated any provision of this act shall be eligible to fill any office or to become a candidate for any office.

Campaign Must Cease.

It is further provided that beginning at 11 o'clock of the Saturday night prior to any general, special or primary election, all campaigning must close and that no candidate, committee, political agent or friend of candidate shall attempt in any way, either by public speaking, personal conversation, distribution of campaign literature, cards or in any way attempt to persuade or change the mind of any voter, for or against any candidate or political party and it is further provided that the sheriff of each county is empowered to appoint one man in each voting precinct, to be known as special election police, and it shall be the duty of said election police, beginning at the hour of 7 a. m. of any primary, general or special election days, to be on duty at and in the vicinity of said voting precinct up to the hour of closing of the polls and be vested with authority to place under arrest any party or parties found violating the provisions of this act.

Any person violating any provisions of this act shall upon conviction thereof be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not less than one month nor more than one year, or by imprisonment in the state prison for a period of not less than one year nor more than three years, or by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $1,000, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and no person so convicted shall be permitted to take or hold office to which he was elected, if any, or receive the emoluments theeref.

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—May Robson in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary."

MAY ROBSON IN NEW PLAY

"A Night Out" Was Built for Laughing Purposes Only.

With a lot of good-natured nonsense crowded into three short but uproariously funny acts, and herself as the pivot about which the mirth revolves, Miss May Robson amused a large audience at the Lyceum theater last evening in her new vehicle, "A Night Out," written by Miss Robson and C. T. Dazey.

The play is just what the title indicates. It was literally a night out. The night was spent at a cafe which was considered rather "fast." Miss Robson went on the lark with her fun-loving grandsons, climbing down the porch pillars after the rest of the family were asleep, to get there. The place was "pinched," "granmum" lost her puffs, came back in rags, but had all the fun there was in it, even to the proverbial headache of the morning after.

There are some stolen bonds or something like that in the play, but they are lost sight of in the fun. There really isn't much of a plot, and it serves only as a line on which to hang a lot of action, some witty lines, and to display to good advantage the abilities of Miss Robson as a comedienne.

The play was evidently written but to amuse. It surely does that. Some of the characters are burlesqued, and at times it seems as though situations which make fun are dragged in by the hair, but this is almost completely covered up by the fast-moving little piece which kept the audience in constant good humor.

Miss Robson makes an ideal grandmother. She is jolly, full of life, and remembers that she was once young. In her the two grandsons find a constant companion and one who is constantly helping them out of scrapes.

There are but few serious moments in the play. In them Jack and Paul find time to make love to a couple of winsome misses who at other times help to pile up complications and make whole-souled fun.

Miss Robson was on the stage during the greater part of the play and she kept things moving every minute. She spoke but few lines that hadn't a laugh hanging on the end. At the beginning of the third act she did a rare piece of work when she got the whole audience laughing at her infectious laugh, not a line being spoken.

The mother of the boys was a strict disciplinarian and she locked up the house at 10:30 each night. The boys got around that by way of the porch and spent the rest of the night in the city cafes.

Granmum wanted to find out whether the place was respectable or not and insisted on being taken along. The boys didn't care for the idea, but consented when she broke into tears. Around that trip to the city, the getting out and the getting in without being detected, hangs the fun.

There is a cafe dancer, a policeman, a college professor, a severe looking mother and an old gardener, all of whom contribute their share of the entertainment.

Granmum's plan is to convince her daughter that the best way to raise boys is to give them more or less of a fling where the lights are brightest and the mother is finally convinced. It all ends happily after the spooky old college professor has been shown up in his attempt to marry money, the trip to the cafe is taken, and the boys prove themselves not guilty of swiping a $1,000 bond.

Jack Storey plays the part of Jack, one of the grandsons, and he finds time to exhibit a smooth tenor voice during the play. Paul Decker is Paul, the other grandson. Lotta Blake does a bit of clever work as Mrs. Duncan, a neighbor. Edith Conrad looks and acts like a very severe person, the mother of the boys. Faye Cusick and Margaret Beland are sweet and winsome and no one blamed the boys for falling in love with them. C. C. Gwynne was the college professor and Eddie Leaman was Percy, his son, who had been "brought up correctly." Louis Rand was Mitza, a cafe dancer. The other parts were in capable hands.

Tonight Miss Robson ends her Duluth engagement with "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," her best known play.

Lyric Comedy Company.

The Boston Lyric Comedy company will open its summer season of musical stock at the Lyceum theater Sunday evening. The opening production, "The Follies of June 9," will include "The Politicians," a humorous satire in the present presidential squabble between Theodore Roosevelt and President Taft.

The latest song hits are to be featured in the production by the chorus of twenty voices. Local events of interest are to be satirized, while prominent men in public are to be caricatured by the principals of the company. The company of thirty-five members arrived from Chicago yesterday morning and preparations for the opening performance Sunday evening are now being made.

BIG DAMAGE SUIT ON.

Cameron, Wis., Man Is Seeking to Recover $25,000.

Eau Claire, Wis., June 6.—The taking of testimony in the $25,000 personal injury suit of Louis E. Wilkins vs. The Charles E. Murphy company and Albert Miller & Co. of Chicago commenced yesterday afternoon in the United States district court, Judge Sanborn presiding.

E. P. Miller of Chicago, a member of the firm of Miller & Co., was first witness called by the plaintiff's counsel, and he was followed by Charles Murphy of Chicago, vice president and general manager of the Murphy company.

Wilkins is suing the defendants for $25,000 damages for injuries received on Feb. 1, 1911, when a pulley broke and fell, striking him on the head and back. The accident happened at Cameron, Wis., in a potato warehouse belonging to the Murphy company while the plaintiff was working for Miller & Co. Wilkins was assisting in loading potatoes.

GOVERNOR ORDERS TWO BEMIDJI RESORTS CLOSED.

Bemidji, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two houses of ill fame, located to the west of the city but said to be within the city limits have been closed through the sheriff's office. Orders for the move were received from Governor Eberhart as complaints had been made to him frequently. The house to the west on Fourth street was closed several weeks ago ad the imates thereupon moved farther out.

OBJECT TO SALOON.

Claim Sylvan, Minn., Place Is Too Close to Saloon.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—County Attorney Funck and Commissioner Swanberg have returned from Walker, where they attended a regular meeting of the county board. At the May meeting the Cass county commissioners granted a liquor license to George Anderson for a saloon at Sylvan in the southern portion of the county. The residents thereof subsequently found that the saloon was within 1,500 feet of a public schoolhouse, outside of the municipality and therefore by law the sale of liquor was forbidden at that location. At the meeting of the board Tuesday these facts were brought to their attention and the board ordered Sheriff DeLury to go to Sylvan to make an investigation, and if he found the saloon within 1,500 feet of the schoolhouse to close the saloon.

WILL MEAT PRICES GO UP AGAIN?

Many Duluth people do not care if meat prices are up or down, because they have found that "Minnesota" macaroni and spaghetti, with their delicious nut-like flavor, take the place of meat very largely and are more easily digested.

Good macaroni and spaghetti are four times as nutritious as beefsteak, and they are the best and most nourishing foods known. They can be easily prepared in many appetizing ways and are suitable for the daintiest luncheon as well as the heartiest feast.

But if you want that rich, nut-like flavor be sure and get the delicious "Minnesota" brand macaroni or spaghetti — made from the finest Northern Durum wheat, with all the nourishing Gluten left in. It is easily digested and never gets soggy. All good Duluth grocers sell it.

THIEVES CAMP IN HOUSE AND LOOT IT AT LEISURE.

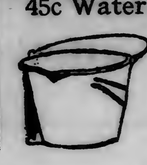

Chicago, June 6.—When Samuel W. Allerton and his wife returned from California yesterday, they found that their home in Prairie avenue not only had been robbed, but had also been lived in by thieves. Paintings, Oriental ivories and rugs and a collection of laces, all said to be valued at $50,000, were taken. The house had been boarded up for the winter, and the thieves are believed to have lived in the house for many days, taking away the property at leisure.

PAVING MATTERS TO BE DISCUSSED

Commercial Club Committees Will Report Progress Friday Evening.

The street and paving committees of the West End Commercial club will make their first reports at a regular meeting of the club at the Woodmen hall tomorrow evening. The committees were appointed two weeks ago for the purpose of studying the street conditions in the West end.

The following committees have been conducting an active campaign among the property owners along First, Second and Third streets, from Piedmont avenue to the Grand avenue intersection on Thirtieth avenue west: T. Hedeen and George M. Jensen, First street property owners; James Preston and Joseph Cummings, Second street, and Alfred Moe and James Maghan, Third street.

Many property owners have been interviewed during the past two weeks and their sentiment regarding the paving of the streets seems favorable. The plan of the club is to pave every West end street within the next year or two. This plan is believed possible by those behind the movement, who claim that with the present paving amendment in force, all the property owners can afford to pay their annual share of the cost.

Just how the property owners stand on the subject will be learned tomorrow evening, when the first reports will be given those behind the paving movement plan to start campaigns and petitions at once. In this way the committees expect to hurry the work and to also show the members of the council the exact sentiment of the property owners.

NO SUMMER MEETINGS.

Central Baptist Societies Will Suspend Activities During Hot Months.

The last meeting of the summer season for the Mission circle of Central Baptist church will be held in the church parlors Wednesday afternoon, June 19. The meetings will then be discontinued until Sept. 4, when the ladies' aid society will hold its first monthly meeting of the fall season.

The meeting on June 19 is the fifteenth in the series of bi-monthly meetings of the various societies and is in direct charge of the meetings of each body. Following are its officers: Mrs. George Jewell, president; Mrs. Fred Hanson, chairman of the ladies' aid society; Mrs. J. D. McPhail, chairman of the mission circle; Mrs. E. E. Churchill, chairman of the mothers' meetings; Mrs. Emma Hutchinson, recording secretary; Mrs. W. A. Berridge, corresponding secretary, and Mesdames Angus Campbell and A. Mentzer, treasurers.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Woodmen Will Honor Memory of Members Who Died During Year.

The annual memorial services of the Duluth camp, No. 2341, Modern Woodmen of America, will be held at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning at the Grace M. E. church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street. Rev. George E. Silloway, pastor of the church, will preach the sermon and conduct the services.

The committee in charge of the exercises met at the hall last evening and requested every member of the camp to meet at 10 o'clock Sunday morning at the hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street. From there the members will march in a body to the church. About 500 members of the camp are expected to attend the exercises in honor of those who died during the past year.

BRANCH LIBRARY MAKING STRIDES

Change in Location Brings About Gain in Circulation and Attendance.

Yesterday afternoon the ladies' aid society held its regular monthly meeting at the church. Mesdames Stoddard and Johnson were hostesses. At the mission circle meeting, Mrs. Mitchell will lead a discussion on "Christian Conservation" and Mrs. J. H. Giffin and Miss Minnie Milne will entertain.

That the new West end library branch over the J. J. Moe & Sons' department store is popular, is evidenced by the fact that during the last month the circulation was greater than any month since its organization.

According to a report just issued by Miss Ruth Borland, who is in charge, the May circulation was 1,650, about 200 more than in any previous month. The attendance has also grown considerably during the past thirty days.

With the change in location made last month the hours of the branch were also changed. The rooms are open every afternoon from 3 o'clock until 6 o'clock and until 9 o'clock on Saturday evening.

Complete Picnic Plans.

The general committee of the Young Old Timers last evening completed the arrangements for the second annual outing and picnic of the association to be held on Sunday, June 23. The following committee is in charge of the outing: Fred Lindbeck, chairman; William McCullough, Louis Levine, Andrew Otterson, John Lindbeck, Edward Thompson, Charles Hoar and Iver Thorstad.

The members of the organization will leave Twenty-first avenue west at 8 o'clock the morning of June 23. Special cars have been chartered and the members will arrive at the picnic grounds, at L. R. Birch's farm on Lester river, at 10 o'clock. A large band will accompany the members to the picnic grounds.

During the day a special program of sports will be followed. There will be two baseball games, tug-of-war contests, races, jumping and weight-lifting. One of the features of the day will be a baseball game between the bachelors and the benedicts. In the afternoon a program of addresses will be given by the officers and members of the organization. Mayor McCuen, who is to be the honorary guest at the picnic, will be the principal speaker following the luncheon at noon.

Will Attend Conference.

Rev. Swaney Nelson of the First Swedish Baptist church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, will leave next week for Willmar, Minn., where he will attend the annual conference of the Swedish Baptist churches of Minesota, which will be held there on June 13-16. Several members of the congregation are also planning to attend the conference.

Midsummer Festival.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Swedish Baptist church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, will hold a midsummer festival in the church parlors next Tuesday evening. The program will include a musical festival, supper and sale of fancy articles. The arrangements for the affair were made yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the society held at the home of Prof. and Mrs. N. E. Erickson, 2634 West Second street.

West End Briefs.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church was entertained this afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. Nygaard, 2532 West Third street.

The Young Ladies' society of the First Swedish Baptist church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, will hold its annual supper and sale in the church parlors tomorrow evening.

Miss Hilda Olson of 231 North Twenty-ninth avenue west is visiting this week with her sister at Hibbing.

Mrs. A. L. Norquist and daughter, Ruth, left yesterday for Tower, Minn., where they will spend several days with relatives.

The Epworth league of the Grace M. E. church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, held its regular business meeting in the church parlors last evening.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Swedish Mission church was entertained yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Sandberg in the church parlors, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street.

George M. Peterson of 510 North Twenty-first avenue west left yesterday for Red Wing, Minn., where he will attend the annual state convention of the United Commercial Travellers.

IS HOME PORT OF BIG FLEET

Duluth Can Boast Second Largest Registry on Fresh Water.

Lake Traffic May Break Some Records—Some Shipping Data.

Duluth is now the home port of the largest independent fleet of boats on the Great Lakes. The fleet is also the second largest on fresh water.

Since the fleet of the Gilchrist Transportation company went into the hands of a receiver, and the boats were sold to different companies, the Tomlinson fleet takes its place as the largest independent line on the Great Lakes.

The Tomlinson fleet consists of twenty-four boats, with carrying capacity ranging from 5,000 to 11,000 tons.

Lumber Boats Busy.

Nearly twenty boats loaded lumber and took cargoes down the lakes during the last week. The rate is $2.50 from Duluth to Lake Erie ports. The total shipment was about 15,000,000 feet. The average carrying capacity of the lumber boats is about 750,000 feet, the individual capacity varying widely.

Prospects are that more lumber will be shipped down the lakes this year than during the past two years. It all depends on how many boats are later pressed into service, and the dispatch with which they make their trips. The lumber is here for shipment, the buying having been brisk during the last month.

Ore Going at Great Rate.

More than 5,919,074 tons of ore was shipped from the Duluth-Superior harbor during the month of July. This is the second largest month the shippers have ever had. In May, 1910, 6,018,358 tons were shipped. The total lake shipment in 1910 was 42,620,201, and it is expected that the record will be equaled if not beaten this season.

In spite of the fact that the start was late this year, the boats have been loading, unloading and making trips in record time. There are more boats in service this year than 1910 and this may help to raise the record made in 1910.

A record is predicted for the month of June. The record was made in June, 1910, when 7,316,592 tons of ore were sent down the lakes.

Grain Rate Drops.

The demand for grain carriers is now light, the rush being over. Formerly shippers were glad to get tonnage at 1¾ cents, but yesterday 1¼ was the best rate offered.

More than 29,000,000 bushels have been handled at Buffalo during the month of May. The railroads are now shipping it from the elevators at Buffalo and fast time is being made, cars being plentiful.

Lengthen Navigation Season.

The Great Lakes Protective association at its meeting in Cleveland today is expected to adopt a resolution favoring the extension of the season on the lakes through December. The association also is likely to favor equal insurance rates to all members and the abandonment of differential rates.

Coal Movement Brisk.

Coal shipments are expected to be brisk this week, and the boats which have been waiting for the mine output are now ready to load and get away. Last week close to 25,000 tons of coal went out from Buffalo. Heavy receipts from the anthracite mines will this week get the boats going and Buffalo agents say that the coal business promises to be lively for the remainder of this month.

MRS. GREATON'S AWFUL EXPERIENCE

During Change of Life—How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her a Well Woman.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it has worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter."—Mrs. MARION SWEET GREATON, No. 1 Jefferson St., Natick, Mass.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

House Committee Begins Preliminary Hearings in New York.

New York, June 6.—Because of its lack of power to obtain necessary data, the so-called money trust investigation in its main scope will not be taken up until fall. This announcement was made by Chairman Pujo of the investigating committee, at the opening of the hearing in New York today.

New York bankers and officers of the New York Clearing House association and of the New York stock exchange held themselves in readiness to testify before the so-called money trust investigation, which opens here today. Members of the house sub-committee on banking and currency, who will conduct the inquiry, arrived in New York last night.

One of the first witnesses to be called, it was expected, would be William Sherrer, manager of the New York clearing house. Others mentioned as witnesses were A. Barton Hepburn, president of the clearing house association, and George W. Ely, secretary of the stock exchange. It is understood that the committee will try to ascertain just how important a factor the clearing house is and what, if any, powers of dictation the association has over small banks.

STRIKE PREVENTS ROYAL JOURNEY

Belgian King and Queen Decide to Stay at the Capital.

Brussels, June 6.—King Albert and Queen Elizabeth had planned to leave for Ostend for a stay at the royal villa on the seacoast today, but the journey was abandoned because of the political situation resulting from the Socialist resentment of the clerical victory in the election.

At a meeting of 20,000 working men at La Louviere, a commune in Hainaut, where there are mines and extensive manufactories, Socialist orators were hissed when they urged the strikers to return to work.

The people of La Louviere and Mons are greatly excited, but it is believed that the Socialist appeal to their followers to refrain from violence will be observed throughout the district of Liege.

One Killed at Musson.

One man was killed and twenty others seriously wounded at Musson, a commune in Luxemburg, today during a fight between clericals and anti-clericals. Most of the inhabitants participated in the encounter, which lasted two hours.

The Socialist leaders seem to have lost control of the men in a part of the Walloon provinces, where the workmen declare they wish to avenge their comrades who were killed at Liege.

HOUN' DAWG HAS RIVAL IN SONG

Teddy's Bulldog Subject of Chant at Chicago Hotel.

Chicago, June 6.—Champ Clark's houn' dawg is being "musically" pursued by Teddy's bulldog.

The chase started yesterday afternoon when eight singers lifted their voices in praise of the bulldog in the Congress hotel foyer.

To the tune of "Casey Jones" they inflicted this one upon the loungers:

Teddy's gotta dawg, but he ain't no hound,
He's a square jawed bull, and his face is round,
His legs is short, and he's close to the ground,
And you bet they ain't kickin' Teddy's dawg around.

CHORUS.

Square jawed bull, and his face is round,
Square jawed bull, and he ain't no hound,
Short legged bull, close to the ground,
And you bet they ain't kickin' Teddy's bull around.

The Democratic dawg, the unlucky hound
That the boys have all been kickin' around
Is the same old dawg that's been stickin' roun'
Since old Abe Lincoln came to Washington town.

And now he comes back, the measley hound,
With his face and his tail still hangin' down,
The hungry, sly old lop eared hound,
No wonder the boys have been kickin' round.

OPIUM DEALERS ARE IN PANIC

Stocks at Shanghai Have Depreciated $10,000,000 Since May 1.

Shanghai, June 6.—Panic reigns in the local opium market, the stocks in the hands of the merchants having depreciated in value $10,000,000 since May 1. The dealers, overburdened with supplies, reiterate the complaints of the Indian merchants that the cultivation of poppies in China is unabated, in violation of the international agreement, while for months past the markets of the interior have illegally been closed against Indian opium.

MORE PAY FOR THE LAWRENCE FACULTY.

Appleton, Wis., June 6.—The increased cost of living has caused a friend of Lawrence college to offer $50,000 toward its endowment if an equal amount is raised by Oct. 1, that the salaries of the professors and teachers in the institution may be increased.

There are at present fifty-six members of the faculty at Lawrence, and if the $100,000 additional to the endowment fund is secured by Oct. 1, it will mean a substantial increase in the salary of each.

President Plantz plans, in the new endowment campaign, to secure from each member of the Methodist church in the two Wisconsin conferences an average of at least $1 per member.

SAYS MILLIONS MADE HIM CRUEL

Wife of F. H. Crandell Is Suing Him for Divorce.

New York, June 6.—Frederick H. Crandell, who is said to have received $2,000,000 from the estate of his uncle, the late Edwin Hawley, found himself defendant today in a suit for separation brought by his wife, Mrs. Adelaide Crandell, charging him with abandonment, cruelty and non-support.

It was because of Crandell's infatuation for Mrs. Crandell, formerly Miss McManus, a telegraph operator in the Southern Pacific offices, where Crandell also was employed, that Mr. Hawley severed all relations with his nephew. With the railroad man's death, however, Crandell came in for a share of his fortune, Mr. Hawley having died intestate.

In her complaint, Mrs. Crandell recites that much of the alleged cruelty on the part of her husband occurred in the last few months, or after he had come into affluence. They have five children.

PART OF COBALT, ONT., DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Gillies Depot, Ont., June 6.—More than $150,000 damage has been done in Cobalt by a fire which was still burning early today, although the combined fire departments of Cobalt, Haileybury and New Liskeard probably have it under control. The first started in the Lyric theater during a performance, when an oil stove exploded in a dressing room. No loss of life has been reported.

TAFT SIGNS THE SETTLERS' BILL

Liberalizes Homestead Laws and May Check Emigration North.

Washington, June 6.—President Taft today signed the three-year homestead bill, permitting entrymen on public lands to prove their claims in three, instead of five years, allowing five months' absence from a claim each year, and reducing the acreage to be cultivated on large claims from eighty to forty acres.

The bill is designed so to liberalize the homestead laws as to check the emigration of American farmers to Canada.

CLAIMS TOO EXTENSIVE

Two Issues Raised By Roosevelt Forces Have Been Abandoned.

Tactics of Both Sides Make Fatal Republican Split Certain.

(By Willis J. Abbot.)

Washington, June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—From this point of view it looks as though the Roosevelt forces had been claiming very much more than they now believe that they can put into effect. For example, two weeks ago they were insisting that under no circumstances whatsoever would they permit Senator Root to be temporary chairman of the convention. All Rooseveltism went up into the air in violent denunciation of Root, all his ideas and all that he stood for. Every Roosevelt leader insisted that that was to be the vital test as to the strength of Roosevelt in the Chicago convention. The clamor continued until about a week ago when the news was given out from the Roosevelt campaign that they felt that the issue of a mere matter of a temporary chairman was too trivial to base a trial of strength upon. Medill McCormick added picturesqueness to this particular statement in regard to the policy of the Roosevelt forces by saying that the progressives could not be marshalled for any candidate for chairman or for any other official of the convention, because progressives, unlike the regulars, would do as they damned pleased.

Another Claim Abandoned.

After it was determined, because of this singular desire of the progressives to do as Mr. McCormick explained they would do on the matter of a temporary chairman, the next story was that the test vote would come on seating, prior to the convention, the newly elected national committeeman from Nebraska, R. B. Howell. Mr. Howell was elected in the direct primaries to succeed Victor Rosewater. Of his election and qualification there is no doubt. But it has been a matter of precedent in the Republican party, as in the Democratic party, for half a century that the new national committeemen take their seats after the convention has adjourned. It was said that all the force of the Roosevelt movement was to be exerted to break down this precedent and to seat Mr. Howell at once. Now comes the news through Ormsby McHarg that the Roosevelt people are taking no part in pressing Howell's claim.

These matters are merely technical, more interesting to the men who are continually associated with politics than to others. But one point does seem very clear. Within two weeks two issues have been raised by the Roosevelt forces: First, the selection of Root as temporary chairman; second, the seating of Howell and other men elected national committeemen by the direct primary prior to the convention. Both of these tests of strength the Roosevelt people have found it wise to evade for the moment at any rate.

Attempt to Coerce Convention.

I find also among Republicans in Washington a very general feeling of hostility to the plan which originated with the Illinois Republicans for a special Roosevelt organization operating outside of the convention, but so thoroughly organized as to act as a menace to, and a club over the convention. There is a feeling that the national convention ought not to be bull-dozed by organization however strong, or by any individual, however great his talent for building up an irregular army to attack the regular forces. In the judgment of the men with whom I have talked here, the Roosevelt plan for a special organization of men drawn from every state who are to watch out for the Roosevelt interests will be looked upon by the convention as an insolent attempt to coerce its action and may in the end result in arousing an antagonism which will produce the very opposite effect to that intended. In any event the tactics now being adopted by the Roosevelt and Taft forces make a fatal split within the party absolutely certain, and the curious part of it is that the spokesmen of either side refer to that split with utter philosophy, saying that they would rather have the Republican party sacrificed for four years than to have either one of the present candidates put in nomination.

Democrats and the Navy.

The utterly foolish action of the house of representatives in passing a naval appropriation bill which provided for no new battleships, which did not make provisions to meet the lack of commissioned officers in the United States navy and which even failed to provide for a sufficient amount of power to keep our navy up in fighting strength, has disgusted a great many Democrats. That is one of the things which is liable to hurt Champ Clark in his presidential aspirations. He has but one record to run upon, namely the record of the house of representatives in the present session. Personally I do not believe that the American people approve of the starvation of the navy. The navy has always, from the days of Paul Jones to those of Admiral Dewey, been the popular branch of the armed service of the United States. The day the Texas slid into the water and was announced in all the papers as the greatest fighting ship afloat, Japan launched a greater one. There is no particular reason to apprehend trouble with Japan. But there is every reason as long as the nations of the earth continue their present unintelligent system of trying to outstrip each other in naval construction, that the United States should be prepared for any emergency that may arise upon the seas.

It is a curious thing that the Democratic party, continually preaching economy, enforces it at those points which are most offensive to the general public. The Republicans, never preaching economy, held office for more than half a century.

SECOND CHOICE WILL BE PROVISION OF THE STATE-WIDE PRIMARY

was not apparently getting anywhere, it was decided to refer the whole matter to a sub-committee of seven. The same action was taken on the corrupt practices act.

Representative Knapp, who offered the Haycraft-Knapp bill, moved that this bill, or whatever bill the committee agreed upon, be introduced as a committee bill. This was adopted, and it will likely be the general policy of the house, because of the feeling that where individual members are made responsible for bills, their natural desire to get glory out of it leads to jealousies that work for delay.

Wanted June Primary.

Representatives Knutson and Robertson argued for the June primary instead of the September primary, which is now the rule and which the pending bill continues. They said that September finds the farmer busy with harvesting, and it is difficult for him to attend the primaries.

The city members object—some of them, at least—to the June primary because of the expense of a long campaign.

However, as Representatives Nolan of Minneapolis and Knapp of Chisholm made clear, and as the friends of the June primary admitted, it is too late for that this year, and action as to future campaigns might well go over to the regular session. This the committee agreed to, and it was well that it was so, because the June primary is a large issue all by itself, and its intrusion into the present controversy would have worked for confusion and delay.

Chairman L. D. Brown of the elections committee appointed the following sub-committee, to report bills back to the general committee this afternoon if possible:

State-wide primary—Fowler, Knapp, G. W. Brown, Pfaender, Burnquist, Andrew Davis and Conley.

Corrupt practices—Rines, Franksón, Campbell, A. Nelson, White, Knutson and O'Brien.

County Superintendents.

Representative W. F. Kunze of Minneapolis, a former teacher and an active worker for educational improvements, said to The Herald yesterday afternoon that he would work at this session, before the elections committee if anything came of it, and before the house if necessary, for a non-partisan system of nominating and electing county superintendents of schools.

His point is that it is absurd to elect a county superintendent because he—or she, because many county superintendents are women—is a Republican or a Democrat. Representative Ole Petersen of Nicollet county, who overheard Mr. Kunze's statement, pointed out that it is equally absurd to elect a state or local officer of any kind for that reason only; a sentiment that is curiously prevalent among the membership of the house at this session. Of which, more later.

Mr. Kunze's idea is to have candidates for nominations for county superintendents to go on the primary elections ballots of both parties without party designations, the two highest in the count to go on the general election ballot, also without party designation.

Non-Partisan Idea Spreads.

Referring again to Ole Peterson's idea, it is a fact that the time never was riper, from a legislative viewpoint, for the beginning of a campaign for the non-partisan selection of state and local public officials. Curiously enough, much of the talk of this sort comes from Republicans of the old school, who are, rightly enough, perhaps, very pessimistic about the future of political organizations along the old lines. They feel that the inevitable application of the primary election system to all public officials, state and local, is tending strongly to destroy the ancient organization which extended from the national field to the state field, from the state field to the county field, and from the county field to the city and local field. Whatever semblance of organization there will remain, based on national party issues, must cling to the presidential nominations and elections, and this, if it works out that way, will leave the way open for the selection of state, county and local officers for some other reason than because they belong to one party or the other.

If this sort of feeling spreads generally, it will make it easy to take up such propositions as the commission form of government for the state, the short ballot, etc.

Reapportionment Probably Dead.

It is fairly safe to say that reapportionment is dead at this session, and very likely for the next session as well, because the same senate which beat reapportionment in 1911 and has combined fifty-five out of sixty-three of its members against it in 1912 will be in power.

The house feels disposed to pass reapportionment and put it up to the senate, but hardly anybody in the house has any notion that the senate will adopt it.

The senate combination, by the way, is a curious thing.

It is a product of a combination of the enemies of reapportionment with the enemies of distance tariff, with some Northern Minnesota senators who want to go home thrown in for good measure.

That the enemies of reapportionment are the friends of distance tariff and had to knife their pet measure to bring the combination about, and that the enemies of distance tariff are pretended friends of reapportionment and had to throttle their own pet measure in order to save themselves from distance tariff only makes the combination seem more clever and more sinister.

To be plain about it, the gag rule in the senate is the fruit of a combination between Southern Minnesota and the Twin Cities, with the purpose of killing reapportionment and the distance tariff.

It is true that the senators from Southern Minnesota are profuse in their promises of a beautiful reapportionment bill in the regular session of 1913. These promises may be taken for what the action of the senate in two sessions make them seem to be worth.

Southern Minnesota's Attitude.

Southern Minnesota, at this moment, stands convicted on the record of being against equal legislative representation.

Last winter, when the senate beat reapportionment, the disposition in Northern Minnesota was to relieve the people of Southern Minnesota from blame. It was largely taken for granted that the people of Southern Minnesota were fairminded and just, and that the action of their senators was due to their own personal reasons, and based on their reluctance to part with some of their places altogether, and all of them for half of the four-year terms for which they had been elected.

Yet the Southern Minnesota Development association, just prior to the extra session, went on record against reapportionment and for the two-measure program which has been pushed by Twin City senators, with Minneapolis leading and Southern Minnesota and St. Paul joyfully following behind.

The gag rule in the senate, though openly brought about by Minneapolis senators, originated in Southern Minnesota.

Yesterday's attempt in the house to cut reapportionment out of the house program came from Southern Minnesota and was supported almost unanimously by Southern Minnesota members, though several Northern Minnesota members voted for it, and though two or three Southern Minnesota members who frankly confessed that they could vote against reapportionment voted against applying the gag rule to it.

The vote in the house yesterday is not indicative of much. The motion to shut out reapportionment failed, 48 for and 60 against; but as stated above, several of those who voted against it will vote against reapportionment, and reapportionment must have sixty-one votes to pass the house.

But on the other hand, a number who voted for the motion were opposed to taking up reapportionment, because they believe it to be hopeless. Nevertheless, if reapportionment is put before the house they will vote for it.

The vote on the motion to exclude reapportionment from the house program was as follows:

For—A. V. Anderson, Boothroyd, Conley, Crane, Davies, Diessner, Frankson, Hafften, Harding, Hauge, Herzberg, Holten, Hopkins, J. N. Johnson, Just, Keefe, Kelly, Klemer, I. J. Lee, J. P. Lee, S. N. Peterson, Pfaender, Putnam, Reed, Robinson, Rustad, Saggau, Sampson, Schuler, Schwartz, Skartum, W. T. Stone, Untedt, Utecht, Voxland, E. Warner, Whiting—48.

Against—Aker, Andrew Anderson, Borgen, G. W. Brown, L. D. Brown, Burnquist, Campbell, Christie, Clarke, Congdon, Converse, Denzer, R. C. ARKANSAS VOTES FOR CHAMP CLARK

Speaker Will Get Eighteen From There at Baltimore Meeting.

Little Rock, Ark., June 6.—Arkansas' eighteen votes in the national Democratic convention will be cast for Champ Clark as long as his name is before the convention, according to the terms of a resolution adopted by the state Democratic convention here. The Fourteenth district delegates will be chosen at caucuses, and the delegates-at-large, perhaps eight, will be selected later by the convention to cost the four votes.

LA TOUR PASTEL IS SOLD FOR $132,000.

Paris, June 6.—The most important art sale of the year, that of the famous Doucet collection, has opened and exceeded all expectations. The sale promises to be the most sensational event of Paris art rooms in many years. The feature yesterday was the phenomenal price of $132,000 brought by the pastel by La Tour, a portrait of Duval De l'Epinoy, which is the highest price ever paid for a pastel.

SEARCH FOR BODIES OF TITANIC VICTIMS ENDS.

DR. MACGREGOR FOUND GUILTY

Michigan Physician Convicted of Murder in First Degree.

Bad Axe, Mich., June 6.—Dr. Robert A. MacGregor was found guilty of murder in the first degree by the jury which returned its verdict shortly before midnight.

The history of the case which resulted in the conviction of Dr. MacGregor dates from June, 1909, when John Wesley Sparling, a prosperous farmer, died under circumstances which suggested poisoning. Since that date the farmer's three sons, Peter, Albert and Seyrel, have died from similar causes.

Seyrel Sparling, the youngest son, died Aug. 14, 1911, cancer of the liver being given by Dr. MacGregor as the cause. Relatives demanded an investigation, and an analysis of the organs of Seyrel Sparling revealed arsenic poisoning as the real cause of death.

Dr. MacGregor was arrested last October and placed on trial April 2, this year. Three weeks were consumed in securing a jury, and after other delays the taking of testimony began on May 1.

Mrs. Carrie Body Sparling, widow of John Wesley Sparling and mother of the Sparling boys, is now awaiting trial on a murder charge, having been arrested with Dr. MacGregor and accused jointly with the physician of having caused her son's death.

Congressman Pou Renominated.

Greensboro, N. C., June 6.—E. W. Pou was re-nominated for congress for the seventh consecutive time, and four uninstructed delegates, each with half a vote each, named for the national convention, by Democrats of the Fourth North Carolina district in convention at Raleigh. The delegates are Albert L. Cox, R. B. White, E. D. S. Bell and J. B. Ramsey.

Health and Beauty Hints

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Maiden: I am glad you value your youthful complexion, and if you avoid powder and rouge and use this spurmax lotion the skin will always remain divinely fair: Put 4 ounces spurmax in ½ pint hot water (or witch hazel), then add 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. Apply the lotion sparingly to the skin and rub lightly until it vanishes. Your mother will like the spurmax lotion, because it dispels that shiny, sallow condition and gives a tone and velvety softness to rough skins unknown to users of powder. The spurmax lotion is invisible when on and perspiration will not spot nor streak it.

Belle: No, glasses will not give a sparkle to dull eyes. Before you visit the oculist make up and use this harmless, inexpensive eye-tonic, and I am sure you will be saved the expense and annoyance of glasses: Dissolve an ounce crystos in a pint cold water. Putting 2 or 3 drops in the eyes daily will relieve the smart and ache, overcome the blood-shot condition and give to dull, expressionless eyes a fascinating charm and admirably beautiful.

Mrs. Ben: You ought not be sickly, and you won't any longer if you make up and use this good, old-fashioned tonic and regulator: Dissolve ½ cupful sugar in ½ pint alcohol, then stir in 1 ounce kardene and add hot water to make a quart. The dose is a tablespoonful before each meal. A course of the kardene treatment rids the body of all impurities, makes rich, red blood and builds up worn, waste tissue. Follow my suggestion and your health will soon return, and instead of a "muddy," oily, blotchy skin, it will be clear and beautiful.

Edith: I always make it a rule never to recommend a recipe unless I know exactly what it will do and am convinced that it is quite harmless. Parnotis will dissolve your fat quickly and gently, without present or future ill effects. To prepare, dissolve 4 ounces parnotis in 1½ pints hot water, and when it cools take a tablespoonful before each meal. This will remove every ounce of superfluous fat and leave the skin smooth.

C. Q. D.: It is distressing, I know, but if you use plain canthrox for cleansing the hair and scalp you will not be bothered further with excessive oiliness and profuse dandruff. A teaspoonful canthrox dissolved in a cup hot water is ample for a thorough shampoo, and when this is poured on the head and rubbed up into a thick, white lather it stops the itching instantly. After rinsing, your hair and scalp will be wonderfully clean and sweet, and the hair will dry quickly, with a rich gloss and even color. Occasional shampoos with canthrox will induce a luxuriant growth of beautiful hair.

Ada: Brooding will not help your complexion. In fact, worry causes wrinkles and crow's feet. Make up and use this almozoin cream-jelly and before long the oiliness will disappear, sallowness will vanish and the skin will assume a velvety texture and that youth-tint much sought after: Into ½ pint cold water stir 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine, then add 1 ounce plain almozoin. When thoroughly dissolved, apply freely to skin and rub in well. This cream-jelly is especially fine for removing pimples and blackheads and reducing large pores around the nose. Used during the heated term it prevents freckles, tan and sunburn.

May B.: Oily, sticky hair indicates an unhealthy scalp, and to correct this condition you should use a plain quinzoin hair and scalp tonic, made by mixing together ½ pint each water and alcohol and 1 ounce quinzoin. The use of this inexpensive tonic banishes excess oiliness and profuse dandruff and gives to dull, faded, brittle hair a glint and rich color and silky softness truly charming.

Nadine: Put plain pyroxin on your eyebrows with forefinger and they will grow in thick and silky. To make stubby eyelashes grow long and curly, apply pyroxin to lash-roots with thumb and forefinger. Be careful, however, and don't get any where no hair is wanted.

J. M.: Those aggravating hairs can be banished for all time with one application of a delatone paste. Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the hairs not wanted, then skin and it will be soft, smoth and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the hairless.

"Memorial Services"

To the Brothers of North Star Lodge, No. 35: Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst, our beloved Brother, George M. Storms; therefore be it

Resolved, That we set apart Friday, June 7th, 1912, as Memorial day and all brothers are earnestly requested to meet at Castle hall at 8 p. m., sharp, to help us in paying the last respects to the honor of our departed brother.

LEE PRESIDENT OF PLAYGROUNDS BODY.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 6.—The sixth annual convention of the Playgrounds and Recreation Association of America opened here yesterday with a large attendance. Joseph Lee of Boston was elected president.

COLORADOANS FAVOR THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Denver, Colo., JJune 6.—Three hundred Progressive Republicans of Colorado, in convention here last night, elected a protesting delegation to the national Republican convention at Chicago. The meeting memorialized the national convention to seat the delegation, and expressed its favor of Theodore Roosevelt for president, but did not instruct the delegation to vote for him.

RECEIVERS FOR NORTH AMERICAN COPPER COMPANY

Trenton, N. J., June 6.—Judge Rellstab of the United States district court has appointed Charles H. Davis and Charles Hansel receivers for the North American Copper company, on the application of stockholders, who charge that the "assets of the company have been dissipated and misappropriated by the officers with intent to defraud its creditors and stockholders." The company is incorporated in this state with an authorized capital stock of $20,000,000.

MAN DIES FOR CRIME; WOMAN GOES TO PRISON.

Boston, June 6.—Enrico Mascioli of Hull, who, with Mrs. Lena Cusumano was convicted of the murder of the woman's husband, Frank Cusumano, was electrocuted at the state prison at Charlestown this morning. The woman's sentence of death was commuted to life imprisonment by the governor's council yesterday.

The woman in an affidavit declared that Mascioli killed her husband without her knowledge; that after the murder he threatened her life and took what money she had, and declared himself the head of her home.

Sleeping Child Bitten by Dog.

Chicago, June 6.—Attacked while asleep on the porch of his home, Ignatz Obolhoski, 18 months old, was so severely bitten by a dog that physicians say he cannot recover.

Mars Off the Shoal.

Washington, June 6. — The navy collier Mars, which went aground on the Bahama shoals several days ago, has got off the shoals and resumed her voyage undamaged. She is en route to Key West.

A NOTED DOCTOR SAYS,

Everyone should use some little antiseptic powder in the shoes. Confining the feet in shoes, is in itself unnatural and causes a moist or smarting condition. People of refinement now use daily, Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, and would as soon go without a dentifrice as without the use of Allen's Foot-Ease.

PRE-CONVENTION NEWS AND GOSSIP PICKED UP IN THE HOTEL LOBBIES

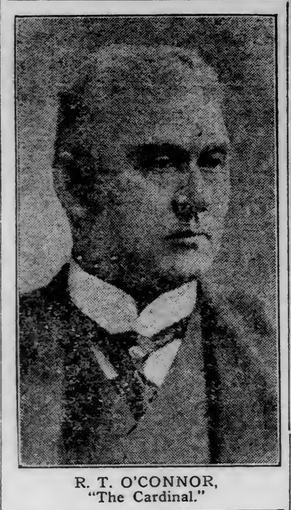

DULUTH HOTELS PRESENT A FESTIVE APPEARANCE

Lobbies Crowded With Delegates—"Getting a Line on Things"—Last Convention in the State—"The Cardinal" Here—Hennepin Swung to Lynch.

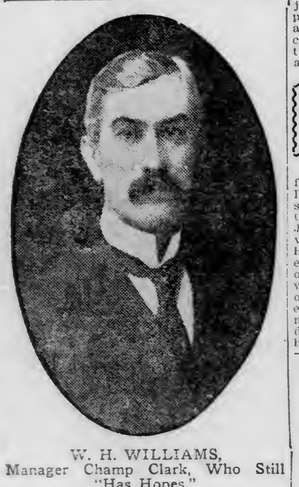

DULUTH had a festive appearance last night. Beginning early in the evening, regular and special trains on all roads began setting down loads of delegates, who trooped to the hotels and crowded them to the doors. The hotels had to crowd some, but as the delegates came in parties, they could be distributed without objection on their part and the hotels proved themselves able to take care of the crowd.

The number and enthusiasm of the delegates were something of a surprise. Until the national committeeman fight had developed yesterday there was little to indicate that the Duluth convention would be other than unexciting. But Democrats are alive this year. They believe it is their year and they don't want to lose any opportunity of getting around among their fellow Democrats and talking of the chances of success.

The fact that the convention today is probably the last to be held in Minnesota was another reason for the big crowd. Many of the delegates expressed their regret over the passing of the convention. Not that they would not have the people have the power of nomination in their own hands, but many warm friendships have been formed at political conventions, men from Southern and Northern Minnesota meet on common ground and exchange courtesies, and a man who goes to other than his first convention knows that he will meet friends from other parts of the state and enjoy intercourse with them.

R. T. O'CONNOR, "The Cardinal."

W. H. WILLIAMS, Manager Champ Clark, Who Still "Has Hopes."

Hotels Are Crowded.

The lobbies of the hotels were scenes of animation. Every few minutes members of an arriving delegation would make their way to the desk stopping here and there for handshakes with friends. Little groups lined up on the seats and in the corners for short conferences. "Getting a line on things" was a favorite pastime.

The Ramsey county delegation of ninety-five, with a few additions for good measure, arrived early in the evening. They were headed by R. T. O'Connor and Dan Lawler and were accompanied by the Minnesota state band. "The Cardinal" wasn't expected to the convention here. An announcement was made some time ago that he would go East and would leave the leadership of the delegation here to Dan Lawler, but he evidently thought better of it when he determined that there would be need for his astute leadership in the national committeeman fight. The St. Paul crowd was out to let people know they were in town. After they had settled their hotel accommodations, they lined up behind their band and paraded around town, visiting the hotel lobbies in turn and yelling for Clark and Lawler.

Hennepin county badges were just as numerous as the Ramsey county badges,—more numerous in fact,—but the wearers were less demonstrative. The Hennepin delegation arrived about 8 o'clock on a special train over the Omaha and took quarters at the Spalding.

Familiar Figures.

Many familiar figures appeared in the convention crowd. Former candidates for almost every office in the state, state senators and representatives, candidates for state offices and politicians with aspirations only for power and not for office, were on hand. Some of the men had been attending conventions in Minnesota for many years, while others were taking in their first—and their last—big political convention. It was their last not on account of their having lost political prestige, but because the convention will be the last in Minnesota for any party.

The executive committee of the state central committee was to have held a meeting last night to decide on the recommendation for temporary chairman of the convention, but after the meeting convened, no action was taken except an adjournment until 8:30 this morning.

The national committeeman contest was the subject of greatest discussion around the hotel lobbies last night. The impression prevailed that Mr. Lynch would win without much trouble, but with some fireworks. Dan Lawler's ability to put up a fight is not questioned, and Mr. Lawler is backed up in the fight here by Jim Bennett of St. Cloud and some other fighters of ability. Mr. Lawler was very active last night. He went from hotel to hotel, meeting old friends and explaining his position in the contest on national committeeman. He did not forget to put in a good word for his own candidacy for delegate-at-large.

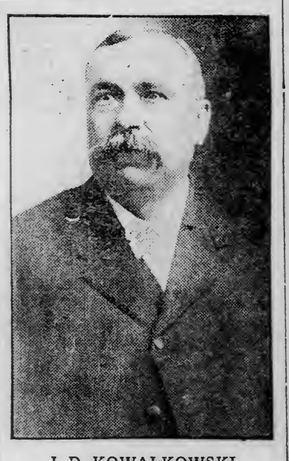

Clark Men Hope.

W. H. Williams, who managed the Clark campaign in Minnesota, was on hand early yesterday with the declaration that the Clark men haven't given up, and will try a combination with the Bryan forces to head off the instruction of the delegates for Wilson. The prevailing sentiment was that there is no question of the action of the convention on the instruction of the delegates—a breath used in objections will be wasted; but with the Ramsey county delegation as a nucleus, the Clark men hope to make a showing.

The Hennepin county caucus last night was not an harmonious affair. Hennepin's 131 votes were swung to Fred B. Lynch, of which result there has been little doubt at any time. F. G. Winston and other Clark supporters, who are also anti-Lynch, attempted to have the delegation swing from the unit rule, which was instructed at the Hennepin county convention. Mr. Winston did not mention any candidate for national committeeman other than Mr. Lynch, but he maintained that the delegation should not pledge itself to any one, and each delegate should be allowed to vote as his convictions or fancy governed. The Wilson men, who are in control of the delegation, objected strenuously to the program proposed, and denounced Mr. Winston for attempting to break away from the convention instructions, according to the reports that came from the caucus afterwards.

TWO GOOD "MIXERS" FROM ST. CLOUD.

Among the delegates who arrived from Stearns county last night are Paul Beaudreau and Joe Kowalkowski, both politicians of the first water. Of course that is not taking a rap at Jim Bennett, who is also here and very much on the job. But this man Beaudreau had an interesting experience this spring. He was a member of the old council of St. Cloud and when the city determined to switch over to the commission form of government, Mr. Beaudreau filed for mayor. There were two other candidates. Among voters in general the betting was that Beaudreau would run third for his opponents were very dignified men—old school, of the aristocracy and all that—while Paul is not—he's a mixer. Well he did not win, but he ran a good second, overreaching the vote expected by his opponents by so far that he is considered a dangerous man.

J. D. KOWALKOWSKI Of St. Cloud.

"Joe" Kowalkowski, who is here to try to muss things up in the convention, is not exactly a professional office holder for he runs a cigar factory for a living, but he is one of the few men who can successfully juggle a city office and a county office at one and the same time without having either of the balls drop and hit him in the eye. Until St. Cloud changed over to the commission form of government, Mr. Kowalkowski was alderman from the Fourth ward and was at the same time chairman of the board of county commissioners for Stearns county. He still retains the latter office, and now he is after the job of district delegate to the Chicago convention.

JAMES GRAY HERE.

Former Candidate for Governor Wouldn't Miss the Convention.

James Gray of Minneapolis, candidate for governor on the Democratic ticket two years ago, arrived early last evening. Mr. Gray hasn't any gubernatorial ambitions this year, but he is a good Democrat as always and wouldn't miss the convention for anything.

DON'T KNOW WHY THEY ARE DIVIDED.

The two Winona county delegations can't explain just what they are divided upon, but they know they are divided. It was a question of the control of the convention apparently. If nothing but local politics was responsible for the split, the credentials committee will probably seat all delegates from Winona county and give them a half vote each.

Holds Off His Hobby.

Senator T. E. Cashman of Owatonna says he is satisfied to hold over his distance tariff bill until the regular session of the legislature, providing the senate takes action on nothing but the state-wide primary and the corrupt practices act at the special session. Senator Cashman says that his bill is of such great importance that he doesn't want to entrust it to the haste of an extra session.

Senators Are Here.

Senators Cashman, Works, Van Hoven and Weis arrived in a bunch last evening, and other state senators are here today.

MINNESOTA'S TWENTY-FOUR WILL BE PLEDGED TO WILSON

E. A. Purdy of Minneapolis, manager of the Wilson campaign in the state, said last evening:

"With 400 delegates pledged to Woodrow Wilson and as many more favorable to his candidacy the state convention today, so far as the presidency is concerned, promises to be a ratification meeting and democratic love feast. Undoubtedly Minnesota's twenty-four delegates will be pledged to Governor Wilson and bound by the unit rule. By declaring for Wilson Minnesota Democracy has again evidenced its undying progressivism. It believes in Governor Wilson and in W. J. Bryan and in the principles they represent and the delegation to Baltimore will stand for nothing but a progressive platform and a progressive candidate and I firmly believe that Wilson will be that candidate. Shortly before I left Minneapolis and since arriving at Duluth I have heard considerable talk to this effect that there would be some opposition to F. B. Lynch as national committeeman and that this opposition would be led by Mr. Lawler and the St. Paul delegation. There have been reports also that certain Wilson men would ally themselves with these reactionary forces against Mr. Lynch. I hardly think this is true judging from the sentiment existing in the Hennepin delegation as I am familiar with it. The Wilson men in the Hennepin delegation appreciate the fact that Mr. Lynch has been fighting for Wilson throughout the state in the face of strong opposition from Ramsey county. We know, too, that he interested himself in the strenuous fight we had in Hennepin county and whatever conservation inclinations may have been attributed to him in the past we know that in his fight for Wilson he threw down the old reactionary crowd and aligned himself squarely with the progressives and fought a good fight with us and won. Consequently you may imagine we were much surprised to learn that he was to be opposed for national committeeman and that certain Wilson men were to align themselves with the reactionaries of Ramsey in opposing him. I am quite sure these Wilson men are not of the Hennepin delegation, as there has been no thought among us other than that Lynch, in the face of a Wilson victory, was entitley to the place of national committeeman if he desired it.

"One thing Wilson men must keep in mind the main issue, which is an instructed delegation for Wilson and not become so interested in side issues as to forget that they are in Duluth primarily as Wilson men."

EDWARD A. PURDY, Minneapolis.

"HIGH BROWS" FORM GREATER PART OF HENNEPIN DELEGATION

The delegates from Hennepin county feel quite proud of the personnel of their contingent. One of them said last night that the delegation to this, perhaps the last state convention that will be held in Minnesoa, is the most representative body of business and professional men that has ever represented Hennepin county in a state convention of the Democratic party. He pointed out such men as Prof. Schlenker, Prof. E. M. Anderson and Prof. Andrus, all of the faculty of Minneapolis, Rev. M. Nixon, of the University of Minnesota; Rev. Dr. Backus of the First Unitarian church leading Baptist divine of that city, and Rev. I. P. Johnson, pastor of Gethsemena church of Minneapolis. Continuing, this delegate said:

"While we have also such old warhorses as Fred Wheaton, Former State Senator S. A. Stockwell, Attorney J. F. Williamson, Harry Swenson and Harry Lundi, we have a great many first timers on the delegation. The candidacy of Woodrow Wilson has created unusual interest among the better element of the younger Democracy, and nowhere can this be better shown than by noting the brilliant array of young men on the Hennepin delegation."

"MIKE" HAS SHAVED.

M. J. Daly of Perham is one of the dyed-in-the-wool Democrats who is on hand at every state convention, and he is here with both feet, but without his mustache. "Mike," as his friends—and that means most of the population of the state—call him, used to be state senator and he has left his mark not only in the way of good work done in the legislature but by his unusual capacity for making acquaintances and friends. Three minutes by the watch after you meet him he will be calling you by your first name and you will unconsciously come right back at him and address him as Mike. If you didn't he would be disappointed.

M. J. DALY, Perham, Minn.

VETERAN FROM ST. JAMES.

Col. Thornton Has Been Attending Conventions Over Forty Years.

Col. J. J. Thornton of St. James, Watonwan county, is one of the oldest delegates in the convention. Col. Thornton is 72 years old today and is full of vigor and Democratic enthusiasm. He has been attending Democratic conventions in Minnesota for over forty years. He and Former Senator Dutolt of Chaska exchanged reminiscences last night and both are able to recall some stirring times in the history of Democracy in Minnesota. Col. Thornton was indorsed for district delegate by Watonwan county. He says he isn't making an active canvass but would like the honor. If Watonwan isn't given the district delegate place, Col. Thornton will probably be one of the presidential electors.

DAN ABERLE WANTS TO GET HIS VOICE BACK.

When the big Hearst-Parker campaign was on in Duluth in 1904, Dan Aberle of St. Paul hollered so loud and so long that something in his throat snapped, and he hasn't been able to speak above a whisper since. Mr. Aberle is back in Duluth for a state convention again and he declares that if he gets excited enough today he may yell his voice back into working order.

Stick to Bryan.

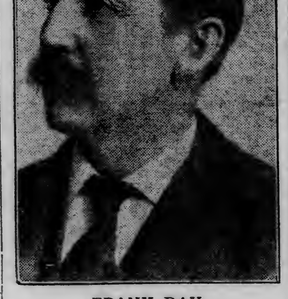

While the Sixth district delegates are instructed to vote for Woodrow Wilson, one county was a dissenter. That was Todd. The voters there could see no candidate but Bryan and instructed their delegates to vote for the peerless one.

OF COURSE FRANK DAY IS ON GROUND

Frank A. Day, formerly of Fairmont, Minn., then of Billings, Mont., and now of Fairmont again, came in last night and had difficulty in getting to a telephone booth to attend to some matters, and then to get to an elevator in the Spalding to get to his room, for everybody wanted to shake hands and have him slap them on the shoulder in his well known manner. Mr. Day was rather chary of saying anything for publication—that is anything but what is becoming platitudinous. So far as the national campaign is concerned he believed that Woodrow Wilson will be nominated by the Democrats and elected president by the people. Said he:

"It is better than an even bet that there will be two Republican tickets in the field and that the Democracy will be a unit, more closely knit than it has been at any time in the last generation. I look for a victory."

As to the state he would say nothing, declaring that conditions are still in a chaotic state.

FRANK DAY.

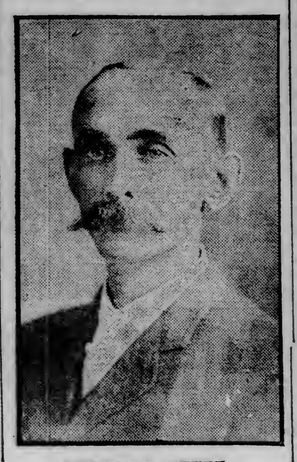

FRED KNOWS SOMETHING OF "COOKING," HIMSELF.

Fred Schilplin of St. Cloud came in yesterday afternoon and is here to attend the meeting of the executive committee of the state central committee, of which he is a member from Stearns county. Mr. Schilplin is not a delegate to the convention, but likes to mix in and see the wheels work. He is manager of the St. Cloud Times and is a leader in business and political circles of his home city and county.

At the district convention held at Brainerd a short time ago an attempt was made to send an uninstructed delegation to the state convention. It is claimed that while it was not necessarily for Clark, still there was a Clark sentiment and nothing would be cinched. The powers who engineered the game felt that they had it all cooked up and were feeling good, believing that the others in the convention would sit supinely by and let the matter drift. They did for a while until Mr. Schilplin, who is a pretty good cook himself, arose and moved that the delegation to the state convention be instructed for Woodrow Wilson. There was a fine howl, but when the motion was voted upon the delegation was instructed for Wilson by something over 2 to 1. The cookers or cookees, as they turned out to be, are still sore at Fred.

AUTHOR OF KEEFE BILL IN DULUTH

Representative Joseph R. Keefe of North Redwood heads the Redwood county delegation. Mr. Keefe has the distinction of being the author of one of the most progressive measures passed at the last session of the state legislature. It is the bill providing for the direct election of United States senators, under the Oregon plan, by which the candidates for the legislature will be pledged to vote for the people's choice. Mr. Keefe is a prominent candidate for district delegate from the Seventh district and is expected to land on the delegation.

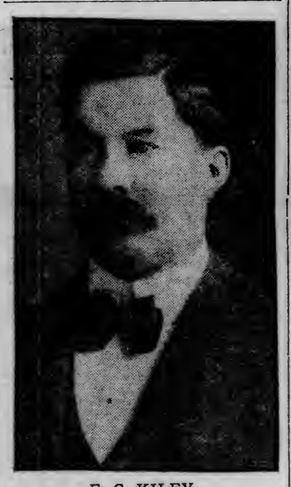

JOSEPH R. KEEFE.

GENIAL HEADSMAN.

E. C. Kiley a Consistent Booster and an Old-Time Democrat.

A face that is always seen at Democratic conventions again looms up at this one—that being the jovial countenance of E. C. Kiley of Grand Rapids. Mr. Kiley is the Igorrote of Itasca, for he is a headsman who knows how to swing the axe with effect. In fact, behind that smiling exterior is a grimness which becomes apparent and most uncomfortable to those who fall beneath the displeasure of said Kiley.

E. C. KILEY.

Mr. Kiley is the noted editor of the Herald-Review of Grand Rapids and for many years has been swinging the pen—for he consistently refused to adopt the typewriter—and has been dipping his pen in vitrol. And trat vitrol at times is of high proof.

Mr. Kiley is one of the best boosters and most consistent Democrats of the state, is a recognized leader of the northern end, is a booster for this part of the state in general and is known as one of the ablest editors of the commonwealth. Just now he is busy in politics and in getting ready to entertain the State Editorial association at Grand Rapids on June 21, 22 and 23.

IS WARMLY GREETED.

One delegate who visited the various groups everybody seemed mighty glad to see. He is Former Senator William Gausewitz of Owatonna—that is, he was senator for a long time from that district, but since that time has moved to Hill City, Aitkin county, and is a delegate from there. Mr. Gausewitz is in charge of the Armour interests at Hill City. While in the senate, Mr. Gausewitz was popular with members of both parties and was regarded as safe and sane.

FORMER SENATOR WILLIAM GAUSEWITZ.

Former Gridiron Star.

James Madigan of Maple Lake, who is a candidate for district delegate from the Sixth, was formerly a famous football star in the state university, and is still an enthusiast and an authority on that form of amusement.

HAS MINIATURE BOOM FOR GOVERNOR

Albert Pfaender of New Ulm, floor leader of the Democrats in the state house of representatives, was at the Spalding last evening. A miniature boom has been started for Mr. Pfaender for the Democratic nomination for governor, but he isn't discussing it.

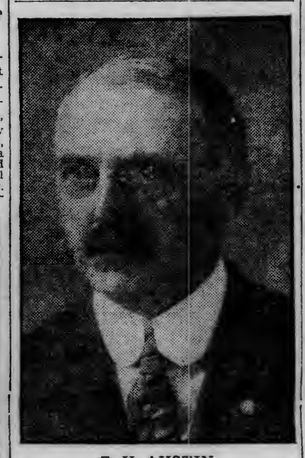

ALBERT PFAENDER.

AUSTIN MUST FIGHT.

Right to Place in Hennepin County Delegation Is Questioned.

Z. H. Austin of Minneapolis has Bryan headquarters at the Spalding and is whooping it up for the Peerless One, not with the idea of securing instructions for him, but solely on general principles. Mr. Austin is having some trouble proving his right to a seat in the convention to the satisfaction of the Hennepin county delegation, but he says that he will win out before the credentials committee, if he can't make his own delegation see his viewpoint.

Z. H. AUSTIN Of Minneapolis.

IN AUTO ACCIDENTS.

Delegates Have Narrow Escape From a Head-On Collision.

A number of visiting delegates who arrived early nearly had a serious accident yesterday afternoon while riding in an automobile about the city. As it was, Former State Senator Dutolt of Carver county is suffering a badly bruised left hand.

They had hired an automobile and were being shown the sights of the city and had a good time. While returning to the spalding, the chauffeur turned a corner on East Superior street rather sharply. A street car was appoaching and before either the car or the auto could be stopped the rear of the side of the auto struck the car. A head-on collision was averted by scarcely more than a hair's breadth.

Senator Dutoit's hand was grasping the side of the auto which struck the car and before he could snatch it away the hand was caught between the two and badly bruised. The senator, while suffering from the pain feels that they got off easy for if the head-on collision had occurred it is likely that some fatalities would have resulted.

HARD ON REPUBLICANS.

F. E. Minnette Is a Strong Democrat in Republican District.

Representative F. E. Minnette is a member of the Stearns county delegation. He is well known to all of those from Duluth who have had occasion to transact business with the legislature for the last decade, and knows every member and ex-member of the legislature since Adam was a kid.

Mr. Minnette has been a representative for five terms. He has aspired for the senate on two different occasions, but lost. He says that the senatorial district where he lives is too strongly Republican. Normally it is about over 1,000 Republican, but the worst licking Mr. Minnette got was by a majority of 145, which is considered as something of a drag at pulling down a majority. When he runs for representative there is nothing to it.

Has Good Connections.

Adolph Bremer is a member of the Ramsey county delegation. Last night many eagerly sought an introduction when hearing him called simply "Bremer," thinking that he was his illustrious brother, Otto, who recently ran for mayor of the capital city on the Democratic ticket and came so close to an election. But Mr. Bremer, while acknowledging the introductions, kept the fingers of his left hand crossed and in some instances let the mistake go uncorrected. He looks something like his brother, only less so.

"Some Runner."

An illustrious member of the illustrious Stearns county delegation is Dr. J. A. Du Bois of Sauk Center. The doctor, who is a genial soul, is recognized as a power in his party and district. That time that he broke into the limelight with a loud sprinkling splash was eight years ago when he ran against Former Congressman C. B. Buckman of Little Falls for the national house of representatives. He gave Mr. Buckman a run for his money, too, in a strongly Republican district, hewed out in the reapportionment—so it is bruited about—to make things purposely easy for "Buck."

E. S. SCHIEBE HEADS CARLTON DELEGATION

E. S. Schiebe of Cloquet heads the Carlton county delegation. He is a member of the state central committee and is one of the most prominent Democrats in Northern Minnesota. Mr. Schiebe says Carlton county is instructed for Frank Day for national committeeman, but will support Lynch, since Day is not a candidate.

E. S. SCHIEBE Of Cloquet.

NOT ON DELEGATION, BUT FOUGHT GOOD FIGHT

Fred Schilplin of St. Cloud made a gallant fight for Woodrow Wilson in Stearns county, lost the control of the convention through a local contest, and then had a motion to instruct the delegation for Wilson adopted by a big vote. The winners in the control contest declined to put Mr. Schilplin on the delegation, but he is in Duluth and he isn't disconsolate. He will not have a vote in the convention, but will attend the meeting of the executive committee of the central committee and will then go to the Auditorium as a spectator.

FRED SCHILPLIN, St. Cloud.

HANK SMITH REAL VETERAN IN STATE.

There are many veterans of the Democratic party in the city to attend the convention, and many of them are genuine pioneers of the state. However, it is believed that the banner belongs to Hank Smith of North Branch. Mr. Smith came to Minnesota farther back than the memory of man harks—and among the old settlers there are some real harkers, too. Mr. Smith is not only a pioneer of the state, but of the party also and has indulged in many a friendly fracas on the floors of convention halls for what he believed to be to the best interests of the party. He lived in Minnesota long ago enough so that he carried a pack between his section of the state and Duluth—even before there was a good wagon road.

MAJOR BOWLER NOT HERE; SENT HIS SON.

Major J. M. Bowler of Minneapolis, who was chairman of the noisy convention here eight years ago, is not here this time, but he has sent his son, M. C. Bowler, who partakes of his father's ability and interest i npolitics. Many veteran Democrats will miss Major Bowler, who was always welcome at Democratic gatherings, but they are glad to greet his son.

"Dick's" Band.

"Dick" O'Connor is here with a band again, but he isn't likely to "fix" the band leader for a bolt this year. During the 1904 convention, the "cardinal" was figuring on a bolt. He had the band leader fixed to follow him out of the Armory, but matters were fixed up and the bolt wasn't pulled off. Nevertheless, Mr. O'Connor wasn't able to leave the Armory until the adjournment early in the morning, for the band leader was most vigilant and was prepared to follow him at the least sign of departure.

Duluth's Long Friend.

Robert Carmichael of Hastings, Dakota county, is a conspicuous figure wherever he may be. Mr. Carmichael towers head and shoulders over everybody wherever he may be. He even tops National Committeeman Fred B. Lynch, which is going some. Mr. Carmichael is the beanpole statesman, with no qualifications. He is a likeable man and Duluth people have a warm spot in their hearts for him. He seconded the motion to send the convention to Duluth, at the state central committee meeting in St. Paul in March. Mr. Carmichael says he hasn't regretted his action for a minute. He "heads" a complete delegation from Dakota county.

Some Speaker.

George Riley of St. Paul, a member of the Ramsey county delegation, is considered one of the best after dinner speakers in the state. Mr. Riley can give Dan Lawler a run for eloquence and fluency of expression and Mr. Lawler backs down for very few people when it comes to using the English language for decorative purposes.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

GOOD NEWS FOR BRYAN MAN.

Z. H. Austin, premier Bryan man, received on the convention floor this morning a telegram which got him into a jubilant and extra enthusiastic mood. It was from Bryan headquarters in New York and it was announced that Mr. Bryan will be nominated. The O'Gorman mentioned as his running mate is Senator O'Gorman of New York state, formerly a justice of that state's supreme court. The text of the telegram follows:

"Z. H. Austin, Bryan Headquarters, Duluth, Minn.:
"Bryan will be nominated at Baltimore. O'Gorman will be his running mate. Keep up the good fight.
"BRYAN-O'GORMAN DEMOCRATIC CLUB,
"James S. McDonough, Chairman."

DEMOCRATS OF MINNESOTA ASSEMBLE IN CONVENTION IN DULUTH

ing was a regular Minnesota Bryan demonstration. Hats were thrown in the air, standards were pulled around, lusty cheers were turned loose and the band played a lively air for several minutes. The Clark demonstration was participated in by the Ramsey county delegation only, while those who were most vociferous in cheering the name of Bryan, were the men who had previously cheered the name of Wilson.

Notable Gathering.

The gathering is a notable one. It is doubtful if any such largely attended Democratic convention has ever been held in Minnesota. Nearly every county in the state is represented, and many of the counties which are most remote from Duluth have complete delegations. The convention will probably be the last political convention to be held in Minnesota. Frequent reference was made to that fact this morning, and undoubtedly the fact has much to do with the great attendance here.

The convention was late in assembling this morning, but the delegates got down to business when they did arrive at the Auditorium. The big building was decorated for the occasion. Instead of standards, which might be raised and thrown around in case of a disturbance, the county designations were strung from wires above the seats. The congressional districts were kept together instead of the counties, being arranged in alphabetical order. The arrangements for the convention were perfect and received the commendation of the visitors.

JOHN M. FREEMAN

The Ramsey and Hennepin county delegations were placed side by side in the center of the hall. The Ramsey county delegation had attached a picture of Clark to their county delegation. The delegates arrived at the Auditorium with their band at their head and they made a Clark demonstration as they reached their seats. The Hennepin county delegates, probably as enthusiastic for Wilson as is the Ramsey county delegation for Clark, were content with the assurance of control in the convention and made no demonstration on arriving.

Air Clears.

The air was charged when the convention first opened, but after the recommendation of the state central committee that John M. Freeman of Olivia be temporary chairman had been accepted, the air began to clear. There was speculation as to the course to be followed by T. T. Hudson, but when the Hudson steering committee failed to get around a great deal, many of the delegates began to see that there was harmony in the air and settled down to do the business of the convention.

Dan Lawler, floor leader for the Clark forces and the anti-Lynch men, only arose for recognition once. That was when he called attention to the contest in Winona county. Mr. Lawler was answered satisfactorily and made no attempt to follow up the question as to the right of the convention to go ahead with its temporary organization while the Winona contest is pending.

The Third district was the first district in which there was a contest, to caucus this morning. The district caucused before arriving at the convention hall. There had been four candidates, but Senator Frank Glotzbach of Winona dropped out, and W. S. Weiss of Red Wing was content with a place as alternate.

There had been six candidates for the two places in the Sixth district, but Kowalkowski and Wolf showed decisive strength in the caucus. In the Ninth district, M. J. Daly and Martin O'Brien had a walkaway, with P. J. Rusell and G. C. Thorpe. The defeated candidates were chosen as the alternates.

A warm session of the resolutions committee was expected. The question of the unit rule being abolished was expected to be broached by the Ramsey county representatives, who may also carry their fight to the floor of the convention. The two Fourth district delegates are for Clark and the Ramsey county people want the Clark votes retained. The Wilson men are in control of the convention and they are expected to force the unit rule, which will give Minnesota's twenty-four votes at Baltimore to Wilson.

D. D. Daly of Minneapolis, chairman of the state central committee, called the convention to order about 11 o'clock. Mr. Daly, in opening the convention, declared that the convention would probably be the last in the state.

"As sure as fate, the man nominated at Baltimore will be elected next November," he declared and drew wild applause. Mr. Daly made sweeping claims for the success of the party in Minnesota. "If we make no mistakes."

The reading of the roll was dispensed with.

Mr. Daly announced that the state central committee recommended that John M. Freeman of Odivia be tempoary chairman. E. A. Stevens of Minneapolis moved that the recommendation of the committee be accepted. There was no dissent. E. A. Stevens and T. O. Connor of Renville were appointed to escort Mr. Freeman to the chair.

Mr. Freeman Speaks.

Mr. Freeman was greeted with a hearty round of applause when he took the platform and addressed the delegates as fellow Democrats:

"I realize," said he "that while you are Democrats still, you are not still Democrats. If ever we needed activity it is today.

"To be elected temporary chairman is an honor which I appreciate and especially as this is probably the last convention of its kind to be held in this state. The primary is the child of the Democracy. We only regret that the staunch members of the party will no longer be able to meet and fight shoulder to shoulder. But we believe in the rule of the people and we welcome the primary. We believe that the people are always right.

"It means something to be a Democrat today. We should thank God that we have been preserved until this day that we may espouse the cause of the people in this time of strife and crisis.

"It is now the proud boast of the Republicans of Minnesota—they have reached that state of citizenship—that they can now split their ticket and vote for principle. Years ago it was not a proud boast to be a Democrat.

Have Kept Faith.

"We can stand here today as the Democratic party of Minnesota and say without a blush that we have kept faith with the principles of Jefferson.

"It is true that we have not been in office but it is equally true that we have been in power. That is a great thing. The Republican party, which has misruled this nation for almost fifty years has been filching the principles of the Democratic party for years."

Some Accomplishments.

The speaker declared the Democratic party has given the American people the direct election of United States senators, the only relief from the tariff burden and the income tax and has taken the boss from American politics. The Progressive Republicans have stolen Democratic thunder and "sometimes with demogogues at their head have asked to put them back into office."

"We have a spectacle today that should make every man blush," he said. "We have a president and the only living ex-president saying that each is not fit to have even the respect of the American people. One-tenth of what they say is true, we should exile both of them."

He said that the violation of a sacred precedent has opened the way for the one-term presidency.

"They have violated every commandment, except one and that is 'Thou shalt not tread on the tail of my coat,'" he said. "If the American people were wise, they would throw both aside. They will not do it. One of these men will be nominated at the Chicago convention, but thank God, he will not be elected in November.

Republicans in Bad Way.

"The Republican party is in a bad way in this nation. That isn't true only in the nation but in the state. The people realize that we haven't a governor at all. The executive office is only an enlargement of the bureau of immigration. He has posed as the advertising agent of himself, instead of being the chief executive of the state. In little country towns, they get up street fairs, horse shows, or meetings of the board of supervisors and invite the men holding the highest office in the state to draw the crowds.

"Two months ago he thought the people shouldn't have a primary law. When Lee and Gordon began to gather in the delegates, he saw the light. They're wondering now if there's anybody in the state who has Eberhart for even a second choice."

Mr. Freeman said the Democrats of the nation may well be proud that they have more than one man fit to lead the party. "If Roosevelt is the only man fit to rule, the Republican party ought to disband," he said. "We have scores of men fit to head our party."

Applause for Wilson.

Wilson's name was greeted with applause. Mr. Freeman paid a glowing tribute to Wilson as a wise governor and a great leader. He said that if Clark should be nominated, members of the party could support him. The Ramsey county crowd went wild.

When the possibility of Bryan's nomination was suggested, the convention arose to its feet, with hats and hands waving and the band broke loose. The ovation lasted several minutes. Mr. Freeman pronounced Bryan the greatest living American citizen.

"You talk about the never-ceasing love of the common people—why it has been the life work of that great man that you may trust the people," said Mr. Freeman.

He declared that every time the Democracy has attempted to get away from the principles of Jefferson some great leader arose and by his greatness led them back to where Jefferson wanted them to stand. This, he declared, has been the life work of Mr. Bryan. "It is a great thing to have been able to march under the leadership of Mr. Bryan," he asserted.

"We are assembled today," he continued, "in a Democratic love feast and let us hope that we will continue in harmony. Let us go from this convention to our homes as ——hers and let us continue the work this great convention. Let us eliminate from our hearts any political rancour that may arise and go from this convention loyal Democrats."

Grimmer Is Secretary.

Harvey Grimmer of St. Cloud was chosen temporary secretary.

M. C. Bowles of Minneapolis was chosen assistant secretary.

Committees Authorized.

Mr. Odell of Carver county moved the appointment of committees on resolutions, credentials and permanent organization, the chair to select three members of each committee and two members of each committee to be selected by each congressional district.

D. D. Daly moved that when the congressional districts caucus they select a candidate for presidential elector. The motion was carried.

D. W. Lawler called attention to the contest in Winona county and declared no business could be done. Martin O'Brien of Crookston said the convention could perfect its temporary organization and leave Winona out until the credentials committee could pass upon the contest.

The chair appointed to the committee on credentials Harris Bennett of St. Louis county, John Moonan of Waseca and Carlos Avery of McLeod county.

To the resolutions committee he appointed R. T. Daly of Renville, Martin O'Brien of Polk and C. A. Quist of Hennepin.

His selection to the committee on permanent organization was M. T. Dunn of Crow Wing, John Dwan of Lake and Fred King of Itasca.

After the caucus the districts reported the following selections:

First District—
Credentials—Thomas J. Meighen, Fillmore; Charles Dorival, Houston.
Resolutions—H. G. White, Winona; H. C. Nelson, Freeborn.
Permanent organization—H. G. Day, Freeborn; Charles Posz, Wabasha.
Presidential elector — Andrew French, Wabasha.

Second District—
Resolutions—E. G. Champlin, Charles E. Wise, W. R. Hodges.
Credentials—M. J. Grogan, R. F. Lamb.
Permanent organization—W. H. Wilson, Dr. M. J. Farrish.
President elector—J. J. Thornton.

Third District—
President—Julius Colb, Scott; W. C. Odell, Carver.
Credentials—T. H. B. Burns, Goodhue; Mathias Sheehan, Nicollet.
Permanent organization—Edward F. Kelly, Rice; A. A. Poehler, Sibly.
Presidential elector — Fred Dutolt, Carver.

Fourth District—
Resolutions—J. J. Ryan, J. C. Carmichael.
Credentials—T. J. Brady, R. W. McTarry.
Permanent organization—J. D. Markham, W. L. Abbott.
Presidential elector — Col. Daniel Aberle.

Fifth District—
Resolutions—Frank Anderson, L. R. Larson.
Credentials—H. Reymole, Matt Donaghue.
Permanent organization — James Gray, W. L. Herber.
Presidential elector—F. M. Henry; alternate—Richard Gottersfield.

Sixth District—
Resolutions—Don Cameron, Alvin Swindlehurst.
Credentials—F. H. Borchart, W. F. Donahue.
Permanent organization—S. J. Mealey, Conn O'Brien.
Presidential elector—P. J. Vasalay.

Seventh District—
Resolutions—F. E. Trafger, W. F. Person.
Credentials—F. J. Steidel, E. S. Reishus.
Permanent Organization—John Hanson, S. A. Stansbury.
Presidential Elector—B. B. Gisloson, Minnesota.

Eighth District—
Resolutions—A. P. Yugon, Isanti; H. H. Folsom, Pine.
Credentials — W. W. Stockwell, Anoka; Frank Crassweller, St. Louis.
Permanent Organization — E. S. Schieber, Carlton; Douglas Greeley, St. Louis.
Presidential Elector—Charles Reinholdson, Pine.

Ninth District—
Resolutions—E. M. Stanton, J. E. Beouville.
Credentials—Julius J. Olson, Leslie Welter.
Permanent Organization — J. B. Hompe, Frank Jeffers.
Presidential Elector—Axel Ringborg.

After the committee selections had been reported, the convention adjourned until 2:30 to allow the committees to meet.

A Candidate for Governor.

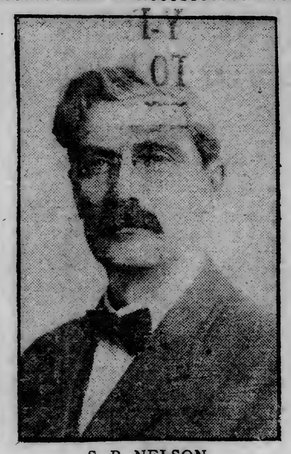

Prof. Charles Andrist of the University of Minnesota, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, circulated among the delegates last evening and made himself known. He was accompanied by W. F. Nelson of Minneapolis, who will manage Prof. Andrist's campaign. Mr. Nelson and Mr. Andrist both appear to be live wires and they may be expected to put up a campaign that will show results in the count of ballots after the primary election.

Store-competition is the mother of bargains.

SELECTION OF WIFE AN ART.

Margurite Mooers Marshall in the New York Evening World: What woman should a man marry?

The 200 young men who make up the famous Bible class in New York are discusing this question. But it may be noted that they have asked no woman to contribute to their debate.

At least the women should be heard on a topic concerning them. It was to Mrs. Mary Austin, the dramatist, who is shortly to bring out a book on "Mariage," that I first put the question:

"What kind of woman should a man marry?"

"I find it almost easier to speak of the woman he should not marry," began Mrs. Austin, "because this type is given unwholesome predominance in modern life and literature. I refer to the coquette.

"The reign of the coquette is a relic of barbarous ages, when a man had to indulge in the most desperate and primitive struggles to secure a wife. He usually knocked her father and brother down with a club and dragged her off by the hair of her head to his cave. Now we have changed all that.

"We must get away from our present ideal of an artificial and highly stimulated courtship. Our girls must stop trying to 'win' men. Love that is 'won' by coquetry, that does not come naturally as the result of a serene and sustained comradeship, never lasts.

Beauty Helps Some.

"In choosing a wife a man should look for real values," she explained. "Beauty is a good thing, and every woman ought to be as beautiful as possible. But she should not be judged or rejected on the merits of her face alone.

"Men must get over that if they wish to marry happily," continued Mrs. Austin firmly. "One thing essential in a wife is truth. Often a courtship is only a tissue of lies. I do not mean simply that the girl tells falsehoods. I mean that she pretends to be many things which she is not; that she deliberately assumes virtues and charms which she does not possess and which her husband is bound to find out that she lacks after their marriage.

"Another 'real value' a man should look for in the woman he decides to marry is intellectual sympathy. Another is charity. Another is efficiency the ability to play the part of wife and mother without failing through long years together.

"Furthermore, only a woman who has had some preparation for marriage should become a wife. I think that the education of all boys and girls should contain lesons preparing them for the duties and responsibilities of married life.

Should Know Sex Hygiene.

"They should be taught sex hygiene, and the growing boy, as well as the girl, should be instructed in the care of children. I have been much impresed by the beautiful fatherly attitude of the men in a colony of scientists I know. They had studied all about the right sort of milk for their children and other questions of child hygiene, and they were as interested as the mothers and as skilful.

"A man ought not to marry any woman whom he has not known well for a considerable period of time. That is one reason why marriages between people who have worked together in the same office are so apt to turn out well. They have become really acquainted with one another, not simply with one another's best clothes.

"One reason for the existence of the coquette is that the girl knows only a few men and, supremely desirous of being married, makes every effort to take the first chance, fearing that she may never get another one. It she were acquainted with many men she would be more willing to wait for the slow growth of real affection.

"Finally, the right woman for a man to marry is the woman whose life, joined to his, will constitute a genuine social service. She isn't merely the woman who makes the display of his wealth or who keeps him good tempered. He must be happy, or he cannot serve society to the fullest degree. But the happiness she brings him must be something deeper than selfish content."

REWARDS OF A DRESSMAKER.

"If anybody is qualified to explain the mysterious processes by which fashions in dress are imposed upon the world it must be the head of the Parisian house of Paquin in the Rue de la Paix, says the Woman's Home Companion.

There is no doubt of the efficiency with which she dominates the greatest dressmaking establishment in the world. Mme. Paquin assumed the "dictatorship of the realm of fashion," as the phrase makers will have it, in December, 1907, upon the death of her husband. M. Isador Paquin was decorated by the minister of commerce for his services to France through his pre-eminent genius in his art. He was an unknown clerk of the Paris Bourse and his bride was an eqully obscure little dressmaker at the time of their marriage, about 1891. But shortly after they set up housekeeping a wealthy patron established them in a dressmaking business, small but in an excellent location.

At that time the great artists of fashion were wont to hold themselves coldly and mysteriously aloof from their patrons. The newcomer in the field adopted an opposite policy. Monsieur, a born diplomat and a far sighted business man, young, handsome and suave, and madame, charming and tactful, were always accessible and always courteous.

Such qualities, supplementing unquestioned taste and originality, proved so compelling that by the end of a dozen years the annual 'ncome of the house of Paquin was about $400,000. Today it is probably far in excess of that figure. Aside from her interest in the establishment, Mme. Paquin draws a salary of $60,000.

The detail of business is enormous. A small army is employed not only in designing, experimenting and making, but also in scouting new ideas to be modified or exaggerated. Then there are the mannequins, who exhibit the costumes in the showrooms, not to speak of persons of far more consequence who wear the latest creations on the stage or at the races.

PRESENT DAY NEWSPAPER WOMEN

The newspaper women of today, writes Elizabeth Lonergan in the Strand is often merely a name to the reading public, and little indeed is known of her personality. Though we pass her on the street, every magazine article and story she writes is eagerly compared with the daily signed articles in her especial journal. Sometimes we are fortunate enough to meet this wonderful woman, and we are usually disappointed. To our surprise she is not of an abrupt masculine type or a dreamy-eyed butterfly, but an alert, business like woman, who does not seem at all impressed by the murmurs of delight over her daily effusions.

There are few assignments that are not given to women. Forty years ago an editor who did not approve of the newspaper woman planned to secure the resignation of the one on his staff by an unusual assignment. It was to write up a famous hanging! Contrary to his expectations the reporter expressed her willingness to accept it. Of course, she was not asked to go, the editor declaring that it was all a joke. Today no orders, however strange, cause comment. An interview with a prominent millionaire (arranged with the greatest of difficulty); another writing actual experiences as a member of the circus or as one of the diving girls in the Hippodrome.

The newspaper woman must have great individuality, adaptability and perseverance. She must think quickly and be able to express herself in a few words. The wide range of subjects upon which she must write gives her power to do many other things well, so it is seldom that the woman writer does not excel in more than one line. Journalism, to its efficient follower, is many times the open sesame to other professions, where the same qualities which brought her success in the former field win her success in the new.

A SULTAN'S PRACTICAL JOKE.

Strand: We all like our little joke, and Eastern potentates have from time immemorial enjoyed the reputation of being the merriest of monarchs. The Moorish palace of Sultan Abu Yakub Yussuf at Seville—known today as the "Alcazar"—contains one of the most elaborate practical jokes extant. When in a gay mood, some important merchant or notable of Seville would receive a pressing invitation summoning him to the presence. In a fever of delighted expectancy the flattered guest would don his whitest raiment and hie himself to the palace. There he would be ceremoniously conducted to the gardens and directed up the long avenue. But alas! Half way up it he would inevitably tread upon a moving flagstone resting upon a spring, and immediately countless fine jets of water would gush out of the ground and from the surrounding shrubbery and drench him. Amid the jeers of the courtiers the luckless and bedraggled wight would beat an undignified retreat. Before he was allowed to leave the palace, however, he was sworn to secrecy on pain of death. At all costs nothing must make the joke fall flat when repeated. The treacherous flagstone has been removed and today the visitor may pass with impunity; but a peseta to the head gardener will usually cause the fountains to play. Not many people know of their existence, however. The water is sprayed through hundreds of tiny pipes, so small as to be almost invisible, which are placed in the cracks between the flagstones.

CALIFORNIA WINE GRAPES.

Lodi correspondence Stockton Mail: The total number of tons of wine grapes handled by the wineries in this vicinity during the last season reaches the surprising total of 70,000 tons. If this 70,000 tons of grapes had been converted into sweet wine the total number of gallons would approximate 5,600,000. It would be safe to say that at least 10 per cent of this tonnage was converted into dry wines, which would bring the number of gallons up to a higher figure.

As between table and wine grapes the wine grape industry at the present time looks to be in the better shape. At $10 a ton for the common variety of grapes, a rancher can show some profit. As table grapes have been selling for the last year or so there is little or no profit in them.

HUERTA ARMY ON THE MOVE

day that Castillo Herrera, head of the rebel custom house in Juarez, had been arrested by American authorities at Columbus, N. M., for attempting to smuggle arms across the international border at Bathplace.

Store Men Fugitives.

Chihuahua, Mex., June 6.—Rebel cavalry under Col. Terrazas, sent westward to keep an eye on the federals under Generals Villa and Rabago, who are riding overland from Parral toward this city, are encamped today at Santa Sabel, forty-five miles west of here on the Mexican Northwest railroad.

Marcos Rusket and Eleseo Ruitz, members of a big mercantile house in Jiminez, arrived here today, fugitives from the federals.

The federal authorities charge that Rusket and Ruitz aided the rebels during their stay in Jiminez recently. They admit having sold the rebels $100,000 worth of clothing and supplies, and claim to have received cash in payment, but declare they surrendered $40,000 worth of merchandise on demand and would have furnished the federal army just as readily.

The property is owned by Rusket's mother, who is the widow of an American citizen, and the goods in the store were listed with James Long, the American consul at Parral.

DOUBLES HER RIFLE ORDER

terday under command of Rear Admiral Usher, have on board nearly 800 marines. These ships should arrive at Guantanamo some time tomorrow.

The cruiser Prairie, which already has landed 450 under command of Col. Lucas, has about 350 more on board. The four battleships of the third division of the Atlantic fleet still at Key West, with Rear Admiral Osterhaus on the flagship Washington, have nearly 1,000 more marines which could be moved to Cuba in little more than a day if the situation should demand. Roughly, this places the number of marines immediately available at about 1,500 and the reserve force at Key West at 1,000.

Combined Force of 3,500.

The combined forces of bluejackets on all the ships, which, however, would only be landed in the most pressing emergency, easily would swell the total American force available to more than 3,500 men.

As President Gomez indicated in his statement last night, the assumption by the American marines of responsibility for the safety of the foreign properties in Oriente will relieve Gen. Monteaguedo's army of the most onerous portion of its work, and will enable that officer to begin almost immediately a campaign in force against the marauding bands of negro insurrectos.

It is estimated that 1,000 American marines would be fully equivalent to five times the number of Cuban regular soldiers.

No News From Oriente.

Havana, June 6. — The goverpment was without further news from Oriente province this morning, and did not expect a forward movement of the troops until the Cuban plantation guards, now relieved of this duty by the American marines, had rejoined their respective commands and the guerilla corps now being organized had begun to take the field.

All was quiet in this city and vicinity today.

KEEP IT GOING.

Though the extra session of the legislature is but two days old, two bills already have been introduced to increase the state's gross earnings tax on the railroads. One of them, introduced by Representatives Rines and C. H. Warner, proposes an increase from 4 to 5 per cent. The other, by Representative Minette, would raise the tax to 6 per cent. Either one would mean a greatly increased, much needed and thoroughly justified addition to the state's revenues.

That one or the other of these measures will pass the house is reasonably certain. But unfortunately there has appeared in the senate a disposition to avoid action of this character at the present session. That disposition should be overcome, and the movement begun in the house by the introduction of these two bills should be kept going until one or the other of them has passed both bodies.

It means too much to the state to be allowed to go over to the next regular session. If the action to increase the tax is taken now, it can be passed upon by the voters at the November election. If it is delayed until the next regular session it cannot be passed upon by the voters until two years later, and the state will be the loser by $2,000,000 or more through that delay.

Moreover, there is no reason for the delay. The railroads themselves set the state an example of promptness when they announced increases in their freight and passenger rates before the Sanborn decision was fairly cold in print. The one plea for delay has been that the United States supreme court has not acted on the appeal from that decision. There is now and there has been no need of waiting for that decision. If the proposed increase were a retaliatory measure, such a plea might hold. But the conditions in Minnesota are such that the railroads already are greatly undertaxed and the people overtaxed, and an increase in the gross earnings levy will be nothing more or less than a readjustment of the burden of taxation to more nearly equitable proportions.

The movement in the house is well begun. It should be pushed along and taken up in the senate. It would not mean additional length to the extra session, for the gross earnings matter could be disposed of while the primary and corrupt practices acts are being framed in committee.

The house should insist upon the addition to the senatorial two-measure program, and the senate should fall in line with the house and act for the welfare of the state and the tax-payers. There should be no compromise that will endanger the gross earnings tax increase.

It Was a Cinch, All Right.

Taft's managers figured that the South Dakota primary would be a cinch "because of the split in the opposition caused by the Roosevelt and La Follette candidacies." Queer how figuring sometimes leads one to wrong conclusions.

THE FOURTH AND THE KIDS.

Last year Duluth had its first "sane Fourth," and it is generally conceded that the plan is a great success. This year it is to be repeated, and there is no reason to expect that it will be anything behind that of 1911 in the way of quiet and safety. There will be no heart-breaks or burned fingers or blinded eyes or piles of charred ruins by which to remember the day. The older folks will say, "This is something like," or if they are not given to such rude forms of speech they will remark that "It is such a relief to be rid of those dangerous and senseless practices that we used to indulge in."

Fine! Lovely! Most excel—

But wait.

Has it occurred to you that if you were a kid of maybe ten or twelve or fourteen years of age, and you had been brought up to regard the Fourth of July as a day for noise and smoke and powder and burned fingers, and the grown-ups should suddenly put a stop to that kind of celebration—has it occurred to you that you would find a great big hole had been ripped in the scheme of things as you understood it, and that you'd feel a pretty strong resentment against the grown-ups and their order?

Certainly you would. You'd get up on the morning of the Fourth and eat breakfast and wander aimlessly around until dinner time, and eat dinner and wander some more until supper time, and bedtime would be a positive relief.

You'd feel that you had lost a day, somehow, somewhere, and that you weren't to blame for it, and that there was something rotten in the country or the times were out of joint, or something like that. And you'd hate the Fourth of July for what it had been before and now wasn't. And if anybody said "Hurrah for the sane Fourth" you'd answer with as much of your feelings as you dared, and take out the rest in thinking things you "dassent" say, and maybe in kicking a chair or something.

That's what a safe ninety-five per cent of the youngsters of Duluth went up against last year, and it's what about the same percentage will face this year, if something isn't done to change the aspect of the day for them. Something ought to be done. In many cities something is to be done, and the example is worth following. We ought to make the nation's birthday enjoyable for the kids, and the obligation is all the stronger because we have taken from them the dangerous playthings that we ourselves had taught them belong with the glorious Fourth.

There are many things that might be done to make the day real "circusy" for the youngsters. There could be special contests, open to all, under certain classifications, held on the city playgrounds or other appropriate places. There are parks where picnics for the children could be given. There are places where they could be entertained by music of one kind or another. There is unlimited opportunity to give them boatrides.

Oh, and one other thing—How many youngsters under sixteen years, do you suppose, ever saw a good, old-fashioned Fourth of July parade, such as you used to enjoy? You'd stand and watch for it for two hours before it came. You'd run blocks to head off and see again some favorite feature. You'd talk about it for months, and sometimes you dream about it now. What does your son or your daughter know about that kind of enjoyment?

There is less than a month, now, before the Fourth will be here. Perhaps that is too little time to prepare anything really worthy of the occasion. But we might do something, it would seem. And assuredly we owe it to the kids that something be done.

A Difference.

Anyway, neither Madero nor Orozco has as yet called the other either "dangerous" or "weak."

DODGE CITY'S NEW DODGE.

Every once in awhile Kansas turns up with something new and refreshing. The brilliancy of its ideas slaps the mind with the same refreshing vividness that the matchless hues of its native sunflower present to the onlooker's eye. Its conceptions of the best way to do things hurl themselves with irresistible force against the mentality and bring with them such an array of unexpected ramifications of possible applications and extensions that one is forced to stop, look and listen, and there is even an instinctive tendency to get out a notebook and write down the number of the things that hit you.

Dodge City has the honor of producing the latest example of Kansas cacodemonia. Convinced that the welfare of the people of Dodge City was being jeopardized by the deadly dance, the city adopted an ordinance providing that whosoever should care to dance in Dodge City must take out a license permitting such an act, the annual fee for the granting of said license to be one dollar. The ordinance limits the persons who may take out such licenses to such as have reached the age of sixteen years.

Here is a boon of limitless value to the society matron who has racked her brain in futile efforts to find something new in the conduct of social affairs. Imagine excerpts from an account of a dance in Dodge City under the license system.

"No. 211 led the grand march with No. 26."—"The guests presented a charming sight in their rich gowns of blending colors. No. 948 was especially noticeable for her costume."—"At one time during the evening No. 27 and No. 456 collided with Nos. 99 and 100 and for a time it looked as if No. 99 were seriously injured, but prompt application of restoratives soon straightened her out."—"Among those present were Nos. 21, 43, 775, 634, 19," etc.

Then there are the next day's comparisons to be made by the young women. "I had five dances with No. 919 and he's just a lovely waltzer."—"I just had to take three with No. 23, but I sat them all out. He's so horribly clumsy on his feet!"—"Say, did you meet No. 77? I had four dances with him."—"Why on earth did she ever invite that crazy young 732? They ought to take his license away. He just walked all over my feet in that last waltz."

For choosing partners for supper, there will be available all the different combinations to be made with numerals, so that the hostess need never lack variety in that feature. People who find it hard to remember names will only have to go by numbers. In case the license official cares to add a bit of variety to the operation of the law, he can issue the licenses in series by starting each series on a separate street. Then they will have Main 14, Grove 27, Excelsior 41, and others, a system that will be sure to find favor in the more exclusive set, since the individual's number will tell at a glance what section of the city its owner lives in.

It's a great idea, this one from Dodge City, Kan. Its possibilities are legion and its originality beyond question. It is worthy of Kansas—and what more need be said?

A Last Resort?

Now they are talking of examining witnesses abroad in the Thaw case. Evidently turning from alienists to aliens.

THAT "TIDAL WAVE."

President Taft's "overwhelming defeat in New Jersey caused a tidal wave of progressiveness," said the campaign managers of Former United States Senator Lafe Young in explaining their candidate's crushing defeat in the Iowa primary on the Republican senatorial nomination.

A very neat and pat and up-to-date explanation, gentlemen, but it happens that it won't fit in this case. And here are the reasons why it won't fit:

Mr. Young wouldn't have won the nomination anyway, as is shown plainly by the Kenyon majority of something over 70,000. No defeat in any one state, no matter how overwhelming, could overthrow any man's majority in any other state to that extent.

The factors that brought about Lafe Young's defeat began their work three years ago, when President Taft, by his course regarding tariff legislation, established an irrevocable division in the Republican party, and received Mr. Young's support in his acts.

Ex-Senator Young, by his course while a member of the senate, showed so plainly his alliance with the reactionary element in the Republican party, that it needed no tidal wave of progressiveness to sweep him away from the haven of nomination when he sought that haven in a state which had enjoyed and appreciated the services of a man like the late Senator Dolliver.

And last of all, this movement of progressivism is not a tidal wave, but a growth and change of the current in the river of American public life. A tidal wave comes suddenly, but this has been gradual. Its sweep and power are such that it is rooting out the structures of deceit and special privilege that had been reared on the old sand-formed banks of the stream, and will not stop short of the rock-marked boundaries of the new channel.

Former Senator Young will remain a "former" senator because he failed to recognize the patriotism and popularity of the music that was ringing from the band wagon, and did not tune his own fiddle to harmonize with that music. Considering his political affiliations and expressions, he received just what was approaching him, to modify the vernacular, and any talk about the result being due to Taft's defeat in New Jersey or Ohio or any other one or two states is pure rubbish.

Oh, what is so safe as a soundless keynote?

By the way, why not start a campaign to reduce the high cost of investigations?

Reliable reports say it costs six dollars to give a United States senator a bath. Mr. Lorimer of Illinois laid out more than that for one of the immunity kind, and even then it didn't take.

FOOD MONOPOLIES

By SAVOYARD.

"Malefactors of great wealth" in America and in Europe entered into a conspiracy to nullify the law of supply and demand in the matter of coffee, and in contempt and defiance of law, to levy what is tantamount to a tax on every pound of coffee used in any American household. The government of Brazil joined in the intrigue and not only abused the comity that should maintain among nations, but literally violated a law of the United States. The department of justice sued the whole pack and seeks the seizure of some 1,000,000 bags of cofee withdrawn from the channels of trade to promote monopoly and augment the dirty profits of the miscreants who employ vast wealth to dominate the market and oppress the people.

Joseph H. Choate, the fancy lawyer of monopoly, says the controversy is not for the courts, but for the diplomats, that our courts are powerless when the laws are violated by an alien government. No doubt Mr. Choate has read that as late as the eighteenth century such an act as Brazil is guilty of would be settled, not by courts or diplomats, but by armies and navies.

The government of Great Britain had the legal right to levy stamp duties on the thirteen colonies. The revenue sought was insignificant, not as much in a year as this coffee trust levies on the American people in a day; but the act on the part of the British government, legal as it was, occasioned a war that dismembered the British empire. Not only is there no right in law or morals for this act of Brazil in levying the coffee tax on our people, but it is an invasion of our country with the dellberate purpose that has been ten thousand times consummated to violate our laws.

It looks to the layman as if the only thing before the court is to adjudicate whether a foreign government has the right to appoint its agents and send them into our country commissioned to violate our laws. In its effects the action of Brazil in this coffee case is as indefensible and oppressive as Napoleon's Berlin decree. The French emperor sought to abolish markets for English goods: the Brazil republic has seized the American market for coffee, arbitrarily regulates the supply and greedily fixes the price.

A few weeks ago I was amused to read what a standpat senator said about coffee and the tariff. I do not recall whether it was Smoot, or Crane or Alden Smith; but it was a standpatter, and he had made the discovery that repealing the tariff on coffee did not reduce the price to the consumer. Of course it did not, for the coffee crop is monopolized by a syndicate having millions at command and able to do with th emarket whatever it sees fit.

And that reminds me that about forty years ago old Pig Iron Kelley was alarmed lest a surplus in the treasury should make a clamor for a repeal of tariff taxation, and that he brought in a bill to put coffee on the free list. The tax on it was for revenue only and he hated as well as dreaded that sort of tax. He made the most delicious speech you ever heard about "free breakfast table" for the poor unconsciously admitting that the tariff is a tax, which your standpatter will vociferously deny. Pig Iron's free breakfast table was free coffee, free tea, and free pepper. Everything else was taxed—meats, fowls, fish, bread, vegetables, sugar, salt, milk, butter, and so on. The table was taxed, the chairs, the table linen, the dishes, the cups and saucers, knives and forks—everything but coffee tea and pepper. Now, isn't it a delicious speech that would argue that "a free breakfast table?"

Well, old Pig Iron got his bill through. There was no coffee trust then and the slogan was cheaper coffee. In the senate was George F. Edmunds, himself a rabid protectionist, but not crazy on the subject. He opposed the bill, saying the title ought to be amended, for it was a measure to grant a subsidy paid out of our treasury to the coffee-grower of South America; that as soon as we took the tariff duty off coffee—then three cents a pound, perhaps—Brazil and Venezuela would levy an export tax of three cents a pound, and that revenue we were then collecting would be lost to us and collected and utllized by an alien government.

But the fear of a surplus and resulting clamor for a curtailment of protection prevailed. Edmunds and the Democrats were overwhelmed. Our tariff duty was repealed and Brazil and Venezuela did precisely what Edmunds predicted they would do—imposed an export duty of 3 cents a pound on coffee. Our treasury lost millions, and Brazil and Venezuela gained what we lost. The price of coffee to the American consumer remained the same, for the tax was the same, only the revnu derivd from it was shifted from our treasury to Brazil's and Venezuela's.

When the Wilson tariff was in committee in 1894 Benton McMillin had charge of the income tax feature. Some good Democrats insisted that it would be a law-suit, as it was, which the people lost when the tax was declared unconstitutional. And here let it be remarked that it was not Mr. Justice Shiras who changed his opinion about it, as was so cruelly charged and is so generally believed. Benton was urged to put the tax on tea and coffee and increase the tax on alcohol in beer, which then, as now, was less than the tax on the alcohol in whisky.

But the proposal to tax incomes was too popular to be resisted and it went into the bill, that got into the courts, and the tax was knocked out. There is pending before the states an amendment to the Constitution providing for the taxation of incomes; but it appears to be nobody's business, and it will be in the nature of the miraculous if it shall be ratified, though nine-tenths of the people favor it.

When we get the coffee trust busted, if we do, there are some other food trusts that need atntion. Cold storag, that ought to be a blessing, is a curse. In one city there is said to be eggs, to the quantity of 10,000,000 cases, now in cold storage, taken out of the market to maintain exorbitant prices. There is talk among poultry fanciers of the hen that will lay 300 eggs a year. What if she does? It only means that more eggs will be taken from the market to become unfit for human food.

Only the other day in one of our cities a scow load of excellent asparagus was taken out in the bay and dumped into the water to maintain prices. Every summer and fall, sound vegetables are destroyed here in Washington where there are hundreds, perhaps thousands, of hungry women and children. There are millions of pounds of butter in cold storage, put there to enable the buter trust to oppress the people. The same is true of fruits, of meats, of fish. We are importing potatoes because the monopolists who control the market for that vegetable deliberately allowed tens of thousands of bushels of them to freeze last winter lig order to maintain prices.

That is why the country is in turmoil industrially, financially, economically, politically. And it's going to take a statesman the wisest world has yet seen, and one of the strongest men the world ever saw, to evolve reform and tranquillity out of this situation without a bloody convulsion.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

"IT'S COOL IN DULUTH."

To the Editor of The Herald:

Contrary to the usual custom, I am not a kicker in this instance but a suggester and I offer my suggestion for what you may consider it worth. Here we have a city full of delegates from all parts of the state, who are attending the state Democratic convention, and who will go home and suffer from heat in their various communities and wish they were back in Duluth. Now why not impress the fact upon them so that it will reach others that Duluth beats the world for a summer climate. We have been telling everybody in every way we could that "It's Cool in Duluth." Here is an opportunity to make every visitor tell it to everybody at his home. Suppose the Commercial club, or the Greater Duluth club or some other organization should get out buttons or badges to be distributed to these delegates with that statement upon it, "It's Cool in Duluth," don't you suppose it would have a fine advertising effect. And the wearer would indorse the statement and supplement it by telling of his pleasure while here. Let's try it anyway. A THOROUGH DULUTHIAN.

Duluth, June 5.

DRAWING ON ONE'S RESOURCES.

Christian Science Monitor: To any one looking over the files of old newspapers one of the great contrasts that they present to those of today is the absence of items about athletic sports. If we look at a Boston or New York newspaper of the '60s one will see plenty of stuff that is interesting and some of it even more today than when it was written, but he will not see many announcements of ball games and tennis matches. He will look in vain for the achievemnts of the golfer and the footballer and he will get the general impression that men in those days did without athletics. Perhaps they did as well and perhaps they did not, but one feature that is to be noticed today is that there seems to be more amusement in the sense that there are more distractions, yet we can hardly class an amusement as an athletic exercise. Men that have thought a good deal about such things, especially as they bear upon insuring wholesome schemes of living for young men, have pointed out that a large audience at a baseball game or a football match by no means represents a large number of those that themselves take a reasonable amount of harmless exercise. President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard University has always made this contention, if we do not mistake; and his opinion is a valuable one. The argument of those that share his views is that if more average men, in college and out, took what reasonable exercise they could, the result would be more symmetrical than if the work were committed to deputies in the shape of college and non-collegiate teams. There are two sides to a question and there are two extremes to what is called "athletic exercise;" nobody that knows the facts can contend that men devoted to athletic exercise by any means display the results that it is supposed to give, but on the other hand, there is quite as marked an extravagance in abstention from all forms of exercise save that which literally cannot be avoided. Men are not machines, but neither are they jellyfish.

The point, however, that we make is that mere distraction or amusement can be a good thing at certain times, but cannot of itself be an admirable thing; and we cannot but think that where men have resources in themselves, whether for thought or action or both, there they will in most cases find their paths easier. The reader understands that we do not ask the hard-working man to spend time that he cannot spare, but if the average man examined the time spent by himself literally in doing nothing he would be surprised into admitting that if he had not leisure for Shakespeare and the musical glasses at least he could find enough to walk a couple of miles.

Mangling of the Bosses.

Current Literature: A campaign unique in our history draws to its close strewn with the wrecks of many a machine and the mangled remains of many a boss. The preferential primary has shown us what it can do in its Herculean infancy, and there is almost as much discussion of its merits and demerits as there is of the many candidates for the presidential nomination.

Barnes and Murphy, in New York state, still hold the steering wheel of their uninjured motor cars; but in Pennsylvania Penrose and Guffy, in Illinois, Lorimer and Sullivan flounder in the ditch with their legs waving in the air in frantic protetst. In Maryland and Massachusetts and elsewhere similar results are seen.

The members of the "old guard" have found that a new game is being played. How long it will take them to master it remains to be seen; but their temporary defeat is rather startling. In elation over this result, the prediction is made that the preferential primary will, before another presidential campaign, become general throughout the country, and that the political conventions held this year will be the last we shall ever see for the nomination of presidential candidates. They will become as obsolete, it is said, as torchlight processions.

The Coming Child.

A mother sews for her coming child
Shapes tiny and soft and undefiled.
With many a stitch of love and care.
With many a dream of all things fair,
She sews his covering to prepare.

The world is making his garments, too;
Has fashioned the same the ages through.
With many a stitch of law and greed,
With many a thread of sin and need,
It makes him an early shroud, indeed.

The world is strong in the ballot's might;
Unarmed the mother to wage a fight.
Mere hope is futile and trusting vain,
For not till she helps to rule and reign
Shall over the babe his own attain.
—McLandburgh Wilson in Judge.

Where Was That Hat?

Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph: Three friends, who had all been operated on for appendicitis about the same period, met for the first time since their sufferings and began comparing notes.

"Yes," said No. 1, "I had beastly luck! The doctor had to operate again, because he found he had left a sponge inside the first time."

No. 2 promptly capped this.

"That's nothing," he said. "My doctor left a pair of forceps inside me!"

No. 3 rose to his feet. He was pallid and trembling as he rushed toward the door in frantic haste.

"What's wrong?" asked his friends.

"N—nothing," he stammered; "only I've just remembered that as I came round my doctor said something about having mislaid his hat."

The Unfair Minister.

Chicago Post: "Why did you and that young minister quarrel?" asked the friend.

"He was nice enough in many ways, but he was so horribly jealous and unfair," says the fair damsel to whom the young divine had been paying serious attention.

"Jealous, perhaps—and naturally," smiles the friend. "But unfair?"

"Yes. Every time I would make an engagement for a moonlight walk or an afternoon stroll with some other man he would pray for rain."

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1892.

A. E. Humphreys and wife returned yesterday from Charleston, S. C., accompanied by William Boyd of Ripley, Ohio.

Fielder B. Chew, who has been in Washington, sailed yesterday from New York for Paris to visit a nephew for about two weeks.

Mrs. Charles Luddington of Morley, Mich., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boyd.

H. R. Fish, Jr., of the Phoenix Electric company has returned from a trip to New York and Boston.

Miss Mamie Murphy of Minneapolis has arrived to spend the summer with her cousin, Miss Mae Murphy.

The will of John J. Costello, which was filed for probate today, disposes of an estate valued at about $150,000. After disposing of some small legacies, the will gives one-third of the estate to the widow and the remainder to the six children.

Paul Bruno and Assunta Cervi and J. A. Funix and Lillian Storey received marriage licenses today.

At a meeting of the school board the annual report of the visiting committee was presented by the chairman, Rev. E. M. Noyes. Its principal feature was a recommendation that there be one long morning session instead of the morning and afternoon sessions of the schools. Directors Pearson and Codding and Supt. Denfeld were appointed to go to Chicago and purchase the apparatus for the laboratory and manual training department of the high school.

Work on the pavilion at the head of the incline railroad on Seventh avenue west has been started. The Clyde Iron works received the contract for the iron work.

J. Fletcher Williams of St. Paul, secretary of the state historical society, is in Duluth.

The Republican national convention will open at Minneapolis today. J. Sloat Fassett of New York has been selected by the national committee as temporary chairman.

At the meeting of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad director this morning, J. L. Greatsinger was unanimously elected president and will continue as general manager. Mr. Greatsinger and J. H. Chandler of Chicago were elected directors to fill vacancies on the board.

The last issue of the Review of Reviews contains an article on the Duluth ship canal proecjt, the facts for which were given to Dr. Shaw, the editor, by Secretary Thompson of the chamber of commerce. It contains one fact which has not been very extensively advertised. In the year 1891 over 1,100 more vessels passed through the Duluth canal and three times as many went through the Soo canal than passed through the Suez canal in the year 1890.

THE EXTRA SESSION.

Nor Going.

Cass Lake Times: Eberhart's eleventh hour extra session is so palpably a boost for the governor, we have no thanks coming.

Second Choice Needed.

Clearwater Crystal: When the Smith-Eberhart machine saw the radical sentiment of the representatives at the recent state convention, they began to realize what they were going to be up against when the Republican party was to select a state ticket and they speedily put together and arranged a program that, while extravagant as many of the administration's policies, offers at least one more chance to the governor of landing the nomination; the splitting up of the opposition. If the state-wide primary law passes, the people will likely divide their strength between several progressive candidates, while the men who are with the machine will stand by Eberhart to a man.

Too Late.

Pine River Sentinel: It's too bad that Governor Eberhart couldn't have called the special session of the legislature months ago when the people wanted it, instead of just as this time, for the sole purpose of extracting himself from a rotten political situation. And even now he overlooks the gross earnings tax, which was one of the main "bones of contention" along with reapportionment. La, la, what a governor (?) we have.

Docile to Whom?

Wahkon Enterprise: The Republican state convention gave Governor Ebersmith the scare of his life and he is now as docile as a kitten, willing to call the legislature in extra session to take up much needed questions of legislation.

Changed His Mind.

Hutchinson Leader: Eberhart persistently opposed the state-wide primary all during the last session of the legislature and has ever since. An "emergency" now arises which causes him to convene the legislature in special session to pass such a law. What is that "emergency"? Merely a political situation unfavorable to his own personal ambitions. His private secretary is quoted as saying, "the state convention put up a bluff, and we called it. Being the only Scandinavian in the list of aspirants for the Republican nomination Eberhart and his advisers think they see in the state-wide primary a chance to pull a renomination out of the multiplicity of candidates more easily than it could be done in the convention. Thus is politics as played by the Ed Smith-Eberhart crowd—and the people foot the bills.

The People's Hope.

Willow River Farmer: If the people of Minnesota could act directly in the matter, they most certainly would provide for a state-wide primary with second choice provisions; for an increase of railroad taxes; for an equitable reapportionment law, and for the initiative, referendum and the recall. The people want and demand these laws. If our Solans come marching home from the "extraordinary session" without having acted fair and favorably on these propositions, a lot of Lycurguses will arise and cut their selonic heads off.

One Reason for It.

Waseca Herald: There is just one reason, and only one, why Governor Eberhart has called an extra session of the legislature. He hopes to secure a renomination by means of a primary law. The sentiments expressed by delegates to the Republican state convention last week showed that a large majority of the members of his party was opposed to the renomination of the governor. Under those conditions, there was no possibility of his renomination in convention. But with four or more gubernatorial candidates in a primary race, the state machine hopes to secure a plurality for Eberhart and thus land the nomination. It then becomes plainly evident that self-preservation, politically, was the impelling motive for the call.

Walking Papers.

Sandstone Courier: Governor Eberhart was forced into calling an extra session of the legislature by the state Republican convention and thereby signed his own walking papers. He might have been nominated under the old system, but he would never be elected. Under the preferential primary, he will not receive a nomination as the people of the state are thoroughly tired of the Smith-Eberhart machine. Good-bye, Fortunatus, we're glad to see your back.

Girl is a Suffrage Martyr.

New York Papers: Woman suffrage in New York has a martyr. She is Miss Aimee Hutchinson, a young school teacher. Suffragists are united in fighting for her reinstatement as an instructor in a church school, a position Miss Hutchinson lost, she asserts, because she marched in the recent suffragist parade.

"I am sorry to lose my position," said Miss Hutchinson, "because it meant so much to me, but I would parade again under the same conditions."

Mrs. Harriett Stanton Blatch, grand marshal of the recent parade, is directing the campaign for Miss Hutchinson.

"Miss Hutchinson is our first martyr," she declared. "We will do our utmost to see that she loses nothing by this sacrifice she has made to uphold her principles. There were several who told us their employes threatened them with dismissal if they paraded, but Miss Hutchinson is the only one who really has suffered such a loss through asserting her right to think and act for what she believes to be right."

Here's a Good Job.

Sheboygan (Mich.) Journal: Wanted—Young wife, age from 20 to 30 years, for a well-to-do elderly gentleman. One who can learn to run an automobile. No housework.

The City Beautiful.

Manasquan (N. J.) News: The fire hydrants have been painted during the past few days. They give the town a nice, bright appearance.

CHAMP CLARK.

Collier's: The duty of opposing so genial and popular a figure as the Hon. Beauchamp Clark in his desire to be president is an ungrateful one. It is, however, one which, desiring both parties to put their most suitable candidate forward, we cannot escape. Clark's "break" about reciprocity was not an accident. It was characteristic. As far back as 1893 he said: "There are two pieces of ground on the North American continent that I want to see annexed to the United States. One is Cuba and the other is every foot of British North American possession, no matter how far north they extend." One of his pet ideas is shown in the following quotation: "Abolish the diplomatic corps. It never was useful and sometimes it has not been even ornamental." We have several times pointed out that Mr. Clark has never shown as much interest in any important bill as he has in getting offices for his supporters, pensions for voters and government appropriations for his neighborhood. The state of mind is accompanied by an intense hostility to any reduction in the spoils system. Here is an expression: "The civil service system is the greatest and most monumental fraud ever adopted or proposed in a civilized country." So great is his belief in the power of local interest that he said: "Give us as much coddling for three years as Indiana and Ohio, to say nothing of New York, have received annually for a quarter of a century, and the youngest child now slumbering on his mother's breast though he should double-discount the remarkable age of Methuselah wouldn't live long enough to see another Republican president elected west of the Wabash river." What he desired was frankly stated thus: "We want true civil service accomplished by placing only Democrats on guard from Martha's vineyard to the Aleutian Islands, and from the Lake of the Woods to the Dry Tortugas." One of the reasons for his violence toward Grover Cleveland was Cleveland's failure to use all of his appointments to strengthen his own party. "On March 6, 1893, in his first official act, he startled all the Democrats in the land and a great many Republicans by appointing to the highest office within his gift a sore-headed Republican. According to his mugwumpish notions he could not find within the confines of the republic a Democrat fit to be secretary of state." Bible gains, added interest from the Clark's famous statement about Cleveland and a certain character in the Bible gains added interest from the present close alliance between Clark and Hearst. Hearst having been busy lately likening Woodrow Wilson to this same Judas. Clark said: "There are but two men in all the hoary registers of time that Cleveland's name ought to be associated with—Judas Iscariot and Benedict Arnold. Shades of Arnold, forgive the profanation. I ought to beg pardon of Judas Iscariot because after his treason he did have the grace to go out and hang himself. It is sickening to think of Cleveland." The alliance between Clark and Hearst is also amusing in view of the mean and unconscientious distortion that Hearst is accomplishing with Woodrow Wilson's convictions about immigration. Clark's views on immigration are as follows:

"I believe that the wise position to take with reference to the matter is to adopt an educational test that will largely eliminate the races from the Mediterranean Europe and will not interfere to any material extent with the races of northern Europe coming in here—races of whom we can make good citizens."

There are things to say about Mr. Clark of greater importance. These, however, illustrate our conviction that the speaker, however amiable, however good a mixer, and however satisfactory to politicians, to big business, and to William Randolph Hearst, is scarcely a man to lead a successful revolt against a party which can be overcome only by the capture of several of the largest northern states that usually go Republican in presidential years—a party which includes in its ranks a large majority of the ablest Progressives now prominent in the public eye.

The Minister's Lot.

Meredith Nicholson in the Atlantic: A minister's is indubitably the hardest imaginable lot. Every one criticizes him. He is abused for illiberality or, seeking to be all things to all men, he is abused for consorting with sinners. His door-bell tinkles hourly, and he must answer the behest of people he doesn't know, to marry or bury people he never heard of. He is expected to preach eloquently, to augment his flock, to keep a hand on the Sunday school, to sit on platforms in the interest of all good causes, and to bear himself with discretion amid the tortuous mazes of church and secular politics. There seem to be, in churches of all kinds, ambitious pontiffs—lay popes—possessed of an ambition to hold both their fellow laymen and their meek, long-suffering minister in subjection. Why any one should wish to be a church boss I do not know; and yet the supremacy is sometimes won after a struggle that has afforded the keenest delight to the cynical Smiths on the outside. One must view these internecine wars more in sorrow than in anger. They certainly contribute not a little to popular distrust of the church as a conservator of love and peace.

THE LAST THING THAT AMOS WANTED WAS CHOW —By C. L. SHERMAN

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: JUNE 9.

Luke vi, 39-49: Hearing and Doing.

CONNECTION.

We have the closing words of the Sermon on the Mount, in the abridged form, reported by Luke. Matthew's report is very similar. The habit of posing as teachers and indulging in censoriousness was very common and Jesus tries to correct it. In fact, almost all of the teachings of this sermon are addressed to wrong ideas and practices that were current among the people and especially among the officials.

LESSON.

I.

Correct Yourself Before Correcting Others. 39-42.

"And he spake also a parable unto them, Can the blind guide the blind? shall they not both fall into a pit? The disciple is not above his teacher: but every one when he is perfected shall be as his teacher. And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Or how canst thou say to thy brother, Brother, let me cast out the mote that is in thine eye, when thou thyself beholdest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, cast out first the beam out of thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote that is in thy brother's eye."

1. BLINDNESS.—We have a saying that there is none so blind as he who will not see. One will not be apt to surpass one's teacher, except in evil. Matthew speaks of false prophets, or teachers, while Luke simply refers to them as guides. They parade in their pretensions like wolves in sheep's clothing. Jesus warns His own disciples that they may be blind and then their efforts to guide their followers will be like the effort of a blind man in guiding another blind man through that hilly country that is full of limestone pits. If the teacher is blind the disciple will not see any better. This is a solemn and needed warning for all leaders, religious and otherwise, because each is beset with the temptation to shut his eyes to truths that are disagreeable to him or fail to show him off to his satisfaction.

2. SELF-DECEPTION.—This is a carpenter's illustration. The man who is always noticing the faults of others which are little, like the mote which can scarcely be seen, as it floats in the sunlight, is sure to have something the matter with his own eye, something in it as big as the beam of a house. Is he always a hypocrite? Jesus calls him such. There is the morbid egotist who thinks that any one who fails to agree with him arrays himself against the truth. He is diseased; yet he is a hypocrite just the same. The man who thinks he is his political party; the one who imagines he is the sole interpreter of God's mind, as revealed in the Bible, or as communicated by His Spirit—these are morbid egotists, self-deceived and sure of a fall.

II.

You Show What is in You. 43-45.

"For there is no good tree that bringeth forth corrupt fruit; nor again a corrupt tree that bringeth forth good fruit. For each tree is known by its own fruit. For of thorns men do not gather figs, nor of a bramble bush gather they grapes. The good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is good; and the evil man out of the evil treasure bringeth forth that which is evil: for out of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh."

1. TREES.—No tree, of itself, bears two contrasted kinds of products, like thorns and figs, or grapes and the thorns of the bramble. This is so true a fact that it seems almost puerile to refer to it. But let that fact teach something more important.

2. HEARTS.—A heart that is good produces deeds that are good. That is the first fact about the heart. The next fact is that the volume of good depends on the amount of good stored up in the heart. The better the heart the better the life, as shown through its deeds.

III.

Your Foundations Must be Right. 46-49.

"And why call ye Me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say? Every one that cometh unto Me, and heareth My words and doeth them, I will show you to whom he is like: he is like a man building a house, who digged and went deep, and laid a foundation upon the rock: and when a flood arose, the stream brake against that house, and could not shake it: because it had been well builded. But he that heareth, and doeth not, is like a man that built a house upon the earth without a foundation; against which the stream brake, and straightway it fell in; and the ruin of that house was great."

1. BUILDERS.—The foregoing principles apply to every member of the kingdom as well as to teachers. All are builders, erecting the house of life, which is to be home of peace and school of learning and temple of worship. That is one of Paul's favorite figures. He said the body is a temple for the residence of God's Spirit. In the earlier words of our lesson Jesus condemned the hypocrite who pretended to be better than he really was; here He condemns the superficial in contrast with the substantial. In the former case He used the figure of a servant; in this, the figure of a builder.

2. OBEDIENCE.—The essential thing in the case of the servant and the builder was that they should follow instructions exactly—with perfect obedience.

The two builders were alike in that they built. That's what we all do, whatever be our motive, our object or the material with which we build. The two might have used the same kind of material. They had equal opportunity to choose place and plan and carry out their purpose. They differed in one essential thing—in making their work secure with a foundation. Why one of them failed to put in an adequate foundation we are not informed. It was obstinate ignorance or stupid indifference or vicious rebellion. They were alike in having their work tested by the storm—the whole work tested. The top was tried by the downpouring rain; the sides by furious winds; the foundation by the raging, rushing floods. The builder knew something of the habits of winds and waters, at least the perils from them. He knew that in that country the steep sides of the mountains bring streams together in raging moods before one can think; river beds can be filled up with torrents in a few minutes after a storm breaks loose. It was only a fool, or worse, who would run such risks.

Yet men are daily running that same risk in building the house of life or any other foundation than "Christ, the solid Rock." Christ is the rock on which life is to be built. More—He is the model after which and the material with which we must build. His word enables us to appropriate Him and our treatment of His sayings is our treatment of Himself and therefore of ourselves. It was very important, in Palestine that a builder should dig and dig till he found solid rock; it is vitally necessary that we rest not till we are built on "nothing less than Jesus' blood and righteousness." When the house of life falls it is indeed a great fall, for all is invested in it and nothing can be done without it. That lost, all is lost. We can imagine the solemnity with which Jesus closed these words and we are told of the impression they made.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

This, then, is the solemn lesson of this part of our passage: the life, the test of the heart; conduct, the test of character. Not profession, but practice, not orthodoxy of creed, but orthodoxy of heart; not words in Christ's name, but works in Christ's name; not 'Lord! Lord!' but a Christly life; not leaves, but fruits—this is the only passport which the King of men will recognize at the gate of heaven."—Boardman.

When the Eddystone lighthouse was to be rebuilt, Winstanley, the noted engineer, contracted to rear a structure which should withstand the assaults of time and tempests. So confident was his faith in the showy structure of his own skill, that he offered to lodge in it with the keeper, through the autumnal gales. He was true to his word. But the tremendous tempest which caught the flimsy lighthouse in the hollow of its hand, hurled both building and builder into the foaming sea. We fear that too many souls are rearing their hopes for eternity upon the sands of error; when the testing floods come, and the winds beat upon their house, it will fall, and sad will be the fall thereof.—Cuyler.

BEGGING MEALS AT COUNTY JAIL

Axel Borg, widely known in Duluth as a panhandler of persistent tendencies, and who has lived most of the last year in the county jail, is likely to go back there today for a short sojourn on the charge of vagrancy. His stunt this time took on the unusual feature of trying to "bum" a meal from those in charge of the kitchen at the county jail. His many visits and stays at the jail have made Borg well acquainted with the inhabitants and those in charge.

It was reported to the police that he was visiting all of the houses in the vicinity of the jail and trying to get money and things to eat. When the police appeared in the vicinity it was found that Borg was in the county jail kitchen and he was taken from there much against his will.

Borg is the man who a few days ago was arrested for stealing $5 from 702 West Third street. As nobody appeared against him he was allowed to go. He claimed that the people in the house owed him that much and he took that method of collecting.

NOTES OF BOYS' DEPARTMENT

The Boys' department for Saturday will be to the Jean Duluth farm. Each boy will take his lunch and carfare. The party will meet at the Boys' building Saturday morning at 10 o'clock and take the car to the end of the Woodland line and hike from there to the farm. The West Duluth Boys' club will meet at their club rooms Saturday morning at 9:30 and start from there, meeting the Boys' Department members at Twenty-fourth avenue east and Fourth street.

* * *

All the boys with cameras are asked to meet at the Boys' building Friday night to organize a Camera club. A dark room will be fitted up and the boys will do their own printing and developing. The club will be the official photographers for all the trips this summer, and an exhibit of their work will be shown each week on the bulletin board.

The medals, badges, banners, etc., that have been won by Duluth boys in the Boys' Exposition and Interscholastic Field meet will be presented some evening next week.

The Boys' Department Cabinet will hold its farewell meeting next Monday.

O'GORMAN FOR CHAIRMAN.

Suggested as Temporary Officer at Baltimore.

New York, June 6.—The names of United States Senator James O'Gorman of New York and probably those of one or two others will be considered for the office of temporary chairman of the Democratic national convention by the committee of arrangements at its meeting in Baltimore on June 18 or 20.

Senator O'Gorman's name was presented at a previous meeting, but it was thought advisable not to make any choice until all the delegates to the convention had been chosen by the states. It was the feeling of the Democratic leaders on the national committee that a temporary chairman should not prepare his keynote speech until the Republican national convention was well along with its work, and it could be seen what the Democratic opposition should do on the question of issues and candidates.

The work of the Democratic national committee at Baltimore is not expected to take long, as only a few contests have been filed with Secretary Woodson.

DISEASES COST THE COUNTRY $772,892,850.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 6.—At the American Medical association a report to be presented to the national government was read showing that illness among industrial workers costs the United States $772,892,850 in economic loss and cost of medical attention. It is claimed that at least 25 per cent of this enormous waste can be saved by proper protection of workers.

BATTLESHIP'S TRIAL RUN "MOST SUCCESSFUL."

Rockland, Me., June 6.—As if to confirm the builders' statement that the battleship Arkansas was not seriously damaged when she touched an uncharted reef near Two Bush island Sunday night, the vessel on her standardization runs yesterday covered one mile at the rate of 21.9 knots an hour. She averaged 21½ knots for her five fastest runs. The board of inspection pronounced the trial a most successful one.

ARMY TEST UNDER WAY

Important Maneuvers Begun Near Dubuque By 2,000 Men.

Invasion of "Hostile" Region in Wisconsin Planned Next Week.

Dubuque, Iowa, June 6.—With an imaginary hostile army just across the Mississippi river, either in Wisconsin or Illinois, Col. Getty and 2,000 trained soldiers of the United States army are encamped on a plateau just south of Dubuque.

It is a provisional or experimental army or regiment, brought together to test new equipment, means of transportation and other experiments. The first battalion came from Fort Snelling at St. Paul, Minn., and was under command of Maj. Lindsay of the Twenty-eighth infantry. Fort Brady at Chippewa, Mich., sent part of a battalion, while the rest of the battalion is made up of Companies E, F and G of the Fourth infantry at Fort Crook, Omaha, Neb. The Third battalion came from the Twenty-seventh infantry at Fort Sheridan at Chicago.

Over 2,000 Men.

The three battalions make up what is said to be the largest and finest equipped regiment of regulars ever mobilized in the United States, and with the machine gun company orderlies and others, will total more than 2,000 men.

Accompanying each battalion from Forts Snelling, Sheridan and Crook comes a platoon of machine guns, making a complete machine gun company of 66 men and six guns.

The mobilization of the troops at Dubuque is regarded by military men as one of the most important movements ever begun by the war department, and army officers throughout the service are watching with interest the outcome of the experiments that are to be made, not only with the use of the automobile truck in maintaining a line of communication with the base of supplies, but also the testing of other equipment that may revolutionize the whole organization of the United States army.

Auto Truck vs. Army Mule.

Chief in this experimental work is the testing of the ability of the automobile truck to deliver the goods and replace the army mule as a means of transportation. But the army mule has not by any means been abolished in these experiments. He will be present, and on his presence will depend the success or failure of the automobile. The intention is to transport supplies between Dubuque and the regiment at all times by auto truck.

During the present week these troops will engage themselves as though going into actual warfare. They will have scouting parties out in all directions, and camp orders will be as stringent as though actual warfare were on.

Will "Invade" Wisconsin.

Some day the first of next week the army purposes moving across the Mississippi river into the "enemy's country" for a march to Sparta, Wis., by way of Madison, Wis. All the time the army will move as though in an enemy's territory, having spies and scouting parties in advance. Bridges will be tested and the situation of the possible "mines" explored.

Arriving at the national practice grounds at Sparta, the troops will go through maneuvers for several weeks to determine the value of new equipment.

A number of army experts are here taking in every detail of the work. It is said that a number of representatives of foreign armies will be on the ground also.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

MASONS AT MINOT, N. D.

First Grand Lodge Ever Held Outside of Fargo and Grand Forks.

Other Masonic Bodies Also Meet in Magic City Beginning June 18.

Minot, N. D., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grand lodge and the grand chapter of Masons of North Dakota will hold their annual meetings here June 18 to 20, and the grand chapter of the Eastern Star June 20 and 21. Plans for the several gatherings are well in hand.

This meeting will be the first held in any city in the state outside of Grand Forks or Fargo.

West lodge No. 33 is host to the grand lodge of Masons. The sessions of the first day will be given over to an address by Grand Master Robert Morrison, and the reports of the other grand officers and committees. On Wednesday the special committees will report, and the election and installation of officers will take place.

Three lodges under dispensation probably will ask for charters at Rolette, Erie and Walworth. Lodges are to be organized at Manmarth, Glen Ullin and Litchville during the coming year

Bismarck Wants Chapter.

At the meeting of the chapter of the Royal Arch Masons a petition will be received asking for dispensation to organize a chapter at Bismarck.

The Order of Eastern Star meeting will be interesting, as there are a number of features to be taken up. On the evening of the first day, the ritualistic work will be carried out by the officers.

Another meeting that will be held at Minot will be that of the Veteran Masons' association. Its meeting will be held immediately at the close of the grand lodge session.

GIVEN PAUPER'S GRAVE.

Former Social Leader, Widow of Minnesotan, Dies Alone.

Rochester, Minn., June 6.—With but a single bunch of roses on her casket, and but one to stand at her grave, Mrs. Jean Whitcomb, wife of a former state auditor of Minnesota, adventuress and social leader, was buried in a pauper's grave at Blackwell's island in New York city, on May 29, according to word received in Rochester, where she at one time lived and was well known. Mrs. Whitcomb was the widow of O. P. Whitcomb, a former treasurer of Olmsted county and later state auditor.

Following the death of Mr. Whitcomb, she went abroad, returning to New York at frequent intervals. Her last trip across the water, about a year ago, marked the thirty-seventh crossing of the Atlantic.

Until illness incapacitated her, three years ago, Mrs. Whitcomb devoted most of her time to the introduction of young women into society in London and Paris.

"By George, I never saw anything like the effects of that new treatment, Protone, for the building up of weight and lost nerve force. It acted more like a miracle than a medicine," said a well-known gentleman yesterday in speaking of the revolution that had taken place in his condition. "I began to think that there was nothing on earth that could make me fat. I tried tonics, digestives, heavy eating, diets, milk, beer, and almost everything else you could think of, but without result. I had been thin for years, and began to think it was natural for me to be that way. Finally, I read about the remarkable successes brought about by the use of Protone, so I decided to try it myself. Well, when I look at myself in the mirror now, I think it is somebody else. I have put on just 20 pounds during the last month and never felt stronger or more 'nervy' in my life."

ONTONAGON TO HAVE $50,000 SCHOOL

AS STRUCTURE WILL LOOK WHEN COMPLETED.

Ontonagon, Mich., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Plans have been completed by Architect Derrick Hubert of Menominee, for the new $50,000 school for this village. The contract has been let and work started. The building will be heated by steam and ventilated in the most improved manner. The sanitary equipment will be the most modern. There will be fire lines with hose and hose reels on each floor. The building will be 134 by 73 feet, three stories without any basement, and of red vitrified brick and light colored Bedford stone. The total cost with equipment will be about $50,000.

MANY ACCUSED ARE SENTENCED

Lots of Indians and Half-Breeds Arraigned at Eau Claire.

Eau Claire, Wis., June 6.—Fifteen persons, most of them Indians or half-breeds and among them three women, were arraigned before Judge Sanborn in the federal court here yesterday, all charged with introducing liquor on to an Indian reservation. The three women were sent to the house of correction in addition to being fined; four men were given jail terms in the Eau Claire county jail and also fines and one man was sent to the house of correction. A number of sentences were suspended.

The fifteen cases were disposed of as follows:

Joe Wan in No din pleaded guilty but sentence was suspended.

Lizzie Current pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

Pat La Grew, pleaded guilty; fined $100 and sentenced to sixty days in the Eau Claire county jail.

Frank Bear, pleaded guilty; sentence suspended.

Annie Howard, pleaded guilty; fined $100 and sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

Kate Donemie, pleaded guilty; fined $100, and sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

Edward Ervine, pleaded guilty; sentence suspended.

Sam P. Marksmen, peaded guilty; sentence suspended.

Antoine Smart, pleaded guilty; sentence suspended.

Tom Dennis, pleaded guilty; sentence suspended.

Frank E. Bresette, pleaded guilty; sentence suspended.

Joseph Current, pleaded guilty; fined $100 and sentenced to ninety days in the Eau Claire county jail.

Joe Roy, pleaded guilty; fined $100 and sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

Charles Erickson, pleaded guilty; sentenced to thirty days in Eau Claire county jail and fined $100, but fine was suspended.

Charles Newman, pleaded guilty; fined $100 and sentenced to sixty days in Eau Claire county jail.

Many Indian Witnesses.

Ashland, Wis., June 6.—That the federal government is going to make an effort to convict those alleged to have supplied Indians in this section with liquor was evident yesterday when two carloads of Indians and some whites were sent to Eau Claire, where a federal grand jury and federal court are in session. The Indians were from the Odanah Red Cliff reservation and the white men are largely saloonkeepers or others who are under indictment for taking liquor upon the reservations.

Most of the Indians are going down to Eau Claire as witnesses to furnish evidence.

FAVORS STOPPING SUNDAY BASEBALL

North Dakota Christian Endeavorers Uphold Grand Forks Preachers.

Grafton, N. D., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The convention of the Christian Endeavor society of the Pembina presbytery will end here this evening. The election of officers resulted as follows: C. H. Cruttenden of Inkster, president; James McEwen of Cavalier, vice president; Miss Elda Harvey of Pembina, secretary; Miss Lucy Gordon of Langdon, treasurer; Mrs. Haddow of Gilby, superintendent of junior work; Miss Grattery of Gilby, superintendent of tenth legion; Miss Aitken of Park River, superintendent of missionary study class.

Sixty-three delegates, representing sixteen societies, attended the convention yesterday and more arrived this morning for today's program.

The resolutions indorsed the action of the Grand Forks ministers in preventing Sunday baseball in Grand Forks.

CANNOT BOOST LICENSES.

Bemidji Socialists Fail in Attempt to Double Fee.

Bemidji, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.) — Efforts of local Socialists to raise the saloon license from $500 to $1,000 have failed. Alderman Hannah, Socialist, introduced an ordinance calling for a gradual increase until the $1,000 mark was reached and he was backed by Mayor Fred M. Malzahn, also Socialist. When it came to a vote the proposed ordinance was turned down by the chairman, all but Hannah voting against it.

Bemidji has started a movement to have Nymore, a mill suburb of 800 inhabitants, unite with Bemidji as one municipality. The council has directed the mayor to confer with the Commercial and Nymoro officials in an effort to bring the matter to a vote in the near future.

SWANSLAND TELLS WHY HE MURDERED

Killed Neighbor Because He Was "Queerest Man I Ever Saw."

Bemidji, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.) — Charles Swansland, arrested at Baudette on the charge of having murdered his neighbor, Avid Vickstrom, on May 13 has been brought here by Sheriff Hazen and will be given a preliminary hearing tomorrow. Swanland says he escaped pursuit after he had shot and killed Vickstrom by hiding in the woods and that at one time the sheriff's posse passed so close to him that he counted the number of guns they had. He also watched them put out a camp fire he had burning when he heard them coming.

After this he made his way to the north end of the Upper Red lake and waded for eight miles through the bog, water often coming up to his waist.

"He Had It Coming."

Swanland says he shot Vickstrom because "he had it coming." Although apparently rational on all other lines of talk, the prisoner is hazy when he talks of the shooting.

"I had to kill him," he says. "He was the queerest man I ever saw. He could make himself resemble any of the animals of the forest—a bear, a wolf, a deer. When I shot him he was looking like a woodchuck. Also, he is the father of my wife's last child."

THIEF RIVER FALLS IS FORGING AHEAD

Several New Business and Other Buildings Are Being Erected.

Thief River Falls, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Kiewel Brewing company of Crookston has moved their saloon building, which has stood on Labree avenue for many years, back to the rear of the lot and are now excavating for a brick building to take its place. The new building will be a large fine modern structure.

Just across the street from this proposed Kiewel building R. Morgan is erecting a playhouse, which will be three stories high and 140 feet deep. It will be as modern as it is possible to make the moving picture show house. On another street the Provencher hotel is fast assuming proportions and by the end of this month all the brick work will have been completed. It will cost $50,000 when finished and will be a handsome three-story brick structure.

Farmers Building.

Two lots west from the hotel the farmers are erecting a double brick front building for their co-operative store. The building will be three stories high and the third floor will be occupied by some of the fraternal orders of the city. There are other smaller business houses being erected and the number of residences going up are impossible to estimate. The city has never experienced such a growth and there is no boom connected with this rapid growth.

Baby's Voice

Every woman's heart responds to the charm and sweetness of a baby's voice, because nature intended her for motherhood. But even the loving nature of a mother shrinks from the ordeal because such a time is usually a period of suffering and danger. Women who use Mother's Friend are saved much discomfort and suffering, and their systems, being thoroughly prepared by this great remedy, are in a healthy condition to meet the time with the least possible suffering and danger. Mother's Friend is recommended only for the relief and comfort of expectant mothers; it is in no sense a remedy for various ills, but its many years of success, and the thousands of endorsements received from women who have used it are a guarantee of the benefit to be derived from its use. This remedy does not accomplish wonders but simply assists nature to perfect its work. Mother's Friend allays nausea, prevents caking of the breasts, and in every way contributes to strong, healthy motherhood. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. FOURTH TYPHOID VICTIM.

Another Death Results From Epidemic at Marquette.

Marquette, Mich., June 6.—The fourth death from typhoid fever in Marquette this year occurred Tuesday, when John Gustafson, aged 44 years, passed away at his home, after an illness of about three weeks.

Two of his children are also ill. Mr. Gustafson is survived by his wife and four children, Eleanor, Mildred, Milton and Wesley. Two brothers, Emil and Herman Gustafson, both of this city, also survive. The funeral will take place Friday afternoon.

DEPUTY SHERIFF JAILED FOR "SHOOTING UP" TOWN.

Fond du Lac, Wis., June 6.—Sheldon H. Barrett, the Fond du Lac deputy sheriff who "shot up" Neenah Monday night, was brought to jail here and will be held here until an official of the state board of control takes him in charge. Barrett was arrested in this city eight months ago on a forgery charge and sentenced to four years in the penitentiary. The sentence was suspended. Barrett began drinking and shot at people in Neenah streets.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Ishpeming — City Assessor Routhier is busy preparing the city assessment roll that will be presented to the mayor and members of the common council sitting as a board of review Tuesday, June 11.

Negaunee — A deal has been consummated whereby the mining department of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company takes over the residence of J. M. Edgerton on East Main street for one of their employes.

Marquette — After a trial that lasted several days the Passbender vs. McCarthy and Donohue case finally was ended Monday when Donohue and McCarthy were found guilty. The charge against the two men was trespass. The court Tuesday heard the Ailbene Decourse vs. Elizabeth Mitchell chancery case.

Calumet — George D. Barndard, director of the Calumet & Hecla band, has arrived home from Cincinnati, where he spent several weeks with friends. While in that city, Mr. Barnard was awarded the contract to compose a complete orchestra book of twenty selections for Filmore Bros., one of the biggest musical publishing firms in the United States.

Hancock — Mystic lodge, No. 109, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, has elected the following officers: Noble grand, Frank Williams; vice grand, James Crocker; secretary, John Brewer; treasurer, David Case; trustee for three years, Fred Merrifield; representative to grand lodge, F. Merrifield and Frank Kendall.

Laurium — The Laurium steam roller was placed in commission on First street Monday. Street Commissioner Wills placed a large force of men at work on this street and it is expected it will be resurfaced from end to end in about two weeks.

Hancock — Hancock's first smoke consumer is being installed by the Park Brewery company. The device is one designed to eliminate smoke and incidentally will mark the beginning of the end of the smoke nuisance in the city.

Marquette—Miss Rebecca Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erick Johnson, and August Mellin were married at the parsonage of the Swedish Lutheran church Monday morning by the pastor, Rev. Oscar Sandahl. Miss Augusta Erickson acted as bridesmaid and Thure Carlson supported the groom.

Manistique—Mayor Middlebrook of Manistique announces his candidacy for the nomination of county treasurer.

Newberry—Bohn & Perry have closed a deal for the purchase of the building now occupied by the post-office. As soon as the building is vacated it will be torn down and a substantial brick block will be erected on the site. The new block will be a two-story structure, 46x80 feet, affording ample room for a double store, and when completed will be one of the finest business places in the village.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Ashland—The Merchants and Manufacturers' association of Milwaukee, will be in Ashland on Friday, June 7, on their annual excursion arriving here at 3 p. m. on their special train. The John Schroder Lumber company are making elaborate preparations to entertain the visitors.

Eau Claire—John Norgaard, who has been working for the Chippewa Falls Construction company at Colfax had three of his fingers crushed in machinery. Dr. Larson of Colfax dressed the wound. He had to amputate one of them and the other two he considers he can save.

Ashland—Two carloads of silos were unloaded at Ashland Monday consigned to farmers in this vicinity. Those who will put in this consignment are Jake Gillis, Frank Johnson, Walter Ketchum, Fred Frisco, Charles Wicks, T. E. Johnson, H. D. Lwer and John Berglund.

Ashland—Judge Risjord, in company with Dr. Hosmer, left yesterday for Rochester, Minn., where he will have the May brothers diagnose the ailment that has kept him an invalid for several weeks.

Eau Claire—W. H. Kneeland, who has been in the grocery business here for a great many years, has rented his store room to Bunnen Bros., and will shortly retire from business. Bunnen Bros. come here from Stevens Point.

Ashland—President Pennington of the Soo railroad and associate officials were entertained by the Commercial club at the Elks' clubhouse Tuesday evening. As a result of their visit a new passenger train will probably be put on the line south of Ashland.

Milwaukee—Mrs. Julius Andrae, aged 77, wife of Julius Andrae, founder of the firm of Julius Andrae & Sons Electrical company, died Tuesday night at her home, 209 Ninth street. Mr. and Mrs. Andrae were widely known in German circles. Mr. Andrae, who survives her, is 83 years of age and is in the best of health. Mr. and Mrs. Andrae were blessed with ten children, nine of whom are living.

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

Plain Griddle Cake Recipe

One quart flour (4 cups); one teaspoon salt; 4 full cups milk and two teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder. Sift flour, Calumet Baking Powder and salt well together. Add milk, making soft batter. Bake immediately on hot griddle, well greased. When full of bubbles, turn and cook other side. Add two or three tablespoons melted butter, if richer and shorter cakes are desired. With the use of Calumet Baking Powder no eggs are required.

Fitger's Beer

Brewed in Duluth
For More Than 30 Years

Brewed to Be Best in Flavor, Purity and Healthfulness

MORE than thirty years ago Fitger's Beer was first brewed in Duluth. Duluth was chosen as the location of the brewery mainly because of the abundant supply of the finest water for brewing—Lake Superior water. Scientists tell us that this water has no equal for brewing purposes.

Year by year every department of the plant has been improved to keep abreast of the times, and today no more complete brewing establishment operates in this country. Several are larger, to be sure, but their refrigerating and technical equipment is no more modern. Then there's the Fitger knowledge of the best methods and the peculiar Fitger skill which produces a beer of individuality, so differently delicious that Fitger's Beer is famous across the continent.

Order a case for your home. It will be found a source of enjoyment and health. (7)

TAYLORITES PROVE EASY

White Sox Take One-Sided Game By Score of 6 to 1.

Superior Gives an Exhibition of Dumb and Erratic Baseball.

We won again, thank you, and by so doing widened the yawning chasm that separates us from the other teams in the race for the gilded gonfolon. In yesterday's conflict the visitors gathered nine hits off the puzzling delivery of Rube Johnson, but when a blow would have caused havoc and scores. Taylor's tired crew was quite as helpless as a politician in the hands of his friends. We won by the late lamented score of 6 to 1.

Mister Taylor chose to place a youth by the name of Kelly on the far corner of the diamond. His play was of the Weber-Fields type, his attempts to heave the little pill being so ludicrous as to cause Joe, the ground-keeper, to laugh. If you know Joe you will instantly get the heightened effect of the comedy.

But Kelly was not the only one. The infield of the visitors performed as if it was struggling with a major and minor report. It did not work together nor dovetail, but rushed frantically here and there, generally there, like some enthusiastic but misguided ladies trying to sell oyster stew and cold turkey to the pressing parishioners.

Incidentally it might be mentioned that the Sox played errorless baseball. Everything was lovely, several politicians from St. Paul leaving the fray with the expression that it would be well if our team were in the lava bed district south of us.

In the first round Persh garnered a double down the third base line, but got no further than the second bag. Then came us and one run. Blumo walked and was advanced down the far corner through two sacrifices of McGraw and Menelce, the attempted heroes being safe when the infield bunched their intentions to die. Leber lofted to left and Blume crossed. McGraw being tagged at third on the play by a swift throw of the relay home back to third. Sours fouled out.

In the second Olson got to third on a single, wild throw and infield out, and then attempted to steal home. He was frustrated and also angered. After Mons. O'Brien flew gayly to Francis, Hoffman dumped one to Comedian Kelly, and that gent proceeded to heave with erratic aim in the general direction of first. Hoff was safe and Popham was hit by a shoot. Pop was forced at second by Johnson, Hoffman advancing on the play and scoring when Blume beat out an infield offering.

We gathered three in the third, passing out of the danger shoals. With Menelce gone, Leber was hit and Sours drew a walk. O'Brien singled and Leber scooped. Hoffman lofted to left and Hoffman scored. Popham doubled to left and O'Brien's score came in.

One more came over in the fifth. Hoffman singled and stole and came home on Popham's hit and some dump work by the Superior infield. The only one of the enemy came in the ninth, resulting from a single by Francis, a pass to Olson and a single by Briggs.

It might be mentioned that yesterday was the first game of the present season in which Sam Menelce has failed to hit safely. The big boy was officially up four times yesterday, but failed to connect with anything that resembled a hit.

FLICKERTAILS FINALLY WIN

Grand Forks Comes From Behind and Defeats Peggers, 5 to 4.

Winnipeg, Man., June 6.—Grand Forks came from behind yesterday and took the opening game of the series here by the score of 5 to 4. The Peggers got off in the lead by taking kindly to the curves of Rothermel, but he steadied and backed by some brilliant fielding stunts by his teammates held the Maroons for the remainder of the game. The Flickertails gradually drew up and took the lead. The game was featured by the fielding of De Haven and Van Dine for the visitors.

MILLERS TAKE TWO FROM THE COLONELS.

Louisville, Ky., June 6.—Minneapolis won both games of a double-header from Louisville. The first contest was featured by a triple play made by the visitors and the second by a one-handed catch by Beaumiller which he converted into a double play. Both Northrup and Criss pitched equally as good ball and Burns and Waddell, but their support was inferior. Altizer and Pennock were put out of the last game for protesting decisions. The scores:

LEITH MAY PLAY WESTERN CRACK

Negotiations are under way for the bringing to Duluth of one of the noted professional golf players in the country for a game here with Willie Leith, the young golf instructor of the Northland Country club. The negotiations have not reached a definite stage as yet, so that not even the name of the player that the officials of the club are attempting to bring here, can be made known.

Duluth golf players are of the opinion that Leith is one of the best golf players in the West, and, furthermore, that the arranging of a match for the local links will create a great deal of interest. Leith has been improving in his play until he stands with the leading professional players in the West.

JOHNSON IS HEAVY.

Black Champion Appears to Weigh Around the 230 Mark.

Las Vegas, N. Mex., June 6.—It's funny how the desert heat acts upon the fighters. Jim Flynn, training for his great Fourth of July fight with Jack Johnson, is red as a broiled lobster these days. His face and neck are studies in flaming scarlet and he sweats like an honest plowhorse and reduces his weight ounce by ounce.

Jack Johnson never has looked like a broiled lobster and never will. He doesn't sweat when he works and so far as is noticeable he doesn't shed any of his superfluous avoirdupois. And as for the complexion of his countenance, it looks as much as ever like the entrance of the Hoosac tunnel at midnight.

Flynn today weighs 204 pounds: Johnson says he is under 230, but he doesn't look it. Jack makes much of the fact that he is only going to claim the championship until Labor day. Then, he says, he's going to retire. Adeline Patti used to say the same thing, but Johnson says he means it. And Jim Flynn, in his heart of hearts, actually believes that Johnson is going to permanently retire before that. To be specific, Flynn is cocksure that Johnson is going to be frisked of his crown on July 4 and that henceforth he will be a "comeback" claimant.

"Yes, I'm going to retire, but not because I expect to be thumped," said Johnson today.

CHICAGO WILL STAND BY STAGG

Oil Institution Wants Alonzo Reinstated as Conference Leader.

Chicago, June 6.—Athletes who have won the "C" at the University of Chicago will be guests of the athletic association at the ninth annual dinner at Hutchinson hall tonight. Because of the action of the conference faculty representatives in ousting Director Stagg from the committee, the ex-athletes are sure to take some action whereby Stagg will be either reappointed or steps taken to urge the senate to vote for the withdrawal of Chicago from the conference.

The men who have won athletic reputations under the tutelage of Coach Stagg have pledged themselves to "stick" to the "old man" to the bitter end and as the Chicago Alumni association already has voted to stand by Stagg, the concentrated action of both bodies is almost sure to result in some drastic action being taken.

Because of the present athletic situation the largest turnout of "C" men in the history of the institution is expected. Scott Bond, who is receiving communications from the ex-athletes, is of the opinion that at least 250 men will gather around the festive board to sing praises to Stagg and listen to remarks on the present situation.

COURAGE! YOU GOLFERS; PERFECT CADDY FOUND.

Chicago, June 6.—The "cussless" caddy has been announced Not only is he devoid of all profanity, but he is likewise "chewless and smokeless." To the Exmoor Golf club belongs the distinction of bringing forth the perfect caddy, which golfers have long dreamed of, but had despaired of finding in the flesh.

This action, taken at a recent meeting of the Exmoor club, is in line with a scheme for the better discipline and education of the lads who chase the elusive gutta percha ball. No matter how great the provocation the Exmoor caddy will never give utterance to those words which are best expressed in print by the dash and asterisk.

While the golfer may enjoy the aroma of a clear Havana or pipe, the caddy must forget that there are such things as "makins" and pursue the ball without the solace of his cigarette. Also the player and club member may masticate the consoling weed, but the caddy never.

For the use of the caddy the vocabulary of exasperation has been revised and those words and terms which ministers condemn have been replaced by such meaning expressions as "fiddlesticks" and "oh! fudge."

What the caddy has lost, however, in the power of expression and in the exercise of "personal liberty," he has gained in other ways. Near the Exmoor clubhouse a small athletic field has been fitted up and here in leisure hours the boys may disport themselves under the personal supervision of a physical director, such as are found in the small park playgrounds of Chicago.

NEW UMPIRE HAS REPORTED

Brennan to Work With McGloom—New Auto Road Completed.

E. J. Brennan, an umpire who has worked in the Cotton States league, is due here today and will work with McGloom in the Duluth-Superior contest on the other side of the bay. This is an answer to the kicking that the officials of the Superior club have been doing on the umpiring. When the Superior club occasionally wins the umpires are regarded as all right; but when the tide of battle goes against the club across the bay, the umpire is made the alibi.

It was announced at the baseball meeting held last evening at the Spalding hotel that the new automobile drive to the right of the field had been completed. This will do away with machines being obliged to drive across the playing field during the progress of a game. Delay in the playing of the game will thus be avoided.

Most of the games of the past few days have been played in much less time than was formerly the case. This is due to the many suggestions that have come from President Blume, in regard to cutting out all possible delay. All games have been ordered to start on the dot, the umpire has been instructed to have a grip well supplied with balls before the start of the game, and not to delay in throwing out a ball when one is hit over the fence.

At the meeting held last night the suggestion as to evening games was taken up and it may be that the idea of playing a game at 6 o'clock will be tried out some time during the present month. The idea has been successfully worked in both Winnipeg and Grand Forks, and also in the various towns of the Western Canada league. How it will be accepted here is a question that only the trial of the idea will answer.

Right at the present time President Blume is working to place the new league on a thoroughly business basis, and it is stated that a meeting of the presidents of eight or nine clubs will be held within the next week, to formulate further plans for the running of the See-Eye in a thoroughly up to date manner.

Students Want Football.

New York, June 6.—In a demonstration lasting 20 minutes, 600 graduates of Columbia university cheered for the reinstatement of football as a sport in the university. The game was banished several years ago by President Nicholas Murray Butler. President Butler was present and frowned at the continued outbursts.

The demonstration occurred at the alumni luncheon after the presentation of diplomas. Led by John Jerome Kelly and Dave Smythe, old stars of the gridiron, the graduates cheered and shouted, with one voice, the slogan: "We want football; we want football."

Adams to Play.

The Adams strong baseball team will play the Virginia team next Sunday at the range city. Schmirler will be in the box for the Three A aggregation and Thompson will be behind the bat. The Adams boys are in good condition at the present time and expect to cop the game.

Scott Had a Shade.

Milwaukee, June 6.—Steamboat Bill Scott, middleweight of Milwaukee, had a slight shade over Billy Perkins of Rhinelander in a 10-round no-decision boxing contest at Bernickels gymnasium last night. Young Pinkey, lightweight of Cudahy, shaded Mike Graham of Michigan in 10 rounds.

Reds Sell Pitchers.

New York, June 6.—The Cincinnati National league club sold Pitcher Frank Smith and Pitcher Graham to the Montreal club of the International league. Smith is one of the oldest pitchers in length of service in the big leagues, having played with the Pittsburg Nationals and Chicago and Boston Americans before going to Cincinnati.

Tigers Get New Scout.

Detroit, Mich., June 6.—James Burke former manager of the Indianapolis American association team, signed a contract with the Detroit American league team. He will act as scout, starting on the road at once.

Captain Selected.

Annapolis, Md., June 6.—Midshipman Walter Zelbert of Michigan was elected captain for next year's navy baseball team.

Wisconsin-Illinois.

At Rockford, 4; Racine, 8 (12 innings.)
At Oshkosh, 6; Wausau, 0.
At Appleton, 6; Green Bay, 3.
At Madison, 3; Aurora, 4.

Wolgast to Be in Shape.

Los Angeles, June 6.—"Ad Wolgast will be in the ring on July 4 to fight his own battle with Joe Rivers," Manager Tom McCarey of the Corona Athletic club said when asked as to the truthfulness of a report that Abe Attell was to be substituted for Wolgast. The rumor had it that Wolgast was in no condition to enter the ring.

United States League.

At Pittsburg, 8; Reading, 5.

PENNANT LOOKS PRETTY EASY FOR THE GIANTS

New York, June 6.—Assuming that the party regulating such affairs has no intention of permitting the champions to suffer by fire, pestilence or earthquake, the Giants should be so far in the lead for the world's series nomination on the National league ticket by July 4 that their second tour of the West will be a triumphal procession rather than an invasion.

McGraw's repeaters meet every other club in the league before hitting the Western trail again, playing thirty games in the East.

All this time the two Western clubs that have or will threaten the McGraw peace of mind will be on the road. Philadelphia, the only Eastern representative that has shown any pretense to class, will be at home, but working under such a handicap that no particular danger is anticipated from that direction.

Time was when the Giants had a heap of respect for the Phillies, but they figure now that Dooin's crew is too far out of the race to come back without a spurt as sensational as the Athletics' rush of last year. And they doubt if the Phillies have such a sprint concealed about them.

In the West, only Pittsburg interests them. Cincinnati and Chicago both top the Pirates just now, but, basing the opinion on what was shown against the Giants in the recent swing around the provinces, neither is likely to hold the advantage gained while the Pirates were acquiring some late spring training.

Chicago never had anything more than surface claims to a pennant, and Cincinnati—alibi ont of its recent reversals at the hands of both Philadelphia and New York as it will—simply isn't there. O'Day has a good ball club and all that sort of thing, but a lot of baseball people will be a lot surprised if the Reds finish better than third.

Getting all the breaks, the Reds were further favored by having a lot of games with St. Louis and Pittsburg while the Cardinals and Pirates were far short of championship season condition. Judicious handling of two fairly good flingers, remarkably able pegging by Larry McLean, timely hitting and clever fielding formed a combination that has won a far bigger percentage of games than the Reds will ever win again.

Only two of the Reds' pitchers have any class and they are not world beaters. Benton, the best of the collection, was hit hard both times he went against the Giants, but got away with one victory over them because the champs refused absolutely to take advantage of his youth and innocence. Suggs is liable to win more games from the Giants than Benton, and it took a lot of tossing to lose to him.

Cincinnati will wilt and fade away as a pennant possibility as the season progresses; St. Louis probably will not get out of the second division, and Chicago will be lucky to drop into fourth place. But Pittsburg, from present indications, will develop strength and speed as the campaign ages and kick up quite a fuss along in July, August and September.

Pittsburg, besides having a strong hitting crew, is the only western club well provided with pitchers. It is the only club in the league excepting New York, of course, that can send four crackling good pitchers to the mound. Shifting Miller to first has strengthened the one infield position in which the Pirates were weak, without robbing second of anything.

Though in the poorest physical condition of any western club except St. Louis, Pittsburg has managed to stick around the first division, never very far short of the .500 mark. Today, with their team just rounding into shape, the Pirates are only seven games behind the Reds.

Cincinnati is faster than Pittsburg on the bases, but will not hit as well in the long run. And where Cincinnati has only two regular pitchers, neither of them a world beater, though one has a record that would make him look like one, Pittsburg has four—Adams, Camnitz, O'Toole and Hendrix. The Giants would rather tackle Boston any day than any one of the Pirates' quartet.

CAR PLANT CERTAIN.

Port Arthur Assured It Will Have New Industry.

Port Arthur, Ont., June 6.—That the big car plant for Port Arthur will be started just as soon as the plans are completed by the architects is the assurance given by F. B. McCurdy, M. P., of Halifax, N. S., who with J. R. Douglas of Amherst and F. M. Brown of Halifax arrived in Port Arthur early in the week, from the East.

"The vote of your ratepayers," said Mr. McCurdy, "shows the confidence the people of Port Arthur place in us, and we assure you that confidence has not been misplaced. We are ready to start construction work just as soon as possible, and it will only be a few weeks before actual building is started."

J. J. Carrick, M. P., who arrived in Port Arthur with the party, intimated too that other industries would follow as auxiliaries to this car plant, and that the result of the establishment of these works in Port Arthur would exceed the most sanguine expectations of the most optimistic.

Landlord Johnson was heartily congratulated upon the new appointments and the service of the evening. The citizens are delighted over the opening of the most needed institution of this new village, which is well supplied with so many advantages for home seekers.

WESTERN MESABA FIELD DAY HELD

First Affair of Kind at Coleraine Proves to Be Lively Affair.

Coleraine, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first field day and school festival on the Western Mesaba was held at Coleraine yesterday afternoon. All of the graded schools of this district took part representing the villages of Bovey, Taconite and Marble, together with the Greenway school of this place. There was a generous rivalry between the different schools in the field events which included pole vaulting, shot putting, broad and high jumping, relay races, volley ball, basket ball and base ball.

One of the most exciting was the relay race between the high schools in which the Olcott high school at Marble lead until just at the finish when a Greenway high school runner came in ahead. The honors were well distributed. The festival features were folk dancing by all the schools, fancy marching, dumb bell drills, May pole dances, and the primary orchestra. The above events took place on the spacious school lawn. The climax of the day's events centered in a most exciting base ball game between the Olcott and the Greenway high schools in which the home team won by the narrow margin of one score.

EVELETH SCHOOL'S ANNUAL EXHIBIT

Specimens of Work of Pupils Will Be Shown Next Tuesday.

Eveleth, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual exhibit of the Eveleth schools will be held next Tuesday. This is the date of the exercises of the senior class. There will be no admission fee to this entertainment which is called class night.

The drawing exhibit may be seen in the music and drawing room of the high school, Miss Ketcham, the drawing supervisor, being in charge. Besides the regular work in drawing, specimens of the work in brass and cloth and board will be shown. The drawing department has won several prizes this year, besides receiving honorable mention in national competition, so that the exhibit should show which samples have also been sent from this department to an international exhibit.

The music supervisor will also be ready Tuesday afternoon to conduct special singing exercises in the grade rooms of the high school building or in the music and drawing room.

Domestic science will occupy the east end of the lower hall and will consist largely of work from the sewing department. After class night exercises, light refreshments will be served by the girls from the kitchen.

In the west end of the hall, the manual training exhibit, consisting of the usual collection of stained furniture, paddles, etc., may be seen.

The writing supervisor, Miss Grace Darrah, will also have an exhibit of the progress with the muscular or free arm movement. Teachers have come to classes themselves during the year in order to better learn how to teach this important branch. Specimens from a test recently given will be shown.

Miss Esther Seibert, who has been the assistant in the domestic science department during the latter half of the year, will show a few samples of the new work that is being carried on in the third to fifth grades. This will largely consist of weaving of rugs and baskets with yarn, raffia and reeds.

Besides all this, there will be the usual awards, picnics, and closing exercises in the primary grades and the pupils will bring home specimens of their work.

CLEANS, SCOURS, POLISHES FROM CELLAR TO GARRET

SAYS VIRGINIA IS VERY LUCKY

Otherwise Some Fire Traps Would Cause Town's Destruction.

Virginia, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prevention of fire waste was discussed at a meeting in the city hall last night addressed by members of the Minnesota Fire Prevention association. W. O. Chamberlain, who had been making an inspection during the day, showed photographs of places that he said were deplorably bad and attributed the fact that Virginia does not have another great conflagration to the kindness of the supreme being. Mr. Chamberlain stated that he had found instances where conditions were such that the parties were liable to prosecution and fines of from $5 to $50 a day if the notices to clean up were not heeded and the chief of the fire department was also liable under the state law if he continued such to exist after notice to remove the inflammable material were given. Contrasts were made between the fire loss per capita in the United States and in European countries and the statement made that the loss in this country is $2.50 per capita while in Europe it is but 35c. There also the premium rates are correspondingly lower.

HAVE FINE FARMERS.

Tillers of Soil Around Big Fork Quite Up to Date.

Deer River, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some of the finest farms in Minnesota are around Big Fork. The farmers of that section have the latest farming implements and a large number are adding to their already large stocks of machinery. A few in that section are going in for dairying, having purchased large numbers of cows and bulls. Sheep also are being raised by a few. A visitor would be surprised at the number of acres under cultivation north of here and the majority expect good crops this fall. The only drawback is the shipping out of the crops on account of the double freight rate necessary to get the products to market. The farmers are waiting the time when some road will take over the logging road and give them a direct line to either Duluth or the Twin Cities.

An effort is being made for the establishment of a Knights of Columbus council here. A list of twenty who wish to join this order are in the hands of the committee in charge and quite a number more can be secured. The nearest council is at Bemidji.

The firemen's ball given at the roller rink Monday night was well attended and the boys feel more than pleased for the efforts made to make this the best of the season. Poeckers orchestra of Grand Rapids furnished the music.

A number of weddings will take place this month. Otto R. King of the King Lumber company will be married to Miss Olga Halverson of Danson, Minn., and William Herreid of Merreid Bros. will marry Miss Anna Carlson of Minneapolis, and O. E. Hulehan will marry Miss Florence Todd of Minneapolis.

RANGE TRACK MEET

Will Be Held at Hibbing Saturday With Duluth Entries.

Hibbing, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual interscholastic track meet of the range high schools to be participated in by the track teams from the high schools of Eveleth, Bemidji, Virginia, Chisholm, Duluth, Grand Rapids, Hibbing, Buhl, Gilbert and Coleraine, and which is expected to bring about fifty high school athletes to the city will be held here Saturday. The baseball teams of the Duluth Central high school and the Hibbing high school also will play for the championship of Northern Minnesota.

FINE SUMMER HOME

Is That of O. B. Warren on Half Moon Lake.

Hibbing, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the finest summer homes at any resort in Northern Minnesota is that of O. B. Warren of the Meriden Iron company of Hibbing, which has just been completed at Half Moon lake, according to Hibbing people, who have recently visited it. It is accessible by a highway which is always in good condition for automobiles and on the grounds Mr. Warren has planted cherry, plum and apple trees, and made other improvements tending to make it attractive. One low place he has drained and will utilize as a celery bed. The house and buildings are models of convenience and comfort and the place is much admired by all who have visited it.

NO RELATIVES PRESENT

When Three Victims of Violent Deaths Are Laid Away.

Virginia, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three bodies of men who met tragic deaths and whose friends or relatives have not been located were buried yesterday in Potters' field, as follows: John Johnson, the aged man who fell in a well at Gheen and was killed or drowned; Fred Jacobson, who took a ride from a cow at Gheen and hanged himself in a tree, and Fred or Charles or William Fisher, who lost his life by falling from a canoe in Pelican lake.

UNABLE TO FIND IDLE MEN IN HIBBING

Hibbing, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. H. Hubbard, an employment agent of Grand Forks was here yesterday to pick up a crew of about 100 foreign laborers to work on railroad work for the Great Northern, near Minot, but found few idle men in Hibbing and went to Virginia.

Comes to Duluth.

Eveleth, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.—Maney Z. Sapero, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marc Sapero, left for Duluth to take a position as assistant to Dr. H. Davis.

EPWORTH LEAGUE MEET NEXT WEEK

Annual Gathering of Duluth District to Be at Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thirty delegates and many visitors will attend the annual convention of the Duluth District Epworth league at the M. E. church here next Tuesday and Wednesday. The local committee on entertainment is the Misses Ella Cummings, Mellicent Roskilly, M. Jager, Fred Roskilly and C. Bellamy. The sessions will open with devotional service by Rev. E. C. Parish of Biwabik and a welcome address by W. H. Garland, president of the local organization. Sessions will be held Tuesday afternoon and evening and Wednesday morning, afternoon and evening.

Those on Program.

Among those on the program to speak are: Rev. E. C. Parish, Biwabik; Rev. Thomas Grice, Coleraine; Andrew Meldahl, Duluth; Cyrus Williams, Eveleth; Rev. John W. Schenck, Aurora; Rev. Charles Fox Davis, Brainerd; Rev. T. Stanley Oadams, Hibbing; Rev. Frank Pequette, Sawyer; Rev. B. D. Hanscom, Eveleth; Miss Louise Gilbert, Marble; Miss Elizabeth Clark, Duluth; Miss Pearl Mathews, Duluth; Clinton Oblinger, Duluth; Rev. Charles W. Emery, Duluth; Mrs. Clarence Taylor, Chisholm; Rev. A. L. Richardson, Aitkin; Rev. Orris Suver, Marble; Rev. Edgar K. Copper, Duluth; Miss May Trimble, Duluth; Miss Ina Shaver, Duluth; Mrs. E. D. Blancke, Duluth; H. W. Cullison, Coleraine; Rev. Charles R. Oaten, Duluth; Miss Alice McQuilland, Aitkin; Rev. Ralph C. Jones, Chisholm.

LAKE COUNTY COURT GOES OVER MONTH

Judge Dibell Has Adjourned Court Session Until July 15.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The June term of the eleventh judicial court, which was opened yesterday, was postponed today by Judge H. B. Dibell of Duluth until July 15.

There was a short session yesterday, which was devoted largely to granting citizenship papers. Those who received their papers were: Jacob Grandahl, Herman Grondahl, Fred W. Thias, Kalle, P. Huttunen, Alvin L. Lindholm, Otto E. Hirtunen, Carl C. Carlson, John M. Swanson, Erich Richenen, Augudt Hedberg, Carl E. Setterland, John Hindeland, Archie Gerous and P. J. Mendli.

Among the important criminal cases to be tried is that of D. H. Lawrence, a local attorney, indicted on an embezzlement charge, who was arrested in California several months ago and brought back to face the charge. It is reported he is effecting a settlement of the claims against him and that he may never be prosecuted.

HIBBING EXPECTS NEW ROAD CHIEF

President Gray of Great Northern Will Visit the Mesaba Range.

Hibbing, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—President Gray of the Great Northern is expected to make his first official visit to the Mesaba range some time during next week. He will travel on a special train and is expected to be at Kelly Lake and Hibbing next Monday or Tuesday, according to advices received in this city from St. Paul. He is expected to give the Great Northern properties in this section a thorough inspection, as well as to visit some of the big mines in this vicinity and may spend a day in Hibbing and Chisholm.

WARDENS HAVE SNAP.

Little to Do on Mesaba Range Except Pile Brush.

Hibbing, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Continued wet weather is making the recently created positions of fire warden, of which there are four in the township of Stuntz, something of a sinecure. The rangers are gathering brush and piling it in heaps to be burned in dry weather, lessening the danger from forest fires. The present summer has been the wettest in the history of the range, according to the old timers. Water is standing in the low spots all through the woods, the growth of slough grass is the most dense in years and the levels of the small lakes and streams are higher than for years. With the woods in the condition they are at present the danger from forest fires is remote and woodsmen do not believe there will be any forest fires of consequence in Northern Minnesota this year.

FAREWELL IS GIVEN FOR MRS. COLBERG.

Tower, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lady Maccabees drove out to Pike River Wednesday afternoon and stopped at the home of Miss Amanda Meeker, where they served an elegant farewell luncheon in honor of Mrs. Gus. Colberg, who will leave shortly for her new home in Michigan. Covers were laid for fourteen. The charming centerpiece was composed of wild flowers. The guests presented Mrs. Colberg with a handsome gold meat fork. Those present were: Mesdames Murphy, Merrill, Gallen, Graham, Kitto, Colberg, Osterberg, Hickey, Schmid, Wiseman, Napier, and the Misses Meeker, Napier, Murphy, Hickey and Merrill.

HIBBING ODDFELLOWS WILL REMEMBER DEAD.

Hibbing, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hibbing Lodge No. 245 I. O. O. F. next Sunday will observe Odd Fellows' memorial day. The members will gather at the lodge hall at 9 o'clock and go to the cemetery, where the usual ritualistic ceremony will be held. Returning to the city the lodge will go in a body to the Mahoning street Methodist church, where a memorial day sermon will be preached by Rev. T. Stanley Oadams. There will be a special program of music.

CONSIDER NEW KEEWATIN ROAD

Commissioners in Charge of Judicial Highway Discuss Plans.

Hibbing, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The commision having in charge the construction preliminaries of the new judicial road from Keewatin to Goodland, composed of the Messrs. A. P. Silliman and J. B. Connors of Hibbing, P. D. McEachin and E. Corcoran of Keewatin and Anton Passard of Goodland are holding a meeting here. The survey of the new highway has been completed and at today's meeting the commissioners will set a date to approve the route. There is much interest in the construction of this highway through all the country which it traverses. It will make a large section of country to the south accessible to both Hibbing and Keewatin.

COLUMBIA TEAM TO PLAY AT HIBBING.

Hibbing, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Columbias of Duluth, with a pitcher from the regular White Sox staff, will meet the Hibbing baseball team in a game of baseball here Sunday. The Hibbing team has this year defeated all comers and every game so far played has been a veritable swatfest. One week from Sunday Biwabik, with an all-star team of range players, and Hibbing are expected to meet here.

Chisholm Matron Gives Luncheon.

Chisholm, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Herman Tetzloof was hostess at a delightful luncheon at her home on Chestnut street Wednesday, June 5. Covers were laid for twelve. The guests present were: Mesdames Winder, Smart, Jorden, Taylor, Hurt, Norden, Lalone, Krellon, Johnson, O'Connors, Fieldsted and Hubbard.

New Chisholm Officer.

Chisholm, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tuesday Morris Simonson, who has been on the police force for many years, handed in his resignation. He has been serving as night sargeant about two years. He gave no particular reasons for quitting, but stated that he believed he could better himself by the move. Oscar Carlson, who succeeds him, came here from Ely about three years ago, going on as an officer and where he has remained ever since.

SCHOOL ROOM IS LIMITED IN ELY

While Presenting Diplomas to Eighth Grade, Mr. Thomas Says So.

Ely, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The high school auditorium was filled to overflowing last evening at the promotion exercises of the eight grades of the city. The program was rendered in an excellent manner, receiving many favorable comments. Mr. Thomas while presenting the diplomas, said that the Ely schools were not large enough for the attendence that they will have in the immediate future. Next year the high school will be crowded, and the various buildings will be filled almost to the limit.

The class of 1912 have purchased with the proceeds of their class play a statue of Paul Revere, showing that historic character seated upon his horse ready to give the alarm. The statue is about six feet high.

The teachers of the schools yesterday presented Supt. C. H. Barnes with a walrus skin suit case. Mr. Barnes has been for three years superintendent of schools here and goes this fall to St. Cloud.

GETS NINETY DAYS FOR STEALING CLOTHES.

Chisholm, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because John Paulson, about 24 years old, could not distinguish his own clothes from those of Gust Peterson, with whom he was boarding, he was taken to Duluth yesterday to serve ninety days in the county jail. Paulson has been working for the D. M. & N. Railway company and took an entire suit of clothes belonging to Peterson and which were found in his possession when arrested.

To Discuss Eveleth Charter.

Eveleth, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The regular monthly meeting night of the Eveleth Commercial club is tonight, and one of the several topics to be taken up will be the new commission form charter which is to be submitted to the voters of the city at a special election on June 22.

PREFERS CATCHING BALLS TO CANINES

Chisholm Ball Player Tires of Dog Catching Job After One Day.

Chisholm, June 6. — (Special to The Herald.)—F. J. Kelly, the dog catcher, who was put on the work Monday morning did not last long on that job having turned in his star Tuesday evening and reported to the chief of police that he would not pursue the cause further. Kelly is a ball player and was given the employment to keep him on the team, but decided that he knew more about catching balls than he did about catching dogs.

Albert Hirstio an old time resident, will tackle the job.

Inspect Chisholm Plant.

Chisholm, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first annual inspection of the property of the Range Power company, under the new franchise, has been made by W. A. Koon, an attorney from Minneapolis, and represented the J. B. Strauss interests in the company and with Engineer A. Sandt of Chicago, who represents another interest.

Biwabik Revival Meetings.

Biwabik, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.) — The revival meetings which Rev. G. L. Barker is conducting in the M. E. church are resulting in much good to those who attend. Rev. Mr. Barker has had a wide evangelistic experience.

GAMBLE MAY FORGE AHEAD

claim 9,000 plurality over Gamble, with Richards third.

Returns received show that the following Republicans have been nominated:

Congressmen—Eben W. Martin, incumbent; Charles H. Burke, incumbent; C. H. Dillon.

Byrne for Governor.

Governor—Frank M. Byrne.
Lieutenant governor—E. L. Abel.
Secretary of state—Fred Hepperle (not conceded).
State treasurer—A. W. Ewart (not conceded by G. H. Pinckney, his opponent).
Railroad commissioner—John J. Murphy (not conceded by his four opponents).

Member Republican national committee—Thomas Thorson, incumbent (not conceded by J. F. Halladay, his opponent).

The following were nominated without opposition:

Attorney general, Royal C. Johnson; state auditor, Henry B. Anderson; commissioner of school and public lands, F. F. Brinker; superintendent of public instruction, C. G. Lawrence.

All of the foregoing are Progressive Republicans with the exception of Congressmen Martin and Burke and E. L. Abel, who are classed as Stalwart Republicans.

The Republican nominees for members of the state supreme court are in doubt.

Democratic Returns Meager.

Returns on the Democratic congressional and state ticket are very meagerfi the only one reasonably sure of being nominated being Edward S. Johnson for governor.

LA FOLLETTE MEN MAY PRESENT GRONNA FOR TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN

the committee to seat Taft delegates in nearly all of the contests.

Will Hurry to Contests.

United States Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania and several other Taft leaders expressed eagerness to clean up the preliminary work of the committee as quickly as possible, and get down to the actual work of hearing contests late today. It is possible the first contests on the lists, those from Alabama, will be called before night.

As the hour for the opening of the committee meeting approached, Congressman William B. McKinley of Illinois, Taft campaign manager and United States Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana, Colonel Roosevelt's campaign manager, called eleventh hour conferences of certain members of the national committee.

Three Sets Ready.

The Alabama, California and Arkansas cases were ready for submission to the committee this morning. Attorneys and delegates were prepared yesterday to submit the cases as soon as the committee should be ready to hear them.

In Alabama, the first state to be called by the committee, there are contests by the Roosevelt representatives for the entire list of delegates at large, and from the First, Second, Fifth, Sixth and Ninth congressional districts.

In Arkansas, there are contests for the delegates at large and in all of the seven congressional districts in the state except the Sixth. In the California cases, the Taft contest in the Fourth district is directed primarily against the California secretary of state, who refused to issue certificates to Taft delegates who received majorities in that district. His action, it is understood, was based on the ground that the state at large had indicated a preference for Col. Roosevelt.

As to Publicity.

The question whether the meetings of the committee should be opened to newspaper men was still unsettled this morning. A tentative plan to admit a limited number of newspaper men received opposition from both Roosevelt and Taft sources, on the ground that it did not provide sufficient publicity of the contest arguments. Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota was expected to offer a motion to make public the detailed vote in the committee on each contest case.

Early morning observers of the national committeemen found food for thought in the meeting at breakfast of Charles D. Hilles, secretary to President Taft, and Arthur Vorys, national committeeman from Ohio. The two arrived on separate trains, but met in a dining room, and after chatting as they ate, conferred with members of the committee who had come in previously.

Another arrival was Charles F. Brooker of Connecticut, chairman of a sub-committee on rules appointed at the winter meeting of the national committee. He and W. M. Ward of New York and Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota have since then drawn up a brief code for the government of the governing body of the Republicans.

New Rules Ready.

"The rules are ready for presentation," said Mr. Brooker, "but I am not at liberty to give them out. They are brief and simple, however, and have to do principally with the organization of the committee. Hitherto we have had no code for that phase of our work, but have had to depend upon precedent and contingency as guides to action."

Three Taft supporters on the national committee came in early and sought information from colleagues of similar leanings. These were: E. C. Duncan, North Carolina; Henry Blun, Jr., Georgia, and Henry B. McCoy, who represents the party in the Philippines.

Almost coincident with their arrival was that of Senator W. E. Borah of Idaho. He, however, went to the Roosevelt headquarters for "tips" as to the latest developments.

Reports received at national committee headquarters early in the day announced the absence of Nathan B. Scott, West Virginia's committeeman. He sent his proxy to Col. Harry S. New, chairman of the subcommittee on arrangements, who will determine who shall hold it.

Dixon Declines Proxy.

Senator Joseph M. Dixon, the leader of the Roosevelt forces, was offered a proxy by a member of the Republican national committee, whose name he declined to divulge. Senator Dixon said that in view of the position taken by the Roosevelt men regarding the nonpartisanship of the committee, it would be impossible for him to participate in the contest hearings.

The proxy of S. A. Perkins of Washington will be held by A. M. Stevenson of Denver, pending the arrival of William Barnes, Jr., of New York.

Morrill Moore of Indianapolis, former classmate of President Taft, arrived today prepared to represent the Taft men in the Indiana contests.

Director William B. McKinley of the national Taft bureau issued a statement today upholding the selection of Senator Elihu Root of New York for temporary chairman of the convention.

FIRST FRUIT OF SESSION

Charles got applause when he said that he would oppose any bill which was not to be a committee bill, as the extra session was for legislation for the people, and not to make political capital for anybody. So the bill was received with the understanding that the general legislation committee will return it as a committee bill.

Representative C. H. Warner of Aitkin tried to get in two bills relating to a state department of conservation and development, one providing a Constitutional amendment taking the sale of state lands away from the state auditor's office, and the other providing for a committee to report a plan to the next legislature for a conservation and development department. There was objection, so the bills were laid over to tomorrow.

It was announced in the house that the tax committee will have a public hearing tomorrow afternoon on the railroad gross earnings bills and that it would be the only hearing.

The senate had a 15-minute session. Senator Lende introduced the corrupt practices act, described elsewhere, and had it put on general orders by a suspension of the rules. It is similar to the Frankson-Campbell house bill, which puts a limit on campaign expenditures of 30 per cent of a year's salary of the office sought for nomination, and the same for election.

The senate mades its mileage allowance, 15 cents a mile for the round trip. The longest is Senator Sundberg, 720 miles. Senator Gunn of Grand Rapids gets 500 miles, Senator Boyle 460, and Senators Cheadle and Pugh, 310.

ARE TALKING OF DIVISION

the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of the congressional, senatorial and representative districts and apportion anew the several districts.' The state has not been reapportioned for fifteen years. The blame is attached to the senators of Southern Minnesota for failing to do their plain duty at the regular session. Northern Minnesota pays over 70 per cent of the taxes, yet is deprived of just and fair representation through the efforts of a few selfish office holders of Southern Minnesota.

Mr. Taber is informed that the division question will doubtless be launched at the forthcoming meeting to be held at International Falls by the Northern Minnesota Development association and the work promoted at the meeting of the Northern Minnesota Editorial association to be held at Grand Rapids immediately following the International Falls meeting.

Just what plan of action will be adopted Mr. Taber did not state, but that the people of Northern Minnesota are in a fighting mood there is no doubt. Just where the proposed division line runs has not been made known by the promoters as yet. However, it is evident that the people will not be put off until 1916, when to reapportion the state right now is only the justice due them provided by the Constitution. The southern part of the state has everything to lose by not demanding immediate action by their representatives and senators at the special session.

thing possible for a lookout is the glare of light."

Questioned regarding the space given up for the accommodation of wealthy passengers, Sanderson replied: "If there were anything more that we could do to insure the safety of passengers, the millionaires' suites would not stand in the way."

He attributed the great loss of life among the third-class passengers to the fact that the best position for launching the boats happened to be nearest the first and second-class quarters.

It's apt to "stay lost" unless you advertise for it.

How English Beauties Keep Faces Youthful

Christian Miller, F. C. I., noted English health expert, attributes the early aging of American women mainly to the "national nervousness." The women of England, she says, can teach us the inestimable lesson of repose.

Another valuable lesson to be learned from the English woman is that she does not go in much for cosmetics, the continual use of which must ruin any complexion. The beauty devotees of King George's realm have the mercolized wax habit, a more wholesome method of keeping the face girlish-looking and healthy. Ordinarily mercolized wax, used like cold cream, rejuvenates the worst complexion. American women may easily acquire the habit, this wax being obtainable at drug stores generally in the United States. It is applied at night and washed off in the morning. One ounce is sufficient to completely renovate a bad complexion. It has a peculiar action in keeping the face free from the particles of dead and devitalized scarf skin which are constantly appearing.—Woman's Herald.

FAIR

The weather man looks for frost tonight in the low places. His expected rain storm did not materialize today, the weather being fair and cool, but a frost is possible tonight.

A year ago today it was fair and warm.

The sun rose this morning at 4:14 and will set at 7:59, making fifteen hours and forty-five minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the last twenty-four hours light to heavy showers again fell over Canada, Northern border states, the Middle West and Gulf states in connection with the barometric depressions centered over Eastern Ontario and Arizona. Hot weather continued throughout the South and Southwest. The Dakota high pressure has caused cool weather over most of the Northwest. At the Head of the Lakes fair weather is indicated for tonight and Friday and there is a prospect of light frost tonight in low places."

THREE-ACT PLAY.

Christian Endeavor Will Entertain Friday Evening.

"Men, Maids and Matchmakers," the clever little comedy which will be presented Friday evening at the First Presbyterian church by members of the Christian Endeavor society of that church, promises an evening of pleasure. The proceeds will be used to help defray expenses of the Christian Endeavor convention to be held here June 20-23.

Miss Agnes Mae Johnson has been directing the production and the following short outline of the three acts gives an idea of the plot.

Time—The present. Place—An apartment house in New York city.

ACT I.

The bachelor men and bachelor maids are presented to one another and to the audience. Aunt Selina appears on the scene, interferes with the course of true love, and brings about an engagement.

Intermission.—Music by the orchestra.

Solo, Miss Alice Forsell.

ACT II.

One month later. Dr. Imhoff turns up and proves irrepressible. Mr. Vincent gets a lesson in love making. Mr. Richards gets into hot water. Miss Howard is misunderstood, and everybody gets into a state of dissatisfaction.

Intermission—Music by the orchestra.

Solo, Miss Lillian Meier.

ACT III.

One day later. Mr. Vincent as a peacemaker. Aunt Selina upsets Miss Marshall's plans. The course of true love runs smoothly for once, and everybody is made happy.

The cast is as follows:

BACHELOR MAIDS.

Miss Lillian Stewart...Anne S. Johnston
Miss Katherine Howard...Louise Ellis
Miss Elizabeth Everett...Jessie McGhie
Miss Alice Marshall and Aunt Selina Winthrop.....Esther Anderson

BACHELOR MEN.

Dr. Imhoff.....George R. Macaskill
Sammie.....Thomas Cat

EXTRA MISSIONARY TALKS

Mrs. Wells of Chicago Will Give Lectures on Missionary Work.

Two special talks by Mrs. B. D. Wells of Chicago who has been giving a course of mission study lectures at the Y. W. C. A., have been arranged for by women of the city who have heard of her.

This evening Mrs. Wells will speak at the First Presbyterian church on "China's Great Awakening," in response to the requests from many men who have had no opportunity to hear her in her morning and afternoon lectures.

Sunday Mrs. Wells will also speak at a big mass meeting of women at the Young Woman's Christian association at 4 p. m. Her subject will be "The Meaning of the World's Unrest."

The final lectures in the courses were given today on "Mormonism as a Life," and on China dealing with the present and future of that country. Many women not active in missionary work have been interested in the lectures by Mrs. Wells as well as in Miss Grace Lindley's courses in "The Acts of the Apostles," which commenced yesterday morning and were continued this morning and afternoon. Her work is a practical demonstration of teaching the form of a discussion by all, which she leads.

The two special talks by Mrs. Wells will be open to all.

WANT SUPERVISOR.

Playgrounds Association Appoints Committees and Elects Officers.

Election of officers, appointment of committees and the discussion of plans of work all took place at the meeting of the Playground association yesterday afternoon at the Commercial club.

Judge Alfred Jaques was elected president, Mrs. R. N. Marble, first vice president, J. J. Moe, second vice president; C. W. C. Ross, treasurer and Eugene Van Cleef, secretary.

An executive committee was chosen composed of Mrs. S. R. Holden, Mrs. F. W. Matter, Mrs. A. C. Pearson, J. R. Batchelor, Rev. George R. Gebauer, and Judge Jaques and Eugene Van Cleef, ex officio.

Committees on finance and appointment will be chosen at the first meeting of the executive committee.

The absolute necessity of placing supervisors in charge of playgrounds and social centers was discussed, and it was decided to ask for an appropriation of $2,000 a year for the maintenance of supervisors for the playgrounds in summer and social centers in the winter. A committee to meet with the school board, the park board, and the public welfare board and ask their co-operation in securing an appropriation was appointed with Miss Jean Poirier, chairman, and J. J. Moe, William Burgess, Mrs. C. A. Duncan and G. W. C. Ross as the other members.

HELPED MAKE SUFFRAGE MEETING A SUCCESS

MRS. STANLEY CORMICK.

Mrs. Katherine Dexter McCormick, wife of Stanley McCormick of the Harvester trust, Chicago, is given the credit of the success of the monster suffrage mass meeting held in Cincinnati May 27. She headed the little band of women who paraded the streets with "sandwich boards" advertising the meeting. Mrs. McCormick and her aides are greatly elated over the success of their venture and promise to duplicate it in other cities.

SPRING FESTIVAL OF MUSIC

Tomorrow, Grand Symphony Night. Saturday at 2:30, Grand Popular matinee. Saturday at 8:15 Grand Opera Night. Seats, $1.50, $1 and 75 cents; Gallery 50 cents. On sale at Lyceum.

ORCHESTRA ON WAY.

Spring Festival of Music Commences With Children's Matinee.

Tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra will open its spring festival of music with a matinee for the students in the schools of the city, when it is expected that the Lyceum will be packed from the parquet to the top gallery.

All the schools will make their returns tonight and any tickets unsold will be placed on sale at the Lyceum tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. This is distinctly a school matinee and the tickets will not be sold to adults. The program for the school matinee is as follows:

PRESIDENT VINCENT TALKS TO NORMAL GRADUATES

"Selfishness and Unselfishness" Is Theme of Stirring Address on Meaning and Value of Education.

"It is human to make phrases and to repeat them," said President George E. Vincent this morning in a strong address before the members of the senior class at the Normal school and the friends and relatives who had gathered to hear the formal commencement program.

"It is however good to analyze the words and phrases at times and get at their true meaning. I shall speak for a short time this morning on two words constantly in use and they are 'selfishness and unselfishness.' We think we know their definition but their true meaning is hard to get at.

"I remember when I was a senior in high school I read in an essay of John Locke's that 'selfishness is the sole motive of human conduct.' I accepted this standard and set out to prove it to all my friends, but I have come to realize that it all depends on the real meaning which we give to the words.

"We should analyze this self, this concrete everyday thing which we call self. We should ask ourselves what sort of a consciousness we have, for it is by the images that we hold in our minds, the thoughts that we hold up before us, that our characters are unfolded."

Scenes of Pictures.

President Vincent compared the mind to a series of stereopticon pictures showing the events of life, and it is the selection of these pictures from each individual mind's collection, he said, which gives one an idea of one's own character. "Which kind of pictures do you keep before you? The pleasant pictures in which you have been placed in a good light and which make you feel comfortable, or the ones of the events where you have failed and which make you feel small and uncomfortable? You all visualize, you all see pictures you all know the spectator in you who sees these pictures. The man who just keeps before him the pleasant, rosy pictures will become vain, priggish, selfish and complacent; the man who sees only the failures and sorry views should mix them with the times when he did appear to advantage. It is only by a careful balancing of these mental pictures and by keeping on adding to our collection each day that the character may have a perfect poise, broadening out, enlarging and strengthening to a self which has resources and possibilities.

"What we need are men and women who have breadth of view and strength of vision to take a broad view of life and the only sure way of maintaining the poise of the world is by working for justice and democracy and to avoid the division and to stand together for a stronger and better life.

"Education means an enlarging of the sense of self, and a widening of range of sympathy and usefulness. Your school, young people, has aided you to enter into your community life with a wider view of self, with a growing and expanding personality, with a better power to see the beauties of nature and the beauties of human nature. You will have the sense of growth of personal character through clinging loyalty to the widening images that are presented to you by entering into a wider comradeship and fellowship. Your best chances are in loyalty, sympathy, brotherhood and good will for large and generous lives. You cannot be an inspiration to your scholars and those with whom you come in contact without yourselves constantly widening out and expanding. Your fundamental training in knowledge and sciences alone will not make you successful teachers, but only as you grow yourself can you realize the possibilities of life or know the largest and truest sense of self.

"May God speed you today and may your minds be filled with the loveliest imagery and yourself expand to the widest circles of helpfulness to your fellow man."

At the close of his talk storms of applause signified the interest with which it had been received, with its vivid pictures of human nature and keen understanding as well as bright humor.

The Program.

The program was opened by a hymn by the school followed by scripture reading and a response. Miss Ruth Geddes played a piano number, "The Trout," by Schubert-Hiller, artistically and beautifully.

The Normal glee club sang two numbers which were delightful and following President Vincent's address the school sang Weber's "Gipsy Chorus" with pleasing harmony.

J. L. Washburn, the resident director of the state normal board before presenting the diplomas to the graduates, made a few remarks. "There is nothing worth while," he said, "which is without work, and the more worth while it is, the more work will be connected with it. But work like everything while you work, and play like everything when you play, and you will succeed."

Some members of the senior class have already received their diplomas at the end of the spring term and others will receive them at the end of the summer term. Those to whom they were presented today were: Misses Dolly Armundson, Bessie Boerner, Mabel Bostad, Marion Brown, Elizabeth Buckbee, Louise Coe, Betsy Duclett, Anna Einsweiler, Ruth Ericson, May Ferguson, Emma Frederickson, Rose A. Goulette, Laura Govett, Anna Grant, Janet Hailey, Helen Hawkes, Inez Holm, Milinda La Vallee, Effie Lindahl, Alice McCarthy, Anna MacDougall, Edna Mahnke, Lyla Noiseau, Lida Peterson, Mabel Potter, Anne Risatti, Edna Savage, Petronella Stenberg, Lelia Stickles, Harriet Stryker, Anna Sturminski, Nellie Sturminski, Mabel Whiteside and Maude Williams.

Elementary diplomes: Misses Scharlie Robertson, Margaret Sever and Lucile Vanderpoel.

Special diploma in household economics: Misses Edna Parks and Susan Stryker.

The exercises closed with the class song, "To Our Alma Mater" the words of which were written by Miss Ruth Ericson, president of the senior class.

THE EVENING STORY

WHY FRIBBLES AND I DON'T SPEAK

By James Thorne.

Fribbles may now be said to be outside my social life. Yet, now—if I am to speak entirely "by the card," as I believe Shakespeare somewhere advises—this statement cannot be regarded as strictly true, for whenever we chance to meet in the street Fribbles takes particular pains to favor me with a petrifying glare of contempt, which, I admit, I do my best to return.

It was all through a wretched little beast of a monkey. Why people who live in small suburban semi-detached villas should indulge in objectionable pets is utterly beyond my comprehension. Pets and children are, I venture to assert, responsible for most of the quarrels with our neighbors.

Fribbles—this is not of course his real name—and I had been friends in our bachelor days, and when we got married—which we did in the same year—we became tenants in adjoining houses in one of the suburbs of the large city which formed the scene of our commercial activities.

And there for a period of nearly two years our friendship continued on much the same lines as previously.

In the second year of our wedded bliss we—meaning my wife and I—had a little son born to us. The Fribblesses had no such luck, and it was perhaps to make up for this that, some six months later, they invested in the two animals which, in combination, come as near to a child as nature permits—a parrot and a monkey.

Now the former of these two creatures I can tolerate with something approaching to equanimity, provided the feathered piece of loquacity is confined within four walls and obtains its supply of fresh air for the most part through the open window.

But a monkey is an altogether different thing. I would almost as soon my next door neighbor kept a tiger or a wolf. To know that a slender boarding and a thin ledge of privet is all that separates you from the depredations of a wicked, irresponsible wild beast is terribly unsettling to the nerves.

And then there were, in our respective gardens, some well grown trees, with affectionate interlacing branches, which afforded a delightfully easy mode of access to our back premises for any gymnast of the ape species at all fond of visiting. And this small imp of a monkey had a particular weakness in that direction.

At first this idiosyrasy was not apparent, for, after acquisition by Fribbles, he was kept on a chain for a few weeks, but little by little, more freedom being allowed to him, he soon began to develop a desire for making explorations in the surrounding country and mainly in the part of it which lay on our side.

One day he nearly frightened our maid into fits by deftly snatching off her cap as she emerged from the coal shed, while on another occasion he made such horrible grimaces and grotesquenings at the grocer's boy that I had to appear on the scene with a stick.

I mildly expostulated with Fribbles on these little diversions of his pet, but he appeared to regard them as a rather good joke than otherwise, and assured me that "Jacko"—that was the brute's name—was as harmless as a kitten.

Aftr that whenever the creature showed his ugly little form on my premises and I chanced to be there, I received him with a hot fire of pebbles or small coal, before which counter attack he would retire with an expedition that did infinite credit to his acrobatic powers.

My wife, however, when I was at business no longer enjoyed taking the baby into the garden as formerly, preferring the public park, where monkeys did not flourish, and this vexed me more than I cared to admit.

The climax came on Saturday afternoon when our maid startled my wife and me out of our half comatose after dinner meditations by screaming out that the monkey had invaded our premises by the back door and ran upstairs.

"Oh, Frank," cried my wife, with a gasp, "do he quick and drive him out or he'll kill baby!"

I did not wait to answer her, but seizing the weapon nearest to hand, the poker, I rushed upstairs to the nursery.

When I got there he was nowhere to be found and the baby was sleeping in a peace so profound that I judged that was not the apartment in which Jacko was hiding. The only other door open on that landing was the one leading into our bedroom, and to that I next turned.

This door I closed as soon as I was in the room, for I had made up my mind that if the intruder was there I would try to cure him of his unlawful love of adventure. And sure enough there he was—seated on the dressing table apparently admiring his comely proportions in the looking glass.

I must admit, whatever his other faults might be, he was by no means deficient in courage, for no sooner did he set eyes on me than he began to chatter and gibber and threaten an attack.

But I was not in a humor to wait for him to begin. How it happened has never been clear to me, but I think as I approached he sprang at me and in the middle of his spring I struck him with the poker. I must have struck slightly harder than a poker warrants, and on his head too, though I certainly did not mean the blow to fall there. But that's what must have happened, for down he went at my feet in a heap, gave a convulsive kick or two, and was dead.

Then I thought of Fribbles and his wife, who, I knew, was even fonder of the wretch than was her husband, and in a minute I had resolved upon my line of action.

I kicked the dead thing into a convenient cupboard, shut the door, and then went down stairs. Before I had got to the bottom I called out with all the coolness I could command—

"It's all right! He's gone. Our bedroom window was wide open, and I just caught a glimpse of him as he bolted through it."

"And you're quite sure he's not in the baby's room?" my wife asked anxiously.

"Oh, perfectly sure! Don't I tell you I saw him go out of our bedroom window? Jane, I shouted to the maid, 'did you see where he went?'"

"No, master, I didn't!" replied Jane, in tones that suggested that she was concealed in the cupboard. "And what's more, I don't want to see him never no more!"

"I've an idea that he rushed off into Fowler's garden," I said to my wife, but loud enough for Jane to hear. "I saw something dark disappearing through the trees there. If so, he may get lost, and I devoutly hope he may."

I went to the cupboard that evening and dragged out my victim. There were a few drops of blood on the floor where he had lain, and these I carefully wiped up. Then I enveloped Jack in a newspaper by the way of shroud and pressed him into my biggest handbag. This I securely locked, and that same evening, when my wife was amusing herself with the baby in the nursery and the convenient shades of night were falling, I took a stroll with bag in the direction of the canal.

The next morning Fribbles's maid called with "missis's compliments, and had we seen anything of Jacko?"

I took it upon myself to reply to this query in the negative, at the same time inquiring sympathetically when and how he was lost.

"He ain't been home since noon yistiday, and missis is most terribly upset about 'im," replied the girl.

When I rejoined my wife I was rubbing my hands together as if in great exultation.

"The beast's lost, as I expected," I said. "And a good thing, too! Don't breathe a word about him being here yesterday, or they'll try to put the blame on us, and tell Jane not to."

After this I felt more at ease and began to regard the matter of Jacko as quite a trivial matter.

Some time that day I came across Fribbles in the street, and he confided to me his opinion that Jacko had been stolen, and said he was going to advertise for him and offer a reward.

The advertisement duly appeared, offering a reward of £1 and no inquiries made. But it necessarily failed to produce Jacko—at any rate for the present.

My wife and the baby were once more able to enjoy the pleasures of the garden, which was a source of satisfaction to both them and me. I was elated too at the trick having succeeded so well, for not only were the Fribbleses wholly without suspicion, but even my household knew nothing of my crime.

Ten days after the mysterious dis appearance of Jacko, two bargees informed Fribbles that they had come for "that there reward." They stated that they had found a monkey, and would he kindly go with them and see if it was his? He did, and found it was Jacko—he knew him by his collar.

A few days later a woman presented herself at Fribbles' house and, in consideration of a small pecuniary gift, volunteered the information that on the very night of Jacko's disappearance shed seen a tallish, well-dressed man take something out of a bag and throw it in the canal. It was almost dark at the time, she said, and she hadn't been able to see the man very clearly, for she was in a garden and couldn't get nearer to him on account of the fence.

Both these events Fribbles related to me, and as he did so it appeared to me that he eyed me more narrowly and curiously than the occasion seemed to warrant. I pooh-hooed the second story with all the nonchalance I could command, but that did not prevent Fribbles from continuing to regard me with the same icy stare.

Then that fool Jane, whether purposely—and my wife, I know, ruffled her temper that morning—or by a slip, must needs let out, in conversation with the Fribbles' maid, that Jacko had been seen in our house on that fateful day. For the first time my acting proved a trifle faulty, when Fribbles stopped me in the street and, with an almost brutal bluntness, put the query

"I say, Jones, did Jacko really come into your place the day he got lost?"

For a moment or two my knees trembled; the consciousness of guilt surged to my heart, and, I fear to my cheeks, as I replied rather disjointedly—

"Well—h'm—yes to tell—er—you the truth—er—he did—but, you see in fact, I saw him jump out of the window, and—yes, fact—bolt off into Fowlers garden."

"But, you know, Fowler's short, a stumpt fellow, and this man—I mean the chap the woman saw with the bag at the canal—was a tallish one, more your—"

"What the—" I began angrily. "You don't mean to insinuate—"

"I insinuate nothing," replied Fribbles coolly. "I was merely going to remark, if you hadn't interrupted me, that the man was nearer your height and mine than his, that was all! Good day, Jones!"

And Fribbles, with the Parthian shaft, turned on his heel and left me to work out the conclusion of the unpleasant syllogism to which he had supplied the major and minor premises.

Since then Fribbles and I have ceased to speak.

DODGE EXTRADITION.

Miller and Motley Sail for America Ahead of Police.

London, June 6.—Clark A. Miller and Alfred H. Motley, who were detatned here at the request of the American state department but later discharged because certified copies of the indictments and the requisitions were not received within the time limit set by the court, sailed for New York on the Kron Prinz Wilhelm from Cherbourg yesterday.

The New York officers who came here after the men got out a new extradition warrant yesterday afternoon, but Miller and Motley had departed three hours earlier. Detective Flood of the New York police department cabled his headquarters asking that the men be detained on their arrival in the United States.

The Americans are involved in a suit brought by William Ottman of the United States Lithograph company as a result of a dispute over patents purchased by the complainant from them.

HIGH SCHOOL ANNUAL DIES FROM LACK OF FINANCIAL SUPPORT

CLIFFORD STOWELL,
Editor-in-Chief of Industrial Echo.

ROY WILLIAMS,
Business Manager.

The Industrial Echo has quietly passed away, dying a natural death.

Lack of funds is given as the reason for the suspended publication of the first senior annual of the Industrial high school. That the necessary capital was not forthcoming, is the claim of the senior class annual board, which has now given up all hope of publishing the Echo this year.

After working on the material for the Echo for the past six months and arranging the features of the publication, the officers of the board began to campaign for advertising subscriptions. West Duluth business men did not show any inclination to use the school annual for a medium and the same situation was found among the down town business men. The recent action of the Commercial club in condemning small advertising schemes also hurt the chances of the class to secure advertising space from the larger business houses of the city.

About three weeks ago, Roy Williams, business manager of the annual, decided to suspend publication because of the small advertising space that had been contracted for up to that time. The members of the board prevailed upon him to continue his quest among the business men. This he did, but he found very little encouragement. According to the present figures, the annual will cost $185 to publish and prepare for distribution. Only $60 has been secured in advertising, which leaves a balance of $125 to be secured from the sale of the book. This is considered impossible and at a meeting of the annual board yesterday it was decided to drop the entire publication.

This year's class is the first that has attempted a senior annual. Clifford Stowell is the editor-in-chief; Roy Williams, business manager, and Miss Florence Salter, Miss Mildred Simons, Miss Anna Neubauer and Isadore Abrahamson, associate editors. The various classes were also contributing special articles and a large section was devoted to the faculty. The book was to have been dedicated to S. A. Foster, principal of the school.

LARGE SUM FOR IMPROVEMENTS

Finnish Society Will Probably Spend $60,000 on Smithville School.

About $60,000 will be spent in improvements to the Finnish People's Socialist school at Smithville, according to plans made at the convention of the Finnish National Socialist society in session at the school this week. The delegates from all parts of the country assembled in convention Monday morning and will conclude the conference with the meeting Saturday afternoon.

It is proposed to erect a new building, which will accommodate twice the number of students now attending the school. The main building will also be enlarged and a large tract of land will be purchased for campus purposes. The question is being discussed daily and it is probable that the final plans of the society will be announced by tomorrow evening.

The Finnish school at Smithville is under the control of the National Socialist society. It is the largest Finnish educational institution in the country. About 1235 students attended the school during the past semester.

DULUTH INDUSTRIAL HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The pupils of the Industrial high school deposited $92.53 with Mrs. Jensen of the First National bank this morning. This is one of the largest deposits ever made since the school banking system was organized.

* * *

The seniors are taking their final examinations this week. With the close of school tomorrow the seniors will complete their studies for the year.

The Eighth grade girls are making frozen desserts this week in their cooking classes. The girls are daily serving the boys of their class with ice cream and cakes.

The seniors will present a special matinee next Wednesday afternoon of their class play, "All a Mistake." The performance is to be given for the benefit of the students of the school, who are unable to go in the evening.

HOLD RECEPTION FOR NEW PASTOR.

Rev. H. A. Stoughton was the guest of honor at a reception held by the congregation of the West Duluth Baptist church, Fifty-ninth avenue west and Grand, in the church parlors last evening.

During the evening the following West Duluth pastors addressed the assembly, welcoming Rev. Mr. Stoughton among their number: Rev. C. W. Emery of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church; Rev. W. L. Staub of the Westminster Presbyterian church, and Rev. E. B. Collier of the Holy Apostle's Episcopal church. A program of music was rendered during the evening by the Misses Esther Larson, Gladys Stoeller, Ivadel Erickson and Mrs. G. Nylander. Mesdames T. B. Jones, M. E. Allen and George Little had charge of the reception. In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dahlquist, Mr. and Mrs. A. Richie and Rev. and Mrs. Stoughton.

Smith-Farm.

Mrs. Francis Smith and John Farm were married last evening at the Holy Apostle's Episcopal church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Elinor street. Rev. E. B. Collier, rector of the church, read the service, after which a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. T. J. Wilmot, 303 North Fifty-ninth avenue west.

The church was decorated with ferns, palms and roses. Miss Mary Barnes played the wedding march. About seventy-five guests attended the wedding reception, which followed the dinner to the relatives of the young people. The bride was attended by Miss Edith Campbell and the groomsman was Archie Wilmot, a brother of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Farm left last evening for a short wedding trip, after which they will make their home at Proctor, where Mr. Farm is employed.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF LONGFELLOW ALUMNI.

The annual banquet of the Longfellow Alumni association will be held tomorrow evening at the school assembly hall, Sixtieth avenue west and Elinor street.

Winness-Carhart.

Miss Mae Winness, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Winness og 716 Central avenue, and Clark F. Carhart, a deputy sheriff of Cook county, were married last evening at Virginia. The bride was a well-known West Duluth girl. Mr. and Mrs. Carhart will make their home at Grand Marais.

Mrs. Campbell Dies.

Mrs. Mary Campbell, 78 years old, 6311 Greene street, died at her home last evening after an illness of but two weeks. She was one of the oldest residents in West Duluth, having lived here for the past thirty years. Her husband died about fifteen years ago. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. George Dale and Mrs. Edward Fisher of Duluth, and three sons living in Western Canada. The funeral will be held at 9 o'clock Saturday morning from the St. James Catholic church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Elmer place. Rev. D. W. Lynch, rector of the church, will officiate and interment will be in Calvary cemetery.

West Duluth Briefs.

FOREMAN ON HILL FARM IS KILLED

William McGee Is Crushed When Engine Falls Through Bridge.

Hallock, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—William McGee, foreman on the J. J. Hill farm at Northcote, was instantly killed at 6 p. m. while running a gas tractor and plows across a bridge east of Northcote. The frail wooden structure broke and the heavy engine and plows crashed through. McGee, caught unawares, was unable to save himself and was pinned between the engine and plows and crushed and scalded to death.

Another tractor had crossed the bridge a few minutes previously and no danger was suspected.

The victim was 46 years old and had worked as foreman for ten months and was a close friend of Walter Hill, manager of the farm, who is nearly distracted over the accident and has stopped work for a few days as a tribute to the deceased. Mr. Hill's men took the body to the train today and it will be taken to Kalispell, Mont., McGee's parental home, for interment. He lived on the farm and had a wife and three children.

WILLIAM GETTY IS REAPPOINTED

William Getty was reappointed by the board of county commissioners in session this morning to a three-year term on the St. Louis county sanitarium commission.

Mr. Getty has served on the board for about eighteen months. He was appointed to succeed Walter J. Smith, one of the first appointees. Mr. Smith resigned after his election as state treasurer.

The county board this morning received an invitation from the sanitarium commission to visit the recently completed institution near Midway. It is expected that they will go out tomorrow.

The new sanitarium, which is known as Nopeming, was erected at a cost of $50,000 and is one of the finest institutions of its kind in the state.

Surveyors Working East.

Fessenden, N. D., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Great Northern surveying crew, which is laying out the new road from New Rockford to Lewistown, Mont., is now camped twenty miles west of here. They are working east and this would indicate that they have met obstacles on the line approaching Lisbon and are in search of a better route.

RAILROADS

NICOLES IS TRANSFERRED

Duluth Man Made Superintendent of Fargo Division of Northern Pacific.

A. V. Brown of Livingstone, Mont., Will Succeed Him Here.

A. V. Brown of Livingstone, Mont., arrived in Duluth to become superintendent of the Lake Superior division of the Northern Pacific Railway company.

K. M. Nicoles, who has been superintendent at Duluth for the past six years, goes to Fargo.

The sending of the superintendents from one point to another is the policy of the company, the officers believing in the rotation of division officers.

Mr. Nicoles has made many friends among railroad men while in Duluth and it is with reluctance that they see him shifted to another point.

Mr. Brown is described as a "live wire," having made quite a reputation for himself as superintendent of the Livingstone, Mont., division.

Mr. Nicoles will leave Saturday for Fargo. The Fargo division is one of the most important on the line.

DOUBLE TRACK FOR OMAHA

President Gardner Announces Improvement on Line to Eau Claire.

Says Duluth Business Is Growing Rapidly—On Tour of Inspection.

"We are laying a double track from Eau Claire, Wis., to Chicago and hope soon to complete a double track to Duluth," said William A. Gardner of Chicago, president of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railroad company, when seen in his private car at the Omaha station this morning.

With Mr. Gardner on a trip of inspection are: J. T. Clark, second vice president, of St. Paul; A. W. Trenholm, general manager, St. Paul; F. R. Pechin, general superintendent, St. Paul; H. R. McCullough, Chicago; A. C. Johnson, traveling passenger manager, Chicago; George H. MacRae, general passenger agent, St. Paul and H. M. Pierce, freight traveling manager, St. Paul.

The party got in from St. Paul last night over a special. They left this afternoon at 3 o'clock for St. Paul.

"We are strong for Duluth," said Mr. Gardner. Business is looking better up this way. Your jobbing business is constantly getting bigger year by year. There isn't much that would interest the people of Duluth that I think of at at the present time. We are simply out on a trip of inspection."

SPECIAL CARS TO RED WING

Duluth Commercial Travelers Will Attend Annual State Convention.

About 100 members of the local United Commercial Travelers will leave tonight in special cars over the Northern Pacific for Red Wing, Minn., where the annual state convention will be held.

They are taking with them the Third Regiment band and they promise to "whoop it up for Duluth."

The annual convention is a big event among the traveling men and they will gather at Red Wing from all parts of the state. The U. C. T. members are known as great Duluth boosters and they promise the city at the Head of the Lakes some unique advertising at Red Wing.

ROAD FUNDS APPORTIONED

County Sets Aside $27,300 for Use in Four Districts.

State Highway Patrolman for Miller Trunk Road Will Be Named.

For county road work to be prosecuted in the Second, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth commissioner's districts, the county board this morning at its monthly meeting appropriated $27,300. The money is for work which is to be done at once.

The largest appropriation was for work to be done in Commissioner Overton's district, where $9,900 will be spent. In Commissioner McMahon's district $7,000 has been appropriated; in Commissioner McInnis' district, $5,300, and in Commissioner Frazer's district, $5,100.

Several roads were legalized at today's session. Among them were: Larsen road, 50-14, 50-15; Osborn road, 60-17, 60-18, 60-19, 60-20, 60-21; extension Peterson road, 62-21; Wien road, 69-19, 62-20; Gilbert road, 57-16, 58-16 and southern extension of Greaney road, 62-21.

At its session this afternoon the county board will appoint a state highway patrolman for the Miller trunk road, which has been designated as a state highway as well as a county road. He will be paid by the state highway commission and his duties will be similar to that of a section foreman for a railroad company.

The board let several road contracts today and set the dates for a number of hearings on road petitions which have been received since the last adjournment of the board.

School District No. 76 was established today. It is located in township 61-20 and was formerly a part of District No. 45.

The commissioners received the petition for division of the town of Fields in 62-18 and 62-19. Settlers in 62-18 are asking for the division and want to name their part of the present town organization Owens after John Owens, a well known old settler. There will be a hearing on the matter in August.

The board granted the request of Sheriff John R. Meining asking for an extension of one month from June 1 for the collection of the delinquent personal property taxes.

The sum of $100 was appropriated for the purchase of a gravel pit in 54-17. The pit comprises one acre and will be bought from R. P. Saling.

The Citizen's State Bank of Duluth, a new institution recently organized at West Duluth, was made a depository for the county funds today, the commissioners approving a $15,000 bond which was offered.

MRS. ZIMMER DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Mrs. Joseph Zimmer, aged 43 years, of 115 West Second street, died yesterday afternoon of a complication of diseases. Death took place at St. Mary's hospital where Mrs. Zimmer had been treated for two months. She had been a resident of the city for ten years, having lived at West Duluth part of the time and later in the West end. She was very well known locally.

The funeral took place this afternoon from the Cathedral and this evening the remains will be taken to Mrs. Zimmer's old home, Indianapolis, Ind., for interment.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Zimmer leaves several sisters and brothers, who are: Mrs. G. W. Cook, Mrs. Samuel Lanegan and John Miller of Indianapolis, George Miller of Atkins, Ind., and Charles Miller of Reading, Pa.

McNAMARAS REFUSE TO WORK IN PRISON.

San Quentin, Cal., June 6.—James B., and John J. McNamara, the former serving a life sentence and the latter fourteen years in San Quentin prison as the result of confessions in the Los Angeles dynamiting conspiracy, have been deprived of their credits, having been accused of failing to perform the tasks assigned them. They were removed from the jute mill, according to Warden Hoyle, after repeated warnings had proved ineffectual.

BACKWOODS FARMER BOY WANTS TO BE NEXT GOVERNOR

PROF. CHARLES ANDRIST.

Duluth is entertaining a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor in the person of Prof. Charles Andrist, who is a member of the Hennepin county delegation.

Prof. Andrist was born in a log hut on a farm in Goodhue county in 1868. Upon reaching the age of 21 he decided to secure an education so he went to Minneapolis, where he entered the sub freshman class of the university in the autumn of 1889, and after five years of struggle against adversity he received his degree of B. L. in 1894. During his stay at the university Mr. Andrist worked his entire way, supporting himself at whatever he could find to do, such as working in a grocery store, janitoring churches, tending furnaces, taking care of horses, and teaching in the evening schools of the city of Minneapolis; in his summer vacation he also earned considerable money by experting harvesters for the various harvesting machine companies. Upon graduation he was offered a position on the faculty of the university, where he remained for five years, during which time he earned the master's degree and pursued the study of law. In the spring of 1899 he resigned his position at the university in order to go abroad as a representative of the Deering Harvester company, and at the Paris exposition in 1900, he had supervision of the exhibit of the above mentioned concern. After the close of the exposition Mr. Andrist became assistant to the European manager and general traveler, remaining with the company until July, 1905, when he returned to America, where he accepted a position as general traveler with Deere & Co., which place he held two years. In the autumn of 1907, wearied with travel and constant absence from home, he decided to accept the invitation of the board of regents to return to the university.

SCANDINAVIANS DESIRE THEIR LANGUAGE TAUGHT.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Scandinavian citizens have petitioned the local board of education to add Scandinavian language to the regular high school curriculum as an elective subject. Rev. H. J. Glenn, student pastor of one of the Lutheran churches addressing the board, urged favorable action.

Rev. Mr. Glenn said the school census showed that 25 per cent of the pupils in the grades and 22 per cent of the high school students were of Scandinavian descent. The board has referred the matter to the committee on teachers and schools who will confer with Supt. J. M. Kelly of the city schools, Prof. L. E. Birdzell of the law school, and Samuel Torgerson and report at the next meeting.

EIGHTH DISTRICT CAUCUS ADJOURNS.

At 2:45 o'clock this afternoon the Eighth district delegates were still in caucus over the election of district delegate. Alfred Jaques was elected to one of the positions, and for the other the vote stood 44 for B. Galarneault and 43 for C. M. King, with Cook and Anoka county delegates missing, being tied up in committee meetings. It was decided to authorize the secretary of the caucus to receive the votes of these delegates, and the caucus then adjourned to return to the convention. The Eighth district caucus was held at the city hall and the other district caucuses at the Spalding hotel.

PUTS LAWYER ON THE STAND

Defense in Darrow Trial Makes an Unexpected Move.

Seeks to Show Private Interests at Work in the Prosecution.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 6.—Chief Counsel Rogers of the defense in the trial of Clarance S. Darrow for alleged jury-bribery, today placed Assistant District Attorney W. J. Ford on the stand and subjected him to a rapid-fire examination.

The sudden move of the defense apparently was inspired by a desire to show co-operation between federal and state governments in the Darrow prosecution.

Bert Franklin's probable relations with the district attorney's office and the Merchants & Manufacturers' association comprised the subject of a searching cross-examination of the witnesses when Franklin resumed the stand today.

Franklin testified that about two weeks before he entered the employ of the McNamara defense, he had applied to W. J. Ford for employment. Since his arrest for jury bribery, Franklin said, he had visited the offices of the Merchants & Manufacturers' association on two occasions.

Objection by Fredericks.

District Attorney Fredericks objected to the injection of the Merchants & Manufacturers' association into the case. He declared the organization had nothing to do with the prosecution of Darrow or the testimony of the witness.

The new line of attack on Franklin by the Darrow defense was construed as an attempt to show that Franklin had close relations with those who were said to be most deeply interested in the prosecution of the McNamara brothers.

Rogers referred to the half dozen men present at the association's offices on the occasion of Franklin's first visit, as the "select committee." Franklin said he knew nothing of any such committee, and added that the men were "all my friends, for which I thank God."

"Matter of Business."

"How does it come, then," asked Rogers, "that those men who were your close friends, were the prosecuting committee of the Merchants' & Manufacturers' association and you were an employe of the defense?"

Franklin said it was a matter of business with him, "just as it is yours to defend Mr. Darrow."

District Attorney Fredericks made a lengthy argument against further questions concerning the Merchants' & Manufacturers' association. He declared the association had no interest in the prosecution of the Darrow case.

The objections of the prosecutor were overruled and Attorney Rogers continued interrogating the witness as to his relations with the organization, which Rogers declared had been in charge for years of the fight against union labor in Los Angeles, and which was at the present time very close to the prosecution in the Darrow case.

SOME LEETONIA MINERS QUIT JOBS

Two or Three Hundred Go Out Because They Are Denied Liquor.

Hibbing, Minn., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two or three hundred men employed underground by the Leetonia Mining company in their mines four miles from here, have gone out on a strike, presumably because the warfare against blind pigs in this district has cut them out of their usual supply of beer and other drink. They are mosty Montenegrins and it is hard to learn here just what their grievance is beyond the report they quit because the stringent regulations against beer being sold in keg lots deprives them of their drink. The open pit miners are still working and the company is still shipping today. The officers of the Leetonia will not talk beyond saying they do not know why the men quit.

The men went out yesterday and refused to show up today. About 100 are still working.

OBITUARY

United States Senator George S. Nixon of Nevada died in Washington, D. C., June 5, at 10 o'clock p. m. Senator Nixon had been in a hospital since last Thursday, when an operation for nasal catarrh was performed. Spinal meningitis developed, and the senator's condition soon became critica. For the last twenty-four hours his death had been momentarily expected. Early Wednesday a Christian Science practitioner, William S. Campbell, was called into the case. The senator's wife and relatives in Nevada had been notified of his condition and they are now hurrying to Washington.

Senator Nixon was one of the most conspicuous mining magnates in the West and was intimately associated with the great operations at Goldfield, in his home state. He was 52 years old, and a native of California, going to Nevada early in life. He acquired large interests at Reno, Goldfield and elsewhere and began his political career with service in the Nevada legislature. He was attacked by magazine writers owing to the methods by which they claimed he acquired his fortune, for he was rated as several times a millionaire, with a personal following unequalled by any other man in his state.

Judge Thomas J. Morris of the federal district of Maryland, died at Baltimore, Md., June 6 of apoplexy. He was 74 years old and had been a United States judge for thirty-four years.

Tito Ricordi, head of the music publishing house of Ricordi & Co., and publisher of the works of Verdi, Botto and Puccini, died in Milan, Italy, June 6. Ricordi was born in 1840.

Rev. Charles McClellan Southgate died suddenly in Boston, Mass., June 5. He was born at Monroe, Mich., in 1845.

George Edmund Foss, aged 82, father of Governor Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts and Congressman George E. Foss of Illinois, died at his home in Jamaica Plains, Boston, June 6, after an illness of several months. At his bedside were Governor Foss, Congressman Foss and other member of the family. Mr. Foss was born in Derby, Vt., but when a child his parents moved to Burke, Franklin county, New York, where he lived until he was 18 years old. Then he returned to Vermont and later engaged in business, first as a builder and contractor, and later in the commission bulsness at St. Albans. In 1898 Mr. Foss retired from business. After residing in Chicago a few years he went to Boston, where he had since lived.

Stephen A. Chase, treasurer of the Christian Science Church of America, died at his home in Fall River, Mass., June 6, after a few days' illness. Mr. Chase was 73 years old. In 1884 he became interested in Christian Science and the following year he received instructions from Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, the founder of the Christian Science denomination. In 1892 Mrs. Eddy appointed Mr. Chase one of the Christian Science board of directors, and later he was elected treasurer of the "Mother church," a position which he held until his death.

WILL KEEP UP HIS FIGHT ON HANFORD

Congressman Berger Will Urge Impeachment of Federal Judge.

Washington, June 6.—Encouraged by a letter from Attorney General Wickersham recommending re-opening of the case depriving Leonard Oleson of Seattle of citizenship because he was a Socialist, Representative Berger of Wisconsin has declared his intention of urging impeachment proceedings against United States District Judge Hanford, who decided the issue.

Representative Berger averred he would exercise his prerogative as a member of the house and would call up as a matter of special privilege a resolution for the impeachment of Judge Hanford. Berger laid before the president and the attorney general a copy of the record in the Oleson case, and received a letter from Wickersham saying that "gross injustice has been done to Mr. Oleson." Oleson's certificate of naturalization was cancelled by Judge Hanford on testimony that Oleson subscribed to the principles of the Socialist party.

Unusual Procedure.

The form of impeachment will be unusual to the house. Under the Constitution a member can rise to his place and impeach a judge. It is a question of the highest privilege, and under the rules must be taken up. If the resolution is adopted, the judiciary committee is charged with preparing the case for presentation to the senate.

The house may not take action on Representative Berger's resolution of impeachment at this time, it is reported, postponing it until the next session of congress.

Socialists Will Not Halt.

Seattle, Wash., June 6.—Samuel Sadler, who conferred with Congressman Victor Berger in Indianapolis relative to proceedings against Judge Hanford, and who is a member of the committee appointed by the Socialist national committee to collect evidence against Judge Hanford, said that Attorney General Wickersham's decision would not affect the proposed impeachment proceedings.

The Socialist party, said Sadler, held that Hanford's decision in the Oleson case was the culmination of a long line of decisions against workingmen. A great mass meeting is soon to be held here, Sadler said, for the purpose of denouncing Judge Hanford.

DUCHESS OF CONNAUGHT EXPECTED TO RECOVER.

Montreal, June 6.—The following bulletin was issued at 10 o'clock this morning by the physicians attending the duchess of Connaught:

"Her royal highness, the duchess of Connaught, passed a fairly good night and is making as satisfactory progress towards recovery as can be expected."

TRICKS OF THE CINEMATOGRAPH.

A trick picture is usually the combined efforts of the comic-plot writer and the expert cinematograph operator, says a writer in the Strand. The operator is continually puzzling his brains for new effects with the camera. He conveys these to the plot-writer, who works them up in the form of a very short story. When we see the finished production on the screen it is, to most of us, a work of complete mystery, and it is asked, "Are they really taken from life?" We often see, for instance, omnibuses traveling at a speed of 100 miles an hour, flowers which jump from a table and arrange themselves in a vase, or a man diving with the greatest ease head-first out of a river and landing on his feet on the bank. "How are these things done?"

In order to discover these secrets, permission was obtained to join a picture company who were then engaged in the production of a film entitled "The Uncanny Scot." The party consisted of a stock company of a dozen or more actors and actresses, a stage manager, a photographer, and some stagehands. The work to be done consisted chiefly of outdoor street scenes, and a journey was made some fourteen miles out of London in order to avoid the unpaying audiences which such strange scenes always bring together. The plot of the picture in hand was given to us to read, and, though some of it was perfectly intelligible, the plot contained such mystifying notes as "Stop," "Reverse," "Turn on stop," and "Sub dummy." These were the stage tricks we had come to investigate.

The work commenced outside a cigar store and each scene was most carefully rehearsed. A youthful actor, as an errand-boy who was engaged in opening the shop, brought from it a dummy Scotchman in the act of taking snuff, and placed it in position at the shop door. At this point the stage manager, who was conducting the operations, blew a whistle, and instantly the boy remained motionless and the modus operandi of the first trick was revealed.

The company understood by the whistle that they were to cease the slightest movement, and the photographer that he must instantly stop the camera.

The dummy of the Scotchman was now removed, and an actor identically dressed was arranged in precisely the same position. The whistle went again and the boy resumed his work. When next passing the Scotchman he received a kick from him, which caused him to bolt into the shop in terror. The whistle now sounded again, and a further substitution of dummy for man was made by the stage hands. An actor-tobacconist came out of the shop, and the boy explained what had happened, but was dumbfounded when the master turned the figure upside down and thus showed it to be lifeless. The scene proceeded, with many stops and changes from the live Scotchman to the inanimate dummy. Stopping the camera simultaneously with the cessation of all animation insured that the effect on the screen would be perfectly continuous, as, of course, the film would be run through without any break.

WOMAN'S TRAVELS IN AFRICA.

London Daily Mail: Miss Olive Macleod, who traveled through Nigeria, the German Cameroons and the French Congo to set up a stone on the grave of Lieut. Boyd Alexander, to whom she had been engaged, told how she had traveled close on 4,000 miles in Africa, chiefly on foot and horseback, penetrating to many spots which no white feet had ever trod before.

What struck one in her gossiping account of her travels was that humanity is ever much the same beneath the surface all over the world. A native sultan's court, she said, reminded her very much of a European monarch's. The court officials had much the same apportionment of duties and quarrelled about precedence in the same way.

Black belles wear false tails of hair and pads to make their own appear more luxuriant. Even their little children play marbles in the English style. And when reformers among us advocate certificates of fitness for marriage they are only pleading for a system which obtains among many West African tribes.

The young men of these tribes are tested as to their manliness and endurance by being beaten with strips of leather or by being obliged to climb up the face of an almost perpendicular rock. Unless they satisfy the test they cannot marry. No women would accept them as husbands.

One very interesting point was that the natives pick up English quickly and regard it as 'white man's language." If Frenchmen and Germans cannot speak it they are not looked upon as "proper white men." So general is this view that the German officers and sergeants are obliged to drill their black troops with English words of command.

THE CAPITAL OF INDIA.

Empire Magazine: The commercial instinct of the East India company led it to perpetrate a great outrage upon Indian national susceptibilities by removing the capital to Calcutta. Ever since the dawn of civilization Delhi had figured as the government seat. The Hindus and Moslems both had favored it in this way. Off and on in the course of centuries whimsical rulers had jilted India's hub for some other favorite city, but sooner or later the lucky metropolis always managed to gain the upper hand over its rivals.

The East India company, knowing little of and caring less for the sentiments of Indians, established the capital of India at Calcutta, for situated as it was on the banks of the Hooghli, a navigable river, it was easy of access from the sea, whereas Delhi was hundreds of miles from any port.

When the suzerainty of the peninsula was transferred from the commercial corporation to the British crown at the close of the Indian Sepoy mutiny of 1857, Hindustan hoped that justice would be done to its imperial city; but it was disappointed.

Again expectation ran high when the assemblage was held at Delhi in 1877, especially in view of the fact that the British by that time had learned enough about their Oriental subjects to convene the durbar there instead of at Calcutta; but the people once more were doomed to disappointment. When King Edward was proclaimed emperor of India in 1903 the natives were thrilled by the same hope, only to have it dashed to the ground.

Thus it has been reserved for King George V to right this wrong and make all Hindustan happy over it. Only a very limited number of people will decry this measure. Among these no doubt are the alien and native merchants and property holders of Calcutta who have fed and fattened on the necessities of those who must perforce make their homes in the capital.

BEETLES THAT GROW MUSHROOMS.

Chicago Tribune: Scientists have known of mushroom growing ants for a long time and it was generally believed that the ant was the only insect possessing sufficient intelligence to make a successful mushroom farmer. Prof. J. Bouverie, the French entomologist, has found that a certain wood boring beetle known as the bostrychide is as familiar with mushroom cultivation for home consumption as the ant.

Prof. Bouverie discovered that the beetles bore holes in wood and half fill them with a prepared fungus which makes an ideal mushroom bed. The garden is carefully spawned and tended and in course of time the satisfactory color to be had in foil-beetle provides itself with a food sufficiently tender for its feeble jaws.

RAINS ROUT WHEAT BULLS

Precipitation in the Drouth-Stricken Southwest Lowers Wheat.

July Flaxseed on Duluth Market Continues Its Steady Climb.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 6.—Wheat was lowered on the principal markets of the United States today by reason of the reports of rains in Kansas and Nebraska. Duluth July wheat closed today 1c lower. Cash wheat closed 1c over July. Durum was unchanged. Oats closed ½c higher, rye unchanged and barley unchanged to 1c lower. Duluth July flax closed at an advance of 4½c.

Wheat, though at times bullish this morning, showed a decided downward tendency before noon, by reason of the reports of rain in the drouth-stricken hard winter wheat region of the Southwest. The rains were by no means such as to break the drouth but they went far in the direction of relieving the general anxiety over weather conditions in that part of the country.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.14¼ asked, opened today at $1.14, had quite a bulge early in the day but lost it later and by noon was selling at $1.13⅞. Wheat was likewise off at Minneapolis and Chicago but still slightly up at Winnipeg.

News from Liverpool was slightly bearish, wheat closing there ½d to ¾d lower. This was based mainly by improved weather reports in the American Southwest and a private report of larger wheat shipments from Argentina.

July Flaxseed Climbing.

Duluth July flaxseed did some climbing this morning that seemed to bear out the prophecy of E. H. Smith, to the effect that it would act very much as the May option did. At noon today it was up 4½c at $2.32½ bid. At the same time Winnipeg July was 2c higher at $2 bid. The continued scarcity of the No. 1 seed on the American market had much to do with the strength of July. At Winnipeg, delivery of an inferior grade can be made at a discount, even if the contract calls for future delivery of the highest grade on the market, but no inferior grade can be substituted at Duluth. That is one reason why contracts are not made on the Winnipeg market for the finest grade of flaxseed in order to ship it to Duluth to satisfy the high priced options here. There is always the possibility under the Winnipeg market rules that a lower grade will be substituted at a discount in prices and the lower grade will fall short of suiting for delivery on the Duluth future. June flaxseed on the Buenos Ayres market closed yesterday at an advance of 5⅝c at $1.81⅛, and this morning opened at a further advance of 1¼c. London Calcutta May and June closed ⅜c off today at $2.29.

Kansas City papers said this morning that the west two-thirds of Kansas had showers yesterday afternoon and last night with heavy rains from Dodge City to Newton. There were rains this morning at Grand Island, Neb., and it was cloudy at North Platte and Lincoln.

Weather reports were received today from various parts of the Southwest as follows: Topeka—Cloudy, cold and threatening. Lawrence—Light showers about 6 o'clock last night. Peabody, Kan.—Big rain last night. Reading, Kan.—Big rain last night. Hutchinson, Kan.—No rain. Florence, Kan.—Heavy rain last night. Great Bend and Elwood, Kan.—No rain. Larned, Kan.—Rain this morning.

The Van Dusen-Harrington Company of Minneapolis today issued the following crop letter:

"Since our last letter Minnesota, North and South Dakota have had weather a little more favorable for top growth. There have been a few warm days, but we should have more of them. Some unfavorable reports have been received. In Central Minnesota, in some places, growth is too rank. North Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota have been visited during the past week with high winds and dust storms, which have done some damage to flax and wheat already above the ground. This damage will probably not be very serious since it came so early that the plants will grow again, or the ground will be reseeded. Flax and barley seeding in North Dakota is not yet completed, but from present prospects there will be a material increase in the flax acreage in all three states. With rain in Central South Dakota and in those parts of North Dakota and Minnesota which have suffered from high winds and dust storms, and with good growing weather from now on, we feel that the prospects are still very favorable for a good crop."

John Inglis writes from St. Louis: "This is my third trip through Southern Illinois, and each time wheat is worse and worse. On my previous trip there was hope for improvement; now there is none. It is going back rapidly, not from lack of moisture, but from lack of root. At the present time much of it is digging up at the roots and the heads are turning white. Thousands of acres that promised a little will never be cut. It looks all right from the train, but I never walked through worse fields. Should it get hot, it will ripen up in ten days, but it will not be wheat. There is much corn land to plow yet. Everything is late and nothing is looking well. There are some places that have wheat, notably around New Athens, Red Land and Waterloo, but even there there are fields that are not worth cutting."

MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Prices Decline on Scattered Rains in Kansas and Nebraska.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 6.—The wheat market registered further moderate declines on more scattered rains in Kansas and Nebraska. All options closed ½c lower than yesterday. Local elevator stocks decreased 975,000 bushels for five days.

Carload wheat receipts follow: Minneapolis today, 44; week ago, holiday; year ago, 138.

Duluth today, 32; week ago, holiday; year ago, 47.

Winnipeg today, 170; week ago, 250; year ago, 115.

Cash wheat was in good demand today and the market was quoted about steady. Mills active buyers and receipts light. No. 1 northern sold for about 2c above the July contract.

Millstuffs — Shipments, 1,899 tons. Prices lowered today. Demand still slow and production light.

Wheat — July opened $1.12⅝@1.12½; high, $1.12⅞; low, $1.11⅞@1.11⅝; close, $1.12. September opened, $1.05; high, $1.05⅜; low, $1.04¼; closed $1.04¼. December closed $1.04⅞ nominal.

Closing cash price: No. 1 hard, $1.14½; No. 1 northern, $1.13¾@1.14; to arrive, $1.13⅞@1.14; No. 2 northern, $1.11⅞@1.12; to arrive, $1.11¾@1.12¾; No. 3, $1.10; No. 3 yellow corn, 72½@76½c; No. 3 white oats, 51@51½c; No. 3 rye, 83½c. Bran in 100-pound sacks $20.00@21.00.

Flour prices were lowered today on account of the further decline in wheat. Demand was slow, but some slight improvement was noticed on the decline. Shipping directions were active. First patents, $5.45@5.65; second patents, $5.10@5.35; first clears, $3.80@4.05; second clears, $2.70@3.00.

Flax receipts 13 cars; year ago, 5; shipments, 5. Fair demand for flax today. Spot No. 1 seed sold for the even Duluth July to 1c under. Closing price, $2.31½@2.32½.

Barley—Receipts 10 cars, year ago, 10; shipments, 7. Barley remained slow and steady. Demand only fair and prices unchanged. Closing range, 65c@$1.15.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Is Weaker on Account of the Rains in Kansas.

Chicago, June 6.—Wheat showed weakness today on account of the fact that the rains in Kansas during the last twenty-four hours, though not heavy, were general. Moisture in Eastern Nebraska and cloudy, cool weather in both states tended further to discourage the bulls. In addition, Liverpool sent word of increased shipments from the Argentine and of speculation being hindered by a recent failure. The opening was the same as last night to ⅜@½c down. September started at $1.04⅞@1.05 to $1.05, a loss of ⅜c to ⅞@1⅛c, and fell to $1.04⅝@1.04¾.

Subsequently dust storm damage in the Dakotas and alleged hopeless crop prospects in Southern Illinois tended to bring about an upturn. The effect, however, did not last. Closing prices were steady at $1.04¾ for September, a net decline of ⅝c.

Selling from the country and from commission houses had a depressing effect on corn. The chief effect seemed to be the bearish action of wheat. July opened unchanged to ¼c off at 73¾c, but rallied to 73⅞c.

An advance followed owing to many reports of replanting in Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois. The close was steady with July at 74¼c, a net gain of ½c.

A drop in the price of oats stimulated buying that more than wiped out the decline. Unloading on the part of pit longs occasioned the initial backset. July started ⅛@¼c to ⅜c off at 50⅛c to 50½@50⅜c and recovered to 50½@50⅝c.

An advance at the yards put stiffness into the provision market. Initial sales varied from last night's level to 5c advance, with September delivery $18.85 for pork, $11.07½@11.10 for lard, and $10.60 for ribs.

Cash grain: Wheat—No. 2 red, $1.11@1.12½; No. 3 red, $1.08½@1.10½; No. 2 hard, $1.10@1.11½; No. 3 hard, $1.08@1.09½; No. 1 northern, $1.16@1.19; No. 2 northern, $1.15@1.18; No. 3 northern, $1.10@1.16; No. 2 spring, $1.11@1.17; No. 3 spring, $1.09@1.15; No. 4 spring, $1.03@1.12; velvet chaff, $1.05@1.14; durum, $1.01@1.09.

ACTIVITY IN STOCKS

Trading Larger Than of Late and Market Is Strong.

Reports of Improved Condition of Trade Cause of Bullishness.

New York, June 6.—General strength was shown by stocks at today's opening. Amalgamated Copper advanced a full point. Other strong features included Steel, the Southern group of railroads, the Coal stocks, and Erie second preferred. The only stock to show a decline was Canadian Pacific, which fell 1⅜.

The activity and strength of the opening increased during the first hour with a greater distribution of dealings which, however, favored industrials more than railway shares.

Trading in the early session of the stock exchange today was the largest of any similar period this week, while the diversity of dealings was in keeping with the greater activity.

In the better known issues, steel and the coppers led the upward movement, both being assisted by further reports of an improved trade condition, and another advance in copper metal. Reading and Lehigh Valley were again conspicuous features, but the more material gains were in such specialties as nuff, Beet Sugar and some of the dorman Steel shares. Recessions from the top were general by noon.

Bonds were firm.

Prices fell back with the coalers and Harriman stocks selling slightly below yesterday's closing. Subsequent active bidding for Amalgamated Copper, which touched 87⅝c, failed to elicit much of a response elsewhere.

The market closed strong. Union Pacific, the Hill issues, Norfolk & Western, Amalgamated and Steel made their best prices in the last hour with a revival of early activity. Reading, Lehigh Valley and Union Pacific and some other standard stocks later fell back.

The New York stock quotations furnished by Gay & Sturgis, 326 West Superior street.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

The resolution by Alderman Hicken directing the building inspector to investigate the question of supporting trolley wires on buildings on Superior street was read and on motion of Alderman MacDonell action was postponed for one week.

By Alderman Makowski:

Whereas, It is the opinion of this council that the Duluth Street Railway company should forthwith construct a double track railway up from East Fourth street and Fifth avenue east, to accommodate the large population that now is without street car service, and that such extension of service is necessary,

And whereas, the said Duluth Street Railway company has, and has for a long time heretofore had materials collected and ready and willing to construct said street railway as soon as the city council directed a route upon, which the same should be constructed,

Now, therefore, be it resolved, That the Duluth Street Railway company,

Be and is hereby required to forthwith construct a double track street railway from East Fourth street up Fifth avenue east to Fifth street, thence east on Fifth street to Sixth avenue east, thence up Sixth avenue east to Seventh street, thence east on Seventh street to Seventh avenue east, thence up Seventh avenue east to Ninth street, thence east on Ninth street to Chester park.

Alderman Makowski moved the adoption of the resolution and it was declared adopted upon the following vote:

Yeas—Aldermen Bernard, Gibson, Hector, Hogan, Krueger, MacDonell, Makowski, Miller, Neff, Phillips, Sandberg, Scott, President Hoar—13.
Nays—Alderman Curren—1.
Passed June 3, 1912.
Approved June 5, 1912.

To the Common Council:

Your committee on bridges, viaducts and ferries to which was referred recommendation of the board of public works, having considered the same, recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

GEO. H. NEFF,
W. M. MILLER,
E. J. SANDBERG,
Committee.

Resolved, That there is hereby appropriated from the permanent improvement fund the sum of $500.00 to pay the city's share of the cost of reconstructing the wooden viaduct on Twenty-seventh avenue west over the railroad tracks.

Alderman Neff moved the adoption of the resolution and it was declared adopted upon the following vote:

Yeas—Aldermen Bernard, Curren, Gibson, Hogan, Krueger, MacDonell, Makowski, Miller, Neff, Phillips, Sandberg, Scott, President Hoar—13, Nays—Alderman Hector—1.
Passed June 3, 1912.
Approved June 5, 1912.

To the Common Council:

Your committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks to which was referred recommendation of the board of public works, having considered the same, recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

WILLIAM L. BERNARD,
JNO. HOGAN,
Z. D. SCOTT,
Committee.

Resolved, That it is necessary for the city to take an easement in land for the construction of slopes or retaining walls for cuts and fills upon all the real property abutting on the so-called Farrell road from Ninth avenue east northeasterly to the boulevard and it is hereby ordered that such easement be condemned; and resolved, further, that the city clerk is hereby directed to certify a copy of this resolution to the city engineer as notice of the aforesaid determination of this council.

An opportunity was given for anyone to be heard relative to taking the property in question and no one appeared in opposition to the same.

Alderman Bernard moved the adoption of the resolution and it was declared adopted by a unanimous yea vote of all present, on roll call.

Passed June 3, 1912.
Approved June 5, 1912.

MOTIONS AND RESOLUTIONS.

The following consolidated resolution was offered by Aldermen Gibson and Hicken.

Resolved, That the board of public works is hereby directed to cause sidewalks to be constructed as follows:

A 5-foot cement walk on the west side of Eighteenth avenue east from London road southerly 300 feet.

A temporary 3-plank walk on the south side of Tioga street from Fifty-first avenue east, easterly 200 feet.

Resolved, further, That said board is hereby directed to proceed in accordance with the provisions of the city charter to levy assessments upon the property benefited to defray the cost of said sidewalks, together with such other expenses as under the provisions of said charter may be assessed.

Resolved further, That said board is hereby directed that the cost of said sidewalks be paid out of the general fund.

Alderman Gibson moved the adoption of the resolution and it was declared adopted by a unanimous yea vote of all present, on roll call.

Passed May 3, 1912.
Approved May 5, 1912.

By Alderman Gibson:

Resolved, That the board of public works is hereby directed to discontinue proceedings heretofore instituted for the construction of a 5-foot plank walk on front of lots 6, 7, and 8, block 182, West Duluth, Seventh division.

Alderman Gibson moved the adoption of the resolution and it was declared adopted by a unanimous yea vote of all present, on roll call.

Passed June 3, 1912.
Approved June 5, 1912.

By Alderman Krueger:

Resolved, That the board of public works is hereby directed to discontinue proceedings heretofore instituted for the construction of a 4-foot plank walk on the east side of Gary street from Commonwealth avenue to Ninety-ninth avenue west.

Resolved further, That said board is hereby directed to proceed in accordance with the provisions of the city charter to levy assessments upon the property benefited to defray the cost of said sidewalks together with such other expenses as under the provisions of the said charter may be assessed.

Resolved further, That said board is hereby directed that the cost of said sidewalks be paid out of the general fund.

Alderman Kruger moved the adoption of the resolution and it was declared adopted by a unanimous yea vote of all present, on roll call.

Passed May 3, 1912.
Approved May 5, 1912.

By Alderman Phillips:

Whereas, Judge Cornelius Hanford of the United States court at Seattle, Wash., has presumed to take it upon himself to interpret the constitutional laws of the United States as ever imperishable and never subject to change, and has dared to presume with impunity that no person is eligible to citizenship in this country who expresses an opinion that from time to time political changes are both necessary and desirable to keep pace with modern progress in field, factory and workshop, and

Whereas, the said Judge Cornelius Hanford has refused to grant naturalization papers to one, Leonard Oleson, for the sole and only reason that the said Leonard Oleson had declared that he is "a Socialist," and

Whereas, Socialism, as we understand its definition, declares for economic changes through political action and for legal peaceable means intelligently expressed at the ballot box.

Be it therefore resolved by the common council of the city of Duluth, That we most emphatically condemn this unfair action of Judge Cornelius Hanford, and demand that impeachment proceedings shall at once be instituted against him by those persons properly authorized to do so and that he be removed from public office on the grounds that he has proven himself unfit for impartial and unbiased reasoning; that he has disgraced the dignity of his judicial position, and that such tactics and actions tend to do more to create disrespect for law and order than all the silly vaporings and rantings of misguided fanatics.

Be it further resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the governor of the state of Washington, also to Congressman Clarence B. Miller, and also to the common council of the city of Seattle, Wash.

Alderman Phillips moved the adoption of the resolution.

Alderman Curren moved that the resolution be referred to the committee on ordinances and resolutions.

The motion was declared adopted upon the following vote:

Yeas—Aldermen Bernard, Curren, Gibson, Hogan, Krueger, MacDonell, Makowski, Miller, Neff, Sandberg, President Hoar—11.
Nays—Aldermen Hector, Phillips, Scott—3.

By Alderman Hicken:

Resolved, That the city treasurer is hereby directed to receive from the owner of lots 9 and 13, block 54, Lester Park, Fourth division, the amount of the original assessment levied against said lots for the construction of a sewer in Superior street, provided the same is paid within fifteen days from the date of the passage of this resolution and further, provided the owner shall at the same time pay $1.50, the estimated cost of the publication of this resolution.

Resolved further, That upon such payment being made the city comptroller is hereby directed to certify such fact to the county auditor.

Alderman Gibson moved the adoption of the resolution and it was declared adopted by a unanimous yea vote of all present, on roll call.

Passed June 3, 1912.
Approved June 5, 1912.

By Alderman Gibson:

Resolved, That in addition to the sum heretofore appropriated by a resolution of this council passed May 13, 1912, there is hereby appropriated a further sum of $25 for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the city comptroller in attending the meeting of the National Association of Comptrolling and Accounting Officers, to be held on the fifth, sixth and seventh days of June, 1912, and it is hereby directed that an order be drawn on the general fund to cover such additional appropriation.

Alderman Gibson moved the adoption of the resolution and it was declared adopted by a unanimous yea vote of all present, on roll call.

Passed June 3, 1912.
Approved June 5, 1912.

By Alderman Jordan:

Resolved, That the time for the payment of the final assessment for the paving of Grand avenue from Fifty-fourth to Fifty-ninth avenues west is hereby extended to June 27 without penalty.

Alderman Hector moved the adoption of the resolution, and it was declared adopted by a unanimous yea vote of all present, on roll call.

Passed June 3, 1912.
Approved June 5, 1912.

By Alderman Jordan:

Your committee on ordinances and resolutions to which was referred an ordinance by Alderman Hector by request entitled "An ordinance to regulate the sale of narcotic drugs in the city of Duluth" having considered the same, recommend that the ordinance be amended in the following particulars:

1. That the words "or any substitute for any of the above named substitutes" be stricken out of Section 2.

2. That the words "and is signed by the person to whom the drug is delivered, with his true name and address" and the words "or later than the day following that on which it is dated" be stricken out of Section 3.

3. That Sections 4 and 5 be stricken out and that in lieu thereof there be inserted a new section numbered 4, reading as follows:

"Section 4. Every pharmacist who sells, barters, or gives away any narcotic drug shall file the original of every prescription that he fills for such drugs, numbering and filing such prescriptions consecutively, according to the time when they are filled. If any pharmacist shall have a corresponding consecutive numbering and filing system for all prescriptions those for narcotic drugs may be filed and numbered along with the other prescriptions. All prescriptions for narcotic druxes shall be preserved by pharmacists for at least three years from the date of the prescriptions and shall be open to the inspection of any health inspector or police officer of the city of Duluth, or of the coroner of St. Louis county."

4. That the numbering of Sections 6, 7, and 8 and 9 be changed to Sections 5, 6, 7 and 8 respectively.

5. That from the old section 6 the words "except the original prescriber" be stricken out.

6. That from the old section 9, the words "or by hospitals or public institutions" be stricken out, that a semicolon be inserted after the word "veterinarians" where it occurs in said section and that the following be added at the end thereof after the word "veterinarians," "or by hospitals, sanitariums, chemical laboratories or nurses which or who have permits from the health commissioner of Duluth to keep such drugs." The health commissioner is hereby authorized to issue permits to keep narcotic drugs for legitimate medicinal or chemical purposes, to hospitals, chemical laboratories, sanitariums or nurses, under such rules and regulations as he may establish subject to the approval of the common council. Such permits may be revoked by the health commissioner at any time for cause and shall in no case be valid for more than a year from the date of issue."

7. That Section 10 be stricken out and that a new section numbered 9, reading as follows be inserted in lieu thereof:

"Section 9. Nothing in this ordinance shall apply to the sale at wholesale by wholesale druggists or pharmaceutical manufacturers, doing business in the city of Duluth, to retail druggists, chemical laboratories, hospitals, or sanitariums or to physicians, dentists or veterinarians licensed under the laws of the state of Minnesota. Nothing in this ordinance shall apply to the sale by pharmacists licensed under the laws of the state of Minnesota, of any mixture, compound or preparation containing four grains of opium, one-half grain of morphine or heroin, or two grains of codeine, or forty grains of chloral hydrate, or a less amount of any of these substances, in one fluid ounce, or in case of a dry preparation, in one avoirdupois ounce. The provisions of this ordinance shall not apply to powder of ipecac and opium commonly known as Dover's powders, or liniments, ointments and other preparations sold and suitable exclusively for external application and containing any of the narcotics named in section 2, except cocaine, or any of its salts or derivatives, when the box, package, or bottle containing such drugs is plainly labeled "For external use only." Nothing in this ordinance shall apply to the sale by licensed pharmacists or veterinarians of compounds prepared in good faith exclusively for use for horses, when such pharmacists or veterinarians shall be affirmatively satisfied that the purchaser is not obtaining such a compound for the purpose of evading the provisions of this ordinance.

8. That the numbering of Sections 11 and 12, be changed to 10 and 11 respectively.

And that the ordinance as so amended be adopted.

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND AN ORDINANCE ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO DIVIDE THE SEVERAL WARDS IN AND FOR THE CITY OF DULUTH INTO ELECTION PRECINCTS" PASSED JUNE 18, 1894, AS AMENDED.

The Common Council of the City of Duluth does ordain as follows:

Section 1—That section 1 of an ordinance entitled "An ordinance to divide the several wards in and for the city of Duluth into election precincts" passed June 18, 1894, as amended, be hereby amended as follows:

First—That the description of the precincts in the Seventh ward and the number thereof be changed to read as follows:

(a) That the line, "This ward shall contain five election precincts as follows:" be changed to read "This ward shall contain six election precincts as follows:" (b) That the descriptions of the Third, Fourth and Fifth precincts be stricken out, and that in lieu thereof, the following be substituted:

"The Third precinct contains all that part of said ward lying south and west of the Second precinct and north of the center line of Third street and east of that part of the westerly corporate limits of the city of Duluth as the same existed Dec. 31, 1893, that lies northerly of the center line of Third street.

"The Fourth precinct contains all that part of said ward lying westerly of the Second precinct, southerly of the center line of Third street, and east of that part of the westerly corporate limits of the city of Duluth as the same existed on Dec. 31, 1893, and the same prolonged to the dock line, that lies south of the center line of Third street.

"The Fifth precinct contains all that part of said ward described as follows: Bounded on the north by the south line of sections 31 and 32, township 50, range 14 west, on the east by the westerly corporate limits of the city of Duluth, as the same existed on Dec. 31, 1893, and the same prolonged to the dock line, on the south by the dock line, and on the west by the center line of Forty-seventh avenue west and the same prolonged in a southerly direction to the dock line, and in a northerly direction to the westerly boundary line of said ward and by the westerly boundary line of said ward.

"The Sixth precinct contains all of said ward lying west of the center line of Forty-seventh avenue west and the same prolonged as before described, and east of Fifty-fifth avenue west and the same prolonged in a southerly direction."

Sec. 2—This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication.

COUNTY MADE PRESENT OF OLD LOGGING ROAD

Weyerhaeuser Interests Give Fifteen Miles of an Abandoned Right-of-Way.

Connects Rice Lake and Vermilion Roads—Second Trunk to Ranges.

A second main trunk road between Duluth and the iron ranges paralleling the Miller trunk road about twenty miles to the east, is furnished at little expense through the gift to he county by the Duluth & Northeastern Minnesota railroad of fifteen miles of an abandoned logging right-of-way.

By a resolution which was passed this morning at the monthly meeting of the board of county commissioners, the old logging road will be legally established as a county highway.

It will furnish a much needed connecting link between the north end of the Rice Lake road and the Vermilion highway south from the ranges.

The gift of the railroad company, a Weyerhaeuser corporation, will mean a saving of several thousand dollars to the county. It will be necessary to put some work on it in order to get it into shape. It will have to be widened in places, but the cost will be small in comparison to the benefit which will be derived from it.

The railroad company took up its steel on this right-of-way about seven years ago. Since that time it has been used by some for a team highway but no money has either been spent by the county or by any township for improving it. The action of the county board today simply legalized the road and made it possible for money to be appropriated for its improvement.

The road begins at the western terminus of the Cloquet river bridge on the Rice Lake road and runs in an easterly and northerly direction for a short distance along the north bank of Lower Island lake to the abandoned railroad grade. The right-of-way, which is slightly more than fifteen miles in length and which does not follow section lines, runs through townships 52-14, 53-14 and 54-14, connecting with the southern terminus of the Vermilion road.

BLACK-HANDER BEING TRIED

Soo Italian Alleged to Have Sent Threatening Letters Through Mail.

Marquette, Mich., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The most interesting case of the present session of the United States district court here is now being tried by Judge Sessions and a jury.

It is against Carmeno Cotreno of Sault Ste. Marie, charged with writing blackhand letters to several persons at the Soo. Cotreno is said to have kept the Italian residents of the Soo in terror for several months previous to his arrest.

The cases of three of the persons involved in the opium smuggling deal in which Kebert (Felix) Wagner of Sault Ste. Marie is connected, have been disposed of by the court. Joseph Fournier and Dan Campbell, who had brought the opium from Canada to Felix Wagner, pleaded guilty to the first count of the indictment returned. Judge Sessions imposed a fine in each case of $150, to be paid in five days, and in default of which the men are to be imprisoned in the Marquette county jail for a period of not exceeding four months or until their fines are paid.

Frank Lee, who pleaded guilty to receiving the opium from Wagner, was fined $250, in default of which he is to be confined in the county jail for six months, or until the fine is paid. Louie Lee, another Chinaman convicted with the case, pleaded not guilty to the indictment returned, and his case was continued.

Ironwood Man is Fined.

A large number of persons have been arraigned. Louis Sjostrom of Ironwood, charged with a violation of the federal game laws, pleaded guilty, and was fined $25. Nicholas Neice pleaded guilty to the same charge and was fined $25. The case of G. A. Berglund was disposed of in the same manner. Harvey Leeman of Sagola was also arraigned on the same charge, but pleaded not guilty.

Edward Perron of Escanaba pleaded not guilty to a violation of the international revenue laws. His case was continued to the next term of court.

In the case of the United States vs. the Copper Range railroad, in which the offense was a violation of the safety appliance act, the court returned judgment, by consent, to the plaintiff for $400 and costs.

The case of Philip Tillinghast, receiver of the First National bank of Ironwood, plaintiff, vs. Charles M. Humphrey, defendant, was also settled by consent, the court returning a judgment for the plaintiff of $812.26.

W. V. Jones of Sault Ste. Marie was arraigned on an indictment charging a violation of the internal revenue law, he having broken a government seal. He pleaded guilty and was fined $50.

IN THE DAY'S WORK AT WASHINGTON

Extends Mining Supervision.

Washington, June 6.—In the hope of curtailing the heavy loss of life in the mining industry, the house passed a bill introduced by Representative Foster of Illinois, extending authority of the federal bureau of mines to the mining of slate, granite and other products of the earth. The bureau now has jurisdiction over coal mines alone. Under the bill, investigations looking to the government of health conditions, efficiency, safety devices and the prevention of waste in the mining business would be made by the federal government.

Wants Weather Bureau Probe.

Representative Theron Akin of New York has introduced a resolution asking that a special committee investigate Chief Willis L. Moore of the weather bureau. He alleges the service suffers from mismanagement and that Chief Moore made false statements to congress.

New Life-Saving Regulations.

Drastic changes in the American regulations for the protection of life at sea, based on lessons drawn from the Titanic disaster are about to be issued by Secretary Nagel of the department of commerce and labor.

The regulations contemplate compelling craft in the coastwise and lake traffic, which in their usual course go as far as twenty miles from land to comply with the regulations for ocean going vessels in the matter of providing lifeboats sufficient for all on board. The question of making a distinction in the requirements for winter and summer travel also is being considered.

This move by the department is entirely apart from any action congress may take to meet the situation and will represent, it is pointed out, the greatest improvement in steamship regulations that can be accomplished by an administrative act.

Will Report Naval Bill.

The senate committee on naval affairs has decided to report the naval appropriation bill. It includes the provision for two new battleships this year, together with other administration recommendations which the house refused to grant. The bill will carry $133,000,000, an increase of $15,000,000 over the current appropriation.

BUMPER BERRY CROP ON COUDERAY RESERVE.

Couderay, Wis., June 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The prospects for a very large crop of wild strawberries and raspberries never was any brighter in this section. Indians on the Couderay Indian reservation report the outlook for a bumper blueberry crop as being excellent and they are rejoicing and hoping for favorable weather from now on. Nothing but a heavy frost will damage this summer's blueberry and the other wild berry crop in this locality.

BELIEVES LA FOLLETTE WILL FRAME PLATFORM.

Madison, Wis., June 6.—State Treasurer A. H. Dahl, J. N. Tittemore of Omro and Speaker Charles Ingram of Durand returned yesterday from South Dakota, where they stumped for Senator La Follette. Mr. Tittemore intimated the Wisconsin senator believes that with the delegates he now has he will be able to force a progressive platform upon the convention.

PREFERS DEATH TO LOSING INDIAN LOVER.

Chamberlain, S. D., June 6.—Alma Omenen, a 16-year-old girl living north of Chamberlain, is dead as a result of taking paris green with suicidal intent. Her father had objected to her marrying a quarter blood Crow Creek Indian. Her mother also committed suicide two years ago.

Bloomville, Wis., Scorched.

Merrill, Wis., June 6.—Fire starting from the chimney in the kitchen of the Bloomville hotel early in the morning destroyed practically the entire village of Bloomville, thirteen miles from here. E. Punon's hotel and saloon, a livery stable, a general store, postoffice, blacksmith shop and dwellings are a complete loss.

BARROWS.

THE NEW MINING TOWN ON THE Cuyuna range, offers splendid opportunities for investment and for the establishment of business in various lines. This town is located in the richest part of the range, adjoining the Barrows mine, which will ship ore this season, and where a large force of men is now employed in putting down the third shaft, two being already completed. A number of other mines adjacent to the townsite will be opened up, making Barrows one of the greatest mining centers on the range. Streets are graded, cement sidewalks in, and buildings are going up rapidly. Lots are now offered at from $150 to $400 on the partial payment plan. Buy now while you can buy at the first offered price; get located in a live new town and prosper with the development of the country.

A few years ago lots that were sold in Hibbing, Virginia and Chisholm at the prices we are now asking are worth today several thousand dollars. For further information apply to

NEFARIOUS TWO-BILL AGREEMENT OF SENATE SEEMS TO BE SMASHED

Gordon Has Framed Committee to Report Out House Measures.

Little Doubt That Gross Earnings Tax Increase Will Go Through.

Railroad Attorneys on Hand to Argue With House Members.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate two-measure combine was smashed finally this morning when Lieutenant Governor Gordo nappointed as the committee on reception of bills provided for by the senate rule nine senators all pledged to report out to the senate any part of the house six-measure program that comes over, including reapportionment.

Seven of the nine were among the fifty-five who signed the two-measure gag rule agreement, but they take the position that the act of the senate in providing for this committee, and in providing that no measure not unanimously approved by it should be received, was a recession from the agreement signed before the session.

The members of the committee are Senators Fosseen of Minneapolis,Rockne of Goodhue county, Saugstad of Polk county, Putnam of Faribautl county, Cashman of Steele county, Peterson of Meeker county, Boyle of St. Louis county, Lende of Yellow Medicine county and V. L. Johnson of Chisago county.

This turn in affairs means that the senate must vote on all of the six measures adopted in the house program which the house sends over, including reapportionment; this in spite of the fact that several of the committee members, necessarily as each congressional district had to be represented, are personally opposed to reapportionment and will vote against its passage.

So there is little doubt that the two Federal constitutional amendments will be ratified. The house already has ratified them unanimously, and

TRAINED WOLVES DRAW HIS WAGON

Wisconsin Man Is Traveling to New York With Odd Team.

Grand Rapids, Wis., June 7.—A team of five timber wolves attached to a small wagon and driven by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Damrel of Mellen, Wis., passed through here today enroute to New York city. Mr. Damrel says he caught two of the wolves near his home in Mellen, had raised the others, and had broken them to harness, so that they made excellent time over the roads.

STATES CAN PASS PURE FOOD LAWS

Washington, June 7.—The Indiana pure food law of 1907 was upheld today as constitutional by the supreme court of the United States. The principle was announced that states may enact such measures without interfering with the federal pure food and drug act of 1906.

Aged Widower Takes Poison.

Oskaloosa, Iowa, June 7.—Despondency over the death of his wife is believed to have been the cause of the death of John W. Cook, aged 80 years, who drank poison in the cemetery here yesterday.

SLAPS THE TRADE COURT

Supreme Court Reverses Decision After Decision of Commerce Tribunal.

Upholds Commerce Commission in Cases Brought Up on Appeals.

Washington, June 7.—With the declaration that the commerce court was not to substitute itself for the interstate commerce commission the supreme court of the United States in deision after decision today reversed the commerce court and upheld the interstate commerce commission.

The principal decisions were announced by Chief Justice White and concurred in by the entire court.

The supreme court adjourned until Monday without announcing its decision in the so-called hard coal trust cast. It may be announced then.

GIVES DEADLY BLOW TO SENATE COMPACT

LIEUT.-GOVERNOR GORDON.

INCREASE IN THE TAX

House to Take Prompt Action on Gross Earnings Tax Bill.

Knapp Says Reapportionment Measure Will Be Pushed to Vote.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house will in all probability pass the gross earnings tax bill tomorrow. It was decided this morning to sit tomorrow, though it had been generally expected that both bodies would adjourn until Monday, for that purpose.

The house tax committee will have a public hearing on the bill this afternoon and there is little doubt that it will recommend for passage a bill increasing the railroad gross earnings tax to 5 per cent. When the report comes in an attempt will be made, and it is very likely to succeed, to pass the bill immediately.

Do Not Chuckle Now.

The administration forces have been chuckling over the position Lieutenant-Governor Gordon was forced into by the senate gag rule agreement

SEVERAL HURT IN CONNECTICUT RIOT

Strikers From Mill Clash With Police at Middletown.

Middletown, Conn., June 7. — Several strikers and police officers were injured in a riot today at the South Farms mills of the Russell Manufacturing company, about four hundred of whose employes are on strike for an advance in wages and readjustment of working conditions. Three arrests were made.

Militia Called Out.

Hartford, Conn., June 7.—It is unofficially reported here that Company I, Second regiment, Connecticut National Guard, has been ordered into strike service at Middletown and that Troop A of New Haven also is to be sent to the scene of the trouble.

FIRE PANIC IN CHICAGO THEATER

Men and Women Rush for Exits—Nobody Seriously Injured.

Chicago, June 7.—A frightened audience of several hundred men and women fell over seats in an effort to escape from the darkened auditorium of the Warrington theater, Oak Park, last night, whilt a fire raged under the stage.

A moving picture show was in progress and every light except the dim red lamps over the emergency exits had been extinguished, when suddenly a puff of smoke from under the stage obscured the picture on the screen.

The doors were thrown open and the lights turned on as the spectators rushed for the exits. Several women fainted and were carried out. Nobody was seriously injured.

ALUMINUM TRUST ENDS

Agreed Decree Is Entered in Federal Court at Pittsburg.

Is First Dissolution Without Suit of Illegal Monopoly.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 7.—For the purpose of destroying the alleged substantial monopoly of the so-called Aluminum trust, an agreed decree was entered in the United States district court here today against the Aluminum Company of America. Following closely the prayer of the Federal government in its civil anti-trust suit filed a week ago, charging the corporation with monopolizing the industry, the decree abrogates alleged unlawful contracts and restrains the defendant company for negotiating similar pacts or pursuing unfair methods toward competitors.

The decree was consented to by the Aluminum company as a result of protracted negotiations with Attorney General Wickersham prior to the filing of the suit. The mandate was drawn and accepted by both the government and defendant, long before the suit was initiated.

First Such Action.

This is the first time a decree had been agreed upon under the Sherman law before court proceedings had been started.

The company is forbidden to par-

NORTH CAROLINA INDORSES WILSON

State Democratic Convention Holds an All-Night Session.

Raleigh, N. C., June 7. — After an all-night session the state Democratic convention elected eight delegates-at-large to the Baltimore convention, and by a vote of 503 to 396 indorsed Governor Woodrow Wilson's candidacy. The delegates were uninstructed, but six are said to favor Governor Wilson and two are said to be neutral. The convention was a tumultuous one, adjourning at 6:39 o'clock this morning. Each delegate will have half a vote.

The convention battled until after midnight last night over the nomination of a state ticket and a resolution indorsing North Carolina's state officers and representatives in congress. Friends of Governor Kitchin vainly endeavored to prevent the indorsement of the record of Senator Simmons, whom the governor is opposing for re-election.

Locke Craig was unanimously nominated for governor, and candidates for other state offices were chosen without opposition, except E. L. Daughtridge for lieutenant governor, and George P. Pell, for long term Republican commissioner, who won after a hard fight.

The eight delegates at large are: Ex-Governor B. R. Glenn, W. C. Dowd, E. J. Justice, Gen. Julian S. Carr, Maj. E. J. Hale, A. W. McLean, W. C. Hammer and Lieutenant Governor W. C. Newland. Francis D. Winston and C. Ellis Gardner were chosen for electors-at-large.

WAR DEPARTMENT IS PREPARING 5,000 MEN FOR SERVICE IN CUBA

STARTS IMPEACHMENT OF JUDGE HANFORD

VICTOR L. BERGER, Socialist Member of Congress From Wisconsin.

Washington, June 7.—Representative Berger, the Socialist member from Milwaukee, today began impeachment proceedings against Federal Judge Hanford of Seattle, who recently deprived Leonard Olsen of that city of his citizenship because he was a Socialist.

Representative Berger charged Judge Hanford "with high crimes and misdemanor, a long series of corrupt and unlawful decisions and being a habitual drunkard." He asked that the judiciary committee investigate.

The department of justice is already assisting Olsen's attempt to have Judge Hanford's decision reopened.

The house adopted Mr. Berger's resolution directing the judiciary committee to investigate.

Preparatory Orders Are Issued By General Staff of Army.

Four Battleships Are Expected to Reach the Island Soon.

More Marines Are Landed From the Paducah to Guard Mines.

Washington, June 7. — The general staff of the army today issued preparatory orders for the despatch of a military expedition of 5,000 troops to Cuba.

The four big army transports now at Newport News were ordered to be put in commission, provisioned and supplied. Orders also were sent to the army posts from which the troops will be drawn, to have them in readiness for the movement.

The troops will be taken from Plattsburg barracks, Forts Porter, Niagara and Governor's island, New York, and Forts McPherson and Oglethorpe, in Georgia.

The Cuban government's responsibility for any wanton acts by the insurrectos will not be lessened in any degree by the placing of American marines in the interior. This was made plain at the state department today. Army officers point that the relief of Cuban troops from guard duty that they may fight the insurrectos, will furnish a real test of the ability of the Cuban gocvernment to handle the situation.

Battleships Are Due.

The battleships Minnesota, Missouri, Mississippi and Ohio are expected to arrive at Guantanamo some time today or EARTHQUAKE MAY HAVE OCCURRED IN MICHIGAN.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 7.—Two earthquake stocks recorded on the seismograph at St. Ignatius college early today probably originated at a not far distant point, possibly in Indiana or Michigan, according to the estimate of Father Odenbach, the curator. The first shock lasted from 4:22 a. m. to 4:36. The second began at 4:59 and ended at 5:20. Owing to the absence of the usual phases, Father Odenbach estimated the point of origin as comparatively close.

COMMERCE COURT'S COAL RATE RULING IS REVERSED IN APPEAL.

Washington, June 7. — The supreme court today reversed the commerce court decision which would have allowed railroads to carry railroad fuel coal at lower rates than commercial coal. The interstate commerce commission was upheld.

TWELVE DEAD IN VIENNA EXPLOSION

Many Others Injured in Accident at Ammunition Factory.

Vienna, Austria, June 7. — Twelve persons were killed and many others injured at the Woellersdorf ammunition factory in Wiener-Neustadt today when an explosion occurred in a shed containing acrasite, the Austrian equivalent for melinite. The victims were soldiers and workmen.

The shock broke windows throughout the town and did much damage in the neighboring watering places.

Wiener-Neustadt is a manufacturing town thirteen miles south of Vienna.

NATIONAL COMMITTEE BEGINS ITS HEARINGS IN CHICAGO CONTESTS

WILL PRESENT TAFT NAME TO CONVENTION

W. G. HARDING.

Columbus, O., June 7.—The name of President Taft will be presented to the Chicago convention by Warren G. Harding, former lieutenant-governor of Ohio. Mr. Harding announced today he had received a letter from Mr. Taft asking him to name him at the Chicago convention. Mr. Harding said he has accepted the commission.

Mr. Harding has been for many years a political supporter and personal friend of the president. In the state convention here Tuesday he delivered the final address just before a poll was taken which resulted in the president's victory of Ohio's six delegates at large. He was a candidate for governor two years ago, but was defeated by Judge Harmon.

STRIKE ON BOSTON "L"

Sudden, Violent Outbreak Follows Vote By the Employes.

Some Passengers Are Injured By Flying Glass.

Boston, June 7.—Violence marked the beginning of a strike of several thousand employes of the Boston elevated railway at daylight. Those who refused to work demand recognition by the company of a recently formed union. The company refused to deal with them other than individually.

The street railway service and the elevated road were being operated on about half time. Five arrests have been made for assaults on motormen.

Although the strike had been threatened for a week or more, it came shortly after 4 a. m. with a suddenness and a clash that surprised not only the company officials, but the police of Boston, Brookline, Cambridge, Somerville, Everette, Chelsea, Medford and Malden.

Made Rush for Cars.

The men had been discussing the matter nearly all night at a mass meeting, and as daylight was breaking it was decided to take a vote. As soon as it was seen that those in favor of going out were in the majority, the gathering of nearly 2,000 men began cheering, and a rush was made for the

GOMPERS LIKELY TO FIGURE AGAIN

Labor Leader's Name Expected to Be Used in Darrow Trial.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 7. — Each side in the trial of Clarence S. Darrow, on a charge of jury bribing, has accused the other of injecting into the proceedings the name of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Some of those who have followed the course of the trial day by day, freely predicted yesterday that Gompers' name would continue to figure prominently, whether in the continued declarations of the defense that the prosecution in reality is striking at Gompers through Darrow, or in the more material evidence promised by Darrow's counsel. The reiterated avowal of the prosecution that there was no intention to implicate Gompers in the charges against Darrow, even in the slighest degree, had no apparent effect on the counter-declarations of the defense.

"They are trying to obscure the real issue—the guilt or innocence of the defendant," said District Attorney Fredericks, yesterday.

"It was their own witness who first mentioned the name of Gompers," was the reply of the defense.

The redirect examination of Franklin which was begun late yesterday was expected to be continued when Franklin took the stand again today.

First Ten Cases From Alabama End in Seating of Taft Men.

Borah Insists on Getting Votes of the Members on Record.

Limited Number of Newspaper Representatives Are Admitted.

ACTION TAKEN BY NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

The Republican national committee today:

Began work on the contests over seats in the national convention.

Again defeated motion of Senator Borah of Idaho, which would enable eight members to require a roll. The number stands at twenty.

Alabama case—Delegation-at-large (six votes) first considered.

Arizona case—Delegation-at-large (six votes) deferred till later day.

Voted unanimously to seat the Taft delegates-at-large from Alabama.

Same decision in Alabama First district.

Seated the Taft delegates in the Second Alabama district, but gave the Roosevelt delegates in the Second the right to go befo a the convention. The vote was unanimous in both cases.

Seated the Taft delegates from the Fifth, Sixth and Ninth Alabama districts.

Chicago, June 7.—President Taft won the first of the contests for seats in the Republican convention heard by the Republican national committee today, when by a unanimous decision, the contest over the Alabama delegates-at-large, ... in number, was decided in favor of the "Long" (Taft) delegation.

The first vote was viva voce. Senator Borah asked for a yea and nay vote, though eidently there were no negatives. His request was complied with, and confirmed the unanimous decision.

On motion of Senator Penrose, the case of Arizona was passed over by the committee until a later day.

First Two Districts Decided.

In the First Alabama district case the Roosevelt side waived argument as futile after the decision on the delegates at large. The Taft delegates were seated. The two Second district

"Powder Monkey's" Smoking Causes Explosion in Oregon Quarry.

Medford, Or., June 7.—A "powder monkey" smoking a cigarette caused a premature explosion in the Jacksonville quarry which resulted in the deaths of three men, the fatal injury of another and minor injuries to five or six workmen. The man at fault was blown to pieces.

ATTEMPTS TO SHOOT TISZA

Expelled Member of Hungarian Diet Returns and Attacks President.

Fires Three Futile Shots From Gallery, Then Attempts Suicide.

Budapest, Hungary, June 7.—Count Tisza, president of the lower house, had a very narrow escape from assassination in the diet this morning. He was fired upon three times by Deputy Julius Kovacs who then shot himself, probably with fatal effect.

Count Tisza was unscathed.

Kovacs was one of the most militant members of the opposition, and was among those who were ejected from the chamber Wednesday because of disorderly conduct. He was suspended for several sittings, but this morning when the chamber reconvened he managed to evade the police and found his way into the press gallery.

Shot From Gallery.

Soon after the proceedings opened, Kovacs moved to the front of the gallery and, shouting "There are still opposition members in the chamber," drew a revolver and emptied three chambers in the direction of the president. Then, seeming chagrined at his

MANY WILL VISIT RANGE

Crowd of About 150 Is Expected to Make Trade Excursion.

Nearly Every Town on Both Ranges Will Be Visited.

About 150 people are expected to go on the three days' trip over the Messaba and Vermilion iron ranges. The trip, which is being arranged by the wholesalers' committee of the Commercial club, will take in nearly every town on the range and will give the excursionists considerable time in each town.

The original intention of the committee is to make one rate for the three excursions to be given and to enlist business men for all three trips at the same time. That plan has been abandoned, however, as many people want to make the trip to the ranges and not to the more remote territory on the later trips. One rate has been made for the trip to the range. As the crowd is expected to be a large one, the expense to each firm will be small.

As was the case last year, a band will be taken along to assist in letting the towns know that the Duluthians are among them. Parades will be formed in each town, and time enough will be given to allow the business men of Duluth to mix with the business men of the towns and form acquaintances or renew friendships.

The range is the most important territory Duluth has and the members of the committee are anxious that Duluth business men show they appreciate the fact. That idea is taking well and arousing enthusiasm, so an unusually large crowd is expected.

The special train will leave Duluth over the Iron Range tracks at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning and will first go to the Vermilion range. The train will reach Virginia in the evening and the night will be spent there. The second day will be given to Coleraine, Bovey and that branch of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, the train going to Hibbing for the night. The last day will be spent on the line between Hibbing and Duluth.

BRIDE-TO-BE LOST FARM

Deeded It to Prospective Husband Who Died Befo. Wedding.

If a bride-to-be deeds her property to her intended so as to give him an opportunity to sell it for her at a better price than she perhaps could get—

And if this prospective groom should suddenly shuffle off his mortal coil and the property should revert by law to his nearest kin—

Would the disappointed sweetheart have any legal way of recovering her rights and interests in the property?

This is a question which has been put up to Judge Enslen of the district court in a case which was yesterday tried and submitted to him.

The case is that of Mary Ackerman versus William G. Parker. The property involved in the litigation is a farm in section 10, township 65-17 this county.

Mary Ackerman and George O. Parker were to have been married. Testimony showed that their relations were intimate so that they trusted each other with their business matters.

On May 9, 1907, Miss Ackerman deeded her farm over to Parker, the transfer she claims, being made simply to give Parker an opportunity to sell it for her. There was no other consideration, she claims. Parker was simply to act as her agent.

Parker died on Nov. 4, 1910, leaving no will. He had been married earlier in life and his sole heir was a son.

William G. Parker, the son, is now the record owner of the farm. The action has been brought by Miss Ackerman to have the deed given to the young man's father set aside.

C. W. Stilson appeared in court for Miss Ackerman and J. B. Arnold represented William G. Parker.

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Minneapolis Symphony orchestra.

"The Follies of June 9."

"The Politicians," a humorous satire on the present political situation, will be the chief attraction of "The Follies of June 9," to be given at the Lyceum theater all of next week beginning Sunday evening. The opening production of the summer musical season of the Boston Lyric Comedy company is of the light summer amusement type.

The production the opening week contains a number of humorous campaign speeches, suffragette addresses and political campaign songs. The three-act musical play affords opportunities for comedy situations and the many musical ensembles will be featured by the chorus of twenty girls. "Teddy R" and "Bill T" are the two leading characters in the production, around whose political scheme the entire performance hinges. Many local situations will be satirized.

DETECTIVE CONVICTED

Found Guilty of Inducing Hugh McKinnon to Commit Burglary.

Prisoner Is Given Stay and Is Released on $2,500 Bail.

C. F. Richardson, a private detective, was found guilty by a jury late yesterday afternoon, of having "framed up" a burglary job on a prospective witness in a personal injury suit against the Soo road, presumably for the purpose of discrediting testimony which he would be likely to give.

Under the law, if a man induces another to commit a crime, he is himself guilty and as a principal. Judge Dancer so instructed the jury in the Richardson case yesterday. The complaining witness Hugh McKinnon, who fell into the trap laid by the Soo line detectives and was convicted a few weeks ago for the burglary job, testified that the job had been suggesteu by Richardson and that it was he who had laid the plans.

Against the story of McKinnon, Richardson could give no contradictory evidence except his own word with reference as to who took the initiative in the instigation of the burglary. The court's instructions put the whole case on this one issue and the jury, which is the sole judge of the credibility of any witness, evidently took McKinnon's word.

On March 14 or 15, Richardson came to McKinnon as a stranger. Richardson, testimony showed, posed as a sort of a "crook" or "bad man." McKinnon says that after they had known each other for two or three days, Richardson suggested that they "pull off a job" at the Soo freight sheds. McKinnon was hard up and fell in with the idea.

The robbery was attempted on the night of March 17. Richardson had notified L. A. Cunningham, special agent of the Soo road of his plans and Cunningham was on hand to make the arrest as soon as the men were nicely at work. The watchman and special officer rushed in and caught McKinnon red handed. Richardson, the accomplice got away.

In order to leave McKinnon with the impression that the burglary was a bona fide one, Cunningham, so he admitted, fired pistol shots in the general direction of Richardson, who was chased a short distance by Cunningham. McKinnon was turned over to the authorities.

Job a "Frame-up."

The prisoner got his first intimation that the job was a "frame-up" at the county jail after he had pleaded guilty in district court. He was informed that such was the case by Vernon R. Bell, who has been convicted of attempted arson. Bell was formerly in the employ of Richardson, but was not connected with this particular case.

On cross-examination, Special Agent Cunningham for the Soo road could give Prosecutor Greene no explanation why he did not inform the county attorney's office of the real facts in the case at the time the charges were formally preferred against McKinnon. The county attorney was at that time told that there was another man mixed up with the job, but that he escaped from the special agent who made the arrest. Cunningham admitted that the man was Richardson, who was in the employ of the railroad company.

"The great state of Minnesota," declared Mr. Greene in his closing arguments," wants to bring to justice all offenders, it wants to prosecute wrongdoers, but, thank God, we have not yet stooped to hire detectives to induce men to commit a crime."

The case went to the jury at 3 o'clock and a verdict of guilty was returned at 4:10 p. m. The court granted Richardson a stay of sentence pending a motion for a new trial. The bail was increased from $1,000 to $2,500 and was furnished.

E. J. Kenney conducted the case for the defendant. He was assisted by H. B .Fryberger, attorney for the Soo road.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Activities of Other Municipalities, Which Might or Might Not Be Copied in Duluth.

MAYOR HUNT of Cincinnati has appointed a committee to study and reorganize methods of purchasing supplies for the city. The committee, which met for the first time last week, is composed of the mayor, City Purchasing Agent McGrath, two employes of his office City Auditor Washburn and F. R. Leach, accounting director of the bureau of municipal research. Daily meetings will be held, at which plans will be made that will enable the purchasing agent to determine just what quantity and quality of goods the city will need for a given period and how these can be bought at the lowest prices. With such a system of wholesale buying a plan of inspecting goods received will be drawn. The department will insist that goods sold and delivered to the city shall be strictly in accordance with the specifications.

Duluth has no purchasing department. Heads of departments buy supplies costing less than $200 and for anything over that amount bids are called for.

RAILROAD SHOPMEN IN FAVOR OF STRIKE.

Chicago, June 7.—Referendum votes by nine crafts unions of shop employes on railroads running west of Chicago on the question of walking out on a sympathetic strike, show a majority in favor of the strike. Next week a conference on international officers will decide on a course of action. Only one union is said to have favored remaining at work. July 1 is the date on which action is expected to be taken. About 100,000 shop employes are involved.

OLD "GAME" TRIED AGAIN

"Draw one" says the well dressed woman who is "working" the West end this week, and she holds out a handful of envelopes after her ring at the door bell has been answered.

The prospective victim "draws."

"You are a very lucky woman," says the stranger. "You have drawn a prize. It entitles you to have the picture of one of the members of your family enlarged free of charge."

That sounds reasonable to the householder.

The photograph is secured, if the victim is not already posted on the details of the scheme, and then it developes that a frame will be necessary for the enlarged picture. The well dressed visitor kindly offers to supply this at a very reasonable figure.

The woman has no license to canvass, and those who have been "lucky" enough to draw a "prize" will probably be able to escape from the contracts into which they have entered.

LOW PRICES FOR RAILROAD BONDS

Lower prices were commanded by railroad bonds during the month of May than during any other month since July, 1908. This result is arrived at by figuring on the quotations of twenty-five of the old standard issues. This is not due to anything being wrong with such bonds, but merely to the fact that higher returns for the money invested can be obtained from other sources. A great deal of money has been attracted to Germany, as that nation has been paying higher rates for short-time loans. Bank stocks are paying much better returns at present than the old standard railroad stocks, and the same thing can be said for the new bonds of rail and industrial companies.

$20,000,000 FOR CONSTRUCTION

Steel Corporation Appropriates $6,000,000 to Complete Duluth Plant.

As a sequel to Judge E. H. Gary's letter to The Herald, published in last Saturday's edition, comes the announcement that $6,000,000 has been appropriated for the purpose of rushing the completion of the Duluth steel plant. This was the amount Judge Gary stated would be needed.

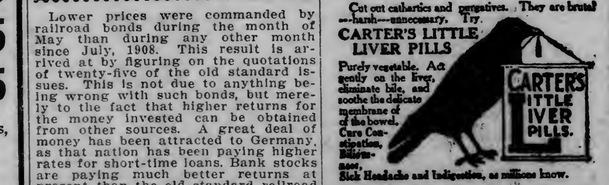

The following dispatch is published in the issue of the Iron Trade Review received today:

"New York, June 5.—(By wire.)—So heavy is the pressure for tonnage upon Steel corporation mills that appropriations of about $20,000,000 have just been made for extensions to the capacity of various plants. This includes $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 for modernizing the Edgar Thomson plant, $6,000,000 for completing the plant of the Minnesota Steel company at Duluth and $3,000,000 for a new large slabbing mill and some miscellaneous finishing mills at Gary. The Duluth plant, which has been going along in a moderate way, will now be pushed to completion as originally planned. The plate capacity at Gary will be greatly enlarged by new construction."

CULVERT BUILDING AWAITS GUARANTY

Burned Bridge at New Duluth Likely to Be Replaced Soon.

Just as soon as the Spirit Lake Transfer Railway company puts in writing its offer to pay the expenses of depressing and filling Commonwealth avenue at Gary, as its officers have verbally agreed to do, the board of public works will begin the work of replacing the bridge burned there two years ago.

Some time ago the city council appropriated $6,000 for the construction of a culvert across the ravine on Commonwealth avenue, which was formerly spanned by the burned bridge. The contract was let to Adam McAdams, but before work was begun, the transfer railway company asked that the avenue be depressed three feet near the proposed culvert so that a trestle which it is about to construct over the avenue would not have to be raised too high, making a steep grade.

It was estimated that such work of depression and filling will cost $3,985 and the transfer company agreed to pay this. However as the papers guaranteeing it are not yet signed the work has been delayed.

Property owners at Gary and other suburbs say that it should be the work of about fifteen minutes to get this signature. Meanwhile they are waiting for the road.

Cemetery Superintendent Murdered.

Hagerstown, Md., June 7.—Charles W. Adams of Sharpsburg, superintendent of the national cemetery at Antietam battlefield, was shot and killed yesterday by Charles W. Benner, who then committed suicide. The cause of the shooting is said to have been a grudge.

YOUNG FAWN CAPTURED

Swimming about in the bay near the Duluth, Missabe & Northern coal docks in the West end, was a little year old fawn, this morning.

The fawn was sighted by some boys, who promptly pushed off in a boat, and captured it. It was taken to the shore and tied up on the coal dock.

The officers in charge of the dock notified Game Warden Storey and he will dispose of the animal, probably ordering its release where dogs cannot attack it.

The fawn is believed to have come down through the West end early this morning.

THE POLICE COURT GRIST

George Newgaard Caught in Act of Opening Safe, Bound Over.

William Switzer Held to Grand Jury for Threatening Wife.

George Thompson Newgaard waived examination in police court today when arraigned on the charge of burglary, and is now in the county jail awaiting action by the grand jury.

Newgaard was caught in the act of robbing the safe of C. G. Anderson, butcher, at the latter's meat market, 112 North Twentieth avenue west. Patrolman Monahan poked his head in through the broken rear window of the shop through which Newgaard obtained entrance, told Newgaard, who was at work on the safe to come out and was obeyed with alacrity.

Newgaard is a former employe of Mr. Anderson and knew the combination of the safe. He got no money and says that the cop appeared so suddenly that he had no chance to find out whether or not there was anything of value in the strongbox. Newgaard further asserts that he was accompanied by a man with whom he had been playing cards during the evening. After playing a while they decided to rob the Anderson safe and the other man was to stand outside to give warning while Newgaard pulled off the job. The other man evidently was frightened away for the patrolman did not see him. Newgaard does not know the man's name either so he has not yet been found.

William Switzer, who was arreted yesterday charged with pointing a gun at his wife in an effort to induce her to return and live with him again, was arraigned on a charge of assault in the second degree this morning. Mrs. Switzer, who does not want to live with her husband, believing him dangerous, told a story of how Switzer forced his way into her parents' home and demanded that she return to him, waving a revolver about him and later pointing it directly in her face. Switzer denied that he pointed the gun at her, and said that he carried it in his hand because he was afraid her father might be in and might attempt violence. Judge Cutting had considerable difficulty to keep Mrs. Switzer and her mother from breaking in on the testimony with accusations and accusations. The result was that the court bound Switzer over to the grand jury.

Hoffman Smith, a bartender at 517 West Michigan street, was arrested and arraigned this morning, charged with beating Carl Reenkaug. He pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for 2 o'clock on the afternoon of June 10. Smith asserts that Reenkaug while drunk entered the saloon and abused other patrons so much that he had to be put out and that perhaps during the process of ejectment he was manhandled to a more or less degree.

Tom Kallimanis was fined $3 and costs because he was too glib with his tongue in heaping epithets on a waiter in a Superior street restaurant yesterday. Kallimanis said that the waiter "got fresh" and needed a calling down.

James Kenney and William Gray, arrested for trespassing on the Northern Pacific yards, were sent to the county jail for three days each.

Discovery of America.

A wise man wrote long ago, "Of the making of books there is no end." If he had lived in these days he would doubtless have applied the same remark to cinematograph films. Just as there are classics in literature, so are there moving pictures which tower over the heads of their fellows like giants in a crowd. Among pictorial Titans must be included the truly wonderful production "The Coming of Columbus," which is being shown at the Odeum this week. This film took no less than three years to make, at a cost of over $50,000. For historical accuracy and perfection of detail this picture surpasses anything which had yet been shown on a screen, and mere words fail to convey the remotest idea of the laborious pains which must have been expended by the Selig Polyscope company on this exquisite production. We may note in passing that the ships used were exact replicas of those actually used by Columbus, and were presented by the government of Spain to the United States for the Columbus exposition, and that even the original log-book of Columbus was used as a property, whilst every costume worn by the 350 odd actors employed in staging the film was a true copy of an actual dress of the period.

Thomas Furness, manager of the Odeum is enthusiastic over this picture, pronouncing it the greatest ever produced.

COURT ENJOINS BROTHERHOODS

Philadelphia, June 7.—Judge Bregy, in common pleas court here, today issued an injunction restraining the federated committee of the Brotherhoods of Trainmen, Conductors, Firemen and Engineers from taking any action which may lead to a strike on the lines of the Pennsylvania railroad east of Pittsburg and Erie because of alleged grievances.

GRADERS AT WORK ON SIXTH AVENUE EAST.

Contractor George King has his steam grader at work on Sixth avenue east, the city endeavoring to make a better and easier grade than has heretofore been established. The work extends from Seventh street up to Tenth street, and will result in a reduction at Seventh and Eighth streets with an increase between Eighth and Ninth.

A petition is out among the property owners along Sixth avenue to have the avenue given its full width, now that work is on, but City Engineer Wilson says that that will be difficult, for the department is much bothered in getting enough earth for fills.

FRECKLES

New Drug That Quickly Removes These Homely Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as a new drug, othine—double strength has been discovered that positively removes these homely spots.

Simply get one ounce of othine—double strength, from Boyce Drug Store and apply a little of it at night, and in the morning you will see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

QUARTET OF HIGHWAYMEN

Joseph Subet Held Up Near Smithville—Watch and Money Taken.

Milo Diviak was brought to the central police station late yesterday afternoon charged with being one of a quartet who held up and robbed Joseph Subet while on his way home from West Duluth to Smithville. All four men, says Subet, held guns. Subet was relieved of a watch and the small amount of change which he carried.

On hearing of the robbery, Sergeant McDermott of the New Duluth police started out to find the four men, and ran across them yesterday afternoon. He halted them and began searching them. He found Subet's watch on Diviak and proceeded to arrest the quartet. Three of them, however, began to run in various directions and escaped, with the officer shooting at them. Diviak fell and was captured. A search is being made for the missing three.

All four, it is said, have refused work at Gary, and have been loafing around doing nothing. The police believe that they have had something to do with the safe-cracking in that vicinity of late. Diviak was recently convicted of a violation of the liquor laws and paid a fine of $100. He denies that he was implicated in the robbery, but Subert has identified him and the watch found on him.

Diviak was this morning bound over to the grand jury. He did not appear in police court, but his attorney, William Marks, appeared for him and waived examination.

JUDGE LENIENT WITH PRISONER

One Man Convicted of Grand Larceny Given Chance to Reform.

Judge Dancer of the district court yesterday afternoon sentenced four prisoners who have pleaded guilty at this term of court.

Mike Cobey, who broke into Pierson Bros.' meat market, West First street, last month, was given his second reformatory sentence. Cobey said that he was drunk at the time, but the court told him that if the offense ever occurred again he would be sentenced to the penitentiary.

Byron R. Green, aged 28, who confessed to the court that he had systematically stolen goods from the Kelley hardware store, West Superior street, for three years and had taken them to Milwaukee, where he had attempted to dispose of them, was let off with a reformatory sentence. Green admitted taking several hundred dollars' worth of goods. When arrested in Milwaukee, he was living with a woman as her husband, although he is a single man.

A sad faced wife and two crying babes, who were in court yesterday when sentences were being passed might have been responsible for the leniency which Judge Dancer extended to Carl Covel, who stole about $300 worth of brass from the Duluth Boiler works on Garfield avenue several weeks ago and who recently pleaded guilty to grand larceny, second degree. Covel was given a six months' jail term with sentence suspended.

Prince Burns, a chauffeur who borrowed his employer's automobile without consent and made a joy-riding trip to Pike Lake last week, and who was arrested on the complaint of F. F. McQuade, the owner, drew a lecture and a $50 fine. If the fine is not paid Burns may take sixty days on the hill.

FATHER WIRTH CASE APPEALED

Giving of Minnesota Monk's Estate to Relatives Arouses Church Societies.

Washington, June 7. — To save religious orders, particularly of the Catholic church, from threatened disintegration, attorneys of the Order of St. Benedict of New Jersey today asked the supreme court of the United States to review the recent decision of the eighth United States circuit court of appeals that the agreement of a monk to convey all property to his order was void, as against public opinion.

The decision was made in the case of Father Augustin Wirth, for fifty years a member of the Benedictine order and at his death priest of a German church society at Springfield, Minn. The court held that his relatives rather than the order to which he had made vows of chastity, poverty and obedience, were entitled to the $5,000 property in his name when he died.

Many attorneys have filed briefs with the court in support of their proposed request for a review.

"If carried out to its full extent," the attorneys stated, "the decision may eventually dissolve or disintegrate the temporal organization of the church orders."

ROUGH-HOUSE FOR ANDY.

Carnegie Address at Aberdeen Halted By Rowdy Custom.

London, June 7.—Rowdy scenes marked the delivery of Andrew Carnegie's address as lord rector of Aberdeen university at Aberdeen, Scotland, yesterday. The students, the number of whom was large, hurled chairs and rugs about the hall and kept up an incessant din, singing and whistling, but finally permitted the iron master to proceed. After he began the rowdyism was resumed, but the proceedings closed with rousing cheers for Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie.

Mr. Carnegie advised the students to "remain teetotalers until you have become millionaires."

RUNAWAY OXEN KILL MAN TRYING TO SAVE CHILD.

Danville, Ill., June 7.—Urlah McCardle, aged 78, is dead from a broken back received while attempting to save a grand-child from injury when his yoke of oxen ran away at his home near Grape Creek. He had resided in one place for seventy-six years and clung to the old ox team in preference to horses.

WEST VIRGINIANS ARE INSTRUCTED FOR CLARK.

Parkersburg, W. Va., June 7.—Champ Clark received the unqualified indorsement of the West Virginia Democracy yesterday. In state convention, the six delegates-at-large were instructed to vote for him at Baltimore as long as there was any hope of his nomination. At district conventions earlier in the week, Clark had received six instructed delegates, two uninstructed were favorable to him, and two more were uninstructed, but were said to favor Governor Harmon of Ohio.

WITHERSPOON HEAD OF MEDICAL ASSOCIATION.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 7.—Dr. John A. Witherspoon of Nashville, Tenn., was elected president of the American Medical association by the house of delegates, which loks after the business of the organization. Dr. Philander Harrison of Paterson, N. J., was named first vice president; Dr. John Heffron of Syracuse, N. Y., second vice president, and Dr. H. M. McLenahan of Omaha, third vice president.

With the exceptions of a half dozen sections, the convention came to a close last night.

Minneapolis was selected as the next place of meeting.

LINCOLN APPOINTEE RETIRES FROM NAVY.

New York, June 7. — Rear Admiral E. H. C. Leutze, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard, who has seen forty-eight years of service in the navy, read his official retirement order yesterday on the battleship Utah in the yard, and turned over his command to Capt. Albert Gleaves. Rear Admiral Leutze was appointed to Annapolis by President Lincoln.

Wants Soccer Football.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 7.—Addressing the convention on recreation of cities and towns at the sixth annual convention of the Playgrounds and Recreation Association of America here, E. B. Degroot of Chicago urged the substitution of soccer football for rugby football as the national fall and winter game. He declared soccer to be much better fitted for young boys' play than the game now in vogue, and upheld it as less brutal.

Our Entire Stock of Silk Dresses at HALF PRICE

A Sale of Over 100 Stylish New Taffeta, Messaline, Foulard and CREPE METEOR Dresses — Regular 12.50 to $45 Values, Now 6.25 to 22.50

—Here is a truly sensational sale that 100 women can quickly turn to their advantage.
—Every silk dress in our entire stock will be offered at just half the regular low selling price when this sale begins Saturday morning.
—Frankly, here is the reason for the sale. We anticipated an unusually large season for silk dresses and bought more heavily, it seems, than the season warranted. In order to quickly readjust stocks and bring them to normal we have used the expedient of sacrificing profit and part cost.
—The stock embraces more than 100 of this season's most captivating styles. There are models of changeable taffeta, plain and fancy messalines, crepe meteors and plain or bordered foulards. Most of them are one of a kind dresses and all are well made and finished. The diversity of styles is too great for description but all the late modes and trimming motifs, including collars, revers and cuffs of macrame or ratine laces, lace frills and hand embroidery are shown. Some are made with chiffon waists and others in the peplum effects.
—Regular price tickets read $12.50, $15 $19.50, $25, $27.50, $34.50, $39.50 and $45, all now selling at Half Price.

One Lot of 60 Smart Serge Dresses at HALF PRICE

—Because of too heavy stocks these smart serge dresses will be sacrificed. The backward season seems to have counteracted the demand we had anticipated on serge dresses and now it is time to reduce stocks to normal.
—These dresses are all our regular stock and are smartly tailored with great care and precision. Some are embroidered, some braid trimmed, some with ratine or macrame cuffs or collars, others variously embellished. There is a good range of styles in the popular shades of tan, navy, lavender, old rose, gray and black.
—Regular price tickets read $10, $12.50 $15, $17.50, $18.50 and $24.50, now selling at HALF PRICE.

LAST STATE CONVENTION ENDS IN GENTLE HARMONY

Attempt to Stampede Delegates for Bryan a Feeble Effort.

Ramsey County Representatives Show Themselves to Be Good Losers.

The gentle spirit of harmony settled down on the Democracy of Minnesota yesterday afternoon.

The harmony program, which had been rumored during the morning, was put into effect in the afternoon. The elements which were most feared by those in control of the convention: —not for what they might accomplish in an attempt to upset the convention program, but for what they might do in creating or perpetuating discord within the party—cheerfully acceded to the harmony overtures.

Even D. W. Lawler of St. Paul was imbued with the spirit of harmony. Mr. Lawler was floor leader for the Clark forces. He had announced himself as a candidate for delegate-at-large. He was a pronounced opponent of Fred B. Lynch, whose friends were in control of the convention. Mr. Lawler is a power in convention debate. He is a commanding figure in friendly or unfriendly convention. Mr. Lawler was overwhelmed by a majority and he showed himself the good politician and a good loser. Instead of attempting to stir up discord he withheld his name from being presented as a candidate for delegate-at-large and himself moved the unanimous selection of the six delegates-at-large, who were elected. Later the Ramsey county delegation headed by Mr. Lawler and Mr. O'Connor and the band paraded the streets and serenaded The Herald office, Mr. Lawler leading the cheers for The Herald.

There was only one attempt to break the harmony program. That was a feeble attempt to stampede the convention for Bryan. It was not a friendly move toward Bryan. It was an attempt to head off Wilson instructions. The attempt was participated in by the Clark men outside of the Ramsey county delegation, which was under the wise political control of Dick O'Connor and Dan Lawler. Unquestioned Bryan men like Guy Thomas of Minneapolis and J. M. Freeman of Olivia participated in the opposition to the movement. Much oratory was spilled, but the success of the move—if it ever had a chance of success—was headed off by Mr. Thomas and Mr. Freeman.

It is almost certain that the move never had a chance of success. Here and there in the convention was a man who was carried away when John Cogan of Minneapolis made his motion that the delegates be "instructed to vote first, last and all the time" for William Jennings Bryan. One vociferous delegate from Blue Earth county enthusiastically seconded the motion. P. J. Russell of Bemidji came forward with a written amendment to the resolutions instructing the delegates to cast their votes for Bryan if his name should at any time be before the Baltimore convention.

Mr. Thomas' Coup.

Dr. Dubois of Minneapolis, Martin O'Brien of Crookston and several others took part in the debate, counselling the expression of the people's will in the instructions. Guy Thomas made a master stroke. He flashed a letter, which he said he had received from Bryan to be read on such an occasion as that existing. It stated that Mr. Bryan is not a candidate, does not want instructions for him in any state, and such instructions would place him in an embarrassing position.

That checked the conspirators, but did not entirely demolish them. They made a few more spasmodic attempts to stir enthusiasm, but the great bulk of the delegates, nearly all of whom are real friends of the Nebraskan, sat stolidly by, leaving the fight in opposition to the amendment to a few men of influence. They knew that they would vote it down after the excitement was over. John M. Freeman of Olivia, who had been temporary chairman of the convention, quelled the disturbance effectually when he pointed out that the resolutions as reported left the delegation free to vote for Bryan as soon as two-thirds of its members believe such a move advisable. He said he believed that Bryan will be nominated, but Minnesota should instruct for Wilson and throw its strength to him at this time.

Mr. Russell's amendment was voted down and the original resolutions adopted.

No Doubt of Result.

There never was any doubt of the result in the minds of most people in the convention hall. The attempt to stampede was expected, and was met with determined opposition. For the most part the real friends of Bryan were opposed to any mention of him in the instructions. He is not a candidate, and Minnesota has expressed itself for Wilson.

The convention for a few minutes assumed the aspect of a Democratic gathering of the old days. Men were up all over the hall demanding recognition. The chairman pounded with his gavel until he feared he would break the table. Cries of "Louder," "Sit Down," and "Question" went up from all over the hall until some of the speakers couldn't be heard ten feet away. It was a senseless disturbance without chance of result for those who started it, but no convention would be complete without a display of political emotion.

Except for that little disturbance, everything was harmony. The delegate-at-large slate had been rearranged to the satisfaction of everybody. The national committeeman contest was abandoned by the opponents of Mr. Lynch. Several of the district contests had been straightened out so that everybody was pleased with the result. Toward the end the convention might have been taken as a mere ratification meeting without a division of sentiment in it. It was undoubtedly the last convention in the history of Minnesota, and it was one of the most memorable conventions in the history of the Democracy of the state. Minnesota Democrats have never been noted for harmony. They go home from their last convention with no rancor in their hearts, and no political enmities to cherish, and they will be ready to support primary nominees, regardless of the faction to which they may have belonged.

The convention did not meet in the afternoon until 3:30. The credentials and resolutions committees had developed differences of opinion that kept them in session long after the allotted time. When the convention did get down to business, it went through with a rush. Only for the attempt to stampede, it would have been over much earlier, but the adjournment was taken at 5:30 at that.

The credentials committee reported the seating of the Lamberton delegation from Winona county. The committee on permanent organization recommended the choice of M. C. Tifft of Minneapolis as permanent chairman and the retention of the temporary secretaries. Mr. Tifft was escorted to the chair by Mr. Goodrich of Minneapolis and Samuel G. Anderson of Hutchinson.

Delegates-at-large and alternates were chosen, only six nominations being made in each case, and the selections being unanimous. The resolutions developed the fuss over the instructions, and then the three presidential electors-at-large were chosen without contest. The chairman of each county delegation was authorized to name a member of the state central committee, somebody moved to adjourn and Chairman Tifft's gavel fell on the last convention in the state.

INSTRUCTED FOR WILSON.

Delegates to Vote as Unit for New Jersey Governor.

The following resolutions were adopted by the convention:

We, the Democrats of Minnesota in convention assembled, reaffirm our allegiance to the Democratic party, and our adherence to its basic principle: "equal rights to all, special privileges to none."

Four years ago the Democracy of Minnesota in convention assembled, pledged its support to our well beloved, brilliant, and honored fellow citizen, John Albert Johnson. Death claimed him, thus depriving us of the privilege and pleasure of again following his banner into a national convention. We bow in submission to the Hand which took him from us, but the fragrance of his memory abides with us, and his life will continue an inspiration and example to the youth of the commonwealth for the generations to come.

We lay our tribute at the feet of William Jennings Bryan, that great leader of the national Democracy, who for the past sixteen years has devoted his time, his energy, his voice and his great abilities to the welfare of all the people. His was the "voice crying in the wilderness" which has awakened the public conscience, actualized dreams of reform, and made possible the hope of still better things to come.

We commend and praise the statesmanlike force of the Democratic congress in its efforts to reduce the tariff schedules in the interest of all the people; and we condemn President Taft for vetoing such tariff reduction measures, thus prolonging business uncertainty, and continuing unnecessary burdens upon the shoulders of the people.

We condemn the Republican party as false to its platform promises and recreant to the people in the passage of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, which protects trusts and combinations at the expense of all the people.

Restraint of Trade.

All trusts and combinations formed in restraint of trade and to stifle competition are wrong in principle and unreasonable in law; we therefore favor the enactment of legislation rendering impossible the recognition by the courts of "reasonable" crimes.

Recognizing the assistance rendered by the railroads to the progress and prosperity of the country, we believe them entitled to a generous return upon money actually invested in them; but they are not entitled to charge extortionate rates for services rendered in order that they may pay 7 per cent interest and fixed charges upon inflated stocks and watered bond issues.

We favor the conservation of the nation's natural resources and oppose the annexation of the mines, the forests, the oil wells, the water power sites and the lands of the country by gluttonous representatives of big business. Nature's gifts to her children belong to all the people.

We favor the ratification of the constitutional amendment for the direct election of United States senators, and commend the Keefe bill, passed at the 1911 session of the legislature, as a necessary measure pending the ratification of such amendment.

We favor the ratification of the income tax amendment to the Constitution, to the end that all be required to pay their just share of the burdens of government. We condemn the majority of the state senate, which pigeon-holed the resolution for the ratification of such amendment, and thus put Minnesota in a most unfavorable light before the sisterhood of states. We heartily commend the act of the Democratic congress in passing the excise bill levying a tax on all incomes over $5,000.

We commend the patriotic action of the Democratic house of representatives in passing the Sherwood pension bill, which provided for $1 a day pension for the remaining veterans of the great Civil war, and we condemn the Republican senate for delaying its passage and causing its final defeat.

Oppose Subsidies.

We are unalterably opposed to all subsidies by the government, and are especially opposed to a ship subsidy, and we favor the upbuilding of a merchant marine without adding to the burden of the people, and to that end favor a thorough revision of the nation's archaic shipping laws.

We heartily favor the enactment of law by which delegates to the national convention shall be elected directly by the people and urge that the influence and votes of Democratic members of our state legislature be exerted to that end.

Having abiding faith in the citizenship of the nation, we heartily indorse the principle of the initiative, referendum and recall, and pledge the party to the enactment of legislation making this principle operative on the statutes of the state and nation.

Wilson Indorsed.

We enthusiastically indorse the candidacy of that great educator, statesman, reformer and practical man of affairs, the governor of New Jersey, and instruct the delegates from this state to use all honorable means to secure his nomination. They are instructed to vote as a unit on all matters coming before the Baltimore convention, and to vote for Woodrow Wilson until he is nominated, or until in the opinion of two-thirds of the delegation his nomination is considered impossible, in which event they are to transfer their vote to such other Progressive candidate whose nomination will, in the opinion of the majority of the delegation, best advance the interests of the Democracy of the nation.

Thomas Jefferson, when besought by well meaning friends to accept a third election to the presidency, laid down the principle that no man should ever be three times president of the United States. That principle by the nearly unanimous acclaim of the American people then and on numerous occasions since has become a part of the unwritten law of the land. We condemn as un-American and dangerous to the perpetuity of our most cherished institutions any candidacy which violates that principle either in letter or in spirit.

Whereas, The Root amendment to the Dillingham immigration bill provides for the deportation of "any alien who shall take advantage of his residence in the United States to conspire with others for the violent overthrow of foreign government recognized by the United States;" and

Whereas, If the amendment shall become a law it will discriminate against the right of political refugees to continue to offer such assistance as is in their power to bring about a change in conditions in their native land; and

Whereas, The people of this country sympathize warmly with efforts for freedom in other lands; and

Whereas, The men who venture themselves and all dear to them in efforts against the oppressions of their governments, must find a secure asylum in America, when once they reach our shores; and

Whereas, The adoption of the Root amendment is contrary to all the best traditions of our land, and its free institutions, and the recognized policy of this nation to extend a free asylum to political refugees,

Be it therefore resolved, That we hereby protest against said amendment and urge our representatives in congress to work and vote against it.

CHIEF DIVERSION OF THE CONVENTION

Few who heard it will ever forget the speech delivered at the Democratic convention yesterday by Joseph Sauter of Stevens county. That is to say "the" few who heard it, for the uproar, which continued throughout his attempted talk, drowned his words to all except those immediately in front of him. Mr. Sauter was earnest to an excessive degree and read his address from manuscript.

The scene was really painful for the little man was the object of derision from all parts of the house.

Mr. Sauter is said to be one of the richest farmers of Stevens county, an honored citizen and one whose judgement is sought by the best business men of his community.

WINSTON MADE A BAD GUESS.

It is understood that F. G. Winston, one of the Clark adherents on the Hennepin delegation, for once in his well judged career made a mistake as to choice when he picked the "houn' dawg" candidate as a winner. Inside tips, taken for what they are worth, are to the effect that the Minneapolis Wilson organiation sent an emissary to Mr. Winston a number of weeks ago and offered to support him for delegate-at-large if he would come into camp. That was before he had stated his position. They specified that he would have their horse to ride for nothing.

He refused, attached himself to the Clark movement, put up handsome contributions, became a candidate for delegate-at-large and did not get a look-in.

SAYS HAMMOND WILL FILE SOON

Senator Works Expects Congressman to Announce Himself for Governor.

For some time it has been generally taken for granted that State Senator S. D. Works of Mankato has a congressional bee in his bonnet and that he is very desirous of having Congressman W. S. Hammond of the Second district file for the gubernatorial nomination in order that the track may be cleared for himself.

Mr. Works, who was a delegate to the convention just ended, was asked about it. He was quite non-committal about his own case but asserted positively that he fully expects Mr. Hammond to enter the field for the nomination for governor on the Democratic ticket in the very near future.

Asked as to his own designs on congress he refused to specify further than to say that it depended greatly on what conditions might arise in the interim.

WOUNDED WIFE JUMPS.

Leaps From Second Story Window as Husband Fires Again.

Chicago, June 7.—Albert McLean, an employe of a department store shot and probably fatally wounded his wife, Mary, and then killed himself in their home. The woman jumped from a second-story window and escaped another shot aimed at her by her husband. A letter left by McLean disclosed that jealousy was the cause of the shooting.

"Worked Like a Miracle on Stomach and Nerves"

MR. MARTIN WOHLSCHIESS.

writes Mr. Martin Wohlschiess. Before he started using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey his stomach was all out of order and his nerves shattered, troubles that were quickly checked by this valuable medicine.

"For two years I suffered from my stomach and nervous trouble. My digestive organs were entirely out of order and all the money that I spent for relief was thrown away. I read about Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, tried it, taking four doses a day, and, like a miracle, within a very short time my ailments disappeared. My nerves are now quiet and my stomach can retain all food, and I am again in good condition. I recommend it to every sick person and will continue to do so."—Martin Wohlschiess, Neshamery P. O., Bucks County, Pa.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

WHAT IT IS—WHAT IT DOES

It is an absolutely pure distillation of clean, selected grain thoroughly malted. It is a predigested liquid food in the form of a medicinal whiskey; its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

By assisting digestion and assimilation, it enables you to get from the food you eat all the nourishment it contains. It builds up the nerve tissues, tones up the heart, gives power to the brain, strength and elasticity to the muscles and richness to the blood. For stomach troubles, nervousness, typhoid, malaria, diseases of the throat and lungs it is wonderfully effective.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the only whiskey that was taxed by the Government as a medicine during the Spanish-American war.

BE SURE YOU GET DUFFY'S and that the seal over the cork is intact.

Sold in SEALED BOTTLES ONLY by druggists, grocers and dealers, $1.00 a large bottle. If your dealer cannot supply you, write us, and we will tell you where it can be bought. Our doctors will send you advice free, together with a valuable illustrated medical booklet.

"SPECIAL" ENDS TEN DAYS TOUR

A. B. Hostetter, superintendent of agriculture of the Duluth Commercial club; Prof. N. E. Chapman and Prof. K. A. Kirkpatrick of the state agricultural school, arrived in Duluth this morning from International Falls, where the ten days' trip of the agricultural special of the Northern Pacific railroad ended yesterday.

All were delighted with the success of the trip. An average of 1,000 people daily visited the train and heard the addresses of the experts. The train carried a complete display of farm stock, including horses, cows, sheep, pigs and chickens, and the work of the experts was made easier by the opportunities for demonstration.

The country through which the Minnesota & International runs is fast developing under the hands of a good class of settlers. Room was found for scientific instruction, however, and the settlers will welcome the work of an expert who will be put into the field by the Northern Pacific.

Prof. Chapman said this morning that the people at International Falls are making great preparations for the entertainment of the Northern Minnesota Development association, which will hold its meeting there June 20 and 21. The delegates will be entertained royally during their leisure hours, he said, and there is much to be seen around the border towns.

EIGHT PETITIONS FOR EXTENSION OF MAINS.

Eight petitions for the extension of gas and water mains were filed with the board of water and light commissioners yesterday, and will go before the council for approval Monday night. They are: East Eighth street from Ninth avenue east to a point 100 feet west of Tenth avenue east, 360 feet; Eleventh avenue east, Tenth to Twelfth streets, 840 feet; West Fifet street, Forty-second to Forty-third avenues, 468 feet; East Ninth street, Twelfth avenue east eastward 200 feet; Sixty-fifth avenue west, Polk street south 250 feet; West Seventh street, Thirty-ninth avenue west to Thirty-eighth avenue, 420 feet; Eleventh avenue east, Ninth to Tenth streets and in Tenth street from Eleventh to Twelfth avenues, 840 feet; Cooke street, Forty-third avenue east to Forty-sixth avenue, 1,224 feet.

Miner Hurt; Wants $15,000.
Vinko Robnik, aged 27, a miner, today started suit in district court against the Oliver Iron Mining company for $15,000 for injuries which he claims to have sustained on Aug. 11 last while employed at the Leonard mine, near Chisholm. Robnik says that he was badly disabled in a fall from a ladder and that he has been incapacitated for work.

Monthly Reports.
The business done at the county offices during the month of May, according to reports which were submitted to the county board yesterday afternoon, is as follows: Sheriff's office, receipts, $53,921.14; clerk of court, $1,113.14; register of deeds (for April), $1,172.23; register of titles (for April), $364.36; judge of probate, $48.50; poor board for first quarter of 1912, receipts, $35.43; expenditures, $15,194.83.

No Trace of Burglars.
The police as yet have been unable to find any trace of the men who burglarized the grocery store of McKenzie & McGhie early yesterday morning. They got in by forcing the back door. They smashed a cash box which they found in the safe, which had been left unlocked and got therefrom $55 in cash.

Lester Park Club Meets.
The Lester Park improvement club held a rousing meeting last evening. A large number of residents were present to express themselves on the existing conditions in the park. Various committees were appointed to look after beautifying London road and streets and avenues, and improving of street car service, lighting, paving streets, taking care of storm water and better mail service. The meeting adjourned subject to call of the chair.

Sermons to Young People.
A series of sermons intended especially for the benefit of young people will be preached by Rev. R. Edward Sayles, pastor of the First Baptist church, on Sunday evenings at the regular services during the next four weeks. The topics are as follows: Sunday, June 9, "Youth and Money;" June 17, "Youth and Mates;" June 23, "Youth and Morals;" June 30, "Youth and Making." The evening services open at 8 o'clock.

Letter From "Teddy."
Alex Hamilton, a well-known deputy clerk in the district court and a staunch Republican, has received a letter from Theodore Roosevelt in which the former president thanks Mr. Hamilton for a note recently sent to him congratulating him on the splendid progress which he had been making in his presidential campaign.

"Wiener Roast."
The members of the Himless club entertained at a "wiener roast" at Lester park last evening. The party was chaperoned by Miss Mary Glad, Miss Ethel Larsen, E. H. Geiger and M. Nordman.

Fire in Garage.
A fire that broke out at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the garage of Capt. M. L. Fay at 2105 East Superior street destroyed the building and has probably ruined the automobile which it contained. The loss has not yet been estimated. The fire started through an explosion of gasoline, but how it became ignited is not yet known.

Fire in Newspaper Office.
The News Tribune building had a narrow escape from destruction at 6 o'clock this morning. The janitor had swept out the editorial rooms on the third floor and left his wheel refuse basket, packed with paper, in the middle of the news room floor. Somehow the paper caught fire and blazed freely, the flames reaching the ceiling. Luckily the blaze was directly under an automatic sprinkler and the heat released the water, which poured in heavy volume upon the blaze, putting it out before further damage was done. The fire department found its work completed when it was called.

Enters Plea of Guilty.
Marks Dunlop, 23 years old, who broke into the saloon of Gilbert Hagen, 107½ East Superior street, on the morning of June 1, pleaded guilty to burglary in the third degree before Judge Dancer of the district court this morning. Judge Dancer deferred sentence, wishing to inquire more fully into the details of the matter.

MILL CITY MAN WORKS OLD GAG

Fargo, N. D., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Agnes Matthews of Minneapolis was the cause of P. A. Morgan of Grand Forks coming to grief.

He is defendant in an action before the United States court and she is the complainant.

He advertised that for 25 cents he would tell women how they could earn from $2 to $3 per day at home and would reply by sending a list of magazines for which they could solicit. He advertised under name of the Morgan Manufacturing company, and it is alleged there was no such concerned. Agnes Matthews was one of the victims and reported the case to the federal authorities.

For the embezzlement of small sums of government money, O. S. Berrisford, a clerk in the registry department at the Fargo postoffice was sentenced to six months in jail and to pay $200 fine.

SAYS BANKING SYSTEM SHOULD BE REGULATED.

New York, June 7. — That the immense power wielded by the New York Clearing House association over the banks of the country's financial center, and arbitrarily lodged in the hands of five men, should be placed under judicial regulation, was conceded by William Sherer, manager of the association on the witness stand at the hearing by the house committee on banking and currency, which is investigating the so-called money trust.

Mr. Untermeyer raised the question of the violation of the interstate commerce laws when he brought out from the witness that by taxing the collection of checks on out-of-town banks, the New York clearing house institutions "levied on the country a tribute."

AIDED BY NEWSPAPERS.

Thief River Falls Woman's Anxiety About Son Relieved.

Grand Forks, N. D.—June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joy came to the grief-stricken heart of Mrs. Mary Meyer of Thief River Falls, Minn., when informed that her son, Peter, for whom she had been searching here since last Sunday morning was at home and recovering nicely.

Mrs. Meyer came here in response to a message from her son that he was critically ill and needed assistance at once. No address was given and on arriving here Mrs. Meyer was forced to search every hospital, every hotel, inquire of every physician in the city and finally appeal to the police for assistance.

No trace of the young man was found and the mother, in her despair, gave the story to the newspapers. This brought her the word by long distance telephone that her son had reached home, leaving here the morning she had arrived.

Beautiful Lake Nebagamon

The Finest Fishing and Hunting Location in the Northwest.

Ideal Place for Hay Fever Patients.

BY W. F. HUTCHINS.

LEAVING on the South Shore road at 7:45 in the morning from the Soo union station and with only a couple of hours' ride, you arrive in one of the prettiest summer resorts that nature ever produced.

The city of Nebagamon, situated on this beautiful lake, has sufficient variety of up-to-date stores, hotels, and a bank to supply all the needs of vacationists and dwellers. It is but 34 miles from Duluth.

Lake Nebagamon has a 27-mile pine-clad sandy shore beach. The lake, while not large enough to make severe storms possible, offers sufficient surface for a long and exciting motor boat race, however speedy the boat. The water of the lake is wonderfully clear and the shores slope evenly and gradually downward, making them the safest of bathing places, even for those who have not acquired the art of swimming.

Canoes, rowboats and motor boats, each are well represented on the waters. Splendid fishing abounds, and only 4 miles from Lake Nebagamon river the Brule river connects, which is one of the finest trout streams in the United States. A pleasant day may be spent poling and fishing down this river alone. Both streams and lake are stocked with fry annually.

The boulevard road around the lake is in excellent condition for automobiling and carriages. The sight once seen is never fogotten.

The agricultural and farming possibilities lie at the door of Lake Nebagamon. The soil is a rich sandy loam, admirably adapted to diversified farming and yields immense crops of grain and various garden truck, for which a steady and constant demand exists within an easy walking distance of the farm or garden patch to sell the produce at the current prices.

Instances innumerable might be cited to prove that success might inevitably follow any proper effort at taking a profit from cultivating the soil of Lake Nebagamon. This is not a glittering generality, as it might seem, but a plain statement of an easily substantiated truth.

Where Opportunities Meets the Man.

Here's a field for all, unequalled in the matchless opportunities it affords to intelligence, energy and ability, to upbuild and expand, a country backed by natural resources nowhere surpassed.

Nebagamon's Fine School.

Nothing is the cause of more justifiable pride to the Nebagamon than the school. Started with ample provision for the future, it has been the constant aim not only to keep them abreast, but ahead of the times, and the board of education is constantly on the alert to forecast the development of the city and prepare to take care of the needs and wants in an educational way.

Fine Hotels One of Nabagamon's Assets.

The fact that it is a good thing to see Lake Nebagamon for the purpose of having a look at the surroundings, the registers of the hotels of the city are pretty good evidence that the people are coming to the realization that it is a good place to spend their quiet summer vacations.

The merest investigation of the conditons that must make for its pleasure and agriculture future will bear out the statement that it is not a far look into the future to see there a city of 5,000 people.

Has Done Much to Build Up Nebagamon.

The Burg Acreage & Townsite company, who has extensive acreages in and around Lake Nebagamon and has been instrumental in building up the town, is always ready to show you just where and what to buy at very low prices on easy terms. The company has offices at 300 Alworth building, Duluth, Minn.

An Old Time Land Man.

Dave Dobie of Superior, Wis., who represents a large body of land surrounding Lake Nebagamon, has to his credit of opening more farm lands than any other man, says this part of the country can't be beat for farming and truck gardening as is has not been known for the past thirty years to have a failure. It is not like the Dakotas, where you are only sure of a crop in five years. "Dave" has offices in the Wisconsin block, Superior, Wis.

A Popular Ice Cream Parlor.

Just across from the Grand View hotel Annie Muck conducts one of the neatest and coziest ice cream parlors to be found. She carries a splendid line of confectionery, fancy china pieces and innumerable souvenirs.

A Prosperous Business Man.

Martin Hendricksen, who runs the Tremont hotel and buffet, is a very popular and genial fellow and makes friends with all comers. His hosteiry daily feeds many with wholesome meals that not only pleases the taste, but nourishes the body. Martin has one of the finest farms south of the lake to be found and takes great pleasure in rowing sightseers over to see it.

Park Hotel.

Pete Neros is the proprietor, and has for his motto: Neatness and cleanliness, pure and wholesome home-cooked meals at special rates for tourists. Buffet in connection.

John Davidison

Has a popular place for Nebagamon sportsmen. He is a well liked business man and work hard to further the interests of his town. John carries only the best kind of wines, liquors and cigars.

Twelve Years a Leading Merchant.

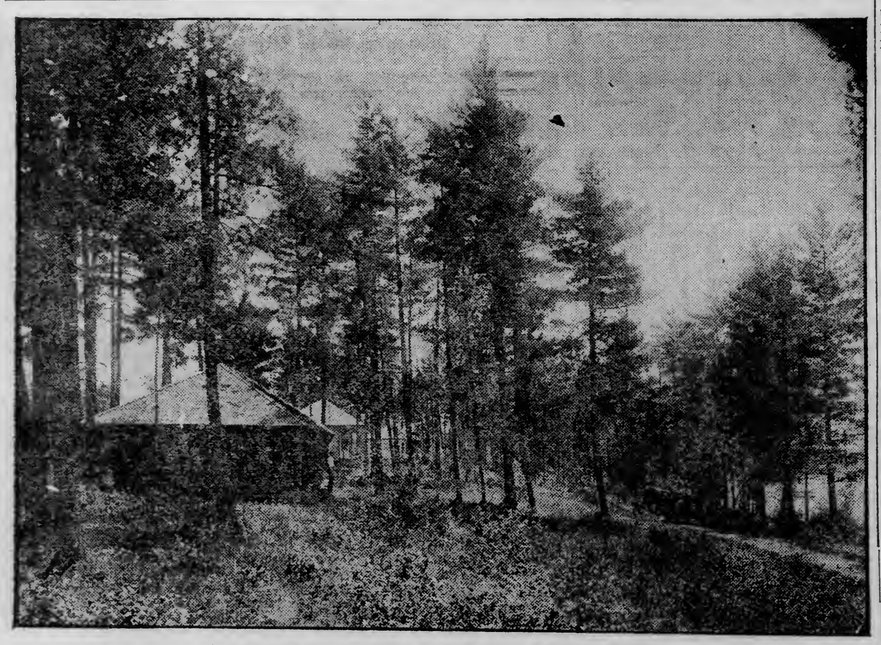

J. A. Chisholm, who runs a general mercantile store, is one of the leading lights and officers of the city. His store is run on the principle that a satisfied customer is worth more to any firm than a profit and he accordingly serves his trade with good goods, which surely takes with the housewives of Nebagamon.

Stone's Drug Store Co.

Mr. Stone and his faithful wife are always on the "job" at the store. In connection with their drug line they have the postoffice, which makes it one of the busiest places in the town. Mr. Stone is a graduated pharmacist and the people of Nebagamon can depend that when their prescriptions are filled by him they are right. He also has an ice cream and soda fountain, besides carrying a complete line of candles and cigars.

One of the Standbys of Nebagamon.

Allan McPhee, who owns a general grocery store, carries a complete line in staple and fancy groceries, cigars, tobaccos, candy and the side lines accompaning a first class grocery stock. Fresh fruits and vegetables are kept in season.

SNAKE FARM FOR PROFIT

Curious Industry Which Is Carried On By a Texas Man.

Commercial Uses Found for Variety of Reptiles and Beasts.

Galveston, Tex., June 7.—A well-conducted snake and wild animal farm is one of the industrial pursuits and business enterprises to be found in Brownsville, Tex., the unique city of the lower Rio Grande valley. This snake farm is located about 100 yards from the depot of the Gulf Coast line, and it is worth visiting by anyone who has the curiosity to see and study the habits and peculiarities of snakes. In this inclosure are hundreds of these reptiles of the rattler, yellow bull, indigos, gopher or blue bull, coach whip, racers, free snakes, corral adders and other species.

Each variety has its own pen, or cage and in each corner can be seen piles of these repulsive creatures coiled around each other. Disturb the rattlers and they hiss, ring their rattles and stick out their black tongues as a warning to the intruder to keep his distance.

While some few snakes are raised on this farm, the stock is kept replenished from the mesquite chaparral and cacti thickets for which the lower Rio Grande valley is noted. The Mexicans go into the brakes and make their captures. The old Mexican snake hunter is said to be an expert in his calling. The Mexican is paid for his snakes at the rate of fifteen cents a pound and frequently one large rattler brings him $2.50 and even $3.

Shipped to all Sections.

From this farm snakes are shipped to all parts of the United States and Canada for shows and museums and scientific, medicinal, manufacturing and commercial purposes. In Philadelphia, and probably in other cities, it has been stated the poison of the rattler is being used for conducting experiments in the treatment of tuberculosis and other diseases, leprosy, perhaps, that are supposed to be incurable when fully developed.

The hides are tanned and are used for ornaments, as well as for manufacturing purposes, hand bags, cravats, hat hands and other ornamental apparel. The oil is used in the treatment of toothache, earache, neuralgia, rheumatism and other ailments. It is also used in making many salves, ointments, liniments and toilet preparations.

It is claimed by those who are authority on rattlesnake lore that a few drops of rattlesnake oil added to lip salves, cold creams, face powders, colognes and extracts makes the skin soft and smooth, and readily transplants the blush and beauty from the rose to the cheeks of fair maidens and society belles and matrons. The poison of the rattler is worth $15 per ounce, but it takes many snakes to secure that quantity. When dried it crystalizes and is a bright yellow.

In connection with this farm certain wild animals are kept for sale.

The snakes are frequently sold and shipped alive to the snake oil factory, but when desired they are killed, skinned and their bodies put in brine and thus shipped from the barn.

Snakes' Principal Diet.

Young rabbits, rats, mice and frogs constitute the principal died of snakes. They seldom eat oftener than once or twice a week. They are quite fastidious about their food and they will not eat any of the animals fed to them unless still alive when they begin to eat, or rather swallow, for snakes do not masticate. They use their fangs for pulling the rabbit, rat or other article of diet into their mouths, and they do this without puncturing and injecting poison into the victim. After swallowing its food the snake becomes lazy and sleeps until it again becomes hungry and starts out in search of another meal.

The grown snakes do not eat as often as those that have not attained their growth. The blacksnake and the blue bull will kill and eat the rattlers, but the king snake is the real boss of the snake family, and will kill any of them.

Mrs. Hall stated that a short time ago a large whipsnake by accident got into the pen with a blacksnake. Of course, a struggle for food and life soon ensued. The blacksnake was the victor and swallowed its antagonist as a choice morsel of food. To accomplish the feat of swallowing the whipsnake required an effort on the part of the blacksnake which lasted just twenty-four hours, and at the end of that time the tail of the whipsnake was still sticking out of the blackenake's mouth. The latter snake has been asleep ever since, perhaps ten days or longer.

MICHIGAN WOMAN,

Forty-Six Years Old, Is Mother of Twenty-Six Children.

Marshall, Mich., June 7.—Mrs. William Moore, 46 years old, of Burlington township, mother of twenty-six children, the youngest of whom is 11 months, married first when 14, and has one child by her first husband; married again when 17, and has twenty-five children by the second marriage, including seven pairs of twins, one boy, 6 years old bearing the name of Clarence Roosevelt Moore. She writes Col. Roosevelt regarding the living up to his teachings and says she would vote for him if she could.

MET DEFEAT,

But Ohio Veteran Didn't Waste Much on Campaign Expenses.

Sandusky, Ohio, June 7.—Defeated for re-election as a member of the Republican county central committee, Sergeant Charles C. Campbell, of the Soldiers' and Sailors' home, filed the following statement of his campaign expenses:

"To four glasses of beer at 5 cents each—20 cents.

"To one glass of beer for a fellow who said he carried the precinct in his pocket, although the returns prove that he was mistaken—5 cents.

"Total, 25 cents.

"That's all."

MORE GREEN VEGETABLES

Home-Grown Garden Products Are Becoming Much More Plentiful.

Lettuce Has Taken Quite a Drop—Poultry and Meats Cheaper.

Green vegetables grown in Minnesota and Wisconsin are becoming more and more plentiful and the prices are steadily declining as the season advances.

Minnesota garden lettuce has just come upon the market, taking the place of the head lettuce from California and the leaf lettuce grown in hotbeds. Head lettuce, which a week ago was bringing at wholesale $3 a bushel, is now selling for $1 a bushel, and leaf lettuce has dropped from $1 a bushel to 75 cents.

A fifty-pound box of Minnesota rhubarb, which a week ago was bringing $1, now goes for 90 cents.

Home-grown onions, raised from the seed, are now coming upon the market. When dealers speak of home-grown vegetables, they refer usually to those raised in any part of Minnesota or Wisconsin. The onions raised from the seed are better than those that came earlier and which were raised from the onion sets, which had their start in hotbeds. These are all young green onions.

Wax beans are still coming from Mississippi, but during the past week the price has dropped from $2.75 to $2 per bushel box.

Old potatoes still hold their price remarkably well. A week ago the wholesale price was $1.15 a bushel and now it is $1.10.

The fancy Florida tomatoes are higher than they were a week ago. The price of a six-basket crate has advanced from $3.75 to $4. Good tomatoes are scarce just now. The weather is so much milder than it has been that it is hard to ship without a considerable persentage spoiling. The fact that so many have to be thrown away after they arrive necessitates a higher price being charged for the rest.

Cabbages are a little higher. The Roseland Louisiana, cabbage that sold a week ago for $3 a crate, is now bringing $3.25. California cabbages are now coming upon the market, a large crate selling for $4.75. It is hard to say whether the Louisiana or the California cabbage is a more choice product. There is a strong demand for cabbages just now, though the quality is not quite so good as it has been. The demand is a little in excess of the supply.

Rutabaga turnips are scarce. They are in good demand for mining camps, where such vegetables are very convenient. The supply of last year's crop is very limited. A bushel that a week ago sold for $1 now brings $1.25.

Strawberries are higher. The shipments are taking the last of the Missouri crop. A twenty-four-crate, which a week ago sold for $2.25, now is worth $2.50. During the latter part of this month it is expected that the Wisconsin berries will be arriving and the price will probably take quite a drop.

Cuban pineappes have dropped from $3 to $2.75 a crate because the stock on hand is not so good as it was and the dealers wish to get it sold out before the arrival of the Florida pineapples. These will probably be coming next week. They are better than the Cuban fruit and the price is almost sure to be higher.

The cherries, black and white, that are arriving from California, are still very high, because the movement is not such that local wholesalers can afford to ship in carload lots. Black berries, however, are a little cheaper than they were a week ago, having declined from $2.40 to $2.25 per case. The cherries must become considerably cheaper in California, before the carload shipments to Duluth can be made.

Oranges are a little higher, a box of extra fancy Navels that a week ago brought $3.60, now selling for $3.75. The Eastern markets were recently glutted with oranges, and the demand was poor, but conditions have adjusted themselves so that the demand is about even with the supply.

Butter stands at the same price it commanded a week ago, though the market fluctuated slightly between times. The best creamery is now selling at 25 cents wholesale and 32 cents retail. This is not extraordinarily high, though it is 5 cents higher than the price of the same butter a year ago. Two years ago, however, the same butter was a cent a pound higher than at present.

The wholesale price of eggs has for some weeks remained steady at 19 and 20 cents. At this time a year ago they were selling at 16 and 17 cents. Local wholesalers are of the opinion that on account of the higher price not as many eggs will be stored away this spring for the coming winter as were stored away a year ago. This may mean a very high price for eggs next winter. It will be remembered that last winter the wholesale price during a long spell of extremely cold weather went as high as 40 cents a dozen and some retailers were selling eggs at 50 cents. The idea of seeing the same or higher prices next winter is not a pleasant one.

Poultry is slightly easier. The frozen stock is almost gone, but the movement of live poultry from the farms to the Duluth market is a pretty lively one just now and prices are steadily, though slowly, declining. Dealers have raised their prices, however, on very young chickens or broilers, as not very many are yet arriving. The receipts of broilers thus far have not been nearly so large as was expected.

The wholesale rpices of mutton, pork loins and lamb have gone down a cent to 2 cents a pound. Local wholesale meat dealers give no explanation for this. It is a welcome change, however, for meat of all kinds has been extraodinarily high.

SCANDAL IN MANITOBA

Three Years Have Worked Disaster With Government Telephone System.

Waste, Extravagance and Graft Are Shown By an Investigation.

Winnipeg, Man., June 7.—Three years ago the province of Manitoba took over all the telephone systems in the province and subsequently went into the grain-elevator business. The net result is that today the government grain-elevator system is for sale to anybody who will buy it, and the operation of the telephone has developed a political scandal of vast proportions. This condition has been reached despite the fact that at the head of the provincial government stands Premier R. P. Roblin, the "Man of the hour;" the man who secured for Manitoba a salt-water seaport and showed himself the greatest constructive statesman Western Canada ever produced.

The advent of the government into the telephone field was in favorable circumstances. There was a demand for a trial of public ownership. Premier Roblin, recognizing this demand, appointed a non-partisan commission to take over the several existing telephone companies and to weld the different concerns into one compact system. He appointed as members of the operating commission the most efficient telephone experts available at that time, regardless of their political complexion. In fact, the board was made up of members of the opposition. But three years have worked disaster with the telephone system. A royal commission has for the last four months been investigating the situation. It has already unearthed a complication of waste, extravagance, incompetence and graft which is fairly bewildering.

Inquiry is Started.

The telephone commission made the announcement that a heavy increase in telephone rates must be made and the Winnipeg Board of Trade started an independent investigation to see why the raise in rates is necessary. The affair reached the legislature and was made the subject of numerous addresses and debates on the floor of that institution.

Formerly there were a number of telephone companies in the province. The largest of these operated the Winnipeg system and was owned by one of the big American companies. When the Manitoba authorities desired to go into the telephone business they set about the capture of the big American system. The government was prepared to parallel all private lines in the province so the American company decided to sell its plant to the government. In the transfer, however, the American company had the advantage of dealing with government representatives handling government money, instead of with business-men paying out their private funds. The result was that the government is said to have paid the Americans about $1,000,000 more than could have been obtained from any group of clear-headed business-men.

This was the first ground of dissatisfaction, fostered by the opposition, with the government's dash into the telephone business. Others followed thick and fast. Scandals were whispered. Reports of grafting were rife. The rumors took on the magnitude of a scandal and the opposition made much of every mistake. Premier Roblin appointed a royal commission to investigate. For nearly four months this commission has been at work, holding sessions in Winnipeg and various other cities of the province. The evidence is now in the hands of the commission and is being tabulated.

Unnecessary Purchases.

One of the subjects of inquiry of the royal commission was the purchasing department of the government telephones. Commissioner Paterson, before this body, acknowledged to having at one time bought $500,000 worth of material he did not need. Another development was that there are on hand at present sufficient telephone poles to last five years even for a most unheard of expansion in the system.

The construction of lines into unprofitable territory was yet another subject of investigation, and here were disclosed some starling conditions. One line seventeen miles long was built in order to reach a single consumer. Another line, constructed at great expense, brought in only a few dollars in the two years since it was built.

The business system was deplorable, according to testimony. Payrolls were doctored, some vouchers raised, others duplicated, still others were taken in blank and later filled in to any sum desired. Some materials were sold and others actually and wantonly thrown away. The checking system was so poor that the head officers accepted for long distance calls any sum branch managers chose to remit.

T. H. Johnson, Liberal member of parliament, officially stated on the floor of that body: "The labors of the commission have brought to light an alarming state of affairs. A remarkable story of unsatisfactory finance and plundering by certain employes has been made public."

The report of the crown commission is expected shortly and Winnipeg business men are anxiously awaiting the recommendations it may make.

DUEL NOT BLOODLESS.

"Princess" in "Beverly" Hurt at Little Falls.

Little Falls, Minn., June 7.—The duel put on at the Milo Tuesday night in "Beverly of Graustark" was not as bloodless as it may have seemed to the spectators. During the clashing of swords one of the weapons was broken and a piece flying behind the scenes struck the lady who was playing the part of the Princess of Graustark on the forehead. The lights were put out and the curtain run down, but the actress recovered in a short time and was able to finish her part.

Democratic Governorship Possibilities at State Convention—Senator Nelson Will Not Be Candidate for Re-election—Bob Dunn Will Probably Enter Race for Governor. :-: :-:

Governorship Possibilities.

There was little talk of candidates for the governorship among the delegates to the Democratic convention here. They were so absorbed in the chances of Wilson and Clark and the dark horse possibilities of Bryan that they did not turn their attention to state matters, even when Prof. Charles Andrist's active canvass here called the governorship directly to their attention.

Several Democratic gubernatorial possibilities were among the delegates. Samuel G. Anderson of Hutchinson and T. J. Knox of Jackson loomed up among them, while P. M. Ringdal of Crookston and Judge C. W. Stanton of Bemidji had many friends. Albert Pfaender of New Ulm was prominently mentioned. D. D. Daly's espousal of Ringdal had much to do in bringing the member of the board of control into prominence. Prof. Andrist made a very favorable impression and he would run strong in a primary against any of those mentioned now.

Congressman W. S. Hammond's intentions are clouded. The Democrats of the Second district want him to run again and his own preference is for another run for congress. It may be that some of his friends in the state at large will induce him to file for the governorship, but the Second district delegates seemed to think that unlikely.

If Congressman Hammond should decide to file for the governorship, T. J. Knox would probably be crowded out, but he would become a prominent factor for the congressional race. Senator S. D. Works of Mankato also has senatorial ambitions, it is understood, and would probably attempt to step into Hammond's shoes if the St. James man should decide to enter the governorship race.

Present Solid Front.

The Democratic gathering here was so large and so enthusiastic that it was taken as a favorable omen for the party in the state this year. Many angles of discord have been straightened out by the convention here and the party faces a primary election with few dissensions in the state. The Democrats will present a solid front to the enemy and they are hopeful that a strong man will head the ticket and carry the party to victory.

Senators "In Bad."

Some of the Northern Minnesota senators are "in bad" with their constituents on account of signing the agreement excluding reapportionment from consideration by the senate at the extra session. The reapportionment advocates hold that the Northern Minnesota senators should have stood together for the constitutional rights of the northern part of the state and their defection is bitterly assailed in some quarters. The senators will not come up for re-election this year, but if reapportionment falls at the extra session, the people will not forget and there will be a reckoning in 1914.

Nelson Not a Candidate.

Apparently authentic information received in Duluth is that Senator Knute Nelson will not be a candidate for re-election under the Keefe bill. The Alexandria man is said to have decided to retire with the end of the present term and to leave the field at the primary this year to younger men.

When Congressman Lindbergh of the Sixth district announced his candidacy for the senate, it was thought that he must have known Senator Nelson intended to retire. Mr. Lindbergh has a double-riveted clinch on his seat in the Sixth district and would not be likely to give it up for a chance of defeating the hardy Norseman from Alexandria. The news that Senator Nelson intends to retire is thus only a confirmation of what was before a moral certainty.

Dunn for Governor.

Legislators and others who came from St. Paul to the Democratic convention said that R. C. Dunn's candidacy for governor is practically a fact. The Princeton man has never lost his ambition to sit in the executive chair. He might have entered the race without the primary, but that is extremely doubtful. He has political enemies who would have him at their mercy in a convention. Under the primary, Bob will appeal direct to the people and he has high hopes of success.

Schmahl Has Troubles.

Political enemies of Secretary of State Julius A. Schmahl will make capital out of the supply mix-up in the special session. Mr. Schmahl's friends are not worrying over his chances in a primary, but his opponents are active. G. H. Mattson of Roseau has announced his candidacy for secretary of state and he will probably be Mr. Schmahl's most formidable, if not his only opponent.

Many Want Spooner's Seat.

L. C. Spooner's seat in the house is to be contested by at least two candidates. C. P. Carlson of Swan Lake has already announced his candidacy and James McArthur of Hancock came out this week with his announcement. James Adlard of Browns Valley and W. J. Bryan of Traverse county are also said to be anxious to occupy the seat. When Mr. Spooner announced his candidacy for governor, he reserved the right to file for the house if he should be defeated in the convention July 2. The convention July 2 has been abandoned on account of the probability of a primary law being passed, so that Mr. Spooner will be called upon to make a selection. If he remains in the race for governor, he will lose his seat in the house to some one of the busy aspirants for the place.

Coller and Weis Mentioned.

The question of a Democratic candidate for congress in the Third district is still in the air. The Democracy of the district is strong and militant and many of the leaders believe that Congressman Davis can be defeated by a strong Democrat. Senator Harry F. Weis of LeSueur and Senator Julius Coller of Shakopee are most prominently mentioned as candidates. Either could defeat Davis in the opinion of many Third district delegates to the convention here.

GEORGE D. McCARTHY.

NEFARIOUS TWO-BILL AGREEMENT OF SENATE SEEMS TO BE SMASHED

that makes it so exceedingly embarrassing for the senate to hold to its cleverly arranged nefarious agreement that it is too much to expect human nature can withstand the pressure.

The combine broken by these measures, there is also little doubt that a bill proposing an increase of 25 per cent in the railroad gross earnings tax will go through. The house is practically certain to pass it, and if the Gordon committee stands fast by its agreement with the appointing power, that means that the senate will have to vote on it. And if the senate votes on it, it will pass.

No Hope of Reapportionment.

That brings the question up to reapportionment. What about reapportionment?

There is no more show of reapportionment at this session than there is of a law providing a pension of $10,000 a year for every man who qualifies as a Progressive.

The senate has made up its mind to kill reapportionment at this session, and it will kill it. There are people who hope that this same senate will provide reapportionment at the regular session of 1913, but not even folks so trusting as that have any hope whatever that the senate will provide it now.

If a session had been called last winter, there was a chance for it. Since then the Southern Minnesota Development association has been formed, and the anti-reapportionment senators have been a powerful factor in its formation and deliberations. They have seen to it that this association, which presumably reflects the sentiment of Southern Minnesota, has backed them up in their fight against reapportionment. The two-measure program, which was cheerfully taken up by Minneapolis senators anxious to head off other measures, much more anxious than they are to get reapportionment, originated in that association at a meeting attended by a score or two in which anti-reapportionment senators were an influential if not a controlling factor.

There is no chance now, at any rate, for reapportionment of any kind.

There have been reports in the Twin City newspapers that Northern Minnesota house members have agreed to ditch reapportionment in order to get something through and get home.

That is not true. It is true that there are members from Northern Minnesota who are more anxious to get through and go home than they are about any legislation. But the great majority of the Northern Minnesota members are as determined about reapportionment, and as bitter about the senate's brutal assault upon justice as they ever were, or as anybody is.

But—there is a but—the well known and generally admitted fact that there is no hope of decency in the senate inevitably makes the reapportionment fight in the house somewhat lackadaisical.

Even some of the stoutest friends of reapportionment hesitate about spending time in a house fight on reapportionment—and there will be a fight when reapportionment comes up—when they know that even if they win in the house, they must certainly lose in the senate.

Besides, it is hard to answer the argument that nothing is to be gained by passing now a reapportionment law effective after the next session—and there is no talk of any other kind of reapportionment—when the benefits will come just as quickly if the matter is put over until the regular session.

Fight Will Be Made.

But the fight for reapportionment will be made in the house just the same. It will not, and cannot, have the same spirit that it would have if anybody had the remotest hope of success in the senate. But it will be made, win or lose; and there is no certainty about its winning, even in the house. The chances are now that it will pass the house; but it may not. It may not even come up. A reapportionment bill will be introduced today or tomorrow. Representative Cleon T. Knapp and other Northern Minnesota members are whipping the Congdon bill of 1911 into shape, and will introduce it.

Necessarily there isn't half so much interest in what becomes of it in the house as there would be if anybody hoped for its success in the senate.

One thing is sure: before the bill is introduced, those "shoestring" districts to which the iron ranges objected at the regular session will be eliminated. Senator Boyle of Eveleth and Representatives Knapp of Chisholm and Healy of Hibbing are working on a redistricting that will—in the bill—give the ranges two senatorial districts and Duluth three—with Lake and Cook counties attached to one of the Duluth districts, but with a house member of their own, as now.

Fuss Over Legislative Supplies.

The tempest in a teapot over legislative supplies, which has been raging more or less furiously in both houses since the opening, came to a crisis yesterday afternoon when Secretary Julius Schmahl sent his men to the house chamber and removed all the supplies that had been furnished, down to the last pencil, the last drop of ink and the last sheet of scratch paper.

This morning when the house convened the desks were as bare as though the legislature was not in session.

The questions involved include not only the right of the secretary of state to provide these supplies, but the question whether he was not unnecessarily liberal in providing them.

The law requires the secretary of state to put the legislative chambers in readiness for the session. For many years the custom has been for him to provide a nice Christmas box full of rubber bands, knives, fountain pens, mucilage, stationary, etc., together with waste baskets and the like. When the legislature was in full swing the secretary of the senate and the chief clerk of the house bought some more supplies, so that there was stationery enough to take home and use indefinitely, together with some more flossy sorts to give to the wives, as well as scissors for housewifely needs.

The business has been overdone, of course, and after the last session there was some outcry about it.

When the extra sesion opened the usual boxes, waste baskets and stationery were on hand; more, some of the members thought, than were needed for a short session. There were also bill files in which to keep copies of printed bills and files in which the daily house and senate journals were to be kept.

There was a fuss about it in both houses. The senate rules committee voted to return all the supplies to the secretary of state, but the committee's resolution was laid over and no action taken.

Schmahl Explains.

Yesterday noon the house committee on legislative expenses met and had Julius Schmahl on the carpet. He pointed out the law which requires him to get things ready for the legislature, and showed that it had always been construed to mean that he should buy supplies for it.

He also said, and this anti-administration men have seized upon greedily, that Governor Eberhart had formally directed him to take the usual course.

Asked if anyone in authority in the house had talked with him, he said that Speaker Dunn had told him that there should be no pen knives and fancy fountain pens, so he had bought none.

The committee had a debate about it all, after which it adopted a resolution providing that everything should be turned back to the secretary of state except really necessary things like stationery, pens, pencils, rubber bands, etc.

A minority wanted to turn everything back, and yesterday afternoon these members of the committee were preparing to submit a minority report in favor of their view.

Shortly after, Mr. Schmahl issued orders to collect the supplies and return them to his office, and this was done. So far as noticed, only one scratch-block, which happened to be in use in a committee room, escaped.

All of which shows that when statesmen get on the rampage, serious things happen.

Railroad Lobby on Hand.

The lobby against the increase in the railroad gross earnings tax showed up yesterday afternoon, when a number of railroad attorneys appeared in the house chamber and began talking with members about the bill. The usual lobby was not in evidence; just the lawyers, a sort of upper grade lobby which is much more gentlemanly and dignified than the old-time railroad lobby, but which is hardly likely to be so effective as the old-time lobby often was.

Two arguments are being made against the gross earnings tax—possibly a third which will be considered after these two.

One is that the adoption of a gross earnings tax law would affect the pending commodity and passenger rates cases in the supreme court—a bugbear that has paralyzed legislation through two sessions.

This argument is absurd. It is based on the idea that the legislature enacts railroad rate legislation, it will render the pending cases "moot" and lose the state all it has cost to fight them, as well as the rebates that will be coming to shippers if the supreme court holds that the railroads have been charging too much for freight-carrying in this state.

The decision is expected soon, perhaps before the extra session is over. If the legislature passes a gross earnings tax law, it will not be completed until the people ratify it in November. So that even if it could be admitted that an increase in railroad taxes would affect the decision, the argument fails to the ground because the decision will be handed down before the tax increase becomes effective.

The second argument is that shippers—or rather consumers—pay freight rates, and that an increase in taxes would increase the cost of carrying freight, and therefore would increase freight rates. This argument, followed out logically, is as sound in favor of exempting railroads from taxation as it is in favor of letting them off with a lighter tax than other property owners pay, which the state is doing now.

The third argument is that the railroads ought to be taxed according to their assessed valuation, which is a stable basis, rather than according to their earnings, which fluctuate. That would be a good argument if it were not for the facts that the extra session will not provide time enough to perfect a system of ad valorem taxation, that this should go over to the regular session, and that in the meantime there is no excuse for letting the railroads off for two years more with about half the taxes they ought to pay.

The facts are that the railroads are escaping with a ridiculously low tax, and that there is no valid reason why railroad property should not pay as much taxes proportionately as any other property.

Working On the Bills.

Two sub-committees of the house elections committee were working yesterday afternoon, one on the corrupt practices act and the other on the primary election bill. Neither concluded its work, and both will meet again this afternoon. Both bills, neither greatly modified, will be back to the house within a few days.

Two members of the house elections committee, Representatives Henry Rines of Mora and Thomas Frankson of Spring Valley, are working on amendments to the corrupt practices act intended to keep the liquor interests out of politics. The details of their plan have not yet been worked out, but they hope to contrive machinery whereby wholesale dealers in wet goods may be deprived of their charters, and retailers of their licenses, if they attempt to manipulate nominations or elections.

The second choice feature of the primary law is opposed only by the friends of the Eberhart administration. The second choice feature of the primary law has the cordial and enthusiastic approval of the great majority of the members of both houses.

If these members represent the sentiment of their districts, Eberhart supporters may well ask, what is the answer?

PROPOSE OCT. 12 AS PLAYGROUNDS HOLIDAY.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 7.—A movement was launched at last night's meeting of the "Recreation congress" to make Oct. 12 a national "playgrounds holiday." W. G. McKernan of Newark, N. J., proposed the plan, which met with hearty support.

"Camp fire girls" had a leading part in the meeting. A demonstration of their activities was given by a number from one of the organization's camps. Dr. Luther H. Gulicke of the Russell Sage foundation, New York, gave a talk defining the work.

Dwight F. Davis, park commissioner of St. Louis, discussed the recreation commission and its task and plan of work, and Carroll G. Pearce of Milwaukee showed how school buildings might be remodeled and used as recreation centers in cities.

CAN BE PUNISHED AGAIN FOR NON-SUPPORT OF WIFE.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 7.—Refusal to support a wife is a continuing offense against the law, according to an Iowa supreme court decision just given. C. A. Morgan, after serving a term for wife desertion, refused to support his wife, again was indicted, pleaded his former conviction and was acquitted. The state appealed. The decision says "his refusal to provide for his wife after serving his sentence constitutes a new violation of the statute, for which he again may be punished."

Sentence Dumas July 8.

Bemidji, Minn., June 7.—Dr. D. F. Dumas, former mayor of Cass Lake, Minn., who was convicted to attempted arson, and which was upheld by a supreme court decision last week, will not receive his sentence before July 8, when a special term of the district court will be held here.

WANTS REVENUE TAX ON DEADLY WEAPONS.

Washington, June 7.—Representative Thomas Upton Sisson of Mississippi, proposing a new law to curb the warlike spirit of Americans, has introduced a revenue measure which would impose a heavy tax on "gun toters" and venders of deadly weapons. His bill stipulate that from July 1, 1913, every weapon stored in any warehouse, wholesale or retail establishment in the United States must bear a revenue stamp which will cost $2.50 and 25 per cent advalorem in addition.

LINEN IMPORTER IS HELD ON FRAUD CHARGE.

New York, June 7.—Harry T. Turtle, importer of linens, has been arrested and held in $15,000 bail for examination June 20 on a charge of defrauding the government duties by undervaluing imports of linens. Treasury agents allege that cases thus far investigated involve frauds approximating $100,000.

"If the eyelashes are short and thin, plain pyroxin should be applied to lash roots with thumb and forefinger to make them grow thick and beautifully long. Thin eyebrows improve with daily applications of pyroxin.

"Men admire glossy, well kept hair. Any girl can keep her hair light, fluffy and beautifully lustrous by dry shampooing every week or so. Put four ounces of powdered orris root in a fruit jar, add an original package of therox and mix together. Sprinkle a little on the head and brush through the hair. Therox removes dust, oil and dandruff.

"Now comes the time when dainty complexions look shiny from perspiration. A complexion beautifier that will not rub off or show like powder is made easily by dissolving an original package of maystone in a half pint of witch hazel. Gently massage face, neck and arms with this solution daily, and the skin will be soft, lovely, smooth and satiny.

"Embarrassing wild hairs can be made to vanish quickly from face or forearms by using delatone paste, made by mixing powdered delatone with water. Cover the hairy surface with this paste for two or three minutes; then remove, wash the skin, and the hairs will be gone."

WANT CITY TO SHARE THE COST

Grand Avenue Property Owners Unwilling to Pay for Paving.

The Oneota and Hazelwood Improvement club will hold its regular monthly meeting this evening at the Merritt school, Forty-first avenue west and Sixth street. The feature of the meeting will be the appointing of a special committee to request the city to assist in the paving of Grand avenue from Twenty-fifth to Fifty-fourth avenues west.

The members of the club are anxious to have Grand avenue in condition for travel and the committee will present the council with the proposition to pay at least half of the cost of the paving. They claim that while it will be impossible to get the consent of all the property owners, they would probably consent to stand part of the cost, providing the business men would agree to stand a reasonable share of the cost.

Several of the property owners are willing to pay for a fourth of the cost, if the business interests and the city will subscribe for the remainder. They claim that the city should make this thoroughfare one of the best in the city, as there is no good road at present from the center of the city to the western end. The property owners, they say, would be slightly benefited by the improvement, while the entire city would gain by the change.

Several improvements have been made to the street in the past year, but these are only temporary and will do for the time being, say the members of the club. Addresses will be given by members of the club and representatives of the West End and West Duluth Commercial clubs.

WILL PREACH TO GRADUATES

Rev. E. B. Collier, pastor of the Holy Apostles' Episcopal church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Elinor street, will preach the baccalaureate sermon to the graduates of the Industrial high school at the special services to be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The baccalaureate address will officially open the commencement week program for the graduating class of the high school. The festivities will continue until Thursday evening, when the graduation exercises will be held and the diplomas awarded by Supt. Robert E. Denfeld. Several social gatherings and receptions are to be held during the week among the different members of the class. The class play, "All a Mistake," will be presented Wednesday afternoon and evening, the former performance for the benefit of the students at the high school who are unable to attend in the evening.

WEST DULUTH PASTOR BECOMES BENEDICT

REV. WALTER SIEVERS.

Rev. Walter Sievers, pastor of the German Evangelcal Lutheran church, Sixty-eighth avenue west and Raleigh street, returned last evening from Milwaukee, where he was married Wednesday evening to Miss Marie Meiers of that city. Charles Korth, Jr., of 5111 Roosevelt street, attended Rev. Mr. Sievers as groomsman.

Rev and Mrs. Sievers will leave Milwaukee tomorrow morning, arriving here in the evening. They will make their home at the new parsonage recently erected at 5714 Nicollet street. The congregation of the German Lutheran church is planning a reception for them some time next week.

CHURCH TEAMS COME TOGETHER.

The first practice game of the West Duluth Church Baseball league was played yesterday afternoon between the Westminster Presbyterian church nine and the West Duluth Baptist church team. The former won by the score of 7 to 5. Nelson and Olson were the batteries for the Presbyterians and Brooks, Gillin and Brown for the Baptists.

The regular season for the church league will open next Monday evening with all the four teams in the field. The Baptists and the Asbury teams will play at the Fifty-second avenue west grounds, while the Merritts and the Presbyterians will play on the grounds at Forty-sixth avenue west and Oneota street. The games will start at 6:30 o'clock and will last only seven innings.

The church league was organized last week and it is planned to play a set of games every Monday and Friday evening.

AMUSEMENTS FOR CHILDREN

At the meeting of the West Duluth branch of the Women's Christian Temperance union held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. J. McKeon, 213 South Seventeenth avenue east, plans were made for an entertainment to be given for the benefit of the West Duluth children on July 4. The following committee was appointed to complete the arrangements for the affair: Mesdames H. Bevier, T. B. Jones and T. F. Olsen.

The recent action on the part of the West Duluth Fourth of July association in dropping all plans for a celebration caused the members of the union to take up the plans. The West Duluth association plans to conduct a fireworks display on the evening of the Fourth, while no form of amusement is being planned for the day.

The union will hold a picnic and entertainment during the day and a number of outdoor amusemets will be featured. A track meet and open-air show will be given in the afternoon. It is probable that a local band will be hired for the entire day. The plan of the union is to keep the children amused in a safe and wholesome way during the entire day. The special committee appointed last evening will make its first report at the next meeting.

Arrangements for the annual district conference to be held June 20 at the West Duluth Boys' and Girls' club have been completed. The members of the unions in the local district will meet in the afternoon in the club rooms at 308 Central avenue. The business session will be followed by a social hour, during which time refreshments will be served. The following committee is in charge of the arrangements: Mesdames H. Bevier, H. H. Phelps and T. F. Olsen.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. I. P. Swangle read a paper on "Modern Philanthropy." An address preceding the paper was made by Courtenay Dinwiddie, secretary of the Associated Charities. Mrs. David Adams rendered two solo numbers, accompanied by Mrs. George King.

MRS. MARY CAMPBELL IS SUMMONED

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Campbell, 78 years old, who died suddenly Wednesday evening at her home, 631 Greene street, will be held at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning from the St. James' Catholic church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Kinnear place. Rev. D. W.

MRS. MARY CAMPBELL.

Lynch, rector of the church, will officiate and interment will be in Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. Campbell was the mother of ten children, five of whom survive her. Her husband died about fifteen years ago. The surviving children are: Mrs. George Dale and Mrs. E. L. Fisher of Duluth, and Messrs. Charles, Neil and Daniel of Port Arthur, Can. The three sons are expected here this afternoon to attend the funeral.

MINNEAPOLIS MAN WILL PREACH HERE.

Rev Bertram Hanson of Minneapolis will occupy the pulpit of the Asbury M. E. church, Sixtieth avenue west and Raleigh street, all day Sunday. Rev. W. H. Farrell, pastor of the church, will leave tomorrow for Onamia, Minn., where he will assist Rev. E. K. Copper in the dedication of a new church.

Children Save $1,000.

More than $1,000 has been deposited by the children of the Ely school since the organization of the savings bank department early last winter. Yesterday afternoon the children deposited $65.57.

PROPOSED ROAD WILL BE DISCUSSED.

Among the subjects to be discussed at the regular meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club this evening is the proposed road from West Duluth to the steel plant. The committee on this matter will make its report and announce the estimated cost of improving the street for traffic and street car extensions.

Another subject to be taken up is the draining of the many pools of water in this end of the city. The city health department will be requested to drain these, as they are detrimental to the public health of a community. They have also proven dangerous for the children who play about them.

MINNESOTA'S CHOICE.

Woodrow Wilson is the choice of the Minnesota Democracy for the Democratic nomination for the presidency. He was favored by a majority of the members of the party in the caucuses held in the various sections of the state. Now his selection has been approved and ratified by the Democrats of Minnesota in their regular convention.

With this result of the convention, The Herald is especially well pleased because it has been in the vanguard of the campaign in the state to send a solid and united delegation to Baltimore that will work and vote for Governor Wilson's nomination.

Two elements enter into the selection of a presidential candidate, one of them the natural desire of the nominating party to be successful at the polls, the other the wish of the best element in the party to present to the people a candidate who shall be worthy of the honor that is sought for him. In the selection of Governor Wilson as their candidate the Democrats of Minnesota have been able to meet both of these elements to a degree not always possible.

There is little doubt that Woodrow Wilson would sweep the country in the November election, no matter whom the Republicans place in nomination. This is due in part to the notorious failure of the party now in power to live up to the principles that were obviously for the good of the nation, to say nothing of its failure even to keep its own express pledges to the people. So far as that is concerned, any other Democratic nominee would have the same advantage as the New Jersey man.

But there are other considerations in his favor that belong to him alone, and that no other candidate has. They spring from his clean, manly record, his unquestioned executive ability, his freedom from the taint of political trickery and machination, and above all his straightforward espousal of the principles recognized the country over as those of honest popular government.

Woodrow Wilson's record can be compared with that of any other man in public life and it will gain instead of losing by that comparison. Indeed, any such parallel must take on more the nature of a contrast than a comparison. For example, look at the willingness of Col. Roosevelt, idol of so many of the people, to accept what at the very best is questionable help in his campaign from the coffers of men intimately associated with interests inimical in their influence to the best conduct of the national government, and then look at Woodrow Wilson rejecting the offer of assistance from the moneyed coterie of New York City.

Contrast William Howard Taft and his dickerings with and submission to the men in congress who represent special privilege, with the spectacle of Governor Wilson showing the most powerful political boss in the old New Jersey Democracy to the door, with the injunction to get out and stay out.

Entering the ranks of his own party, see how his record and personality stand out in comparison with those of Harmon, Clark and Underwood.

Woodrow Wilson has two strong points to his credit in determining the wisdom of his nomination—he would "pull the votes" and he is big enough for the presidency. It is a combination that cannot be beaten. He is Minnesota's choice for the nomination. He should also be the choice of the Baltimore convention.

Value of Experience.

One of the White Star line directors insists that the Titanic had enough boats, enough men, and plenty of other protective arrangements. But Bruce Ismay hasn't gone as far as that, and Bruce was there while this other chap wasn't.

GOOD WORK RECOGNIZED.

In its indorsement of Fred B. Lynch for re-election as Democratic national committeeman from Minnesota, the state convention yesterday gave approval to an excellent record. In his capacity as national committeeman Mr. Lynch has shown both ability and energy. He has proved himself worthy of a place in the national councils of the party, and the Democracy of Minnesota is to be congratulated on having a man of his capabilities and strength to represent it in that body.

Mr. Lynch is a big, broad-gauged man and a splendid representative of the Democracy of Minnesota.

Just a Straw.

In spite of Col. Roosevelt's expressed assurances of his own election, it is noteworthy that William Loeb has not yet handed in his resignation from his present job.

RELIEF FOR THE HOMESTEADER.

It was a great moment for the sturdy settlers of the Northwest when President Taft yesterday, affixed his signature to the new homestead act. Some who have struggled against heavy odds to secure small tracts on which they might build homes for their families and lay the foundation for their own independence will find a heavy burden lifted by the change in the law. Others who have hesitated to undertake the task of "returning to the land" will now be encouraged in what they know will be a step to their own advantage. And incidentally, the states with lands open to settlement will receive untold benefit from the impetus that will spring from the modification in requirements laid upon settlers.

Briefly stated, the new law reduces the time of occupation of land necessary to ownership from five to three years, makes it possible for the homesteader to be absent from his claim five months out of every twelve, and reduces the acreage to be cultivated on large claims from eighty to forty.

There has been criticism of the new measure on the ground that the reduction in the time of occupation of the claims might open the way to land speculation as well as to bona fide settlement. Whether this fear shall be found to have been well grounded is, after all, a matter of theory and conjecture. In the meantime there can be no question that the relief given to homesteaders will prove a boon to many who have found it all but impossible to get a start on homesteads when they were required to spend long, hard and unremunerative winters on their claims, or to accomplish the amount of cultivation of acreage required under the old law.

Losing His Mental Grip?

But the queer thing is that a man of Elihu Root's notable foresight should be so eager to hold up the Taft end of the campaign.

SPLENDIDLY PROGRESSIVE.

Two words sum up the platform adopted by the Democratic state convention in Duluth yesterday, and those two words are—splendidly progressive.

It sums up the principles which have been in the past and should be for the future the basis of the American form of government—the right of the people to govern and the elimination of those practices that are calculated to rob them of that right. It speaks the last word in the way of out-and-out declaration for the best things in the line of democratic government. It declares for the principles that, through the operation of our government, have come to be generally recognized as necessary to be added to our old form and system in order to make possible the realization of the ideals toward which the ship of state was directed by the men who planned her and started her on her voyage.

The declarations regarding the tariff commend the Democratic congress for its efforts to reduce the tariff schedules in the interest of all the people, and at the same time emphasize the wrongs that have been committed by trusts and combines under the guise of the highly protective rates of duty.

The demand for just interpretation of the laws regulating "big business" and the earnings of great private corporations is a clear demand that these interests be compelled to relinquish their grip of greed by which they have established themselves an all too powerful factor in the life of the nation, not only commercially, but in the inner councils of the government itself.

In the declarations in favor of direct election of the members of the United States senate and the adoption of the principles of the initiative, referendum and recall there is expressed the firm belief that the people of the United States are capable of self-government and are to be trusted in the matters that concern themselves; a faith in government of, for and by the people as distinguished from government by a particular class of the people.

In the declaration against the turning over to private interests of the great natural resources of the country there shows the conviction that this immense, God-given wealth is not intended for the benefit and enrichment of the few at the expense of the many, but, as the resolutions adopted by the convention so excellently express it, that "nature's gifts to her children belong to all the people."

Indorsement of the federal income tax law is but a plain declaration in favor of letting those who reap the greatest financial benefit from our free system of government bear their fair share of the burden for the support of that government which makes their prosperity possible. It is an indorsement of the principle of fair play that must be observed if we are to adhere to the doctrine of equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

In its firmly stated opposition to ship subsidy the party in Minnesota but gives emphasis to its adherence to the doctrine of the right of all the people to share equally in the benefits of government rather than that any class should be given an unfair advantage at the expense of all the rest; and in the demand for revision of our antiquated shipping laws it points out the true remedy, the proper substitute for the specious and privilege-bred theory of subsidy.

In the declaration against opening the nation's doors to other countries that may seek to pursue political offenders even within our own borders, the platform upholds the traditions of the United States as an asylum for the downtrodden and oppressed of other lands. And in its declaration in favor of the Sherwood pension bill it gives recognition to the value of the services of the men who fought for the preservation of the Union.

Briefly, the platform adopted by the Democracy of Minnesota is one on which any citizen may stand with pride. It expresses the best thought of the keenest minds of our time, as regards national affairs. It is one to which men of all sorts and conditions should be willing to subscribe. It is entitled to indorsement in every state and by every citizen.

Croo-ll, Croo-ll Blow!

The Albany Journal has figured it out that Col. Roosevelt is only one nine-hundred-and-forty-thousandth of one per cent of the population of the United States. That just shows how mathematics can shatter popular superstitions.

WHY CLUTTER THE STATE LAW?

It is suggested by the St. Paul Pioneer Press that while the legislature is framing the proposed corrupt practices act it would do well to include in that statute a prohibition of the practice of tacking up campaign cards in conspicuous places. It is urged that the cards deface the street-corners and the fronts of buildings, and that they not only do so during the campaign, but stay in place "long after the candidates and their issues are forgotten."

It is easy to understand the impatience of the Pioneer Press with the practice of the promiscuous tacking up of campaign matter about the city. Duluth has its share of that nuisance, as it is safe to say most other cities have. The cards do little good in the way of advertising, unless they are printed in type so large as to multiply the conspicuousness of the nuisance. And when the type is as large as that it serves rather to arouse prejudice against the man who has it displayed than to get votes for him.

But the matter seems rather to be one for municipal restraint and regulation than to be of a nature fitted for inclusion in a state corrupt practices act. After all there is nothing about it that will corrupt a voter, unless it be corruption to tempt a citizen to the use of profanity at the sight of defacement of public places. At the same time, it must be granted that the practice is bad, and the cities would do well to put a ban on it and enforce the prohibition.

Uncle Sam is finding all kinds of markets for rifles and ammunition in Cuba and Mexico. Who says it doesn't pay to be prepared for war?

Down in Chicago restaurant prunes have reached the price of five cents per prune. If they'll go a little higher it will be safe to brag about eating them.

The crown prince of Germany has written a book about his hunting experiences. His royal highness evidently has taken to heart his father's expressions of admiration for our own T. R.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

FOR A POULTRY FANCIER.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Is there a fowl called the buff Cochin? Also, is it one word or a compound word?

I looked in the encyclopedia, also in the large dictionary and couldn't find the word in either one. Thanking you, I am, yours truly,

"ANXIOUS TO KNOW."

Duluth, June 6.

(There is. The name is composed of two words. There are four kinds of Cochins, the buff, black, white and partridge.—The Editor.)

HERE'S ONE ANSWER.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In the Open Court of yesterday, the 5th, some fellow of International Falls asks why ministers were dedicating school buildings, invocating commencement exercises, offering benedictions at the same, etc. Since the church and state have been legally separated, he wants some fair-minded reader to answer. I believe that lets me in.

The chief reason is they don't want saloon keepers. Think of a saloon keeper, a brewer or a distiller exhorting young men and women to a high ideal life, or praying God's blessing on them. I do know of a saloon keeper who was arrested for running his place of damnation on Sunday and you would have thought he was about ready to be a Sunday school superintendent, but he soon lost out. Yes, somebody has separated the church as an organization from the state and tied the saloon to it, but the best people don't want their loved ones headed that way. Believe me, your friend,

J. M. BERWICK.

A Consistent Religious Liberal.

Chicago Evening Post: We take off our hat to that fiery old preacher, Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones.

As everybody knows he is a "religious liberal," an advanced churchman. He harbors enough heresies under his bonnet to have entitled him to fifteen or twenty burnings a couple of centuries ago. He is so far ahead of the vast body of churchgoers that a great many of them don't even know that he is marching.

He was in Boston recently at a meeting of kindred heretical spirits, the Free Religious association. One of the delegates attacked bitterly the Catholic church, declaring that it was "un-American" and "dangerous to our institutions." Another delegate echoed this. They were both "religious liberals." But Mr. Jones is also a "religious liberal," and he arose to give an illustration in consistency. He said:

"The Catholic church is a mighty power, coming 'down century after century, and has done and is doing a wonderful work of uplifting humanity. I ask that the Free Religious association consider this church with the other denominations. The Catholic church is helping to digest the immigrants and put them on a proper plane, and so long as the Catholic church meets the immigrants as they enter Ellis island I do not worry about the future of these new citizens to come.

"You and I may differ in opinion on some of the fundamental principles of Catholicism, but we are all agreed in universal brotherhood. The Catholic church is slowly undergoing a change; it is broadening. Try to appreciate the great work done by this old church and remember the saying that any fool can like those he likes, but it takes an educated man to like those he does not like."

It seems to us that Mr. Jones has not only subdued the flesh, but the lusts of the spirit also.

Buttermilk.

Bulletin from the department of agriculture: An ordinary glass of buttermilk contains about as much nutriment as two ounces of bread, a good sized potato or a half pint of oysters. It thus contains about the same food constituents as skimmilk, but it has an added hygienic value because the protein is more easily digested than the protein in skimmilk and therefore is often prescribed by physicians for children and invalids, especially those suffering from intestinal trouble.

Protein, being the most costly of food ingredients, is the one most likely to be lacking in inexpensive meals, and this is the nutrient which both skimmilk and buttermilk supply in a cheap and useful form, and when taken with bread or used in cooking they form a very nutritious addition to the diet. Two and one-half quarts of skimmilk or buttermilk contain about the same amount of protein as one pound of round steak and cost about one-quarter as much. Two quarts of milk have a greater nutriment value than one quart of oysters. The nutriment in the form of oysters would cost 30 to 50 cents, while the skimmilk or buttermilk would have a value on the farm of from 2 to 4 cents.

The Bravest Battle.

The bravest battle that ever was fought!
Shall I tell you where and when?
On the maps of the world you will find it not;
It was fought by the mothers of men.

Nay, not with cannon or battle shot,
With sword or nobler pen:
Nay, not with eloquent word or thought,
From mouths of wonderful men.

But in a walled-up woman's heart—
Of woman that would not yield,
But patiently, silently bore her part—
Lo, there is that battlefield.

No marshaling troop, no bivouac song:
No banner to gleam and wave;
And oh! these battles, they last so long—
From babyhood to the grave!

Yet, faithful still as a bridge of stars,
She fights in her walled-up town,
Fights on and on in the endless wars,
Then silent, unseen, goes down.
—Joaquin Miller.

Bristow and the Golf Game.

Kansas City Star: Sam Blythe of the Saturday Evening Post says that Senator Bristow of Kansas is so tall that when he plays golf he uses clubs a foot longer than those ordinarily used, and that "when he hits the ball it goes a mile—when he hits it."

Which recalls a story told on Bristow when he first fell before the temptation to play golf. He wanted to know how the game was played. "Well, you see," said his instructor, "you put the ball right here, just this way. Now see that mound over there about a mile and a half? Well, on that little mound there is a little hole, and the play is to put the ball into that hole in one stroke."

Bristow let drive with the same force that he had acquired in splitting rails in Kentucky, and the party followed the ball. When they came up to it they found to the surprise of every one but the Kansas senator that the ball was within three inches of the hole.

"Now, what do you think of that!" exclaimed Bristow, sorrowfully. "I missed it."

Success at Last.

Washington Star: "I made all kinds of excuses to get off to see them play ball this afternoon."

"Wouldn't any of them work?"

"Yes. I finally touched the boss' heart by telling him I wanted to go to the ball game."

Stung!

Fliegende Blatter: Father (to his son whom he has removed for lying)—I never told a lie when I was small.

Hans—Well, how old were you, father when you began?

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Hope Is Strong.

Wilmar Journal: St. Paul and Duluth have both taken a forward step in city government. St. Paul went farther than Duluth in that it adopted the commission form of government, to be in force in a year from now. Duluth passed the initiative and referendum, and everything points to a commission form in a few months in that northern metropolis.

It Will.

Gheen Record: Having got the initiative, referendum and recall, Duluth wants to progress further by adopting the commission form of government.

Sure.

Thief River Falls Times: "All well with the Elwell law," says the Duluth Herald. Yes, it's all well, but it will be better when we get the roads established, eh, Herald?

Croel!

Stillwater Gazette: Twenty years ago a sailor coming up Lake Superior was kicked by a horse and died at Duluth. Was it a sea horse that caused the trouble, or because they took the poor fellow to Duluth? You remember what Duluth was twenty years ago.

Not So Bad.

Cass Lake Times: "Castles in the air," remarks the Wisconsin State Journal, "are generally shy a pantry." That's a fine thing to spring in the middle of a multi-cornered campaign! —Duluth Herald.

But what if the W. S. J. had said sideboard?

It Does.

Clear Lake Times: Governor Eberhart has finally heeded the call of the Duluth Herald and issued a call for an extra session. The Herald may consider itself indorsed.

And a Few Others.

Perham Enterprise: The Duluth Herald says perfunctory is the deadliest word in the English language. Then let us shoot it at Fortunatus.

Foresight.

Fairmont Sentinel: Governor Wilson is very far from being beaten. He stands as the only candidate with a nation-wide following. He still stands as the one candidate against whom the field is combined.

His chance of gaining the nomination is as good today as anybody's. He represents an element of progress in American life that is striving for a chance to express itself, and he represents it better than any other candidate in either party.—Duluth Herald.

How Could Women Vote on Ironing Day?

In the June American Magazine, "Abe" Martin, the Indiana funny character, created and used by Kin Hubbard, the well known humorist, gives his views and those of his neighbors on votes for women. Following is an extract.

"'Th' only real objection I kin see t' women votin' is that our elections are allus held on Tuesday—ironin' day, otherwise I would be heartily fer it,' said Tell Bingley, our leadin' tornado insurance writer. Mr. Binkley is predisposed t' bright colors an' has a tenor's mustache an' reminds you o' th' boss barber o' th' late seventies.

"Miss Mame Moon is our most brilliant an' fearless suffragist. She has strong square features, a fair-sized knot o' red hair under moderate control, steel gray eyes at no considerable distance apart an' wears a four-in-hand tie an' side pockets. She would command attention even on circus day an' has long guild under taxation. Turnin' t' Constable Plum in th' squire's office she said: "I've got jist about as much use fer you an' th' law as I have fer a croquet set, an' if I ever pay any taxes without first knockin' your head off I'll be in a trance."

"'Later in th' day Miss Moon paid her respects t' men in general by declarin' 'em jist a lot o' stomachs an' watchchains whose whole idea o' citizenship wuz threwin' a round steak on th' table, three or four times a week er buyin' a wife a clothes wringer. She said that th' growin' tendency 'mongst our girls t' seek some lighter employment other than marriage made her buoyant with hope an' courage.

"'Mrs. Tilford Moots, who has contributed more sons t' th' regular army than any woman in th' world, an' who has allus been closely affiliated with a champion checker player, stopped plowin' long enough t' say that, while she didn't take no newspapers an' only knowed what she heerd from th' hucksters, she'd allus felt like there wuz somethin' unequal. She said she'd never found time t' look int' things an' that her husband wuz too busy defendin' his title t' be o' much help.

"'However, she says if women git t' votin' she'll vote with 'em—that is, if it's too wet t' plow an' she kin git off.'"

Ode to June.

Now is June,
And soon
The insidious green apple
With little Willie dear will grapple,
Fill him up with pang and trouble;
Like a jack knife bend him double
With the strife and frantic frolic
Of a busy case of colic:
Make him squeal and yelp and yoop
As his innards loop the loop.
Soon,
For now is June.

Now is June,
Then soon
The genial mustard plaster—mix ft
So that we may quickly fix it
To dear little Willie's tummy
And there make it snug and chummy,
Cop the castor oil phial,
Get the ipecac the while,
And the hot drops. O my landy!
Have the hot drops good and handy!
For we our darling little Willie
Must dope and plaster, willy nilly.
Soon,
For now is June.

Advice to Women About Work-Tables.

The following good advice about work-tables is given to housekeepers in the current issue of Farm and Fireside:

"Study to get your work-tables and sinks just the right height. They will, of course, differ, according to the height of the worker.

"Too high a table causes a constant strain upon the arms and shoulders. Too low a one causes stooping and a tired back.

"Being a medium tall person, my favorite table is thirty-two and one-half inches high. On this I can roll out pastry and do similar work without stooping, and in consequence get much less tired than when my work is lower down.

"About an inch lower is my favorite height for an ironing board.

"A low stove is wearying if it must be used much every day. And a washing can be done much easier if a higher bench than common is used for the rubbing tub.

"The easiest way to discover the exact height best suited to yourself is to place blocks of wood on your ordinary table to support a board until you have found which is less fatiguing.

"Any woman who neglects to rectify this matter is extremely foolish if she values her own health, for many a woman is nervous and unhappy after a day in her kitchen without knowing the cause.

"And the causes are, too frequently, the table, ironing stand and cook stove of her daily tasks."

The Classic Example.

Argonaut: William Lyon Phelps, professor of English literature at Yale, was discussing, at a dinner in New Haven, the significance of words. "Some words," he said, "have a history, and a knowledge of their history gives them a richer meaning. Take, for example, the word 'laconic.' Philip of Macedon was threatening the Laconians. 'If I enter your city,' he said, 'I will level it to the dust!' 'If!' was the Laconians reply. And the pointed brevity of that reply is imbedded in our word 'laconic' like a fly in amber."

Like the Spratts.

Washington Star: "England and Germany spending all their cash on armaments remind one of Mr. and Mrs. Spratt."

The speaker was Mayor Esterbrooke of Pawtucket. He continued, with a smile:

"England and Germany will arm themselves to the point of bankruptcy, to the point of impotence. It will be a case of Mr. and Mrs. Spratt all over again.

"Mrs. Spratt, you know, once told his friends that he would attend a certain 'smoker,' and Mrs. Spratt told hers very firmly that he wouldn't. Well, a nonpartisan acquaintance, the evening of the smoker in question, dropped in at the Spratts' to see who had won out.

"The visitor found Spratt and his wife fast asleep in their chairs at the dining room table. Spratt, you see, had put sleeping powder in Mrs. Spratt's coffee so that he might slip away, and she had put sleeping powder in his to prevent him from doing so."

First American Flag.

Cincinnati Times Star: Here is a story that has come through from Chicago's Hull House. Miss Adams suggested to the children of Hull House that they write a play, without the aid of the grown-ups. She gave them suggestions, as to the necessity for a climax at the close of each act—a climax which would carry on the interest. They decided to write a play about "The First American Flag." The first act curtain went down on a group scene, showing George Washington surrounded by his generals.

"Gee," said Gen. George Washington to his chiefs of staff, "ain't it fierce that we ain't got no flag?"

"Yes, George it is fierce," they murmured sympathetically.

The curtain of the second act drops over a tableau in the camp at Valley Forge, Gen. George Washington is discovered, leaning on his sword in front of his tent, while a chill wind shakes its canvas. The faithful generals are also there, leaning on their swords.

"Gee," said Gen. Washington. "This is fierce. We ain't got no flag yet."

"That's right, George," his aides responded. "It sure is fierce that we ain't got no flag."

The third-act curtain upon rising discloses a domestic scene. Gen. George Washington, sword at side, is engaged in a rocking chair in the home of Betsy Ross. Betsy is rocking to and fro on the other side of the stage, a baby in her arms.

"Gee, Mrs. Ross," said Gen. George Washington, "ain't it fierce? We ain't got no flag."

"That's right," said Betsy Ross, softly, "it is fierce." Then, rising, and crossing the stage toward Gen. Washington, she adds:

"I'll tell you George, I'll make a flag if you'll hold the baby."

Advice to a Mover.

New York Tribune: Medill McCormick, president of the Illinois Progressive Republican league, was talking at a dinner in Chicago about certain old-fashioned campaigning methods.

"Those methods," said Mr. McCormick, "seem as cumbersome to us as the methods of the mover seemed to the inebriate.

"As an inebriate rested against a lamp post a mover passed him. The mover, an economical chap, was doing his moving by hand, and he had on his back a huge grandfather's clock.

"The inebriate stared vacantly at the sweating figure bent under the weight of the great clock, and then hiccoughed and hailed him.

"'Hey,' he said, 'hey—hich—there!'

"The mover, stopping, turned slowly. "'Well, what is it?' he asked.

"'Take my advice, young fel,' said the inebriate, 'an' buy 'shelf—hic—a watch.'"

"Neither Does the Editor."

Ozark County, Mo., Times: A man who owns eighty acres of land and has sense enough to till it, makes the lot of country newspaper men look like the last sad remnants of a Dutch lunch.

The farmer has the best of it all around. He is as independent as an express company. He doesn't have to write a soulful obituary over some peak-headed fellow that keeps on display an exhibit of cut plug profanity that would make the efforts of a steamboat mate sound like the meeting of the Epworth league. He doesn't have to go into raptures over the beauty of an open-face bride with a cast of countenance that would blow out the gas.

The farmer isn't required to lie until his back teeth fall out about the sterling manhood of a groom with ears like a cauliflower plant and the brain power of a yearling shote. He doesn't have to run a contest for the most beautiful young lady in the community, make everybody sore, and then print a 75-cent half-tone of the beauty that looks like a tin-type of grandma at the age of 13.

Neither does the editor.

A Kind Word in Season.

Stillwater Prison Mirror: A very small incident sometimes serves to turn from his purpose, one who is contemplating suicide. A kind word, a little sympathy, is the best diverter in the world. It is said that no one is sane when bent upon self-destruction. Great sorrow or trouble often unbalances the mind. This seems reasonable from the fact that persons who have brought themselves to the brink of suicide, but who have, in some manner, gained time for reflection, rarely carry out their original purpose. Reflection brings reason and reason says that nothing is to be gained by suicide, but on the contrary, there is everything to be lost.

Some of the world's greatest men, in time of deep trouble, thought of suicide—Napoleon did—but it has rarely happened that they allowed their troubles to overshadow their reason. Among the mass of humanity, however, there are those who are weak, those who, when trouble comes, are borne down by its seemingly overwhelming waves, and if a helping hand is not reached to them, they are lost. It is not often that we know who they are until they are beyond our reach, and yet, if every one of us made it a point to see that a brother or sister in trouble was encouraged and cheered to fight on, against all odds, what a difference there would be in the nation's suicide records.

A kind word, a little sympathy to one who is down, may save that one from a suicide's grave. Reflect upon this, friends, and see if you cannot afford to spend a few minutes each day helping some overburdened brother or sister safely through the breakers of adversity.

The Parable of the Oxen.

Lippincott's Magazine: A rather sporty young fellow got a position with a man who believes in exacting a full day's work from his employes. The new clerk, who prided himself on his cleverness, decided he would like a little time off, so he asked his employer for a vacation of three or four days, in order that he might be treated for a nervous complaint. The employer gave his consent rather sourly.

That afternoon, while the young fellow was present, the proprietor casually told the following story:

"Once upon a time there were two oxen, one a hard working ox, the other a shiftless animal, who preferred resting to working.

"One morning the shiftless ox confided to the other that he was going to slip away for a day or two to sample some new pasture ground.

"'Don't tell the master I have gone, for I shall return before my absence has been discovered,' he said.

"The other ox assented, and the lazy one departed. Two days later he returned.

"'Does the master know that I have been away?' he asked.

"'I believe so,' was the reply.

"'Did he seem angry?'

"'N-no-no, I can't say that he did,' the dutiful ox answered.

"'But are you quite sure that he did not make any comment?' the other persisted.

"'Quite sure,' was the positive rejoinder.

"'If that's the case,' the other said, 'I may as well go again next week.'

"'Yes, I suppose you may,' the stay-at-home said quietly. 'By the way, I forgot to mention that I noticed the master in very earnest conversation with the butcher this morning.'"

Before he left that evening the employee who had asked for a vacation told his employer that he was feeling much better and had decided not to leave.

Spring Fog.

I stood upon a hill, and it was spring;
The vale lay hid beneath a snow-white pall
As though beyond recall,
Yet here, a robin singing; and there, his mate a-wing!
And then through many a sudden rift
I saw rose-radiant islands drift
On ebbing seas,
A new world fashioned swift,
Sunshine, bright grass, and blossoming cherry trees.
—Wanda Petrunkevitch in Lippincott's.

Why They Eat Muskrat.

Judge: At Monroe, Mich., the rather large population of French Catholics eat muskrat meat on Friday, an exception to Catholic precedent which is explained in the following way by Mose Meuse, an old-timer:

"Wan time, many years ago, he says, "French priest she say we can eat muskrat on Friday, because muskrat—she ees not meat. Muskrat—she sweem in water, so she ees no animal. Se ees not feesh, by Gar, because she walk on land. No feesh, no animal, so she must be some kind of vege-taable, by Gar—an' we eat heem on Friday."

The Crossed Fingers.

He swore that her kiss was the first he had had;
But his fingers were crossed!
He'd kissed but his mother, when he was a lad!
Yes, his fingers were crossed!
He vowed that not only he'd ne'er had a taste
Of quivering lips, but that no other waist
Had ever been clasped by his arm.
Then in haste
His two fingers he crossed!

The sparkler he gave her he'd purchased that day—
But his fingers were crossed!
No previous maiden had worn it—nay, nay!
But his fingers were crossed!
And never, so long as his life should endure,
Would eye, check or lip of another maid lure—
He knew it—past every doubt he was sure—
But his fingers were crossed!

She listened to all of the buff he had said
While his fingers were crossed!
She laid on his bosom her wise little head
While his fingers were crossed!

She answered so low that the famed "little bird"
Who peddles sweet secrets could scarcely have heard,
As she breathed, "Oh my love, I believe every word!"
But her fingers were crossed!
—London Tit-Bits.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1892.

Street cars will soon be running to Lakeside and Lester river. Yesterday a company was organized to build a line from Montana avenue, the present terminus, to Lester river. The line will be operated by the Duluth Street Railway company, and a 5-cent fare will carry one from West Duluth to Lester river.

At the annual stockholders' meeting of the Cincinnati Iron compnay yesterday, A. E. Humphreys, George J. Milligan, John McKinley, G. W. Buck, E. G. Chapman, H. W. Coffin and M. O. Brooks were elected directors. Three propositions for leases were referred to the directors. One was presented by N. D. Moore, the Gogebic iron man, who wanted to lease three forties at a royalty averaging 65 cents and with a minimum output of 300,000 tons. His proposition will probably be accepted. The directors this morning elected the following officers: A. E. Humphreys, president and general manager; John McKinley, vice president; Morris Brooks, treasurer; Frank Cox, secretary.

The Ohio Mining company has practically closed a lease of eighty acres of its property in section 9, 58-17 to the Kimberly syndicate. The lessees agree to take out 150,000 tons each year at a royalty of 65 cents.

The grand lodge of the I. O. O. F. for Minnesota opened its session in Duluth this morning. Several hundred delegates arrived last evening and were guests of the city at an entertainment at the Temple opera. Grand Patriarch T. W. Hugo welcomed the visitors, and a hearty greeting was also extended by Mayor d'Autremont. Responses were made by Grand Master Johnson and Mrs. Charlotte Haynes, president of the Daughters of Rebekah.

Henry Smith of Glidden, Wis., is in Duluth and will probably locate here.

Beriah Magoff and family have moved into the Piedmont terrace which has just been completed by R. S. Munger.

At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce this morning, A. Hirsch, C. F. Johnson and Secretary Thompson were appointed to secure the co-operation of other commercial bodies in inviting the press representatives at the Republican national convention at Minneapolis to visit Duluth.

The Duluth & Northwestern Railway & Terminal company is at work already. A corps of engineers is surveying in the harbor and taking soundings.

At the city council meeting last evening an ordinance settling the guarantee question between the city and the gas and water company and providing for water service in the outlying districts was introduced. The company is given the right to lay oil pipes for its own use in all the streets and alleys.

BUMPER CROP OF STRAWBERRIES

Southwest Missouri Will Ship 1,500 Cars of the Fruit.

Carthage, Mo., June 7.—Fifteen hundred carloads of strawberries from the fields of Southwest Missouri and North Arkansas will be shipped to metropolitan markets this season, as a result of their greatest yield.

An estimate of the number of cars of strawberries which will be shipped before the end of the season has been made by R. P. Mount of St. Joseph, traveling freight agent for the Chicago Great Western railroad. Mr. Mount is in the district arranging for the necessary supply of cars to this field.

Fifteen hundred cars of berries means that approximately $800,000 will be realized by the growers of this district.

Strawberry beds yield from twenty-five to 200 crates of berries an acre each year. Crates bring from $1 to $2 each above shipping and commission expenses. An acre in strawberries may yield all the way from $25 to $400. Out of that return there must be allowed the first cost of plants, their planting and cultivation, as well as the cost of picking and of crates. Under favorable conditions it is possible for the crop, in one season, to more than pay for the land.

The greatest activity is now at Carthage, Sarcoxie, Monett, Aurora, Neosho, Anderson and other Southwest Missouri towns. From Southwest Missouri alone 150 cars of berries were shipped to Northern markets one day this week. All fields in this vicinity need more pickers. Growers say unless more men are rushed to the fields at once loss of thousands of dollars inevitably will result. So urgent has become the need for pickers that newspapers have urged women to aid in saving the crop and that church services be suspended.

The Ozark Fruit Growers association, the Independent association and the Sarcoxie Horticulture association and other similar organizations are working systematically and harmoniously to move the crop from the fields to the markets. Without those organizations heavy losses probably would result.

HUSBAND HITCHED HER TO PLOUGH AND DROVE HER.

Greeley, Col., June 7.—A story of extreme cruelty, flight to America with her child from Russia to escape her husband's tyranny, drudgery in the beet fields and ultimate renewal of a former romance in Russia was told in Greeley courts when Anna Galaduchina, a young Russian woman, was granted a divorce from her husband in Europe.

The girl says she was hitched to a plough by her husband and driven in the fields. When she became tired, she says, he whipped her and otherwise brutally mistreated her. She fled from him and with her young child managed to reach friends in Windsor, where a few months ago she met an early sweetheart.

Her husband, learning she had fled to America, followed, but was deported upon his arrival at New York when officers questioned and found him to be a desperate character.

She will be married to the young Windsor Russian when a year has expired.

CURES "LITTLE ILLS" OF BABIES

It is well for the mother to encourage her children to accustom themselves to regular habits, in eating, sleeping and the personal care of the body. These lessons last throughout life. Not the least important of the habits that one should acquire early in life—and which rests entirely with the mother in the earlier years—is regular bowel movement. The baby and the child should be encouraged in this, and the habit will become a natural one. It will be better off through life for the habit. Two to three calls a day are not too many for the baby and the child, and the grown person should have at least one. Without that the minor indispositions of life are sure to result. Watch the baby carefully, and if it cries, is peevish and irritable give it a small dose of a mild laxative, and that is something every mother should always have in the house. No doubt many laxatives are recommended, but the one that seems to be in most popular favor with discriminating mothers throughout America is DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN. It fills the requirements of baby's laxative better than any other remedy known. It is a liquid of pleasant taste, mild in action and never gripes. A very little of it is all that a baby needs, and yet so effective is the action of this remedy that grown-ups will find equally satisfactory results. Its use for a few days in succession in the small dose that the directions call for will result in good bowel health for a long time to come. It is, for that reason, an ideal family remedy, as it is suited to all ages, and much to be preferred to salts, cathartics and such things, which are not needed by children, women and old people. These require a mild laxative such as DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN.

ALICE J. HICKS.

Dr. Caldwell:
We find Syrup Pepsin the best laxative we have ever used. After we used the trial bottle (for which please accept my many thanks) we bought a 50c bottle, the first time we went to town. My husband and I are glad we found at last what we were looking for, as it does its work so mildly and pleasantly.
Mrs. Henry Jensen,
Granton, Wis.

Dr. Caldwell:
I received the sample of Syrup Pepsin and it did me so much good that since then I've used two 50c bottles. I went to my druggist. I will do all I can to recommend it to my friends.
Edna H. Dickinson,
Verndale, Minn.

Dr. Caldwell:
One evening I took Syrup Pepsin according to directions for indigestion and constipation, and to my surprise it was the best and greatest medicine I ever heard of. I used all the sample and on the fourth day I went to the drug store and bought a 50c bottle, and my wife and children are using it with the best results. I would not be without it as long as money will buy it.
J. D. Hicks,
2501 Faraon St., St. Joseph, Mo.

Dr. Caldwell:
I received the sample of Syrup Pepsin and also got a $1.00 bottle from my druggist and have used it and must say it is all you claim for it. It cured me of a bad cold and as a laxative it can't be beaten.
Wm. Rischette,
Tunnel City, Wis.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

STICKING TO BUSINESS

Men of Affairs in New York Cut Away From Politics.

Trade Much Retarded By the Strike of Hostelry Waiters.

New York, June 7.—On every hand one hears the expression, "Business has cut away from politics," and the men of affairs here are putting the words into practice by giving their attention to the matter they have on hand, to the things that are directly connected with their profits, and the advancement of their interests, and they are letting political discussion severely alone.

The seasonable weather of the fortnight has done much to lift the gloom that was so thick and heavy in the shops and department stores three weeks ago, and every effort is being made by proprietors, managers, salespersons and other employes to clear out the remaining spring and summer goods.

It is a maxim in the dry goods and fancy goods trade that the early trade is the profitable trade, and as the early trade this spring was demoralized by cold weather, winter lingering long and departing reluctantly, the dealers in those lines feel that even if they are able to dispose of the bulk of the goods they manufactured or purchased yet they will fail to make the profits that would have materialized by rapid and large sales in March and April.

Already the marking down in prices of seasonable merchandise is in evidence and the extreme efforts to effect clearances under these circumstances is at the cost of values.

The Strike of Waiters.

The strike of the waiters in the city hotels has materially lessened the number of arriving guests, for many of the persons who desire to visit the city on business or pleasure have deferred their trips until they can be assured of proper attention and service at the hostelries.

The reported effort to bring in a thousand or so negro waiters from other cities is a stroke at their organization that the striking waiters did not expect.

The majority of those now striking are foreigners and it seems they did not comprehend that so many colored men right well skilled in the business of serving at the hotel tables could be secured in a brief space of time.

There has been much offense given to guests by the insolent among the foreign waiters, so much antagonism has been developed by the public through their insistence upon tips for every movement of services, that the great mapority of those who patronize the hotels and restaurants of the city will be heartily glad of the coming back to active service of the willing, accommodating and considerate negro waiters.

The business men of New York are quite anxious to have the hotels in prime working order once more, for the publicity given the strike throughout the nearby states has already limited the arrivals in the city and cut down transactions considerably, especially in the finer classes of merchandise, the classes purchased by those who are guests at the most luxurious of the hotels.

Enormous Rental.

It is reported that a lease has been made of part of the first floor of the new McAlpine hotel building for a mercantile enterprise, and that the annual rental under the lease equals $20 for each square foot of floor space, which amount is said to be the maximum of city rental upon that basis. This new building occupies the very finest location for a hotel or for shops that can be found in all New York, and the point of situation, so close to the subway and to the Pennsylvania Railway terminal, with the Broadway surface roads and Sixth Avenue elevated passing its doors, renders its value as an investment far more permanent than if it were at any other place in the city.

The Merchants' association of this city has taken up the matter of the recent advance in prices of anthracite coal, and promises a thorough investigation of the entire subject.

It is apparent that the advances in prices of coal, of meat, of fish and other requisites for the household are to be contested by the public in a very vigorous manner, and these advances are sure to play a very great part in the political results of the year.

High costs of living were a great factor in turning over the cities and industrial districts of the country to the Democratic party in 1910, and the Democratic majority in the house of representatives in a great degree was created by the desire to have those costs lowered.

The subject will enter this campaign with even more force and intenseness than in the campaign of 1910, and many a congressman will have to discuss the question with his constituents and explain why prices have advanced instead of being lowered since the elections of 1910.

Of course, there are reasons for the continued advance, and the congressmen who seek re-election should be fully prepared to disclose the true causes.

Discoveries Important.

Two mineral discoveries of importance have been reported here, one of diamonds in Ungava, the Canadian province, only partially verified and yet indefinite as to extent of the ground and the prospective yield, and the other of the discovery of ledges of tin in Alaska, quite well authenticated and regarded as very valuable for that territory and the discoverers and of great advantage to the nation at large, as it is likely to reduce the amount of cash sent abroad to pay for the tin we purchase in other lands.

The immigration to the United States during the months of January, February, March and April was larger each and every month than in the same months of any year since 1907.

This is accepted here as a welcome addition to the producing forces of the republic, for from the agricultural districts as well as from all the manufacturing districts, and from the towns and cities of all sections of the country comes an urgent demand for labor.

This increased immigration comes to us largely as the result of correspondence between foreigners already established in the United States, and their friends and neighbors in the various countries of Europe and Asia.

The gain in activities of business in the United States, the growing demand for labor of various kinds is quickly reported to their friends and acquaintances abroad and they are advised to hasten to the United States and participate in the prosperity.

The thousands after thousands that are coming to our ports this summer have been "tipped off" as to the opportunities in the United States to earn money, and they are on their way to participate in the business boom which is abroad, and which will grow to much vaster proportions if the country secures fair or normal returns from the crop acreage which is being cultivated.

BIG CLAIMS PILING UP

American Interests in Mexico Are Heavy Sufferers By Depredations.

Government Will Be Asked to Pay Damages of $20,000,000.

City of Mexico, June 7.—Claims for damages aggregating an enormous sum, estimated at not less than $20,000,000 gold, will be submitted to the government as a result of the depredations committed upon foreign property interests by revolutionists in different parts of the country.

The revolutionists in the states of Chihuahua, Morelos, Guerrero and Sinaloa are living exclusively off of the country. They get their horses, saddles, feed stuffs and supplies from the ranches and towns. They get money from every available source, holding up banks, stores and individuals. Thousands hold receipts for horses, cattle, arms and ammunition, supplies and money taken by rebels. While the heaviest sufferers are the railroads, there are thousands of mining, manufacturing and other industrial concerns and individuals that have claims ranging from $1,000 to $100,000 that will be presented to the government for payment.

Trains Run by Rebels.

For several weeks the Chihuahua division of the National Railways of Mexico has been in the hands of the rebels. The trains are operated by rebel crews and the freight and passenger receipts have gone to maintain Gen. Pascual Orozco's army. While the Mexican government owns the majority of the stock, approximately 49 per cent is held by Americans and Europeans. It is stated here that the minority holders will insist upon the government making good. This, it is expected, will mean over $5,000,000 gold.

The outhern Pacific Railroad of Mexico, a new line not yet completed down the Pacific coast, has also suffered heavy losses at the hands of rebels in the state of Sinaloa and the territory of Tepic. The claim which this company will submit will probably be not less than $2,000,000 gold.

The Mexico Northwestern railroad, owned by British interests, was for several months practically paralyzed and many of its bridges were destroyed and the tracks torn up. The same interests also own large industrial plants along the line of the road, and their claim will aggregate about $1,500,000 gold, it is said.

Will Demand $500,000.

The American Smelting and Refining company, which has had to pay heavy tribute to the rebels, will demand more than $500,000 gold, according to estimates.

Other foreign mine owners in the republic claim damages aggregating probably more than $1,500,000.

In the state of Chihuahua, where the vast estates of Louis Terrazas and his son-in-law, Enrique Creel, have been ravaged by rebels, the amount of damages asked for by these two men alone will be upward of $5,000,000.

The Banco Minero of Chihuahua was made to donate $200,000 gold to the Orozco cause. The Banco Nacional gave up $150,000; the Banco de Sonora, $100,000, and individuals, $200,000.

The Intercontinental Rubber company of Torreon, which is owned by the Rockefeller-Aldrich interests, will ask for approximately $500,000 gold. Other industrial concerns of that section will claim $500,000.

Hundreds of smalier individual sufferers will demand an aggregate of not less than $5,000,000.

WOMAN'S BONES CRUMBLED AWAY

Brittleness of Skeleton From Lime Deposits Caused Death.

St. Louis, Mo., June 7.—Nearly every bone in the body of Mrs. C. W. Norris was fractured before her death at a hospital here. Many of the bones were broken before Mrs. Norris even suspected it, and her physician, who was treating her constantly for many months, believed her ailment was rheumatism and acted accordingly.

Mrs. Norris lived in Chester, Ill. She was 66 years old.

Before her illness she weighed more than 200 pounds. When death came she weighed scarcely half of that. One day she reached her hand to her head and there was a peculiar sensation, not a sharp pain, and she could no longer raise her arm. She and her physician believed she was suffering from rheumatism. Not long afterward she stepped on a pebble. She wrenched one leg slightly and after that she believed it was paralyzed. She could no longer walk, and was confined to her bed.

She gradually grew weaker until a month ago she was brought to St. Louis and placed in a hospital. Physicians discovered that her bones were turning to lime.

Bones Snapped With Every Movement.

The flesh wasted away and the bones turned to lime. The bones of the fingers were broken as were many others. No pain attached to the fracturing, and the patient was unaware when it occurred. It became so that when she made the slightest movement a bone would snap.

MRS. HODGDON AT 77 YEARS STILL WORKS AT THE LOOM.

Saco, Me., June 7.—Mrs. Melissa Hodgdon of Saco is believed to be the oldest weaver of cotton goods in the world. Verging on 77 and a widow, Mrs. Hodgdon has been employed as a cotton weaver steadily since April, 1855, when she went to work in the Pepperell mill in Biddeford. After a year there, she entered the employ of the York Manufacturing company in Saco, where she has since continued, rarely missing a day.

Mrs. Hodgdon at one time operated six looms, but at the age of 75 she found it too fatiguing, and now she limits herself to four. She is healthy, bright and cheerful and is able to do a good day's work, going to the mill at 7 in the morning and working steadily until 6, with an hour at noon for dinner. She lives alone in rooms in Factory Island block, a huge tenement owned by the company. She has agreeable neighbors, and she says she finds life well worth living. She is seldom sick, and on those rare occasions she longs to be back at the looms.

"Everybody is good to me," she says, "and although I have had my share of sorrows I am glad to be alive and able to work. I could not live unless I could go to the mill. The mill likes me and I like it. The mill is my home and I hope to remain there for some years yet."

A WOMAN'S BEAUTY

Beauty—real beauty—is more than skin deep. No cosmetic in the world can give the wholesome color, the bright eyes, the clear transparent skin that is the natural result of pure blood, proper diet and hygienic habits of daily life.

It sounds easy and it is easy for a woman to have the beauty which health alone can give. A safe and efficient tonic if the blood is weak, thin or impure (Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are especially recommended), the avoidance of foods which will cause eruptions, and regular bathing of the skin. That is all and it is the only way. Most women will be interested in the following statement:

Miss Frances R. Roche, whose address is No. 1436 Pine street, Pueblo, Colo., says: "From girlhood I was pale and all run down in health. I had but very little blood and not a bit of strength. I could hardly drag around. There seemed to be no life in me. I had dizzy and vomiting spells and constant headaches. I was obliged to give up my work for a time.

"I took medicine from a doctor but without relief. Through a friend's advice I gave Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People a trial and was completely cured. I am well now and have had no return of my trouble. My mother has since used the pills as a tonic and thinks as highly of them as I do."

Write to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Box 176, Schenectady, N. Y., for a free booklet, "Plain Talks to Women." It should be read by every woman and growing girl. A free sample of the new laxative "Pinklets" will also be sent you. Should you be unable to obtain Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in your locality they will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, fifty cents per box; six boxes for $2.50.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

CORN PRIZES ARE OFFERED

North Dakotans Encouraged to Raise Fine Quality of That Cereal.

Bank, Lumber Concern and Farm Paper Make Offer to the People.

Fargo, N. D., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Manager Cooper of the North Dakota Better Farming association today announced three prizes for corn growing. He reports a greatly increased acreage this year, despite the poor quality of the seed. Last year's corn acreage was more than double any former year.

Bank Offers Prizes.

The First National bank of Fargo offers $300 in prizes for the best acre of matured corn. The state will be divided by the association into north and south districts and the money divided.

The Rogers Lumber company of Minneapolis offers $200 for the best acre in five-acre tracts in Barnes, Wells and Stutsman counties, grown by a boy under 18. The Farm, Stock and Home, Minneapolis, offers a $100 silver cup for the best acre of corn anywhere in the state.

NEIGHBORS DIFFER; ONE WOUNDED

Eastwood, Aitkin County, Men Have Serious Quarrel Over a Horse.

Aitkin, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—John McGrath of Eastwood, who is accused of having shot Rudolph Erickson, a neighbor, in the leg and inflicting a scalp wound on Peter Erickson, the father, by striking him on the head with the gun, was brought to Aitkin Thursday and lodged in the county jail.

The men became engaged in a quarrel over a horse that belonged to the Ericksons and had strayed onto the McGrath property.

NEW CUYUNA RANGE MINISTER IN FIELD.

Aitkin, Minn., June 7.—Rev. J. A. Gustafson and family have arrived from Southern Minnesota and Mr. Gustafson entered upon his duties as pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church last Sunday. He will also serve as pastor to the churches at Maria, Bethleham and Deerwood and will do mission work at Cuyuna and Crosby.

MANY SILOS ARE BEING ERECTED

New Methods of Feeding Stock Popular Around Pine River.

Pine River, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eleven silos will be erected by farmers residing in the vicinity of this village this season. This is the first real movement in silo construction to be recorded in this section and marks a wonderful step in the rapid advancement of the country as a dairy section. Up to three years ago there was not sufficient farm produce raised in this section to permit of any shipments to outside points but the fall and winter shipments during the past season totaled over 100 cars of potatoes, thirty-five cars of hay and several cars of navy beans.

This spring the influx of settlers has been gratifying, over thirty families, all of them with carloads or more of stock, farm machinery and farm equipments have moved in at this point. Land is rapidly advancing in price and one sale this spring close to the village is recorded where an improved 140-acre farm brought $50 per acre. The crop outlook this year is exceedingly good and with favorable weather during the season record breaking crops will be harvested.

THREE COUDERAY MEN ARE FINED

Plead Guilty at Eau Claire to Giving Indians Liquor.

Eau Claire, Wis., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Eldred and Alfred Couture, both saloon keepers and Ed Walters, a bartender, all of Couderay, were arraigned before Judge Sanborn in United States court yesterday on a charge of selling liquor to Indians. All pleaded guilty, the first two being fined $100 each, and the last named $50.

AT FARGO NEXT YEAR.

North Dakota Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows Ends Meet.

Williston, N. D., June 7.—The grand lodge of the North Dakota Independent Order of Odd Fellows closed its sessions here last night. Fargo was selected for the 1913 meeting place.

The following officers were elected: Grand master, E. N. Jackson, Binford; deputy grand master, H. L. Elken, Mayville; grand warden, J. D. Scott, Oakes; grand conductor, A. J. Field, Williston; grand treasurer, H. D. Mack, Lisbon; grand secretary, Don Donaldson, Grand Forks.

The Rebekah grand lodge, which was also in session, elected the following officers: President, Jennie Hill, Fargo; vice president, Lettie Jorgenson, Lakota; warden, Clara Shreppie, Minot; secretary, Mary McLaughlin, Hope; treasurer, Elizabeth Bridgeport, Larimore.

GORED BY BULL HE WAS LEADING

Marquette Young Man May Die From Injuries Sustained When Attacked.

Marquette, Mich., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hjalmer Bergh, aged 21, son of Hilmer Bergh, the dairyman near the fair grounds, scrambled away from an infuriated bull on the farm Wednesday after he had been gored through the body and tossed over the bull's back, narrowly escaping a second charge of the animal. He is now in a precarious condition at St. Luke's hospital. He was leading the bull to water late in the afternoon when he was attacked. The bull ran him into a corner of the pen, where Bergh was helpless. The horn penetrated the abdominal wall the first time, inflicting a frightful wound and tearing out part of the intestines. In the next dash the bull tore his horn into Berg's hip and threw him over his head. Bergh managed to scramble to safety before the next dash of the bull in spite of his mutilated condition.

He was rushed to St. Luke's hospital, where an operation was at once performed. Dr. Janes said that he has a fair chance for recovery unless peritonitis sets in.

TWO COPPER TOWNS IN KEEN RIVALRY

Laurium and Red Jacket, Neighbors, Will Both Celebrate July 4.

Calumet, Mich., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Laurium and Red Jacket, the two business and residential centers of Calumet, are arrayed against each other over the celebration of the Fourth of July.

The celebration of the Fourth of July in the copper country is never sane and quiet; rather, it is insane and noisy, very noisy, a regular mining camp celebration, with lots of fireworks and rain every year. Red Jacket has always been the live center of interest, however, till last year, when Laurium put up a bigger celebration.

Towns Vie With One Another.

This year the two towns are vieing with each other in raising money for the celebration. Laurium announced a big midsummer carnival, with twenty or more shows, for the week of the Fourth and Red Jacket has gone one better and is going to have the carnival, with a foreign amusement company coming in for the week, as well as a big municipal, civic and military celebration.

A peculiar twist to the situation is given by the fact that practically all of the big business men of Red Jacket are residents of Laurium, while fully two-thirds of the workers in Red Jacket also live in Laurium. The rest of the copper district is sitting quietly and looking on.

DRANK WITH ACCUSED.

So Benton County Grand Jury Was Not Allowed to Act.

Foley, Minn., June 7.—The grand jury that was expected to look into the alleged incendiary case against James M. Barrett of East Cloud, alleged to have set fire to his home, will not consider the case as Judge Taylor discharged the jury when informed by County Attorney West and State Deputy Fire Marshal Fullerton that Tuesday evening some eight or nine members of the grand jury, the sheriff and one or two other officials were drinking with Mr. Barrett, and that from the surroundings they judged that it would not be advisable to depend upon that jury in the Barrett matter. Judge Taylor called the jury before him and after stating that certain information had come to him which led him to believe that it would not be proper or wise to continue in session, so ordered their discharge.

PULLS FRACTURED BONE FROM MAN'S BRAIN.

Marquette, Mich., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. O. G. Youngquist performed an unusually delicate operation this week on Matt Mackey, a laborer at the Lake Superior & Ishpeming dock, who was struck on the head by a crane handle, fracturing his skull. Mackey was unconscious when taken to St. Luke's hospital, but two minutes after the operation he regained consciousness long enough to recognize the attendants.

The crane handle had gone into the skull like a hammer, forcing the bone into the brain for nearly two inches. In order to get at this bone Dr. Youngquist chipped off some of the bone lying around the fracture, and with the aid of his instruments raised the bone from the brain. Previous to the operation the man had been in violent convulsions and unconscious. These convulsions ceased after the bone had been raised from the brain. It is believed the operation was the only thing that saved his life.

FINE LAURIUM WEDDING.

Capt. Edwards' Daughter Becomes Bride of Canadian.

Calumet, Mich., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Clare, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Richard Edwards, Laurium, was wedded last evening to Hardy Awry, prominent young society and business man of Hamilton, Ont., the wedding taking place at the home of the bride's parents. This was one of the most notable society weddings occurring in the Copper country in several years. Miss Edwards was one of the Copper country's most remarkably beautiful young women.

FARMER FIRED UPON.

Probably Fatally Wounded While Driving With Wife Near Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., June 7.—Frank Huber, a farmer, residing twenty miles southeast of this city, was shot, probably fatally, while driving with his wife near his home late yesterday. His assailant fired through the rear curtain of Huber's carriage, the bullet entering the victim's back and grazing his heart. John Frankowizk, a neighbor, has been arrested, charged with the crime. It is alleged that there has been a feud between the two men.

APPEAL TO LAWMAKERS.

Modern Woodmen to Ask Minnesota Solons for Relief.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 7.—As the result of a decision reached here last night by 500 insurgent Modern Woodmen of America, several hundred Woodmen will descend upon the Minnesota legislature now in special session today and demand that it suspend its "gag" rule limiting bills that can be introduced, and pass a bill forbidding the head camp of the Modern Woodmen from increasing its rates in Minnesota higher than the rate paid at the age of entrance.

Telegrams are being sent throughout the state urging Woodmen to telegraph their representatives in the legislature to assist in passing the bill. The Woodmen declare the action lies in the province of the legislature, maintaining that the increase of rates as proposed would mean the loss of thousands of dollars in Minnesota.

JURY THOUGHT DIFFERENTLY

So Fisherman, Alleged to Have Violated Law, Went Free.

Crystal Falls, Mich., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—John O'Connell, deputy game warden, has returned from Iron River thoroughly disgusted. He had arrested William Hanhold for having undersized fish in his basket. O'Connell says that Hanhold had at least thirty of them, but he charged him with having only seven and he had the seven in court. A jury of six good and true men took about two minutes to decide that Hanhold was not guilty; that the fish were of legal size and that John ought to be treated by an occulist for nearsightedness.

CHICAGO'S MAYOR SEEKS NORTHERN MICHIGAN FISH.

Negaunee, Mich., June 7.—Carter Harrison, mayor of Chicago; Oscar Meyer, proprietor of a large wholesale butcher supply house, and Emil Demme, proprietor of the Bismarck hotel of Chicago, arrived in the city Wednesday to join Ex-Mayor Joseph H. Winter on a fishing trip to the Yellow Dog on the south shore of Lake Superior, near the Huron Mountain club.

Appointed by McGovern.

Madison, Wis., June 7.—Governor McGovern has appointed Dr. Joseph Barber, Marathon City, to be a member of the state board of health and vital statistics in place of Dr. L. E. Spencer, Wausau, resigned. The term ends first Monday in February, 1915. The governor also appointed B. J. Kremer of Fond du Lac as member in place of H. B. Allen, deceased, Richland Center. The term ends April 12, 1916.

Cleveland-Cliffs Pay Days.

Ishpeming, Mich., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company's pay days will this month be as follows: Hard Ore and Lake mines, Thursday, June 13; Cliffs Shafts and Salisbury, June 14; Negaunee district, June 17, and North Lake district, June 19.

Thirteen Menominee Graduates.

Menominee, Mich., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fourth annual commencement exercises of the Menominee county normal school were held last evening at the Methodist church. There were thirteen in the graduating class.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Norway — George O'Gallaghan has received word that his eldest son, George, died of fever on board a ship bound from Honolulu to San Francisco and was buried at sea. The young man was 24 years of age and had enlisted in the United States infantry last fall.

Marquette—A. E. Delf, auditor of the South Shore, has been notified of the appointment of L. K. Luff, formerly of Marquette, as auditor of revenue of the Delaware & Hudson Railway company. Mr. Luff was employed in the auditing department of the South Shore here for eleven years prior to 1901.

Houghton—Stephen Carkeek, here on a visit from Pasadena, Cal., has not forgotten past good work of the Houghton fire department. He handed Chief Voetsch on Tuesday a check for $50 for the firemen's relief fund.

Houghton—Abraham Kumar, aged about 45, died Tuesday night at the tuberculosis sanitarium. He has no relatives so far as can be learned and little is known of his antecedents. The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon.

Hancock—Agent Rentenbach has recently completed several improvements at the Hancock station of the Copper range. The old fence has been removed from the front of the warehouse, and an unloading platform installed, while the driveways have been graded and covered with crushed rock and the mud-holes filled.

Calumet—The Odd Fellows have elected these officers: Noble grand, John Cadwell; vice noble grand, Albert W. Bray; representatives to grand lodge, Fred Lenten and John Spare; district deputy, Fred Lenten.

Marquette—William McCombie pleaded guilty in Judge Burne's court and was fined $50 for annoying women and insulting them.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Lake City—Mrs. Susan Eldred, aged 93 years, one of the oldest pioneers of the Lake Pepin valley, passed away in this city Wednesday evening. Mrs. Eldred with her husband came to Minnesota in 1854 and settled in Wabasha county, where she has since resided. Mr. Eldred passed away in 1884. She is survived by seven children, sixteen grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

Moorhead—Edwin L. Reed, for several years head of the English department at the Moorhead state normal school, has accepted a position as college editor in the Oregon Agricultural college at Corvalis. Mr. Reed has accepted his new position which will give him charge of several college positions. Prof. Reed was formerly reporter on the old Minneapolis Times. He is a graduate of the University of Minneapolis.

New York Mills—Victor H. Gran, attorney from Duluth, visited friends here for a few days, and went to one of local numerous lakes for a fishing trip.

North Branch — Forest Plummer, while watching them strike on Alfred Ekstrand's striking machine about noon Thursday last, was struck in the eye by a flying piece of steel from the machine and as a result may lose his eyesight.

Cambridge—The fire department has re-elected all old officers. G. C. Smith and Emil Jarchow were elected as delegates to the Minneapolis convention, with C. M. Johnson and Frank Whitney as alternates.

Isanti—The application of Edward O. Carlson for a liquor license was rejected by the village council by a vote of 3 to 0, Trustees Ledin and Johnson being absent.

Crookston—Ewin Johnson entered a plea of guilty before Judge Watts Wednesday to grand larceny in the second degree, on information of County Attorney Hagen, being charged with robbing a man of a watch. Johnson was intoxicated at the time, is a hard working man, and sentence was suspended by Judge Watts till the next term of court.

Fergus Falls—The death of B. O. Killmer, formerly proprietor of the Park hotel in this city, which occurred at Anoka Monday night, has been traced to bad butter, which has resulted in an epidemic of typhoid fever there, Mr. Killmer being one of the victims of that disease.

Mankato—Mrs. John F. Lager was found dead at her home in Le Ray township early Wednesday. Old age and heart trouble is assigned as the cause of her death. Deceased was 75 years old and was born in Sweden.

International Falls—George A. Melrose, the artist of the New York hippodrome, is visiting Immigration Officer Watson and family. He came to recuperate in this bracing climate after a severe illness, and during his stay expects to make sketches for the season of 1913 and to gather local colors.

Brainerd — Assistant State Auditor Nelson of St. Paul conducted a state land sale at the office of the county auditor Wednesday morning. There was a big attendance of land buyers. The state uniformly appraised the lands at $6 per acre and prices as set by the various bidders ranged from $6 to $9, $9.50 and even $10 and $10.50 per acre.

Ada—The twenty-fourth annual convention of the Fourteenth district of the W. C. T. U. will be held at Ada next Tuesday and Wednesday, June 11 and 12, and about fifty delegates are expected to be in attendance.

St. Cloud—Charles Staples, an employe in the Dunnewold & Sartell sash and door factory, received a painful injury Wednesday when a large sliver flew off a piece of lumber that he was sawing and entered his neck. Staples' injury is not considered dangerous by his surgeon, the only danger being in the great amount of blood that he lost.

Moorhead—The marriage of Joseph M. Herrick and Miss Mary Curran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Curran, was solemnized Wednesday at St. Joseph's Catholic church, Rev. Father Gerard officiating. Mr. Herrick is assistant cashier of the Moorhead National bank and has resided in Moorhead all his life. The bride is one of the popular young ladies of the city and has also resided in Moorhead for many years.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Wautoma—M. F. Joy of Chicago, special agent of the United States, was in this village on Tuesday and took into custody Roy Gustin, son of Frank Gustin, as a deserter from the army. It is said he deserted the army eight months ago, having served only three months. He came here in the early spring from California. He was taken back to Fort Sheridan.

Madison—Senator La Follette, accompanied by G. E. Roe of New York and Col. J. J. Hannan, passed through Madison on his way to Washington on Wednesday. The senator will stop at Chicago to confer with A. R. Rogers and other national committeemen, and plans to remain at the capital until the close of congress, after which he will return to his farm near Madison.

Baraboo—At the sixth annual meeting of the Wisconsin Tile Men's association the following officers were elected: President, W. H. Hardy, Jr., Waukesha; vice presidents, Theodore Beuhler, Alma; August F. Hoffman, Washburn; C. S. Kitchel, Milwaukee; secretary, F. D. Lord, Ellsworth; treasurer, Mrs. Florence K. Redfern, Mineral Point. Next meeting will be at Waukesha.

Sheboygan—J. C. Karel of Milwaukee was Wednesday elected president of the B. P. O. E. of Wisconsin; J. E. Elliott, Racine, first vice president; Fred Stussey, Eau Claire, second vice president; Charles Oellrich, Oshkosh; third vice president; Francis Taugher, Manitowoc, secretary; J. H. Smith, Oconto, treasurer. Manitowoc was selected as the next convention city.

Milwaukee—Theodore Van de Kamp died at his home here Tuesday, aged 72 years. He was well known among the Dutch residents of Milwaukee, as he was one of the first Hollanders to make this city his home. Mr. Van de Kamp was in the painting and decorating business.

Manitowoc—On the grounds that the practice is a nuisance and defaces public property, the use of sidewalks for advertising will be stopped. It has been the custom to advertise ball games and picture shows with glaring letters.

Eau Claire—With the advent of the Berry season, City Sealer of Weights and Measures Joseph F. Weizenegger, in addition to his daily trips of inspection about the city, is kept busy inspecting and measuring berry boxes brought before him.

Appleton—The First National bank has purchased the old opera house building and will erect a new structure which will cost $125,000. It is announced that the new bank building will be the handsomest north of Milwaukee.

Green Bay—The Paper Novelty company has been organized in Green Bay. The company will engage in the business of manufacturing paper napkins.

Oshkosh—At the June meeting of the Oshkosh Power Boat club an extended cruise was decided on. The dates have not yet been chosen nor has the course been selected.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D. — The summer school of engineers at the North Dakota Agricultural college opened Wednesday and a large number of students have registered. Last year over 300 took the course and it is expected that as many more will register this year. The course covers four weeks, closing July 1.

Elgin, N. D. — County divisionists of Morton county will hold a barbecue and rally here Monday, June 10, and arrangements are being made to have the gathering one of the best ever held on the Missouri slope.

Neche, N. D. — The Northern Baseball league, composed of Neche, Gretna, Walhalla, Bathgate, St. Thomas and Le Roy was organized at a meeting held here. Two games a week will be played during the season, and some fast ball is in view for the fans of this section.

Minot, N. D. — The Socialists were badly beaten in an exciting school election Tuesday to elect two members of the board of education. The total vote polled was 718 as follows: Dr. A. J. McCannell, 583; J. H. Pomp-Kins, 461; Isabell Scharlett, 187; Mrs. Emma Pooler, Socialist, 80; Mrs. Anna E. Thomas, Socialist, 71.

Grand Forks, N. D. — Edward Kronschnable of Mekinock appeared before Judge Phil McLoughlin to answer to a charge of embezzlement. He was fined $30 and released. Ole Nelson, the complaining witness, accused Kronschnable with embezzling some ice cream cones, a show case and other articles that had been turned over to him for safe keeping.

Bismarck, N. D. — The state pardon board Wednesday denied over twenty applications for pardons. No final action granting pardons has been taken as yet. The principal question before the board is that with reference to rescinding action taken last December, when Remington's sentence was commuted to thirty years. The legality of the authority of the board to rescind its action was debated upon and it is not believed it will take such a step.

Minot, N. D. — The Citizens' bank, with the Northwestern Trust company, as surety, and the Scandinavian bank with the Northern Trust company as surety furnished bonds in the sum of $10,000 each to the city commissioners to protect city funds now on deposit in their banks.

DRINK AND BUSINESS WILL NOT MIX

The business man who drinks liquor is incapable of success. He is helpless to manage and carry to profit a large business. Alcohol draws a black veil over business judgment, paralyzes and renders incapable the brain; it wrecks the physical health, blunts the morals. Alcohol does these things because it is an indidious, cumulative poison—a poison that has no antidote but more alcohol—or the Neal Treatment.

There are no hypodermic injections, no poisonous drugs, no substitutive stimulants or sedatives, no bad after effects. A child cculd safely take the Neal treatment.

The Neal Treatment

Will in THREE DAYS' TIME eliminate every trace of alcoholic poison from the system. With the disappearance of this poison, all craving, desire and appetite for liquor, and inclination to drink it, also dissappear. Liquor is thought of only in disgust; drinking men and their acts become an aversion. At the end of the third day of treatment the drinker is in the same condition as to craving for liquor as the day of his first drink. This shall be the conditoon of every man and every woman who takes the Neal treatment, under written legally executed contract. Treatment shall be satisfactory in every particular or it shall cost nothing.

ONLY THREE DAYS.

Any man can spare three days from his business. Come to the Neal Institute and have done with liquor forever! It means the making of you. Many a business man who was staring down into the black hole of bankruptcy has come to the Neal Institute and gone away at the end of the third day to SUCCESS, to health, to wealth. Many a man has come into the Neal Institute broken in mind, in nerves and in body, who has gone out at the end of the third day STRONG — physically and mentally strong and capable — with nerves steady as a clock. The Neal treatment does the work—does it quickly, effectually, thoroughly, harmlessly.

Call or write for free booklet giving full particulars, also copy of legal written contract entered into with each patient. Everything strictly confidential. Satisfaction or money refunded at end of third day. Both phones.

DELIGHTED WITH DULUTH

Visiting Democrats Had Nothing But Praise for the City.

Convention Started the Summer Tourist Season Most Auspiciously.

The Democratic state convention was a great thing for Duluth. Coming to Duluth was a great thing for the Democrats. Everybody was pleased all around.

The convention was one of the most successful ever held in Minnesota. The crowd was large, harmony prevailed, the convention did not last into the late hours of the night, and the weather man behaved as though he were a candidate for office on the Democratic ticket. He showered his bounty on the visitors.

Many of the delegates were so taken with Duluth that they remained over for a few days. Others said that when the weather gets warmer in the southern part of the state, they will come to Duluth to get a breath of the cool air of Lake Superior. The trout streams appealed to some for a stay of a few days and others wanted to come when the air is warm enough for the enjoyment of lake excursions.

The hospitality of Duluth came in for commendation from the delegates. They declared they were delighted with the accommodations and service at the hotels and with the provisions made for the convention. Nobody had a complaint of any kind to make. Duluth made many friends among men who are of influence in their communities.

Duluth people shared in the general joy over the success of the convention. The summer convention season was started out with a large gathering that can spread the fame of Duluth. The hotels were crowded Wednesday night and many of the visitors remained over last night. The few Democrats who secured the convention for Duluth and The Herald which did its part to gather a large crowd, were commended for the public spirit shown in getting the gathering for the city. The convention will probably be the last in the state, but it is not the least and the fame of the Duluth convention will remain long in the memory of many people in Minnesota.

WAR DEPARTMENT IS PREPARING 5,000 MEN FOR SERVICE IN CUBA

tonight. The 750 marines they carry may at once be added to those now ashore for the protection of foreign property.

There is a possibility that more warships may go to Cuban waters soon, but not primarily because of the trouble there. It has been suggested that the first division of the Atlantic fleet, which is assigned to take the midshipmen for a cruise from Annapolis, may join the fourth division, now on its way, but nothing definite has been worked out.

In Hurry for Rifles.

The Cuban government is pressing for speedy delivery of the 10,000 Krag-Jorgensen rifles and ammunition to arm the volunteer guard that President Gomez proposes. The war department now is preparing the shipment for transportation to Key West.

The Prairie, with one company of marines aboard, has been ordered to Manzanillo in the western part of Oriente province to investigate conditions.

The gunboat Petrel, which has been cruising on the Mississippi river, has been ordered to Key West. The collier Lebanon is proceeding from Key West to join the fourth division at Guantanamo.

More Marines Landed.

Santiago, June 7.—The United States gunboat Paducah last night landed fifty marines under Lieut. Philip Torrey at the El Cuero mines and sixty marines under Capt. Gulic at Punta Do Sal. These garrisons will be increased as soon as possible, as they are considered to be insufficient at present for the protection of the properties there.

Sugar Mill Attacked.

Havana, June 7.—A body of negroes armed with rifles attacked the Toledo Sugar mill at Marianas, a suburb of Havana, at 2 o'clock this morning, evidently with the intention of burning it. They were held at bay by private armed guards, but the firing continued until a troop of cavalry summoned by telephone from Camp Columbia appeared, when the insurgents vanished.

Pursuit of the raiders was impossible owing to the darkness and a downpour of rain. The torrential rains began three days ago and continue general throughout the island, interrupting telegraph communication with the province of Oriente, the scene of the most serious trouble. The lowlands of Pinar Del Rio are submerged and much damage has been done. The peasants are seeking refuge in the towns. Railroad communication is interrupted.

Negro General Arrested.

Juan Ducassi, who was a prominent negro general in the war of the revolution, was arrested in Havana this morning, charged with conspiring to support the present negro insurrection. P. Galvez, leader of the negro party in Pinar del Rio, also was arrested.

Col. Orestes Ferrara, speaker of the house of representatives, unexpectedly sailed from Havana this morning for the United States by way of Key West. The object of Col. Ferrara's visit to the United States is not known, but it is believed he is acting as the special agent of President Gomez to Washington.

Asks People to Arm.

The gravity of the situation in Cuba has been emphasized by the issuance by President Gomez of a proclamation to the Cuban people urging them to arm and organize in the face of the national peril. The president expresses the hope that congress will vote a credit to cover the extraordinary military preparations—this in addition to the $1,000,000 already voted.

ALUMINUM TRUST ENDS

ticipate in any combination or agreement to control the output or prices of aluminum. It is enjoined from combining by stock ownership or otherwise, with other manufacturers for this purpose.

The decree places a long list of specified unfair methods to competitors under the ban of the court.

Provisions of alleged agreements to supress competition between the Aluminum company and the so-called Swiss or Neuhausen company of Europe, the General Chemical company, the Norton company, the Pennsylvania Salt company and Gustave A. Kruttschnitt and James C. Coleman, both of Newark, N. J., are abrogated by the decree.

Modification Provided For.

Whenever it is shown that substantial competition has arisen in the aluminum trust directory, the decree may be modified upon the production of evidence that it is working an injustice. Application for modification cannot be made oftener than once in every three years, however.

The decree was presented to the court by William T. Chantland, special assistant to the attorney general, who developed the government's case, and United States Attorney Jordan of Pittsburg.

ATTEMPTS TO SHOOT TISZA

bad marksmanship, he put two bullets into his own body.

The attack upon the count is a direct outcome of the agitation which has been persisted in since his election as speaker on May 22. Tisza is an opponent of universal suffrage, and on this issue his election was contested with a bitterness that culminated in violence in the chamber and bloodshed in the streets. Free fights occurred around the voting urn, and finally the whole opposition party left the chamber and Tisza was elected by the government party.

That same night the Socialist union decided to proclaim a strike of all union workmen in Budapest with the exception of municipal employes.

Many Killed in Riots.

During the next two days there was much rioting and many persons were killed by the soldiers and police. The affair took on a revolutionary character, and the government was compelled to compromise with the Socialists by inducing the manufacturers involved in the strike to make certain concessions, thus appeasing the popular feeling.

The men returned to work on May 25 and the demonstration shifted from the streets to the diet. The opposition, by noisy tactics, prevented the passage of legislation, and the deadlock was unbroken until last Tuesday, when President Tisza forced through the government's defense bills.

On the following day, when the proceedings were again interrupted by the use of noise-making devices, the president called in the police, who expelled thirty members of the opposition. Later these, with other obstructionists, were suspended for from fifteen to twenty-five sittings. Kovacs was one o. those who were refused participation in the proceedings.

first early morning cars.

A first one was met on Tremont street near the hall. The car was stopped, the trolley yanked from the wire, the windows smashed and the motorman and conductor badly beaten. A number of passengers were rushed out of the car, although none were injured.

Let Mail Car Pass.

As the clash was proceeding a mail car suddenly came into sight, and recognizing the authority of the government, those who had stopped the first car suddenly ceased their activities and permitted both cars to resume their way.

A few minutes later word of the strike had reached the vicinity of the North station, and there two other cars were stopped, windows smashed, some of the gearing disabled and several passengers were slightly injured by flying glass.

Several arrests were made at this point.

A crowd coming from the direction of strike headquarters encircled several cars on Adams square about 6 o'clock and more violence ensued. Two arrests were made here. One of those taken in custody was charged with assault on a policeman and the other was charged with inciting a riot.

Viaduct Cars Smashed.

A dozen men rushed down into the Cambridge subway as the first car was about to start and tried to persuade the train hands to join them. They were unsuccessful, but held up the starting of the trains for nearly half an hour. About the same time four of the new semi-convertible viaduct cars were so badly demolished that the traffic between Cambridge and Boston was completely blocked for several hours.

The outbreak in Charlestown was almost as severe, while similar occurrences took place in Everett and Chelsea.

It was announced during the forenoon that the actual vote in favor of a strike was 1,389 to 8.

The strike committee claims that up to the time of calling the strike today 3,200 men had signed union papers and had paid the initiation fee. At the same time the company issued a statement that 3,500 employes were still loyal and that every effort would be made to keep the car system in operation.

Four hours after the strike began cars were running on nearly all lines, but with about half the usualy frequency.

NATIONAL COMMITTEE BEGINS ITS HEARINGS IN CHICAGO CONTESTS

Taft delegates were seated on the next vote.

The understanding was at the opening of the committee's session that the contests would be considered in alphabetical order—Alabama first.

Only eight of Alabama's twenty-four delegates instructed for Taft are undisputed.

Next would come Arizona's six-at-large, and then Arkansas' four-at-large, and the district delegations next.

With thirty minutes' time allowed each side for presentation of the cases involving delegations at large, and fifteen minutes per side for the district contests, was evident that even the best possible economy of time and the intended omission of lunch recess would find the long list barely touched at the end of the day's work.

The committee actually began its session at 10:10 a. m., with Chairman Victor Rosewater of Nebraska in the chair.

Refused Statement.

The Roosevelt attorneys refused, prior to the meeting of the committee, to make public any of their briefs or arguments in the Alabama case, although the Taft attorneys had given out a synopsis of their claims in all the contests of that state. Briefs for the Roosevelt side were made available for the press only as the cases were called up by the committee.

Another attempt was made at the beginning of the session by the Roosevelt forces to secure a committee roll call by the request of eight members. Senator Borah renewed the fight lost yesterday to strike out the requirement of twenty votes for a roll call. Senator Borah's motion was tabled by a viva voce vote. This result crystallized the impression that the 39 to 13 vote of yesterday really represents the relative Taft and anti-Taft strength in the committee. The members from South Dakota and Wisconsin generally are accredited to the La Follette interests.

Borah Wants Record.

Senator Borah said he knew the other side had the votes to seat any delegates they desired to.

"But ninety millions of people are watching this committee's sessions," he said, "and unless the record is clear it will be charged that all interests were not given fair treatment.

"I do not think the majority of the committee is going to seat anyone who ought not to be seated, but I do insist that the minority in each case be given an opportunity to record their votes."

Strong Array of Counsel.

When the Alabama cases were called a strong array of counsel appeared on each side, to open the fight for delegations on the outcome of which the Republican presidential nomination is supposed to depend. Ormsby McHarg of New York and Charles Dick of Ohio appeared as the chief counsel, respectively, for Col. Roosevelt and President Taft.

With Former Senator Dick were Frederick C. Bryan of Washington, his associate counsel; O. D. Street and S. S. Pleasants, members of the Taft delegation at large from Alabama; and W. S. Reese, J. J. Curtis and A. C. Birch, representing the contested Taft delegates in the congressional districts.

Mr. McHarg was assisted in presenting the Alabama cases by Oscar R. Hundley of Birmingham, one of the Roosevelt delegates-at-large, and the Roosevelt leader of the state. Associated with the Roosevelt attorney was Bainbridge Colby of New York, who is aiding in the contest fights.

Taft Alabama Claims.

The Taft claims to the Alabama delegates-at-large, six in number, as presented to the committee by the president's representatives, were substantially as follows:

In August, 1911, Republican factions in Alabama came together in a convention under a suggestion from President Taft to compromise long-standing differences. That convention, it was claimed, selected Pope M. Long state chairman, superseding J .O. Thompson, and selected six delegates-at-large to the Republican national convention.

When the Republican national committee met at Washington in December, 1911, it invalidated any election of delegates that had taken place prior to its meeting. State Chairman Long called another convention in Birmingham, March 7, 1912, and the delegates-at-large were re-elected, in conformity with the national committee's official call.

Later, Senator Dick claimed, Mr. Thompson, the former chairman, issued another call for a separate convention at which the contesting delegates at large were chosen.

After Roosevelt Appeared.

"After Col. Roosevelt announced his candidacy for the presidency," he said, "Mr. Thompson repudiated the written agreement he had entered into a year ago, pretended that the entire proceedings of the convention held in August, 1911, were illegal and void, and pretended to call together the old state committee, of which he had been chairman. Three members of the old committee responded to his call, out of a total of forty-one members.

"The Taft delegates-at-large were elected by a state convention duly called by the new state committee, of which Pope M. Long is chairman. There can be no question about the legality of their election."

In the First congressional district cases, the Taft attorneys declared the organization established by the Republican convention in Alabama had been ignored, and that a separate convention had been called by J. O. Thompson and N. L. Steele, to elect Roosevelt delegates "who occupy no official relation to either the state or congressional committee."

In Other Districts.

In the Second district it was claimed the regular organization also was ignored, and the Taft forces further charged that the Roosevelt convention had been held outside the boundaries of the Second congressional district, without the issuing of notices or the holding of county conventions.

In the Fifth and Ninth districts the Taft adherents charged the Roosevelt forces with working through "rump" or bolting committees, and in the Sixth district it was claimed eight men had selected the district delegates at a meeting at Birmingham.

INCREASE IN THE TAX

and the action of the senate providing for a committee of nine, one from each congressional district, which must consent unanimously before returning to the senate any measure except those relating to state-wide primary and corrupt practices.

Their chuckles began to dwindle yesterday when it was reported that Mr. Gordon had been quietly searching out a committee which would agree to report out any bill which the house passed out of its legislative program, including the gross earnings tax increase and reapportionment, and that there was good prospect that he would succeed. A number of the senators who signed the two-measure agreement had become appalled by the fear that they had made a terrible mistake.

Two days passed without this committee being announced, and the reason for the delay became clear when Lieutenant Governor Gordon admitted that he was engaged in seeking a committee that would be free from the gag rule, and that he expected to succeed shortly. "I am taking special care," he said, "in the selection of this committee, because its importance in relation to the results of this session cannot be overestimated. If the house passes gross earnings, reapportionment and the two constitutional amendments, I want if possible to have a committee on reception of bills which will report them for full discussion on the floor of the senate and for action. I believe both measures should be passed."

Lieutenant Governor Gordon today announced the committee.

It has been the hope of Eberhart forces that the two-measures program would put Sam Gordon in a hole, and indeed it rather looked for a while as though it would be possible for Eberhart's friends to protest that he had done the best he could to get good measures through, but that Sam Gordon's organization killed them, but the prospects are now that their hope will be futile. They are not chuckling now.

Will Push Reapportionment.

Representative Knapp of Chisholm, in rising in the house this morning to a question of personal privilege, took notice of the fact there are rumors and newspaper reports that the house members from Northern Minnesota are parties to a plan to drop reapportionment. "For my part," said Mr. Knapp, "and I believe this is true of the other members from Northern Minnesota, this is a mistake. A reapportionment bill will be introduced in this body and pushed." His remarks were warmly applauded by Northern Minnesota members. Representative Knapp and other Northern Minnesota members are starting a canvass of the house membership to find out how reapportionment stands in this body. The bill probably will be introduced tomorrow.

Representative Klemer tried to get the rules suspended to receive his bill proposing a constitutional amendment limiting the introduction of bills to five for each member, and providing that they must come in the first thirty days of the session.

Representative O'Neill of Thief River Falls said that while that measure might be all right it should go over until the state is reapportioned. He was applauded when he said that it would be an outrage, after unfairly limiting the representation of a large section of the state, thus throwing increased burdens on its representatives, to go further and limit the number of bills they might introduce. There was only one vote, and that not Klemer's, for the Klemer motion, so the bill died.

State Wide Primary.

The senate in committee of the whole took up the state-wide primary bill, though no action is expected today.

A blow at Governor Eberhart is threatened in the resolution offered this morning by Senator Lende, demanding that he send in for confirmation his recess appointments. There will be trouble about some of them, it is reported. The matter was put over to tomorrow on G. H. Sullivan's notice of debate.

Senator Boyle offered a bill allowing Hibbing and Alice villages to consolidate, if both vote for it.

Strong pressure is being brought to bear on Representative J. A. A. Burnquist of St. Paul to become a candidate for lieutenant governor, and he is taking kindly to the notion. Mr. Burnquist is that rare thing, a Progressive from St. Paul, and has been a house leader, with levelheaded-qualities, of progressives.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

ROOSEVELT MAY JOIN THE FIGHT

Possibility That He Will Go to Chicago Arouses Interest.

Chicago, June 7.—The prospect that Col. Roosevelt may come to Chicago next week to direct personally his campaign for the nomination held political attention when the day opened, to the exclusion of Republican national committee affairs.

With the demand for publicity conceded by the committee yesterday, Taft and Roosevelt leaders faced their first definite test of strength in the taking up of the Alabama contest cases. The part William Flinn of Pennsylvania will take in the presentation of Col. Roosevelt's contests will not be known until Mr. Flinn arrives late tonight with news of his Oyster Bay conference yesterday.

Lines were sharply drawn for the opening of the fight for contested delegates to the Republican national convention. With publicity assured for the whole presentation of the 238 or more contests, the Republican national committee was prepared to take up the cases today with all possible expedition. Ten newspaper men, representing the five press associations recognized on the floor of congress, had been authorized to sit throughout the committee hearing.

Oscar R. Hundley of Birmingham was present to assist Ormsby McHarg and Bainbridge Colby in arguing the rights of the Roosevelt delegates.

Former Senator Charles Dick of Ohio and Maj. F. C. Brian, the Taft attorneys, were aided by many members of the Alabama Taft delegation.

QUAYLE-LARSEN CO. HARDWARE

14 and 16 WEST SUPERIOR STREET

OVER 100 MILES SWEPT BY CANADIAN FIRES.

Winnipeg, Man., June 7.—Reports received here say that disastrous forest fires now raging have swept the country for 110 miles between Fort George and Tete Jaune Cache on the upper Frazer river. Four railway camps and four engineers' camps on the Grand Trunk-Pacific railway were completely destroyed, and two unnamed towns which have sprung up on the railway line have been wiped out. Men from the railway construction camps have been engaged in fighting the fire.

Store-competition is the mother of bargains.

Mr. Mixsell came here when the association was organized and has been a faithful and efficient worker, meeting with splendid success in his efforts. He will continue in association work.

Date Muffins

A New Way of Using Dates

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

The value of dates as a food is hardly appreciated. They are wholesome, nutritious, and when used in K C Date Muffins, make a recipe that is appreciated by the entire family.

K C Date Muffins

One-third cup butter; ¼ cup sugar; 1 egg; ¾ cup milk; 2 cups flour; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; ½ teaspoonful salt; scant ½ pound dates.

Cream the butter, add the sugar and the egg, beaten light. Sift together three times, the flour, baking powder and salt; add these to the first mixture, alternately with the milk; beat thoroughly and add the dates, stoned and cut in pieces. To bake, have a slow oven until the muffins donble in bulk, then increase heat to bake and brown quickly. Muffins baked this way will be light, appetizing and more easily digested.

This is only one of the many appetizing recipes found in the K C Cook's Book.

The wonderful K C Cook's Book is substantially bound and printed in nine colors, contains ninety tested and easily-made recipes by Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, of the world famous Boston Cooking School Magazine.

You can secure a copy FREE by sending the colored certificate packed in 25-cent cans of K C Baking Powder to the JAQUES MFG CO., Chicago.

Be sure to write name and address plainly. 30

Woman's Realm

Members of the Woman's Council who met in regular monthly session this morning at the library club room voted to establish an executive board of the council, which shall consist of the president, the two vice presidents, the secretary and one member elected from the floor by the other members of the board. The present officers who will be members of this board are Mrs. J. L. Washburn, president; Mrs. W. H. Burris, first vice president; Mrs. E. W. Matter, second vice president, and Mrs. Julia Barnes, secretary.

The executive board will have the power to act for the council in cases where immediate decision is necessary, but all business that can be held for the regular monthly meetings of the larger body will be presented there as usual. The new body is simply to have a board authorized to act in case occasion arises in which decision of the council is necessary immediately.

The abolishment of the civic welfare committee of the council, which has been composed of the chairmen of the various committees, was also voted, as the work taken up there was only a repetition of work which came up again at the regular meetings.

Playground sindorsed.

Resolutions of the Playground association ,which will be submitted to the park board asking for equipment and supervision of playgrounds and the establishing of social centers were read and indorsed by the council this morning and they will be sent to the board of education this evening for their indorsement.

The resolutions follow:

"Inasmuch as the experience of other American cities has shown that unsupervised playgrounds are an annoyance in the neighborhood in which they are placed and cause the surrounding real estate to depreciate in value, and that the children receive little, if any, benefit from such playgrounds, and may receive much positive harm; and as the construction, equipment and conduct of playgrounds has grown into an art in the last two decades, and there are many universities and colleges now giving a course of training for playground positions.

"Be it resolved, That we respectfully request the park board:

"First—To employ a competent supervisor of playgrounds at a good salary to plan, construct, equip and supervise the playgrounds of Duluth.

"Second—To level, surface, equip fence and maintain at least three of the sites purchased as playgrounds this summer and the remainder of the sites as soon as possible.

"Third—That there be placed in each of the playgrounds a competent man to organize the play of the boys and a competent woman to organize the play of the girls.

"We would respectfully recommend also that some arrangement be made with the board of education and the board of public welfare whereby the playground workers might be employed in the school social centers during the school year, so that their service might be continuous and the social and recreational needs of the young people might be continuously met.

"Be it further resolved, That copies of the above resolutions be sent also to the board of public welfare, the Commercial club, the Greater Duluth club, the West End Commercial cub, the Teachers' association, and the Federated Labor council, and that they be asked to pass similar resolutions and forward them to the park board.

School Board Addressed.

"Be it resolved, That we respectfully request the board of public welfare to co-operate with the board of education and the board of park commissioners in securing a director of public recreation and in securing a system of playgrounds and social centers, operated all the year around, from public funds.

"Inasmuch as the board of education in more than a hundred cities of this country are now maintaining playgrounds for the children in the school yards during the summer time, and some fifty cities are maintaining social centers in connection with the schools and as further and social welfare of the young people is a fundamental concern of the board of education; be it therefore resolved, that we request the board of education to equip and operate as playgrounds such school yards in congested sections as are large enough to play and to operate social centers in schools where there is a demand for such activities, and that the board of education co-operate with the board of public park commissioners and the board of public welfare in securing a director of public recreation and play leader who may be employed in the playgrounds during the summer and in the afternoons of the school year and in the social centers during the evenings of the colder months.

Pictures Indorsed.

The council also indorsed heartily the pictures of the "Coming of Columbus," which are being shown at the Odeum theater, as most interesting and educational and of especial value. The members voted to pass their recommendation of these pictures and to give their hearty support to the theater during their presentation this week. The pictures were pronounced historically correct so far as they could be made so, by those of the council members who had seen them.

Social Center Work.

Mrs. E. W. Matter, chairman of the social center work, reported on the success of the undertaking of such work at the Salter school, where a most successful entertainment, a little play and some folk dancing last week closed the spring term. The work she believed would be taken up by the young people of the school alumni next fall.

Street Paving.

Mrs. O. L. Mather reported on the work done by the committee on streets and alleys in regard to the paving question. A petition has been prepared which will be sent to property owners on East Fourth street, which street is to be paved in the near future; another one has been prepared for the common council and the mayor, and still another will be sent to all the clubs of the city asking for cooperation in the matter. Reliable information has been secured from other cities where the paving question has been satisfactorily settled, and the facts in these cases will be presented as arguments for satisfactory paving in Duluth.

Anti-Spitting Signs.

The enforcement of the anti-spitting ordinance will be agitated and the committee will consider the ordering of printed signs, "Do Not Spit," with the amount of the fine also appearing on it.

The distribution of flowering plants and shrubs to the school children at a small cost and the giving of currant slips and lilac bushes to children at the Salter school were reported. The lilacs were planted on the school grounds and the children have planted the currant slips at their homes.

Garbage Question.

The garbage question was discussed and the women decided to keep the question of covered garbage wagons before the health department and assist in having the law requiring garbage men to drive covered wagons enforced.

The discussion of dancing in the public schools brought a sentiment strongly in favor of it as a means of working out the solution of the dance hall evil. Young people will dance, the women claimed, and "surely it is better for them to dance in the schools under wholesome influences than under vicious conditions elsewhere." The women voted for the appointment of a committee from the council to work with the school principals of the West end, the section of the city where the sentiment was strongest against the practice, to find out the true sentiment of all the people there.

Ward For Babies.

It was reported that a place where babies could be cared for was needed by the nurse of the Associated charities who had found several sick babies who need special care which they could not get in their own homes and the council voted to ask St. Mary's hospital for the use of a room which they were willing to donate there and Dr. Rowe has volunteered his services free. A nurse at the hospital will also aid in the work.

The confidence of the Greater Duluth club in the Woman's Council and its readiness to stand behind the Woman's Council in its work for the betterment of the city was expressed by one of the members. Other routine business was also taken up.

A social center conference has been called by the board of public welfare for Monday evening at the library clubroom at 8 o'clock to which the Council was requested to send a committee. The discussion of matters relative to social centers and what is now being done will take place. This meeting will also be open to the public.

CONVENTNON ENDS.

Bishop's Reception Closing Feature of Annual Gathering.

Two business meetings, a luncheon and a reception were the feature gatherings which comprised and made most pleasureable the annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of Duluth yesterday.

The business proceedings were held at Trinity pro-cathedral and so was the luncheon, which was served by the women of St. John's church of Lakeside and St. Andrew's church of Park Point. Bishop Morrison delivered the morning sermon. During the afternoon meeting, Miss Grace Lindley of New York and Miss Baker, who recently returned from the mission field of China, were the speakers. Miss Lindley's subject was "Opportunity" and Miss Baker told of her experiences in the Orient.

The reception was held at the home of Bishop and Mrs. Morrison, who were assisted by Mesdames Page, Morris, H. E. Parshall, A. H. Brocklehurst, Henry Taylor, Edward Ingalls, Neil Morrison and Fred Waldron and Miss Emily Lakin. A musical program was given by Misses Isabel Pearson and Margaret Craig and C. Knippenberg. The close of the program was much enjoyed. It consisted of hymns sung in Chippewa by Episcopal clergymen of that tribe. Rev. Fred Smith of Red Lake, Rev. Wilkins J. Smith of Rugby, Rev. Charles Wright of Cass Lke and Rev. E. C. Kan-o-Sed of Beaulieu. They were assisted by Rev. Johnston of the White Earth reservation and his daughter, Miss Johnston, who is the worker of the diocese at Red Lake.

At the convention the following officers were chosen for the ensuing year:

Mrs. J. D. Morrison, president; Mrs. John Colbroth, vice president at large; Mrs. C. T. Fitzsimmons, Mrs. F. W. Paine, Duluth deanery; Mrs. H. F. Parshall of Cass Lake, Mrs. W. H. Gemmell of Brainerd, Mississippi Valley deanery; Mrs. T. C. Hudson of Paynesville, Mrs. J. G. Ward of Fergus Falls, Red River Valley deanery; Mrs. A. H. Brocklehurst, corresponding secretary and treasurer; Mrs. E. J. Bardwell, secretary of the junior branch; Mrs. T. S. Wood, treasurer; Mrs. Henry Taylor, secretary of "Little Helpers;" Mrs. F. C. Berry, correspondent Church Periodical club; Mrs. W. E. A. Le Quesne, box custodian; Miss Lucy Warner of Little Falls, secretary of League of the Baptized.

FIRST CONCERT.

Spring Festival of Music Will Open at Lyceum Theater.

Tonight at 8:15 sharp the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra will begin a series of three grand concerts, under the direction of Emil Oberhoffer, at the Lyceum theater.

These three concerts, with the assistance of four eminent vocal soloists and three instrumental soloists, will make up the Spring Festival of Music.

This is the sixth annual festival given in Duluth and is also the sixth visit of this now famous orchestra. The orchestra closes with these concerts a tour of nine weeks, having commenced the tour on Easter Monday in Winnipeg. After a rest of three weeks, they will begin a month's engagement at Ravinia Park, Chicago, on July 1.

In last night's Herald, the program for tonight was given and attention is also called to the splendid matinee program for tomorrow afternoon, when Joseph Schenke, the celebrated tenor, will make his first appearance in Duluth. Mr. Schenke will sing the grand aria from Gounods "Queen of Sheba," "Lend Me Your Aid," a composition which only great tenors dare assume to sing.

Genevieve Wheat, the contralto, will sing an aria from Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" and the orchestra will be heard in the best kind of popular selections of the great masters. Dvorak's "Humoresque," orchestrated by Emil Oberhoffer, will be one of the features and this number alone will draw many music-lovers to the matinee. The children's matinee was held at 4 o'clock today, when the theater was packed from floor to ceiling by an enthusiastic crowd of young people. The program was adapted to please and instruct the young people and the Schumann pieces with the "Merry Farmer" and Traumerei" were enthusiastically received. The full program for tomorrow afternoon is as follows:

C. E. Play.

"Men, Maids and Matchmakers," a funny little three-act comedy will interest many this evening at the First Presbyterian church. Members of the Christian Endeavor society of that church are giving this little play for the purpose of raising funds to help defray the expenses of the Christian Endeavor state convention to be held here June 20 to 23, and they expect to make the entertainment a success.

Miss Agnes Mae Johnson has coached the young people in their parts.

School Banquet.

At artistically appointed tables, pretty with red streamers, red and white candles and red and white carnations, two hundred covers were laid last evening at the first annual banquet of the Almuni association of the C. C. Salter school. Members of the alumni were hosts to the members of this year's eighth grade grauating class, the faculty of the school and a few outside guests.

A deliciously prepared dinner prepared entirely by the girls in the domestic science classes at the school and served by ten girls of the seventh grade under the direction of Miss Frances Quilliard, the domestic sicence teacher was enjoyed by the guests. An interesting feature of the dinner was that the girls knew how much to prepare and just how much the banquet cost per plate.

Their menu included, fruit punch, creamed ham in trimble cases, macaroni with tomatoes and cheese, corn, buttered rolls, olives, pickles, jam, fruit, salad and wafers, foccee, ice cream with strawberries and cake.

After the dinner an interesting program was given, E. A. Mooney, principal of the school acting as toastmaster in a pleasing manner. Miss Susan House, the eighth grade teacher presented the members of the graduating class to the alumni and Abe Miller gave the address of welcome. Miss Allace Cowen as a member of the graduating class gave a pretty little response and Harold Bergquist gave the toast to the girls of the alumni. Miss Martha Burrell toasted the boys of the alumni and Miss Esther Voss gave the toast to the Salter school.

Andrew Nelson, a member of the board of education, gave an inspiring talk to the young people on "What the Board of Education Expects from the Alumni" and Prof. Magnusson of the University of Wisconsin, who was also a guest of honor, gave an interesting talk.

A piano duet by Miss Wilkie and Miss Wilbur, and a vocal solo by Miss Kenney, all of the faculty, were enjoyed as were also the dialect readings by Mrs. Frank E. Parker.

CONCERT JUNE 11.

Benefit Program at Y. W. C. A. for Miss Berg.

The benefit concert by local musicians for Miss Frances Berg, one of Duluth's most talented young pianistes, will be given next Tuesday evening, June 11, at the Y. W. C. A. assembly hall. The program being arranged promises to attract a large crowd of music lovers as the numbers are of the best and the artists the most popular in the city.

Card Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sirn of 615 East Fifth street entertained at cards last evening in honor of the hostess's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson of Cloquet. The favors were won by Mr. and Mrs. Wallgren. The guests were:

Messrs. and Mesdames—
A. Plering, A. Blumquist,
Wallgren, W. Bird.
Misses
Margaret Wall- Adena Anderson, gren.

Boat Club in Use.

Members of the Duluth Boat club have fallen back into the use of the club again quite naturally and boating parties and luncheon and dinner parties at the main house are being held daily. Many are planning on small informal parties tomorrow before the regular weekly dances. Picnic parties are enjoying the use of the Oatka branch and several are planned for tomorrow preceding the weekly dance there.

Class Continued.

The Missionary Extension class of the Duluth Episcopal diocese, which has been conducted during the past week by Mrs. Wells and Miss Grace Lindley, is continuing through today and will close tomorrow morning with instructions on methods of teaching, the talk to be delivered by Miss Grace Lindley. This will take place at noon tomorrow.

Bundle Shower.

Miss Rose Coll gave a bundle shower last evening at her home, 128 West Fourth street in honor of Miss Beckie Cohen ,formerly of Duluth, now of Chicago, who is to be married on July 28, to David Glickman of that city. Miss Cohen came to Duluth a short time ago to visit her many friends here.

The house was prettily decorated for the occasion and cards and music were the main features of the evening. Covers were laid for twenty-four. A number of violin selections were rendered by Messrs. M. F. Lavick and M. Litman. Miss Cohen received many beautiful gifts from her friends, who attended the shower.

For S. S. Teachers.

Mrs. John Wheeler entertained the teachers and officers of the Hazelwood Sunday school at an informal party last evening at her home.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McLean of this city are visitors in New York registered at the Hotel Woodstock.

ART EXHIBIT ATTRACTS BIG CROWD ON OPENING NIGHT

The second day of the big ten-days' free art exhibit at the courthouse opened under most auspicious circumstances this morning and a large number of people took advantage of an opportunity to look upon the fine collection of paintings, sculpture work handicraft.

Last evening, the opening address was given by Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the University of Minnesota. Dr. Vincent's talk was an excellent one and was listened to by an audience which packed the grand jury room and the corridor on the third floor.

"The basis of all art," declared the speaker "is that uncertain little yearning within us for something more beautiful than what we already see." His lecture was interspersed with humorous remarks. His topic was the history of American art and architecture.

The hostesses in charge at the courthouse today are:

Mrs. Roger Powell, Mrs. S. R. Holden, Mrs. Fred Engels, Mrs. Theron Hawkes, Mrs. N. F. Hugo, Mrs. D. D. Murray, Mrs. Julia Barnes, Mrs. Herbert Warren, Mrs. M. R. Baldwin, Mrs. H. H. Myers, Mrs. M. THE EVENING STORY

FOR TWO LIVES

By George Hart.

After turning up the collar of his reefer, Albert Knowles pulled on his thick dog-skin gloves, and took down the old red-globed railroad lantern from the nail over the sink. Then he locked the bungalow door, and dropped the jack-knife key into his pocket.

On the piazza stood four wooden-stoppered milk cans, each holding about two gallons of shelled clams. Knowles took a can in each hand. Ted Raikes did the same. They stepped off the creaking boards, and started down towards the beached wreck that served campers as a wharf.

The January wind cut fiercely, and brought tears to the boys' eyes.

"Tel," said Knowles, "we'll have a stiff pull to make Deepings, but we've got to try it tonight, for there's likely to be a worst gale in the morning.

"We'll slide across all right," returned Ted confidently.

The punt was soon afloat, with the cans lashed securely. Tel sat in the stern holding the lantern.

Knowles dropped the oars between the thole pins, and headed the skiff towards the flaming west.

Stroke by stroke the punt worked her way out into the race, and soon was half across. Harder and harder blew the wind. The seas were running higher. The tail of the ebb, flowing swiftly southward, was setting the punt well down the race.

Suddenly the bait dish floated from the bow. More water was coming aboard than was safe. It would not do to risk swamping. Knowles cast a quick glance over his shoulder at Deepings, distant a half-mile still.

But the battle was against them. They decided to let the boat drift back to shore. Turning her was too risky.

The bow tossed high in the air; the stern was weighed low. Suddenly a high wave rolled along the gunwales, and the punt backed under it, filling instantly.

Ted was submerged to the waist. He stamped up, and instinctively sprang over the side. The lantern had been extinguished and all was dark.

Ted's spring tipped the skiff down, and almost before Knowles could realize what had happened, the water was rising around him. He gave one last push against the oars, determined to gain every inch towards the shore that he could. Then he was spilled out.

Catching the gunwale, he raised himself, and looked for Ted. A black head came up close by, and in a moment its owner was also clinging to the cans.

To get aboard was out of the question; but one resort remained: they must hold to the gunwale, and swim the punt ashore.

Each locked his arms around a thwart, and leaned hard on the gunwale to force it down. The floor of the punt rolled up, until it was almost perpendicular, forcing a wall that cut off their view of the island. The cans of clams, held by the cod line, sagging down the thwart, helping to hold the skiff on her side.

"Now, kick off with every ounce you've got!" exhorted Knowles; and they struck for shore.

The island was small, and although the gale was blowing them straight toward it the strong ebb sucked them diagonally down the race. If they missed the last sand pit, there was no other land for miles.

The tide ran powerfully, and they were growing weary, Ted especially. Although they held the boat high to catch as much of the wind as possible, still the strong current set them steadily to the south.

At last Ted stopped. "I can't swim any longer," he groaned.

"Just a little more," Ted. Don't give up now."

"It's no use."

Knowles dropped his feet a moment to rest. They hung straight down; the ebb no longer pulled at them. In a flash he understood.

"Ted! Ted!" he cried. "Keep it up! The tide is turning! We'll be drifting back in less than five minutes!"

Ted mumbled indistinctively; then one of his hands dropped off the stern; the other quickly followed. In a second Knowles' left arm was round his mate. Holding fast to the boat with his right hand, he shook Ted, shouted in his ear, tried every means to rouse him. It was useless. Ted hung a dead weight on his arm.

All the energy in Knowles numb body responded to his summons. Holding Ted's head and shoulders up on the stern, he braced himself to fight for two lives.

Life and death hung evenly in the balance for the next few minutes.

The flood increased in strength and threatened to sweep the skiff by the island. Knowles kicked feebly, striving for the row of scattered ice cakes.

The point was near now. Again he dropped his feet; his toes touched bottom. He had won!

"Ground, Ted, ground!" But Ted did not stir at his frenzied shout.

Not daring to abandon the support of the punt, Knowles painfully and slowly walked her ashore. When she grounded, he dragged Ted out on the low gravel.

All Knowles' body from crown to toe cried out to lie down and rest. He put the temptation back. Once down, he knew he could never rise and they would both freeze to death. By the time he gained the shaky piazza both he and Ted were sheeted in ice.

With great difficulty he managed to insert the jack-knife key in the lock. He dragged Ted in, and closed the door. The stove was still warm. He emptied the can of matches on it; two or three caught fire, and presently he had the lamp lighted. Soon a roaring blaze was thawing them back to life.

All night he alternately drowsed and plied fuel into the red hot stove, until the numbing frost was driven out of their bodies. All night the wind blew, but at day break it died down, and a skim of ice began to form along the shore. Before the ice became too thick, they put out and rowed across to Deepings.

Grey's customers ate clams that noon; but they never knew how close they came to having to eat meat.

O, Joy! "Ann" Is Coming!

"Ann" is coming next week.

REMAIN TO SEE DULUTH

Convention Delegates Visiting Friends and Looking Around City.

Senator Julius Coller of Shakopee Is Prominent Legislator.

Many of the Democrats who attended the convention here yesterday remained over today and are enjoying one of the most beautiful days of the summer this far. The weather man was so kind yesterday that the delegates were charmed with Duluth and its climate.

Among those who remained over today are Senator Julius Coller of Shakopee and Former Senator William Gausewitz of Owatonna. Both have many friends in Duluth and they did not have time to see them all while the convention was on.

Senator Coller is one of the most prominent Democrats in the state. He was first elected to the senate in 1898 and has been elected successively since, now serving his fourth term. Although a member of the minority in the senate, he has great influence and his counsel is often sought by his Republican colleagues. Senator Coller has many friends in Duluth and he has repeatedly shown his friendship for Duluth and the whole northern part of the state by throwing his support to meritorious measures affecting this section and opposing attempted injustice.

Senator Coller is delighted with Duluth. He sees for the city and the surrounding district a great future through agricultural and industrial development. He wanted to see more of the county, as well as to visit with friends, and he will remain over until tomorrow.

Col. McIntyre, living north of Crookston, is one of the delegates to the Democratic convention who has remained over. At the Spalding today the colonel stated that he had had the time of his life during his stay here and that he believed Duluth is the banner city of the state. Col. McIntyre is one of the old residents of that section of the state.

GOPHER OUT OF SHIPYARD

More Commodious Quarters Provided for Naval Militia Boys.

The remodeled U. S. S. Gopher came out of Grignon's shipyard yesterday and is ready for the season of training of the citizen sailors of the Minnesota Naval militia. The first short cruise of the year will be taken a week from tomorrow to the Apostle islands.

Extensive changes have been made in the cabin and deck arrangements of the ship. Providing more room for the men and improving the ventilation of the berth decks were the principal objects of the improvements, and the boys now have quarters as good as are found on any first class battleship.

The boat deck has been extended forward fifty feet, giving more room for carrying small boats on the deck, as well as more commodious quarters for the men. Some of the men formerly slept in the forecastle, but now hammocks will be swung for all men. The mess will also be moved to the upper deck.

An electric fan system has been installed for the ventilation of the berth decks and objections to ventilation, which were formerly serious, have been eliminated. The boys will have more room for lounging and the whole service has been improved.

The ice box capacity of the ship has been tripled, and more fresh food may be carried, so the mess will be improved. The Gopher has now been practically rebuilt and the ship is much better than when it came from the shipyards first.

Inventory of Property of A. M. Miller, Jr., Filed in Probate Court.

The estate of the late Athol Morton Miller, whose death in this city occurred about three months ago, has been appraised at $696,836.61, according to an inventory which was filed yesterday with the clerk of the probate court.

The bulk of the property consisted of mining stocks, etc., valued at $654,-586.61. The real estate owned by the late Mr. Miller is valued at $42,250. The estate will revert to his widow and child.

GUARDIAN APPOINTED FOR FORMER POLICEMAN.

Lieut. Herman A. Fritz of the police department has been appointed by Judge Gilpin of the probate court as special guardian for William O'Neill, aged 52, a retired policeman, who recently was committed to the hospital for the insane at Fergus Falls.

O'Neill is said to have a brother and sister somewhere in the West and an effort is now being made to find them. He has a little property consisting of scattered real estate and mining stocks and a small bank account. It is probable that it would not total more than $2,000.

TIME, THE ESSENCE

If you have kidney trouble the serious question is not the kind, but how long you have had it. It is declared incurable after the sixth month no matter whether a test shows albumen (Bright's) or not. Some of the most fatal case do not show albumen. If the kidney trouble is of over six months standing, there is only one preparation that can be taken with any degree of confidence, only one that is getting recoveries in chronic cases and that is Fulton's Renal Compound.

The Compounders (address on the bottle) desire to hear from and advise with every patient not getting results.

Chic Tub Duds for the Fashionable

For warm weather wear, linens rank above other fabrics because they look cool—are cool—and are so shapely. We have chosen liberally from the best models brought out in New York this season. And we have made the prices so attractive you'll hardly feel like having them made at home.

The illustration shows a clever coat we are selling at $8.50 and a smart linen suit we are selling at $12.50.

Linen Suits of the More Unusual Sorts

Here are sensible styles in suits of heavy Ramie, Russian, Crash, Linens and other similar fabrics. Most of them are all linen—those which are not, are of known worth to us.

Most of the jackets are the popular 28-inch length with easy French fitted lines—Some of them have detachable collar and cuffs of black satin.

There are also Norfolk models in linen or Bedford cords. Skirts are straight panel effects with set-in kick pleats.

Prices range $7.50, $8.50, $10.00 and $12.50.

Sizes range from 16 to 44.

The Long Linen Coats for Misses and Women

Those smart straight lines in full 54 and 56-inch models are here with little style touches that distinguish them from the ordinary. Some of them have the new English roll collar which fastens closely under the chin, or which can be worn in two other distinct styles. Of course they are particularly desirable for automobiling and traveling.

Other models have plain tailored collar, revers and cuffs.

Prices range $6.50, $7.50, $8.50, $10.00, $12.50, $15.00 and $18.50.

They are variously made of heavy Ramie, Russian or Crash Linens in pearl white or natural color.

The garment pictured alongside is priced at only $8.50.

Wash Dresses for Afternoon

You may prefer empire waist or natural waist lines and yet have ample chosing from delicious little dresses of linens, mulls, dimities, lawns, percales, ginghams, marquisettes, all-over embroidery, French batistes and voiles. There are pinks, blues, lavenders, tans, browns, navies, grays and black and white effects. Some have fancy tucked yokes and novelty cut skirts. Others have tailored coat models.

All sizes are here for the slight—and the stout—as well as women of average proportions.

Prices range $5.00, $6.50, $7.50, $8.50, $10.00, $12.50 and up by easy stages to $28.50.

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

BRUCE'S COLUMN

COMMENT AND DIVERS DISCUSSION OF THE MERRY WORLD OF SPORT.

RIGHT now we are beginning to hear more about the fight that is to be held at Las Vegas on the Fourth of July. While this fight has been ridiculed by the press and people since it was even remotely suggested, the fact remains trite and true that there was never a world's heavyweight championship fight that did not excite some interest. There is nothing approaching the interest in the coming battle that was manifest long before the day of the Jeffries-Johnson fight drew near—but, nevertheless, there is some, and as such the fight will be discussed on the corners and up and down the great white sporting way.

Some Writers have come forth with the convincing opinion that it is going to be a walkaway for Lil Artha. There is nothing like this for this column. Two years ago this column came forth and staked being made a thing to laugh at, by stating that Johnson would surely beat Jeffries if the fight was on the square. The prediction was right.

If Johnson is anywhere near the man he was the hot afternoon he taunted Jeff at Reno, he would make a monkey of the man who is to oppose him on the next independence day. But right here it is that the problematical and wholly whimsical "if" looms large. Two long years and champagne and other things may have made a vast difference in Artha.

But that is not the point, exactly. Jack Curley is one of the wisest guys who ever dabbled in the sporting game, and it may be that he has an ace in the hole. Johnson is getting old and he is likewise getting tired of the fighting game. He hates to train and is quite daft over pleasure. He might take the chance to get his and quit.

That is the way it looks to us. Moreover, the guy who comes boldly out and pipes this outcome off, is taking a chance of being made awfully foolish. Flynn is tough and will fight until the birdies carrol; and if Johnson is heavy-limbed and slow and lacks the endurance that characterized the earlier years in the ring, there may be one of the greatest surprises that the American ring has ever encountered. There may be, anyway.

Both Johnson and Flynn are past the age where the fighter generally gets better. If Tom Sharkey were in his prime at this very time and were matched to fight Artha Johnson, yours truly would pick the marine as the man to wring the title from the dusky hands of the present champion.

There is not a white fighter in the game today of the tough and rugged caliber of the sailor of the days of Jeffries and Fitzsimmons, for if there were you may be mightily sure that the followers of the fight game would be taking a great interest in the coming contest.

Johnson, some say, is 37 years of age. This statement may be true—and it may not. But the fact remains that the black has led a sort of nomad life, drinking all the way from Galveston, with its saloons where the black throat can be quenched, to the fashionable cafes of Paris, where money opens the way to the white and the black. If Lil' Artha runs true to precedent he is about due for a beating. The public would go begging on this, were Flynn more highly thought of.

Before the present season Flynn has been held as the veriest tyro in the fighting game—that is, you understand, in comparison with men like Fitzsimmons, Corbett, Jeffries and Johnson. He has been beaten by Kaufmann and Langford, and the defeat administered by the stubby black was so overwhelming and decisive as to leave no doubt of the superiority of Langford. Where then has Flynn earned the right to be taken seriously?

During the past year Flynn has either improved or the men he has been opposed to are about the worst lot of heavyweights that the American ring has ever produced. Maybe Kaufmann has gone back; but in the Kansas City fight with the California giant Flynn earned about the only right he has to be taken at all seriously by the fight public.

But then, and several more thens and ifs and other qualifiers that hit in the role of .300—George Bernard Shaw has said it all, when he merely remarked that "you never can tell." There are lots of things that can happen, and this Jack Curley is astute enough to know a great deal about Johnson, something perhaps that the colored man is not aware of.

DOC WILLIAMS, one of the leading citizens of the dark society, and the man who took excellent care of the feet of Johnson before the fight at Reno, may be called to the region of Las Vegas to massage and prevent from swelling the generous tribles of the dark champion.

The genial "doc" conducts a shoe shining emporium in our midst, and claims the distinction of being the only bootblack in the world who has a manager. He also says that he was the man who made it possible for Johnson to defeat Jeffries.

FRANK McINERNY, a good booster, has taken to knocking the baseball situation at St. Paul. That is one of the rare and sweet beauties of being a booster—when you start to knock, people begin to sit up and take notice. Thus has virtue, she of the beautiful open countenance, her own reward. If old Uncle Ritchie were to start to knock anything, the dear and afflicted readers of his moribund page would merely wonder whether the old man had the dyspepsia a little worse than usual.

THE question as to whether Cincinnati is going to win the pennant, one quite bothersome in the early season, is being answered more thoroughly every day. Those who strung a pre-season bet on the Giants are already planning on the color and general texture of their fall suits. She is, indeed, a strange and varied colored life—and she is the only one we have—or the only one we are quite sure of.

BIG FIELD MEET AT HARVARD STADIUM

Eastern Members for Olympic Team to Be Decided Upon.

Boston, Mass., June 7.—Amateur athletes of renown, from college, club and school in all parts of the East headed today toward the Harvard stadium, where will be determined tomorrow who shall be the Eastern members of the American Olympic team of 1912.

Of the 188 athletes entered for the qualification games, scores, had arrived in this city before noon today. With them came a small gathering of amateur sport followers, drawn by the prospect of witnessing what is expected to be the greatest track and field meeting ever held in the United States.

This is true, too, despite the fact that several of the probable leading Eastern members of the American team will be missing. John Paul Jones, the Cornell miler, and Putnam, the quarter-miler of the same college; Reidpath, the Syracuse quarter-miler; Sam Lawrence, the Boston A. A. high jumper, and several other stars will be unable to compete either through pending examinations at college or temporary lack of condition.

P. R. Withington, the Harvard champion, who broke the intercollegiate two-mile record on Saturday, will not compete tomorrow, nor will he go to Sweden.

Persons who have followed closely the athletic performances in this country during the past year look for new records tomorrow in at least half a dozen events.

Two records each may be made in all the running events, it having been arranged to time the runners at both the distance standard in this country, those measured by yards, and the metric distances called for in the Olympic program. So great is the number of entries in these events that two sets of timers will be provided.

In the jumps, the pole vault and the weight events, as well as in the several dashes and distance runs, experts look for notable performances.

WHITE HOSE ARE VICTORS

Duluth Takes Heavy Hitting Game From Superior 10 to 7.

O'Brien Uses Four Pitchers to Stop the Angered Enemy.

Duluth journeyed to the land of the enemy yesterday and took a baseball game from Superior by the score of 10 to 7. The exhibition of the national pastime was somewhat uncertain as to outcome to the end. But finally the superior qualities of wood work of the local crew had their way and another game was chalked up for the Wreckers.

During the afternoon the Orator used four pitchers. Hoffman started, giving way to Foss, the southpaw in turn being succeeded by Worwan, with Johnson finally winding up in the box. The exhibition was one of hard hitting by the Sox and some careless playing by the small town bunch.

Three runs were scored in the second round. Leber doubled and was scored by Sours' single and the aid of a passed ball. O'Brien doubled and Sours scored on Popham's sacrifice. Hoffman singled to left and the Orator cantered home with the third run of the inning.

The Red Sox crew got two in the sixth by free clouting, and then added a trio of runs in the seventh by getting to Hoffman for a base on balls. With two bad ones on Olson, Hoff was yanked and Foss took the mound. Olson was passed and the distress signal was waved in the direction of Worman. Briggs was passed and the bags were filled. Anderson brought in the first run on a sacrifice fly. Ford was passed and the bases were again loaded. Johnson took up the burden of pitching and promptly hit Taylor, though he may have deserved it, the smite forcing another run across the pan. Briggs scored the final run of the exciting inning while a man was being retired at first.

McGraw doubled in the seventh and went on to third when Meniece hit a small one that no one got under. McGraw scored on Leber's hit, Meniece was thrown out at the plate and after some peculiar fielding that worked Leber around to third, he scored on Popham's sacrifice fly.

Just to cinch things and place the game past all point of uncertainty, the Sox grabbed five runs in the final inning. With one down Sours hit to left and took second when the offering was fuzzled. O'Brien hit to center and Sours went to third, the Orator going to second on the attempt to head off the shortstop. Popham was safe on an infield fumble and Erickson doubled, scoring Sours and O'Brien. Johnson doubled to center and Popham and Erickson came across. Johnson went to third when Blum hit safely to right and came home on an infield out.

Briggs was passed in the ninth, and with the next man down Ford tripled and the first run of the round came over. O'Brien made a great play on Taylor's offering, but Roy hit to center and the final run of the game was scored.

The two teams will battle here this afternoon.

DAKOTAS ARE STILL WINNING

Grand Forks Wins Afternoon Game and Ties Evening Contest.

Winnipeg, Man., June 7.—The Flickertails won the afternoon game of yesterday by the score of 7 to 2 and tied up the evening game, both teams getting two runs. The afternoon game was lost by a wild pitch which permitted three runs to come across the plate. The evening contest developed into a pitchers' battle and was one of the best contests seen here the present season.

WHITE SOX TRAVELING AT A VERY RAPID GAIT

Right at the present time the White Sox are traveling better than any Duluth team since the days of the pennant winning aggregation of the first season of the Minny league. It is generally believed that the fans of the city appreciate the playing of the Sox, but some material expression of this appreciation in the form of increased attendance would be welcomed by the men who have their chips in the baseball pot.

President H. A. Blume of the See-Eye league and President J. A. McCuen of the local club are endeavoring to give the fans of this city the best baseball possible. They are endeavoring to have competent umpires, to have the games shortened, to have all needless wrangling eliminated, to utterly abolish umpire baiting and to show the baseball lovers of the community that the game is being run on a thoroughly businesslike basis.

The new management has secured a long lease on the present park, and if the fans of Duluth show that they are with the new management in supporting baseball, it is said that material improvements and additions will be made at Athletic park. The new auto road has already been put in for the convenience of the owners of the buzz wagons, and this is but the beginning of alterations that will give the locals fans the best the management feels that it can afford.

Dr. McCuen is in baseball for the love of the game. He is satisfied to break even. It is the aim of the head of the club to give the fans the best baseball that can be secured for the salary fixed by the league and right at the present time the team is giving the fans some of the best exhibitions of the national game that they have been provided with since the days of the former great aggregation.

ST. LOUIS LOSES GAME TO PHILADELPHIA.

St. Louis, June 7.—By inconsistent fielding the locals enabled Philadelphia to get three runs in the second inning and superior baseball helped the visitors to run up a total of seven runs, while the locals were gathering two. The score: R. H. E.

SAINTS MAKE AN EVEN BREAK ON THE SERIES.

Columbus, Ohio, June 7.—St. Paul took yesterday's game and an even break on the series through wildness of Ryan and Bruck, three errors and Butler's pair of timely doubles. Gardner was erratic and was removed, Decanniere and Thomas not permitting Columbus to score, though the bases were filled once on the former with none out. Score: R. H. E.

MANY ATHLETES WILL BE TRIED

Chicago, June 7.—Over 100 athletes, the best of Central West athletes, will compete in the Olympic trials at Northwestern field on Saturday in a meeting which should result in keen competition, in which records should be equaled or approached in every event.

The official list of entries was announced last night by E. C. Brown, chairman of the Olympic committee in the Central West. The nominations include the best performers in this section, and with such stars as Davenport, Lindberg, Irons, Nickolson, Murphy, Coyle, Porter and others competing for the honor of representing America in the Olympic games at Stockholm, nothing but fiercely fought contests can result.

Chairman Brown of the Chicago finance committee yesterday was notified by the treasurer of the South Shore Country club that the members had raised a subscription of $375. In addition to this other members of the club have made personal contributions which will bring the entire amount donated by the South side club to $1,000, the largest amount donated by any country club in the country to the fund.

Mr. Brown is confident he will be able to raise $30,000 from the Central West, which is one-third of the amount necessary to send the team abroad.

The list of officials also was announced yesterday and includes some of the most prominent men in the city.

McFARLAND MAY MEET PAL BROWN

Reports from Virginia state that Pal Brown may fight Packey McFarland. If they permit the Hibbingite to go against the crafty McFarland, the most brilliant boxer of the age, the iron ore kid is due for a beautiful trimming. This is not stated in a knocking sense, but merely to convey the meaning that Brown has no business at the present time in the ring with Packey.

Brown has been one of the worst managed fighters who ever started up the long and steep grade to the pugilistic heights. His future, that looked so bright two years ago, is rapidly slipping from the youngster. The idea of matching Brown with McFarland is right in line with the way the boy has been handled since he first began to attract attention around the northern part of the state.

The story from the range also states that Pal has some fights with Eastern boys, and will leave for the East within the next month.

LEAGUE STILL LIVES.

The United States Organization Finds New Territory.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 7.—Capt. Marshall Henderson is the new president of the United States league. His election followed a meeting lasting eleven hours, at which the New York and Washington teams were dropped from the league. The franchise will probably go to St. Louis and Indianapolis, but for the present the league will continue with but six teams.

William A. Wittman, who was elected president when the league was organized, was not present. As there are four different Western cities after the two franchises, President Henderson will select the cities that look the best to him.

Representatives of business men of Reading today visited Capt. Henderson with assurances that a company would organize immediately to continue the club in Reading. Like representatives of Richmond business men are to be here tomorrow to give similar assurances.

The magnates decided that the league will be composed of six clubs for the next week, each of which must post a forfeit that it will finish the season. Nothing will be done toward filling the vacancies in the league until the affairs of the Richmond and Reading clubs are settled.

DELAFIELD TO ROW.

Wisconsin Crew to Race Local Eight at Carnival.

Definite arrangements have been made to bring the Delafield, Wis., eight here for a race with the local crew. The event will be held during the carnival in this city and is expected to be one of the features of the water exhibition.

While not a great deal is known of the Delafield crew, the officials of the Wisconsin school are authority for the statement that the eight is one of the best among the smaller schools of the country. Coach Ten Eyck is of the opinion that the Badgers will give his boys a stiff argument.

Numerous shifts are being made in the Duluth eight. As yet Ten Eyck has failed to find the combination that suits him. Most of the men out have a chance for the boat and the chance is proving a stimulus that is getting the hardest kind of work from the men.

HELP! MURDER! FIRE! KAUFMANN BACK AGAIN.

New York, June 7.—Albert Kaufmann, who was looked upon for a time as the most hopeful "white hope," is attempting the rejuvenating stunt. 'Tis so, friend reader, although you may have thought that Kaufmann was a dead issue in the fight game after his knockout by Al Palzer. Kaufmann has made his first move to regain the prestige he once enjoyed. He has selected Tom Jones, manager of Lightweight Champion Ad Wolgast, to pilot him to the crest of the heavyweight wave.

Kaufmann believes that with Jones to handle him, he will make a more determined bid for the heavyweight title than he did when guided by others less familiar with the intricacies of the fight game.

Jones intends to guide Kaufmann back into the spotlight of publicity by securing matches for big All with mediocre heavyweights on the coast. The "coming back" process will be tedious, but Jones says that it is the only way he can hope to push Kaufmann to the top.

Baseball Deals.

Louisville, Ky., June 7.—Pitcher Jack Rowan, purchased the first of the season from the Chicago Nationals, was released by the Louisville association team to the Denver team of the Western league. The deal recently announced for the sale of Lynn Bell by Louisville to the Hartford team in the Connecticut league, has been declared off and Bell will continue to wear a Louisville uniform. Catcher Ed Spencer and Pitcher Charles Snyder were indefinitely suspended for being out of condition.

Amateur Rider Killed.

Salt Lake City, June 7.—Henry Potter, an amateur motorcycle rider, was thrown from his machine in a three-mile race at the motordrome here last night and killed. Potter was riding near the top of the track when a pedal struck the bank, causing the machine to collide with a light pole, throwing the rider into the arena. He was traveling at the rate of 65 miles an hour.

WIRELESS ACROSS OCEAN.

From New Jersey to London Is Plan of Marconi.

New York, June 7.—Twin wireless stations, to communicate direct with London, will be built along the New Jersey coast within a year, according to an announcement by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph company of America.

The first station, the announcement states, will be erected near Belmar, N. J. The second station will be erected at Toms river or Barnegat and will be tuned to a key different from the first, so that messages to either station may be received and sent simultaneously without interference. The distance is 2,100 miles and the estimated cost of the plants will be $750,000 each.

The announcement also states that options have been obtained upon similar sites at San Francisco and Honolulu, and that it is planned to construct a plant in the Philippine islands which will communicate direct with the one at Honolulu. The company would be enabled to send messages from London to the Philippines by way of the United States, relaying the messages by land wireless from the Jersey coast to San Francisco.

STANDARD TRAINING FOR NURSES FAVORED.

Chicago, June 7.—Standardization of the profession of nursing so that only those who have had ample training would be permitted to bear the title of nurse was advocated at the convention of the American Nurses' association.

S.S.S. CURES BLOOD POISON

When the blood becomes infected with the virus of Contagious Blood Poison, the symptoms are soon manifested. The mouth and throat ulcerate, copper-colored spots appear, a red rash breaks out, the hair begins to come out, and usually sores and ulcers show themselves on different parts of the body. At the first sign of the disease S. S. S. should be taken, for the trouble is too powerful and dangerous to trifle with. If allowed to run on the tendency is to work down and attack the bones and nerves, and sometimes it makes a complete physical wreck of the sufferer. The disease can make no such headway if S. S. S. is commenced and used according to directions; its progress can be stopped, the poison removed, and health preserved. S. S. S. goes into the blood and removes the insidious virus, cleanses the circulation and makes a complete and permanent cure by driving out the cause. S. S. S. quickly takes effect on the blood, and gradually the symptoms disappear, the health is improved, the skin cleared of all spots, sores and blemishes, and when S. S. S. has thoroughly purified the circulation no trace of the disease is left. S. S. S., a purely vegetable remedy, cures Contagious Blood Poison because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers, tested and proven for more than forty years. Home treatment book and any medical advice free to all who write.

PUSHING WORK ON FEDERAL BUILDING

New Home of Postoffice in Range City Will Be Fine Affair.

Virginia, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work on the new Virginia federal building is underway and will continue without interruption until the building is ready, about the end of the year. The site is 70x80 feet and the building proper will be approximately 48x76.

The style of architecture is colonial. The front and main entrance will be on Maple street. There will be a portico with six columns. The portico floor, also the lobby floor inside will be of terrazzo. Five steps will lead up from Maple street to the level of the main floor. There will also be an entrance from Wyoming avenue. The Maple street entrance will have a revolving door.

The building will be of red brick with limestone trimmings. The steps both on the Maple street side and the Wyoming avenue side will be of granite. The lobby will be spacious, 54x12 feet.

Will be Two Stories.

There will be two stories, the main floor having very high ceilings and the basement will be fully finished and utilized for the heating system, storage, etc. One basement feature will be a room in which the employes may congregate and near which will be lavatories and shower baths.

The large work room of the postoffice will be in the center of the building back of the windows and boxes. The room for the postmaster is at the northwest corner of the building. The work room has a ceiling 18 feet high and the ceiling of the lobby is to be 16 feet high.

For the convenience of the public the lobby will have two or more metal desks with glass tops for writing purposes.

The cost of the building will be approximately $60,000. The contractors are the Bailey-Marsh company of Minneapolis. J. H. Anderson is here in charge of construction work for the contractors, and J. C. Johnson is in charge as the representative of the government.

CHISHOLM SCHOOL WORK ABOUT ENDED

Closing Exercises Friday Evening Will End Doings in Village Schools.

Chisholm, June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—This evening will see the closing of the school exercises and likewise the closing of the schools for this school year.

Sunday evening last Rev. Ralph C. Jones preached the baccalaurate sermon to a large audience.

Monday evening the class play "The Elopement of Ellen" was splendidly rendered to a very enthusiastic audience, each participant receiving a share of the applause of the listeners.

The play, a farce comedy in three acts laid in a suburb of New York, was well reproduced, Richard Ford was impersonated by Joseph Cumming, Milly by Jean O'Neil, Robert Shepard by John Hirstio, Max Ten Eych by Walter Crellin, Dorothy March by Vernice Govett, June Haverhill by Winifred Reek and John Rumse by Andrew Hudy. The small admittance was used to purchase a memorial for the class.

Eighth Grade Exercises.

Wednesday evening the eighth grade exercises were held and were well attended. The high school auditorium was filled and the audience showed that they were very appreciative of the different programs which held the entire audience until the last number was finished. The entire program was along the lines of the customs and habits of the Indians and included in the program Indian drills, dances, songs, tracing of life of Hiawatha from childhood to youth, youth to the wooing of Hiawatha, Hiawatha's home life, etc., and various other Indian home life scenes were pictured. The arrow makers' home was demonstrated, the ghost dance given, a wedding feast and bow and arrow drill were among the features and were so splendidly done that the audience marveled at the vivid conception the classes showed. Many Indian songs were sung throughout the program and important Indian characters such as Nokomis, Minnehaha and others. The sun dance was a particular feature as was also the warriors' prayer.

Those Getting Diplomas.

The president of the school board, A. Y. Peterson, presented the diplomas to Ella Anderson, Ida Anderson, Louis Barnaby, Ruby Craig, Eva Dumont, Leonora Cummings, George Drew, Grace Gandsey, Vera Gould, Joseph Gorman, Wilbur Hayes, Gwen Highbee, Leta Highbee, Sylvia Hirstio, Ida Hoiland, Freda Hodge, Emma Johnson, Bert Ladin, Winnifred Lewis, Harry Mattice, Olive Mehtala, Irma Mitchell, Pearl Mitchell, William Nisula, Edward Oman, Albert Papin, Mary Pesavento, Andrew Sinko, Beatrice Soderquist, Andrew Talus, Kenneth Thompson, Gladys Venberg and Marshall Winder.

Class Graduation Exercises.

This evening's program will include the finals and begin by a "Morning Invitation," Veazle, by the High school chorus. Then will follow the "Invocation," by Rev. Ralph C. Jones; "Aerial Navigation," by William Rahja; "The Reaping Parks," by the Boys' Glee club; "Modern Tendencies in American Literature," Agnes Alguire; "Serenade," Schubert, Girls' Glee club; commencement address; presentation of diplomas, by president of the board, Hon. A. Y. Peterson; "The Sextet From Lucia," High school chorus; benediction, by Esther J. E. Scheffrer.

The senior essays will be: "Modern Tendencies in American Literature," Agnes W. Alguire; "Universal Suffrage," Sidney John Hirstio; "Benjamin Franklin a Practical Citizen," Jean Eunice O'Neil; "Aerial Navigation," John William Rahja.

Rip Out Your Dress Shields—Fire 'Em Quick!

You Won't Need Them Any More—If You Use PERSPI-NO!

It's good-bye forever to dress shields. Good-bye to excessive unnatural perspiration of the arm-pits. You can wear any weight of clothing or live in hot stuffy rooms, but you will never again have your clothing in the arm-pits soaking wet from perspiration, or have them get stiff, fade, and have the colors run, if you use the new marvel, PERSPI-NO.

"No More Arm-Pit Perspiration and No More Dress-Shields. I Use PERSPI-NO."

You can go to a dance, to the theatre, concert, or any social affair, feeling sure that you will never be humiliated or be in perfect misery because of arm-pit perspiration. PERSPI-NO is a powder, a simple formula, absolutely safe for anybody. Try it once; you'll be convinced and surprised. You apply it with the pad which is packed with every box sold. PERSPI-NO is a wonder. You'll say so after using it once. Satisfaction or money refunded.

PERSPI-NO is for sale at your druggist's at 25c a box, or sent direct, on receipt of price, by the Perspo Co., 2715 Lincoln Ave., Chicago.

VIRGINIA FIREMEN GOING AFTER MEETING.

Virginia, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fire department will have a representation of forty or more at the convention of the Minnesota State Firemen's association at Minneapolis June 11, 12, 13. Assistant Chief James Stickney will head the Virginia delegation. The Virginia city band will go along and the Virginia men will have a special car at their disposal from the time they leave home until they return.

While there are contests for the 1915 meeting, Virginia has been sending out literature for several months and has pledges from many cities that Virginia will be supported.

VIRGINIA CLASS PLAY MAKES HIT

One Young Lady Not Allowed to Participate Because She Danced.

Virginia, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.) — The senior class play was given last night in the Roosevelt school and was largely attended. The title was "Co-Education" or "The Fifteenth of January."

The characters are taken by all of the twenty-seven seniors with the exception of Elivira L. Tornquist, who was denied a place in the cast for the reason that she remained away from a rehearsal to attend a dancing party given by the Virginia club on May 31. The place that had been assigned to Miss Tornquist was given to Julia A. Larson and the part Miss Larson had was eliminated from the play. In order to accommodate all who would desire to see the play, it will be repeated tonight.

Those Who Participate.

DR. CUMMINGS DID NOT APPEAR

Files Affidavit Alleging He Cannot Discharge Obligation Imposed By Court.

Hibbing, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. J. H. Cummings, cited to appear in district court yesterday and show cause why he has failed to comply with an order of the court decreeing the payment of alimony and suit money to his divorced wife, Mrs. Gussie L. Cummings of Hibbing, failed to appear.

Cummings' attorney filed affidavits in the matter, which allege that Cummings has been unable to secure money to discharge the obligation, by reason of ill health and hard luck generally. The affidavits also set forth that at the present time he is being supported by his brother, pending the settlement of an estate in which he is interested and denies the service of an order to appear in the district court and show cause.

EXPRESS COMPANY WILL NOT STAND IN THE WAY.

Hibbing, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The American Express company will not stand in the way of any improvements contemplated by the Hibbing park board at McGonagle park. As soon as it is advised that plans have been completed to park the site of the old Missabe depot and tracks the company will seek a new location.

This is the information received by the Messrs. Ward, Erspamer and Nides, appointed a committee at the last meeting of the Commercial club to take the matter up with the express company.

The express company claims that all arrangements have been made for a lease of the grounds, but that it is willing to remove to a new location at any time the park board is ready to begin work on McGonagle park.

FIRST APPLICATION DARKENS THE HAIR

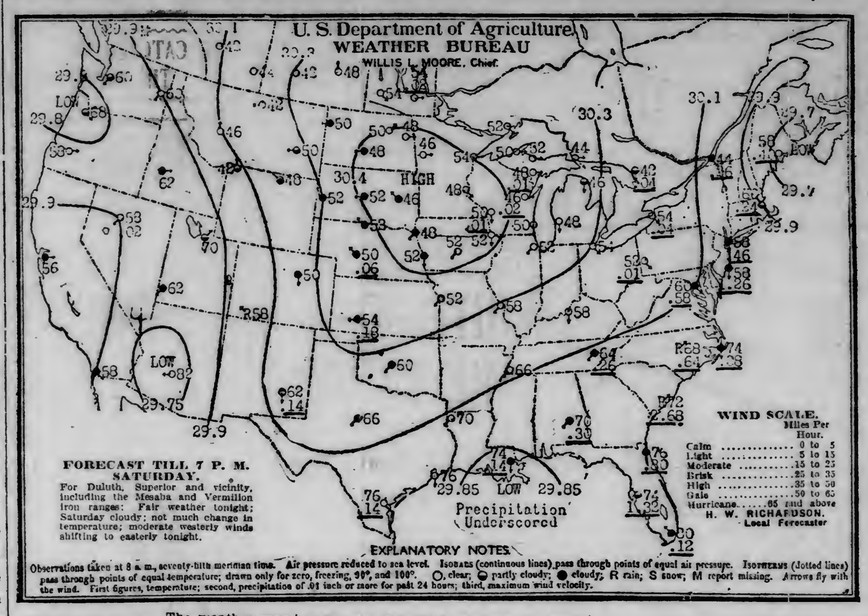

A Simple Remedy Gives Color, Strength and Beauty to the Hair.

You don't have to have gray hair or faded hair if you don't want to. Why look old or unattractive? If your hair is gray or faded, you can change it easily, quickly and effectively by using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. Apply a little tonight, and in the morning you will be agreeably surprised at the results from a single application. The gray hairs will be less conspicuous, and after a few more applications will be restored to natural color.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur also quickly removes dandruff, leaves the scalp clean and healthy, and promotes the growth of the hair. It is a clean wholesome dressing which may be used at any time with perfect safety.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today, and see how quickly it will restore the youthful color and beauty of your hair and forever end the nasty dandruff, hot, itchy scalp and falling hair. All druggists sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if you are not satisfied after fair trial. Special agent, Max Wirth, 13 West Superior street.

Official Map of the Weather

FORECAST TILL 7 P. M. SATURDAY.

For Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermillion iron ranges: Fair weather tonight; Saturday cloudy; not much change in temperature; moderate westerly winds shifting to easterly tonight.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Observations taken at 8 a. m., seventy-fifth meridian time. Air pressure reduced to sea level. Isobars (continuous lines) pass through points of equal air pressure. Isotherms (dotted lines) pass through points of equal temperature; drawn only for zero, freezing, 90°, and 100°. O, clear; ◒ partly cloudy; ● cloudy; R rain; S snow; M report missing. Arrows fly with the wind. First figures, temperature; second, precipitation of .01 inch or more for past 24 hours; third, maximum wind velocity.

The weather man is a Democrat. That's certain, or he couldn't have been so kind to the Democrats of Minnesota yesterday. Those who have had their hammers out for Duluth weather had better bury their hammers as deep as the Democrats buried the hatchet. When Duluth weather is right, its "righter" than anything in the ken of man. Continued fair weather is on the bills for tonight and tomorrow, and we may go on wearing our straw hats and rejoicing.

Beautiful weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:14 and it will set at 8 o'clock this evening, giving fifteen hours and forty-six minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"High temperatures prevailed Thursday in Oregon, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas. Light frosts occurred last night at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Escanaba, Mich. During the last twenty-four hours light to heavy rains felt over Atlantic and gulf states in connection with the depressions centered off the Maine and Louisiana coasts, and light rains fell over Southern Colorado and New Mexico as a result of the disturbance overlying Arizona. At the Head of the Lakes the weather will probably be generally fair during the ensuing thirty-six hours, except for more or less cloudiness Saturday."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, June 7.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Saturday:

Upper Michigan—Fair tonight and Saturday; slightly warmer in extreme east portion tonight; probably light frost tonight.

Wisconsin—Fair and slightly warmer tonight; Saturday increasing cloudiness and warmer.

Minnesota—Increasing cloudiness tonight and Saturday; warmer in south and west portions tonight.

Iowa—Increasing cloudiness with probably showers in west portion tonight or Saturday; warmer tonight.

North Dakota and Montana—Cloudy tonight and Saturday.

South Dakota—Unsettled weather, with showers tonight or Saturday; warmer tonight.

Upper lakes: Light variable winds. Generally fair weather tonight and Saturday.

WOULD ELIMINATE "DEATH'S CURVE"

Dangerous Place Under Two Harbors Viaduct May Be Changed.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chief Engineer W. A. Clark of the Iron Range railroad submitted a sketch of the plans for straightening out the curve in the Seventh avenue viaduct so as to eliminate the danger of collisions of passing vehicles. As the roadway now is, there is great danger of a serious accident at this point owing to the fact that teams or motor cars traveling in either direction cannot see or be seen in time to prepare for a meeting.

It is proposed to make a sharp turn in the road on the east side of the viaduct and also to move the road on the west side to the south so that drivers of teams and cars can have a straight track for a couple of blocks when approaching the viaduct from either direction. The grade is down from both sides of the viaduct and the natural tendency is to approach the viaduct too fast. The Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company is going to fix up the place at the solicitation of a Commercial club committee and work on the improvement will begin at once.

Trout Fry Placed.

On Monday a car load of trout fry was shipped up the Alger Smith line and planted in the streams along that line. In addition to this large shipment, about 30,000 fry were received here the first part of the week and were also planted in the streams north of the city. More than double the amount of trout fry has been planted in the streams tributary to this city this year than during any previous year.

WANT BETTER ROAD.

Deer River Anxious for Better Highway to Cohasset.

Cohasset, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club this week discussed the improvement of the road between here and Cohasset. A committee was appointed to wait upon the county board at their next meeting and endeavor to have the board take the matter up at once. After this road is completed it will give us one of the best roads to all range towns and one that can be traveled in comfort by auto. At the present time it is impossible to travel this road in the summer.

After a shut down of three days, caused by the breaking of the main shaft, the planing mill is again running.

The large number of new families coming in and the number of marriages leaves the village without vacant houses and a number of people are now waiting to secure houses here, but from the present outlook their only chance lies in building.

VIRGINIANS HONEST.

So Declares State Inspector After Testing Measures.

Virginia, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—After working two weeks here, J. H. Nordby of the state department of weights and measures has gone to Hibbing. Mr. Nordby states that the merchants here have been very accommodating and willing to receive hints and suggestions and to comply with the state law in every particular. The defects found here were not of intent.

Mr. Nordby tested the wagon platform scales at the city hall, those of W. H. Eaton and Mayor Murphy's scales. These are the scales on which nearly all of the loads of coal are weighed and where comparisons have been made, there have been differences of fifty pounds or more at times. He had a load hauled to all these scales and says that the city scale is likely to be the least accurate of the three.

LIFE HELMETS AT MONICA MINE

Republic Iron & Steel Installing Apparatus to Save Lives.

Gilbert, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—E. N. R. Butcher of the Schley mine engineering force went to the Monica mine Thursday to demonstrate the life saving apparatus which is now being used by the Republic Iron & Steel company.

It consists of Draeger helmets which can be put on and worn for about an hour in air which has no oxygen. The apparatus also contains a pulmotor, which as its name implies is a machine for pumping air into and out of the lungs of a person overcome by gas and its use has already been the means of saving several lives of people in this city who were overcome by coal gas. This apparatus will be very valuable in case of mine fires and the Republic Iron & Steel company are to be congratulated on the efficient instruction they are giving their employes.

WANT ELY LAKE RESORT CLOSED

Eveleth, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club last night took the initiative in the matter of abolishing a nuisance that has existed for several years. The secretary was instructed to call County Attorney Norton's attention to a disreputable resort now in operation on the shore of Ely lake within a few hundred feet of the pavilion and picnic grounds. Also to request the county attorney to make a request of Congressman Miller for a government soil survey of the lands in the Eveleth territory. It was also unanimously agreed to extend an invitation to the members of the Minnesota Editorial association to visit Eveleth on their tour of the iron ranges and a committee composed of A. E. Pfremmer, J. C. Poole, Dr. C. W. More and James A Robb was appointed to provide for the entertainment of the visitors in case the invitation is accepted.

KEEWATIN TO CELEBRATE.

Old-Fashioned, Ripsnorting July 4 Is Planned.

Keewatin, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club decided that Keewatin would celebrate the Fourth of July in the good old fashioned way. President McEachin appointed the following committee to have charge of the soliciting of funds and arrangements: W. A. King, E. L. Cochran, F. V. Wakkinen, Joseph Chastan, J. J. Roberts. The committee was empowered to appoint sub-committees to assist on the day of celebration. One thousand dollars is expected to be raised and a brass band will be engaged for the day. A baseball game will also be one of the features.

The contract for the continuation of First street as far as the bath house has been let by the council to Gust Johnson, a local contractor. The council also decided upon the letting of a contract for the construction of five-foot wide plank sidewalks on First and Second avenues.

Gust Johnson has an up-to-date irrigation plant on his farm in section 16-57-22, but owing to the continuous rainfall he has been unable to test its irrigating qualities.

Chas. Vadnais is raising Belgian hares for market and is having much success.

Sam McGregor of Bovey is anticipating putting in a blacksmith shop here.

TWO HARBORS SOCIETY TO URGE CLEANLINESS.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Anti-Tuberculosis society met at the courthouse to consider a request for contribution toward a new organization which will be known as the Civic league. The officers of the new organization are Miss Borreson, president; Mrs. W. L. Fowler, secretary and treasurer. The principal object of the new organization is to arouse public sentiment in favor of cleanliness. A crusade will begin at once for more sanitary conditions as it is expected that much good will be derived from this movement. The Civic league has offered a reward to the child who secures, dead or alive, the most flies. The contest will last all summer.

BROOKSTON STORE IS CLOSED FOR CREDITORS.

Brookston, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The W. A. Epperson store was closed the first of the week while an inventory of the stock was taken. It is stated that Mr. Epperson made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors and that the stock will be sold by M. W. Hingeley, the Floodwood banker, who is acting in the capacity of trustee, and who has spent the greater part of the week here. Mr. Epperson does not expect to re-engage in business, but will devote his time to his farm, which adjoins the village on the southwest.

TWO HARBORS COUPLE MADE MAN AND WIFE.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Henry Johnson and Miss Anna Gustafson, both of this city, were married last evening at the home of the bride on Seventh avenue. The bride is a daughter of Elof Gustafson, and is well known among the young people of the city. The groom is employed in the car department of the Duluth & Iron Range. The newly wedded couple are at home in the John Carlson residence on Ninth avenue.

GRAND RAPIDS COUPLE MARRIED IN DULUTH.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tim Mahon and Miss Alma Dahl surprised their friends by going to Duluth Wednesday and being married. Both are well and favorably known here, having been residents of Grand Rapids for many years. Mr. Mahon is employed at the Spang & Hoolihan mill in a responsible capacity, and the bride has been employed at the Pokegama hotel for several years. They will reside in Grand Rapids.

BRING HIBBING MAN'S BODY HOME

Hibbing, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Charles Virginia, an old-time resident of Hibbing, who died Thursday at a St. Paul hospital, following an illness of malarial fever, arrived last evening.

Virginia was about 40 years of age and came to Hibbing from Virginia. He was an Italian by birth and had been engaged in the saloon business in Hibbing for several years. The funeral will be held from the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Father Joseph Bernatto officiating.

MISSING MAN SEEN LAST AT DEER RIVER.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mystery still surrounds the disappearance of Grand Forks county's two prominent citizens, H. M. Rounce, manager of the Tri-State Telephone branch in this city, and Attorney Albert A. Davis of Larimore, a member of the state legislature. The search of relatives and business associates fails to reveal any trace of either since they left their homes ten days ago.

It has been found that Mr. Rounce had dinner at Deer River, Minn., May 25, but from there the trail disappears. Relatives in Northern Minnesota have been communicated with and they have neither seen nor heard from him in that time. R. F. Wilder of the general office of the Tri-State company has come here to take charge of affairs.

ILLEGAL FISHERMAN FINED AT HIBBING.

Hibbing, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joseph Meadows, a resident of Kittsville, paid a fine and costs amounting to $11.10 in municipal court yesterday afternoon, after entering a plea of guilty to a charge of illegal fishing in Six-Mile lake, preferred by Game Warden George Wood. Meadows makes an even dozen illegal fishermen who have been convicted of operating at Six-Mile lake, formerly one of the best bass lakes in the vicinity of Hibbing, but now practically barren of fish on account of the operations of poachers.

ALGER-SMITH PLANS TO LOAD PULPWOOD.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Wm. Mollard, superintendent of the cedar department of the Alger-Smith company and C. G. Reynolds, general superintendent for the same company, were here to complete arrangements with Geo. H. Spurbeck, contractor, to take charge of the loading of the pulpwood on the bank of the Knife river. The company has about 5,000 cords of pulp banked at that place.

CHISHOLM COUPLE HURRY TO HAYWARD.

Chisholm, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Edward Freeman and Miss Bessie Peck received a telegram at a late hour Wednesday evening from their home in Hayward, Wis., stating that their mother, Mrs. Peck, had been taken suddenly ill. They drove by automobile to Virginia at an early hour yesterday morning and took the early train to Duluth in order that they might arrive home today.

WILL CONSTRUCT STREET THROUGH HAYES ADDITION.

Keewatin, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Henry Breen of Hibbing, owner of the Hayes addition to Keewatin, while here this week, announced that he will construct a street through the addition thirty-three feet wide. A bridge spanning Mud creek will also be built. The street will connect with the main street of the village.

A fawn was seen in the village Wednesday drinking water near the Conte livery barn. No attempt to capture the animal was made and it finally took to the woods.

BEER BOTTLE WIELDER IS FINED IN HIBBING.

Hibbing, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Bodjak paid a fine of $65 in municipal court yesterday afternoon upon conviction of an assault upon Mike Sulenich with a beer bottle. Sulenich was badly cut about the head and rendered unconscious. The two became involved in a dispute at Bodjak's boarding house that started all the trouble.

ELY HIGH EXERCISES.

Ely, Minn., June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The graduating exercises of the high school were held last evening when the following program was given: Invocation, Rev. E. F. Stidd; "Alma Mater" (Arthur Custance), class of 1912; vocal duet, "Barcarolle" from "Tales of Hoffman," (J. Offenbach), Elvira Lindbeck and Anna Lindberg; salutatory and oration, "Woman's Larger Sphere," Gladys Simpson; "Toreadore," from "Carmen," (Bizet), High School Boys' Glee club; "The Four Square Man," Rev. Robert Yost, D. D., of Duluth; violin solo, "Humoreske" (Dvorak), Perry Simpson; oration and valedictory, "The Struggle of Capital and Labor," D. Raub James; "Lovely June" (Ardite), High School Girls' Glee club; presentations of diplomas, James Moonan; "The Beautiful Blue Danube," with orchestration, (Straus), High School chorus; benediction, Rev. Victor Kolvumaki.

Each did splendidly. The High School chorus well played "The Beautiful Blue Danube." There were 100 voices in the chorus and was one of the best selections ever rendered in the history of the high school.

The graduates are Wilson Carlson, Edel E. Ellefson, Earl W. Fenske, Albert A. Hanson, Elma F. Hario, Kimball Hawkey, D. Raub James, Nora M. Kurvinen, Elvira W. Lindbeck, Anna N. Lindberg, John Marttila, Allie H. Miettunen, Mead Murray, Ida S. Porthan, Albert C. Prisk, John N. Rautio, Gladys Simpson, Perry Simpson, Alfred Skogland, Samia A. Willman, and Selma A. Willman.

The officers of the class were: President, D. Raub James; secretary and treasurer, John Marttila. The first honors were awarded D. Raub James and Gladys Simpson. Today the annual school picnic is being held at Sandy Point.

PHONE MEN INSPECT.

Hibbing, Minn., June 7.—W. H. Dean, traffic chief, and F. L. Greenfield, district plant chief, with two engineers of the Bell Telephone company have been inspecting the local properties of the Mesaba Telephone company. They went to Chisholm, where it is proposed to replace the present Bell telephones with a central energy system which will do away with the necessity of ringing up "central" before entering a call.

Grand Rapids to Celebrate.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grand Rapids will celebrate the Fourth. This was decided at a meeting of the Grand Rapids fire department last night when that organization unanimously decided to take charge of the celebration.

The entire county will be invited to come and participate.

A committee consisting of George Riddell, George F. Kremer and James Doran has been appointed to look after the arrangements for the celebration.

LIMIT ON SIZE OF BAGGAGE IS HELD UP.

Washington, June 7.—New regulations for transportation of baggage, proposed by nearly every railroad in the United States, which in effect would advance the rates on "excess," have been suspended by the interstate commerce commission. The suspension becomes effective July 1 and continues in fore for 120 days, pending investigation.

The new regulations not only sought to amend the excess rates, but to prohibit the carriage of certain size pieces of baggage. The commission believes the fixing by the roads of the dimensions of baggage will work unnecessary hardship upon travelers.

WAS MARRIED AT SIGHT; NOW WANTS A DIVORCE

Briefly Courted Bride Says Husband Married Another on Wager.

Won Bet That He Could Repeat His Twenty-Four-Hour Courtship.

The folly of love at first sight marriage has been forcibly brought to the attention of 22-year-old Thelma Sutherland Weyers, a Duluth girl, who was captivated by the engaging appearance of a lake marine engineer and married him in less than twenty-four hours after they had first met.

Thelma Sutherland and Thomas Albert Wyers first knew each other on the afternoon of Sept. 9, 1910. That evening Wyers waived all rules of courtship and conventionalities and proposed to her. She felt romantic and accepted. The next day they were married. Yesterday in district court she brought a divorce case before Judge Dibell.

Wyers is a lake steam vessel engineer and is said to be employed on one of the Steel corporation boats. He is 37 years old and his wife told the judge yesterday that he was a handsome and well built man and one of pleasing manners. She wanted the divorce on the grounds of desertion. The case has been taken under advisement.

In the short two years of Mrs. Wyers married life she declares that she has lived with her husband but for a short time. He, she claims, has had a checkered career and has violated his marriage vows. On one occasion she had him arrested for bigamy and thereby hangs a peculiar tale.

Five months after the Wyers had been married, she claims that he deserted her on the pretense that he was going to Manitowoc, Wis., in search of work during the winter months. It was while Wyers was in Manitowoc, she claims, that he proved false to her by committing bigamy.

Married on a Bet.

The story which she told the court was that Wyers had made a wager with another man that in view of the fact that he had married before on first sight that he could pull off the same stunt again. Not only did he make the wager, but he also won it.

Wyers and the Manitowoc girl, she claims, secured a marriage license at Manitowoc on the next day after they had met. They were unsuccessful in getting a special dispensation from the probate judge there in order to get married the next day, as the judge had an intimation that there was something wrong about the deal. Five days elapsed before the ceremony was performed.

After the Manitowoc wedding, Mrs. Wyers No. 1 alleged, Wyers and his second love-at-first-sight bride left for Traverse City, Mich. In the meantime No. 1 had heard of the Manitowoc affair and traced her husband to Michigan, where she had him arrested for bigamy. It was not known whether or not the charges against him were pressed.

Mrs. Wyers claims that she has learned that Wyers was married at one time before he married her. She told the court that she did not know whether his first wife was dead or was a divorcee.

Mrs. Hannah Ahlstead, aged 27, yesterday started divorce proceedings against her husband, Carl Ahlstead, charging desertion. They were married at Iron River, Wis., in March, 1904.

* * *

Mrs. Katherine Sanson has asked for an order in district court restraining her husband, William Sanson, against whom a divorce case is pending, from leaving Duluth with their three minor children.

LEVEL OF THE LAKES HIGHER

The United States lake survey reports the stages of the Great Lakes for the month of May, 1912, as follows:

Lakes	Feet above tide water New York
Superior	602.00
Michigan-Huron	579.93
Erie	572.54
Ontario	246.82

Lake Superior is 0.54 foot higher than last month, 1.18 feet higher than a year ago, 0.07 foot below the average stage of May of the last ten years, 1.05 feet below the high stage of May, 1861, and 1.18 feet above the low stage of May, 1911. It will probably rise 0.3 foot during June.

Lakes Michigan-Huron are 0.49 foot higher than last month, 0.23 foot higher than a year ago, 0.81 foot below the average stage of May of the last ten years, 3.59 feet below the high stage of May, 1886, and 0.37 foot above the low stage of May, 1896. They will probably rise 0.3 foot during June.

Lake Erie is 0.29 foot higher than last month, 0.66 foot higher than a year ago, 0.15 foot lower than the average stage of May of the last ten years, 1.88 feet below the high stage of May, 1862, and 1.23 feet above the low stage of May, 1901. It will probably rise 0.1 foot during June.

Lake Ontario is 0.50 foot higher than last month, 1.22 feet higher than the average stage of May of the last ten years, 2.13 feet below the high stage of May, 1870, and 1.86 feet above the low stage of May, 1872. It will probably rise 0.1 foot during June.

BUY YOUR REFRIGERATOR EARLY

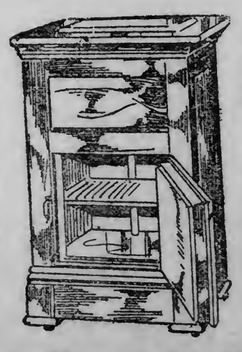

OUR PRICES NEVER GROW.

The reason is apparent. Our Duluth summer is short and blistering hot. If you want an ice box, you want it now. It is from now on you need it.

Our Refrigerator is the ICE COLD—the name fits the box. It is built to keep out heat and keep in the cold, therefore a great ice saver.

The Ice Cold comes in different sizes and styles. We have them in white enamel and galvanized inside finish. Be sure to see our Ice Cold Rotary Circulation Refrigerator. The air circulates round and round through the ice and food chambers, thereby keeping every part of the box at an even temperature. It allows no "dead air" at the top.

The excellent exterior finish of the Ice Cold Refrigerators gives them a fine appearance. The corners are all rounded, surface smooth and color is a fine golden oak. No better looking box was ever made.

Big, roomy refrigerators on sale at $12.50, $14.50, $16.50, $17.50, $21.50, $23.50, $26.50 and $33.50. Pay part down and the balance in easy payments to suit your convenience.

MUST KNOW HOW TO SPELL

Speling ain't nothin' to be laffed at, at the Dooluth normall skool.

That spelling is considered highly important was proved yesterday when two girls, one of whom missed two words of of 100 and the other who missed but one word in the final examination were refused their diplomas in spite of the fact that they were above grade in all other subjects. They will be forced to continue at the summer term.

The students are given a list of 1,200 common words to study when they begin their course. From this list 100 words are picked and given to them as an examination. These examinations are given frequently and when a girl passes with a perfect mark, she is through with the subject. They are urged to take the examination early in the course and get it out of the way, but many keep postponing.

President Bohannan says that the students are warned repeatedly and that it is a hard matter to get them to consider spelling seriously. He said that if the one missed word looked as though it was simply a "slip of the pen," it would not be sufficient to "flunk" the student, but that if the spelling of the word showed that the student did not know how to spell it correctly, it would.

"There have been so many complaints about poor spelling, that we have been forced to be strict," said Mr. Bohannon, this morning. The words are not trick words, but are words that are in everyday use. The students have many opportunities during their course to pass the examination. If we made the requirement 95 per cent, there would be some with 94 or 93 per cent who would feel aggrieved. If it were 90 per cent, some would have 88 or 89 per cent. These 1,200 words are words that every person who plans to teach should know how to spell. Of course, it seems unfortunate that the young women failed to get their diplomas, but there have been many opportunities to take this examination."

Call Conference.

A social center conference has been called by the board of public welfare for Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the library club room. Members of the board of public welfare, the Playgrounds association, Miss King of the Bryant school, E. M. Mooney of the Salter school and C. H. Foster of the Irving school will tell of what is now being done along social center lines in this city. There will also be representatives from the Y. W. C. A., the W. C. T. U., the Glen Avon Presbyterian church and others who are engaged in the work.

The Woman's Council and the Improvement clubs have been asked to send committees to this meeting and the meeting will be open to all interested.

LA FOLLETTE PLATFORM.

Madison, Wis., June 7.—Drafts of the platform to be presented by the La Follette delegations to the Republican national convention are being made by State Senator W. C. Cowen of Malden Rock, with other close friends of Senator La Follette.

One of the principal plans will be a demand for the initiative, referendum and recall, with direct nomination and election, applied to both states and nation. Other planks will be:

A parcels post, to include government ownership and operation of express companies at a charge equal to the actual cost to the public.

Physical valuation of railroad properties as a basis for the rates to be charged passengers and shippers, with greatly increased powers of regulation to be given to the interstate commerce commission.

Graduated income and inheritance tax law.

The strengthening of the Sherman anti-trust law by the creation of a commission with power to investigate and ascertain the illegal acts of all trusts and combinations, and with further power to ascertain the real valuation of the coal, oil, iron, steel and other trusts—not the monopoly valuation.

A plank is also being drafted favoring the policy of government ownership and operation of Alaskan railroads and coal mines.

GRADUATION WATCHES

For Boys and Girls.

At Henricksen's the watches are timed, tested and regulated before they are placed in stock.

They are guaranteed to keep accurate time, and must do so, or we do not wish our customers to carry them.

Over a quarter of a century in the watch business has taught us to know the kind of watches that can be depended on to give the best service to our customers.

You naturally come to this store expecting to find the best assortment of patterns and styles and you'll not be disappointed.

Also the price of our watches is generally a little less than you will find the same grades sold for elsewhere.

CONSUMERS, ATTENTION

As I am making arrangements for the direct handling to Wholesale Trade only, of a line of Imported Food Products which will make it impossible for me to retain further connection with this firm—as I will have to make my headquarters in another section of the United States, I have decided to briefly review for the benefit of the people of this city what has been done by the National Co-Operative Mercantile Co. since its inception.

First—It was organized for the specific purpose of helping wage workers in times of "lock-outs and strikes." The first business it transacted was to help in the organization of Co-operative Stores on the Mesaba range during the strike of the Western Federation of Miners.

Second—It brought before the public the fact that most of the advertised brands of goods for which the consumers are at times paying nearly double the money, have in their ingredients no specific merit to commend them other than the fact that the makers spend hundreds of millions of dollars every year in glittering advertisements to hypnotize the public, and let the "public pay the freight."

Third—That the penny-ante method of ordering, and delivery of small orders is an expensive proposition that works to the detriment of the consumer.

Fourth—That the difference between what the producer gets and what the consumer pays amounts approximately to 50 per cent, and that this awful waste will continue until the consumers become wide awake enough to establish their own distributive enterprises.

Fifth—That the crerdit system is a curse and a blot upon human civilization—that it keeps every family of the working class in perpetual poverty.

Sixth—That as a result of our existance prices of foodstuffs—taking into consideration the original cost to the retailers—are lower in Duluth than in any other city in the United States.

Seventh—That the People of this city and territory tributory to here are living beyond their means, and can do this only by being carried "on tick" by their grocer, butcher, and other merchants—and that when the day of reckoning comes, WHICH WILL COME within a very few years, that there will a general "smash up" although out of the debris in the general clearance—GOOD WILL COME, through an awakening consciousness on the part of the people that they have suffered from their own ignorance.

Eighth—My part is done—ask the Jobbers, the Retail Grocers, the Commission Merchants—all will admit that we have been open and above board in our every transaction. We owe not a dollar to anyone. We are owed many thousands of dollars by many whom we tried to help. We begrudge and condemn none—as conditions compel most people to acquire the means for subsistance at the expense of their better nature.

We have made our way—paid our expense—paid six per cent interest to our shareholders—and are as sound financially today and more so than when we started. Should the occasion ever demand my services again to help "a smash price campaign," it shall be given willingly and voluntarily. We have made mistakes, but they were honest ones and never with intention to take advantage of the Consumers. Without apology to anyone for any act of either omission or commission; for a duty done, depends neither upon favor nor upon apology.

MORRIS KAPLAN.

DROUTH WAS NOT BROKEN

Southwest Rains Failed to Relieve Major Part of Dry Region.

Wheat Again Goes Up—July Flaxseed Continues Its Ascent.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 7.—More particular reports about the rains that fell in Kansas and Nebraska yesterday showed that only part of the stricken region was relieved and that in the western part the outlook for the wheat is worse than ever. As a result there was a bulge in wheat on the markets of North America. Duluth July wheat closed 1½c to 1¾c higher. Duluth cash wheat closed a cent over July. Durum and oats were half a cent up, rye a cent off and barley unchanged. Duluth July flaxseed closed 3½c higher.

The wheat markets of North America were very bullish this morning, by reason of reports to the effect that the rains that recently fell in Kansas and Nebraska did not by any means relieve the drouth, and the parts of those states that were most seriously stricken were not touched at all. Moreover, the primary receipts on the American markets today were far less than those of a year ago.

The Liverpool market report and the reports from other European markets were bullish. Wheat closed on the Liverpool market at an advance of ⅝@1d. Smaller shipments from Argentina, a higher asking price for Australian wheat, firmer Manitoba offers and a good demand in France for wheat from other countries were all strong bullish factors.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.13¼, opened today at $1.13½ bid, and at noon was selling at $1.14⅝-¾. There were higher figures also on the markets of Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

July Flaxseed Still Gains.

July affseed, as usual, made gains on the Duluth market this morning, being 4½c up at noon, at $2.37. There was very little No. 1 flaxseed offered, and as that is about the only seed that was in strong demand on the Duluth market, there was not a great deal of trading. There were but five cars on the track for inspection. Winnipeg July seed was also bullish, being up 6 cents at noon at $2.05. Buenos Ayres June closed yesterday 1¼c up at $1.82⅝. London-Calcutta June and July closed today 2⅜c up at $2.31⅝.

Bradstreet's weekly report of business conditions at Duluth was issued today as follows: "Dry goods, groceries and furniture are active. Collections are fair. Lumber and building materials are active. Fair weather is stimulating retail trade. Increased freight traffic is noted for May. It is accounted for in general merchandise and building supplies. The coal movement is below the normal on account of recent trouble between anthracite miners and operators, but cargo shipments are expected in a few days."

Houston wired from Kansas City: "Kansas has had rain only in spots in the west half of the state. The east third of the state had good rains. Two millilon acres of wheat will prove a practical failure. Possibly a quarter of it may be cut over for what little can be gotten. Another million acres is on the border line between nothing and a yield of 10 bu. Three million acres will run 13 to 15 bu. No bumper yields are possible now. The total will not go above 65,000,000 bu and may be as low as 55,000,000 bu."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Rises on Bullish Kansas and Nebraska Reports.

Chicago, June 7.—Wheat rose today in response to evidence that the rainfall in Kansas was of much less importance than had been supposed. In addition there was bullish crop advices at hand from Nebraska. Rulis received encouragement, too, from predictions that the government report Monday regarding field conditions would show no improvement over the situation a month ago. The opening was ⅛@⅝c higher. Septetmber started at $1.05¼@1.05⅝, a gain of ⅜@⅝c and advanced to $1.05⅝@1.05⅞.

Reports of virtual failure of the crop in Western Nebraska sent prices still higher. There were also bullish estimates on the yield in the soft winter state of the Ohio valley. The close was steady with September at $1.06⅞@1.06, an advance of 1⅛@1¼c net.

Offerings in the corn pit proved to be light. The crowd seemed more disposed to work the long side of the market. Wheat strength cut considerable figure. July opened ⅛@⅜c higher at 74⅜@74½c and ascended to 74¾c.

Opinion that the weather was too cool for corn kept prices taut. The close was firm, ⅜c up at 74⅝c for July.

Buying on the part of commission houses turned the price of oats in an upward direction. Drought damage in Nebraska was said to be largely beyond help from all the rain that might fall. July started a shade dearer at 50¾c and mounted to 51¼c.

Increased cost of live hogs made provisions firm. Trade was quite active. Initial sales ranged from 5c off to 2½c advance with September, $18.87@18.90 for pork; $11.12½@11.15 for lard, and $10.65@10.67½ for ribs.

Cotton Market.

New York, June 7.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 3 points on July which was influenced by disappointing cables, but generally unchanged to 2 points higher on big overnight buying orders, which carried the active months about 7@9 points higher right after the call. Realizing was very heavy around this level, which represented an advance of about 44 points from the low prices of last Monday, and the market later eased off 6 or 7 points from the best. Business was extremely active at the start with the market receiving good support from shorts and local bulls.

Spot closed steady; middling uplands, 11.65; middling gulf, 11.90; sales, 1,500.

Futures closed barely steady. Bids: June, 11.10; July, 11.20; August, 11.26; September, 11.33; October, 11.44; November, 11.48; December, 11.53; January, 11.50; February, 11.54; March, 11.61; May, 11.66.

Hogs—Receipts, 2,900; steady; range, $7.15@7.40; bulk, $7.25@7.35. Sheep—Receipts, 500; steady; lambs, $4.00@8.50; wethers, $4.00@4.75; ewes, $1.00@4.00; clippers, 25@50c premium.

London Stocks.

London, June 7.—American securities opened dull with prices showing irregular changes today. The early trading was light and mainly on the selling side. Canadian Pacific was weak and lost 1⅜ points, while the rest of the list ranged from ⅜ above to ⅜ below yesterday's New York closing.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

All the Better Known Issues Fell Under Selling Pressure.

Lowest Prices Reached in Last Hour and Close Is Heavy.

New York, June 7.—Declines were general at the opening of today's stock market with losses of a point in several of the less active securities and 2¼ points in Canadian Pacific. All the better known issues reflected selling pressure, but the early losses in Reading and Lehigh Valley were soon recovered.

Pressure relaxed soon after the opening but only in a few isolated cases did the list make material recovery. Steel, Union Pacific and Amalgamated Copper were increasingly heavy, with general hesitation elsewhere.

Depression in London's market resulting largely from acute conditions in Berlin, provoked unsettlement here today. Canadian Pacific was the chief sufferer, declining 2¼ points, with pronounced heaviness in many of the more active stocks and various unimportant issues. Among industrials Can yielded to heaviness and with Steel fell under yesterday's low. Coppers showed some support in anticipation of favorable May statements.

About the only interesting feature of the noon hour was the report of the copper producers' association, showing a decrease in the supply of the metal on hand of 15,500,000 pounds. Standard issues manifested an easier trend.

The market closed heavy. Lowest prices were reached in the last hour, when news came that the United States supreme court had overruled the commerce court in several important findings against the interstate commerce commission.

COPPER IS HIGH; STOCKS LANGUID

Coppers at the close today were not higher, on the whole, than they were at the close yesterday, although the Copper Producers' report was very bullish, showing the stocks of copper on hand to be at a very low ebb, and copper on the American markets rose to 17½c a pound. The copper metal market of London closed today with spot copper unchanged and futures 1s 3d higher. Without doubt the Copper Producers' report will boost that market tomorrow.

Butte & Superior was one of the few stocks which showed a gain today, being up about 75c at the close. Hancock also showed some increase. North Butte, Butte-Alex Scott, Red Warrior and Amalgamated were off a little at the close.

The general stock market of New York made a weak close. The weakness of that market had much to do with the failure of coppers to rise.

Gay & Sturgis today received the following closing letter from J. J. Sturgis at Boston: "The Copper Producers' association was formed early in 1909. Since its inception and for at least a decade in all visible supply of the metal has never ever approached the low mark recorded today except in early 1907, when the price was 25c. A shrinkage for the month of May of 15,000,000 pounds brings supplies to a bare 50,000,000 pounds in this country. This is a merely nominal amount. It is no wonder copper stocks are going up when this condition is considered. Copper sold today at 17½c per pound. The markets rested somewhat today after yesterday's buoyancy, but were at no time weak and look like advancing further."

Paine, Webber & Co. today received the following closing letter from Foster at Boston: "The market had a slight setback today on realizing after the sharp advance of the past few days but still maintains a strong tone. Butte & Superior was the strong feature selling up to 45¼. We do not look for any setback of importance but believe the uprise will be resumed again and much higher prices next week. We advise the purchase of all good coppers again tomorrow. The decrease in surplus supplies of 15,½ million was about as expected and very bullish on the metal outlook."

Figures received at the local offices of Gay & Sturgis and Paine, Webber & Co. today from the Copper Producers' association for the month of May showed a decrease in the supplies on hand during that month of 15,450,386 lb. The Copper Producers' association reports copper stocks on June 1 as 49,615,643 lb against 65,066,029 lb on May 1; production May, 126,737,836, April 125,464,644; domestic delivery, May 72,702,277, April 69,513,846; foreign delivery, May 69,485,945, April 53,252,326; total delivery, May 142,188,222, April 122,766,172.

Both the local brokerage offices above mentioned today received the following dispatch from Boston: "Following heavy sales Thursday afternoon at 17⅞c lb, the copper market was moved up today to a general 17½c basis."

DR. OREDSON WRITES OF THE BENEFITS OF HOMECROFTING

Dr. O. A. Oredson, father of the home garden campaign in the West end and chairman of the special prize garden committee of the West End Commercial club, has written the following letter on the subject, in which he tells of the benefits of homecrofting and the landscape beauty gained by the home garden:

"It is true that the high cost of living can be reduced by at least 25 per cent by an intelligent adoption of the garden plan. There is not a family in the West end that cannot have a back yard garden this year if they so desire. If they have no yard of their own, but would like the opportunity, they are requested to apply to the garden committee of the West End Commercial club.

"Gardening is one of the best ways to occupy your leisure time. There is beauty, culture and health in such occupation. Suppose the men, women, boys and girls would utilize the time they now spend uselessly on the streets, cheap shows, pool rooms and other places in improving their back yard, planting and tending flower beds, vegetables, shrubbery and trees. Think of the beauty of such a yard in comparison with a promiscuous crop of tin cans, ash heaps, etc.

"That is one of the ways in which to make a city or a locality more attractive and valuable than another, because people will flock to these places and property becomes more desirable and increases in value. There is nothing so distasteful as a filthy back yard, and yet, with a little work in spare moments, that unsightly spot can be converted into almost a paradise, for there is nothing more pleasing to the eye than a well-ordered garden, flower beds and shrubbery. It will more than pay you to do it for the stuff you can raise.

"It is a fact that we are influenced by our environments. Clean, well-ordered surroundings induces higher morality, finer standard of living, greater habit of industry, economy of time, and inspires purer and better thoughts.

"Cleanliness is next to godliness and the health and morality of a locality will improve with the disappearance of the garbage heap and refuse from vacant lots.

"Much has been said of conserving the forest, improving livestock, poultry, hogs, cattle, horses, etc., and recently the department of agriculture issued a pamphlet on the subject of guinea hens, while the welfare of the child has been left to chance and an unkind fate.

"This winter, however, a new bureau of child welfare has been created. The right of each child to be well born, to be provided with wholesome food and sanitary surroundings, to receive education and be protected from vice has been widely discussed, and the benefits from gardening to the growing child are manifold. If we can educate the children to take an interest in keeping a garden they in turn will arouse the parents and backyard agriculture will multiply, habits of industry increase, cost of living decrease, permanent citizens of Duluth be secured, property values enchanced and business stimulated."

MANY AIDED AT INDUSTRIAL HOME

Salvation Army Has Busy Establishment During Spring Months.

About thirty men are employed daily at the new Salvation Army Industrial home, 1202 West Michigan street. According to Capt. Fred Krause, who is in charge of the local corps, considerable work is being done by the large staff of workmen. The home is the busiest place in the West end and is doing considerable effective work among the poorer classes.

Capt. Fred Krause yesterday afternoon made a rough estimate of the work accomplished during the past five months. In the spring a number of men were secured employment to assist housewives in their cleaning. Several secured yardmen positions, while others are still doing gardening work among the residents of the city. The employment department started by Capt. Krause has proven successful and a large number of men are received daily.

The recently opened soup kitchen, which is in charge of Lieut. Sorenson, is one of the most popular places in the city, if the large number of men that visit the place is any evidence. A meal consisting of soup, bread and coffee is served for 5 cents, and those unable to pay are given the food free of charge. The large hotel above the Industrial store has proved a valuable asset to the army home.

The local department is also trying to help the poor of the city by supplying them with clothes and furniture. The department wagons will call at any home in answer to a telephone call to headquarters.

One of the main features of the work of the local corps is the waste paper department. About twenty-five men are employed bailing and collecting the paper from all parts of the city. When a car load of paper is secured it is then shipped to the pulp manufacturers.

Capt. Krause estimates that during the past five months 6,000 meals were given away free. The heaviest number was given in the winter months, as is shown by nearly 2,000 lodgings being given away free of charge. Besides this, the department paid out about $1,500 in wages to the working men who assisted at the home. At present there is a relief store, industrial home, hotel and paper department combined in the army headquarters, which is under the direction of Capt. Krause. Mrs. Krause is also at the headquarters and directs the work of the female members of the corps.

Trousseau Shower.

Miss Mildred Clark, who will be married the latter part of this month, was the honor guest at a "trousseau" shower given last evening by Miss Eva Adams at her home, 2314 West Second street. Covers were laid for fifteen at the luncheon following a series of games and musical seletions. The rooms were prettily decorated in white and pink cupid hearts. Miss Clark was the reipient of a number of useful wedding gifts.

Birthday Surprise.

Gaudias Royer of 3618 West Third street was pleasantly surprised last evening by a number of his friends in honor of the 25th anniversary of his birthday. The evening was spent in music and games, after which refreshments were served to the following guests: Messrs and Mesdames Gaudias Royer, Joseph Martineau, William Martineau, Fred Paulin, Louis Gagne, Exaraus, Tessier, George Nephew, Louis Nephew; Mesdames John Orsser, Louis Felix, Nels Dupuis, Joseph La Fontaine; Misses Delia Felix, Ethel Orsser, Angellan Tessier, Jean Stronach, and the Messrs. Carl Anderson, Newman Timblin, Joseph Tessier, Oscar Olson, Eugene Poulin and Albert Martineau.

PLAN PAVING OF FIRST STREET

Many Owners Favor Movement to Improve Important Thoroughfare.

Following the appointing of a street committee two weeks ago, the West End Commercial club is now agitating the paving of First street from Twenty-first avenue west to Gilbert street and then to Grand avenue. The plan has met with the approval of Mayor McCuen, who suggested the pavement in his first address to the city council.

According to the present plans of the property owners along the street, the thoroughfare will be paved from Twenty-first avenue west to Gilbert street, near Thirty-first avenue west, then over to Grand avenue and from there to West Duluth. They believe that First street will make a better automobile road than Superior street. The proposed road will give autoists a clear road from the center of the city to West Duluth and later connect with the road to be built to the steel plant at New Duluth.

Business men are also in favor of the proposed street pavement, as it will tend to take the heavy traffic off Superior street and thus divide it between the two streets. Many wagon drivers now complain of the poor streets west of Thirty-first avenue west, while the autoists have been compelled to use the Grand avenue line in going to West Duluth. Grand avenue is already paved from Forty-seventh avenue west to Fifty-seventh avenue west, leaving only the paving of Grand avenue from Thirty-first avenue west to Forty-seventh avenue west to complete a paved thoroughfare from the center of the city to West Duluth. First street is fast becoming a business street and is the most level road in this end of the city.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR PROBATE OF WILL—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. —ss.

In Probate Court.

In the Matter of the Estate of Mary O'Donnell, Decedent.

A certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of Mary O'Donnell, having been presented to this court and the petition of James O'Donnell being duly filed herein, representing, among other things, that said decedent, then being a resident of the county of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, died testate in the county of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, on the 30th day of April, 1912, and that said petitioner is surviving spouse of said decedent, and that he is named as executor in said instrument and sole devisee of said estate, and praying that said instrument be allowed and admitted to probate as the last will and testament of said decedent, and that letters testamentary be issued to him, the said James O'Donnell, thereon.

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in Duluth, in said County, on Monday, the seventeenth day of June, 1912, at ten o'clock, A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

ORDERED FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in The Duluth Herald, according to law, and that a copy of this order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing, and by mailing a copy of said notice to each heir, legatee, devisee or other interested party herein at least 15 days before the day for hearing.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., May 23, 1912.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE—

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed by John Clark and Sylvia G. Clark, his wife, mortgagors, to The Cloquet Tie and Post Company, a corporation, mortgagee, bearing date the 22nd day of July, A. D. 1909, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of September, 1909, at 10:30 o'clock A. M., in Book 268 of Mortgages, Page 67.

Said default consists in the nonpayment of the principal and interest secured by said mortgage.

By reason of said default, the power of attorney contained in said mortgage has become operative. There is claimed to be due and is now due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of Two Hundred Ten and no-100ths ($210.00) Dollars, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to secure the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, By virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz.: The South One-half of the Southeast Quarter (S½ of SE¼) of Section Fourteen (14) in Township Fifty-one (51), Range Twenty-one (21) West of the Fourth Principal Meridian, St. Louis County, Minnesota, according to the government survey thereof, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Duluth, in said county and state, on the Sixth day of July, 1912, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, together with the costs of such sale, and Twenty-five and no-100ths ($25.00) Dollars attorney fees, stipulated in said Mortgage.

Dated this 18th day of May, 1912.
